Observations : Rule 74 of the Rules under the Motor Vehicles Act has laid down the authority for hearing appeals against the orders of the District Magistrate as registering authority, but omits to prescribe the appellate authority when action, has been taken by any officer empowered under R. 67 of the Rules. This lacuna in the Rule has remained because it was not brought up to date after S. 33 of the Act was amended in 1956 with the insertion of sub-s. (1) (b) therein. The lacuna needs to be rectified by a proper amendment of R. 74. I L R (1965) 15 Raj 100 : 1965 Raj L W 49 : AIR 1965 Raj 149 (151, 152) (Pt C) (Prs 7, 9).

129 (g). Evidence of.

——Art. 226 - Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 68 D —Approval of scheme—State Government to act judicially – Charge of bias—should be supported by reliable evidence See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 68 D. AIR 1960 S C 1073.

——Art. 226—Bias—Proof of—Oath against oath not sufficient.

It is incumbent upon a party to show that there is a real likelihood of bias. Moreover, before a party can be allowed to raise any argument based on bias, whether real or fancied, it should first of all prove existence of bias. Unless, therefore, the factum of bias is established, foundation for the plea itself does not exist and any superstructure of arguments raised in this connection cannot stand and must fall. Thus where the charge of bias is made in the affidavit of the petitioner and denied by counter-affidavit filed on behalf of the opposite parties as well as by the trial Judge it is a case of oath against oath, writ proceedings are not suited to do a thing which would condemn a person unheard. That would be a violation of a principle of natural justice. A I R 1956 All 718 (718, 719) (Pt C) (Prs 13, 15) (DB).

——Art. 226—Writ of certiorari—Bias—Suspicion not sufficient

It is well settled that there must be a real likelihood of bias and not mere suspicion of bias before proceedings can be quashed on the ground that the person conducting the proceedings is disqualified by interest. Case law referred. I L R 34 Pat 254 : A I R 1955 Pat 345 (349) (Pt B) (Pr 11) (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Bias.

The Court has certainly the authority to say that a particular witness is not telling the truth and it is a matter of discretion whether it should in such a case permit the pleader to cross-examine the witness. It is highly far-fetched to argue that this circumstance necessarily leads to the conclusion that the Court has a biased outlook. AIR 1954 Pat 550 (553) (Pt A) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Art. 226—Bias or prejudice—Tribunal– Evidence of rejection of several requests — (Evidence Act (1872), S. 14).

An effective showing of bias and prejudice cannot be made out on the basis of unfavourable rulings only.

Thus where in an inquiry against a public servant, the Commissioner rejects several requests of the public servant which he considered to be unreasonable giving satisfactory reasons in support of his decisions, no charge of bias or prejudice can be made against the Commissioner. I L R 1956) Punj 236 : AIR 1956 Punj 58 (63) (Pt E) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Art 226—Bias of Advocate-General in exercising powers under S 92, Civil P. C.

From the nature of a particular decision it may not always be possible to know that the decision is the result of actual bias. All that can be made out is that the position of the Judge in relation to the parties between whom he had to adjudicate, was such that it could be reasonably inferred that he could not deal with the matter dispassionately with an open, impartial and unbiased mind. Mere possibility of suspicion of bias would not be a sufficient ground to justify an order setting aside the decision on the ground that it is vitiated by bias. There must be real and substantial grounds to sustain the suspicion of bias as being legitimate and reasonable.

When the sanction petition under S. 92 Civil P. C. was pending consideration by the Advocate-General, the managing trustee had engaged him as his counsel for filing an appeal filed for and on behalf of the trust in question and the respondents were persons unconnected with and having no interest in the trust. The dispute involved in that appeal was one between the trust on the one hand, and the stranger-respondents on the other.

Held, that since the appeal had been filed on behalf of the trust for protecting its interests, it was obvious that the persons who had applied for sanction as well as the managing trustee and the other members of the managing board had the same interest in that litigation. Since there was no conflict of interest between these parties in the matter of that appeal, it cannot be said that by accepting the engagement from the managing trustee for filing that appeal, the Advocate-General had placed himself in a position having any bias or partiality in favour of the managing trustee as against the persons applying for sanction. It is no good contending that others might view the conduct of the Advocate-General with suspicion and attribute bias to his order. Any such suspicion has only to be ignored as unreasonable and baseless suspicion by perversely minded persons. Case-law discussed. ILR (1954) Trav-Co 369 : AIR 1954 Trav. Co 331 (345, 346, 347) (Pt E) (Prs 31, 33) (DB).

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1962 Ker 90 FB].

130. Board of film censors.

——Art. 226—Cinematograph Act (1918), S. 7—Board acts in judicial or quasi judicial manner. See Cinematograph Act (1918), S. 7. AIR 1952 Cal 653.

131. Co-operative Societies Act, order under.

——Art. 226 - Quasi judicial acts—Madras Co-operative Societies Act (6 of 1932), S. 43 — Functions of Registrar under S. 43 are of a quasi judicial nature — Writ of certiorari refused to be issued. A I R 1951 Mad 1003 ; W. P. Nos. 1383 and 1384 of 1958, D/-30-3-1960 Andh Pra, Rel. on. (1964) 2 Andh L T 94: AIR 1965 Andh Pra 69 (75, 76, 77) (Pt A) (Prs 22, 23).

——Art. 226 — Proceedings under S. 51, Madras Co-operative Societies Act — Writ of certiorari to quash —(Madras Co-operative Societies Act (6 of 1932), S. 51).

A worked as an honorary secretary of certain co-operative urban bank from 3-12-1942 to 19-2-1944. Under the then bye-laws he was entitled to certain percentage in profits as his honorarium. The bye-law was subsequently amended but the Bank, by resolution of its general body, sanctioned the amount of remuneration according to that bye-law and paid it to A on 31-10-1945. The Deputy Registrar, however, being of the view that the old bye-law could not be enforced in 1945, ordered the Bank to recover the payment from A on which the Bank started the proceedings under S. 51, Madras Co-operative Societies Act, against A. A applied for a writ to quash to proceedings.

Held, that the payment made to the petitioner in 1945 cannot be recovered in 1953 by resort to the provisions of S. 51.

(2) That it would be a misnomer to call the order of the Deputy Registrar an advice which was tendered to the Board of Directors of the bank by him. It was a quasi-judicial order which was capable of being called in question and quashed by the issue of a writ of certiorari,

(3) That there was no dispute between the Bank and the petitioner A which could be referred to arbitration under S. 51.

(4) That A was entitled to an order quashing the order of the Deputy Registrar and the proceedings under S. 51 pending before the arbitrator as beyond their jurisdiction.

(5) That this case exemplified an abuse of statutory powers to correct which Art. 226 of the Constitution has been designed. 1954 Mad W N 686 : A I R 1955 Mad 41 (43) (Prs 7, 9, 10, 11).

——Arts. 226 and 19 (1) (c)—Resolutions by General Body of Co-operative Society — Communication by Registrar that resolutions were ultra vires—Communication held departmental — No writ of certiorari can issue—Directions under Art. 226 also held could not issue — No infringement of fundamental right under Art. 19 (1) (c) — No appeal held lay under S. 12 of Madras Co-operative Societies Act—(Madras Co-operative Societies Act (6 of 1932), Ss. 51 and 12).

A Co-operative Society registered under Madras Co-operative Societies Act (6 of 1932), at a meeting of a General Body passed certain resolutions. The Secretary of the Society had doubts regarding the validity of the resolutions. So he wrote to the Deputy Registrar communicating the resolutions and asked whether they were valid, considering certain bye-laws of the Society. The Deputy Registrar replied that the resolutions were invalid and gave his reasons. The communications were marked "confidential". Certain members of the Society applied to the High Court for a writ of certiorari under Art. 226 or directions quashing the "Order" of the Deputy Registrar.

Held, (i) that the order in question not being one under S 51 was not the proceeding of any judicial or quasi-judicial tribunal but purely a departmental communication and was therefore, not one liable to be quashed by a writ of certiorari.

(ii) The communication did not prohibit the formation of any association The rules and bye laws of the association were binding on its members and so long as they were in force all the members were bound to act in accordance therewith, and it was no infringement of their right to form an association under Art. 19 (1) (c) to require that members of an association should act in conformity with the rules of that association. If the majority of the member were dissatisfied with those rules, their only remedy was to get them amended in accordance with law and not to break them.

(iii) The members could not be said to be aggrieved by the order if in pursuance of the directions contained therein the Secretary did anything which infringed the rights of the members, then it would be open to them to move in the matter and claim such appropriate reliefs as they might be entitled to in proceedings properly taken in that behalf. At this stage, there was only an expression of opinion by the Registrar that the resolution was ultra vires and on that the petitioners were not entitled to any directions under Art. 226 of the Constitution.

(iv) The resolutions were not amendments to bye-laws and no appeal lay against the order under S. 12 of the Madras Co-operative Societies Act. 1953 Mad W N 674 : 66 Mad L W 905 : (1953) 2 Mad L J 584: A I R 1954 Mad 348 (349, 350) (Prs 1, 4, 5, 6).

●——Art. 226 — Scope — (Civil P. C. (1908), S. 9—Madras Co-operative Societies Act (6 of 1932), Ss. 43, 51)—A I R 1951 Mad 352 and W. P. Nos. 317 and 318 of 1951 (Mad), Overruled.

A dispute relating to election is undoubtedly a dispute concerning or relating to the business of the society. Further, the activity of the members assembled in a meeting is a corporate activity of the society.

Where, therefore, the general body of the Bank elected the directors from its members under its bye-laws but the election was impugned under S. 51 by one of them and the Deputy Registrar acting under S. 43 passed the order setting aside the election.

Held, that the adjudication was within the jurisdiction of the Deputy Registrar and the same could not be questioned in writ proceedings. Case-law reviewed. Madhava Rao v. Surya Rao, 1953 Mad W N 515 : (1953) 2 Mad L J 340 : 66 Mad L W 821: I L R (1953) Mad 1047 : A I R 1954 Mad 103 (108, 109, 112) (Pt F) (Prs 16, 26) (FB).

——Art. 226—Quasi-judicial orders—Award—Setting aside—Order of Registrar under Rajasthan Co-operative Societies Act 4 of 1953 is quasi-judicial. See Rajasthan Co-operative Societies Act (4 of 1953), S. 62. I L R (1958) 8 Raj 1063.

132. Costs.

See Note 31.

133. Court of Wards Act, order under.

——Arts. 226, 15 and 19 (1) (f)—Certiorari—Assumption of superintendence of the estate of a female proprietor — U. P. Court of Wards Act (4 of 1912), S. 8 (1) (b) — Discretionary on the ground only of sex — Unreasonable restriction of freedom to hold property—Arts. 15 and 19 (1) (f) of the Constitution offended—Void.

A declaration under S. 8 (1) (b) of the U. P. Court of Wards Act 4 of 1912. was a quasi-judicial act and. as such, it is possible for the High Court to issue a writ of certiorari in respect of it. (A I R 1952 All 63; A I R 1952 All 99, Foll.; A I R 1950 S C 222, Dist.).

Section 8 (1) (b) of the Act 4 of 1912 (U. P.) cannot be justified as a reasonable classification ; it classifies female proprietors in an unreasonable manner and places them in a more disadvantageous position than the male proprietors who cannot be declared to be disqualified without enquiry and that too only on the five grounds under S. 8 (1) (d) ; it makes a discrimination on the ground only of sex. It is therefore void under Art. 13 of the Constitution. A I R 1952 S C 71; A I R 1961 All 746, Ref.

Article 19 (1) (f) of the Constitution is also infringed by S. 8 (1) (b) of U. P. Act (4 of 1912), as it restricts the freedom relating to property unreasonably on the ground only of sex. 1952 All L J 293 : 1952 All W R (H C) 284 : I L R (1953) 1 All 29 : A I R 1952 All 746 (747, 748, 749) (Pts A, B) (Prs 9, 10, 11, 13, 16) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Power to issue a writ of certiorari—Exercise of power by the Government in issuing a notification under S. 8 of the U. P. Court of Wards Act, 1912.

When the Government of the U. P. exercises its powers to make a declaration under S. 8 of the U. P. Court of Wards Act the capacity in which it acts is quasi-judicial so that its actions are open to review by the High Court by a writ of certiorari. A I R 1952 All 63, Foll. I L R (1952) 2 All 949 : A I R 1952 All 99 (101) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226—Failure to follow procedure under the U. P. Court of Wards Act — U. P. Court of Wards Act (4 of 1912), S. 8.

Under the U. P. Court of Wards Act, the State Government and the Court of Wards are bodies of persons vested with legal authority to determine questions affecting the rights of other persons. Where a notification was published in the official Gazette declaring the applicant and the persons alleged to be his co-sharers "to be incapable of managing the estate" under S. 8(1)(d), since the right to be affected is a natural or common law right of the applicant, there would be a presumption that the Government must act quasi-judicially. But apart from that, there is an express provision in the U. P. Court of Wards Act under S. 8(2) which makes it the duty of the Government to act quasi-judicially. If in making the declaration, the Government furnished a detailed statement of the grounds, but did not give the applicant an adequate opportunity of showing cause why such a declaration should not be made and all that the Government did was to ask for a mere representation from the applicant within a certain time, the local Government fails to follow the procedure laid down by law and it exceeds its jurisdiction in making the declaration. The Court would quash the declaration made by the local Government. I L R (1952) 2 All 783 : 1952 R D (H C) 229 : 1952 All L J 342 : AIR 1952 All 63 (67, 69, 70) (Pt A) (Prs 32, 46, 47, 50, 52) (DB).

——Art. 226—U. P. Court of Wards Act (4 of 1912), S. 11—Finality—Effect.

Provisions of S. 11 do not bar the High Court from issuing a writ, direction or order under Art. 226 if it finds that the Government has contravened the provisions of statute which empowered it to act in infringement of the rights of a citizen. I L R (1952) 2 All 783 : 1952 All L J 342 : 1952 R D (HC) 229 : AIR 1952 All 63 (70) (Pt C) (Pr 49) (DB).

——Art. 226—Courts of Wards Act (2 of 1903), Ss. 12 and 5(2)(d) — Superintendence of property assumed under S. 5(2)(d) — Evidence, sufficiency of—Competence of High Court to examine evidence and express an opinion on the adequacy or otherwise of material. 56 Punj L R 382 : A I R 1954 Punj 247 (250) (Pt B) (Pr 10) (DB).

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1963 Punj 9.]

——Art. 226 — Judicial or quasi-judicial order — Punjab Court of Wards Act (2 of 1903), S. 5 (2) (d).

If there is any judicial or quasi-judicial order which has been passed and which is illegal, the High Court would certainly call for the record and quash that order and if the case calls for a writ of prohibition the High Court would also issue that. There is no provision in the Punjab Court of Wards Act or in the rules requiring any detailed statement of grounds on which action is proposed to be taken to be furnished to the proposed ward or to give him an opportunity for showing cause why superintendence should not be assumed. It cannot be said that this is a judicial or a quasi-judicial act which the Government has to perform. No certiorari would, therefore, lie; nor can a writ of mandamus lie when nothing has been shown as to what duty the Government was bound to perform which has not been performed by it. 54 Cal W N 883 (PC); 54 Cal W N 893 (PC); 1948 A C 87, Foll. 55 Punj L R 279 : I L R (1953) Punj 279 : AIR 1953 Punj 30 (31, 33) (Pt A) (Prs 6, 19, 23) (DB).

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1963 Punj 9.]

134. Courts.

See also Note 171.

——Art. 226—Returning officer deciding on validity of nomination paper under S. 36(2), Representation of the People Act is not "Court"—Constitution of India, Arts. 226 and 227 — Court and tribunal)—Distinction between, pointed out. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 195. AIR 1956 S C 153.

——Art. 226—Special Tribunal and Court—Distinction.

That there is a real distinction between a tribunal and a Court cannot be disputed, though it may often be fine and sometimes difficult to define. 66 Mad L W 287 : (1953) 1 Mad L J 542 : 1953 Mad W N 200 : AIR 1954 Mad 340 (343) (Pt D) (Pr 7).

135. Custodian of evacuee property.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Wrong assumption of jurisdiction — Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950), S. 48(1)—Notice under—Wrong assumption of jurisdiction to issue — Mandamus directing Custodian not to act under notice — (Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950), S. 48(1).

The condition precedent for the issue of notice under S. 48 is that there must be a sum due under the Act to the Custodian. It does not give power to the Custodian himself to treat any amount as due to him and thereby assume jurisdiction to issue notice under s. 48. There being no provision in the Act empowering the Custodian to treat a person in possession of evacuee property claiming rights adverse to the evacuee as tenant and to fix rent, any amount fixed by him as rent cannot be regarded as a sum due to the Custodian under the provisions of the Act and consequently a notice issued for payment and for realisation of the amount as arrears of land revenue under S. 48 (1) is without jurisdiction, and the High Court can issue a writ of mandamus directing him not to act against the law and under a notice which is issued without jurisdiction. 1957 All W R (HC) 8 : 1957 All L J 41.

——Art. 226 –Scope of — Declaring certain property as evacuee property — Decision has to be made under Administration of Evacuee Property Act, by Tribunal —Act provides for elaborate inquiry — Relief under Art. 226 cannot be granted to declare that certain property belonged to applicant and to restrain Assistant Custodian from taking possession and selling fruits of groves — Writ petition lies only where Tribunal acts without jurisdiction or in excess of it or in failure of it or when order is on face of it illegal or grossly improper — (Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950), S. 7). 1954 All L J 545 : 1954 All W R (HC) 552 : A I R 1955 All 97 (97, 98) (Prs 1, 2) (DB).

——Art. 226 –Certiorari — Issue of writ — Order of Custodian-General under Evacuee Property Act— Erroneous.

The High Court will not grant the application for a writ of certiorari where there is nothing in the orders of the Additional Custodian or the Custodian-General to show that they have acted without jurisdiction or in excess of it or failed to exercise the jurisdiction vested in them or that there has been a violation of the principles of natural justice. A I R 1952 S C 179 and A I R 1952 S C 319, Foll. 1952 All L J 703 : 1955 All L W 17 : 1952 All W R (HC) 150 : AIR 1953 All 117 (118) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226—Patent lack of jurisdiction — Assets of Company, whether evacuee property — Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950), S. 2 (f).

It cannot be said that because under the Companies Act, a shareholder has always been held to have no existing right of ownership in the assets of the company, it would necessarily lead to the conclusion that a shareholder has no right or interest of any kind, and in any capacity, in the assets of the company. It cannot, therefore, be said on this ground that there is a patent want of jurisdiction in the Custodian to treat the assets of the Company as evacuee property in proceedings against the shareholders, and it cannot therefore be said that an application under Art. 226 of the Constitution would not justify a dismissal without consideration on merits in spite of the suppressions, misrepresentations and misleading statements in the application. Case law referred. Asiatic Engineering Co v. Achhru Ram, I L R (1952) 2 All 838 : 1951 R D (HC) 241 : 1951 All L J 576 : A I R 1951 All 746 (765) (Pt C) (Pr 46) (FB).

——Art. 226 — Patent lack of jurisdiction — Company whether evacuee—Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950), S. 2 (d) (f).

The definition of the word 'evacuee' can include the case of an incorporated company and it is not a case of patent lack of jurisdiction in the Custodian treating the Company as an evacuee. Asiatic Engineering Co. v. Achhru Ram, I L R (1952) 2 All 838 : 1951 R D (HC) 241 : 1951 All L J 576 : AIR 1951 All 746 (766) (Pt D) (Pr 48) (FB).

——Art. 226—Scope of power under—Order declaring property as evacuee property reversed under writ of certiorari — Proceedings for declaration restarted on basis of new title—Issue of writ—(Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950), S. 7)—(Civil P. C. (1908), S. 11).

The provisions of Art. 226 of the Constitution can be utilized only in those rare cases where the subordinate tribunals or bodies act wholly without or in excess of jurisdiction or where they refuse to exercise jurisdiction possessed by them. The jurisdiction to issue writs does not enable High Courts to convert themselves into Courts of Appeal and to examine for themselves the correctness of the decisions impugned on questions of fact or question of law or to decide afresh as to what view should have been taken of the points at issue between the parties by those who are made responsible by the legislature to decide the dispute. The jurisdiction conferred by Art. 226 is not an alternative mode of redress to the normal process of litigation. The powers exercised under it are only intended to meet those extraordinary cases, where but for the exercise of those powers grave and serious injustice would be occasioned to the applicants on account of the disregard of either the fundamental rights or of the jurisdiction conferred by law on judicial or other tribunals or of the principles of natural justice or where the orders are otherwise ultra vires.

Where an order declaring a certain property as evacuee property on the basis of adverse possession of the evacuee is reversed by the High Court under writ of certiorari the order of the High Court cannot operate to debar the Custodian from issuing a further notice to the applicant to show cause why the property should not be deemed to be evacuee property on the basis of the new title discovered later. Jurisdiction to make further declaration is not taken away and a writ cannot be issued against the subsequent order of the Custodian. Nor is there any legal basis for the applicability of the doctrine of res judicata in such a case. ILR (1954) Hyd 111 : AIR 1954 Hyd 167 (168) (Pr 2) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Administration of Evacuee Property Act (31 of 1950), Ss. 8 and 9 (2)—Claim by mortgagee — Jurisdiction to decide—Administration of Evacuee Property (Central) Rules (1949), S. 8 (2) (Civil P. C. (1908), S. 9). See Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950), S. 8. AIR 1958 J & K 51.

——Art. 226 — Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950), S. 12 — Administration of Evacuee Property (Central) Rules (1950), R. 14 (4)—Custodian enhancing rent of room without complying with R. 14 (4)—His act is not purely administrative but is judicial—Certiorari will lie.

Rule 14 of the Administration of Evacuee Property (Central) Rules, 1950, dealing with cancellation or variation of lease by the Custodian is to be taken subject to the provision of S. 12. The act of the Custodian in pursuance of such power cannot be said to be purely administrative but is quasi-judicial and the High Court has, therefore, power to control that power by a writ of certiorari.

Held, in the instant case that as the act of the Custodian in affecting variation of rent prejudicially affected the right of the petitioner a writ of certiorari could lie. (AIR 1955 Bom 440, 538) and (AIR 1952 Pepsu 12 Rel. on. Madh B L R 1956 Civ 803 : AIR 1957 Madh B 4 (5, 6, 7) (Pt C) (Prs 20, 25, 33) (DB).

——Art. 226 –Order of Custodian is of quasi-judicial character—Order can be corrected by High Court by writ of certiorari. See Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950), S. 7 (1). AIR 1954 Madh B 173 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Order under Evacuee Property Act— High Court's power to challenge validity of order. See Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950), S. 43. AIR 1954 Madh B 173 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Administration of Evacuee Property (Central) Rules 1950, R. 14 (4)—Cancellation of allotment without notice, validity — (Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950), S. 2). See Administration of Evacuee Property (Central) Rules, 1950, R. 14 (4). AIR 1953 Pepsu 119.

——Art. 226 — Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950) S. 52—Notifications under, dated 3-7-1950 and 9-5-1954 issued by Government of India Ministry of Rehabilitation—Applicability—Held conditions in the notifications were not complied with. See Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950), S. 52. (1962) 64 Pun L R 1116.

——Arts. 226 and 227 — Administration of Evacuee Property Act (31 of 1950), Ss. 6 and 40—Power of Custodian to issue instructions — Refusal to confirm sale—Assistant Custodian acting according to Custodian's instruction—Legality of order—Interference by High Court. See Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950), S. 6. AIR 1959 Punj 222.

——Art. 226 — Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950), S 26 (2) — Review under S. 26 (2)—Its nature—See Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950), S. 26 (2). AIR 1958 Punj 63.

——Art. 226—Applicability—Administration of Evacuee Property Act, S. 12—Order under S. 12—Notice—Applicability of principle of natural justice—Failure to give notice not resulting in injustice—Issue of writ. See Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950), S. 12. AIR 1957 Punj 155 (DB).

——Art. 226—Powers of High Court. See Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950), S. 58. AIR 1955 Raj 63 (DB).

——Art 226—Jurisdiction of High Court.

The original order was passed by the Naib Tahsildar, Pali, purporting to act as Assistant Custodian of Evacuee Property for that area. That order was taken in appeal to the Custodian of Evacuee Property, Rajasthan, and was modified. This order of the Custodian was taken in revision to the Custodian-General. The revision was dismissed and the order of the Custodian, Rajasthan, stood as it was. In the proceedings under Art. 226, the contention was that the office of the Custodian-General of India was in Delhi beyond the jurisdiction of this Court, and as the matter was taken in revision to the Custodian-General, it was not open to the High Court to pass any order under Article 226:

Held, that the order really in dispute before the High Court was not the order of the Custodian-General, but the order of the Custodian, Rajasthan. As that order was passed by a person within the territories over which the High Court had jurisdiction, and related to Pali which was also within the jurisdiction of the High Court, the High Court could issue a writ against the Custodian of Evacuee Property, Rajasthan and the Assistant Custodian of Evacuee Property, Pali, though not to the Custodian-General whose office was located in Delhi. The matter would have been different if the Custodian General had in any manner modified the order of the Custodian Rajasthan, for in that case the order in dispute would have been the order of the Custodian General. AIR 1953 S C 210, Disting. 1955 Raj L W 95 : ILR (1954) 4 Raj 526 : AIR 1954 Raj 214 (216) (Pt C) (Prs 8, 9, 10) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Administration of Evacuee Property Act (31 of 1950)—Person suspected of having looted evacuee property—Order by Deputy Custodian to recover price from such person—Validity. See Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950). AIR 1953 Raj 71.

——Art. 226 — Writ of certiorari or prohibition — Issue of, to inferior Court—Person acting on behalf of Deputy Custodian, evacuee property — Writ, if can be issued against him—Rajasthan (Administration of Evacuee Property) Ordinance (14 of 1949), Ss. 6 and 7

A writ of certiorari or prohibition can be issued only against an inferior Court which expression includes the bodies created by the acts of the legislature. It can only be issued against such bodies if a duty has been cast upon them of exercising, after hearing evidence, judicial functions in the sense that they have to decide on evidence between a proposal and opposition. Where a person is neither a Custodian nor an Additional Deputy or Assistant Custodian simply because he has been acting on behalf of the Deputy Custodian under an alleged authority which is not warranted by law, it cannot be said that he has been acting as an inferior Court because law has cast no duty upon him to decide the questions under the Ordinance in a judicial or quasi judicial manner. Consequently neither a writ of certiorari nor a writ of prohibition can be directed against such person when he purports to have acted under Ss. 6 and 7 of the Ordinance. 1950 Raj L W 186 : AIR 1950 Raj 58 (61, 62) (Prs 18, 23).

——Art 226 — Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950), S. 12 (1) — Order terminating tenancy without giving opportunity to tenant to show cause — Validity — Administration of Evacuee Property (Control) Rules, (1950), R. 14 (4)— Retrospective effect of —Interpretation of Statutes) — See Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950), S. 12 (1). AIR 1953 Sau 20.

——Art 226—Administrative Order—Writ, if can be issued in respect of administrative act of Custodian of evacuee property.

Where the custodian of evacuee property takes possession of certain property it is purely an administrative or executive Act and so a writ of certiorari cannot issue to him in respect of such an act. A I R 1951 Sau 73 (74, 75, 76) (Pt A) (Prs 3, 4, 5) (DB).

136. Domestic tribunal.

See Note 42.

137. Effect of order under.

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Effect of writ.

A writ of certiorari has the effect of removing the order from the way of a party. When the order passed by the subordinate tribunal is quashed it is removed from the way of a party enforcing his rights. It cannot in the absence of any direction to the contrary in the order passed by the Court prohibit the tribunal or authority to proceed further in the matter according to law. ILR (1958) 1 All 577 : AIR 1958 All 532 (535) (Pt A) (Pr 8).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari—Finality of order passed —Test.

The test for determining the finality of an order is what is the effect of the order on the suit or original proceeding in which it is made. If its effect is to put an end to the suit or original proceeding, so far as the Court or tribunal before which the original proceeding is pending is concerned, then the order is a final order. The finality of an order under Art. 226 must be determined on the test whether the order completely and finally disposed of the petition under Art. 226. Where in a proceeding under Art. 226 the effect of the order was to quash the decision of the Election Tribunal on the question of the effect of absence of an affidavit as required by the proviso to Section 83 (1) of the Representation of the People Act on the allegations of corrupt practices contained in the election petition, and the Tribunal had then to decide the matter again in the light of the said order, the order passed by the High Court under Art. 226, issuing a writ of certiorari quashing the determination of the Election Tribunal is a final order and cannot be likened to an order of remand made by an appellate Court. A I R 1952 S C 12, Foll. AIR 1964 Mad 194, Rel. on. 1964 Jab L J 549 ; 1964 M P L J 893 : AIR 1965 Madh Pra 15 (19, 20) (Pt E) (Prs 13, 14) (DB).

138. Election authorities, against.

See also Note 44.

■ —Arts 226 and 329 (b) — Meaning of 'election' in Art 329 (b)—Bar to writs—Power subject to other provisions of Constitution — Writ against Election Tribunal

The word 'election' in Art. 329 (b) is used in a comprehensive sense as including the entire process of election commencing with the issue of a notification and terminating with the declaration of election of a candidate An application under Art. 226 challenging the validity of any of the acts forming part of that process will be barred. These are instances of original proceedings calling in question an election and will be within the prohibition enacted in Art. 329 (b). But when once proceedings have been instituted in accordance with Art. 329 (b) by presentation of an election petition, the requirements of that article are fully satisfied. Thereafter when the election petition is in due course heard by a Tribunal and decided, whether its decision is open to attack, and if so, where and to what extent, must be determined by the general law applicable to decisions of Tribunals. And as they are subject to the supervisory jurisdiction of the High Courts under Art. 226, a writ of certiorari under that article will be competent against decisions of the election Tribunals also. AIR 1952 S C 64, Foll. ; A I R 1954 S C 520 Rel. on. Hari Vishnu v. Ahmad Ishaque, 1955 Mad W N 449 : 1955 Nag L J 1 : (1955) 1 Mad L J (SC) 157 : 1955 S C J 267 : (1955) Andh W R (SC) 157 : 1955 All W R 339 : 1955 S C R 1104 : 1955 S C A 105 : AIR 1955 S C 233 (238, 239) (Pt C) (Pr 6).

■ —Art. 226 — Writ of certiorari for quashing — Nature of such writ — Election Tribunal becoming 'functus officio' — Writ of certiorari can still be issued.

The High Courts have power under Art. 226 to issue writs of certiorari for quashing the decisions of Election Tribunals notwithstanding that they become 'functus officio' after pronouncing the decisions. The writ of certiorari for quashing is directed against a record, and as a record can be brought up only through human agency it is issued to the person or authority whose decision is to be reviewed. As it is the record of the decision that has to be removed by certiorari, the fact that the tribunal has become 'functus officio' subsequent to the decision can have no effect on the jurisdiction of the Court to remove the record.

Under S. 103 of the Representation of the People Act, 1951 the Tribunal is directed to send the records of the case after the order is pronounced either to the relative District Judge or to the Chief Judge of the Court of Small Causes and there is no legal impediment to a writ being issued to those officers to transmit the record to the High Court. The power to issue a writ under Art. 226 to a person as distinct from an authority is sufficiently comprehensive to take in any person, who has the custody of the record, and the officers mentioned in S. 103 of the Act would be persons who would be amenable to the jurisdiction of the High Court under the article. Civil Appeal No. 42 of 1952 (SC), Expl. ; (1921) 2 A C 570, Disting. Hari Vishnu v. Ahmad Ishaque, 1955 Mad W N 449 : 1955 Nag L J 1 : (1955) 1 Mad L J (SC) 157 : 1955 S C J 267 : (1955) Andh W R (SC) 157 : 1955 All W R 339 : 1955 S C R 1104 : 1955 S C A 105 : AIR 1955 S C 233 (240, 241, 242, 243) (Pt D) (Prs 11, 18, 19).

—Art. 226— Migration—Proof — A opting for service under Pakistan Government in 1947 and leaving for Pakistan, leaving wife in India—A returning to India in 1953 on Pakistani Passport and applying for Indian citizenship—Deletion of A's name from electoral roll by Electoral Authorities on finding that A migrated to Pakistan and never became citizen of India—Held, there was sufficient proof of A's migration to Pakistan and therefore order of Electoral authorities could not be interfered with, under Art. 226—S. 9 (2), Citizenship Act, did not preclude tribunals from recording such finding. See Ibid, Art. 7. 1965 (1) Cri L J 22 : AIR 1965 Cal 1 (DB).

—Art. 226 — Election case — Order of Election Tribunal striking off matter from election petition and refusing to amend it —Interferance — (Elections —Representation of the People Act (1951), S. 92).

Under the Representation of the People Act (1951), as amended in 1956 the Election Tribunal does not now possess the power to order better particulars. It can only either consider an application for amendment if one was made or refuse to try a matter which does not raise precise issue. Where the Election Tribunal orders certain matter to be struck off from the Election petition as being vague and refuses a prayer for amendment for supplying better particulars, the order whether right or wrong is within jurisdiction and cannot be the subject of a writ, unless there is an error of law apparent on the face of the record or there has been a violation of the principles of natural justice or the case otherwise warrants interference on well-settled principles. A I R 1958 Madh Pra 168, Rel. on. 1958 M P L J 485 : 1958 M P C 389 : 1958 Jab L J 479 : A I R 1958 Madh Pra 313 (314) (Pr 4) (DB).

139. Error on face of record.

(a) Mere error, no ground for interference.
(b) Error must be apparent from judgment or order.
(c) Must be an obvious point not requiring elaborate argument.
(d) Proof.
(e) Speaking orders.
(f) Non-speaking orders.
(g) Error should not be mere clerical, accidental or formal,
(h) Error apparent on face of record — Illustrative cases.
(i) No error apparent on face of record—Illustrative cases.

139. Error on face of record.

● —Art. 226 — Certiorari, writ of — When can be issued—Madras Shops and Establishments Act (36 of 1947), S. 51—Decision of Labour Commissioner about question of status though made final can be quashed by writ if there is error apparent on face of record.

A writ of certiorari can be issued when the order of the inferior tribunal is shown to suffer from an error which is apparent on the face of the record. It is not correct to say that unless an error of jurisdiction is established, or fraud proved, no writ of certiorari can be issued. Observations of Mukherjea J. in AIR 1952 S C 179 at p. 181, Expl.; AIR 1958 S C 398, Foll.

Where, therefore, the Commissioner for Labour who is empowered to deal with questions referred to in S. 51 of the Madras Shops and Establishments Act has given a decision that the appellant was a person employed and he was not in a position of management and if the Commissioner's order is shown to suffer from the infirmity of an error of law apparent on face of the record, the High Court would be justified in issuing a writ notwithstanding the fact that S. 51 of the Act purports to make the Commissioner's order final. T. Prem Sagar v. M/s Standard Vacuum Oil Co., Madras. (1964) 5 S C R 1030 : (1964) 1 Lab L J 47 : (1964-65) 26 F J R 1 : (1964) 8 Fac L R 247 : AIR 1965 S C 111 (115, 116) (Pt A) (Prs 14, 15).

● —Art. 226 — Error apparent on the face of the record.

Writ of certiorari can be issued not only in cases of illegal exercise of jurisdiction but also to correct errors of law apparent on the face of the record. Errors of fact though they may be apparent on the face of the record, cannot be corrected. Though it cannot be easy to lay down an unfailing test of general application it is usually not difficlut to decide whether the impugned error of law is apparent on the face of the record or not. (1952) 1 K B 338 and A I R 1958 S C 398 and A I R 1955 S C 233, Rel. on. Shri Ambica Mills Co., Ltd. v. S. B. Bhatt. (1961) 3 S C R 220 : (1961) 2 Fac L R 205 . 63 Bom L R 496 : (1961 62) 20 F J R 161 : (1961) 1 Lab L J 1 : (1961) 1 S C A 419 : (1961) 1 S C J 643 : (1961) 1 Mad L J (S C) 198 : (1961) 1 Andh W N (S C) 198 : AIR 1961 S C 970 (973) (Pt A) (Pr 8).

——Art. 226—Quasi-judicial proceedings—In examining the correctness of the findings of a tribunal in quasi judicial proceedings the High Court can, in the interest of justice take notice of any error which is manifest. AIR 1960 All 304 (317) (Pt I) (Pr 61).

——Art. 226 — Error apparent on face of record—Effect.

It is open to the High Court to quash the decision of an inferior tribunal if it is erroneous in law on the face of the record. A I R 1956 All 603 (606) (Pt C) (Pr 13) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Error apparent on face of record — Meaning of.

No exhaustive definition can be given to the words "error apparent on the face of the record". A superior Court or Tribunal will have to examine an order itself and decide whether the order, in the circumstances of that particular case, can be regarded as erroneous on the face of the record or a mere error of law. A I R 1955 S C 233, Foll. A I.R 1956 All 603 (607) (Pt D) (Pr 15) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Error apparent on face of record—Utility of decisions under O. 47. R. 1, Civil P. C., in deciding question under Art. 226, Constitution of India.

It is not a safe guide to rely upon the cases interpreting the words error apparent on the face of the record' in O. 47, R. 1, Civil P. C., in order to determine the scope of these words in connection with the power of the High Court to issue a writ of certiorari under Art 226 of the Constitution. AIR 1956 All 603 (607) (Pt E) (Pr 15) (DB).

——Art. 226—Jurisdiction — Error of law on face of record of Subordinate Court must be there — Second condition is that body must be under statutory duty to act judicially— Cane Commissioner, acting under U. P. Sugar Factories Control Act (I of 1938), Rules under Act, R. 23, has duty to act judicially. A I R 1955 N U C (All) 3596.

——Art. 226 — Powers of High Court under— Writs when issued stated—Order of Labour Appellate Tribunal where question involved is pure question of law not obviously incorrect or unjustified—No error apparent on face of record — Order held would not be interfered with. AIR 1955 N U C (All) 1157.

■ ——Art. 226 — Tribunal having jurisdiction to decide question, wrongly deciding it — No writ can issue—Proper remedy.

The High Court in exercise of its writ jurisdiction cannot convert itself into a Court of appeal for the purpose of judging the correctness or incorrectness of a decision of a Tribunal which, admittedly was rightly seized of the matter and had jurisdiction to give a decision therein.

Merely because a decision may be incorrect on the ground that the inferior Court wrongly interpreted some provisions of law, or has wrongly applied some provision of law, which was not applicable in arriving at its decision, it cannot be said that that Court has exercised jurisdiction not vested in it, or has committed an error apparent on the face of the record or proceeding which justify interference by issue of a writ of certiorari.

An incorrect decision whether on a question of fact or on a question of law, by a Court or tribunal in proper exercise of jurisdiction vested in it is not contemplated by the words, 'error on the face of the record or proceedings' used by their Lordships of the Supreme Court in the cases of A.I R 1952 S C 179 and A I R 1952 S C 182. Such an error would be merely a wrong decision on a question of law which can be re-examined only by a Court of appeal and not in proceedings for issue of a writ under Art. 226 of the Constitution.

The Industrial Court (Sugar), Lucknow, had jurisdiction to decide the question whether the members of the staff of the petitioners-companies at Calcutta were or were not workmen for purposes of the orders of the Government, directing payment of bonus by the petitioner companies to their workmen. In order to decide this question, the Industrial Court had to refer to the provisions of the U. P. Sugar Factories Control Act, 1938, and the rules framed thereunder. The Industrial Court (Lucknow) held that Calcutta workers were not workers.

Held, that even if the Court committed an error in interpreting those provisions and came to a wrong conclusion, the decision by the Industrial Court could not be held to be one without jurisdiction or in excess of it and could not consequently be challenged by issue of a Writ under Art. 226, of the Constitution : Case law Ref.

Held that the appropriate remedy for the petitioners if any, could be by way of an application for a special leave to appeal to the Supreme Court against the decision of the Industrial Court (Sugar), Lucknow in case they wanted to seek redress against a decision which they contend was incorrect. Deoria Sugar Mills v. Govt. of U. P. 1954 All L J 259 : 1954 All W R (H C) 305 : A I R 1954 All 497 (499, 500) (Prs 6, 7) (FB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Error on face of record.

Even when there is no error of jurisdiction or of procedure, a certiorari may issue when there is manifest error on the face of the proceedings as when the decision is based on clear ignorance or disregard of the provisions of law. But this is subject to the limitation that the Court granting a certiorari acts not in an appellate but only in a supervisory capacity and does not substitute its own views for those of the inferior tribunal. 1955 Andh W R 419 : 1955 Andh LT (Civ) 372 : ILR (1956) Andh 369 : A I R 1957 Andh Pra 903 (907) (Pt D) (Pr 15) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Error on face of record — Points not raised before tribunal.

If it is not suggested that the Tribunal acted without jurisdiction or with mala fides, a writ can be issued only if there is an error on the face of the record. But there cannot be obviously an error on the face of the record in regard to questions which were never raised before the tribunals. (1957) Mad L J (Cri) 469 : ILR (1956) Andh Pra 591 : (1957) 2

Andh W R 196 : A I R 1957 Andh Pra 882 (834) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226—Error on face of record.

Where an error of law apparent on the face of the record is committed by a tribunal in the exercise of its jurisdiction, the High Court can interfere under Art. 226. It is true that there are difficulties in defining exactly what an error apparent on the face of the record is and it must be left to be judicially decided on the facts of each case. The tribunal is said to have committed an error of law apparent on the face of the record if it ignores fundamental principles of law such as that the proof should not be in conflict with pleadings and also overlooks clear admissions which destroy the case for a party. A I R 1955 S C 223; Rel. on. A I R 1955 N U C (Andh) 5846.

——Art. 226 –Certiorari—Error on face of record — Certiorari may issue—Error of jurisdiction or procedure need not be there—But Court granting writ acts in supervisory and not in appellate capacity. A I R 1955 Andh Pra (N U C) 3624 (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari — Writ not to issue unless there is manifest error of law—Obiter.

Obiter:—The High Court cannot issue a writ of certiorari unless there is some manifest error of law and it can issue such a writ against an order of a judicial, or a quasi-judicial tribunal. I L R (1962) 14 Assam 231.

——Art. 226 — "Certiorari," — Grounds for issue of writ — Misconstruction of section or overlooking of provision — When a ground for issue of writ of certiorari.

Ordinarily the writ of certiorari would be issued to correct the decisions of an inferior tribunal when such decisions are either given in excess of jurisdiction or in the irregular exercise of jurisdiction or when in the exercise of such jurisdiction canons of natural justice are disregarded. But the High Court has also the jurisdiction to issue a writ of certiorari even to correct an error of law on the face of the record. If a section of a statute is misconstrued or if a provision of law is over-looked or not applied and that appears from the judgment of the lower Court itself, then the superior Court would interfere by a writ of certiorari. A I R 1952 Bom 235. Rel. on.

The writ of certiorari is intended in fact to cure manifest defects in an order made by the Tribunal. 59 Bom L R 287 : ILR (1957) Bom 459 : A I R 1957 Bom 182 (185) (Pt E) (Pr 16) (DB).

——Art. 226 – Certiorari and prohibition, writs of — New point.

In a proceeding for a writ of certiorari and prohibition, the error of law must appear on the face of the record and must also be made a specific ground of attack in the petition. (1961) 3 Fac L R 334 : ILR (1961) 1 Cal 899 : (1961) 1 Lab L J 720 : (1961-62) 20 F J R 309 : A I R 1961 Cal 160 (163) (Pt B) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Error of law.

The supervision by the High Court through the issue of a writ of certiorari goes to two points; one is the area of the inferior jurisdiction and the qualifications and conditions of its exercise; the other is the observance of the law in the course of its exercise. Hence, a writ of certiorari can be issued even if the error at which it is directed is an error of law, committed in the course of the exercise of jurisdiction. But error of law which can be corrected by a writ of certiorari must be an error on the face or the surface of the record. (1922) 2 A C 128 and (1951) 1 K B 711 and (1878) 4 A C 30, Foll. (1958) 33 I T R 866 : (1957-58) 12 F J R 324 : A I R 1957 Cal 514 (519) (Pt C) (Pr 19) (DB).

——Art. 226 –Certiorari—Error on face of record.

An error that can be corrected by a writ of certiorari must be an error apparent on the face of the record. And in order that the error may appear on the face of an order, the order has got to be what has been described as a 'speaking order', that is to say, an order which gives the reasons for it. In this respect the record must contain at least the document which initiates the proceedings; the pleadings, if any; and the adjudication; but not the evidence, nor the reasons, unless the tribunal chooses to incorporate them. When the error alleged is not an error of jurisdiction, but only an error of law it is not permissible to call for other records and seek the basis of the error there. (1952) 1 K B 338, Rel. on. (1958) 33 I T R 866 : (1957-58) 12 F J R 324 : AIR 1957 Cal 514 (519, 520) (Pt D) (Prs 20, 21) (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 32 (2-A) — Error must be apparent on face of record — Writ proceedings — Nature of, stated—(Constitution of Jammu and Kashmir, S. 103).

Before a writ of certiorari is issued it must be shown that the authority which passed the order acted without jurisdiction. An error of law or any other technical error cannot be said to be an error apparent on the face of the record to attract the extraordinary writ jurisdiction of the High Court to overset the order. The writ of certiorari is not meant to take the place of an appeal where the statute does not confer a right of appeal : A I R 1952 S C 319 and AIR 1958 S C 398, Rel. on. A I R 1960 J & K 43 (44) (Pt B) (Prs 7, 9).

——Art. 226—Grounds of certiorari—Want of jurisdiction and errors apparent on face of record — Distinction between — Proceedings under Minimum Wages Act—Application for amendment filed 2 1/2 years after original petition for claim—Court allowing amendment without satisfying itself as to sufficiency of cause for delay—Error of law apparent on face of record — High Court could interfere and quash it—Minimum Wages Act (1948), S. 20 (2).

Certiorari can be issued not only in cases of want of jurisdiction or illegal exercise of jurisdiction but also to correct errors of law apparent on the face of the record. The expression "want of jurisdiction" includes questions of fraud, bias of the members of the Tribunal, breach of any principle of natural justice and matters akin thereto. Errors of fact, though apparent on the face of the record, cannot be corrected. The vital distinction between the two main grounds, namely, want of jurisdiction and error of law apparent on the face of the record, is that where it is said that the tribunal or inferior Court has gone wrong in law while acting within its jurisdiction, the jurisdiction of the High Court is only to interfere if it is seen that the error is apparent on the face of the record, that is, the error is self-evident and it does not require any elaborate examination of the record to discover the error, whereas if certiorari is moved for want of Jurisdiction the High Court is entitled to look at affidavit evidence to see whether or not there was jurisdiction. When there is a speaking order by the Tribunal or the inferior Court and reasons which led to its decision are given the High Court will consider the question whether the reasons given are right in law, and if they are wrong in law, will quash the decision.

In the proceedings under Minimum Wages Act, an application for amendment was filed about 2 1/2 years after the filing of the original claim petition. Though the Court had jurisdiction to entertain the application for amendment under S. 20 (2) of that Act, the order of the Court allowing the amendment did not disclose any sufficient cause for the applicant not making the application within time.

Held, that there was an error of law apparent on the face of the record and the High Court could interfere and quash the order. 1962 Ker L T 618 : (1963) 1 Lab L J 196 : ILR (1961) 2 Ker 637.

——Art. 226 — Jurisdiction of High Court under — Nature and extent of.

The High Court is not to be appellate Court in exercise of the powers under Art. 226, and, if there is no error of law apparent on the face of the record, the decision of the lower tribunal cannot be vacated by writ of certiorari. AIR 1960 S C 1168, Rel. on. 1961 Ker L J 1107 : 1961 Ker L T 792 : I L R (1962) 1 Ker 585.

——Art. 226—Stage carriage permit — Grant on distinct grounds — Some grounds valid—Order will not be quashed in writ jurisdiction—Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 57.

Where the order granting stage carriage permits to an applicant is based on grounds which are distinct and separable and one of them is indisputably valid, the High Court would not be justified in interfering in writ jurisdiction merely because the other ground is opposed to law being a misdirection in law or being a result of assumption of jurisdiction in excess of inhibition of S. 57 (4) of the Motor Vehicles Act It is not every error of law which will be rectified by the High Court in exercise of its jurisdiction under Art. 226 of the Constitution. In order to justify interference in writ jurisdiction the error of law must be apparent on the face of the record and must have directly led to the result or caused it. If the result can be justified as a distinct ground, it would be proper for the High Court to point out and correct the error of law in its judgment for the guidance of the statutory body but it will not be proper to make that a basis for interference by quashing the order. (1964) 1 Mad L J 131 : AIR 1964 Mad 465 (466, 468) (Prs 2, 3, 9) (DB).

■ ——Art. 226—Writ cannot be availed of to interfere with errors of facts simpliciter.

Per Ramchandra Iyer, C. J. and Jagadisan, J.:—A writ would lie to set right errors of law, manifest on the record, and to correct errors of jurisdiction to keep the subordinate tribunals within the bounds of the authority. It cannot be availed of to interfere with errors of fact simpliciter. However wide the language of the constitutional provision, the controlling or supervisory jurisdiction in Art 226 or Art. 227 is not species of appellate power. The High Court would not go into the question whether the variation of a route was properly granted or not by the Transport Authority having regard to the interests of the public. S. V. Natesa Mudaliar, Proprietor, S. I. N. S. Transports, Kancheepuram, v. Sri Dhanapal Bus Service Private, Ltd., Kancheepuram, ILR (1964) 1 Mad 288: (1964) 2 Mad L J 23 : AIR 1964 Mad 136 (139) (Pt A) (Pr 3) (FB).

——Art. 226 — Power to issue writ of certiorari—Error on face of record.

A writ of certiorari lies not merely when a Tribunal acts in excess of jurisdiction but also when the Tribunal commits an error of law patent on the face of the record ; in other words, the High Court is able by virtue of the writ to see that the inferior tribunals keep within their jurisdiction and also to see that the inferior tribunals observe the law in the course of exercise of that jurisdiction. AIR 1954 Pat 238, Ref. AIR 1955 Manipur 30 (37) (Pt F) (Pr 23).

——Art. 226—Certiorari — When can be granted — Error apparent on the face of the record.

Where it can be shown that an inferior tribunal has come to its decision by taking into account matters which it ought never to have taken in account and are virtually extraneous to what they have to decide, that is a ground for granting certiorari. AIR 1959 Cal 1, Rel. on ; (1952) 2 All E R 4; AIR 1957 S C 232, Dist.; (1940) 4 All E R 132, Applied.

In the present case which arises out of a proceedings under S. 398 of the Orissa Municipal Act 1950, the subsequent report of the Municipal Engineer, which was outside the records of the case, clearly appears to have operated on the mind of the Revenue Divisional Commissioner, who remanded the case for fresh decision, without giving the persons concerned an opportunity for explanation as required by S. 398 (2) and hence the order offended against principles of natural justice.

The Municipal Engineer's report undoubtedly contained evidence both as to measurement and other essential facts for determination of the issue before the Municipal authority. It was not a mere expression of opinion. Consequently the Commissioner erred in relying upon the same without giving the persons concerned an opportunity of being heard regarding the same and the order passed by him was clearly beyond the extent of his powers in view of the express provisions of S. 398 (2) of the Orissa Municipal Act. There was thus an error apparent on the face of the record and hence the order must be set aside. (1963) 5 Orissa J D 97.

——Art. 226—Jurisdiction under, is limited to errors of law apparent on face of record. 1965 B L J R 947.

——Art. 226—Error apparent on face of record.

What is an error apparent on the face of the record is a question that has to be decided on the facts of each case. An error in the decision may be amenable to a writ of certiorari if it is a manifest error apparent on the face of the proceeding, e. g., when it is based on clear ignorance or disregard of the provisions of law. AIR 1955 S C 233 Foll.

Where the Additional Commissioner ignored the provisions of Bihar Act (3 of 1947) in determining the nature of the tenancy.

Held, that the error of the Additional Commissioner was so manifest and clear that it was an error which spoke for itself and was, therefore, amenable to a writ of certiorari. AIR 1955 Pat 498, Rel. on. 1956 Pat L R 136 : 1956 B L J R 706 : I L R 35 Pat 396 : A I R 1956 Pat 305 (308) (Pt B) (Prs 14, 15) (DB).

——Art. 226—Error apparent on face of record—Interference by writ.

The High Court does not sit in appeal against the decision of the inferior Court or Tribunal while dealing with the matter on an application for issue of a writ under Art. 226 of the Constitution and a decision wrong either in fact or in law will not ordinarily be interfered with by the High Court on such application. Different consideration may, however, arise where the decision is wrong on the very face of it, that is to say, where the order sought to be quashed is a speaking order. An error in the decision or determination itself may be amenable to a writ of certiorari if it is a manifest error apparent on the face of the proceeding. ILR 35 Pat 292 ; (1958) 1 Lab L J 84 : 1956 B L J R 270 : (1956-57) 10 F J R 255 : AIR 1956 Pat 294 (299) (Pt F) (Pr 13) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Writ of certiorari — Nature and scope of.

A writ of certiorari is a remedy of a very special character. The doctrine of certiorari is that the High Court exercises control over inferior tribunals by issue of writ. The control is exercised by means of a power to quash the determination of the tribunal which on the face of it contravenes the law.

The scope of a writ of certiorari is very wide. A writ of certiorari lies not merely when the tribunal acts in excess of jurisdiction but also when the tribunal commits an error of law patent on the face of the record; in other words, the High Court is able by virtue of the Writ to see that the inferior tribunals keep within their jurisdiction and also to see that the inferior tribunals observe the law in the course of exercise of that jurisdiction. A writ in the nature of certiorari under Art. 226 could therefore be granted for an error of law apparent on the face of the decision of an inferior tribunal. (1922) 2 A C 128 and (1951) 1 K B 711, Rel. on. 1954 B L J R 148 : AIR 1954 Pat 238 (240) (Pt B) (Prs 6, 7) (DB).

—Art. 226—Error apparent on face of record—Error of fact and error of law.

The very words 'an error apparent on the face of record' clearly show that the error must be such which can be detected or noticed without much difficulty.

An error of fact apparent on the face of record would not justify interference by the High Court under Art. 226 : AIR 1958 S C 398, Rel. on. A finding based on no evidence or in disregard of evidence or on inadmissible evidence or on assumption of facts without enquiry is an error of law. Similarly, a refusal to draw any inference from proved facts one way or the other or the drawing of an inference which cannot be drawn from, and is not warranted by the facts, is an error of law 63 Pun L R 327 : AIR 1961 Punj 275 (277, 278) (Pt D) (Prs 9, 10, 11) (DB).

—Art. 226 — Apparent error of law — Industrial tribunal — Decision on question whether strike was justified—It is not a mere question of fact but a mixed question of law and fact—If there is apparent error of law in judgment of Industrial Tribunal, High Court will interfere—(Industrial Disputes Act (1947), Ss. 22, 24). (1958-59) 15 F J R 96 : 1958-2 Lab L J 628 : I L R (1958) 8 Raj 866 : AIR 1958 Raj 202 (Pt A) (Pr 7) (DB).

—Art. 226—Writ of certiorari—Error apparent on the face of the record — Phrase explained — (Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 64).

The error of law envisaged should be so patent that a bare perusal of the judgment and the record on which it is based would show that there was error. Where two views are however possible or where the decision as to whether there is error of law can only be arrived at after long arguments such error cannot be called error of law apparent on the record. Only those errors of law, which are patent on the face of the record can form the basis of interference in certiorari. AIR 1952 Bom 235 and AIR 1953 Bom 133, Rel. on.

Inconsistency in the argument of the Appellate Authority constituted under the Motor Vehicles Act with respect to various points which it decided cannot be called an error of law apparent on the face of the record. I L R (1952) 3 Raj 931 : 1954 Raj L W 649 : AIR 1955 Raj 19 (24 to 26) (Pt E) (Prs 13, 16) (DB).

139 (a). Mere error, no ground for interference.

—Art. 226 — Error of law apparent on face of record.

One of the grounds on which the jurisdiction of the High Court on certiorari may be involved, is an error of law apparent on the face of the record and not every error either of law or fact, which can be corrected by a superior Court, in exercise of its statutory powers as a Court of appeal or revision. Nagenda Nath Bora v. Commissioner of Hills Division and Appeals, Assam, 38 Mys L J 389 : (1958) SCA 572 : 1958 SCJ 798 : 1958 SCR 1240 : AIR 1958 S C 393 (412, 413) (Pt E) (Prs 24, 25, 26, 27, 28).

—Art. 226—Certiorari—Writ of—Conditions for issue of writ — Mere wrong decision is no ground —Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950), S. 24.

A writ of certiorari cannot be granted to quash the decision of an inferior Court within its jurisdiction on the ground that the decision is wrong. It must be shown before such a writ is issued that the authority which passed the order acted without jurisdiction or in excess of it or in violation of the principles of natural justice. Once it is held that the Court has jurisdiction but while exercising it, it made a mistake, the wronged party can only take the course prescribed by law for setting matters right inasmuch as a Court has jurisdiction to decide rightly as well as wrongly. The Custodian General has been constituted an appellate Court under S. 24 of the Administration of Evacuee Property Act in words of the widest amplitude and the Legislature has not limited his jurisdiction by providing that such exercise will depend on the existence of any particular state of facts. Ordinarily, a Court of appeal has inherent jurisdiction to determine any points raised before it in the nature of preliminary issues by the parties. Thus whether an appeal is competent, whether a party has locus standi to prefer it, whether the appeal in substance is from one or another order and whether it has been preferred in proper form and within the time prescribed are all matters for the decision of the appellate Court so constituted. Even if it decides these questions wrongly a writ cannot be issued against it for quashing the order. (1888) 21 Q B D 313, Applied. Ebrahim Aboobakar v. Custodian General of Evacuee Property, New Delhi, 1952 SCR 696 : 90 Cal L J 133 : (1952) SCA 501 : ILR (1953) Punj 17 : 1952 SCJ 483 : 1952 Mad WN 502 : AIR 1952 S C 319 (322, 323) (Pt B) (Pr 14).

—Art. 226 — U. P. Industrial Disputes Act (20 of 1947)—Petitioner challenging power of State Government to withdraw a reference and to make fresh reference — Same objection was rejected by Labour Court holding view that S. 6-G of U. P. Industrial Disputes Act (1947), empowers Government to do so —Petitioner neither challenging that decision nor alleging that the withdrawal and references were not as contemplated by S. 6-G of U. P. Act — Determination of objection involves not merely pure question of law but also question of fact — Petitioner cannot be permitted to challenge action of Government—Petitioner also failed, on material on record, to show any error of law apparent on face of award holding State Government competent to withdraw and make reference : AIR 1958 S C 1018, Distinguished. (1964) 1 Lab L J 601 : (1964) 8 Fac L R 256 (All).

—Art. 226—Error on face of record—What is not.

Where on a question agitated in the writ proceedings two opinions are possible or the conclusion can be arrived at by a long and involved process of reasoning it cannot amount to a self-evident error or an error patent on the record. (1963) 2 ITJ 107 (All).

—Art. 226—Error on the face of record.

Certiorari will not issue to correct a mere error of law or fact. The distinction between a mere error and an error apparent on the face of the record has not been defined, but the decision must be left to be determined judicially on the facts of each case : AIR 1955 S C 233 and AIR 1956 All 603, Foll. AIR 1959 All 440 (450, 451) (Pt G) (Pr 31).

—Art. 226 — Certiorari — When issued—Want of jurisdiction—Not necessary.

A writ of certiorari not only lies in cases where there is want of jurisdiction or excess of jurisdiction but even on the ground that the order passed by a subordinate Court is erroneous on the face of it. AIR 1955 S C 233, Rel. on. AIR 1956 All 89 (92) (Pt C) (Pr 8).

——Art. 226—Certiorari.

An incorrect decision of a Court on a controversial point of law which is within its competence to decide cannot be said to be an error of law apparent on the face of the record. An error even if it is found to be such after argument as to the incorrect application of any law or as to its incorrect interpretation is not the type of error, apparent on the face of the record which can be considered a ground for exercising the powers of issuing a writ of certiorari. 1954 All L J 152 : 1954 All W R (H C) 256 : AIR 1954 All 454 (454) (Pt A) (Pr 1).

——Art. 226 — Writ against Election Tribunal — Findings of fact arrived at by Election Tribunal—Cannot be challenged by petitioner — Writ of certiorari can only be issued to correct error of law patent on face of record. (1961) 2 Andh W R 124 : 1961 Andh L T 636 : ILR (1962) Andh Pra 292 : AIR 1962 Andh Pra 113 (119, 120) (Pt C) (Pr 17) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Writ of certiorari when should be issued.

It is now well settled that a writ of certiorari should be issued only to correct an error of law which is apparent on the face of the record. Even if a Tribunal commits an error of law, that cannot be a ground for interference under Art 226, unless it is one which appears on the face of the record. (1960) 2 Lab L J 470 (Andh Pra).

——Art. 226 — Writ of certiorari—Error on face of record.

In order that an error of law may form a ground for correction by the High Court, such error must manifest on the record But with regard to errors of fact it is now settled that it cannot form a ground for interference. (1959) 1 Lab L J 235 (Andh Pra).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Error on face of record—Meaning.

The jurisdiction of the High Court may be invoked only if it is an error of law apparent on the face of the record. Where the errors cannot be said to be errors of law apparent on the face of the record, but they are merely errors in appreciation of documentary evidence or affidavits, errors in drawing inferences or omission to draw inferences, there is no case for the exercise of jurisdiction under Art. 226 of the Constitution. (1961) 43 I T R 562 : ILR (1960) 12 Assam 104 : (1960) 1 Assam L R 35 : AIR 1960 Assam 162 (166) (Pt B) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 227— Interference with question of fact —Error apparent on face of record.

The High Court will not concern itself under Art. 226 with questions of fact decided by any tribunal subordinate to it. But where there is an apparant error of law on the face of the record it can be corrected by a writ of certiorari AIR 1954 S C 440, Rel. on. ILR (1955) 7 Assam 71 : AIR 1955 Assam 148 (151, 152) (Pt B) (Pr 12) (DB).

——Art 226—Certiorari —Industrial Dispute relating to interpretation of a previous award- Preveous award capable of two interpretations—Tribunal giving effect to one of the interpretations in its own award, rejecting other —Held, that it cannot be said to have committed an error apparent on the face of the record, which was liable to be cured by a writ of certiorari. (1963) 7 Fac L R 52 : (1964) 1 Lab L J 139 (Cal).

——Art. 226—Finding of fact —Industrial dispute—Jurisdictional fact — Interference.

The finding of the Industrial Tribunal that all workmen working in a particular place are the workmen of the company, one of the disputants to the dispute is a finding of fact. The High Court has no power under Art. 226 of the Constitution to quash by a writ of certiorari an error of fact even though the error may be apparent on the face of the record. In the exercise of its supervisory jurisdiction, the High Court cannot convert itself into a Court of appeal. AIR 1958 S C 398 ; AIR 1957 SC 804 ; AIR 1955 S C 233, Rel. on. The remedy of certiorari is not designed to raise issues of fact to be determined de novo by the superior Court. The Court will interfere if there is no evidence to support the decision. AIR 1957 S C 264 ; (1951) 1 All E R 482, Rel. on ; AIR 1958 Cal 278, Disting. (1960) 2 Lab L J 189 ; (1960) 1 Fac L R 384 : ILR (1961) 2 Cal 35 : (1960.61) 18 F J R 412 : 64 Cal W N 950 : AIR 1961 Cal 315 (319, 320, 321) (Pt E) (Prs 21, 24, 27) (DB).

——Art. 226—Error—When ground for interference.

Simply because there is an error in the award of an Industrial Tribunal, that is not sufficient for asking for relief by way of a writ petition. There must be an error apparent on the face of the proceedings. 62 Cal W N 248 : (1958) 2 Lab L J 198 : (1958) 14 F J R 145 : AIR 1958 Cal 208 (213) (Pt G) (Pr 17).

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1958 S C 1018].

——Art. 226—Judicial or quasi-judicial order—Settlement of Government khas land —Order of collector set aside by Board of revenue—Jurisdiction of Board —Extent of —Interference under Art. 226— (Bengal Land Revenue Regulation (Reg, II of 1793), Rr. 36, 39).

The Bengal Land Revenue Regulation of 1793 has undoubtedly statutory force and the rules in the Regulation clearly establish that the Members of the Board of Revenue have the power of superintendence in matters of settlement of lands.

Where, therefore, a member of the Board of Revenue, in exercise of the power of superintendence, sets aside an order of a collector making a settlement of Government khas land in favour of certain person, he has absolute jurisdiction in the matter and the fact that he has come to an erroneous conclusion, will not justify the High Court in interfering with it under Art. 226 of the Constitution. If it could be said that in making that order he had committed any error of law which was apparent on the face of the record, then it might be that a writ of certiorari would lie to quash such an order, as he was exercising judicial or quasi judicial functions. ('57) 61 Cal W N 301.

——Arts. 226 and 227—Jurisdiction of High Court—Interference with finding of fact — (Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 145).

The question whether a particular document is genuine or not is a pure question of fact and a finding arrived at on that question which is necessary for deciding a proceeding under S. 145, Criminal P. C. can be challenged only in a separate suit as provided by S. 145. The extraordinary jurisdiction of the High Court is not to be exercised for interfering with findings of fact.

Held, that as the tribunal has acted within its jurisdiction and there were no errors apparent on the face of the record it was not fit case for interference under Art. 226 or 227 of the Constitution AIR 1958 S C 398 Foll 1958 Ker L J 1195 : 1958 Ker L T 1067 : 1958 Mad L J (Cr) 985 : ILR (1959) Ker 70 : 1959 Cri L J 1082 : AIR 1959 Ker 275 (276) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226—Error apparent on record.

A decision of the lower tribunal may be a right decision or a wrong decision on facts. But in writ proceedings under Art. 226, the High Court is not sitting as an appellate authority reviewing the factual considerations that may have weighed with that officer in coming to the particular factual conclusion. The Court has only to see whether the order evidences any error apparent on the face of the record or is one passed without jurisdiction. It is a patent error which can be corrected by a certiorari but not a mere wrong decision. A I R 1954 S C 440, Rel. on. 1958 Ker L J 198: 1958 Ker L T 130 : ILR (1958) Ker 319 : A I R 1958 Ker 357 (366) (Pt C) (Prs 64, 65) (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 227 – Powers of High Court — Error on face of record — High Court when will or will not interfere.

The High Court in exercise of its jurisdiction under Article 226 or 227 will not interfere with findings of fact even though they might have proceeded on erroneous appreciation of oral or documentary evidence or inferences drawn therefrom. It will also not interfere with what might be called mere formal or technical errors of law. However it will interfere with the decision of an inferior tribunal if, in reaching it, it has exceeded its jurisdiction or has failed to proceed in accordance with the essential requirement of law which it is called upon to administer and that such an error has gone to the root of the matter. 1962 M P L J 123 : 1962 Jab L J 380: ILR (1961) Madh Pra 947 : AIR 1962 Madh Pra 12 (15) (Pt B) (Pr 20) (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari — Writ issued only in cases of grave error and not to correct errors of faet or mere technical errors.

Held, that a writ of certiorari might not be issued to correct errors of fact or mere formal or technical errors even though of law. It might be issued only in grave cases where the error of law was apparent on the face of the record and had resulted in manifest injustice. There would be no case for exercise of the jurisdiction under Art. 226, if the errors were merely errors in appreciating documentary evidence or affidavits or errors in drawing inference or omission to draw inferences. A I R 1952 S C 192; AIR 1956 S C 463 and AIR 1958 S C 398 and AIR 1960 S C 1168, Rel. on ; A I R 1957 Cal 638 (642), Foll. 1962 M P L J (Notes) 106.

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Issue of — Grounds — No error of law —No writ issued — (Madras Shops and Establishments Act (36 of 1947), Ss. 51, 4 (1) (a).

Whether a person is in a position of management or not is mostly a question of fact, Even if it is a mixed question of law and fact it would be more a question of fact than a question of law. A person employed may be in a position of management. But on such a question the Commissioner of Labour and the Additional Commissioner for Workmen's Compensation are entitled to come to their own findings and merely because the view of the High Court happens to differ from theirs, High Court would not be justified in quashing their orders. Further, if there is no error of law in their decision, and the most that can be said is that the lower Tribunals have taken a view of the facts different from that which the High Court is disposed to take, that will not justify interference. (1959) 2 Lab L J 771 : A I R 1960 Mad 288 (293, 294) (Pt D) (Prs 24, 26).

[Reversed on another point in AIR 1960 Mad 425.]

——Art 226— Error apparent on face of record — Tribunal taking one of two possible views – (Tenancy Laws —Bombay Tenancy and Agricultural Lands Act (67 of 1948), S. 34 (2A) (1)).

The mere fact that two views are possible on a question of law does not make the decision of a Tribunal with jurisdiction bad on the face of the record. Only that error will be corrected by the High Court which is clearly apparent on the face of the record and which does not become apparent only by a process of examination or argument. Where, therefore it cannot be said that S. 34 (2A) Cl. (1). Bombay Tenancy and Agricultural Lands Act, 1948, is not capable of being understood in the manner in which it has been understood by the Board of Revenue, it cannot be said that the Board of Revenue has committed an error apparent on the face of the record. A I R 1953 Bom 133, Rel. on. (1959) Mys L J 276 (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 227 — Error apparent on face of record — Revenue case — Decision erroneous is not ground for interference. A I R 1955 N U C (Nag) 1428 (DB).

——Art. 226—Powers of High Court to issue writs— Formal errors.

It is not every error that calls for correction in writ proceedings. The formal or technical errors, even though of law, will not be sufficient to attract the extraordinary jurisdiction.

Held, that in the matter of the revision under R. 54 of the Mineral Concession Rules of 1960 the Government of India had jurisdiction to decide the matter of priority under S. 11 of the Mines and Minerals (Regulation and Development) Act, 1957 and if an erroneous view was taken of the principles of 'first come, first serve' embodied in that section and in the Mineral Concession Rules, it was not such a patent error which would call for interference of the High Court. A I R 1958 S C 398, Rel. on 67 Pun L R 841 : A I R 1964 Punj 432 (434, 435) (Pt B) (Pr 10).

——Art 226—Certiorari — Error apparent on face of record—Two views possible in the matter—Order of subordinate Tribunal taking one view cannot be quashed on the ground of error apparent on face of record. AIR 1960 S C 137, Rel. on ILR (1964) 1 Punj 646 : 66 Punj L R 297 : A I R 1964 Punj 105 (109) (Pt B) (Pr 9).

——Art. 226 — Error apparent on face of record. Two views on meaning of "wages" possible — Particular meaning of "wages" taken by tribunal, held did not constitute error on face of record. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 2 (rr). ('63) 65 Pun L R 593.

——Art. 226—Error of fact.

A mere mistake of fact though apparent on the face of the record can by no means afford a good ground for quashing an order of an inferior tribunal under Art. 226 of the Constitution. A I R 1958 S C 398, Foll.

Held, on the pleadings and documents that the finding of the Custodian General that there was no completed transaction of exchange was a finding of fact of departmental officers. 63 Pun L R 339 : AIR 1961 Punj 366 (367, 368) (Pt A) (Pr 6) (DB).

——Art. 226—Prayer for writ against Revenue Board on the ground that there was conflict on the point between various High Courts and that therefore the view taken by Revenue Board was wrong — Writ will not be allowed — The error of the Revenue Board cannot be said to be patent one — Where the Board accepts one of the two views, it does not commit any error. 1956 Raj L W 341.

——Art. 226 — Error of law — (Saurashtra Land Reforms Act (25 of 1951), Ss. 3 and 65).

The Revenue Tribunal's view that S. 3 of the Saurashtra Land Reforms Act does not abrogate the rights acquired under the Gharkhed Ordinance (41 of 1949) is not wholly impossible of acceptance. If the view is erroneous it is merely an error of law and does not amount to a conscious violation of law or a manifest error and the High Court has no jurisdiction to correct it under Art. 226. Case-law discussed. 6 Sau L R 272 : A I R 1953 Sau 195 (196, 197) (Pt A) (Prs 4, 6) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Error apparent on face of record — Chief Inspector of Factories granting licence to owner of factory and not to lessee thereof — Order, if liable to be quashed — (Factories Act (1948), S. 6 (1) — Rules under — Travancore Cochin Rules, Rr. 4, 5 and 7).

Held, on facts that the reliance by the Chief Inspector in his order on the views of the higher authorities on the law bearing on the matter was not a defect at all and as such the order was not liable to be quashed. A I R 1952 S C 16, Foll. (1957) 2 Lab L J 501 (Trav.-Co).

——Art. 226 — Error apparent on face of record — Other remedy open (Cochin Income-tax Act (6 of 1117), (as amended in 1122), Ss. 3 (9), 5 (3) (iii), (vii)) — (Income tax Act (1922), Ss 6 (c), 4 (3) (ii), (vii) - Income Donations and mass stipends).

The High Court will interfere only if the Income-tax Authorities had no jurisdiction to assess the petitioner to income-tax or if they acted illegally in the exercise of their jurisdiction or if there is an error apparent on the face of the record in their orders. The question whether the petitioner has other effective remedy will also be taken into consideration. But the existence of an alternative remedy is not by itself a ground for the High Court to refuse to exercise the jurisdiction vested in it under Art. 226 of the Constitution.

Under the Income tax Act, the Income tax Officer has full jurisdiction to decide whether a person is liable to be assessed to income tax in respect of particular items of receipt. If the decision is wrong the remedy of the party is to appeal to higher authorities Under the Indian Income-tax Act, donations received by a person for putting up a charitable institution and use for that purpose will not be regarded as his income and assessed to income-tax. They are obviously of the nature of gifts and are capital receipts They do not come within the meaning of the word 'income' as understood in the ordinary language. Assuming however that the donations are of the nature of 'income' and not capital receipt, they clearly come within S. 5 (3) (vii) Cochin Income-tax Act, which exempts receipts, which are of a casual and non-recurring nature, from liability to assessment. The mere fact that the receipts have recurred in some years is not sufficient to characterise them as recurring receipts. There must be a claim or right in the assessee to expect its recurrence. A voluntary gift depending entirely upon the goodwill of the donor does not cease to be of a casual and non-recurring nature by reason merely of the fact that the gift is repeated. In no sense can Mass stipend be said to be a donation made to the Monastery. Such donations whether received by religious or charitable institutions or by any other body or individual, were not liable to be taxed under the Cochin Income-tax Act (1117), before it was amended in 1122 and they are not taxable income under the Indian Income-tax Act. The amendment of the Cochin Act in 1122 had not the effect of making donations of this kind taxable income. What was exempted under Cl. (iii) of S. 5 (3) was 'any income of a religious or charitable institution derived from voluntary contributions and applicable solely to religious or charitable purposes.' The Income-tax authorities proceeded on the basis that what was exempted under the clause was voluntary contributions while what was really exempted was "income derived from" voluntary contributions: Donations and Mass stipends will come within the ambit of Cl. (iii) only if they are 'income' derived from voluntary contributions.

Held, that the orders of the Income tax Authorities in this case were the result of an error apparent on the face of the record. They did not decide the one question they were called upon to decide, viz., whether the donations received by the Monastery for the construction of the college and Mass stipends were 'income' at all. Failure to decide this question which went to the very root of the matter was not only an error apparent on the face of the record but also amounted to an illegal exercise of jurisdiction by the Income-tax authorities which by itself was a sufficient ground for interference by the High Court in the exercise of its supervisory jurisdiction. (1957) 30 I T R 451 : I L R (1956) Trav Co 930 : 1956 Ker L T 665 : A I R 1956 Trav-Co 240 (243, 244, 245, 248, 249, 250, 251, 252, 253) (Prs 6, 9, 13, 14, 25, 26, 29, 30, 32, 33, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Writ of certiorari — Erroneous decision within jurisdiction.

A decision within jurisdiction, however erroneous it may be, will not be an error apparent on the face of the record so as to attract the jurisdiction of the High Court in certiorari. 1953 Ker L T 310 : A I R 1953 Trav Co 386 (387) (Pt A) (Pr 5).

139 (b). Error must be apparent from judgment or order.

● ——Art. 226—Writ of certiorari—Issue of—Error apparent on face of record — What is — Statutory provision capable of two constructions — Error not apparent — Question depends on facts and circumstances of each case.

An error of law which can be corrected by a writ of certiorari must be one which is apparent on the face of the record. Thus where it is manifest or clear that the conclusion of law recorded by an inferior Court or Tribunal is based on an obvious misinterpretation of the relevant statutory provision, or sometimes in ignorance of it, or may be, even in disregard of it, or is expressly founded on reasons which are wrong in law, the said conclusion can be corrected by a writ of certiorari. In all these cases, the impugned conclusion should be so plainly inconsistent with the relevant statutory provision that no difficulty is experienced by the High Court in holding that the said error of law is apparent on the face of the record.

If a statutory provision is reasonably capable of two constructions and one construction has been adopted by the inferior Court or Tribunal, its conclusion may not necessarily or always be open to correction by a writ of certiorari.

However, it is neither possible nor desirable to attempt either to define or to describe adequately all cases of errors which can be appropriately described as errors of law apparent on the face of the record. Whether or not an impugned error is an error of law and an error of law which is apparent on the face of the record, must always depend upon the facts and circumstances of each case and upon the nature and scope of the legal provision alleged to have been misconstrued or contravened. Syed Yakoob v. K. S. Radhakrishnan. (1964) 5 S C R 64 : A I R 1964 S C 477 (480) (Pt C) (Pr 8).

● ——Art. 226—Certiorari to correct error of law.

A writ of certiorari can be issued to correct an error of law. But it is essential that it should be something more than a mere error; it must be one which must be manifest on the face of the record. (1952) 1 K B 338; AIR 1952 S C 192; AIR 1954 S C 440; Rel. on. Hari Vishnu v. Ahmad Ishaque, 1955 Mad W N 449: (1955) 1 Mad L J (S C) 157 : 1955 S C J 267 : 1955 Andh W R (S C) 157 : 1955 All W R 339 : 1955 S C R 1104 : 1955 Nag L J 1 : 1955 S C A 105 : AIR 1955 S C 233 (244) (Pt J) (Pr 23).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari—Error apparent on face of record — Order passed by Government without jurisdiction—Order resulting in manifest injustice—Error apparent on face of record will be deemed to be in the order—Order can be quashed by issue of writ. AIR 1965 All 436 (438) (Pt B) (Pr 21).

——Art. 226—Certiorari — Error apparent on face of record.

Where the conclusion of the Tribunal is based on an obvious misinterpretation of the relevant statutory provision or if it is expressly based on the reasons which are wrong in law, the High Court is justified in correcting the error by issuing a writ of certiorari. AIR 1964 S C 477, Rel. on. (1965) 11 Fac L R 395 (All).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Issue of — Error apparent on face of record.

A writ of certiorari will issue to correct an error of law only if it is manifest or apparent on the face of the record. A writ will not issue if it is a mere error of law, and certainly not if the error relates to a finding of fact. AIR 1960 All 304 (313) (Pt G) (Pr 38).

——Art. 226 — Error on face of record—Industrial dispute referred to Adjudicator—Award—Quashing of—(Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 15).

A Company engaged workmen after obtaining their signatures on the prescribed forms. Under these special agreements, the employment of these workmen was of a temporary character. They could be discharged without notice. In November and December, 1953, sufficient raw material was not available. So the Company discharged the temporary workers.

Held, (1) that the Company was entitled to discharge the temporary workmen on finding that there was no work for them, since the discharge of the workmen was in accordance with the special agreement, the Adjudicator could not award any compensation to them.

(2) that the mistake committed by the Adjudicator could be seen upon a perusal of his award and the special agreement in the prescribed form. This was an error apparent on the face of the record and, therefore, this was a fit case for quashing the award by issuing a writ in the nature of certiorari. AIR 1959 All 639 (643) (Pt E) (Pr 35).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Error on face of record.

Where the High Court comes to the conclusion that the decision of the Board of Revenue as regards the retrospective effect of the Explanation added to S. 20, U. P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, by the Amending Act (20 of 1954), is manifestly erroneous, the High Court can interfere with that decision under Art 226 of the Constitution AIR 1955 S C 233; AIR 1955 All 131 and AIR 1955 All 557, Rel. on. 1955 All L J 883 : 1956 All W R (H C) 18 : AIR 1956 All 177 (178) (Pt A) (Pr 3).

——Art. 226—Certiorari — Error on face of record—What is—Interpretation of expression "at the election" in R. 43, under Cantonments Act—(Cantonments Act (1924), S. 31—Rules under—R. 43).

An error cannot be said to be apparent on the face of the record if it is not self-evident and if it required an examination or argument to establish it.

Held, on facts that Election Tribunal did not commit any manifest error in interpreting the words 'candidate at the election' in R. 43 of the Rules under the Cantonments Act as including a candidate whose nomination paper was rejected. AIR 1956 All 89 (92, 94) (Pt D) (Prs 9, 16).

——Art. 226 — Error apparent on face of record — Failure to notice presumption and burden of proof—Effect—Tenancy Laws — Madras Estates (Abolition and Conversion into Ryotwari) Act (26 of 1948) (as amended by Act 27 of 1957), Ss. 2 (7), 9 (7)—Madras Estates Land Act (1 of 1908) (as amended by Act 2 of 1945), S. 3 (2) (d).

Where the decision is vitiated by either lack of jurisdiction or a manifest error of law, it is open to the High Court in exercise of its jurisdiction under Art. 226 of the Constitution to quash the order. A writ of certiorari can therefore be issued to correct an error of law, provided it is one that is manifest and patent on the face of the record. AIR 1954 S C 440; AIR 1955 S C 233; AIR 1957 S C 804, Foll.

Where the Estates Abolition Tribunal, has misapprehended the clear terms of the definition of an estate under S. 3 (2) (d) of the Madras Act (1 of 1908) as amended by Act (2 of 1945) and of S. 2 (7) of the Madras Act (26 of 1948) as amended by Act (27 of 1957) and has also failed to notice the burden of proof resting on the landlord and did not invoke the presumption under S. 9 (7) of Act (26 of 1948), these circumstances constitute an error patent on the face of the record so as to justify interference under Art 226. (1960) 1 Andh W R 229.

——Art. 226 — Writ of certiorari — Error of law apparent on face of record—What is — Inference of fact based on no evidence on record—Amounts to error of law.

The High Court can interfere under Art. 226 in the case of manifest error of law and not with manifest error of fact. Even a finding of fact if based on no evidence will be regarded as an error of law. AIR 1965 Assam 87 (88, 89) (Pt C) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Error apparent on face of record—Powers of High Court to review decision.

The powers of review enjoyed by the High Court are very limited powers and when a decision is challenged on the ground that there is an error apparent on the face of the record the error contemplated is an error so manifest, so clear, that no Court would permit such an error to remain on the record.

The High Court cannot extend its jurisdiction on a review application. Questions of jurisdiction must not be determined from the point of view of the merits of the particular case which is being argued before a Court. Whether a Court has or has not jurisdiction does not depend upon how strong or how meritorious the case of a party is, and however meritorious the case may be, the High Court is helpless and unable to give him relief because the points sought to be urged are points which cannot be urged on a review application. 60 Bom L R 1354 : ILR (1959) Bom 334 : AIR 1959 Bom 466 (466, 467, 468) (Prs 1, 5).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Error on face of record—Essentials.

The High Court has power to issue a writ of certiorari against a Tribunal to correct an error apparent on the face of the record. But the error must be so obvious that when attention is invited to it, no elaborate argument is needed to support the contention that the conclusion is erroneous. 59 Bom L R 209 : (1956-57) 12 F J R 251 : (1957) 2 Lab L J 194 : ILR (1958) Bom 8 : AIR 1957 Bom 111 (116) (Pt E) (Pr 12) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Interference by writ — Absence of jurisdiction apparent on face of record.

No tribunal and no officer can confer jurisdiction or authority or competence upon itself or himself by misconstruing a section. If the section has been wrongly construed, it would be a clear case of absence of jurisdiction apparent on the face of the record because the Court has got to look at the section and to decide whether the officer construing the section was in the right or in the wrong. 58 Bom L R 184 : (1956) 29 I T R 856 : ILR (1956 Bom 374 : AIR 1956 Bom 530 (535) (Pt E) (Pr 13) (DB).

[Reversed on another point in AIR 1963 S C 1356].

——Art. 226 – Error apparent on face of record—Two views of law possible.

The mere fact that two views are possible on a question of law does not make the decision of a Tribunal with jurisdiction bad on the ground that it has erred in law and the error is apparent on the face of the record. Only that error will be corrected by the High Court which is clearly apparent on the face of the record and which does not become apparent only by a process of examination or argument. (1952 53) 4 F J R 571 : (1953) 2 Lab L J 178 : 54 Bom L R 922 : ILR (1953) Bom 191 : AIR 1953 Bom 133 (137) (Pt E) (Pr 8) (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Error of law—If ground—Income-Tax cases—Interference.

Errors of law are considered to be amenable to correction by the writ, if such errors appear on the face of the record. Mistakes in the observance of the law in the course of the exercise of jurisdiction are not outside the scope of a writ of certiorari. Therefore, the mere fact that the Income tax Officer had jurisdiction to deal with the question of the assessee's liability will not by itself exclude the issue of the writ. In order, that an error of law may be corrected by certiorari, it has to be an error apparent on the face of the record. The order, alleged to be vitiated by the error, must be a speaking order, that is to say, an order giving its reasons for the view taken therein and such reasons being manifestly wrong.

Held, that the order in question under S. 18 (7) of the Income-tax Act was a speaking order and that irrespective of the consideration whether there was an error in the finding of the Income-tax Officer or not it could not be said that as a matter of procedure that the writ of certiorari could not be available against it on the ground that it was not a speaking order. ILR (1960) 1 Cal 49 : (1959) 36 I T R 365 : AIR 1959 Cal 131 (139, 140) (Pt E) (Pr 31, 32) (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari, writ of — Error on face of record.

An error of law can be corrected if the error is patent on the face of the record. If a point of law is dependent on disputed questions of fact then if the facts are not patent, the error in law cannot be corrected.

Where on the face of the record, it is found that the Income-tax Officer did make an error of law in construing certain provisions of the Income-tax Act, it should be set right by a writ of certiorari. (1956) 30 I T R 525 AIR 1956 Cal 450 (453) (Pt D) (Pr 6).

——Art. 226—Error on face of record—Investigation of facts.

In order to enable the High Court to act under Art. 226 of the Constitution, the error of law must appear on the face of the order. The error must be a patent error, lying on the face of the order and capable of being seen without being shown by a decision.

It is not permissible under Art. 226 of the Constitutions and on an application for a writ to make any investigation and either embark on a discovery of facts for itself or substitute its decision, for that of the authority complained of, even though the point involved may be an error of law; correction or removal of such errors by means of a writ is possible only, if the error appears on the face of the order. Abindra Kumar Maity v. A. K. Mazumdar 60 Cal W N 299 : AIR 1956 Cal 273 (275) (Pt C) (Prs 11, 12) (FB).

——Arts. 226, 227—Certiorari—Error of law—Error apparent on face of record.

Before an error of law can be rectified by an issue of the writ of certiorari, it must be an error which is apparent on the face of the record and self evident. AIR 1960 S C 137, Rel. on ; AIR 1955 S C 233 Disting. AIR 1961 Him Pra 2 (6) (Pt C) (Prs 13, 15, 16).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Error apparent on face of record—Impugned order set aside.

A finding that a point was proved on the ground that there was an admission is an error apparent on the face of the record when the record only shows a denial of that point by the party who is said to have admitted it. An order based on such a finding must be set aside. ILR (1953) Hyd 116 : AIR 1953 Hyd 56 (57) (Pr 1) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Error apparent on face of record—Errors of the kind which might be corrected by a Court of appeal are not necessarily errors which would be amenable to correction by a writ of certiorari. AIR 1955 S C 233, Foll. AIR 1960 J & K 125 (128) (Pt F) (Pr 13).

——Art. 226—Error of law apparent on face of record—Award of Industrial Tribunal.

Exercise of jurisdiction under Art. 226 is not excluded where an award of the Industrial Tribunal is tainted with error of law apparent on the face of the record. AIR 1953 S C 437, Expl. 1960 Ker L J 798 : 1960 Ker L T 766 : (1960-61) 18 F J R 337 : AIR 1961 Ker 44 (48) (Pt B) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Arts. 226, 227—Certiorari when can be issued—'Error on the face of record'—What is.

A writ of certiorari can be used to correct errors of law which appear on the face of the record even if they do not go to jurisdiction. The error of law, however, must be self-evident. AIR 1961 S C 970; AIR 1955 S C 233, Rel. on. 1963 Jab L J 795.

——Art. 226 — Error of law apparent on face of record — Certiorari can issue. A I R 1958 S C 398, Foll. 1960 M P L J 221 : I L R (1959) Madh Pra 734 : 1960 M P C 180 : 1960 Jab L J 228 : AIR 1960 Madh Pra 217 (220) (Pt A) (Pr 6) (DB).

——Art. 226—Error apparent on face of record — What is, indicated. (1963) Mad L J 76 : 76 Mad L W 278 : 1963 Mad W N 303 : I L R 1963 Mad 752 : AIR 1963 Mad 399 (401) (Pt B) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Art. 226—Error on face of record.

Where a tribunal commits a patent error in respect of propositions of law and its conclusion has been reached on the basis of such erroneous premises which go to the root of the matter the case is one not merely of an erroneous decision but of error on the face of the record which attracts the jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution. 68 Mad L W 783 : (1956) 1 Mad L J 82 : I L R (1956) Mad 867 : AIR 1956 Mad 72 (79) (Pt F) (Pr 23) (DB).

——Art. 226—Order without complying with statutory requirements — Validity – Error of law apparent on face of decisions — Setting aside by High Court. See Assam Land and Revenue Regulation. AIR 1955 Manipur 18.

—— Art. 226—Error apparent on face of record — Order must be quashed. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 33 (2)(b), Proviso. AIR 1965 Mys 295 (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—(Civil P. C. (1908), S. 9—Special Tribunal).

Erroneous decisions of inferior tribunal—Error apparent on face of record—High Court has jurisdiction to quash order though subject-matter was one which was within jurisdiction of tribunal. AIR 1952 S C 179, Expl. 1953 Nag L J 279 : I L R (1953) Nag 226 : AIR 1953 Nag 148 (150) (Pt A) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 226—Writ—Certiorari—Jurisdiction—Error on face of record is treated as error of jurisdiction.

Errors apparent on the face of the proceedings are always treated as errors of jurisdiction for the purposes of quashing by issuing a writ of certiorari.

Where a tribunal especially created by the statute in question has stated on the face of its order the grounds on which the order had been made and in law those grounds were not such as to warrant the decision arrived at by it, certiorari will issue in the High Court to quash the order. (1951) 1 All E R 268 : M. P. No. 37 of 1950, D/- 3-10-1950 and A I R 1949 Mad 535, Foll. 1951 Nag L J (Notes) 104 : 1951 Nag L J 566 : I L R (1951) Nag 769 : AIR 1952 Nag 4 (6) (Pt B) (Pr 12) (DB).

[Overruled in AIR 1953 Nag 89 (FB).]

——Art. 226—Error apparent on face of record—Other remedy open—Certiorari—(Sales Tax—Orissa Sales Tax Act (14 of 1947), S. 12 (3)).

Errors apparent on the face of the record are always treated as errors of jurisdiction for purposes of quashing and for issuing a writ of certiorari. In such a case the objection that there is another remedy open to the petitioner by way of appeal under the provisions of law cannot stand.

Held, on facts that the assessment was based upon mere guesswork. As the error was apparent on the face of the order it was not necessary for the assessees to go in appeal under the Sales Tax Act before invoking the jurisdiction of the High Court. 24 Cut L T 377 : (1958) 9 S T C 648 : A I R 1959 Orissa 79 (80, 81) (Pr 4a) (DB).

——Art. 226—Error on face of record—Departmental enquiry — Findings based on no evidence may be quashed. See Ibid, Art. 311(2). I L R (1959) Cut 425.

[Reversed in AIR 1963 S C 404.]

——Art. 226—Order erroneous on face of it can be interfered with.

An order which is erroneous on its face because of a misapprehension of the law on the subject is capable of being interfered with by a writ of certiorari. A I R 1952 Nag 4, Rel. on 1952 Nag L J 426 : I L R (1953) Nag 178 : A I R 1953 Nag 16 (17, 18) (Pt B) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Error apparent on face of record—Order of Tribunal passed on conjectures ignoring material evidence—Constitutes error of law apparent on face of record—Order liable to be quashed—Displaced Persons (Claims) Supplementary Act (1954), S. 5 (1) (b). 1963 Cur L J 163 : I L R (1963) 1 Punj 374 : 65 Pun L R 429.

——Art. 226—Certiorari — Error apparent on face of record High Court can interfere. (1962-63) 23 F J R 412 : (1963) 2 Lab L J 29 (Punj).

——Art 226—Certiorari—Issue of writ—Jurisdiction of High Court—Limits.

The jurisdiction of the High Court to issue a writ of certiorari is a limited jurisdiction. The High Court has power to issue such a writ when an error of law is patent on the face of the record. I L R (1951) 1 Raj 815 : 1952 Raj L W 154 : A I R 1952 Raj 162 (163, 164) (Pt A) (Prs 5, 6) (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari — Issue of writ — Error patent on face of record—Jaipur Rent Control Order, S. 6 (2).

The High Court can issue a writ of certiorari quashing an order of the Collector under S. 6(2) of the Jaipur Rent Control Order, 1947, where an error is patent on the face of the record. 1952 Raj L W 117 : I L R (1951) 1 Raj 724.

139 (c). Must be an obvious point not requiring elaborate argument.

——Art. 226—Error apparent on face of record.

An error which has to be established by a long drawn process of reasoning on points where there may conceivably be two opinions can hardly be said to be an error apparent on the face of the record. Where an alleged error is far from self-evident and if it can be established, it has to be established, by lengthy and complicated arguments, such an error cannot be cured by a writ of certiorari.

Held, that the alleged error in the judgment of the Bombay Revenue Tribunal, namely, that an order for possession should not be made unless a previous notice required by S. 14 of the Bombay Tenancy and Agricultural Lands Act, 1948, had been given, was not an error apparent on the face of the record so as to be capable of being corrected by a writ of certiorari. AIR 1955 S C 233, Rel. on; AIR 1953 Bom 207, Reversed. Satyanarayan Laxminarayan Hegde v Mallikarjun Bhavanappa Tirumale, 1961 Andh L T 1 : 62 Bom L R 146 : (1960) 1 S C R 890 : 1960 S C J 1065 : A I R 1960 S C 137 (141, 142) (Pt A) (Pr 17).

——Art. 226—When does error become apparent on face of record.

When does an error cease to be mere error, and become an error apparent on the face of the record? The test that no error can be said to be apparent on the face of the record if it is not self-evident and if it requires an examination or argument to establish it, may afford a satisfactory basis for decision in the majority of cases. But there must be cases in which even this test might break down, because judicial opinions also differ, and an error that might be considered by one judge as self-evident may not be so considered by another. The fact is that what is an error apparent on the face of the record cannot be defined precisely or exhaustively, there being an element of indefiniteness inherent in its very nature, and it must be left to be determined judicially on the facts of each case. AIR 1953 Bom 133, Ref. Hari Vishnu v. Ahmad Ishaque, 1955 Mad W N 449 : (1955) 1 Mad L J (SC) 157 : 1955 S C J 267 : (1955) Andh W R (SC) 157 : 1955 All W R 339 : 1955 S C R 1104 : 1955 Nag L J 1 : 1955 S C A 105 : AIR 1955 S C 233 (244) (Pt K) (Pr 23).

——Art 226—Writ of certiorari—Error on face of record—Charge under R. 4 (1) (b) of U P. Disciplinary Proceedings (Administrative Tribunal) Rules, 1947—Failure to discharge duties properly—Tribunal's finding against the delinquent Guilt or innocence of the accused could be established only upon elaborate argument and interpretation of statutory provisions—Tribunal's finding did not suffer from an error apparent on the face of the record—Writ could not issue—Single Judge's decision, Reversed—(U. P. Disciplinary Proceedings (Administrative Tribunal) Rules, 1947, R. 4 (1) (b). AIR 1955 S C 233 and AIR 1960 S C 137, Foll. ILR (1963) 1 All 432 (DB).

——Arts. 226 snd 227 — Error apparent on face of record.

Where an alleged error committed by an inferior tribunal is far from self-evident and, it has to be established by lengthy and complicated arguments, such an error cannot be regarded as an error apparent on the face of the record, and cannot be cured by a writ of certiorari according to the rules governing the powers of a superior Court to issue such a writ. 1961 Nag L J (Notes) 37.

——Art. 226—Error apparent on face of record.

Obiter: No error could be said to appear on the face of the record if it required an examination or argument to establish it. (1956) 2 Lab L J 328 : 60 Cal W N 602 : A I R 1957 Cal 560 (569) (Pt E) (Pr 32) (DB).

——Art. 226—Error apparent on face of record—An error which has to be established by a long drawn process of reasoning on points where there may conceivably be two opinions can hardly be said to be an error apparent on the face of the record. AIR 1960 S C 137, Foll. A I R 1960 J & K 125 (128) (Pt G) (Pr 14).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Interference can only be with error apparent on face of record.

Only these errors of law which are patent on the face of the record can form the basis of interference in certiorari. The error of law envisaged should be so patent that a bare perusal of the judgment and the record on which it is based would show that there was an error. Where two views are possible or where the decision as to whether there is an error of law can only be arrived at after long argument, such error cannot be called an error of law apparent on the record. AIR 1952 Bom 235, Rel. on. 1961 Ker L J 669 : 1961 Ker L T 553.

——Art. 226 — Error on face of record—What is—Statement of wrong law — Effect — (Civil P. C. (1908), O. 41, R. 22, S. 141)—(Houses and Rents—C. P. and Berar Letting of Houses and Rent Control Order (1949), Cl. 21).

An error of law apparent on the face of the record exists where a tribunal or Court states a proposition of law which is fundamental to the decision of the case and which, on examining it as a proposition of law, one can say is erroneous. If there is a general error in the application of the law, and the chain of reasoning has to be examined to find out the error, then there is not an error on the face of the record.

Where in an appeal by a tenant under Cl. 21 of the C. P. and Berar Rent Control Order, 1949, the Additional Deputy Commissioner stated it as a proposition of law that unless an appeal was filed by the respondents before him, they were not entitled to sustain the order on any ground which had been decided against them before the Rent Controller, it is an erroneous proposition of law, and as it was fundamental to the decision of the appeal before him, it can be described as an error of law apparent on the face of the record. Writ is competent. 1958 M P C 234 : 1958 Jab L J 285 : 1958 M P L J 438 : AIR 1958 Madh Pra 221 (223) (Pt C) (Prs 7, 8, 9) (DB).

——Art. 226—"Error apparent on face of the record."

An error which has to be established by long drawn process of reasoning on points where there may conceivably be two opinions cannot be said to be an error apparent on the face of the record. AIR 1961 Manipur 28 (30) (Pt B) (Pr 7).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari—Error of law apparent on face of record — To consider question, court cannot travel outside record of case. (1965) 2 Mys L J 187 (DB).

——Art. 226—Error apparent on face of record.

No error could be said to be apparent on the face of the record if it was not self evident and if it required an examination or argument to establish it. AIR 1953 Bom 133, Foll. 36 Mys L J 97 : (1958) 2 Lab L J 613 : ILR (1957) Mys 388 : A I R 1958 Mys 85 (89) (Pt C) (Pr 24) (DB).

——Art. 226—Mistake or error apparent on face of record must be one of inadvertence and not of judgment—Existence of error apparent on face of record—Review rejected — High Court will interfere in writ jurisdiction. See Civil P. C. (1903), O. 47, R. 1. AIR 1965 Orissa 49.

——Art. 226—Error apparent on face of record cannot be determined with reference to extraneous facts.

The error apparent on the face of the record cannot be determined with reference to new and extrinsic facts transpiring in the writ petition or otherwise. (1965) 1 Lab L J 349 (Orissa).

——Arts. 226, 227 — Scope — Error apparent on the face of the record — Controversy requiring adjudication of facts — Not within the scope of jurisdiction conferred on Courts by Arts 226 and 227 of the Constitution. ILR (1965) 2 Punj 266.

——Art. 226 — Error apparent on the face of the record—Error requiring lengthy and elaborate arguments for its establishment—Not an error apparent on the face of the record so as to justify interference under Art. 226. A I R 1960 S C 137, Foll 65 Pun L R 990 : ILR (1964) 1 Punj 177 : A I R 1964 Punj 138 (141) (Pt B) (Pr 9).

——Art. 226 — Error apparent on face of record—What is.

It is well settled that even if two views can be taken but the view adopted is a possible one, the High Court will not interfere under Art 226 if after long and elaborate arguments it comes to the conclusion that the view which has not been accepted was the correct view, as that will not constitute an error apparent. 65 Pun L R 33 : A I R 1963 Punj 158 (162, 163) (Pt C) (Pr 13).

——Arts. 226 and 227 — Certiorari — Error when apparent on face of record, indicated - Error not apparent on face of record—Interference not desirable —Powers of High Court under Art 227 and Civil P. C. (1908), S. 115, stated (1961-62) 20 F J R 270 : (1961) 2 Lab L J 615 (Punj).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Error apparent on the face of record—What is indicated—High Court cannot determine such error by examining evidence in the case. A I R 1958 S C 298; A I R 1952 Bom 235; A I R 1955 Raj 19, Rel on. A I R 1953 Raj 84, Dist. 1961 Raj L W 42 : I L R (1960) 10 Raj 1638.

——Art. 226—Error apparent on face of record.

An error of law apparent on the face of the record means that the Court should be able to find out the error without long arguments of a balanced nature on either side. No great citation of authorities should be necessary to discover the error and the Court should be able to say after a careful perusal of the words of the law that there is an error of law in its application. 1958 Raj L W 121 : I L R (1958) 8 Raj 137.

139 (d). Proof.

——Art. 226—Grounds of interference—Duty of applicant.

The Income-tax Officer is entitled to proceed to issue notice for reassessment proceedings under S. 34 (1) (a) of the Income-tax Act in all cases where he believes that the income of the assessee has escaped assessment by reason of failure to disclose truly or fully material facts. When a person applies under

Art. 226 challenging the validity of the notice issued under S. 34 of the Income-tax Act, the burden undertaken by the petitioner must be to prove the total absence of jurisdiction of the Income-tax Officer to proceed under S. 34 of the Act and this absence of jurisdiction must be apparent on the face of the record. For that purpose it is absolutely necessary for the petitioner to prove that the Income-tax Officer did not have any reason to believe that the assessee had failed to disclose fully and truly all material facts, and that accordingly the Income-tax Officer was not entitled to proceed under S. 34 (1) (a). On a mere allegation in the petition that reasons have not been recorded by the Income-tax Officer and that the Commissioner was not satisfied, the Court is not bound to go into the evidence and insist that the Income-tax Officer is bound to produce before it the reasons recorded by him and the Commissioner's satisfaction in respect thereof. (1960) 39 I T R 182 : 62 Bom L R 823 : A I R 1961 Bom 5 (8, 9) (Pt A) (Prs 13, 14, 18).

139 (e). Speaking orders.

——Art. 226 — Error apparent on face of record — Incorrect interpretation of statute — Order passed by Chancellor of University — Writ of certiorari — (Allahabad University Act (3 of 1921), S. 42).

An erroneous interpretation of the provisions of a statute may be considered by the superior Court as an "error apparent on the face of the record." It is the duty of the High Court to finally determine the law of the land. It is for the superior Court to examine the decision of an inferior tribunal and see if the law has been correctly followed by the inferior tribunal. If it finds on the face of the order, which is a speaking order, that it had not observed the law as determined by the superior tribunal inasmuch as it has held contrary to that law, it can quash the order of the inferior tribunal.

Hence, in the case of a decision given by the Chancellor of a University it is open to the High Court to examine the order of the Chancellor which is a "speaking order", to consider the interpretation which he places on the statute and the reasons therefor which he gives and, on finding that he misinterpreted the relevant provisions of the statute, to quash his order in the exercise of its power of certiorari. AIR 1955 S C 233, A I R 1955 S C 425, A I R 1955 All 557, Rel. on. A I R 1956 All 603 (604, 605, 607, 608) (Pt F) Prs 1, 6, 15, 16, 20) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Error on face of record — Power of Superior Court to disturb decision of inferior Court on question of jurisdiction — Board of Revenue erroneously entertaining and allowing revision under S. 275, U. P. Tenancy Act — Decision whether can be quashed by writ of certiorari under Art. 226 — (Tenancy Laws — U. P. Tenancy Act (17 of 1939), S. 275).

The power of the High Court to issue a writ of certiorari is not confined to the grounds where the subordinate Court has acted without jurisdiction or in excess of its jurisdiction but also on the ground that there is an error of law apparent on the face of the record.

If a certain order passed by the subordinate tribunal gives the reasons for the decision, that is to say, it is a speaking order as it is termed by English Courts, then it is open to the High Court, in the exercise of its power under Art. 226 of the Constitution, to scrutinise the reasoning of the subordinate tribunal so far as can be done without going outside the order itself, examine it and if the Court finds that the reasons are manifestly wrong on a question of law and the conclusions arrived at by the Courts below are apparently erroneous, then it is open to the High Court to exercise its jurisdiction under Art. 226 of the Constitution and quash such a decision. AIR 1955 S C 233, Rel. on. AIR 1955 All 131, Ref.

The question whether a matter is to be decided by a subordinate Court as an issue in the case and as such relating only to the exercise of its jurisdiction or it is a matter on which the jurisdiction itself depends and is collateral to the exercise of the jurisdiction is a question which can be determined on the language of the section under which the Court has been constituted or has been given the power to entertain and decide a matter.

Under S. 275, U. P. Tenancy Act the Board of Revenue can only interfere with an order passed by the subordinate Court if the grounds enumerated in Cls. (a) to (c) of the said section exist. It is a conditional jurisdiction exercisable by the Board of Revenue. Any decision by the Board of Revenue as to the existence or non-existence of conditions mentioned in the section is not a decision on any issue in the case which the Board had to decide.

It is a decision with regard to the existence or non-existence of the conditions on which its jurisdiction depended and any decision by the Board, whether explicit or by implication, on this point can be looked into by the High Court in the exercise of its writ jurisdiction and if the Court is of opinion that the Board of Revenue has exceeded its power of interference with the order of the Assistant Collector, on grounds not permissible under S. 275, then such a decision can be interfered with by the High Court. Case-law, Ref. I L R (1955) 2 All 724 : 1955 All L J 570 : 1955 All W R (H C) 494 : A I R 1955 All 557 (560, 561, 562) (Pt B) (Prs 11, 17) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Speaking order — What is — Mere brevity of order — If ground for interference.

Where the main case put forward by the petitioner as to the injustice of holding him vicariously responsible was, as a matter of fact, considered by the Collector and reasons were given for the decision it cannot be said that the order is not a speaking one merely because it is brief. Brevity of the order does not mean that it is necessarily bad any more than prolixity makes for soundness. AIR 1961 Andh Pra 350 (353) (Pt A) (Pr 16).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — When can issue — Manifest error of law — Assam Excise Rules — Tender for excise shop — Rejection of, for omission to mention certain facts in form — Issue of certiorari — (Assam Excise Rules, R. 205).

Manifest error of law is a ground on which the High Court can issue a writ of certiorari in the exercise of its powers under Art. 226. If on the examination of the order itself which is a speaking order, it appears to the High Court that an erroneous view has been taken by the inferior tribunal on the question of law, High Court will certainly interfere with such an order, in the exercise of its power under Art. 226.

Where the Appellate Authority under the provisions of the Assam Excise Rules rejects a tender holding that an omission to mention some of the facts which could be mentioned under Column 10 is a failure to comply with the mandatory provision, it commits a manifest error of law and its order is liable to be quashed. I L R (1958) 10 Assam 407 : A I R 1959 Assam 64 (64, 65, 66) (Pr 2) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Error of law apparent on face of record — (Houses and Rents — Travancore-Cochin Buildings (Lease and Rent Control) Order (1950), Ss 2 (1) and 4).

An error of law apparent on the face of the record is a sufficient ground for interference under Art. 226.

The record must contain at least the document which initiates the proceedings, the pleadings if any, and the adjudication, but not the evidence, nor the reasons, unless the Tribunal chooses to incorporate them. If the Tribunal does state its reasons, and those reasons are wrong in law, certiorari lies to quash the decision.

Where an order says that a transaction is a lease and not a rent arrangement or that lease cannot come within the purview of the Rent Control Order, the order is vitiated by an error of law apparent on the face of the record and, being a quasi-judicial order, it is subject to correction by a writ of certiorari. 1957 Ker L J 380 : 1957 Ker L T 411 : A I R 1957 Ker 109 (111, 112) (Pt F) (Prs 7, 8, 9, 11).

——Art. 226—Certiorari — Issue of writ — Speaking order.

An order which is a speaking order and erroneous on its face because of a misapprehension of the law on the subject is capable of being interfered with by a writ of certiorari. I L R (1953) Nag 178 : 1952 Nag L J 426 : A I R 1953 Nag 16 (17) (Pt B) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — When to issue — Error apparent on face of record—'Speaking order'—Order of Commissioner under S. 18-B of Bihar Act (3 of 1947)—Interference.

A writ of certiorari lies not merely when the inferior tribunal acts in excess of jurisdiction, but also when the tribunal commits an error of law patent on the face of the record. It is also well settled that what is an error apparent on the face of the record that is what is "speaking order" calling for an interference, is a question that has to be decided on the facts of each case. "Speaking order" is one which, on mere perusal, springs to one's mind as being erroneous and does not require a careful and elaborate argument to establish that there has been an error of law.

Where the Controller as well as the Collector under the Bihar Buildings (Lease, Rent and Eviction) Control Act considered the irregular deposit of the rent with the Collector to the credit of the landlord as amounting to non-payment of rent and they further found that the personal requirement of the house by the landlord had been made out but the Commissioner in revision under S. 18-B of the Act reversed their findings, and came to the conclusion, on the materials on the record that there had been no non-payment of rent and the plea of personal requirement was not bona fide:

Held, that the Commissioner was perfectly entitled in law in coming to his own conclusion and finding on the material before him, and that no manifest error apparent on the face of the record had been shown to call for interference. A I R 1957 Pat 57 (59) (Pr 8) (DB).

——Art. 226—Speaking order—Certiorari when can be granted—Finding as to sub-letting, if conclusive—(Houses and Rents—Bihar Buildings (Lease, Rent and Eviction) Control Act (3 of 1947), S. 11 (1) (a)).

When a tribunal makes a speaking order and the reasons given in that order in support of the decision are bad in law, certiorari can be granted. But certiorari is only available to quash a decision for error of law if the error appears on the face of the record. (1951) 1 K B 711, Foll.

It is really for the tribunals under the Bihar Buildings (Lease Rent and Eviction) Control Act to determine whether in fact there was subletting or not, and a finding arrived at by those tribunals must be taken as conclusive, unless some defects appear on the face of the record. A I R 1951 S C 115 and (1874) 5 P C 417, Foll. 1956 B L J R 217 : A I R 1955 Pat 516 (517, 518) (Pt A) (Prs 2, 3) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Error apparent on face of record—Certiorari to be granted.

A writ of certiorari can be issued to correct an error of law which is manifest on the face of the record. Certiorari is not a remedy which can be granted only where an inferior tribunal has acted without or in excess of its jurisdiction, but it can also be granted when the decision of the inferior tribunal, where the latter has embodied the reasons for its order, has made a 'speaking order", and those reasons are bad in law. I L R (1959) 9 Raj 821 : 1960 Raj L W 486 : A I R 1960 Raj 25 (41) (Pt G) (Prs 69, 71) (DB).

——Art. 226—Error on face of record—Interference—Power of High Court.

While exercising its jurisdiction under Art. 226 of the Constitution the High Court does not function as a Court of Appeal. It is only when the order of the inferior tribunal or body is a speaking order and there is an error of law on the face of the record that the Superior Court has power to quash it by certiorari writ. A I R 1952 Cal 789, Rel. on. A I R 1956 Tripura 35 (40) (Pt D) (Pr 18).

139 (f). Non-speaking orders.

——Art. 226 — Duty of applicant — Government passing order 'in interests of justice' — High Court will not interfere—(Houses and Rents—U P. Temporary Control of Rent and Eviction Act (3 of 1947), S. 7 (F)).

Where on a representation made by a landlord under S. 7 (F), U. P. Temporary Control of Rent and Eviction Act, the State Government passes an order 'in the interests of justice' the order is a non-speaking order. It is not open to the High Court, in proceedings under Art. 226 and without any further enquiry, to go behind, the language of an inscrutable or non-speaking order. It is for the petitioner, in proceedings under Art. 226, to make out a prima facie case which will enable the Court to ask the respondent to show cause against it. A I R 1959 All 737 (738, 739) (Pr 5).

——Art. 226—Writ of certiorari—Error apparent on face of record — Income-tax Act (1922), S. 41 (1), Proviso — Failure to quote section or set out reasons in order of assessment — This is not error apparent on face of record.

The failure of the Income-tax Officer to indicate the reason for applying the maximum rate of tax is not such an error apparent on the face of the record as to justify an order quashing it by the issue of the writ of certiorari. The contention that there is an error of law apparent on the face of the record, in the failure of the Income tax Officer to quote the provisions of the Income-tax Act and set out the reasons in the order made cannot be accepted. For that can by no means be treated as an error of law apparent on the face of the record. ('65) 69 Cal W N 984.

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Error apparent on the face of the record—Court required to go beyond order of tribunal to determine alleged errors—Errors cannot be held to be apparent on face of record — Sea Customs Act (1878), S. 30.

Where the order of the Assistant Collector of Appraisement was attacked on the ground that provisions of S. 30, Sea Customs Act had not been followed in that no mention was to be found in the order about the wholesale cash price or the trade discount, nor was there any determination as to the wholesale cash price less trade discount for which goods of the like kind and quality are sold or are capable of being sold at the time and place of importation :

Held, that in order to sustain these objections before the High Court the petitioner would have to take the Court to the calculations and computations made by the Assistant Collector of Appraisement which did not appear on the face of the order and, therefore, it could not be said that there was an error on the face of the proceedings. A I R 1961 Cal 195 (198) (Pt D) (Pr 6).

139 (g). Error should not be mere clerical, accidental or formal.

——Art. 226—Error of law or jurisdiction.

The question of adverse possession is a question of law based on facts; and if arrived at erroneously, without proper materials, would render an order or decision void in law. Errors apparent on the face of the proceedings are always treated as errors of jurisdiction for the purpose of quashing by issuing a writ of certiorari. The error apparent should not, however, be a mere accidental or formal error which could be set right by amendment. It must be a substantial error and one which goes to the root of the matter. Where the conclusion which is made the basis of assuming jurisdiction is erroneous and void in law, (there being no material in law to justify the conclusion) the order must be held to be ultra vires and is liable to be quashed by a writ of certiorari. AIR 1949 Mad 535, Rel. on. ILR (1951) Hyd 788 : AIR 1951 Hyd 137 (138) (Pt B) (Pr 4).

139 (b). Error apparent on face of record—Illustrative cases.

■ ——Art. 226—Error of law apparent on the face of the record—Direction under S. 43-A, Motor Vehicles Act—Disobedience — Relevant consideration in the matter of granting stage carriage permit not taken into account under manifest error of law — There is error of law apparent on face of record. A I R 1959 S C 694 and A I R 1959 S C 896 and Civil Appeal No. 198 of 1962, D/- 17-9-1962 (SC) and Civil Appeal No. 213 of 1960, D/- 10-10-1960 (SC), Disting K. M. Shanmugam, Proprietor, K. M. S. Transport, Madras State v. S. R. V. S. (P.) Ltd., (1964) 1 S C A 428 : (1964) 2 S C J 120 : (1964) 2 Andh W R (SC) 13 : (1964) 2 Mad L J (SC) 13 : (1964) 1 S C R 809 : AIR 1963 S C 1626 (1629, 1630, 1631) (Pt B) (Prs 7, 8, 9).

■ ——Art. 226—Certiorari—Error apparent on face of record—Industrial dispute—Dismissal of employee—Question whether enquiry was held by management before dismissal—Perverse findings by Labour Commissioner and Industrial Court that no enquiry was held—There is error apparent on face of record — Good ground for High Court to correct that error under Art. 226. Special Civil Appln. No. 59 of 1959, D/- 17-10-1959 (Bom), Reversed. Provincial Transport Service v. State Industrial Court, Nagpur, (1963) 3 S C R 650: (1962) 2 Lab L J 360 : (1962-63) 23 F J R 102: (1962) 5 Fac L R 294: 65 Bom L R 288: (1963) 7 Fac L R 152 : (1963) 2 S C J 412: AIR 1963 SC 114 (117) (Pt C) (Pr 9).

■ ——Art. 226 — Representation of the People Act (1951), S. 100 (2) (c) — Wrong decision of Election Tribunal—Jurisdiction—Error on face of record — AIR 1954 Nag 166, Reversed.:

In maintaining the election of the successful candidate on the basis of 301 votes which were liable to be rejected under R. 47 (1) (c) the Tribunal commits an error. But this error is not one of jurisdiction. Because the Tribunal has jurisdiction to decide whether on a construction of section 100 (2) (c) it can go into the fact of breach of R. 23, and if it committs an error, it is an error in the exercise of its jurisdiction and not in the assumption thereof. But the error is manifest on the face of the record, and calls for interference in certiorari. AIR 1954 Nag 166, Reversed. Hari Vishnu v. Ahmad Ishaque, 1955 Mad W N 449 : (1955) 1 Mad L J (SC) 157 : 1955 S C J 267 : (1955) Andh W R (SC) 157: 1955 All W R 339 : 1955 S C R 1104: 1955 Nag L J 1 : 1955 S C A 105 : AIR 1955 SC 233 (249) (Pt V) (Pr 38).

——Art. 226—Mistake apparent on face of record — Ejectment suit dismissed on merits—Additional Commissioner in appeal setting aside judgment and sending back case for de novo trial after making landholder party to suit—Further appeal to Board of Revenue summarily rejected—Appellate Courts by not going into merits held committed mistakes apparent on face of record—Tenancy Laws—U. P. Tenancy Act (17 of 1939), S. 180—Civil P. C. (1908), S. 99. 1965 All L J 884.

——Art. 226 — Income-tax Act (1922), S. 34 (1) (a) — Notice by Income-tax Officer under S. 34 (1) (a)— Notice in contravention of principle of law laid in a High Court decision — Held, that there was patent error of law causing failure of justice and hence order could be set aside in writ jurisdiction. AIR 1961 SC 372, Rel. on. (1965) 1 I T J 114 : (1965) 57 I T R 583 (All).

——Art. 226—U. P. Consolidation of Holdings Act (5 of 1954), Ss. 38 (2) and 12—Error apparent on face of record—Only one view possible on interpretation of scheme under Act—View preferred by revisional authority untenable in law — There is error apparent on face of record and High Court will quash it—1962 A L J 888, Disting. 1965 All W R (HC) 279 : 1965 All L J 790.

——Art. 226—Error apparent on face of record — Error of law—Finding of fact in the face of contrary evidence in existence — It is error apparent on face of record. A I R 1964 All 228 (229) (Pt A) (Pr 3).

——Art. 226—Patent error of law—U. P. Industrial Disputes Rules (1949), R. 42.

Where there is a patent error of law in the reason given by the Industrial Tribunal while holding R. 42 (1) of the U. P. Industrial Disputes Rules to be mandatory, the reason given being that the word "shall" has been used in the main clause and in the sub-clauses of this rule and further by its wrong interpretation of R. 42, the tribunal has failed to administer the law which it was bound to do, the High Court will interfere under Art. 226 of the Constitution and the fact that the construction presented some difficulty does not make any difference. A I R 1962 Mad 327, Rel. on. (1964) 1 Lab L J 730 : (1964) 8 Fac L R 1 (All).

——Art. 226 — U. P. Large Land Holdings Tax Act (31 of 1957), Ss. 2 (16), 4, Expl. 1 — Scope and applicability of S. 4 — Clubbing of property—Circumstances necessary for — Family Deity, Sarbarkar and guardian of minor Sarbarkar, no family—Constitution of India, Art. 226—'Error apparent on the face of the record.' See U. P. Large Land Holdings Tax Act (31 of 1957), S. 2 (16). 1962 All W R (H C) 57.

——Art. 226 — Error apparent on face of record—Appeal under S. 35, Central Excises and Salt Act, dismissed by Deputy Collector — No reasonable opportunity given to appellant to challenge order appealed against —Deputy Collector not applying his mind to various pleas raised in grounds of appeal — Order is defective — High Court can under Art. 226 rectify error which is apparent on face of record — Central Excises and Salt Act (1944), S. 35. 1960 Cri L J 867 : AIR 1960 All 402 (404, 405) (Pt B) (Prs 11, 12, 17).

——Art. 226—Finding of fact.

A finding of fact reached on the basis of additional evidence which ought not to have been admitted would justify interference on the ground that an error of law had been committed. AIR 1951 S C 193, Foll. AIR 1960 All 304 (317) (Pt J) (Pr 61).

——Art. 226— Rules under U. P. Municipalities Act, S. 153—Municipal Account Code, R. 132, Item No. 17 — Scope of — Sewing machines when exempt from Octroi duty — Order holding all machines exempt from tax—Error apparent on face of record — Order quashed by writ of certiorari. See Municipalities — U. P. Municipalities Act (2 of 1916), S. 153. 1960 All L J 833.

——Art. 226—Error on face of record — Representation of the People Act, 1951, S. 117— Rules regarding deposit and Government Treasury Receipts—Duty of Court to look into—Ignorance and disregard of rules is error on face of record — Certiorari can issue — Issue of. See Representation of the People Act (1951), S. 117. AIR 1960 All 113 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — When can issue—Disregard of provisions of S. 3, Income-tax Act — Error apparent on face of record — Certiorari to quash assessment order—(Income-tax Act (1922), S. 3).

Certiorari will be issued for correcting errors of jurisdiction. Where the Income tax Officer charges tax on the income in the hands of the association after it has been charged in the hands of the individual members of the association, the officer totally disregards the effect of the provisions of S. 3, Income-tax Act, so that he commits a manifest error apparent on the face of the record and certiorari can issue to quash the second assessment. A I R 1953 Punj 55, Disting. A I R 1954 S C 440 and A I R 1955 S C 233, Rel on. ILR (1958) 2 All 805 : (1959) 37 I T R 107 : AIR 1959 All 456 (459) (Pt E) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 226 —Error apparent on face of record.

An order which is not in conformity with what is provided in an Act and an order passed on a wrong view of the law as interpreted by the High Court suffer from an apparent error of law and can be interfered with under Art. 226 I L R (1959) 2 All 403 : 1959 All W R (H C) 691 : 1959 All L J 897.

——Art. 226—Certiorari — Grounds for issue of writ —Error of law.

A writ or certiorari can issue not only on the ground of jurisdiction but also on the ground of manifest error of law; and a decision based on no evidence can be treated to be a manifest error. If on the face of the record it is apparent that the trial Court has come to a decision on no evidence it will be a manifest error of law amenable to a writ of certiorari by the Court. ILR (1958) 1 All 577: A I R 1958 All 532 (539) (Pt E) (Pr 15).

——Art. 226 — Powers of High Court — Power to quash orders—Error of law.

It is true that the High Court in exercise of its powers under Art. 226 of the Constitution does not sit as a Court of appeal but where the decisions of the Appeal Officer and the Commissioner have been arrived at in disregard of the provisions of S. 147 (1) (c), U. P. Municipalities Act and are manifestly erroneous the orders will be quashed under Art. 226. I L R (1957) 2 All 224 : A I R 1958 All 211 (214) (Pt D) (Pr 16).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Order of Chancellor of University that petitioner was not entitled to be member of Executive Council — Order on face of it erroneous in law. See Allahabad University Act (3 of 1921), S. 42. AIR 1955 All 131.

——Art. 226—Error on face of record—Tribunal acting in flagrant disregard of rules of procedure or against principles of natural justice — Error can be corrected by certiorari. AIR 1955 N U C (All) 4170 (DB).

——Art. 226—Error apparent on face of record.

Before S sold his six plots to B a lease was executed in favour of N whose name therefore came to be recorded in khatauni as a tenant in 1942. When B sued to eject N under S. 180, U. P. Tenancy Act and N's second appeal was pending before the Board of Revenue, N applied under Rr. 4 and 5 of the Rules framed under the U. P. Act 1 of 1951. Meanwhile the Board rejected N's second appeal holding that N though recorded as an occupant in the year 1356F, was not correctly so recorded because he was not in possession for seven days in that year from 23-6 1949 to 30-6-1949. It also held that N could not be deemed to have acquired the rights of an Adhivasi under S. 20 and was, therefore, liable to be ejected. On application under Art. 226, Held that (i) Cls. (b) (i) and (b) (ii) of S. 20 do not require the proof of actual possession in the year 1356F. What they require merely is the entry of a person's name as an occupant in the Khasra or Khatauni of 1356F.

In view of Expl. II and III to S. 20 unless the entry of the year 1356F had been corrected or ordered to be corrected before 1-7-1952, it would be taken to be correct and although an occupant means a person in possession, S. 20 requires not the fact of a person being an occupant but the fact of his being 'recorded' as an occupant.

Hence the right of an Adhivasi had accrued to N and the appeal before the Board of Revenue and the suit itself, in which the appeal was pending, were liable to be stayed under R. 4 and then to be abated under R. 5.

(ii) There was a clear error of law on the face of the judgment of the Board of Revenue, and the order must be quashed, 1955 A L J (Rev) 95, Dissented from. AIR 1955 N U C (All) 3552 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Error must be apparent on face of record—Election disputes—Municipal election—Election petition—Application for amendment—Discretion of Tribunal — Refusal to amend on ground that if amendment were not allowed, petition would be dismissed and if allowed it would deprive opposite party of rights accrued to him—There is error of law apparent on face of record—High Court can issue writ of certiorari—(Municipalities—U. P. Municipalities Act (2 of 1916), Ss. 20 and 23). (Civil P. C. (1908) O. 6, R. 17)—Election disputes — Municipal election) (Election). AIR 1955 N U C (All) 3542.

——Art. 226— Madras Village Panchayats Act (10 of 1950), S. 112—Rules for decision of Election Disputes Rr. 11, 12—Scope—Election challenged on ground of corrupt practice — Securing votes through bribery or improper inducement alleged—Offence under S. 171B of I. P. C. — Connection between the offence and the candidate or his agent must be established — Burden of proof — No finding given by the Tribunal about the existence of such connection — Effect—Setting aside of the elections, without such definite finding, is an error apparent on the face of the record —Certiorari issued. See Panchayats—Madras Village Panchayats Act (10 of 1950), S. 112. (1962) 2 Andh L T 230.

——Art. 226—Certiorari — Error apparent on face of record — Award of industrial Tribunal dealing separately with different claims—Award vitiated by error on face of record as regards one such matter but not as to others — Award may be set aside partially. (1959) 2 Lab L J 704: AIR 1960 Andh Pra 485 (486) (Pt A) (Pr 3).

—— Art. 226—Certiorari — Error apparent on face of record — Meaning — Award of Industrial Tribunal holding that no balance for payment of bonus was available — Tribunal enumerating several heads of deductions from gross profit to find out surplus— Principles on which depreciation and rehabilitation are allowed not fully appreciated by Tribunal—Held, there was error apparent on face of record. (1959) 2 Lab L J 704 : A I R 1960 Andh Pra 485 (486, 487) (Pt B) (Pr 6).

——Art. 226 — Civil P. C. (1908), O. 47, R. 1 (1)— "Error apparent on face of record" — Failure to give proper effect to decision cited before Court or Tribunal is error on face of record — Further, if the Tribunal has the necessary jurisdiction and if in the exercise of that jurisdiction it has to decide for itself whether there is such an error as calls for its exercise, then the High Court will not in the exercise of its jurisdiction under Art. 226, which is not that of an appellate Court, decide whether there is such an error or not. See Civil P. C. (1908), O. 47, R. 1 (1). A I R 1960 Andh Pra 17.

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Error apparent on face of record.

Where the labour Appellate Tribunal remands the case to the Industrial Tribunal to decide an issue whether the interim relief should be continued to be paid to the workers either wholly or in part and the Tribunal does not consider the question whether the workers were entitled to the continuance at least of a part of the interim relief, there is an error apparent on the face of record and the writ of certiorari will issue. (1960-2) Lab L J 394 (Andh Pra).

——Arts. 226 and 311—Scope — Rules of procedure relating to disciplinary enquiries of District Board and Municipal employees—Contravention of— What amounts to.

Held, on facts that the petitioner was placed under Grade I. His probation was declared to have been completed satisfactorily and he was also given certain increments. The effect of what is, now alleged to be the re-fixation of seniority is undoubtedly demotion of the petitioner from Grade I to Grade II. The demotion of the petitioner, consequent upon the order, will operate as a 'reduction in rank'. The post he was holding as a teacher in Grade I was a substantive post. The order of the Director as affirmed by the Government is one of a reduction in rank of the petitioner and has been made in contravention of the procedure prescribed. It is an error of law apparent on the face of the record. The writ of certiorari shall be issued. A I R 1959 Mad 1, Disting.; A I R 1958 S C 36, Applied. (1960) 2 Andh W R 218 : (1960) 2 Lab L J 387.

——Art. 226—Error apparent on face of record—Mistaken view of law — (Madras Hereditary Village Offices Act (3 of 1895), S. 10 (5)).

Where the Collector has on a mistaken view of the qualifications necessary for the appointment of a deputy under S. 10 (5) of Madras Act (3 of 1895), refused to uphold the order of appointment made by the Divisional Officer, there is an error apparent on the face of the record and the exercise of the revisional powers by the Collector are not a proper exercise of the jurisdiction vested in him and his order can be quashed by certiorari. 1958 Andh L T 847 : (1951) 2 Andh W R 692.

——Art. 226 — Notification under—Necessary elements —Absence of — Notification was vitiated by an error of law apparent on the face of the record—Minimum Wages Act (1948), S. 4 (1). A I R 1957 Andh Pra 565.

——Art. 226 — Error apparent on face of record — Meaning of — Departmental action—Necessary document not referred to—Effect.

It cannot be defined precisely or exhaustively as to what is an error apparent on the face of the record. Having regard to the element of indefiniteness inherent in its very nature, it must be left to be determined judicially on the facts of each case.

Thus where a grain purchase Tahsildar who was directed to check the stock in a certain mill sent his report without withholding any necessary information from his superior officers and had also suggested therein that an action should be taken against the miller, but this report was not filed in the criminal proceedings against the miller and no reference to it was even made in the judgment of the Tribunal in the departmental action against the Tahsildar.

Held, that the omission was an error apparent on the face of the record which attracted the provisions of Art. 226 vitiating the judgment of Tribunal. A I R 1955 S C 233 and A I R 1953 Bom 133 and A I R 1956 Cal 273, Rel. on. (1957) 2 Lab L J 238 : A I R 1956 Andh 203 (206) (Pt B) (Pr 13).

——Art. 226 — Error on face of record — Election Commissioner ignoring Fundamental Principles of Law — High Court can interfere under Article. A I R 1955 N U C (Andhra) 5846.

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Error on face of record.

Even when there is no error of jurisdiction or of procedure, a certiorari may issue when there is a manifest error on the face of the proceedings, as when the decision is based on clear ignorance or disregard of the provisions of law. But this is subject to the limitation that the Court granting a certiorari acts not in an appellate but only in a supervisory capacity and does not substitute its own views for those of the inferior tribunal. A I R 1955 N U C (Andhra) 3624 (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari — Error on face of record — Finding based on no evidence — Held, there was manifest error of law committed in passing that order. A I R 1958 S C 398 and (1922) 2 A C 128, Expl. and Disting.; A I R 1958 All 532 and A I R 1953 All 641 and (1952) 2 All E R 100 (101), Rel. on.

Held, also that the two parts of the order were not severable and so the entire order must be set aside. A I R 1957 S C 628, Applied. 1960 Cri L J 1307 : ILR (1960) 12 Assam 271 : A I R 1960 Assam 150 (158) (Pt B) (Pr 19) (DB).

——Art. 226—Rule is mandatory — Breach of rule — Error apparent on face of record—Writ of certiorari. See Representation of the People Act (1951), S. 100 (2) (c). A I R 1955 Assam 163 (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 227—High Court's power of interference — Application under S. 15, Payment of Wages Act made beyond limitation — Condonation of delay — Authority postponing decision on such question till consideration of claim on merits — Amounts to flagrant disregard of rules of procedure — Patent error of jurisdiction — Order quashed. ILR (1963) Bom 856 : 1963 Mah L J 361 : 65 Bom L R 401 : (1963) 7 Fac L R 156 : (1963) 2 Lab L J 257 : A I R 1964 Bom 89 (93, 94) (Pt B) (Prs 17, 18) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Review under S. 15 (3), M. P. Abolition of Proprietary Rights (Estates, Mahals, Alienated Lands) Act, I of 1951 — Finding of Reviewing Officer not supported by evidence on record — Error is one apparent on the face of the record—Hence order set aside and case sent back for fresh decision after due inquiry. 1960 Nag L J 282 : 62 Bom L R 617 : ILR (1960) Bom 644.

——Art. 226—Error on face of record—Held, on facts that the order of the Income-tax Commissioner rejecting the plea that the order of the I. T. O. was without jurisdiction was erroneous in law and that it was an error apparent on the face of the record. See ——Art. 226—Error apparent on face of record—Corrupt or illegal practice affecting result of election—Finding not based on evidence—Setting aside election on wrong inference—Effect. See Panchayats—C. P. and Berar Panchayats Act (1 of 1947), S. 144 (2) (ii). 1959 Nag L J (Notes) 67.

Income-tax Act (1922), S. 18-A (6). (1959) 36 ITR 538 (Bom).

——Art. 226—Error apparent on face of record. Agreement of sale of certain survey numbers between A and B on 17-12-1948—A registered sale deed in pursuance of agreement by A in favour of B on 20-4-1949—Sale in contravention of S. 64 (3), Bombay Tenancy and Agricultural Lands Act — Revenue Tribunal holding, on construcition of S. 89 (2) of the Act that the sale was not saved—Held that there was no error apparent on face of record—At most it could he said that there was wrong interpretation put by officer upon S. 89 (2)—But this did not entitle High Court to interfere under Art. 226 or Art. 227. See Tenancy Laws—Bombay Tenancy and Agricultural Lands Act (67 of 1948), S. 64 (3). AIR 1954 Bom 511 (DB).

——Art. 226—Tenancy Laws—Bombay Tenancy and Agricultural Lands Act (1948), Ss. 14 (1) (a) (l) and 29 (2)—Notice of termination of tenancy—Failure of tenant to pay rent—It is not incumbent on landlord to give notice of termination of tenancy—Tribunal trying to import its own idea of what was right and proper and imposing condition on landlord to maintain application under S. 29 which finds no place in the Act — Tribunal was not only in error but order was manifestly wrong in as much as Tribunal acted in conscious violation of the Act. See Tenancy Laws—Bombay Tenancy and Agricultural Lands Act (67 of 1948), S. 14 (1) (a) (l). AIR 1953 Bom 207.

——Art. 226—Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 2 (s)—Certiorari — Error apparent on face of record — Tribunal finding that Ss. 25-F and 25-FFF are not applicable to workers concerned without any finding whether they were 'workmen' within S. 2 (a) of Industrial Disputes Act—Error is apparent on face of record—Held, award must be quashed — Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 2 (s). (1963) 2 Lab L J 340: (1964) 9 Fac L R 56 (Cal).

——Art. 226—Error apparent on the face of the record—Industrial award—Tribunal misappreciating facts and law — Award can be quashed — Industrial dispute—Award when can be quashed in writ proceedings.

Mere want of appreciation of evidence would not be sufficient to quash the award. There must be an error apparent on the face of the record if it is to be quashed. Where the entire approach of the tribunal has been based on a mis-appreciation of the facts and of the law the award cannot stand. 68 Cal W N 730: (1964) 2 Lab L J 347.

——Art. 226—Certiorari, Writ of—Error apparent on face of record—Administrative Tribunal—Disciplinary procedure—Natural justice—Fair hearing—Bias—Calcutta Dock Labour Board — Disciplinary proceedings against registered dock workers for acts of indiscipline or misconduct—Proof — Termination of service solely on basis of their preventive detention for alleged complicity in riotous and disorderly behaviour is against rules of natural justice and illegal—Dock Workers (Regulation of Employment) Act (1948), S. 4 (1)—Calcutta Dock Workers (Regulation of Employment) Scheme (1956), Cls. 45 (5) and (6)—Natural Justice — Administrative Tribunal.

Held, that, however eminently constituted the Advisory Board might have been, it was an outside authority. The scheme under which the Administrative Body is charged with the duty of giving its decisions on complaints of indiscipline or misconduct, directs a fair hearing to be given which must conform to rules of natural justice. Natural justice dispenses with technicalities but abhors a decision based on suspicion.

Preventive detention alone cannot justify orders of termination of employment. Even an Administrative Body, untrammelled by technical rules of evidence or procedure, cannot be permitted to act entirely on extraneous material provided by the opinion of an outside authority.

The Authorities of the Dock Labour Board proceeded wholly on the footing that the workers' continued detention on the recommendation of the Advisory Board was proof enough of their complicity in charges of violent activity, establishing misconduct or indiscipline on their part. This was an error on the face of the record which would justify interference by a writ of certiorari. A I R 1955 S C 233, Rel. on. A I R 1962 Cal 411 (415, 416, 417) (Pt B) (Prs 23, 24, 26, 27, 29) (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 265—Error apparent on face of record—Assessment of tax made on wrong basis—Writ will issue. (1961) 42 I T R 288 : 65 Cal W N 706 : AIR 1961 Cal 649 (652) (Pt D) (Pr 9).

——Art. 226—Error on face of record — Question of fact—Interference—Decision of lower Court in disregard of well settled principles.

The question as to whether there is sufficient cause or not for condoning the delay under S. 15 (2) of the Payment of Wages Act is a mixed one of fact and law. Whether there was a sufficient cause or not is certainly dependent on facts, but once the facts have been related, the question as to whether they constitute 'sufficient cause' within the second proviso to sub-s. (2) of S. 15 must be a question of law. If the lower Court decides the question in disregard of the above principles its decision is vitiated by errors of law on the face of the record. AIR 1960 S C 260 and A I R 1954 Bom 537, Foll. (1961-62) 20 FJR 380 : (1961) 2 Lab L J 297 : (1961) 3 Fac L R 334 : AIR 1960 Cal 603 (608, 609) (Pt F) (Pr 11).

——Art. 226—Error on face of record — Managerial enquiry by employer into conduct of employees—Reference under S. 10, Industrial Disputes Act — Tribunal approaching case in wrong manner, ignoring principles laid down for the purpose—There is error on face of proceedings—Principles laid down with reference to Ss. 33 and 33-A, Industrial Disputes Act, are applicable to case of reference under S. 10—(Industrial Disputes Act (1 of 1947), Ss. 10, 15, 33 and 33-A)—(Industrial Disputes (Appellate Tribunal) Act (1950), Ss. 22 and 23) (AIR 1959 S C 529, followed). (1960) 1 Fac L R 229 : 64 Cal W N 304 : ILR (1960) 2 Cal 889 : (1960-61) 18 F J R 157 : (1960) 2 Lab L J 175 : AIR 1960 Cal 249 (252, 256, 257) (Pt A) (Prs 7, 21, 22).

——Art. 226—Error apparent on face of record—Refusal to grant permit under Motor Vehicles Act, on extraneous consideration—Order refusing to grant permit quashed by issue of certiorari. See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 47 (1) (a). A I R 1959 Cal 447 (DB).

——Art. 226—Error apparent on face of record—Confiscation of vessel by Collector of Customs under S. 167 (12-A)—Writ of certiorari.

Where the Additional Collector of Customs passed an order of confiscation of a vessel under S. 167 (12-A), Sea Customs Act, and payment of fine in lieu thereof without taking into consideration certain factors such as a knowledge or intention of the owner which were certainly material in imposing the penalty of confiscation, the error is one on the face of the impugned order, and the High Court will issue a writ of certiorari quashing the order of the Additional Collector of Customs only in respect of the confiscation of the ship and payment of a fine in lieu thereof and direct that the matter may be re-considered in accordance with law. ILR (1960) 1 Cal 182 : 1959 Cri L J 439 : 63 Cal W N 986 : AIR 1959 Cal 237 (243) (Pt D) (Pr 34).

——Art. 226—Error on face of record—Industrial Tribunal erroneously rejecting entire proceedings before enquiring officer—Effect.

Where the Industrial Tribunal as a result of erroneous decision in law that the enquiry held by the General Manager into certain charges against certain workmen was against principles of natural justice, rejects the entire proceedings before the enquiring officer including the charge-sheet and the evidence given before him, the error vitiates the whole award. It is not only an error on the face of the award but it goes to the root of the very substance of the decision. (1959) 1 Lab L J 605 (Cal).

——Art. 226—Error apparent on face of record—Dismissal of workman—Award refusing to reinstate—Order of reinstatement on second reference—Legality—(Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 2 (k)).

A discharged workman raised an industrial dispute which was refered to tribunal. The tribunal held that the dismissal was proper and the workman was not entitled to re-instatement. A second reference was made at the instance of the same workman on the allegation that he was not re-employed in spite of an assurance given by the company to re-employ him after the award and that it constituted a fresh dispute. The tribunal ordered his re-instatement on the ground that he was not given an opportunity of defending himself in the previous hearing and was prejudiced.

Held, that the order of reinstatement was bad on the face of the record. When the order of dismissal was upheld by the Industrial Court, the workman could no longer be considered as a workman of the Company. Therefore, such a dispute could not possibly be called an industrial dispute. AIR 1958 Cal 456 (458) (Pt D) (Pr 3).

——Art. 226—Industrial Tribunal—Order of— Manifest error apparent on face of proceedings — Interference. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 33-A. AIR 1958 Cal 273.

——Art. 226—Certiorari — Error apparent on face of record — Election disputes — Wrong rejection of nomination paper of candidate for election of Municipal corporation — (Municipalities — Hyderabad Municipal Corporation Act (2 of 1956), Ss. 22 (1) (h), 22 (b) (i)).

Where the nomination paper of a candidate for election to the councillorship of Hyderabad Municipal Corporation is rejected by the election authorities on the ground that he had taken on lease malgies belonging to the Municipal Corporation and was thus disqualified under S. 22 (1) (h) of the Hydarabad Municipal Corporation Act (2 of 1956) from being elected as a councillor, the rejection of the nomination paper on the ground on which the order proceeds is clearly wrong, as the case clearly falls within the exceptions given in S. 22 (b) (i) of the Act. The error on which they are based is so patent and manifest that issue of writ is justified. ILR (1956) Hyd 624 : AIR 1957 Hyd 27 (28, 29) (Pt F) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226—Houses and Rents — Hyderabad Rent Control Order (1353 F), Cl. 8 — Order of eviction based on personal knowledge and without due regard to interests of parties — Writ of certiorari held lay—Error apparent on face of record. See Houses and Rents — Hyderabad Rent Control Order (1353-F), S. 8. AIR 1953 Hyd 66.

——Art. 226—Error apparent on face of record — Allotment by Provincial Rehabilitation Officer — Revision under Cabinet Order No. 578-C of 1954. R. 17 — Cancellation of allotment without hearing allottee is error in law apparent on face of record—J. and K. Land Revenue Act (12 of 1996), S. 15, Proviso. 1963 Kash L J 17 : AIR 1963 J & K 54 (54, 55) (Prs 2, 4).

——Art. 226 — Error apparent on face of record — Election Tribunal misinterpreting challan and provisions of law, commits clear error of law apparent on face of record in exercise of its jurisdiction and by virtue of error it fails to exercise jurisdiction vested in it by law. See Constitution of Jammu and Kashmir, S. 103. AIR 1958 J and K 54 (DB).

——Art. 226—State Transport Appellate Authority basing his decision on applications for grant of permit under S. 47, Motor Vehicles Act on considerations extraneous to matter in issue — This amounts to gross error apparent on face of the record—Certiorari will issue. A I R 1959 Mad 492 and A I R 1956 Madh B 231 and AIR 1956 Cal 490, Relied on. 1960 Ker L T 1058 : 1960 Ker L J 1214 : ILR (1960) Ker 1408 : AIR 1961 Ker 77 (83, 84) (Pt D) (Prs 24, 25, 28) (DB).

——Art. 226—Assessee doing business within municipal area and also outside—Basis for assessment of profession tax—Orders of assessment based on income estimated by Commissioner not supportable—Error apparent on face of record — Order quashed. See Taxation and Finance Rules (1114), S. 18 (2). 1961 Ker L T 127.

——Art. 226—Error of law—Judgment of Appellate Authority under Motor Vehicles Act—Interference—Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 13.

The power under Art. 226 is available only on limited grounds. One is error of jurisdiction, i. e., where the authority, whose order is challenged, acts without or in excess of jurisdiction. The next is where the error of law be apparent on the face of the record, and the last is where the order is made in violation of fundamental principles of natural justice.

Held, that the order by the Appellate Tribunal under the Motor Vehicles Act was vitiated not only on the technical grounds of making a judgment that has been reversed, part of the fresh judgment but also on the ground that in disposing of the appeal it had not considered, as it was directed to do afresh by the High Court the entire case of the appellant before it and that case covered both why the permit should not be given to the appellant and why it should be given to the respondent, and the Tribunal in deciding the appeal dealt only with the former, without weighing what part of the earlier order could stand consistently with the conclusions reached in the later. After all a party having the statutory right of appeal was entitled to claim from the authority vested with the appellate jurisdiction a fair and comprehensive adjudication of his grievances and not piece-meal decisions, that were contradictory. Such an approach amounted to substantial error of law which could be corrected in exercise of powers under Art. 226. 1960 Ker L J 1266 : 1960 Ker L T 1243.

——Art. 226 — Error of law — Interference with — Order of Government under Cl. 16 of T. C. Rent Control Order — Disregard of law — Quashing of order — (Houses and Rents — Travancore-Cochin Buildings (Lease and Rent Control) Order (1950), Cl. 16).

The High Court has jurisdiction to interfere with an error of law provided it exhibits a clear ignorance or disregard of law. Thus, where an order of the Government under Cl. 16 of the T. C. Rent Control Order shows that the interpretation placed upon it by the Government is not warranted by law, the High Court has jurisdiction to quash the order. 1958 Ker L T 710 : 1958 Ker L J 994.

——Art. 226 — Error apparent on face of record — Claim for exemption on basis of succession—Evidence of succession not sufficient—Omission to give relief — Not an error apparent on face of record — Income-tax Act (1922), S. 25 (4) and (5) — Travancore Income-tax Act (23 of 1121), S. 35 (4) and (5). (1958) 33 I T R 111 : 1957 Ker L J 212 : 1957 Ker L T 247 : AIR 1957 Ker 25 (27) (Pr 10) (DB).

——Art. 226—Powers of High Court — Industrial dispute—Interim relief—Prima facie case not made out — Error on face of record — Interference—Certiorari. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 15. 1957 Ker L J 301.

——Art. 226—Tax levied under repealed Act — Continuance — Held, illegality was apparent on the face of record and therefore the Court should interfere under Art. 226 See General Clauses Act (1897), S. 6 (c). AIR 1954 Kutch 50.

——Art. 226 — Error apparent on face of record — Regional Transport Authority and Appellate Authority under Motor Vehicles Act (1939) — Functions of.

The Regional Transport Authority and the Appellate Authority under the Motor Vehicles Act are administrative bodies exercising quasi-judicial functions in matters of granting permits. They are statutory bodies and have, in considering the questions of granting permits to act according to the provisions of the Motor Vehicles Act. An error on the face of the proceeding has been recognized as one of the grounds for the issue of a writ of certiorari. If a judicial or quasi judicial tribunal acts on material which is not on record or acts on assumption contrary to the facts on record, its order is liable to be set aside by a writ of certiorari. If the Appellate Authority proceeded on the assumption that the facts on record support them, and there is no foundation for this assumption it must be held that in assuming these facts there was an error apparent on the face of the record. AIR 1952 S C 192, Foll. Madh B L R 1956 Civil 253 : 1956 Madh B L J 855 : AIR 1956 Madh B 231 (233) (Pt A) (Prs 18, 19, 20, 21, 24) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Error of law apparent on face of record.

If the taxing authorities have misconstrued the agreements, on the basis of which they made the assessment, then there is clearly an error of law apparent on the face of the record. It is well settled that the question of the legal effect of words and expressions used in a document is a question of law. (1964) 15 STC 554 : 1964 Jab L J 320 : 1964 MPLJ 890.

—— Art. 226 — Error apparent on face of record — (Municipalities—Madhya Bharat Municipalities Act (1 of 1954), S. 208) - Supersession of Municipality—Interference.

Where the order of supersession of a municipality under S. 208, Madhya Bharat Municipalities Act is found based on charges majority of which are unrelated to the Municipal Council and also shows absence of application of its mind to relevant matters referred to in S. 208 of the Act, it should be held that there is an error apparent on the face of the record and the order ought to fall as a whole. 1958 M P C 655 : 1960 M P L J 559 : AIR 1958 Madh Pra 397 (406) (Pt H) (Prs 79, 81) (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Error apparent on face of record — Absence of employer in conciliation proceedings — Questions still open in petition under Art. 226. (1965-66) 29 F J R 214 : AIR 1966 Mad 87 (88) (Pt B) (Pr 7).

——Art. 226 — Error patent on face of record — Allegation that dispute is individual and backed by union—No finding by Labour Court that case was sponsored by substantial number of workers—Decision of Labour Court is vitiated on that ground—Error is error patent on face of record. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 2 (k). (1965) 1 Lab L J 95 (Mad).

——Art. 226 — Election petition — Representation to Head Clerk is proper — Dismissal by Election Commissioner held error apparent on face of record and quashed. See Panchayats — Madras Panchayats Act (35 of 1958), S. 178 (2) (ii). (1963) 2 Mad L J 381.

——Art. 226—Sea Customs Act (1878), S. 168—Confiscation of boat—Order passed without taking note of mitigating circumstances such as the factors having a bearing on knowledge or intention of offender in contravening provisions of Act — Defect amounts to an error apparent on the face of record and the High Court has jurisdiction to quash the order on that ground. See Sea Customs Act (1878), S. 168. AIR 1962 Mad 368.

——Art. 226 — Labour Court misconstruing provisions as regards retrenchment and holding termination of services of working journalist to be not retrenchment—It amounts to error of law apparent on face of the record—High Court has jurisdiction to quash the order. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 2 (oo). AIR 1962 Mad Mad 327 (DB).

——Art. 226—Error apparent on face of record —Order of quasi-judicial tribunal based on irrelevant, extraneous and illegal matter - Quashing of—Order by State Transport Appellate Tribunal based on illegal order by Government—Quashing of.

Held, on facts that (i) the order passed by the Government was bad because though purporting to be one under S. 43-A (2) of the Motor Vehicles Act it compelled a quasi judicial authority like the Regional Transport Authority to dispose of a case in a particular way i. e, it induced the authority to come to a particular decision in a given case. AIR 1959 S C 694, Rel on.

(ii) The order of the State Transport Appellate Tribunal was vitiated by a manifest error of law in that it not only took into account an irrelevant and extraneous matter in coming to a decision but also something which was neither legal nor valid and was liable to be quashed. W. A. No 35 of 1955 (Mad) and AIR 1920 P C 219, Rel. on. Swami Motor Transport (Private) Ltd. v. Raman & Raman (P.), Ltd, (1961) 2 Mad L J 127 : ILR (1961) Mad 110 : AIR 1961 Mad 180 (184, 185) (Pt C) (Prs 9, 12, 13, 14, 15, 17) (FB).

——Art. 226 — Error apparent on face of record — Orders can be quashed by writs of certiorari.

The question whether an employee fell within the ambit of S. 4 (1) (a) of the Madras Shops and Establishments Act 38 of 1947, is a question of law to be decided on proved facts, or at least a question of mixed fact and law. 1958 A C 14, Rel. on.

Where the Commissioner of Labour approaching the question from an erroneous point of view based on a wrong construction of S. 4 (1) (a) held that a certain employee did not fall within the scope of that provision, there is an error manifest on the face of the Labour Commissioner's order and where as a result of such error, the Addl. Commissioner for Workmen's Compensation entertains an appeal under S. 41 (2) of the Act, the High Court has the power to issue writ or certiorari to quash their orders. AIR 1960 Mad 288. Reversed. 73 Mad L W 410 : (1960) 2 Lab L J 108 : ILR (1960) Mad 573 : 1960 Mad W N 440 : (1960-61) 19 F J R 18 : 1960 M L J (Cr) 824 : (1961) 1 M L J 3 : AIR 1960 Mad 425 (430) (Pt B) (Pr 12) (DB).

[Reversed in AIR 1965 S C 111].

——Art. 226—Executive Orders—Certiorari to quash such orders—Error of law—Effect.

The provisions regarding finality of the decisions of the Executive Officers have always been understood to refer to the proceedings before the officer. Such a provision cannot take away the jurisdictton of the High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution to quash a decision of the District Forest Officer if it is based on a manifest error of law or the decision has the effect of the officer exercising a jurisdiction which is not vested in him.

If the District Forest Officer conducting the sale of the right to quarry minerals, was of the opinion that the probable amount for which the sale would be concluded is likely to exceed Rs. 1000 then he can insist on the bidder producing sales-tax clearance certificate even at the commencement of the auction. The construction placed by the officer on condition 3 (f) of the sale that even after deposit of the earnest money and at the stage when the bid exceeds the sum of Rs. 1,000 the officer can ask for the sales-tax clearance certificate from the bidders is a manifest error and the decision has to be quashed (1960) 1 M L J 434 : 73 Mad L W 191 : I L R (1960) Mad 500.

——Art. 226 — Madras Estates Land (Reduction of Rent) Act (1947), S. 3 — Burden of proof — Order of the Estate Abolition Tribunal upholding the Notification issued by Government under the Act, by wrongly placing onus quashed as it was a fundamental error on face of record—(Evidence Act (1872), Ss. 101, 104). See Tenancy Laws — Madras Estates Land (Reduction of Rent) Act (30 of 1947), S 3. AIR 1954 Mad 104.

——Art. 226—Error apparent on face or record.

Appeal against award of Industrial Tribunal presented on 25-2-1954 — Before that date another worker dismissed without permission of Appellate Tribunal—Tribunal, holding that there was contravention of S 22 since appeal was pending on the date of dismissal—Decision held was bad for error of jurisdiction apparent on face of record, and liable to be set aside (1957) 1 Mad L J (Cr) 729 : 70 Mad L W 946 : (1957) 2 Lab L J 680 : (1957) 2 Mad L J 557 : 1957 Mad W N 694.

——Art 226 — Certiorari, writ of — Error on face of record — Majority of the Estates Abolition Tribunal decided on no real evidence — Error is one apparent on face of record Error can be rectified in proceedings under Art. 226—(Madras Estates Land Act (1 of 1908), S. 3 (2) (d)). AIR 1955 N U C (Mad) 4333.

——Art 226—Award by Industrial Tribunal — Registered lease deed—Interpretation by reference to antecedent negotiation — Error apparent on face of record. See Transfer of Property Act (1882), S. 8. (1954) 2 M L J 447 : 67 Mad L W 669 : AIR 1954 Mad 1045.

——Art. 226 - Writ of certiorari—Error apparent on face of record—(Madras Hereditary Village Offices Act (3 of 1895), S. 14).

Where the Board of Revenue in an appeal against an order in a suit under S. 14 of the Madras Hereditary Village Offices Act wrongly assumed that S. 5 of the Limitation Act applied and therefore the delay in filing the suit could be excused.

Held, that the judgment of the Board was vitiated by an error apparent on the face of the record and as such was liable to be quashed. (1953) 2 Mad L J 644 : 66 Mad L W 700 : A I R 1953 Mad 972 (973) (Pt B) (Prs 2, 3).

——Art. 226—Error apparent on face of record — Manipur Land Revenue and Land Reforms Act (1960), S. 98 (2) — Application for review long after limitation — Fact of delay not noticed by Court — Held that there was error apparent on face of record. See Manipur Land Revenue and Land Reforms Act, S. 98 (2). AIR 1965 Manipur 3.

——Arts. 226 and 311 (2) — Departmental inquiry—Principles of natural justice sacrificed — Error apparent on face of record — Writ petition—Maintainability.

An order in departmental inquiry in which the principles of natural justice have been sacrificed can be called in question by means of a writ petition. If the petitioner was a Jailor or held the substantive post of Jailor at the time when the departmental inquiry was made, the inquiry should have been made by the Inspector General of Prisons and not by the Chief Commissioner, Manipur and this error was apparent on the face of the record. The dismissal without notice on the wrong assumption of a collateral fact is in violation of Art. 311 (2). A I R 1956 Manipur 34 (39) (Pt H) (Pr 17).

——Art. 226—Mysore Police Manual (Vol. 1), R. 181 (1) and (4)—Mysore Police Act (5 of 1908), S. 27—Supdt. of Police dismissing constable from service after due enquiry—In appeal, Dy. Commissioner setting aside order of dismissal — several months after, Inspector General of Police, purporting to act under R. 181 calling up records of case of constable and after giving him opportunity to make his submissions, setting aside order of Dy. Commissioner and restoring that of Supdt. of Police — I. G. P. neither saying that findings of Dy. Commissioner were unsupported by evidence nor giving any reason for his preference of prosecution evidence to that of defence — I. G. P. appearing to be of view that constable had to prove that he was not guilty and prosecution need not prove that constable was guilty — Held, I. G. P. had lost sight of even elementary principles of jurisprudence in assessing merits of case — That apart neither R. 181 (1) authorised I G. P. to revise order of Dy. Commissioner, who was not his subordinate, nor R. 181 (4) empowered him to reverse order of acquittal into order of conviction—Order of I. G. P. not only suffered from error of law apparent on face of record but same was also without jurisdiction. (1965) 2 Mys L J 319 : (1966) 2 Lab L J 493 (DB).

——Art 226 — Mysore Land Revenue Code (4 of 1888), Ss. 63 (1) and 63 (2) — P constructing building without permission under S. 63 (2) — Dy. Commissioner passing order of eviction of P on ground that building was not farm house and construction was illegal without prior permission under S 63 (2) — Appeal — Divisional Commissioner dismissing appeal on irrelevant grounds—Appeal — Revenue Appellate Tribunal dismissing appeal on ground that (i) P had made no application for permission under S. 63 (2) as contended (ii) building was not farm house and (iii) building should not have been constructed, as land under it was required for public purpose — Petition under Art. 227 challenging legality of order of R. T. A — Held though findings of R. T. A. contained in (i) and (ii) were conclusive, being findings of fact, that would not dispose of case until it was found whether case of P fell under S. 63 (1)—S. 63 (2) was exception to S. 63 (1) and could be invoked only when S. 63 (1) was not applicable — Burden of proving that construction was illegal was on him who asserted it – S. 63 (1) contemplated not only farm house but also dwelling house for agriculturist and P's case fell in S. 63 (1) as there was prima facie ground to believe that he was agriculturist and building was put up as dwelling house for him — R. T. A was not required to arrive at finding mentioned in (iii) as land was neither notified under S. 4, Land Acquisition Act (1894) nor P was asked to remove construction on that ground — Order of Divl. Commissioner was clear proof of dangers inherent in entrusting executive officers with quasi-judicial powers — Dy. Commissioner had also not correctly understood scope of S. 63 (1) — All three orders therefore suffered from errors of law apparent on face of record and must be quashed. (1965) 2 Mys L J 321 : (1965) 4 Law Rep 86 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Error apparent on the face of record — Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S 47—Grant of permit on basis of previous proceedings — No fresh consideration of necessity of additional permits — Order granting permits contains an error apparent on the face of the record. See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 47. AIR 1964 Mys 288 (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari — Error apparent on face of record — Motor Vehicles Act 1939) S. 57 (2) — Application under — Death of applicant — Applicant's wife as legal representative not allowed to prosecute application — There is a clear mistake on the face of the record attributable to an error of law—Refusal of permit on that basis justifies exercise of jurisdiction under Art. 226 1963 Mys L J (Sup) 180 : A I R 1963 Mys 278 (287, 288, 289, 290) (Pt D) (Prs 29, 30) (DB).

——Art. 226—Writ of certiorari—Mistake apparent on face of the record.

Apart from questions of jurisdiction, a writ of certiorari can also be issued where a Tribunal has committed mistakes apparent on the face of the record or committed flagrant violation of law. AIR 1950 S C 222 ; AIR 1951 S C 115 ; AIR 1952 S C 192 ; AIR 1953 S C 58 and AIR 1953 Mys 8, Rel. on.

The Election Tribunal declared the election of the petitioner to be void on the ground that there was an implied contract for the supply of goods between the petitioner and the Government of Mysore at the time when he filed his nomination paper, which disqualified him for membership to the Mysore Legislative Assembly under S. 7 (d), Representation of the People Act. The petitioner applied under Art. 226 for the issue of a writ of certiorari for quashing the proceedings of the Election Tribunal. The admitted facts before the Tribunal were that there was no subsisting contract between the petitioner and the Government of Mysore at the time of filing his nomination paper and that the alleged contract had already come to an end. The Tribunal however considered the question of the existence of an implied contract not alleged in the pleadings and not specifically put into issue and then gave a finding which was dead against the admitted facts The Tribunal inferred an implied contract from the mere fact that the firm of which the petitioner was a partner had supplied certain goods to the Government of Mysore after the filing of the nomination paper.

Held that the order of the Election Tribunal based on the finding that there was an implied contract, was both an error apparent on the face of the record and a flagrant error of law. The consideration of allegations not definitely pleaded and not specifically put into issue and a finding thereon was besides an excessive exercise of jurisdiction. The order of the Election Tribunal had resulted in grave and manifest injustice to the petitioner and therefore the proceedings should be quashed. 34 Mys L J 80 : ILR (1954) Mys 33 : AIR 1954 Mys 111 (113, 114) (Pt B) (Prs 12, 16, 17) (DB).

——Art. 226—Error on face of record.

For a tribunal to proceed on the view that adverse possession asserted by a licensee commenced prior to the death of the licensor is to commit a palpable error of law apparent on the face of the record within the meaning of the decision in AIR 1954 S C 440, Foll. 1956 Nag L J 73 : ILR (1955) Nag 842 : AIR 1956 Nag 11 (12, 15, 16) (Pt D) (Prs 6, 24, 41) (DB).

——Art 226—Error apparent—Writ of certiorari can be issued not only in case of illegal exercise of jurisdiction but also to correct error of law apparent on the record—Where the tribunal completely overlooks the explanation to a provision of law, it is an error on the face of the record. ('63) 29 Cut L T 322.

——Art. 226 — Error on face of record — Industrial Tribunal—Non-compliance with S 25-G, Industrial Disputes Act — (Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 25-G).

One of the grounds on which the jurisdiction of the High Court on writ petitions may be invoked is an error of law apparent on the face of record. AIR 1958 S C 398, Foll.

Where an Industrial Tribunal does not proceed in accordance with the essential requirements, of the law as contained in S. 25-G of the Industrial Disputes Act which it is meant to administer and his conclusions are on the face of the record contrary to his findings on facts, his finding with regard to the procedure for retrenchment is palpably wrong on the face of the record and his award is liable to be set aside. ILR (1960) Cut 424 : AIR 1960 Orissa 205 (215, 216) (Pt D) (Prs 22, 23) (DB).

——Art. 226—Error on face of record—Order under S. 3, Orissa Estates Abolition Act (1 of 1952)—On face of record or on admitted facts, property not falling within definition of estate—High Court can quash order—(Tenancy Laws—Orissa Estates Abolition Act (I of 1952), S 3). ILR (1956) Cut 335 : 22 Cut L T 444 : AIR 1956 Orissa 214 (215) (Pt C) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 227 — Error apparent on face of record.

Where the Board of Revenue in revision set aside the order passed by the Deputy Commissioner prior to the remand of the case by Excise Commissioner:

Held, that the decision of the Board of Revenue was patently erroneous and illegal inasmuch as it overlooked the fact that the order of Deputy Commissioner passed before the remand had already been set aside and his subsequent order though identical in effect with the earlier order was a fresh order and the Board ought to have considered the validity of this order. 1961 Pat L R 22 : 1961 B L J R 550.

——Art. 226 — 'Error apparent on face of record' — Issue of writ — (Panchayats — Bihar Panchayat Raj Act (7 of 1948), S. 56).

Where the Full Bench of a Gram Panchayat permitted one of the accused himself, who was a panch, to sit on the Full Bench while hearing an appeal from his own conviction :

Held, that it was a flagrant breach of law, e. g., S. 56, Bihar Panchayat Raj Act. The error committed by the Full Bench of the Gram Panchayat was an error apparent on the face of the record and had to be corrected. AIR 1955 S C 233, Foll. 1958 Cri L J 69 : AIR 1958 Pat 7 (7, 8) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari, writ of—Error apparent on face of record—Writ will issue.

It is now well settled that a writ of certiorari will issue in respect of an error of law which is apparent on the face of the record.

Hence, where the order of the Commissioner dismissing landlord's application under S. 11 (3), Bihar Act (3 of 1947) is based on an erroneous finding of fact which is apparent on the face of the record and is also based on a manifestly wrong interpretation of the expression "his own occupation" in S. 11 (3) (a), the order will be quashed by a writ of certiorari. AIR 1955 S C 233; (1951) 1 K B 711; (1952) 1 K B 338, Rel. on. 1955 B L J R 654 : ILR 34 Pat 876 : AIR 1955 Pat 496 (498, 499) (Pt B) (Prs 7, 10, 11) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Writ of certiorari—Powers of High Court.

Where the Commissioner committed a patent error of law in misconstruing the Keraynama executed by one B in favour of the mortgagee and as a result of this manifest error, the Commissioner reached the finding that there was relationship of landlord and tenant between the parties and he had jurisdiction to pass an order of eviction against the mortgagees a writ in the nature of certiorari should be issued quashing the order of the Commissioner. AIR 1951 Pat 529, Distinguished. 1955 B L J R 55 : AIR 1955 Pat 357 (359, 360) (Pt A) (Prs 11, 13) (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Error apparent on face of record—Want of jurisdiction—(Tenancy Laws—Bihar Privileged Persons Homestead Tenancy Act (4 of 1948), Ss. 6 (1) and 8).

Application under S. 6 (1) of Bihar Act (4 of 1948) for assessment of fair rent in respect of land pertaining to plots Nos. 1, 2 and 3 — Collector finding plot No. 1 not homestead of applicants and, therefore, outside scope of Act—Applicants being found in possession of plots Nos. 2 and 3 as their homestead, order assessing fair rent in respect of these two plots passed — Meanwhile landlord claiming to be in possession of plot No. 1 obtaining confirmation of possession and also recovery of plots 2 and 3 through decree of civil Court in title suit—Proceedings by applicants under the Act for being restored to possession over the three plots—Order of Collector directing landlord to put applicants in possession of these three plots:

Held, that Collector had committed error apparent on face of record because in passing the order for restoration he had assumed that in passing the previous order for assessment, plot No. 1 was treated as homestead of the applicants. Order for restoration in respect of this plot was, therefore, without jurisdiction and should be quashed by writ in the nature of certiorari. AIR 1954 Pat 334 (336) (Pt B) (Prs 8, 9) (DB).

——Art. 226—Sale of evacuee property confirmed by Custodian — Effect of Ss. 40 and 41 of Act 31 of 1950 as amended in 1953 — Retrospectivity of Act 31 of 1950—Held, High Court could grant a writ of certiorari for quashing the order of the Custodian as he had committed a serious error of law which was apparent on the face of record. See Administration of Evacuee Property Ordinance (27 of 1949), S. 38 (1). AIR 1954 Pat 238 (DB).

——Art. 226—Writ petition—Error apparent on face of record—Election to Panchayat Samiti—Returning Officer not permitting correction of clerical error in nomination paper though allowed by rules—Order quashed — Punjab Panchayat Samitis Primary Members (Election), Rules, R. 9(1), Proviso (a). 67 Pun L R 946: AIR 1966 Punj 33 (34) (Pr 4).

——Arts. 226 and 14—Displaced Persons (Compensation and Rehabilitation) Rules (1955) (as amended in 1960), Rr. 25, 34 B and 34 C — Proceedings under R. 34-B are quasi-judicial—Right of displaced person to acquire by allotment land to which Chapter V-A applies—Necessity to give opportunity to show cause against valuation — Opportunity not given — Orders are vitiated by errors apparent on their face—Natural justice — Civil Writ No. 465-D of 1957, dated 16th December, 1958 (Punj.) and Civil Writ No. 313-D of 1959, dated 28th December, 1960 (Punj.) and Civil Writ No. 118 of 1960, dated 2nd November, 1964 (Punj.), Overruled; Civil Writ No. 685 of 1960 dated 25th April, 1961 (Punj.), Foll. 1965 Cur L J 655 : 67 Punj L R 1072 : A I R 1965 Punj 484 (485, 489, 490) (Prs 1, 20, 21, 22, 26) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Error apparent on the face of the record—Election petition—Refusal of votes alleged—'Materially affected the result of the election'—Finding as to—Basis of — Finding not stating how refusal to vote affected the result — Cannot be sustained — There is error apparent on the face of the record—Finding set aside under powers conferred by Art. 226 of the Constitution. See Panchayats—Punjab Gram Panchayat Act (1953), S. 13-O(1)(d). 1965 Cur L J 772 : 67 Pun L R 1211.

——Art. 32—Retrospective operation of S. 15(2) of Delhi Land Reforms Act (1954) (as amended)—Collector dismissing appeal in view of S. 15(2) — Revision after coming into force of amendment—Revision Court has power under S. 187 to make such order as it thought fit, or power to review any order made by it—Glaring mistake of law patent on record should be rectified. See Tenancy Laws — Delhi Land Reforms Act (1954), S. 15(2) (as amended by Act 4 of 1959). ('65) 67 Punj L R 612

——Art. 226 — Minimum Wages Act (11 of 1948), Ss. 20, 21 and 2(i) — "Employee" does not include an ex employee — Finding of the Authority under the Act that the application by ex-employees could be maintained under Ss. 20 and 21 is vitiated by an error of law apparent on face of record — Hence must be set aside—Words and Phrases — "Employee". (1965-66) 28 F J R 472 : (1966) 1 Lab L J 674 : I L R (1965) 2 Punj 837 (DB).

——Art. 226 —Punjab Minimum Wages Rules (1950), Rr. 24(1) and 25—Appointed authority allowing overtime charges to employees of Municipal Committee on basis of calculating normal working hours at 8 hours in a day — Held, there is an error of law apparent on face of record and hence order must be set aside — Normal working day is of 9 hours under R. 24(1) and not of 8 hours as the case is covered under R. 25(2)—Rule 25(1) has no application as the Committee is not governed by provisions of Factories Act though its employees are in a schedule I employment. (1965-66) 28 F J R 472 : (1966) 1 Lab L J 674 : ILR (1965) 2 Punj 837 (DB).

——Art. 226 Error of law apparent on face of record — East Punjab Holdings (Consolidation and Prevention of Fragmentation) Act (50 of 1948), Ss. 21 and 42 — Scheme for consolidation providing that any correction of khasra girdawari thereafter would not affect major portion of a right holder — Correction of khasra girdwari by collusion after repartition —Application under S. 42—Order allowing changes on basis of such correction being in contravention of scheme has to be quashed as being erroneous in law and resulting in prejudice. 1965 Cur L J 807 : 68 Pun L R 124.

——Art. 226 — Application for exchange of land already allotted—No limitation—Application rejected as time barred—Error apparent on face of record. See Displaced Persons (Compensation and Rehabilitation) Act (1954), S. 19. 1965 Cur L J 817 (Punj) (DB).

—Art. 226—Error apparent on the face of record—Writ challenging election petition accepted by Prescribed Authority under Gram Panchayat Act—Allegation of impersonation and consequent polling of illegal votes in favour of returned candidate — Evidence—Burden of proof — Burden of proving impersonation on person alleging the same — Prescribed authority adopting incorrect approach in reviewing evidence — There is an error apparent on face of record—Consequently finding arrived at on such illegal approach cannot be sustained. 1965 Cur L J 815 (Punj).

—Art. 226—Error patent on record—Articles capable of being used as component parts of manure mills and rice mills — Confiscation — There is error patent on record — (Sea Customs Act (1878), S. 19—Imports and Exports Act (1947), S. 3).

Where articles are capable of being used as component parts of manure mills as well as rice mills, if the articles can be used as component parts of manure mills not of the banned type, they can be legitimately imported on the basis of the import licence because it is nowhere laid down that the imported articles should only be capable of being used in the manure mills and not in any other machinery such as rice mills. Where such articles are confiscated, there is an error patent on the record. 1965 Pun L R (Supp) 132.

—Art. 226—Displaced Persons (Compensation and Rehabilitation) Act (1954), Ss. 19 and 40 — Displaced Persons (Compensation and Rehabilitation) Rules, 1955, R. 102 (d)—Cancellation of erroneous allotment—Power of Managing Officer and Chief Settlement Commissioner—Failure to exercise such power—Constitutes error, apparent on face of record. See Displaced Persons (Compensation and Rehabilitation) Act (1954), S. 19. 65 Pun L R 59.

—Art. 226 - Error of law on face of record—Matter involving correct interpretation of R. 7 (g) of Punjab Municipal Election Rules, 1952—Rule not capable of two interpretations—Error of law being apparent on face of record, High Court should interfere. I L R (1962) 1 Punj 176.

—Art. 226 — Error apparent on face of record—Industrial disputes—Bonus—Calculation of available surplus for distribution of bonus — Full Bench formula—Duty of Labour Court to apply — Partnership concern — Deduction on account of income-tax must be made irrespective of whether income tax is actually payable or not — Award not indicating any deduction—There is error apparent on face of record. (1962-63) 22 F J R 179 (Punj).

—Art. 226—Error of law on the face of the record — Board of Trustees of a newspaper passing resolution appointing committee for enquiry into conduct of employee, to enable them to take disciplinary action against him — Enquiry committee framing charges — —Employee putting in written statements contesting all charges—No objection taken as to the jurisdiction of the committee to enquire on any of the charges, on ground that they were beyond the scope of the resolution of the Trustees—Report submitted to Trustees—Trustees adopting report and terminating services of the employee—Industrial dispute raised — Award of Industrial Tribunal in favour of employee — Writ petition by Board of Trustees—Employee cannot raise the contention that the Enquiry Committee appointed by Board of Trustees acted beyond the scope of resolution appointing it by enquiring into some of the charges — Industrial Tribunal held committed serious mistake of law in grossly misreading the resolution of the Board of Trustees and holding that the Enquiry Committee had no power to enquire into certain charges. I L R (1961) 2 Punj 704 : (1962) 1 Lab L J 526 : 1961 Cur L J 22 : (1961-62) 21 F J R 93 : AIR 1961 Punj 515 (517, 518) (Pt A) (Pr 6).

—Art. 226 — Error apparent on face of record—East Punjab Holdings (Consolidation and Prevention of Fragmentation) Act (50 of 1948), Ss. 42 and 21).

The respondent was given under the scheme a larger area of inferior land in lieu of his land of superior quality. The matter having come before the Director of Consolidation of Holdings, the parties including the petitioners were heard and the Director in his order under S. 42 stated that the respondent could not have agreed willingly to accept area of inferior quality.

Held, (i) that the order of the Director was of a quasi-judicial nature and could be challenged by certiorari. AIR 1958 Punj 302, Expl. and Disting.

(ii) that the finding that the respondent had not agreed willingly to accept the area of inferior quality was an error apparent on the face of the record and that the order will be quashed. I L R (1958) Punj 1026 : AIR 1958 Punj 305 (307, 308, 309) (Prs 4, 8, 11, 13, 14).

—Art. 226 — Error apparent on face of record—Application by company under S. 33, Industrial Disputes Act — Application dismissed on ground that Standing Orders were not binding on workman—(Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 33)—(Industrial Employment (Standing Orders) Act (1946), S 5).

Where a petition of a company under S 33 of the Industrial Disputes Act is dismissed on the ground that the Standing Orders are not binding on the workman concerned as he was employed by the company before the Standing Orders came into force, the decision of the Tribunal goes to the root of the validity of all authenticated Standing Orders so far as their applicability to workmen in employment before the date of authentication is concerned. The matter affects the basic principles underlying the Act and it is an error apparent on the face of it. The High Court will, therefore, exercise its discretion under Art. 226 in favour of the company and quash the order of the Tribunal. (1957-58) 13 F J R 429 : (1958) 2 Lab L J 243 (Punj).

—Art. 226 — Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950) S. 27—Scope of power under — Power if abridged by executive instructions—Defiance of such instructions — Error apparent on face of record—Interference by High Court See Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950), S. 27. AIR 1957 Punj 206.

—Art. 226—Error of law — Permanent lease jointly in favour of two sons — One of them surrendering in favour of father and migrating to Pakistan — Father and the other son not migrating — Rights under surrender — Surrendered share taken over as evacuee property—Error apparent on face of record. See T. P. Act (1882), S. 11. I L R (1957) Punj 1146 : AIR 1957 Punj 197.

—Art. 226 — Error on face of record — Additional Settlement Commissioner wrongly rejecting claim on ground that it was not made — Order liable to be quashed (Displaced Persons (Claims) Supplementary Ordinance (1954), S. 51). 59 Punj L R 143 : AIR 1957 Punj 24 (25) (Pt A) (Pr 5).

—Art. 226—Certiorari—Error apparent on face of record — Collector's order under Treasure-trove Act—(Treasure-trove Act (1878), Ss. 11, 12 and 15).

Sections 11 and 12 come into operation only when the property is declared ownerless under S. 9. Section 15 becomes operative only when a claimant other than the finder files a suit in a civil Court and obtains a decision Where no claimant has obtained a decision from a civil Court it must be held that the order of the Collector holding that the treasure recovered belonged to a certain person or that it was recovered from the land belonging to that person is vitiated by errors apparent on the face of the record. AIR 1956 Punj 235 (237) (Pt B) (Pr 6).

[Reversed on another point in AIR 1960 Punj 82 (DB).]

——Art. 226 — Purchaser of property becoming evacuee—Suit challenging validity of sale—Civil Court's jurisdiction to entertain suit — Compromise decree — Repudiation of — Custodian holding decree to be nullity — Error apparent on face of order — Grant of certiorari. See Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950), S. 46. A I R 1956 Punj 163.

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Error apparent on face of record — First appellate Court entertaining appeal though barred by limitation — Second appellate Court not entertaining plea of limitation on ground that plea was not raised in first appeal — There is error on face of record and certiorari will issue. 1964 Raj L W 517: ILR (1964) 14 Raj 990: AIR 1965 Raj 38 (40) (Pt B) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 226 –Court giving incorrect interpretation to O. 2, R. 2, Civil P. C. and dismissing suit on ground that it was barred under that rule — Error apparent on face of record—Held, that Court failed to exercise jurisdiction in not deciding suit on merits and writ application could be allowed. 1964 Raj L W 55 : ILR (1964) 14 Raj 208 : A I R 1964 Raj 114 (118) (Pt D) (Pr 14) (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari — Error apparent on face of record — Quasi judicial proceedings — Proceedings under S. 32 of Rajasthan Act 6 of 1952 for determination of compensation payable to expropriated Jagirdar — Jagir Commissioner, in deciding compensation claims has to act in quasi judicial manner—Neither Evidence Act nor Civil P. C. applies — Board of Revenue disallowing claim by erroneously holding that it was not proved according to S. 34 of Evidence Act which was attracted — Certiorari can issue — Rajasthan Land Reforms and Resumption of Jagirs Act (6 of 1952), Ss. 39 and 32. A I R 1957 Raj 39 and A I R 1960 Raj 25, Rel. on. Evidence Act (1872), Ss. 1, 34 and 114. ILR (1964) 14 Raj 90 : 1964 Raj L W 33.

——Art. 226 — Error on face of record — Revenue Board relying on previous Full Bench decision of Board even though it was quashed by High Court, as being without jurisdiction — It is error on face of record. Prem Ballabh Shebait v. Board of Revenue, Rajasthan, 1961 Raj L W 178 : ILR (1961) 10 Raj 1808 : AIR 1961 Raj 85 (87) (Pt A) (Pr 7) (FB).

——Art. 226 — Error apparent on face of record — Application for permit under Motor Vehicles Act — Regional Transport Authority inviting fresh applications—Order is not one of refusal to grant permit—No appeal lies—Appellate Authority entertaining appeal acts without jurisdiction — There is error patent on the very face of the record –Interference by certiorari is called for. See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 64 (a). AIR 1960 Raj 105 (DB).

——Art 226–Error on the face of the record—S. 13, Rajasthan Panchayat Act prescribing standard of literacy for candidates to Sarpanchship is not vague —Simple qualification of reading and writing Hindi is intended—Hindi includes dialects also — Standard of literacy applied higher than prescribed — It is an error on face of record – Certiorari justified. See Panchayats — Rajasthan Panchayat Act (21 of 1953), S. 13 (1). ILR (1960) 10 Raj 1600.

——Art. 226 –Error on face of record—Stay-in-strike without notice — Industrial Tribunal not considering this aspect in deciding justifiability of strike — Error apparent on face of record — Interference by High Court under Art. 226. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 22. A I R 1958 Raj 202 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Error of law apparent on face of record—Director of Local Bodies not considering whether notice has been served under S. 164 (1) (a), Rajasthan Town Municipalities Act — Tender of notice –Effect — (Municipalities–Rajasthan Town Municipalities Act (23 of 1951), Ss. 164 (1) (a), (d) and 12 (5)).

Where, the Director of Local Bodies, acting under S. 12 (5) holds that the peon did not follow the procedure under S 164 (1) (d) without considering whether the notice had been served as provided by S. 164 (1) (a), he commits an error of law which is apparent on the face of the record. 1957 Raj L W 500 : ILR (1957) 7 Raj 993 : AIR 1958 Raj 91 (92) (Pt B) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 226 –Panchayat—Rajasthan Panchayat Elections Rules (1954) R. 20—Setting aside of election — Grounds for—Power of Collector — Collector setting setting aside elections on ground that they were not held in a state of peacefulness—Reason held did not come under R. 20, namely misconduct, corrupt practice or such irregularity as influenced the result of election — Error was of law patent on record. See Panchayats — Rajasthan Panchayat Elections Rules (1954), R. 20. A I R 1958 Raj 84.

——Art. 226 — Error apparent on face of record — There is nothing in S. 7, Rajasthan Buildings (Lease and Rent Control) Ordinance, 1948, which exonerates the landlord from giving notice, before applying under S. 7 (2) to Controller for eviction of tenant— When the District Magistrate and the Rent Controller held that no notice was necessary as provided in the contract or in any law for the time being in force, they commit an error of law apparent on the face of the record See Houses and Rents — United States of Rajasthan Buildings (Lease and Rent Control) Ordinance (22 of 1948), S. 7. ILR (1958) 8 Raj 137.

——Art 226 — Error on face of record — Revenue Board dismissing suit relying on previous rulings and without interpreting provisions of law –(Tenancy Laws — Rajasthan Revenue Courts (Procedure and Jurisdiction) Act (1 of 1951), Sch. I, Group B, Items 10 and 12.

Where the Board of Revenue has committed an error in construing Items Nos. 10 and 12, Group B of Schedule I of the Rajasthan Revenue Courts (Procedure and Jurisdiction) Act by relying on its previous decisions and on examining those decisions it turns out that they instead of being any authority for the proposition laid down by the Board in the case as a matter of fact, supported the petitioner, the error is one apparent on the face of the record : A I R 1955 S C 233, Foll. 1958 Raj L W 590

——Art. 226 — Error apparent on the face of the record—Interference by High Court under Art. 226 (Tenancy Laws — Rajasthan (Protection of Tenants) Ordinance (9 of 1949), S. 7) – Wrong application under S. 7 of Rajasthan (Protection of Tenants) Ordinance 1949 — High Court will interfere. AIR 1955 N U C (Raj) 1627.

——Art. 226 — Order dismissing appeal as incompetent – Order of Custodian-General incorrect owing to application of a provision of law not applicable — Error apparent on face of the record — Powers of High Court to interfere.

The petitioner applied under Art. 226 against the order dismissing his appeal as not maintainable and barred by time. Junagadh Administration of Evacuee Property Act (12 of 1948) was in force at the time of the purchase by the petitioner—Subsequently after the handing over of powers to Central Government, Saurashtra Ordinance 7 of 1948 was enforced which was later amended making ineffectual a transaction made after 20-1-1949 if unconfirmed by Custodian. This was the law applicable to the former territory of Junagadh. The Custodian-General applied the provisions of 1948 Ordinance and held the sale of 1948 was not confirmed within 2 months and the application under 1949 Ordinance was barred.

Held: There is more than an error of law in the decision of the Custodian-General. If the order is allowed to stand the petitioner will be wrongfully deprived of his property under Ordinance 8 of 1948 which was inapplicable and which did not render the transaction ineffective. The propriety of the order is not in question but the correcting of an apparent error on the face of record which made him exceed his jurisdiction.

The jurisdiction of the High Court is not affected by S. 46 of the 1950 Act (31 of 1950) barring the jurisdiction of Courts where the Custodian-General applied a law which did not apply to the transaction.

He should be directed to rehear the appeal. A I R 1952 Sau 123 (123, 124) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226 - Interference — Grounds — Error apparent on the face of the record—(Houses and Rents—Travancore-Cochin Buildings (Lease and Rent Control) Order (1950).

Where eviction of tenant is sought on the sole ground of default in payment of rent and Rent Controller had found on evidence that the tenant tendered the rent but the landlord refused it and that point was decisive but the Appellate authority did not give a finding on the question whether there was tender and refusal the absence of finding on the question so crucial is a manifest error apparent on the face of the proceedings. The appellate order is liable to be quashed. 1955 Ker L T 392 : I L R (1955) Trav-Co 572 : A I R 1957 Trav-Co 177 (179) (Ft A) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Certriorari — Error apparent on the face of the record—(Municipalities—Cochin Municipal Act (18 of 1113), S. 115 — Rules under, R. 18 (1) (c).)

Sub-cl. (a) of sub-r. (1) of R. 18 refers to the assessment to income-tax under S. 10, Cochin Income-tax Act as the basis for levying tax on professions in a case to which sub-r. (1) applies. In the case of a resident assessee tax is leviable on his income not merely in respect of the business transacted by him within a municipality or within anywhere in the State but also in respect of business transacted outside in so far as the income proportionate to the quantum of the contribution to the business made within the State That is to say business transacted outside the State by a resident assessee is not altogether and in all cases immune from assessment to income-tax though the Cochin Income-tax Act has no extra-territorial operation.

It follows that if the assessee does business within a municipality as also outside a municipality whether within or without the limits of the State the first sub-rule of R. 18 will not apply. Sub-r. (2) will apply to cases where the Company or person transacts business partly inside the municipality and partly outside such area, whether the area outside be within or without the limits of the State.

Where the assessee company does business within the area of the Ernakulam Municipality as also in other places outside the State though they have no business in any other place in the State outside the area of the Ernakulam Municipality the Company's case comes within the application of sub r. (2) of R 18 and the proper basis of assessment to professional tax is the percentage of the turnover as prescribed by the Government in cl. (b) of sub-r. (1). The only basis of the assessment of the company to professional tax being the percentage of their turnover as prescribed by the Government the orders of assessment to professional tax based on the income estimated by the Commissioner cannot be supported. This being an error apparent on the face of the record and the order made being speaking order admits of judicial review and is liable to be quashed in certiorari. A I R 1955 S C 233, Foll. A I R 1955 Trav-Co 121 (124) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226— Error apparent on record — Mistake patent on face of labour award—Certiorari—Issue of mandamus.

Where the Industrial Tribunal applies model standing orders in the case of dismissal of employees in an establishment engaging less than 100 workers and the case is not approached from a correct angle, it is a case where there is an obvious mistake patent on the face of the record and it is well established that in such a case a writ of certiorari can issue to quash the order, and mandamus can issue directing the Court to proceed according to law, and make a further investigation. A I R 1959 Tripura 8 (10, 11) (Pt E) (Pr 13).

——Art. 226 — Land not in personal cultivation of Jagirdar—Order of allotment—Error of law apparent on face of it—Writ of certiorari—Jurisdiction to issue —See Tenancy Laws—Vindhya Pradesh Abolition of Jagirs and Land Reforms Act (11 of 1952), S. 22. AIR 1956 Vin Pra 12.

——Art. 226—Election petition—Amendment—Setting aside of election — Decision erronenous on face of it. See Representation of the People Act (1951), S. 83 (3). AIR 1954 Vin Pra 44.

139 (i). No error apparent on face of record —Illustrative cases.

● ——Art. 226 —Error apparent on face of record — What is—No general test can be laid down.

It is inexpedient to lay down any general test to determine which errors of law can be described as errors apparent on face of record. AIR 1964 S C 477, Rel. on. Where the Labour Commissioner after enumerating the proper tests applied them after considering the entire material on record and came to his conclusion about status of the appellant, it cannot be said that his order is vitiated by an error apparent on face of record. A I R 1960 Mad 425, Reversed. T. Prem Sagar v. M/s. Standard Vacuum Oil Co. Madras, (1964) 5 S C R 1030 : (1964) 1 Lab L J 47 : (1964-65) 26 F J R 1 : (1964) 8 Fac L R 247 : A I R 1965 S C 111 (113) (Pt B) (Pr 5).

● ——Art. 226—Certiorari — Error apparent on face of record — Error in appreciation of documentary evidence or in drawing inferences—Effect of.

A finding based on no evidence is an error of law apparent on record but errors in appreciation of documentary evidence or errors in drawing inferences cannot be said to be errors of law, and can be corrected only by a Court sitting as a Court of appeal and not under Art. 226.

Where the Deputy Custodian-General took into account all the reports, proposals and orders appearing on the record which he was entitled to do and came to the conclusion that an order of cancellation of allotment must have been passed on a certain date though such order did not appear on the record it could not be held that this conclusion of fact was based on no evidence or on no relevant evidence. There was no error of law apparent on the face of the record which would justify interference by the High Court under Art. 226. A I R 1958 S C 398 and AIR 1955 S C 233, Rel. on. Kaushalya Devi v. Bachittar Singh, A I R 1960 S C 1168 (1171, 1172) (Pr 8).

■——Art. 226—Error on face of record — Regional Transfer Authority granting permit to appellant applying G. O. issued under S. 43-A, Motor Vehicles Act (Madras Amendment) — On appeal Central Road Traffic Board setting aside order and granting permit to respondent following another order issued under same section — Held that orders made and directions issued under S. 43-A covered only administrative field and direction issued thereunder was not law regulating rights of parties—Nature of order discussed —Order held did not disclose error on face of record. See Motor Vehicles Act (1939) :(As Amended by Motor Vehicles (Madras Amendment) Act (20 of 1948), S. 43-A. (1959) 2 Andh W R 236 ; (1959) 2 M L J (S C) 236 : 1959 M L J (Cr) 844 : 1959 S C J 1150 : AIR 1959 S C 694.

■——Art. 226 — Deputy Custodian General in revision, cancelling allotment — No error on face of record — No certiorari. See Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950), S. 27. AIR 1957 S C 804.

■ ——Art. 226—Certiorari—Decision of election tribunal — Error apparent on face of record — [Representation of People Act (1951), S. 100 (2) (c)].

A petition for declaring the election of the successful candidate void and holding the petitioner elected was presented and the allegation made was that but for the corrupt practices of the successful candidate the petitioner would have secured the majority votes, the difference between him and the successful candidate being only thirty four votes. He further alleged that the irregularity in commencing polling at one of the centres half an hour later than the due time had materially affected ths results because many people who had come at the proper time and out of whom many would probably have voted for the petitioner had returned without voting. There was evidence to show that some voters went away without voting because the polling did not commence at the scheduled time but there was no positive evidence as to the number of persons who had gone away without voting and it was also not possible to have any evidence as to how many of such persons would have voted for the petitioner. Tne Tribunal declared the petitioner elected on the specific finding that but for the corrupt practices of the successful candidate the petitioner would have got the majority of votes. It however discussed the matter relating to the date of commencement of polling only in connection with the question as to whether there was violation of any statutory rule or order in the holding of election which would entitle it to declare the election of the successful candidate void under S. 100 (2) (c) of the Act.

Held, that if the Tribunal had on the basis of the facts relating to late commencement of polling alone declared the petitioner to be the duly elected candidate holding that he could have secured more votes than the successful candidate obviously that would have been an error apparent on the face of the record, as such conclusion would rest merely on a surmise and nothing else. But as the Tribunal declared the petitioner to be duly elected upon the specific finding that, but for the corrupt practices of the successful candidate the petitioner would have got majority of the votes it cannot be said that by the discussion of the question relating to late commencement there was any error apparent on the face of the record which would entitle the High Court to interefere by a writ of certiorari. The tribunal was entitled to consider the question whether there was any violation of the statutory rules and orders which would entitle it to declare the election of the successful candidate void under S. 100 (2) (c) of the Representation of People Act, 1951 and in doing so to take into consideration the circumstances and probabilities of the case. Basappa v. T. Nagappa, 1955 S C R 250 ; 1954 S C J 695 ; I L R (1954) Mys 235 : 1954 S C A 620 : 67 Mad L W 613 ; A I R 1954 S C 440 (446) (Pt E) (Pr 21).

■——Art. 226—Certiorari, writ of — Error apparent on face of record—Two views possible in interpreting panchayat election law—Election Tribunal adopting one view—Order of authority in question cannot be said to suffer from error apparent on face of record, to warrant interference under Art. 226. Per N. U. Beg J., (in the dissenting judgment) AIR 1955 S C 233 and AIR 1960 S C 137 and AIR 1960 S C 1168 and A I R 1957 S C 804, Rel. on. Budha Pitai v. Sub-Divisional Officer Malikabad, Lucknow, 1965 All L J 123 : I L R (1965) 1 All 662 : 1965 (2) Cri L J 306 : A I R 1965 All 382 (398) (Pt C) (Pr 71) (FB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari — Eviction suit by landlord with permission from District Magistrate pending—Tenant gratuitously informing Rent Control Authority of its intention to vacate accommodation in near future and suggesting allotment be made in favour of its nominee—Without hearing landlord, Authority passing allotment order under S. 7 (2), U. P. (Temporary) Control of Rent and Eviction Act — Order is imprudent and improper — Yet passing imprudent order is not manifest error of law — Certiorari does not lie. 1964 All W R (H C) 656 : 1964 All L J 1089.

——Art. 226 — Powers of High Court to interfere with finding of quasi-judicial authority — Finding under S. 28 (1) (c) of the Income-tax Act that petitioner had concealed particulars of his income.

The finding that can be interfered with by the High Court must be a finding suffering from a manifest error apparent on the face of the record of the proceedings which were before the quasi-judicial authority which passed the impugned order. Where the question that has to be decided is whether on the facts, which were before the Income-tax Officer, there was enough material to record the finding under S. 28 (1) (c) of the Income-tax Act that the petitioner had concealed particulars of his income, this is a question of fact which requires a detailed examination and therefore the High Court cannot go into the question when exercising its jurisdiction under Art. 226 of the Constitution. (1960) 39 I T R 617 (All).

——Art. 226—Limitation under S. 34 (3), Income-tax Act (1922), applies to order of assessment and does not affect validity of prior proceedings — Finding by Income-tax Officer that S. 28 (1) (c) applies to the case — Finding cannot be interfered with under Art. 226 of the Constitution except on ground of error apparent on the face of record. See Income-tax Act (1922), S. 34 (3). (1960) 39 ITR 617 (All).

——Arts. 226 and 227 — Error of law apparent on face of record — (Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950), S. 50 (2)).

Where on the question as to the applicability of S 50. Administration of Evacuee Property Act, the Civil Judge took an erroneous view, but that was not the sole basis for deciding that the Assistant Custodian should not be impleaded in the suit, for he gave two other reasons, namely that the Custodian was not a necesssary party and that the plaintiffs were not agreeable;

Held, that the order read as a whole did not disclose a patent error of law and so no interference under Arts. 226 and 227 of the Constitution was possible. 1958 All L J 550 ; 1958 All W R (H C) 658 : A I R 1959 All 574 (576) (Pt E) (Pr 18).

——Art. 226 — Error of law or jurisdiction — Objection under S. 12, U. P. Consolidation of Holdings Act, not presented by authorised agent — Deputy Director recommending case for consideration of objection—There is no error of law or jurisdiction. See Civil P. C. (1908), O. 4, R. 1. AIR 1959 All 487 (DB).

——Art. 226—Writ of certiorari — When issued — (U. P. Panchayat Raj Act (26 of 1947), S. 110—Rules under—R. 95)

The defect of not explaining the complaint to the accused in compliance with R. 95 is one of procedure and not jurisdiction, and cannot justify the issue of certiorari. AIR 1953 All 531, Ref.

Further, if a Panchayati Adalat having jurisdiction over the subject matter and the accused does not follow the correct procedure, that would be no ground for setting aside an order, which was within its jurisdiction to pass, by certiorari. That would not be an error on the face of the record and no certiorari can issue. (1952) 1 All E R 122, Ref. 1953 All L J 586 : 1954 Cri L J 282 : A I R 1954 All 159 (160) (Pt C) (Pr 3).

——Art. 226—Certiorari, writ of— Error apparent on face of record—Labour Court — Management seeking to adduce evidence after conclusion of enquiry — Labour Court refusing to receive evidence at that stage and to re open case—No error of law apparent on face of record — Nor view opposed to principles of natural justice. (1960) 1 Lab L J 761 (Andh-Pra).

——Art. 226 — Error apparent on face of record — Evidence on record for tribunal to arrive at conclusion that the change was brought home to the petitioner—There is no error on face of record, to justify interference. (1959) 2 Lab L J 261 (Andh-Pra).

——Art. 226 — Error on face of record — Enquiry under S 20 Madras Estates (Abolition and Conversion into Ryotwari) Act — Some evidence omitted—Effect—Issue of writ.

Where in an inquiry under S. 20, the Revenue Board had considered the entire material placed before it and had come to the conclusion which it did, the mere fact that some pieces of evidence had been omitted or some circumstances had not been adverted to by the Board cannot be said to be an error apparent on the face of the record. In such a case a petition under Art. 226 is misconceived. (1958) 1 Andh W R 459 : I L R (1958) Andh Pra 289 : A I R 1958 Andh-Pra 522 (528) (Pt C) (Pr 13) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Error on face of record — Municipal election petition.

The question that under S. 49 (2) (g) of the District Municiplities Act a firm is a different legal entity from the persons constituting it and therefore the arrears due by the firm cannot disqualify any of the partners from standing for a Municipal election is a difficult question. A wrong decision on the said question cannot be said to be an error apparent on the face of the record. The point that the Commissioner declared the one out of the two candidates as duly elected without considering the crucial question whether the votes cast in favour of the other were thrown away is an error apparent on the face of the record. I L R (1956) Andh-Pra 664 : 1956 Andhra W R 1026 : A I R 1957 Andh Pra 658 (660) (Pt A) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Nature and scope of High Court's power — Judgment of Election Commissioner — No error apparent on face of judgment High—Court will refuse to issue writ of certiorari. A I R 1955 N U C (Andh Pra) 4178.

——Art. 226 — Power of High Court — Assessment under S. 11, Bengal Finance (Sales Tax) Act—Sufficiency of materials before Commercial Tax Officer—Question cannot be determined by High Court—No error of law apparent on face of record — (Sales Tax — Bengal Finance (Sales Tax) Act (6 of 1941), S. 11). ('57) 61 Cal W N 763 : A I R 1958 Cal 171 (175) (Pt B) (Pr 8).

——Art 226 — J. and K. Land Revenue Act (12 of 1996) (1939 A.D.), S. 15 — Financial Commissioner remanding case for fresh appointment of Headman holding that the appointment was not in accordance with spirit of Lumberdari Rules and instructions conveyed to Revenue Officers—Order held was in proper exercise of powers vested in him under law — No error apparent on face of record — High Court has no power to interfere in writ proceedings. A I R 1955 S C 233; A I R 1957 S C 804; A I R 1958 S C 398; A I R 1960 S C 137 : A I R 1963 S C 114, Rel. on. 1965 Kash L J 47 : A I R 1965 J & K 85 (86, 87, 88) (Pt A) (Prs 12, 20, 21).

——Art 226 — Error apparent on face of record—Error in drawing inferences from documentary evidence or in appreciation thereof — Error cannot be said to be error apparent on face of record. See Constitution of Jammu and Kashmir, S. 103. 1965 (2) Cri L J 212 : A I R 1965 J & K 75.

——Art. 226 — Error apparent on face of record—Election Commissioner authorising Assistant Election Commissioner to receive election petitions in his absence—Order not signed by Election Commissioner—Order published in Government Gazette—Draft of order put up before tribunal signed by Election Commissioner—Election Commissioner himself appearing before tribunal and stating that he had passed the order — Statute not in terms requiring such order to be signed—Order held not invalid because it was not signed — Even if it was required to be signed, there was no error of law apparent on face of record — No interference by writ. A I R 1961 J & K 16 (20) (Pt E) (Pr 21) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Administrative instructions — Breach of — Infringement of administrative instructions for assignment of marks for grant of stage carriage permit—No error of law — No interference under Art. 226—Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 43. A I R 1959 S C 896, Rel. on. 1962 Ker L J 493 : 1962 Ker L T 49.

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Issue of—Error of law on face of record — (Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950), Ss. 28, 2 (d) (i)).

Where on the facts established, the tribunal's finding about migration could not be said to be without jurisdiction, in excess of it or in violation of the principles of natural justice, no writ can be issued to quash it under Art. 226.

Where a person leaves India for Pakistan on a temporary permit issued on 26-8-1949, valid upto 25-8-1950 and he does not come back this is a valid ground for declaring him an evacuee under S. 2 (d) (i) of the Act. The order is covered by the latter portion of the section. Since the High Court does not sit in judgment on the impugned order as an appellate authority, and there is no error of jurisdiction or any error apparent on the face of the record, no writ could be issued to quash it. 1959 M P L J 377 : 1959 Jab L J 348 : 1959 M P C 384 : A I R 1959 Madh Pra 256 (259) (Pt B) (Prs 13, 14) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Error apparent on the face of the record — Contention that a particular G. O. having been superseded by another G. O. during pendency of appeal before State Transport Appellate Tribunal, the authority should have followed the later G. O.—Held, that since the Transport Authority had applied the earlier G. O. the appellate authority, which had to see whether the Transport Authority had acted within jurisdiction, and in accordance with law, had necessarily to apply the earlier G. O. and there was thus no error apparent on the face of the record. See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 43-A. (1964) 1 Mad L J 92.

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Error apparent on face of record — Selection of applicants for stage carriage permit on the basis of marking system — Appraisal of evidence by tribunal for satisfaction regarding applicant's experience — No error of law involved - Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 64. A I R 1963 Mad 292 (294) (Ft B) (Fr 11).

——Art. 226 — Error apparent on record — Madras Hindu Religious and Charitable Endowments Act (19 of 1951), S. 87 — Certificate in derogation of record - If could be quashed.

It is of course open to the Deputy Commissioner acting under S. 87 of the Madras Hindu Religious and Charitable Endowments Act to construe the documents placed before him to decide whether any party is entitled to be in possession of the temple properties. And merely because the construction put by him is erroneous the High Court would not interfere under Art. 226 of the Constitution. Where it appears to be manifestly erroneous it would amount to an error apparent on the face of the record and can be quashed by the Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution. (1958) 2 Mad L J 555 : 1959 Mad W N 42.

——Art. 226 - Certiorari — Exercise of discretion by Central Road Traffic Board — Reduction of number of permits issued to person — No apparent error on face of order — Interference with discretion exercised—Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S 64.

Where the Central Road Traffic Board in the exercise of its discretion reduces the number of bus permits issued to a person the High Court, in the absence of error apparent on the face of the order, cannot interfere with the discretion exercised even if the grounds given in support of the order are such as would not have appealed to it, if it were considering the matter for the first time. 1952 Mad W N 738 : 65 Mad L W 839 : 1952-2 Mad L J 361 : I L R (1953) Mad 367 : A I R 1953 Mad 1 (2) (Pt A) (Fr 5) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Error apparent on face of record— Order of dismissal supported by materials on record —No error apparent on face of record — Master and servant—Government servant — Dismissal. (1965) 1 Lab L J 349 (Orissa).

——Art. 226—Error apparent on face of record — No clear finding by lower Courts of fact that tenant was dispossessed on certain date - Revision Court holding that landlord was not in possession on the particular date — No error apparent on face of record — High Court will not interfere — Orissa Tenants Reliefs Act (5 of 1955), Ss. 4 (3) and 9 (1) (d). I L R (1964) Cut 425 : 30 Cut L T 569.

——Art. 226 — Writ of certiorari — Issue of — Error apparent on face of record — Chancellor refusing to allow certain life members to participate in senate meeting — Writ application by them against refusal — Members participating as per High Court's interim order — Question whether High Court's final order refusing grant of writ could relate back to make participation illegal — Question being debatable, Chancellor's view on question is not error apparent, AIR 1964 S C 477 and A I R 1952 S C 319 and (1953) 1 All E R 601, Ref. A I R 1966 Pat 47 (50) (Pt B) (Pr 14) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Orders passed by Additional Deputy Commissioner or by Deputy Commissioner in appeal are intra vires and are within their competence and power and they are not vitiated by any error of law — No interference by High Court. See Tenancy Laws — Bihar Land Reforms Act (30 of 1950), S. 2, Cl. (i). 1963 B L J R 921.

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — High Court's powers — Election Tribunal - Findings by — Interference — Panchayats — Bihar Panchayat Raj Act (Bihar Act 7 of 1948), S 84-B and Bihar Panchayat Election Rules, 1959. R. 82 (1).

The election of the petitioner as a Mukhiya of a gram panchayat was set aside by the Election Tribunal on a finding that he was guilty of corrupt practice at the previous election and therefore he was disqualified for election as a Mukhiya under S. 79 (1) of Bihar Act 7 of 1948 at the subsequent re-election and as such his election was void under R. 82 (1). He thereupon filed a petition under Arts. 226 and 227 of the Constitution for issuance of a writ of certiorari:

Held, that the finding of the Election Tribunal was based on relevant evidence and if in the appreciation of the evidence, the Election Tribunal committed any error it could not be called an error of law apparent on the face of the record which would justify interference by High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution. The Election Tribunal had undoubted jurisdiction to deal with the matter under R. 82 (1) of 1959 Rules read with S. 84-B of the Bihar Panchayat Raj Act, 1947 and he did not exceed the jurisdiction or fail to deal with the matter in accordance with the essential requirements of law which he was required to administer. The order of the Election Tribunal was therefore correct and could not be interfered with (Principles laid down in A I R 1958 S C 398 and A I R 1960 S C 1168 with regard to High Court's power to interfere on a writ of certiorari re-stated and applied.) 1961 B L J R 86.

——Arts. 226 and 227 — Error of law — Order of Assistant Collector of Central Excises giving reasons for not allowing entire claim on account of storage losses under R. 49 of Central Excise Rules (1944) — Collector agreeing with his decision but not giving elaborate reasons — Interference by High Court.

An Assistant Collector of Central Excises gave reasons for not allowing the entire claim on account of storage losses made by the licensee under R. 49 of Central Excise Rules (1944). He made an order demanding duty under R. 160 of the Central Excise Rules (1944).

In appeal the Collector passed an order under S. 35, Central Excises and Salt Act (1944) without giving elaborate reasons for agreeing with the conclusions of the Assistant Collector.

Held, that in a case of judgment of affirmance it was not necessary to repeat the reasons in the decision which the Assistant Collector came to. In such circumstances, it could not be said that the Collector committed any error of law apparent on the face of the record so as to entitle the High Court to interfere with his order. I L R 36 Pat 1 : A I R 1957 Pat 650 (653 654) (Pt C) (Pr 23) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Grounds for interference — Error of law or fact — (Houses and Rents — Bihar Buildings (Lease, Rent and Eviction) Control Act (3 of 1957), S. 11).

The question of non-payment of rent, or the question of subletting, are mixed questions of fact and law, and therefore, even if the Rent Control authorities have committed any error of law, or error of fact in arriving at their finding, the High Court will not interfere on an application under Art. 226 unless the petitioner is able to show further that such an error of law, or of fact, is apparent on the face of the record. 1956 B L J R 658 : ILR 35 Pat 894 : AIR 1957 Pat 206 (209) (Pt E) (Prs 29, 30, 31) (DB).

—— Art. 226 — Order passed on review by Custodian of Evacuee Property on an order by his predecessor — Absence of fresh material or absence of mistake or error on face of record — Writ of certiorari. See Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950), S. 26 (2). 32 Pat 630 : 1953 B L J R 494 : A I R 1954 Pat 43 (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 286 (1), Explanation (a) — Certiorari — (Bihar Sales Tax Act (19 of 1947), Ss. 13, 2 (g), Second Proviso).

The Commissioner has jurisdiction under S. 13 to make assessment. In fact the section imposes on him the duty to make assessment of the Sales Tax. Therefore, if the assessment is made under the machinery of the Sales Tax Act, the assessment is manifestly made in exercise of the Commissioner's jurisdiction. And the circumstances that the Commissioner has relied upon an ultra vires provision, e. g., S. 2 (g), Second Proviso of the Act in making the assessment will not invalidate the assessment like an order of Court lacking jurisdiction. For, assuming though not affirming that the Second Proviso to S. 2 (g) is in conflict with the Constitution, the inference does not by any means follow that the assessment made by the Commissioner is void and without jurisdiction. If the Commissioner had relied upon an ultra vires provision of the Sales Tax Act in making the assessment such reliance is not an excess of jurisdiction but a mistake of law made in the course of exercise of jurisdiction. AIR 1947 P C 78 and AIR 1948 P C 102, Foll.

Held, further that the petitioner has a complete and equally efficacious alternative remedy by way of appeal and revision to the authorities constituted under the machinery of the Sales Tax Act (Ss. 24 and 25 of the Act). AIR 1952 S C 192, Rel. on.

Obiter : When an error of law is apparent in the face of the record notwithstanding the tribunal had not acted without or in excess of its jurisdiction a writ of certiorari under Art. 226 is available only if the order of the tribunal was speaking order. (1952) 1 T L R 161, Expl. 1953 B L J R 45 : 32 Pat 36 : AIR 1953 Pat 78 (79, 80) (Prs 5, 6) (DB).

——Art 226 - Certiorari—Error apparent on face of record — What is — Erroneous interpretation as to computation of time for filing nomination papers under R. 4 of All India Bar Council (First Constitution) Rules, 1961 — Error not apparent on face of record. ILR (1963) 2 Punj 571 : AIR 1963 Punj 378 (382) (Pt B) (Pr 12).

——Art. 226—Certiorari — Error apparent on face of record — Concurrent findings of facts by Tribunals — Misconstruction of documents by Tribunal alleged —Interference not permissible. ('62) 64 Pun L R 155.

——Arts. 226 and 227 — Industrial disputes—Preliminary issue—Decision of preliminary issue along with merits—Labour Court has jurisdiction to order —No interference — Industrial Disputes — Decision of preliminary issue along with merits — Labour Court, if can order—Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 11.

In an industrial dispute, where a preliminary issue is involved, the Labour Court instead of deciding the preliminary issue can pass an order that it would be more proper and feasible that the issue be decided when the entire evidence of the parties including that relating to the merits is also recorded. The order is within the Labour Court's jurisdiction, and there is no such glaring mistake of law apparent on the face of the record which would justify interference on the extraordinary side of the High Court.

It is true that generally speaking, a preliminary issue which involves only a question of law should be decided in the first instance, but if a preliminary issue requires evidence to be led, then it is a question for determination in each case as to how far it is desirable or proper to isolate that issue from those on the merits. The Court has in each case to determine which would be the better course to adopt; to decide the preliminary point first or to decide all the issues at the same time after recording the entire evidence.

Where the preliminary issue is decided first, the aggrieved party can assail the decision in the High Court under Arts. 226 and 227. But the party is not deprived of this opportunity even if the preliminary objection is decided along with the merits. An aggrieved party can, if permitted by law come to the High Court even after the final determination of the disputes and he can attack the award on the ground that the preliminary issue being wrongly decided, the award is vitiated. (1962-63) 23 F J R 204 (Punj).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Writ of — When to be issued.

Where an order passed under S. 33 of the Displaced Persons (Compensation and Rehabilitation) Act (1954) by the Central Government confirming the order in revision passed by the Deputy Chief Settlement Commissioner is sought to be quashed the petitioner, in order to succeed, must show that there is a manifest error of law in the order passed. It would not be appropriate for the High Court to embark on an enquiry or investigation into questions of fact on which it would be necessary to adjudicate before coming to a conclusion that there is an error on face of the record which alone would give jurisdiction to the High Court to interfere in certiorari proceedings. Even if the powers under S. 33 are regarded as quasi-judicial, the omission of the Central Government to have heard the case without notice to the petitioner is not a defect which would justify interference of the High Court in a writ of certiorari as a detailed 'speaking order' is not required under S 33. Neither the requirement of natural justice nor the phraseology of S. 33 justifies the inference that it was incumbent on the Central Government to hear the petitioner before passing a final order, and the order cannot be quashed under Art. 226 on that ground. A I R 1957 S C 648 and A I R 1951 Mad 276, Rel. on. AIR 1961 Punj 387 (389, 390) (Pt A) (Prs 7, 11, 12).

——Art. 226 — Error apparent on record—(Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 47 (1), Proviso).

Where two co-operative societies applying for grant of permit are equally efficient and equally qualified choice of one of them by the authority even if without any cogent reason could not be quashed in proceedings under Art. 226 as it could not be said that it was an error apparent on the record. Preference of one over another in such circumstances cannot be interfered with by issue of a writ of certiorari. 61 Punj L R 647 : I L R (1959) Punj 1644 : AIR 1959 Punj 473 (475) (Pt E) (Pr 14).

——Art. 226—Error on face of record—(Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950), S. 27).

A writ of certiorari is issued primarily with the object of securing an inspection of the record of the proceedings of an inferior tribunal in order that the High Court may determine from the face of the record whether the inferior tribunal has acted without or in excess of jurisdiction or has not proceeded according to the essential requirements of the law.

Where the order passed by the Deputy Custodian-General of evacuee property in exercise of his powers under S. 27, Administration of Evacuee Property Act, complies with the essential requirements of law then a mere failure on his part to give effect to an executive instruction of Government cannot be deemed to be an error on the face of the record. The error on the face of the record which justifies the issue of an order of certiorari must be an error of law. 59 Punj L R 272 : ILR (1957) Punj 1521 : AIR 1958 Punj 168 (170) (Pt C) (Prs 8, 9) (DB).

——Art. 226—Question of fact—Decision on question whether strike was justified is a mixed question of fact and law—No interference by High Court under Art. 226 unless there is an apparent error of law in the judgment of the Tribunal—Industrial Disputes Act (1947), Ss. 22 and 24. (1958-59) 15 F J R 96 : (1958) 2 Lab L J 628 : ILR (1958) 8 Raj 866 : AIR 1958 Raj 202 (204) [Pt A) (Pr 7) DB).

——Art. 226 (1)—Revenue Courts not exceeding their jurisdiction or failing to exercise jurisdiction vested in them—No error of law patent on face of record committed by them—High Court will not issue writ of certiorari. 1953 Raj L W 411 : ILR (1953) 3 Raj 199 : A I R 1953 Raj 155 (157, 158) (Pt C) (Pr 16) (DB).

——Art. 226—Assesssment to income-tax—Grounds not discussed — Error apparent on record—(Travancore Income-tax Act (23 of 1121), Ss. 3, 4 and 9)—(Income-tax Act (1922), S. 23).

If the law of Income-tax enjoins upon the officer to write a judgment giving not merely the conclusion but the grounds therefor, it may be contended that the absence of those grounds is a defect. But there is no provision of law under which the assessing officer is bound to discuss the pros and cons on the question of taxability or otherwise of a particular fund. In the absence of any such provision, the omission of the officer to support his conclusion by a discussion of the grounds, though materials supporting his conclusion are mentioned, is not a defect in the order of assessment such as to regard it as containing an error apparent on the face of the record which would be a ground for the interference of the High Court in certiorari. I L R (1953) Trav-Co 173 : A I R 1953 Trav Co 298 (297, 298) (Pt A) (Pr 4).

140. Executive and ministerial orders.

See also Note 126.

——Art. 226—Executive orders—Writ against — No writ of certiorari to be granted—(Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 43-A—Order under—Madras Government Order No. 1298, dated 28-4-1956).

Section 43-A of the Motor Vehicles Act has been enacted to enable the State Government to issue administrative or executive orders or directions. Reading the Government Order of the Madras Government under S. 43-A (1), issued on 28-4-1956 as a whole, by this Order the State Government has issued executive instructions for the guidance of the transport authorities; and the said instructions are not in the nature of statutory rules having the force of law. As the Government Order contains merely executive or administrative directions, their breach, even if patent, would not justify the issue of a writ of certiorari. C. A. No. 783 of 1957, dated 6-2-1958 (SC), Rel. on R. Abdulla Rowther v. State Transport. Appellate Tribunal, Madras, AIR 1959 SC 896 (899, 901) (Prs 11, 16, 17).

——Art. 226—Order in respect of entry in character-roll of Government servant — Jurisdiction of High Court to quash order. See Ibid, Art. 311. AIR 1954 Ajmer 22.

——Art. 226—Interference in ministerial acts—Cancellation of existing permit for purpose of giving effect to approved scheme. See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 68-F (2). AIR 1962 All 551 (DB).

——Art. 226—Writ of certiorari against presiding officer of a meeting discharging only administrative function,

Where the presiding officer of a meeting of a Municipal Council who had no right of voting or speaking merely forwarded to the Government the minutes of the meeting together with a copy of the no-confidence motion and the result of the voting:

Held, that in so doing he did not perform any judicial or quasi-judicial function but merely acted in a ministerial or administrative capacity. 1956 Andh W R 627 : AIR 1957 Andh Pra 891 (894) (Pt B) (Pr. 8) (DB).

——Art. 226—Writs—Power of High Court to issue when to be exercised—English and American decisions—Reference to.

Ordinarily in issuing writs contemplated by Art. 226 of the Constitution of the various kinds specified therein the same rule of interpretation should be applied, but even so, the distinctions which flow from the nature and character of the writs themselves and which must, in consequence regulate and govern the issue of these writs, have to be borne in mind. Art. 226 does not define the scope or character of the various writs to which it refers and for that purpose, one has to examine the English and American precedents in order to determine whether in given circumstances, a particular writ is justified. ILR (1955) 7 Assam 159 : AIR 1955 Assam 163 (167, 168, 169) (Pt C) (Pr 13) (DB).

——Art. 226—Procedure of executive bodies—(Houses and Rents—Bombay Land Requisition Act (33 of 1948), S. 6).

The State Government has to make an enquiry before making an order under S. 6 (4) (a), Bombay Land Requisition Act that the premises specified in the order has become vacant by a certain date. If in fact no inquiry is held the declaration would be vitiated but where an inquiry in fact has been held the Government are the sole judges as to the nature, extent and scope of the enquiry. The words "inquiry shall be such as it deems fit" clearly negative the suggestion that the inquiry is of a judicial nature and the principles of natural justice shall not necessarily apply thereto.

But at the same time the Government cannot in the exercise of that discretion pretend to hold an enquiry whilst in fact holding none and where the facts of the case justify the interference that such was the position the declaration made as a result of such inquiry may be vitiated. AIR 1951 Bom 131, Rel on. 1925 A C 578, Ref. 57 Bom L R 748 : AIR 1955 Bom 433 (433, 434 (Pt A) (Prs 3, 5).

——Art 226—Executive order—Writ of certiorari cannot be issued.

Rule 9 of Citizenship Rules (1956) requires Collector to satisfy himself on several matters mentioned in the rule, before registering person under S. 5 (1) (a) of Citizenship Act—He may inform himself in any manner he thinks fit—He is not required to make inquiries in case he rejects application under S. 5 (1) (a)—Even if he is satisfied that all conditions of R. 9 are satisfied, he may still refuse the certificate of citizenship—His action is executive and political act—Subject to orders of Central Government his orders are final and are not amenable to writ of certiorari. AIR 1965 Cal 160 (161) (Pt A) (Pr 2) (DB).

——Art. 226—Nature of jurisdiction.

In dealing with Art. 226 of the Constitution the Courts in India still think consciously and unconsciously in terms of high prerogative writs. Art. 226 is a plain constitutional right and an inexpensive efficacious and quick constitutional remedy given by the Constitution of India to her High Courts. Naturally in England with the Crown as the fountain head of justice, the high prerogative writs like Habeas Corpus, Mandamus, Prohibition, Certiorari or Quo Warranto depend on the course of favour of the Crown and it is in that light that the British Courts administer such a 'high prerogative'. The concept of constitutional jurisprudence will be dangerous to adopt here in the Indian Constitution. Article 226 provides that the High Court shall have power to issue these writs. The discretion which the High Court may have in granting or refusing such writ is as much a discretion as a solemn obligation cast by the Constitution upon it. AIR 1964 Cal 340 (343) (Pt D) (Pr 21).

——Art. 226—Ministerial act—Collector acting under Act ministerially—No certiorari or mandamus can issue. See Debt Laws — Kerala Agriculturists Debt Relief Act (31 of 1958), Rules under, R. 3. 1960 Ker L T 146.

——Art. 226—Plea of de facto authority—If available.

Even assuming the doctrine of de facto authority can be applied to proceedings, under Art. 226, as the only safeguard which is asked for on its basis is an immunity against a collateral attack on the acts of the Authority concerned, there is no scope for the application of the doctrine to the proceedings under Art. 226 for certiorari where they directly raise the question of the validity of the order of the Authority. 1959 Ker L J 410 : 1959 Ker L T 521 : 1959 Ker L R 1107 : ILR (1959) Ker 1124 : AIR 1959 Ker 347 (349) (Pt C) (Pr 5).

● ——Art. 226—Travancore Public Safety Measures Ordinance (5 of 1125), S. 19 — Order cannot be impeached on ground that opinion was not based on proper grounds. See Public Safety—Travancore Public Safety Measures Ordinance (5 of 1125), S. 19. 1950 Ker L T 675 (FB).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari writ of—If can be issued against a ministerial act.

A writ may lie against the judicial acts of the Govt. i. e, acts done by a competent authority upon consideration of facts and circumstances and imposing liability or affecting the rights of others. In such acts the authority has a discretion after considering all the facts whether to proceed further or not. But no writ will lie against a ministerial act which merely carries into effect orders already made. The person doing the act has no discretion in the matter. It is this absence of discretion which distinguishes a ministerial from a judicial act. AIR 1951 Kutch 73 (74) (Pt B) (Pr 10).

● ——Art. 226—C. P. and Berar Revocation of Land Revenue Exemption Act (57 of 1948), Ss. 3, 5—Resumption of maufi grant under S. 3— No obligation to pay compensation—Grant of pension or money under S. 5 is discretionary — Proceeding under S. 5. is not quasi-judicial—No certiorari. Govindrao Krishnarao Bhuskute v. State of Madh Pra., 1959 M P L J 639 : 1959 Jab L J 407 : 1959 M P C 421 : AIR 1959 Madh Pra 339 (341, 342) (Prs 9, 13, 16, 17) (FB).

[Reversed in AIR 1965 S C 1222].

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Proceedings of Magistrate under S. 176, Criminal Procedure Code — No writ to quash will issue. ILR (1959) Mad 12 : (1959) 1 Mad L J 71 : 1959 M L J (Cr) 71 : 1959 Cr L J 856 : 1958 Mad W N 665 : AIR 1959 Mad 294 (312, 316) (Pt B) (Prs 35, 55) (DB).

——Art. 226—'Certiorari'—Interference with electoral process—Municipalities—Madras District Municipalities Act (5 of 1920), Ss. 7 and 43).

Interference with electoral process is not warranted by Art. 226 — Redistribution of wards is a matter purely within ambit of executive power—Matter is not justiciable and cannot be brought up for writ of 'certiorari' before High Court. (1946) 328 U S 549; (1950) 339 U S 276 and W. P. No. 568 of 1952 (Mad), Rel. on. (1953) 1 M L J 252 : AIR 1953 Mad 510 (513) (Pt E) (Pr 14).

——Art. 226—Award directing reinstatement but not determining specific sum as payable on account of back wages—Amount payable left to the discretion of employer—State Government or its delegate has no jurisdiction to determine amount of back wages while issuing certificate for its recovery under S. 33-C (i) — Quashing of certificate. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 33-C (i). AIR 1963 Mys 250 (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari — Jurisdiction to issue writ —If exercisable in case of acts of "Courts" only—Judicial act of inferior tribunal or body — Writ—Issue of.

The writ of certiorari does not issue to correct purely executive or ministerial acts, but, on the other hand, its application is not narrowly limited to inferior "Courts" in the strictest sense. If the act done by an inferior tribunal or body is a juridical act as distinguished from a ministerial act, an application for certiorari will lie and a writ will issue if the act is beyond the powers of the tribunal or body making it. ILR (1944) Mad 347 (PC), Ref. ILR (1951) Mys 99 : AIR 1951 Mys 66 (67) (Pt D) (Pr 2) (DB).

——Art. 226—Interference under.

Procedure prescribed by Registrar under R. 14 (4) of the Rules framed under S. 43 of the Co-operative Societies Act (1912), being with jurisdiction—High Court cannot interfere under Art. 226. ILR (1954) Nag 76 : 1954 Nag L J 91 : AIR 1954 Nag 203 (204) (Pt D) (Pr 8) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Government order—Quashing of, by writ of certiorari.

A writ of certiorari can only be issued to a Judge or other officer of an inferior Court and consequently where an order is made by the Government in exercise of the executive authority which the law vests in it it is not competent for the High Court to quash the order by a writ of certiorari. AIR 1950 S C 163, Disting. ILR (1952) Patiala 110 : AIR 1952 Pepsu 69 (73) (Pt C) (Pr 14).

——Art. 226—Defence of India Rules (1962), R. 125 (2)—Punjab Government Order D/- 6.11.1963 prohibiting production of Gur by power crushers in mill supply areas—Validity — Proclamation of emergency in operation when order passed—Art. 19 (1) (g) cannot be invoked to invalidate Order — Constitution of India, Art. 19 (1) (g), 226, 352 and 358. See Defence of India Rules (1962) R. 125 (2). AIR 1964 Punj 307.

——Art. 226—Displaced Persons (Compensation and Rehabilitation) Rules (1955), Rr. 87 and 90—Scope—Rule contemplates a sale in favour of non-evacuees by a method other than by public auction when there is general or special order — Scheme for disposal of rural evacuee property — Nature of—Private sale in favour of local occupant in pursuance of scheme—Chief Settlement Commissioner has no power to cancel such sale and order fresh sale by public auction—Such order did not confer jurisdiction to disturb the rights of petitioner in property and petitioner cannot be denied his legitimate right to invoke extraordinary jurisdiction of High Court. See Displaced Persons (Compensation and Rehabilitation) Act (1954), S. 20. AIR 1964 Raj 260 (DB).

——Art. 226—Rajasthan Appeals and Petitions (Discontinuance) Ordinance (1949), Ss. 4 (1), 3 — Law in force in covenanting State — Statement of Powers

(Bikaner), Appendix A, Head 1, Item 1; Head 2, Item 17—Re-opening of jagir succession in Bikaner—Case pending till merger of Bikaner State in Rajasthan—Power of State of Rajasthan to pass orders—This was not judicial or quasi-judicial matter but was purely executive matter—Personal hearing by Rajpramukh held was not necessary. See Rajasthan Appeals and Petitions (Discontinuance) Ordinance (40 of 1949), S. 4 (1). AIR 1958 Raj 12.

——Art. 226—Fixation of minimum wages — Nature of Act—Interference with under Arts. 226 and 227. See Minimum Wages Act (1948), S 5 (2). AIR 1955 Trav-Co 97 (DB).

141. Futile or unnecessary writ.

See Note 53.

142. Government, against.

See also Note 54.

● ——Art. 226—Bombay Land Requisition Ordinance (5 of 1947), S. 3—Provincial Government — Writ of certiorari, if lies against—Constitution of India, Arts. 139 and 226—Government of India Act (1935), Ss. 176 and 306 (1).

Per Mahajan and Mukherjea JJ.—A writ of certiorari falls within the expression "sue" used in S. 176 of the Government of India Act and the remedy therefore is within the express terms of the statute. Further, immunity from suits given by S. 306 (1) of the Government of India Act is given to the Governor and not to the Provincial Government, though the Governor may be one of the component parts of the Provincial Government. A writ of certiorari, therefore lies against the Provincial Government in respect of its decision under S. 3 of the Ordinance. Province of Bombay v. Khushal Das S. Advani, 1950 Mad W N 802 : (1950) 2 Mad L J 703 : 1950 S C J 451 : 56 Cal L J 330 : 1950 S C R 621 : 53 Bom L R 1 : AIR 1950 S C 222 (236, 246, 248, 249) (Pt C) (Prs 51, 106, 114, 124).

——Art 226 — Administrative order — Government appointed ad hoc committee for selection of Text Books — Government informed petitioners that their books had been selected, subject to their executing agreement with Government but cancelled this order, even before agreement was concluded—Held that this being purely administrative order, without involving infraction of vested right of petitioner, Government cannot be rendered answerable in Courts. (1965) 2 Andh W R 383 : A I R 1965 Andh Pra 425 (431) (Pt B) (Pr 10).

——Arts 226 and 14 — Rules under S. 26, Trav. Abkari Act have force of law — Rules are not inconsistent with S. 14 of Act — Power to accept or reject bid not given to Government—Order of Government directing resale violates Art. 14 of Constitution—Order is liable to be quashed—(Travancore Abkari Act (4 of 1073), Ss. 14 and 26). See Ibid, Art. 14. AIR 1960 Ker 164.

——Art. 226 — Applicability — Motor Vehicles'—Direction to extend existing route — Direction restricting number of buses that could ply on extended route—Government if exceeds jurisdiction—Writ of certiorari or mandamus if can issue against Government. See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 43-A (2). AIR 1957 Mad 536.

——Art. 226 — Bombay Municipal Boroughs Act (18 of 1925), S. 219 (1) — Order of supersession — Necessity to furnish reasons for — Failure—Effect — Order held without jurisdiction and liable to be quashed — Power of High Court to examine basis of order. See Municipalities — Bombay Municipal Boroughs Act (18 of 1925), S. 219 (1). (1964) 1 Mys L J 147.

——Art. 226—Illegal order—Occupancy right acquired by continuous possession for above 12 years—Settlement with another person—Interference.

Where the petitioner's case was that he had taken oral raiyati settlement of the entire plot of land from the sixteen annas proprietors in 1928 and had acquired occupancy right by continuous possession for more than 12 years since then, and there was no counter-affidavit on behalf of the State Government, the petitioner's claim must be taken as correct and the State Government cannot make the settlement of fishery rights of the plot with another person. Any such settlement can be quashed by a writ of certiorari in favour of the petitioner and mandamus can be issued against the State Government. 1960 B L J R 15 (1).

——Art. 226 — Bihar Hindu Religious Trusts Act (1951), S. 59 — Calling of accounts by State, from a trustee of a private trust, whether legal—Certiorari—Issue of. ('54) ILR 33 Pat 942.

[Reversed in AIR 1959 S C 957].

——Art. 226 — (Municipalities—Travancore District Municipalities Act (1116), S. 323) — Rules under, R. 40 (1) — Question of interpretation of rules — Jurisdiction of Government — Government deciding that question of interpretation of Rules does not arise—No certiorari—See Municipalities—Travancore District Municipalities Act (23 of 1116), S. 323. AIR 1953 Trav-Co 386.

143. Government servant, order of dismissal or reduction in rank.

See also Ibid, Arts. 310 and 311.

● ——Arts. 226 and 311—Certiorari—Writ against Government Quasi-judicial orders — Order of dismissal of public servant — High Court can enquire whether the order is based on no evidence — Mala fide exercise of power need not be shown to prove that the order is based on no evidence. L. P. A. No. 27-D of 1959, dated 2nd August 1960 (Punj), Affirmed. Union of India v. H. C. Goel, (1964) 1 S C W R 28 : 66 Pun L R 305 : (1964) 9 Fac L R 161 : 1963 Cur L J (SC) 153 : (1963-64) 25 F J R 159 : (1964) 1 Lab L J 38 : AIR 1964 S C 364 (369) (Ft B) (Prs 20, 22).

——Art. 226 — Reduction of rank of Government employee — Reduced pay during suspension — Jurisdiction of High Court. See Ibid, Art. 311. AIR 1954 Ajmer 22.

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Finding of a Domestic Tribunal though recommendatory and not a final order, could be quashed in a suitable case. (U. P. Disciplinary Proceedings (Administrative Tribunal) Rules, 1947). AIR 1950 S C 188, Foll.; (1937) A C 898 and (1924) 1 K B 171, Ref.; (1921) 2 A C 570 and (1925) 3 C L R 518, Not foll. ILR (1963) 1 All 432 (DB).

——Arts. 226, 311—Government servant — Expiry of period of probation—Effect—Petitioner appointed to a substantive post in clear vacancy — Termination of service treating him as probationary officer for alleged misconduct during period after probation — Held, that whether he was confirmed or not, a lien on his post ripened in his favour on expiry of the period of probation and that Art. 311 applied—R. 55 (3) of Civil Services (Classification, Control and Appeal) Rules and R. 23 of U. P. Civil Services (Executive Branch) Rules held not applicable to the case. I L R (1959) 1 All 226.

[Overruled in AIR 1961 All 450 (FB).]

——Art. 226 — Writ of certiorari — Petition for quashing order of Superintendent of Police removing petitioner from service—Petitioner can urge that there was no proper authority given under para. 479 (f) of the Police Regulations.

In a petition under Art. 226 for a writ of certiorari quashing the order of the Superintendent of Police removing the petitioner from service it is open to the petitioner to urge that there was no proper authority given to the Deputy Superintendent of Police under para. 479 (f) of the Police Regulations. The failure to raise that point before the Deputy Inspector General or the Superintendent of Police is no bar to the applicant to raise the question of the power of the Deputy Superintendent of Police to hold enquiry, in a petition under Art. 226 Constitution of India. 1955 All L J 748 : AIR 1956 All 172 (175) (Pt B) (Pr 8).

——Art. 226 – Administrative order — Order of Government under Madras Hereditary Village Offices Act, reinstating respondent as Acting Village Munsif— Order causing summary ouster of petitioner from office of Village Munsif — Petitioner not given opportunity to make his representations — 'Action is administrative action' and does not mean that authority has not to observe ordinary rules of fairplay—Held, order could not be upheld. AIR 1950 S C 107 and (1964) A C 40, Rel on. (1965) 1 Andh L T 283 : A I R 1966 Andh Pra 11 (13, 14) (Pt B) (Pr 7).

——Art. 226 — Administrative orders—Conditions of service of Government servants – Can be regulated by administrative orders – Time scale given to appellant under misconception—On discovery of error order fixing pay and depriving him of benefits under previous scale passed – Held, the administrative order was valid and binding on appellant — No remedy under Art. 226. See Ibid, Art. 309. AIR 1963 Cal 563 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari – Issue of writ — Departmental proceedings under Bengal Subordinate Services (Discipline and Appeal) Rules, 1936.

Proceeding by way of departmental enquiry as contemplated by the Bengal Subordinate Services (Discipline and Appeal) Rules, 1936, do partake of the character of quasi-judicial proceedings and an order made in such proceedings can be interfered with by a writ of certiorari, 55 C W N 605 : ILR (1952) 2 Cal 254 : AIR 1953 Cal 316 (318) (Pt A) (Pr 24).

——Arts. 226 and 311 — Order of reversion of civil servant is administrative.

An order of reversion of a civil servant (terminating a temporary or officiating occupancy) is so palpably of an administrative nature that no writ of certiorari or mandamus can lie to quash it (1892) 2 Q B 21, Foll. [Distinction between quasi judicial and administrative orders pointed out.]

A dismissal, removal or reduction in rank of a civil servant adumbrated in Article 311 is purely an administrative act for the reason that there is nothing in the language of Article 311 to suggest that in issuing such an order the authority is obliged to act judicially. No doubt, Art. 311 (2) prescribes a notice; but sub-Art. (3) of Art. 311 dispenses with the notice, if, for some reason to be recorded, it is not reasonably practicable to give to that person the notice or an opportunity to show cause. This very fact makes it clear that the act is an administrative act. A I R 1945 F C 47, AIR 1948 P C 101, A I R 1952 M B 105, Rel on; AIR 1952 Raj 17, Ref. I L R (1952) Hyd 976 : AIR 1953 Hyd 98 (98, 99) (Pt B) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Art. 226 – Natural justice – Dismissal of employee without following provisions of Art. 311— Quashing of order of dismissal.

Held, on facts that the respondent was not a body corporate so as to be able to possess a separate entity. The State Government owned the undertaking though the business continued under its original name. The petitioner held permanent civil post under the State Government when the undertaking was taken over and the order of dismissal was in flagrant disregard of the provisions of Art. 311 (2) of the Constitution; AIR 1957 Pat 10, Dist. AIR 1958 Mys 23, Foll. 1959 M P L J (Notes) 55.

——Art. 226—Powers of High Court — "Suspension" with retrospective effect when civil servant was on duty—Petition for quashing order, if one for enforcing claim for money. See Ibid, Art. 311. AIR 1958 Madh Pra 44 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Administrative order—Order of removal passed by Administrator — Interference. See Territorial Councils Act (1956), S. 22 (2). AIR 1960 Manipur 25.

——Arts. 226, 311 and 309 — Appointment of Civil servant to permanent post on probation — Effect — Expiry of probationary period — Civil servant does not continue as probationer but becomes permanent employee — Subsequent order extending probationary period or discharging servant held invalid and quashed — (Mysore Civil Service Rules (1958)). See Ibid, Art. 311. AIR 1960 Mys 65 (DB).

——Art. 226—Government servant – Irregularities in promoting him — Reduction in rank — Art. 311 does not apply—Departmental and administrative order— No writ under Art. 226. See Ibid, Art. 311. AIR 1956 Orissa 113.

——Arts. 226, 311—Order dismissing public servant —Application for writ of certiorari—Scope of enquiry under.

In a petition for a writ in the nature of certiorari under Art. 226 of the Constitution against an order of dismissal of a Government servant the High Court is not concerned with the merits or otherwise of the dismissal ILR (1956) Cut 29 : AIR 1956 Orissa 99 (102) (Pt A) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Arts. 226, 310, 311—Reduction in rank—Art. 311 (2) has to be followed – Procedure not followed — High Court can interfere under Art. 226. See Ibid, Art. 310. AIR 1952 Orissa 285 (DB).

——Arts. 226, 311—Removal proceedings.

Even if the law declares that a public servant may be removed at the will and caprice of the appointing power but at the same time requires that his services should not be terminated unless he has been afforded a reasonable opportunity of being heard, the proceeding would be executive or ministerial in character. As an officer conducting a removal proceeding under Art. 311 of the Constitution is not acting in a judicial or quasi-judicial capacity, the orders passed by him cannot be reviewed on certiorari. 58 Punj L R 512 : ILR (1957) Punj 198 : AIR 1957 Punj 42 (44, 45) (Pt C) (Prs 15, 19, 20) (DB).

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1958 S C 36.]

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Executive Orders — Decision to retire public servant — No writ can issue.

Where there has been no enquiry and the Government had only arrived at a decision in their exercise of the option granted by the Covenant between the Kathiawar States before formation of State of Saurashtra regarding absorption of civil servants, that the applicant should not be absorbed but be given compensation the order is only an executive order, and an application for writ of certiorari does not lie Writ of certiorari lies only to revise Orders of a Judicial or quasi judicial tribunal or authority. AIR 1953 Hyd 201, Disting. 6 Sau L R 534 : AIR 1954 Sau 90 (91) (Pt B) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 311 — Certiorari — Wrongful dismissal or termination of service—Proper writ—Writ to compel reinstatement to post.

The proper writ in a case of wrongful dismissal or termination of service is a writ of certiorari, and the scope of certiorari is limited to the quashing of the impugned order, and that is why no writ to compel reinstatement to a post is issued. No such right is available to the petitioner, under the Fundamental Rights guaranteed in Part III of the Constitution. AIR 1959 Tripura 27 (29) (Pt B) (Prs 13, 14).

144. Grounds.

See also Note 69.

(a) Authority acting without jurisdiction.

See also Note 148.

(b) Fundamental error.

(c) Orders contrary to law.

(d) Errors on face of record.

See also Note 139.

(e) Absence of reasons for decision.

(f) Bias and mala fides.

See also Note 129.

(g) No ground.

144. Grounds.

See also Note 69.

——Art. 226—U. P. Panchayat Raj Act (1947), S. 49—Contravention of—Effect—There is no power given under the Act to cure the irregularity which is one affecting jurisdiction of Panchayati Adalat — Writ of certiorari will issue — See Panchayats—U. P. Panchayat Raj Act (26 of 1947), S. 49. AIR 1953 All 118.

——Art. 226 — Writ of certiorari — Jurisdiction of High Court — Nature of — High Court, when could interfere.

In a petition under Art. 226 of the Constitution it is not open for the High Court to review a case as if it were a Court of appeal and it is not within the compass of jurisdiction of the High Court to interfere with errors of facts even if they should exist. The objections that the High Court can normally entertain in an application for the issue of a writ of certiorari are: (1) that the impugned order is vitiated by error of excess of jurisdiction; (2) that there was an error of law apparent on the face of the record and (3) that in the procedure adopted in passing the impugned order or proceeding there had been a violation of principles of natural justice. A I R 1958 S C 398 and A I R 1955 S C 233, Ref. (1962) 2 Andh W R 416.

——Art. 226 — Writ of certiorari — Conditions for issue of.

Before a writ of certiorari can go, it has to be established that the authority concerned had no jurisdiction to act or acted in excess of jurisdiction, or that there was violation of natural justice or that there was error of law apparent on the face of the record. AIR 1955 S C 233 and A I R 1954 S C 440 and A I R 1952 S C 192 and AIR 1958 S C 398, Rel. on.

Held, that the order of confiscation was not made in excess of or without jurisdiction, that as the appellant was given a personal hearing by the officer before imported goods were confiscated there was no violation of the rules of natural justice and that the arguments based on a laborious research of the schedule and appendices of the Import Trade Control Policy demonstrated that there was no error apparent on the face of the record. AIR 1963 Cal 26 (34, 35) (Pt C) (Prs 42, 44) (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—When to issue.

Certiorari shall issue to correct errors of jurisdiction, that is to say, absence, excess or failure to exercise and also when in the exercise of undoubted jurisdiction, there has been illegality. It shall also issue to correct an error in the decision or determination itself, if it is an error manifest on the face of the proceedings. The jurisdiction in certiorari is, however, not appellate but only supervisory. By its exercise, only a patent error can be corrected. The legislature in constituting a tribunal may vest such tribunal itself with a jurisdiction which includes the jurisdiction to determine whether the preliminary state of facts on which its jurisdiction to proceed further depends exists. In such a case, the rule that a tribunal cannot give itself jurisdiction by a wrong decision as to the existence of the preliminary facts does not apply and accordingly certiorari shall not go to correct such a decision. In the case of an appellate tribunal, the jurisdiction to decide whether an appeal to it lies or not is such jurisdiction. (1956) 2 Lab L J 328: 60 Cal W N 602: AIR 1957 Cal 560 (565) (Pt B) (Prs 16, 17) (DB).

——Art. 226—Writ of certiorari.

Writ of certiorari is granted if it is shown that a tribunal or body or officer has acted wholly without jurisdiction or in excess of it or has acted in violation of the principles of natural justice or committed an error apparent on the face of the record and such act, or omission, or error has resulted in manifest injustice. I L R (1953) Hyd 311 : A I R 1953 Hyd 222 (224) (Pt C) (Pr 8) (DB).

——Art. 226—Writ of certiorari—Writ when may be issued—(Natural justice).

In A I R 1954 S C 440 (444) the Supreme Court almost limited the scope of certiorari to the two heads which were recognized in (1922) 2 A C 128. But a more elaborate discussion of the matter is to be found in A I R 1955 S C 233 where more than those two heads are mentioned. Even in the former case it is stated that the two heads which the Privy Council laid down in (1922) 2 A C 128 'normally' cover the exercise of certiorari in most cases. The word 'normally' denotes that there may be other occasions on which certiorari may issue. And one such occasion for the exercise of the high prerogative writ of certiorari in England (as also in India) is where the principles of natural justice have not been followed. 1956 Nag L J 66 : A I R 1956 Nag 235 (237) (Pt B) (Prs 8, 9) (DB).

[Reversed on another point in AIR 1957 S C 232.]

——Art. 226 — Nature and scope of High Court's power.

Per Sinha, C. J. and Hidayatullah, J.:—The essential feature of a writ of certiorari is not appellate jurisdiction and the High Court will not, in the exercise of its functions under Art. 226 of the Constitution construe evidence and reopen findings of fact. Interference can ordinarily be if a question of jurisdiction is invoked or where the inferior tribunal has not observed the law in the course of the exercise of its jurisdiction. AIR 1954 S C 440, Foll. I L R (1953) Nag 842 : 1956 Nag L J 73 : A I R 1956 Nag 11 (12, 13, 14) (Pt A) (Prs 5, 14) (DB).

——Arts. 226, 227—Jurisdiction under, when can be invoked—Tribunal acting without jurisdiction, violation of principles of natural justice, or manifest injustice, necessary. 1964 Cur L J 311 : AIR 1964 Punj 455 (456) (Pt C) (Pr 8) (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Grounds.

The Court is slow to interfere with the findings of tribunals when their decisions are liable to be corrected by appellate authorities. It is only where a statutory tribunal is called upon to decide or interpret questions of law from which no appeal or revision is provided, that the High Court in the exercise of its inherent powers would quash the proceedings if the order of a tribunal discloses, or 'speaks' of, an error of law. The aid of the Court can only be invoked where it is required to keep the Tribunal within the bounds of its authority or there is a manifest error of law in its proceedings and not when the matter agitated by the petitioner, is pre-eminently one of fact on which there may be differences of opinion. AIR 1958 S C 398, Rel. on. 63 Punj L R 606 : AIR 1961 Punj 476 (477) (Prs 3, 4).

——Art. 226—Writ petition—When High Court will interfere.

It must be shown, before a writ is issued, that the authority which passed the order acted without jurisdiction or in excess of it or in violation of the principles of natural justice. A palpable and gross error of law apparent on the face of the record may also justify interference but there must in addition be manifest or grave injustice. A I R 1952 S C 319 and AIR 1952 S C 192, Rel. on. AIR 1960 Punj 58 (61, 62) (Pt F) (Pr 5).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—When can issue.

A writ of certiorari lies when the inferior Court or tribunal has exceeded its jurisdiction or when such Court or tribunal has proceeded illegally and no appeal lies. It can be issued only to restrain the exercise of judicial functions as distinguished from ministerial and executive acts. It can be issued to Courts and to officers, boards and tribunals who possess judicial or quasi-judicial powers, and to ministerial bodies when they usurp judicial functions.

It cannot extend to the questioning or annulling of acts which are ministerial, executive or legislative. It is the nature of the act sought to be restrained and not the general character of the tribunal or officer proceeded against which determine the propriety of this writ. 58 Punj L R 512 : ILR (1957) Punj 198 : AIR 1957 Punj 42 (43) (Pt A) (Pr 6) (DB).

[Overruled on another point in A I R 1958 S C 36.]

——Art. 226 (1)—Certiorari.

In determining an application for a writ of certiorari it is not the function of the High Court to sit in appeal on the judgments of the tribunals in the cases which those tribunals have jurisdiction to decide. What it has to see before issuing a writ of certiorari is (1) if the tribunal has acted wholly without jurisdiction or in excess of it, or (2) it has failed to exercise jurisdiction vested in it or (3) it has acted in violation of the principles of natural justice, or (4) whether there is a patent error of law on the face of the record which has resulted in manifest injustice or (5) the determination of the tribunal is mala fide. 1953 Raj L W 460 : ILR (1953) 3 Raj 208 : A I R 1954 Raj 30 (32) (Pt A) (Pr 8) (DB).

144 (a). Authority acting without jurisdiction.

See also Note 148.

● ——Art. 32—East Punjab Holdings (Consolidation and Prevention of Fragmentation) Act (Punj. Act 50 of 1948), Ss. 42, 41 and 21 (4)—Power of revision of State Government under S. 42 — Power to hear appeal given to State Government under S. 21 (4) — Such powers delegated to officer — Order made by such officer cannot be revised by State Government under S. 42 — Its order is nullity which can be set aside under Art. 32.

Per Majority : Where the State Government has, under S. 41 (1) of the East Punjab Holdings (Consolidation and Prevention of Fragmentation) Act, 1948, delegated its power given under S. 21 (4) to hear appeals to an officer, an order passed by such officer is an order passed by the State Government itself and not an 'order passed by any officer under this Act' within the meaning of S. 42. The State Government, therefore, is not entitled under S. 42 to call for and examine the record of the case disposed of by the officer acting as delegate. An order passed by the State Government under S. 42 in such a case is a nullity and deserves to be set aside under Art. 32 of the Constitution of India. A I R 1959 Punj. 157, Overruled.

Per Kapur and Hidayatullah, JJ. (Contra) : The power of the State Government under S. 42 is distinct from the powers under S. 21 (4) and is in the nature of revision. This gives an overall control to the State Government to see that the appellate orders passed by its officers under S. 21 (4) are legal and are proper. Roop Chand v. State of Punjab, (1963) Supp (1) S C R 539 : 65 Punj L R 576 : AIR 1963 S C 1503 (1505, 1506, 1508, 1509, 1510, 1511) (Pt A) (Prs 9, 10, 11, 21, 30, 31).

● ——Art. 32 — Quasi-judicial authority acting without jurisdiction by deciding collateral fact wrongly — Petition under Art. 32 is competent. A I R 1962 S C 1621, Distinguished. State Trade Corporation of India, Ltd. v. State of Mysore, (1963) 1 S C W R 81 : (1963) 3 S C R 792 : (1963) 2 S C J 131 : (1963) 14 S T C 188 : AIR 1963 S C 548 (550) (Pt B) (Pr 12).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Want or excess of jurisdiction or manifest error of law are only grounds for issue of certiorari — Improper findings of fact by inferior tribunal is no ground for interference. 1964 All W R (HC) 666 : 1964 All L J 1054 : A I R 1965 All 366 (367) (Pt B) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Administrative order—Writ of certiorari — Order of Commissioner condoning delay in filing revision under U. P. (Temp.) Control of Rent and Eviction Act is without jurisdiction — It is amenable to writ jurisdiction irrespective of whether it is administrative or quasi-judicial. 1965 All L J 211.

——Art. 226—Grounds of certiorari—Jurisdiction — Error of law or jurisdiction, however gross, not sufficient—Manifest injustice as a result must be shown. (1963) 47 I T R 501 (All).

——Art. 226—Relief under—When open.

In order to entitle a petitioner to obtain relief in a writ petition it is not sufficient that there has been an error of law or that there is want of jurisdiction. It has to be shown in addition that there has been manifest injustice. A I R 1960 All 93, Rel. on. (1962) 4 Fac L R 163 : (1962) 1 Lab L J 682 (All).

——Art. 226—Erroneous decision resulting in refusal to exercise jurisdiction properly vested — Question of jurisdiction is involved — Issue of writ of certiorari quashing the wrong orders—Error manifest and apparent on the face of the record—U. P. Tenancy Act (17 of 1939), S. 180—U. P. Agricultural Tenants' (Acquisition of Privileges) Act (10 of 1949), Ss. 6 and 7-C. A I R 1949 P. C. 239, Rel. on. 1962 All W R (HC) 539 : 1962 All L J 596.

——Art. 226 — Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 47 — Grant of permit under S. 47 on extraneous considerations — Amounts to illegal exercise of jurisdiction — Order can be quashed under Art. 226. See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 47. 1962 All L J 269.

——Art. 226—Error in exercise of jurisdiction—Writ is not issued as matter of right.

No one can, as a matter of right, claim a writ of the nature of Art. 226. High Court can in suitable cases refuse to issue a writ even when the subordinate authorities had committed some error in the exercise of jurisdiction. What is necessary is that some manifest injustice must be caused to the person. AIR 1961 All 169 (172, 173) (Pt D) (Pr 16).

——Art. 226—U. P. Disciplinary Proceedings (Administrative Tribunal) Rules (1947), R. 4 (1)—Matter not covered by rules — Reference and report by tribunal are without jurisdiction and are liable to be quashed. See U. P. Disciplinary Proceedings (Administrative Tribunal) Rules (1947), R. 4 (1). A I R 1960 All 754.

——Art. 226 — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 476—Applicability — Tribunal hearing election petition under Panchayat Raj Act — Not a criminal or Civil Court — Action under S. 476 is without jurisdiction and is liable to be quashed. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 476. A I R 1960 All 561.

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Issue of writ of — Refusal to person of permission by District Magistrate to hold cattle market on his own land—This is unwarranted interference with person's right to use his own land — Order quashed. See Ibid, Art. 19 (1) (f). 1960 All Cr R 358 : 1960 All L J 761.

——Art. 226 — Industrial dispute — Application for permission to dismiss employee—Refusal — Failure to exercise jurisdiction.

The conciliation officer was approached by the employer for permission to dismiss an employee. The application was made on two grounds namely of negligence in discharge of work and of insubordination and disobedience to lawful orders. On the first ground he found that the mistakes were bona fide because the employee was new although the mistakes had been repeated in a matter which did not require any skill. As regards the second ground he held that they were not important because they were subsequent to the charge-sheet relating to the first item and therefore were merely subsidiary to that charge. He therefore refused the necessary permission.

Held, that on both the matters his conclusions were not warranted by the facts and hence in refusing the permission he had failed to exercise a jurisdiction which he should have exercised. AIR 1959 All 406 (407) (Pt B) (Pr 7).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Writ to quash order of suspension passed against municipal employee.

Where an order of suspension passed against a municipal employee was sought to be quashed in a petition for a writ of certiorari and there was no material in the affidavits filed in the case to show that the petitioner was prima facie guilty of serious offence or that his conduct was so reprehensible as to disentitle him to get any relief from the Court or that there were good grounds for suspending him:

Held, that if an order was without jurisdiction it must be quashed by a writ of certiorari and the mere fact that a similar order might later on be passed after legalising the proceedings should not stand in the way of the Court quashing that order : (1787) 100 E R 98, Disting. 1958 All L J 891 : (1959) 1 Lab L J 460 : AIR 1959 All 230 (232, 233) (Pt C) (Pr 8).

——Art. 226—Who can apply—(U. P. Land Reforms (Supplementary) Act (29 of 1952), S. 4).

The enquiry under Act (31 of 1952) affects the rights of parties. A person found to be in cultivatory possession in the year 1359 Fasli gets certain specified rights of tenancy even though these rights are liable to be questioned in separate proceedings. Hence an order by the Sub-Divisional Magistrate reviewing previous order and holding that an enquiry shall be done on an application under S. 4 of Act (31 of 1952) can be challenged by means of a writ petition.

Further if the Sub-Divisional Officer had no jurisdiction to review the previous order his order setting aside that order is clearly vitiated and the enquiry which he is holding as a result of quashing the previous order is also being held without jurisdiction. It calls for the exercise of jurisdiction of the High Court to issue writs of certiorari and prohibition under Art. 226. 1956 A W R (HC) 29 : 1956 All L J 13 : A I R 1957 All 67 (68, 69) (Pt A) (Prs 9, 10) (DB).

——Art. 226—Rules framed under Madras Elementary Education Act, 1920 — Withdrawal of recognition under Rr. 14 and 28 to 28-B—Nature of order of the order withdrawing recognition—Order is without jurisdiction—Order liable to be quashed. See Madras Elementary Education Act (8 of 1920), S. 58. (1962) 1 Andh W R 263.

——Art. 226—Industrial Disputes Act (1947), Ss. 10 (1) (c) and 2 (k)—Power of Government to make reference—Jurisdiction of Tribunal—Basis for—Dispute by individual worker when can be referred—Dispute in instant case held was not industrial dispute—Reference invalid — Subsequent proceedings were therefore without jurisdiction and illegal — (Words and Phrases—'Industrial dispute'). See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 10 (1) (c). A I R 1957 Assam 111.

——Art. 226—Administrative order—Order passed without jurisdiction—Order will be set aside.

The High Court is competent to test the validity of an administrative order in order to give relief to the petitioner; and if it is held that the order was incompetent and passed without jurisdiction by a public body or an individual purporting to act under the authority of law, then the High Court is entitled to interfere and set aside such an order. ILR (1956) 8 Assam 511 : AIR 1956 Assam 162 (164) (Pt D) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Settlement of ganja shop in Assam by Extra Assistant Commissioner on recommendation of Advisory Board constituted by himself—Validity—Settlement Officer has no authority to make the settlement or to nominate an Advisory Council — Order is without jurisdiction. See Eastern Bengal and Assam Excise Act (1 of 1910), S. 8. AIR 1955 N U C (Assam) 1778.

——Art. 226—Assam Municipal Act (1923), S. 89 — Effect of non-compliance—Review application under S. 88—Sub committee required by S. 89 not constituted—Town committee itself deciding matter in Special meeting—S. 89 is not directory in nature—Non-compliance with it affects jurisdiction—Town committee in disposing of review petitions acted in excess of its jurisdiction. See Municipalities — Assam Municipal Act (1923), S. 89. A I R 1953 Assam 132.

——Art. 226—General Clauses Act (10 of 1897), S 9—Scope—Order granting time to tenant to deposit rent by particular date—Failure to deposit—Permission to eject tenant granted on that date — Order is without jurisdiction—Rent controller should have waited till the expiry of that day, within which the rent could be deposited—Order should be set aside—(C. P. and Berar General Clauses Act (1 of 1914), S. 8). See General Clauses Act (1897), S. 9. AIR 1957 Bom 154.

——Art. 226—Sea Customs Act (1878), S. 30 — Real value of imported goods—Asecrtainment of — Value aserttained by Customs Officer under S. 30 without any basis or evidence—It is illegal and without jurisdiction—It is liable to be reviewed by way of certiorari.

The correctness of the decision of a Customs Officer on the real value of imported goods is not open to review. But when the valuation under S. 30 (b) is arrived at, without any finding as to importation and the cost of the imported goods at which goods of the like kind and quality could be delivered at the place of importation the decision is illegal and without jurisdiction. In such a case the decision is liable to reviewed by the High Court by way of certiorari. AIR 1961 Cal 636, Rel. on. , (1963) 1 Cri L J 749 : AIR 1963 Cal 331 (335) (Pt C) (Pr 18).

——Art. 226 — Interference — Grounds — Inferior authority considering matters extraneous to issue — Certiorari.

Certiorari and mandamus will lie if the inferior authority has taken into consideration matters outside the ambit of its jurisdiction and beyond the matters which it was entitled to consider in arriving at its decision. 62 Cal W N 842 : ILR (1960) 1 Cal 83 : (1958) 2 Lab L J 705 : AIR 1959 Cal 1 (7) (Pt C) (Pr 25) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Jurisdiction — Wrong assumption by Industrial Tribunal — Interference.

If the firm of solicitors cannot be said to carry on an industry, then the Industrial Tribunal has no jurisdiction over them to determine a dispute between them and their employees. If the tribunal has claimed jurisdiction, then this assumption of jurisdiction whether by the legal process of construction of, statute or by the determination of what is known as "jurisdictional fact," can be supervised under certiorari jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226 ILR (1959) 2 Cal 211 : 62 Cal W N 484 : (1958) 2 Lab L J 183: (1958) 14 F J R 486 : AIR 1958 Cal 465 (466) (Pt A)(Pr 3).

——Art. 226 — Interference — Order without jurisdiction — Interference — Objection under S. 9, Public Demands Recovery Act — Hearing by person having no powers — Effect.

If a party has availed himself of the ordinary remedies provided for by a special Act, he cannot thereafter turn round and begin once again from the bottom by challenging the original order under Art. 226 of the Constitution If however in the proceedings under the special Act there is found to be an initial lack of jurisdiction the position is different and the High Court can interfere. Where the objection filed by the petitioner under S. 9 of the Public Demands Recovery Act was considered by a person who was not a Certificate Officer, he is to be considered not a judicial body or tribunal. In such a case the application under Art. 226 must succeed. AIR 1957 Cal 430 (431) (Pt B) (Prs 3, 4).

——Art. 226 — Jurisdiction — Absence of — Industrial Tribunal proceeding to decide dispute which was not industrial dispute under Industrial Disputes Act — Writ of prohibition or certiorari upon Tribunal — Writ of mandamus upon Government — (Industrial Disputes Act (1947), Ss. 7 and 10).

Where a dispute which was not an industrial dispute was referred to an Industrial Tribunal by the Government under S. 10, Industrial Disputes Act and the Industrial Tribunal has no jurisdiction to try such a dispute under the Act and yet the Tribunal was proceeding with the matter and the petitioner files his objection to the jurisdiction before the Tribunal there is no difficulty in issuing a writ in the nature of prohibition or certiorari upon the tribunal. Nor is there any difficulty in issuing a writ in the nature of mandamus upon the Government. It is true that there must be a demand for justice and its denial before entertaining an application for a writ in the nature of mandamus. But where it would be futile to make such a demand, it would not be a bar to relief. AIR 1952 S C 16 Rel. on. I L R (1957) 3 Cal 484 : 60 Cal W N 856 : (1957) 1 Lab L J 505 : (1956-58) 12 F J R 309 : A I R 1956 Cal 545 (549, 550) (Pt D) (Pr 20).

——Art. 226 — Scope — West Bengal Food Grains (Intensive Procurement) Order, 1952, Para. 5.

The granting of a right of appeal under Para. 5 of W. Bengal Food Grains Order means that the producer must be given an opportunity to show that the estimate of the Director regarding surplus yield is wrong and consequently the amount of grain that the producer has been asked to deliver as based on that estimate, is also wrong. Where a large number of appeals were decided all together ignoring many of the points raised by individual producers, the Court below must be held to have failed to exercise jurisdiction and to dispose of the cases properly. The High Court can intervene in such cases and can quash the orders by a writ of certiorari and issue a writ of mandamus directing the tribunal to decide the cases according to law. 57 Cal W N 798 : A I R 1954 Cal 97 (97, 98) (Pt B) (Prs 3, 4).

——Art. 226 — Industrial Disputes (Appellate Tribunal) Act (48 of 1950), S. 12 (1) — Order for costs against stranger to proceeding — When can be made — Order against stranger without jurisdiction — Remedy is by application under Art. 226, Constitution of India, and not by appeal under S. 12—Civil P. C. (1908), S. 35 — (Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 11 (7)). See Industrial Disputes (Appellate Tribunal) Act (1950), S. 11 (7). AIR 1953 Cal 37.

——Art. 226 — Application for a writ setting aside the order of the Civil Judge (Senior Division) transferring the election petition to the Joint Civil Judge (Junior Division) for disposal according to law. There was only one Court in Mehsana and that of the Civil Judge (Senior Division) who has jurisdiction to dispose of all proceedings of a civil nature. A Civil Judge (Junior Division) was posted by the High Court only for purpose of assisting him in the disposal of matters filed in the Court of Civil Judge (Senior Division). A civil Judge (Junior Division) so posted as a joint judge at a place where there is no Court of civil Judge (Junior Division) has no independent Court where proceeding can be filed. The Civil Judge (Senior Division) before whom the election petition was filed is a persona designata and he cannot transfer that petition to the joint judge. Writ granted and order set aside. (1962) 3 Guj L R 803.

——Art. 226 — Issue of writ of certiorari.

Under Art. 226 a writ of certiorari can be issued when the person or the Tribunal acts in excess of jurisdiction or fails to exercise jurisdiction which is conferred upon it or in the exercise of its jurisdiction contravenes principles of natural justice. ILR (1953) Hyd 412 : A I R 1953 Hyd 235 (237) (Pt D) (Pr 10) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — When issued.

The issue of writ of certiorari which is discretionary in nature may be granted when the Court below has refused to exercise jurisdiction or there is an absence of jurisdiction. The fact of want of jurisdiction may arise from the nature of the subject matter or from the absence of some essential preliminary proceedings. Mere formal or accidental errors on the face of the proceedings do not afford grounds for certiorari and where the proceedings are regular upon their face and the Court has jurisdiction the superior Court will not grant the writ of certiorari on the ground that the Court below has merely misconceived a point of law nor will it hear evidence impeaching the decision on the facts, but where there was no evidence proper to be considered in support of the point that would be a ground for issue of writ of certiorari.

The fact that a medical certificate was not substantiated by oral evidence can at the most be said to be a material irregularity in the exercise of jurisdiction in not taking evidence and is not a sufficient ground for interference by way of certiorari proceedings : AIR 1936 Mad 969, Rel. on. ILR (1953) Hyd 191 : AIR 1953 Hyd 209 (211) (Pt C) (Pr 6).

——Art. 226— Writ of certiorari is justified when there is failure to exercise jurisdiction. AIR 1951 Bom 853, Rel. on. ILR (1952) Hyd 791 : A I R 1953 Hyd 79 (85, 86) (Pt D) (Pr 27) (DB).

[Reversed on another point in AIR 1956 S C 319.]

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Writ of—Order of Custodian of Evacuee Property—Power of High Court to Interfere—Administration of Evacuee Property Act 1950, S. 7.

Where the foundation of jurisdiction for the Custodian to declare certain property as the property of the evacuee is that the evacuee was in adverse possession and the conclusion that the evacuee was in adverse possession is void in law, there being no material in law to justify that conclusion, the order is ultra vires. The High Court can interfere in such case and quash the order of the Custodian by issuing a writ of certiorari. A I R 1951 Mad 876 ; A I R 1951 Simla 171 and A I R 1949 Mad 535, Rel. on. I L R (1951) Hyd 788 : A I R 1951 Hyd 137 (138) (Pt A) (Prs 6, 7) (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Writ of, to quash decision of appellate authority under Hyderabad Rent Control Order — Civil P. C. (1908). S. 115.

Where the decision of the Appellate Authority under the Hyderabad Rent Control Order, about the application of the doctrine of res judicata is incorrect then the High Court can, in exercise of its extraordinary powers quash his decision on the ground that he has failed to exercise jurisdiction vested in him.

[Power to issue writ compared with power contained in S. 615, Hyderabad Civil P. C. (corresponding to S. 115, Indian Civil P. C.)]. I L R (1951) Hyd 112 : AIR 1950 Hyd 59 (61) (Pt A) (Pr 10) (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari — Writ of — Decision as to refusal to exercise jurisdiction under Civil P. C., S. 115—Value of — Precedents.

Any decision on S. 615 (b), Hyderabad Civil P. C. (corresponding to S. 115, Indian Civil P. C.) may be taken as an authority for holding what amounts to improper refusal of exercise of jurisdiction for purpose of exercising power to issue writ of certiorari. ILR (1951) Hyd 112 : AIR 1950 Hyd 59 (61) (Pt C) (Pr 10) (DB).

——Art. 226—Travancore City Municipal Act (4 of 1116), S 91 (1) — Charges of irregularities against corporation officer — Order of acquittal passed by Mayor after enquiry—Subsequent direction by Government to revive disciplinary action — Order taking action on same charges, held in excess of authority and quashed. See Municipalities — Travancore City Municipal Act (4 of 1116), S. 91 (1). ILR (1960) Ker 519.

——Art. 226 — Error apparent on face of record — Order under Motor Vehicles Act in appeal decided which had become infructuous—Liable to be quashed as being without jurisdiction. 1956 Madh B L J 187 : Madh B L R 1956 Civil 33 : A I R 1956 Madh B 175 (176) (Pt B) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226—Applicability—Action proposed to be taken in excess of statutory authority—Interference —(Central Civil Services (Safeguarding of National Security) Rules (1953), Rr. 3 and 4 (a)).

The High Court has undoubtedly power to interfere where the provision under which the action was intended to be taken was ultra vires the State Legislature. But even where the limits of a valid statutory provision are contravened, there is as much lack of authority in the action proposed as where the statute itself is void. AIR 1954 S C 403, Rel. on. 1957 Nag L J 75 : 1957 M P L J (Nag) 115.

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Writ—Issue of—Failure to exercise jurisdiction — (Tenancy Laws — Madras Estates (Abolition and Conversion into Ryotwari) Act (26 of 1948), S. 12 (a) — (Tenancy Laws — Madras Estates Land Act (1 of 1908), S. 3 (10) (a)).

Where the Tribunal misconceived the scope of S. 3 (10) (a) of the Madras Estates Land Act and S. 12 (a) of Madras Act (26 of 1948), when it in effect applied the test of cultivation in the past as the only and conclusive test, in determining whether the land in question was private land and therefore refused to grant patta under S. 12 (a):

Held that it really amounted to a failure to exercise jurisdiction to decide the issue before it after taking into account all the relevant factors and that the order of the Tribunal had, therefore, to be set aside by the issue of a writ of certiorari. 69 Mad L W 859 : ILR (1957) Mad 436 : 1956 Mad W N 911 : (1956) 2 M L J 595 : AIR 1958 Mad 74 (78) (Pt B) (Pr 25) (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Writ—Grounds of—Order without jurisdiction—Setting aside.

Where the order which is impugned is one passed without jurisdiction and is complained of by a party as prejudicial to his interests and this complaint is not frivolous or without substance it is the duty of the High Court to set aside that order under Art. 226 of the Constitution 70 Mad L W 489 : (1957) 1 Mad L J 244 : 1957 Mad W N 383.

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Rejection of appeal amounting to refusal to exercise jurisdiction—(Motor Vehicles Act (1939), Ss. 64 and 64-A).

Applications for the renewal of a permit and for the issue of a permit, are in effect applications for the grant of a permit. Where on that route only one permit could be granted the granting of the application for renewal would automatically mean the refusal of a permit to the other. The appeal by the other would therefore be perfectly competent as an appeal against the order of the Regional Transport Authority, refusing to grant a permit. The Central Road Traffic Board errs in presuming that it was not open to them in the appeal to consider the merits of the order granting renewal of the permit. The filing of the appeal by the appellant sets at large the order of the Regional Transport Authority granting the renewal. Therefore, the Central Road Traffic Board wrongly rejected the appeal as incompetent and thus refused to exercise a jurisdiction which they had and the Government committed an error which related to jurisdiction in confirming that order. 1955 Mad W N 464 : (1955) 2 M L J 130 : 68 Mad L W 391 : ILR (1956) Mad 24 : AIR 1955 Mad 386 (387) (Prs 2, 3) (DB).

——Art. 226—Order under S. 10 (5), Madras Hereditary Village Offices Act by District Collector appointing a deputy to a post registered in name of minor — Board of Revenue has no jurisdiction to interfere — Order set aside by Board of Revenue—Quashing of See Madras Hereditary Village Offices Act (3 of 1885), S. 10 (5). AIR 1955 Mad 305 (FB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari — Failure to exercise jurisdiction — (Madras Pawnbrokers Act (23 of 1943), S. 22—Rules under - Rule 15).

What has to be considered by the Commissioner of Police under R. 15 of the Rules framed under S. 22 of the Madras Act (22 of 1943) in granting a licence to conduct the business in auction sale of pledges is the auctioneer's suitability, such as reliability, character and other matters and not the suitability of the place where the auction is held. Hence where the Commissioner of Police inquires into the suitability of the building for conducting the auction he fails to exercise a jurisdiction vested in him by law, and his order refusing approval on ground of unsuitability of building can be quashed.

The application for licence was remanded to the Commissioner of Police for reconsideration. 1954 Mad W N 458 : (1954) 1 Mad L J 557 : AIR 1954 Mad 736 (738) (Pr 9).

——Art. 226 – Writ of certiorari—Power to issue when to be exercised.

Whenever any body of persons having legal authority to determine questions affecting the rights of subject and having the duty to act judicially act in excess of their legal authority, they are subject to the controlling jurisdiction of the High Court exercised in issuing writs under Art. 226 ; (1924) 1 K B 171 ; (1931) 2 K B 215 and AIR 1950 S C 222, Foll. 64 Mad L W 882 : 1951 2 Mad L Jour 411 : 1951 Mad W N 882 : 1952 Cri L J 616 : AIR 1952 Mad 276 (277) (Pt A) (Pr 2).

——Art. 226 — Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 64 — Powers of appellate authority—Order of appellate authority without jurisdiction — Order upheld by Government in revision—Writ of certiorari held could be issued as fundamental principles of jurisprudence were violated. See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 64. AIR 1952 Mad 39.

——Art. 226 –Order without jurisdiction—Power of High Court to quash. See Ibid, Art. 311. AIR 1965 Manipur 46.

——Art. 226 — Assam Land and Revenue Regulation (1 of 1886), Ss. 50, 51, 52, 53, 54, 126, 129, 124, 123, 125, 127—Powers of Sub-Deputy Collector—He cannot act under Ss. 50 to 54 and S. 126 (1)—Exercise of jurisdiction not vested—Order quashed. See Tenancy Laws — Assam Land and Revenue Regulation (1 of 1886), S. 50. AIR 1962 Manipur 14.

——Art. 226 –Rules for recruitment—Rules by Mysore Government published under Notification No. G. A. D 114 S. R R. 61, dated 27-12-1962—Rules 3 (2), 4 — Constitution of State Level Recruitment Committee —Word 'may' in R. 3 (2) (iv) means 'shall' — Non-compliance with R. 3 (2) (iv) — Committee is not properly constituted — Order of recruitment made by such committee is invalid and can be quashed under Art. 226. See Ibid, Art. 309. (1965) 2 Mys L J 160 : AIR 1966 Mys 36 (DB).

——Art. 226 –Rectification of mistake apparent from the record — Record contemplated by S. 61, Estate Duty Act is record relating to assessment of estate duty and not any other record—Order of assessment to estate duty fixing valuation of estate at certain figure —Enhancement of valuation after three years on basis of valuation in probate proceedings—Held, not justified either by S. 61 or S. 59. Writ of certiorari issued to quash the order. See Estate Duty Act (1953), S. 61. AIR 1964 Mys 202 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mysore Land Revenue Code (4 of 1888), S 233 — Rules under R. 98—Sale of property by Revenue Inspector—Value of property more than Rs. 200—Exercise of wrong jurisdiction—Interference. See Mysore Land Revenue Code (4 of 1888), S. 233. (1963) 1 Mys L J 301.

——Art. 226 –Refusal to exercise jurisdiction vested by law — Order liable to be quashed. See Houses & Rents—C. P. and Berar Letting of Houses Control Order, Cl. 13 1951 Nag L J (Notes) 105 (DB).

——Art. 226 –Certiorari — Jurisdiction — Failure to consider question of limitation—There is assumption of jurisdiction not vested — See under Houses and Rents — C. P. & Berar Letting of Houses and Rent Control Order, Cl. 25 (1). 1951 Nag L J (Notes) 101 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Industrial Disputes Act (1947), Ss. 2 (k) and 10 (1) — Definition of 'Industrial dispute' contemplates existing industry — Bona fide closure of business — Subsequent reference under S. 10 (1) is illegal—Reference quashed. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 2 (k). AIR 1960 Pat 288.

——Arts. 226 and 227 — Reference of dispute to Industrial Tribunal—Dispute not industrial dispute —Jurisdiction of Tribunal to adjudicate—(Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 10).

Government can only make a reference if in its opinion any industrial dispute exists or is apprehended. The pre-requisite of the jurisdiction is the existence of industrial dispute within the meaning of the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947. If there was no industrial dispute as contemplated by that Act, the Government of India has no jurisdiction to make any reference and a fortiori the Tribunal does not derive any jurisdiction to entertain and dispose of the reference. AIR 1957 Assam 111, Rel. on (1959) 2 Lab L J 639 : (1959.60) 16 F J R 25 : 1959 B L J R 172.

——Art. 226 –Right to apply — Bihar Sales Tax Act (19 of 1947), S. 14-A, Proviso—As amended by Bihar Finance Act (4 of 1955) — Order of forfeiture directing petitioner to deposit into Government Treasury amount of sales tax illegally recovered by him from his customers held invalid as proviso to S. 14 A was unconstitutional — Order quashed by a writ of certiorari. 1956 B L J R 562 : (1956) 7 S T C 609 : 1956 Pat L R 371 : I L R 35 Pat 757 : A I R 1957 Pat 1 (4) (Pt B) (Pr 10) (DB).

——Art. 226 –Certiorari – Issue of writ against Cess Deputy Collector — Bengal Cess Act (9 of 1880), S. 72.

Where the petitioners wrote to the Cess Deputy Collector explaining that the mines and the quarries belonged to a Corporation and the petitioners were only contractors, and, therefore, not liable to submit a return of the annual net profits under S. 72, but in spite of this letter the Cess Deputy Collector served a notice under S. 72 upon the petitioners holding out a threat that if the petitioners did not supply the return within the time given, they would be liable to a penalty of Rs. 50 for every day after the expiry of the time until the return was furnished.

Held, that there had been a virtual determination by the Cess Deputy Collector as to the existence of the collateral fact and therefore the petitioners were entitled to the grant of a writ of certiorari. 1956 B L J R 223 : A I R 1956 Pat 100 (104) (Pt B) (Pr 8) (DB).

——Art. 226 –Bengal Ferries Act (1 of 1885), S. 9 — Lease of tolls of ferries by public auction — Power of District Board to debar intending bidder to bid at the auction — Right of bidder so prevented to claim relief under Art. 226 of the Constitution.

Where powers exercisable by the Magistrate of a District under the Bengal Ferries Act have been conferred upon the District Board under S. 35 and the Chairman decides to lease the tolls of the ferries, S. 9 or for the matter of that, any provision of the Bengal Ferries Act, does not confer any power upon the District Board to debar any person from bidding at the auction. It is open to the Chairman of the District Board to refuse to accept the highest bid, of course for sufficient reason to be recorded in writing.

In such a case he may either accept any bid however low it may be, or may withdraw the tolls from auction and manage the ferries khas. He has, however, no authority to determine, before the auction is held, the suitability or otherwise of the intending bidders and to select those who, in his judgment, are fit, howsoever sound and justifiable his decision may be. Where the Chairman debars an intending bidder (the petitioner) from making any bid, the Chairman violates the provisions of S. 9 and alters the manner prescribed by the statute for conducting the auction. AIR 1954 S C 592, Rel. on.

The action of the Chairman in preferring the other prospective bidders to the petitioner ran counter to the provisions of S. 9 and was, therefore, arbitrary and without jurisdiction.

The discretion vested in the Chairman to refuse to accept any bid after the auction is held, does not entitle him to anticipate the results of the auction and to prevent persons who, in his wisdom, were not desirable from bidding at all.

It follows that the petitioner is clearly clothed with a right to bid at the auction for the settlement of the tolls of the disputed ferries—a right which, by virtue of his conforming to the terms of the notification of the auction is his personal right under the Act, as distinguished from the general right as a member of the public and is thus entitled to a writ under Art. 226 of the Constitution to enforce the performance of a duty imposed by the statute on the Chairman so that he may not exceed his powers.

It is undeniable that no writ can legally issue against the person whose bid has been accepted as the auction for the settlement of the tolls of the disputed ferries, but when the impugned order of the Chairman is set aside, all actions and proceedings taken subsequently in consequence of the said illegal order must automatically fall with it or the position will be simply anomalous and the writ will be in effectual.

In this view, the settlement with such a bidder being clearly without jurisdiction must be set aside. A I R 1953 Pat 370, Foll. A I R 1955 Pat 483 (484, 485, 486) (Prs 3, 4, 5, 6) (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—When can be issued—Gram cutchery assuming jurisdiction to try case and passing orders — Order is without jurisdiction — High Court will interfere — (Bihar Panchayat Raj Act (7 of 1948), S. 62). A I R 1954 Pat 194 (195) (Pt B) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226—Right of Badli workman to permanent post — Requirements — Must have worked for 240 days in twelve calendar months — Ss. 25-B and 25-C of Industrial Disputes Act held not applicable — Direction to employer to absorb Badli workmen on permanent posts held without jurisdiction. See Industrial Dispute. AIR 1962 Punj 553.

——Art. 226 — Writ of certiorari — Failure to exercise jurisdiction by lower appellate Tribunal which it has — Writ can be issued — (Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 64).

Where by declining to go into the merits of the case the Appellate Tribunal of the State Transport Authority fails to exercise jurisdiction in a case where it certainly has that, a writ of certiorari will be issued by the High Court for correcting errors of jurisdiction, as where an inferior Court or Tribunal fails to exercise the jurisdiction it possesses. A I R 1959 Raj 41; A I R 1955 S C 233, Rel. on. 1959 Raj L W 571 : ILR (1959) 9 Raj 625.

——Art. 226 — Jurisdiction — Failure to exercise — Revenue Courts failing to exercise jurisdiction vested in them — Direction by High Court. See Civil P. C. (1908), S. 11. AIR 1957 Raj 281 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Writ of certiorari — Failure to exercise jurisdiction by lower appellate Tribunal which it has — Writ can be issued — (Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 64).

Where by declining to go into the merits of the case the Appellate Tribunal of the State Transport Authority fails to exercise jurisdiction in a case where it certainly has that, a writ of certiorari will be issued by the High Court for correcting errors of jurisdiction, as where an inferior Court or Tribunal fails to exercise the jurisdiction it possesses. A I R 1959 Raj 41; A I R 1955 S C 233, Rel. on. 1959 Raj L W 571 : ILR (1959) 9 Raj 625.

——Art. 226 — Jurisdiction — Failure to exercise — Revenue Courts failing to exercise jurisdiction vested in them — Direction by High Court. See Civil P. C. (1908), S. 11. AIR 1957 Raj 281 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Duty of Custodian to give notice under S. 7, Administration of Evacuee Property Act—Object of notice — Defective notice — Subsequent proceedings are without jurisdiction and are liable to be set aside. See Administration of Evacuee Property Ordinance (27 of 1949), S. 7. A I R 1952 Raj 162.

——Art. 226 — Executive heads wrongly usurping appellate authority and passing orders — Writ of certiorari can issue to quash the orders — (Municipalities—Jodhpur Municipal Act (1943), S. 27).

Where a person without authority sets himself as a judicial tribunal and decides some matter a writ of certiorari will not be granted by the High Court to set aside such a person's order because the order has no force and effect in law and it is unnecessary to set it aside. But the position, is somewhat different in cases where the unauthorised persons who have usurped the jurisdiction to set aside the order of the Officer in charge of the elections are the Additional Commissioner and the Minister in charge to whom the Officer in charge of the elections is certainly subordinate on the executive side. It is possible for the Officer in charge of the elections to think that he is bound by the orders of the superior authorities who have purported to act as appellate authorities. In such a case, therefore, writ of certiorari can be issued under Art. 226. 1952 Raj L W 199 : ILR (1952) 2 Raj 18 : AIR 1952 Raj 104 (106) (Pt D) (Pr 14) (DB).

——Art. 226— Certiorari, writ of against Board of Revenue —Board of Revenue Ordinance (22 of 1949), S. 13 (2)—Rules under R. 6 —Validity.

A second appeal was filed before the Board of Revenue. It was set for hearing before a single member, Board of Revenue, who after hearing the parties passed judgment as follows: "For these reasons as given above, I would, subject to the concurrence of my learned collegue, allow the appeal". The file of the case was passed on to the other member of the Board of Revenue who by his order agreed with the first member. The second member recorded his opinion concurring with the opinion of the first member without hearing the parties or giving notice of hearing to them.

Held that the Board of Revenue had acted in excess of the jurisdiction conferred upon it. Rules or general or Special order of the Government could only be those consistent with the provisions of the Ordinance. Rule 6 purported to authorize two members to hear a case without forming a bench. This rule was contrary to the provisions of Sub-s. (1) of S. 13 which provided only two modes of hearing, either by a member of the Board sitting singly, or by a bench of the Board consisting of two or more members, and was therefore, invalid. Further, R. 6 even as it stood did not say that the second member could express his opinion without giving a notice of hearing to the parties or hearing them should they appear and wish to be heard, and the procedure adopted was not authorized even according to the Rules as they were. The Rajasthan Board of Revenue was a body having two functions one of which was administrative and executive, and the other judicial. The matter that came before the Board was disposed of in the exercise of its judicial function. Hence a writ of certiorari could be issued. Case law discussed. 1951 Raj L W 478 : ILR (1951) 1 Raj 512 : AIR 1952 Raj 46 (47, 48, 49, 50) (Prs 6, 8, 10, 11, 19, 23) (D B).

——Art. 226—Issue of writ of certiorari.

Where any body of persons having legal authority to determine questions affecting the rights of subjects and having the duty to act judicially, acts in excess of its legal authority, a writ of certiorari may issue. AIR 1950 S C 222; AIR 1953 Raj 71; AIR 1953 Sau 3, Rel. on. AIR 1955 Sau 33 (35) (Pt C) (Pr 6) (DB).

——Art. 226—Saurashtra Land Reforms Act (1951), Ss. 12, 13, 18, 46—Writ of certiorari against order of Revenue Tribunal lies only when it is without jurisdiction or when there is manifest error on record — (Constitution of India, Art. 226 — Certiorari). See Tenancy Laws—Saurashtra Land Reforms Act (25 of 1951), S. 12. AIR 1955 N U C (Sau) 4695.

——Art. 226—Civil P. C. (1908), S. 151—No inherent power to review apart from statute except to correct its own mistake — Refusal of application for stage carriage permit by Transport authority— Order confirmed by Government in appeal—Review application allowed on ground that certain mistakes were committed — Order on review held void for want of jurisdiction — (Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 64) — See Civil P. C. (1908), S. 151. AIR 1955 N U C (Trav-Co) 3463.

●——Art. 226 — Board's jurisdiction — Decision of Board beyond its competence — Decision quashed by certiorari. See T. C. Hindu Religious Institution Act (15 of 1950), S. 28 (3). AIR 1954 Trav-Co 470 (FB).

●——Art. 226 — Scope — (Income-tax Act (1922), S. 1).

The Income-tax laws do not form a self-contained Code affording the aggrieved assessee adequate remedies including a reference to the High Court, and the High Court has jurisdiction under Art. 226 if the action complained about is founded on a flagrant assumption of a non-existent jurisdiction. (1952) 2 K B 478, Ref. A. N. Lekshmana Shenoy v. Income-tax Officer, ILR (1953) Trav-Co 1232 : 1953 Ker L T 725 : AIR 1954 Trav-Co 137 (138) (Ft A) (Pr 6) (FB).

——Art. 226—Travancore-Cochin Shops and Establishments Act (9 of 1125), S. 41—Jurisdiction under—Labour Commissioner assuming jurisdiction not available under Act—Order liable to be quashed by certiorari—See Travancore Cochin Shops and Establishments Act (9 of 1125), S. 41. AIR 1953 Trav-Co 325.

——Art. 226—Order of reference under S. 10, Industrial Disputes Act clearly showing nature of dispute to be individual — Order is ultra vires — Proceedings quashed—See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 2 (k). AIR 1952 Trav-Co 249 (DB).

144 (b). Fundamental error.

——Art. 226—Application under R. 6, U. P. (Temporary) Control of Rent and Eviction Rules (1949)—Rent Control officer must consider application before passing allotment order—Failure to consider application before passing order of allotment—Allotment order is liable to be quashed. See Houses and Rents—U. P. (Temporary) Control of Rent and Eviction Act (3 of 1947), S. 7. 1965 All L J 1030.

——Art. 226—Grounds for interference — Powers of Court—Sufficiency of evidence—If can be gone into.

While hearing a writ petition it is not open to the Court to meticulously scrutinise the evidence of the parties and to substitute its own findings for the findings of fact arrived at by the lower tribunal. Nor is it the function of the Court at the stage to go into the question of sufficiency or insufficiency of evidence. A Court would not issue a writ of certiorari unless it finds that the tribunal whose proceedings are impugned had committed a manifest error of law or procedure apparent on the face of the record or had acted in complete disregard of some principle of natural justice or had exceeded the prescribed bounds of jurisdiction. AIR 1956 All 715 (717, 718) (Pt B) (Fr 12) (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari— When can be issued.

It is now well established that if an order impugned by an application for a writ is vitiated by a patent illegality, such as a manifestly wrong view of the law or reliance upon materials procured without observance of the procedural laws applicable, such an order can be quashed by a writ of certiorari. A I R 1957 Cal 447 (448) (Ft B) (Pr 8) (DB).

——Art. 226—Interference—Grounds—Forfeiture of remission earned by prisoner—Punishment not based on proper evidence—Amounts to miscarriage of justice and order is liable to be quashed. See Prisons Act (1894), S. 46. 1957 Cri L J 758 : AIR 1957 Madh Pra 48 (DB).

——Art. 226—Minimum Wages Act (1948), S. 20 (2), Second Proviso—Condition of delay— Sufficient cause—Order condoning delay held vitiated by errors of law and jurisdiction—Order quashed. See Minimum Wages Act (1948), S. 20 (2), Second Proviso. A I R 1965 Mad 292.

——Art. 226 — Exercise of jurisdiction under — Grounds for industrial dispute relating to retrenchment—Fundamental errors committed by Tribunal—High Court can interfere.

Where the industrial tribunal substituted its own finding upon the justification for retrenchment, particularly as influenced or governed by the turn of events subsequent to the decision of the management, and had also permitted evidence on material not germane to the issue and which ought to have been excluded :

Held, that there was both a fundamental error in the criterion of the tribunal, and a failure to exclude extraneous and improper considerations. In the circumstances, the High Court had ample jurisdiction to interfere by the issue of the appropriate writ. A I R 1950 S C 188, Rel. on. 75 Mad L W 25 : (1961-62) 21 F J R 412 : 1962 Mad W N 41 : (1962) 4 Fac L R 346 : (1962) 1 Mad L J 240 : I L R (1962) Mad 554 : (1962) 2 Lab L J 99 : A I R 1962 Mad 226 (227) (Ft A) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226—Contravention of any compelling provision of Constitution — Interference is called for. (1954) 1 Mad L J 244 : A I R 1954 Mad 587 (591) (Pt D) (Pr 6).

——Art. 226—Order of tribunal manifestly erroneous and on misrepresentation of statutory provisions of Mysore Village Offices Act—Order held was liable to be quashed. I L R (1960) Mys 1177.

——Arts. 226 and 311 — Certiorari — Jurisdiction of High Court to issue—Nature of—If order of disciplinary authority is based on no evidence, certiorari will lie, without further proof of mala fides — But if based on any evidence jurisdiction cannot be invoked to question its adequacy. I L R (1965) Cut 147 : (1965) 1 Lab L J 510 : (1965) 7 O J D 136.

——Art. 226 — Election petition allowed on ground not mentioned in S. 100—Representation of the People Act. Decision is in excess of jurisdiction and is amenable to writ jurisdiction. See Representation of the People Act (1951), S. 100. A I R 1954 Vindh Pra 44.

144 (c). Orders contrary to law.

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Issue of — Order wrong in law but rendering substantial justice between parties—High Court will not interfere. 1964 All L J 240 and 1963 All L J 909, Foll. 1965 All L J 945 : 1965 All W R (H C) 708 : A I R 1966 All 156 (157, 158) (Pt B) (Fr 2).

——Art. 226 — Sales Tax Officer affixing notice of assessment on defunct business, knowingly that firm had ceased to exist and, passing ex parte assessment order — Subsequently adding petitioner's name in assessment order and notice of demand — Procedure adopted by him was curious one and in complete disregard of provisions of law — Hence assessment order and notice of demand must be quashed by writ of certiorari. (1965) 16 S T C 146 (All).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari, writ of — Proceedings for liquidation of decretal debt before Collector — U. P. Act 1 of 1951, coming into force during pendency and proprietary rights of J. D. vesting in State Government — Remedy under U. P. Acts, 25 of 1934 and 1 of 1951, for directing Compensation Officer to place compensation money at disposal of Collector, not availed of — Compensation bonds delivered to J. D.—Proceedings started by creditor before Collector to stop payment of compensation bonds and to attach properties of J. D.—Order by Board of Revenue in revision under inherent powers directing Collector to take such action — Writ to quash order of Board of Revenue. See Civil P. C. (1908), S. 151. A I R 1964 All 203.

[Reversed in A I R 1966 All 109.]

——Art. 226 — Income-tax Act (1922), S. 46 (2) — Recovery of tax—Attachment of property—Objections to, must be considered by Collector — Summary dismissal of objections — Order is erroneous and can be quashed. See Income-tax Act (1922), S. 46 (2). (1963) 47 I T R 527 (All).

——Art. 226 — Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 47—Scope—Interest of the public generally—Meaning of —Residence alone is no criterion for grant or refusal of permit—That the husband of applicant was a political sufferer being main ground for grant of permit — Tribunal's order held illegal and quashed. See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 47. 1962 All L J 269.

——Art. 226 — Jurisdiction — Order by subordinate tribunal illegal and without jurisdiction — Power of Court to interfere. See Assam Local Self-Government Act, S. 89. A I R 1955 Assam 97 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Order unwarranted by law — Order directing stoppage of game of 'Housie' played in a member's registered Social Club — Order held unwarranted and illegal and must be quashed—(Public Gambling Act (1867), S. 5). A I R 1955 Assam 84 (85, 86) (Prs 3, 4) (DB).

——Art. 226—Issue of writ of certiorari — Cancellation of permit by Appellate Tribunal without hearing parties affected—(Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 64).

If an inferior Tribunal vested with power to exercise judicial or quasi-judicial functions, adopts a procedure which is contrary to principles of natural justice, its order may be quashed by a writ of certiorari. A I R 1952 S C 179, Rel. on ; A I R 1952 Mad 39, Ref.

Under the Motor Vehicles Act, 1939, the State Transport Authority has a judicial function to perform. It is a quasi-judicial body, and in the exercise of its appellate function, a judicial approach is contemplated. The fact that S. 64 of the Act does not expressly require that a person to whom a permit has been granted should be heard if his permit is to be cancelled, does not affect the obligation to observe principles of natural justice in proceedings before it. The Tribunal therefore exceeds its jurisdiction by cancelling a person's permit and granting it to another person in his absence and without giving him any hearing and the order is liable to be quashed. I L R (1953) 5 Assam 163 : A I R 1953 Assam 157 (158) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 226—Grounds for interference—Order without complying with law — Effect—Order held nullity —Certiorari could issue—See Madras Local Boards Rules (1920), R. 5. AIR 1958 Mad 211.

——Art. 226 — Right to apply under—Order directing not to exercise right — Legality — (Master and servant).

The view that any authority can issue an order that a given person shall not exercise the right conferred upon him by the Constitution to move the Court under Art. 226 is not acceptable since such an order is not a lawful order. The disobedience of such an order cannot be viewed as disobedience of any lawful order.

A was the Headmaster of a school maintained by the Corporation of Madras. His pay was reduced and he was also reverted on certain charges. When he applied to the Commissioner of the Corporation for permission to move the High Court under Art. 226, the Commissioner called upon him to withdraw that application. A offered to withdraw if he was accorded an interview by the Commissioner. That was done but A did not withdraw his application. Thereupon fresh charge for disobedience was put against A and he was suspended and later on removed from the service. On appeal to the Standing Committee A was reinstated in service but his pay was reduced still further :

Held, that the Commissioner had no legal authority to direct A to withdraw the application. Even if A had undertaken that he would withdraw and subsequently failed or even refused to withdraw the Commissioner had no authority to countermand his exercise of the rights of the petitioner under Art. 226. Since the basis of the whole disciplinary enquiry was an unlawful order issued by the Commissioner, the entire proceedings taken by the Commissioner and subsequently by the Standing Committee were without jurisdiction. (1955) 1 Mad L J 464 : 1955 Mad W N 173 : (1955) 1 Lab L J 395 : AIR 1955 Mad 386 (387) (Prs 6, 7).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Orders of State Govt. violating Art. 15 (1) held unconstitutional and ultra vires and liable to be quashed by issue of certiorari. See Ibid, Art. 15 (1). AIR 1964 Pat 393 (DB).

——Art. 226—Scope.

The writ of certiorari applies to judicial or quasi-judicial acts but under Art. 226 an order contrary to express law can be quashed. ILR (1954) Patiala 879 : AIR 1955 Pepsu 20 (22, 23) (Pt B) (Pr 11).

——Art. 226—Punjab Alienation of Land Act (1900), S. 3A — Jurisdiction of Deputy Commissioner and Civil Court — High Court has jurisdiction under Art. 226 to quash orders passed by judicial or quasi judicial bodies which are contrary to law. (Civil P. C. (1908), S. 9). See Punjab Alienation of Land Act (13 of 1900), S. 3A. AIR 1954 Punj 139.

——Art. 226 — Bikaner State Village Panchayat Act (3 of 1928), S. 42 — Order of remand by Nazim — Order is invalid — All that it can do is either to cancel jurisdiction of Panchayat or quash proceedings before it or cancel order or decree of Panchayat in case already decided, leaving parties to approach proper court. See Bikaner State Village Panchayat Act (3 of 1928), S. 42. AIR 1955 N U C (Raj) 5405.

——Art. 226—Duty of appellate court — Dismissal of appeal for default without perusing record—Order is without jurisdiction and can be quashed by writ of certiorari. See Houses and Rents—Jaipur Rent Control Order (1947), S. 12 (2). AIR 1952 Raj 180 (DB).

144 (d). Errors on face of record.

See also Note 139.

——Arts. 226 and 227 — Certiorari—Error of law — Interference — Powers of High Court—Proceedings under S. 12, Madras Estates (Abolition and Conversion into Ryotwari) Act — Conclusion of Tribunal justified on the evidence on record—Order not interfered — Error must be apparent on face of record — Tenancy Laws — Madras Estates (Abolition and Conversion into Ryotwari) Act (26 of 1948), Ss. 11, 12. AIR 1958 S C 398; A I R 1954 S C 215;

AIR 1960 S C 137 and A I R 1955 S C 425, Rel. on. (1963) 1 Andh L T 296.

——Art. 226—Certiorari or mandamus — Conditions for issuance of writs.

Unless there is a manifest injustice or the error apparent on the face of the record is equally manifest, Courts will not exercise their writ jurisdiction. The remedy by way of a writ of certiorari or mandamus is of a very special character. Writ of certiorari will only be issued if the conditions for its issuance existed. A I R 1955 S C 233; AIR 1954 S C 440; AIR 1958 S C 398, Rel. on. A I R 1960 Mad 425 and AIR 1960 S C 879, Disting. (1961) 2 Lab L J 526 : 1961 Andh L T 873.

——Art. 226 — Nature and scope of High Court's power — Writ of certiorari against Election Tribunal.

The jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226 however excessive it may be, is not so wide or large as to enable the High Court to convert itself into a Court of appeal and examine for itself the correctness of the decision impugned and decide what is the proper view to be taken or the order to be made. When after a reading of the judgment of the Election Commissioner and on a consideration of the arguments advanced the High Court is not satisfied that there is any manifest error apparent on the face of the order made by the Election Commissioner or that the conclusion reached by the Election Commissioner is one which no judicial mind can reasonably reach, it will refuse to issue a writ of certiorari. A I R 1954 S C 440, Ref. AIR 1955 N U C (Andhra) 4178.

——Art. 226 — Powers of High Court—Certiorari—Order of Appellate Board under S. 64, Motor Vehicles Act—Interference.

The High Court will not issue a writ of certiorari quashing the order of the Appellate Board under S. 84, Motor Vehicles Act, unless it is clear from the order itself that the Board has either exceeded the limits of its jurisdiction or has committed any manifest error of law in the exercise of its jurisdiction. The ambit of its appellate powers is very wide and if the Appellate Board has adopted certain principles in preferring one applicant to the other, the High Court even though it may hold a different view from the Appellate Board, will not quash the order. ILR (1960) 12 Assam 225 : (1960) 1 Assam L R 7 : A I R 1961 Assam 26 (29) (Pt B) (Prs 5, 6) (DB).

——Arts. 32 and 226—Jammu and Kashmir Constitution, S. 103 — Conviction for contempt — Order manifestly illegal — Case is fit one for issue of writ to set aside order 1957 Cri L J 1400 : A I R 1957 J & K 52 (52) (Pr 3).

——Art. 226 — Interference — Grounds—Award of industrial tribunal—No apparent jurisdictional defect — No interference under Art. 226 See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 10. AIR 1958 Ker 135 (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari, when can issue.

Apart from questions of jurisdiction, a writ of certiorari can also be issued where a Tribunal has committed mistakes apparent on the face of the record or committed flagrant violation of law. AIR 1952 S C 192, Rel. on. Indian and English case law referred. ILR (1954) Mys 47 : AIR 1954 Mys 102 (108) (Pt D) (Pr 12) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Writ of certiorari — When can be issued.

A writ of certiorari cannot be granted to quash a decision of an inferior Court acting within its jurisdiction, on the ground that the decision is wrong. It is not open to the High Court to canvass the reasoning of the impugned decision, unless it can be shown that the authority which passed that order acted without jurisdiction, or in excess of it, or in violation of the principles of natural justice. AIR 1952 S C 319, Rel. on.

The correct rule is that there must be an error apparent on the face of the record or of the order impugned; or that the error should be admitted in the face of the Court; and the error must be an error of law which affects the jurisdiction of the tribunal. The mere fact that two views are possible on a question of fact would not be sufficient to hold that the order of the tribunal is bad and to justify the issue of a writ of certiorari to quash that order. Case law referred. ILR (1953) Cut 682 : AIR 1954 Orissa 67 (68, 69, 70) (Pt D) (Prs 7, 10) (DB).

——Art. 226—Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 10-A—Award of compensation for loss caused by strike—Arbitrators not considering dominant purpose of Trade Unions combining to strike — Award must be quashed—Tort—Conspiracy. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 10 A. AIR 1963 Pat 170.

——Art. 226 — Interference — Grounds—Permanent permit granted to State Road Transport Corporation in violation of S. 57 (2) of the Motor Vehicles Act—Held, that there was only technical violation of S. 57 (2) and that was a mere irregularity causing no prejudice to petitioner under Art. 226 who was not displaced operator but Mukia of Gram Panchayat—Hence High Court was not justified in exercising its jurisdiction under Art. 226 for cancellation of the permanent permit AIR 1960 S C 350, Dist.; AIR 1959 S C 1378, Foll. 1961 B L J R 18 : AIR 1960 Pat 575 (581, 582) (Pt G) (Pr 11) (DB).

144 (e). Absence of reasons for decision.

——Art. 226 — Affirming order of Government in revision, not giving reasons—Order cannot be quashed on this ground. See Municipalities — Hyderabad Municipal Corporations Act, 1955 (2 of 1956), S. 679. AIR 1961 Andh Pra 489.

——Art. 226 — Jurisdiction — Order failing to give reasons—Effect.

When judicial orders are passed, they must disclose on their face that the mind of the authority was directed to the facts and law bearing on the case and was properly applied. It is therefore necessary that the order of a tribunal exercising judicial functions should ex facie show reasons not only for setting aside the orders of the subordinate tribunals but also for confirming the same. 1955 Andh L T (Civ) 831 : 1956 Andh W R 652 : AIR 1957 Andhra 739 (742) (Pt B) (Prs 13, 14).

——Art. 226 — Arms Act (1878), S. 18 (a) — Order cancelling licence not disclosing any reasons — Validity — Order is without jurisdiction because it does not disclose reasons or that it was necessary for security of public peace and must be quashed. See Arms Act, S. 18 (a). AIR 1955 NUC (Andhra) 4478.

——Art. 226 — Jurisdiction — Order cancelling Arms licence without stating reasons — Legality — Interference. See Arms Act, S. 18 (a). AIR 1955 Assam 183 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy available — Inferior Court wrongly deciding facts which are conditions precedent to exercise of jurisdiction — Order complained of not giving reasons — Person responsible for order filing affidavit — Speaking order — Power of Court to quash

A writ of certiorari will be granted ex debito justitiae to quash proceedings which the Court has power to quash, where the application is by an aggrieved party and the existence of an alternative remedy cannot stand in the way of the writ being issued, where the objection to jurisdiction is apparent on the face of the proceedings.

If the inferior Court has decided wrongly facts which are conditions precedent to the exercise of jurisdiction such decision may be questioned and the superior Court has power to quash it by certiorari.

Where the orders complained of do not set out the reasons therefor and the person responsible for making the orders has set forth the reasons in the affidavit filed by him in Court, the affidavit has the effect of making those orders "Speaking orders" and hence the High Court has power to quash the orders by writ of certiorari. ILR (1952) 2 Cal 412 : 56 Cal W N 73 : 88 Cal L J 137 : AIR 1952 Cal 112 (116) (Pt F) (Fr 33).

——Art. 226 — Suspension or cancellation of Arms license—Recording of reasons must be by Authority —It must appear from order that it was passed for security of public peace—Conditions are mandatory —Conditions not complied with — Order is without jurisdiction and must be quashed. ILR (1965) Guj 571.

——Art. 226 — Cancellation of licence under S. 18, Arms Act, 1878 — No reasons given — Order is without jurisdiction. See Arms Act (1878), S. 18. 1954 Cri L J 1530 : AIR 1954 Pepsu 150.

144 (f). Bias and mala fides.

See also Note 129.

——Art. 226 — Administrative orders —Quashing of — Grounds.

An administrative order can be quashed by the High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution provided it is without jurisdiction or is arbitrary and mala fide. If the order is based on considerations which are outside the ambit of the law which empowers an authority to pass that order, such an order is clearly without jurisdiction. If an order is based on questions of fact without giving sufficient opportunity to the party affected to meet those allegations, such an order is in violation of the principles of natural justice and can be quashed by the High Court under Art. 226. 1957 All L J 257 : 1957 All W R (H C) 396 : AIR 1957 All 359 (361) (Pt A) (Fr 5).

[Overruled in AIR 1964 All 7 (FB).]

——Art. 226 — Grant of license for country spirit shop — Bias —Proof of —Authorities free to choose under law—No question of discrimination can arise —Grounds of certiorari — (Evidence Act (1872), S. 101—Bad faith)—(Bengal Excise Act (5 of 1909), Ss. 37 (c), 45).

A, B, C and D were licensees of country spirit shops at places O, P, Q and R respectively. D's license was cancelled during currency of licensing period. B was appointed by A. D. M. licensee of shop at R subject to condition that he would surrender his license for shop at P and in the vacancy caused, C was appointed licensee for shop at P. A, B and C had been in trade for a long time. For shop at *, brother of B was appointed licensee. Appeal and revision by A against these appointments failed. In writ by A, the question of bias and the non-observance of executive instructions were at issues.

Held (i) that mala fides, by no means, had been established. There was, therefore, no reasonable apprehension of bias having vitiated the decision of authorities. Whether in a given case bad faith has been proved, is always a question of fact. It is true that it is not always possible nor even necessary to establish affirmatively facts from which an inescapable conclusion of bad faith may be reached. All that the law requires is that there should be circumstances proved from which a reasonable likelihood of bias can be inferred and if such proof is available then the decision of the authority concerned is liable to be set aside. AIR 1960 S C 468 and AIR 1959 S C 308, Cons.

(ii) that there being competition between two persons A and B having the same or nearly the same record, it was always open to the authority concerned to make its own choice. No question of discrimination can properly arise when the authorities are free, under the law, to choose between one old licensee and another for purposes of promotion.

And (iii) that the order of A D.M. under Ss. 37 (c), 45 of Bengal Excise Act. was a very full and comprehensive order which took into account the rival claims of the respective candidates for selection as licensee for shop at R. An order liable to be tested under Art. 226, unless is a "speaking order," would not be liable to certiorari. For a writ of certiorari to go, there has to be one or another of several conditions present which would justify interference by this Court. It must be shown that the order in question was made without jurisdiction or that the authority making it exceeded its jurisdiction; it has to be shown that the rules of natural justice have been violated or it has to be shown that the order suffers from some error apparent on the face of the record. It is not enough that there should be some error vitiating the order. It is necessary that the error must be an error of law patent on the face of the order itself. AIR 1958 S C 398, App. 1964 Cal L J 78.

144 (g). No ground.

● ——Art. 226—Jurisdiction—Meaning of—Decision of judicial or quasi-judicial authority — Issue of certiorari against order — When lies—Quasi judicial authority having jurisdiction to decide a matter—Jurisdiction is not lost by coming to a wrong decision, whether the error is in law or in fact—Question whether tribunal has jurisdiction depends not on truth or falsehood of facts into which it has to enquire or upon the correctness of the finding upon these facts, but upon their nature and it is determinable, at the commencement and not at the conclusion of the inquiry. See Civil P. C. (1908), S. 9. AIR 1962 S C 1621.

● ——Art. 226 — Income-tax Act (1922) S. 34 (1)—Previous assessment under Mysore Income-tax Act — Failure of assessee to disclose material facts in respect of entry in accounts of next year—Notice of re assessment — Validity — Effect of S. 13 (1), Finance Act, 1950 — Notice held within jurisdiction and no writ issued. See Income-tax Act (1922), S. 34 (1). AIR 1961 S C 1149.

● ——Art. 226 — Certiorari—Election tribunal — Power of election tribunal to allow amendment under O. 6, R. 17, C. P. Code — Held in allowing general amendment contemplated by O. 6, R. 17, Civil P. C., the tribunal had not acted without jurisdiction so as to warrant issue of a writ of certiorari. See Representation of the People Act (1951), S. 83 (3). AIR 1954 S C 440.

——Art. 226 — Power of Election tribunal to consider objection to election raised in written statements— Tribunal having jurisdiction to decide questions— High Court cannot interfere even if decision is wrong. See Representation of the People Act (1951), S. 80. AIR 1954 Ajmer 33.

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Issue of — Petitioners not in cultivatory possession, treated as khudkasht owners by Settlement Officer — Deputy Director also finding petitioners not to be in cultivatory possession of land and correcting error of law committed by Settlement Officer — Mere mistake by Deputy Director in saying that there was no evidence while setting aside Settlement Officer's order will not entitle petitioner to writ of certiorari. Decision in Civil Misc. Writ No. 2305 of 1964, D/- 17-9-1964 (All), Affirmed. 1965 All W R (H C) 125 : 1965 All L J 313 : AIR 1966 All 173 (173, 174) (Pt B) (Pr 1) (D B).

—— Art. 226 — U. P. Consolidation of Holdings Act, 1953 (5 of 1954), S. 48 — Director exercising power of revision under S. 48 in excess of power vested — Order proper and equitable not resulting in injustice to petitioner — Held, order should not be set aside under article.

A revision against the order of a Settlement Officer (Consolidation) was allowed by the Director of Consolidation under S. 48 of Consolidation of Holdings Act. Though the Director acted in excess of the jurisdiction vested in him under S. 48, it was found that the order was proper, equitable and just and no manifest injustice had resulted to the petitioner.

Held, that it was not a fit case where the High Court should exercise its equitable jurisdiction of issuing a writ under Art. 226 for the purpose of setting aside the equitable order and restoring a position which was not fair to the parties. AIR 1952 S C 192, Foll.

The writ jurisdiction of the High Court is an equitable jurisdiction which is to be exercised in the interest of justice and not merely for the purpose of enforcing the technicalities of law. 1964 All W R (H C) 155 : 1964 All L J 240.

——Art. 226 — Transfer of pending election petition from one judicial officer to another—No provision in Rules for transfer — Transferee Officer should hear petition de novo—Failure to try de novo — Certiorari will not issue when no prejudice is caused thereby. See Municipalities—U. P. Town Areas Act (2 of 1914). 1960 All L J 441.

——Art. 226—Interference — Grounds—Order under Motor Vehicles Act—Issue of writ — Case held not fit for writ under Art. 226. See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 4-A. AIR 1957 Andh Pra 383 (DB).

——Art. 226—Settlement holder—Settlement Rules—Development Rate Scheme—Allotment—Non-payment of premium—Eviction of allottees is proper and justified — No excess of jurisdiction or illegal exercise of jurisdiction—Cannot be challenged by a writ petition —See Assam Local Revenue Regulation (1 of 1886), S. 3 (b). AIR 1955 N U C (Assam) 2810.

——Arts. 228 and 286—Certiorari when can issue — Sales whether in course of export out of India—Decision of Sales Tax Officer—Issue of writ.

Certiorari can issue either if the Sales Tax Officer acts without jurisdiction or there is an error apparent on the face of the record. Even if the Sales Tax Officer decides wrongly the question whether the sales took place in the course of export out of India, that would not be decision without jurisdiction and there can be no error apparent on the face of the record when the sole point on which there is said to be an error was not raised before the Sales Tax Officer. (1959) 10 S T C 68 (Cal).

——Art. 226—Departmental enquiry—Charge sheet worded in language of S. 5 (1) (d), Prevention of Corruption Act — Objection to jurisdiction — Maintainability — (Central Civil Services (Classification, Control and Appeal) Rules (1957), R 15) — (Prevention of Corruption Act (1947), S. 5 (1) (d))—(Criminal Law Amendment Act (1952), S. 7).

Where the official was being proceeded against departmentally under R. 15 of the Central Civil Services (Classification, Control and Appeal) Rules 1957 but the wording of the charge-sheet in the proposed departmental inquiry had followed the language of S. 5 (1) (d) of the Prevention of Corruption Act only to show clearly what the allegations against the official were, it cannot be said departmental proceedings were without jurisdiction and liable to be quashed, was untenable. Under the circumstances there is no ground for interference with the departmental enquiry in the exercise of the High Court's extraordinary powers under Art. 226 of the Constitution. AIR 1959 Him Pra 12 (13, 14) (Prs 1, 3, 7, 11).

——Art. 32 (2-A)—Certiorari—Grounds for—Refusal to adjourn hearing—No ground to interfere — (Constitution of Jammu and Kashmir, S. 103 — (Civil P. Code (1908), O. 17, R. 1).

Where, in a telegram for adjournment of a hearing no ground at all was indicated, nor was any referred to in the petition filed; the refusal to adjourn cannot be said to be unjustified. Matters like this are not properly within the sphere of writ jurisdiction, unless it be for the purpose of showing that there has been a failure of natural justice.

Where the procedure adopted by the Custodian General did not amount to a denial of natural justice, nor was there any defect of jurisdiction or violation of the principles of natural justice or any error of law manifest on the face of the record to justify interference in certiorari, the quashing of the Custodian General's order was likely to result in injustice to respondents.

Held, that there was no reason for interfering with the order of the Custodian General. AIR 1959 J & K 123 (125) (Pt C) (Prs 6, 9).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Lower tribunal's order valid though passed on erroneous reasons — Writ cannot be granted — (J. & K. Constitution (1956), S. 103). AIR 1959 J & K 17 (18, 19) (Pr 7).

——Art. 226 — Administrative directions—Errors of fact and not of law—No writ will issue.

The order of the Government of Madras in the Home Department G. O. Ms. No. 1298, dated 28-4-1956 embodies mere administrative directions and the mistakes made in the allocation of marks even if they are established, will not attract jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution. The mistakes alleged, even if they are established, will amount only to errors of fact. Only errors of law apparent on the face of the record are amenable to correction under Art. 226 of the Constitution; and errors of fact, however patent on the face of the record, cannot be so corrected. 1963 Cur L T 78 and Civil Appeal No. 198 of 1962 D/- 17-9-1952 (S C) and AIR 1961 S C 970, Rel on. 1963 Ker L J 239 : (1963) 1 Ker L R 266 : 1963 Ker L T 609 : AIR 1963 Ker 357 (358) (Prs 4, 5) (DB).

——Art. 226—Interference—Grounds—State Transport Authority interfering with order of Regional Transport Authority in matter of permit — Interference in writ proceedings — (Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 64-A).

In order to satisfy itself whether the order of the Regional Transport Authority was legal, regular or proper, the State Transport Authority under S. 64-A of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1939, was not deciding the existence of a collateral fact but the issue itself as to the legality, regularity or the propriety of the order.

By enacting S. 64-A, Motor Vehicles Act, the Legislature clearly intended that the State Transport Authority should have the powers to intervene if it was satisfied that the order in question passed by the Regional Transport Authority in the matter of granting permit, if it was satisfied that the order in question was either illegal, irregular or improper. It would not be open to a Court exercising the power of certiorari to intervene merely because it might be of the opinion that the view taken by the State Transport Authority was erroneous. A I R 1956 S C 463, Foll. 1958 Ker L J 497 : 1958 Ker L T 410 : 1958 Mad L J (Cr) 518 : A I R 1958 Ker 341 (344) (Pt B) (Prs 11, 12).

——Arts. 226 and 227—Jurisdiction of High Court.

When the Tribunal has jurisdiction to come to the conclusion and pass the order and there is no lack of evidence to support the conclusion reached by the Tribunal, the jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution is not attracted. The invocation of Art. 227 as well does not widen the circumstances in which a writ of certiorari will issue. 1957 Ker L J 1091: 1957 Ker L T 1271: (1958) 1 Lab L J 47 : I L R (1958) Ker 376 : A I R 1958 Ker 192 (193, 194) (Prs 6, 8) (DB).

——Art. 226—Duty of applicant.

A party by his conduct can disentitle himself to relief under Art. 226 of the Constitution.

Held, that the petitioner by not raising the question of jurisdiction before the Agricultural Income-tax Officer so conducted himself as to preclude himself from getting relief even on the assumption that the assessment concerned was made without jurisdiction. 1958 Ker L J 783 : 1958 Ker L T 958.

——Art. 226—Certiorari if can be issued to quash erroneous decision of inferior tribunal within its jurisdiction—(Civil P. C. (1908), S. 9).

A writ of certiorari cannot be granted to quash the decision of the inferior Court within its jurisdiction on the ground that the decision is wrong.

If a certain state of facts has to exist before an inferior Tribunal has jurisdiction to do certain things, the Tribunal must, to enable itself to obtain jurisdiction, find that those facts exist. The Tribunal cannot give itself jurisdiction by a wrong decision on them and the superior Court may by means of proceedings for certiorari inquire into the correctness of the decision. The decision as to those facts is collateral because, though the existence of jurisdiction depends thereon, it is not the main question which the Tribunal has to decide. If on the other hand the Tribunal is given jurisdiction to determine certain facts and those facts form a part of the very issue which the Tribunal has to decide and the Act constituting the Tribunal gives it the power to come to a final decision on that matter then the decision of the Tribunal cannot be treated as one going to its jurisdiction and cannot, therefore, be questioned in any Court. AIR 1952 S C 179, 192 and 319, Rel. on ILR (1954) M B 76 : A I R 1953 Madh-B 197 (202, 203) (Pt D) (Pr 14) (DB).

——Art. 226—Jurisdiction — Scope of interference regarding acts of tribunal.

While a tribunal cannot act without jurisdiction or refuse to exercise a jurisdiction, acts performed by it with jurisdiction cannot be the subject of a writ, unless there is an error of law apparent on the face of the record or there has been a violation of the principles of natural justice or the case otherwise warrants interference on well settled principles. When a tribunal decides matters rightly as well as wrongly but with jurisdiction, the remedy in such cases can only be an appeal where one lies and not Art. 226 of the Constitution which does not confer appellate jurisdiction on High Courts. 1959 M P L J (Notes) 4.

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Impugned order of the lower Court challenged on the ground of jurisdiction —Objection not taken before that authority — Objection cannot be permitted in proceedings to obtain writ of certiorari either on the ground of acquiescence or from the stand point of certiorari. I L R (1964) 2 Mad 747 : 78 Mad L W 241 : (1965) 1 Mad L J 594 : A I R 1965 Mad 321 (323) (Pt D) (Pr 4).

——Art. 226—Certiorari — Nature of proceedings — High Court cannot interfere with quantum of punishment imposed by competent authority.

The High Court in a petition for certiorari, does not exercise an appellate jurisdiction and it cannot, therefore, interfere with the quantum of punishment decided by a competent authority. 76 Mad L W 36 : (1963) 1 Mad L J 225 : 1963 Mad W N 275 : AIR 1963 Mad 205 (207) (Pt E) (Pr 9).

——Art. 226 — Private institution recognized and aided by the Government— Termination of the services of the employee by the institution — Rights of parties governed only by the contract of service, express or implied — Conditions imposed by the administrative rules framed under the Madras Elementary Education Act (8 of 1920) for continuance of recognition and aid — Cannot be invoked for redress of employee's rights — Writ under Art. 226 of the Constitution will not issue. (1962) 1 Mad L J 269 : 75 Mad L W 267 : A I R 1962 Mad 387 (389) (Prs 7, 8, 10).

——Art. 226 — Industrial Disputes — Dismissal of workman — Power of Industrial Tribunal to interfere and give appropriate relief — Termination of service for misconduct after proper enquiry— No suggestion that conclusion was perverse or vitiated by improper motive — Award of Labour Court directing reinstatement held was without jurisdiction. (1960-61) 19 F J R 268 : (1961) 1 Mad L J 318 : (1960) 1 Lab L J 481 : A I R 1961 Mad 85 (86, 87) (Prs 4, 5).

——Art. 226 — Order of tribunal under S. 20 (3), Minimum Wages Act — Requirement of second proviso to S. 20 (2) not satisfied before admitting application—Susbtantial justice done between parties — Writ of certiorari to set aside order will not issue — (Minimum Wages Act (1948), S. 20 (2) and (3)). (1955-56) 8 F J R 234 : 68 Mad L W 402 : 1955-1 Mad L J 534 : A I R 1955 Mad 569 (571) (Pt C) (Pr 13).

——Art. 226 — Writ of certiorari —Erroneous decision — (Madras Shops and Establishments Act (36 of 1947), S. 41.)

The jurisdiction of a Court over a subject-matter does not depend upon whether its conclusions are correct or not; the Court has jurisdiction to decide wrong as well as right. Where therefore the subject-matter of the appeal is clearly within the exclusive jurisdiction of the Commissioner under S. 41 (2) of the Madras Act 36 of 1947 and there is no question of any irregularity, no writ of certiorari can be issued merely because the order is erroneous on the merits. A I R 1952 S C 179, Foll. Case Law referred.

Though the Court of appeal in England has held that certiorari will lie to quash the decision of a statutory tribunal on the ground of an error of law apparent on the face of the record and though it could be said of the order of the Commissioner that it is based on a misdirection which is an error of law, the High Court has no jurisdiction to interfere with it under Art. 226 in view of the Supreme Court's decision in A I R 1952 S C 179, 1952-1 E R 122 Ref. 1953 Mad W N 744 : (1953) 2 Mad L J 639 : 66 Mad L W 1038 : A I R 1954 Mad 377 (381) (Pt F) (Pr 11).

——Art. 226 — Grounds for issue — Supersession of Panchayat Board — Local Boards Act (14 of 1920), S. 45-A (1)— Directions from Government to Inspector in regard to matters already delegated to him — Validity of the Inspector's orders of supersession.

The Inspector of Municipal Councils and Local Boards to whom the powers of the Government under S. 45-A had been delegated issued an order superseding a Panchayat Board under S. 45-A (1) of the Act. Before the issue of proceedings the Government had communicated their view to the Inspector in unequivocal terms that there was sufficient reason for such supersession and even mentioned a particular individual as the Special Officer to be appointed. The order of supersession was attacked on the grounds (i) that the Inspector was not given an opportunity to form his own individual opinion on the material available and (ii) that the Inspector did not make any inquiry as regards the charges.

Held, (1) Though ordinarily not only the interference from Government would be deprecated, but an order passed after such interference would have been quashed, as it appeared from the file that though official orders had not been actually passed by the Inspector, he himself proposed to take steps for supersession, the mere fact that the Government set its seal of approval would not render the order invalid. Further, the Government was entrusted with the duty of supervision over Local Boards and though they cannot dictate to the Inspector what ultimately he should do, they certainly could initiate proceedings by moving the Inspector to take action.

(2) Though it was irregular to name the officer even before the Board was superseded, it would not vitiate the action of the Inspector.

(3) There must be something ex facie in the order passed by officers with statutory powers, to show that there are reasons for the order and the conclusion is based on materials before them. But merely because the order could have been more full, is not a ground for interference by way of issuing a writ, especially when an explanation was called for and submitted by the Board and presumably considered by the Inspector. (1951) 1 Mad L J 285 : A I R 1951 Mad 775 (777) (Pt C) (Pr 8) (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Order determining fair rent — Interference by High Court — Writ of certiorari — Application for — That the order is wrong is no ground for interference. See Houses and Rents — Madras Buildings (Lease and Rent Control) Act, 1946 (15 of 1946), S. 4. A I R 1950 Mad 555 (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 227 — Order of Revenue Court refusing to declare petitioner as occupancy tenant — Interference—(Tenancy Laws — C. P. Tenancy Act (1 of 1920), S. 41).

A writ of certiorari does not issue on the ground that there was no evidence in support of the finding, or that the Court has misdirected itself in considering the evidence. Absence of evidence does not vacate the jurisdiction of the Court. (1922) 2 A C 128, Rel. on. 1955 Nag L J 732 : ILR (1955) Nag 741 : A I R 1956 Nag 65 (65, 66) (Pt A) (Prs 3, 4) (DB).

——Art. 226—Board of Revenue — Jurisdiction—Domestic matter — Order not going beyond powers conferred — No interference. See Judicial Precedents. A I R 1954 Nag 191 (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 227—Jurisdiction—Appeal allowed on ground tenable—Order is not without jurisdiction —Motor Vehicles Act, S. 64.

The appeal to the S. T. A. raised grounds that were not tenable and also those on which the appeal was tenable. The appeal was allowed on ground that was tenable.

Held, that the appellate order was not without jurisdiction. 1952 Nag L J (Notes) 29 (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Writ of—Grounds.

If a question of law is specifically referred to an arbitrator for decision and he decides it, a Court of law will not interfere with the award even if the Court itself would have taken a different view on the point of law had it been placed before it. 1923 A C 395 and A I R 1949 P C 334, Rel. on. Where the interpretation of a specific provision in an award was referred to the Industrial Tribunal for adjudication, the decision of the Tribunal on that point cannot be set aside merely because the Court would have come to a different conclusion. A I R 1957 Pat 471 (474) (Pt B) (Pr 5) (DB).

—Art. 226 — Order for eviction of tenant—Execution — Executing Court deciding that it has jurisdiction to execute order — Decision affirmed in appeal—Order of appellate Court even if wrong is not without jurisdiction — Writ of certiorari cannot be issued — (Civil P. C. (1908), S. 9). ILR 31 Pat 708 : 1953 B L J R 132 : AIR 1953 Pat 61 (62, 63) (Pt B) (Pr 5).

——Art. 226 — Pepsu Holdings (Consolidation and Prevention of Fragmentation) Act 5 of 2007 BK.), Ss. 20, 35, 41 — Illegal order of Settlement officer — (Constitution of India, Art. 226—Certiorari—Irregular assumption of juri diction) — Held, that the order of Settlement Officer ought not to be set aside under Art. 226 on the only ground that only a revision was permissible and no appeal lay under the Act against the order of the Settlement officer. See Pepsu Holdings (Consolidation and Prevention of Fragmentation) Act (5 of 2007 BK.), S. 20. A I R 1955 N U C (Pepsu) 6024.

——Art. 226—Writ of certiorari—Issue of—Order of review by Custodian of evacuee property—Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950), S. 26.

Where the review proceedings were started by the very Custodian who had made the original order and consequently it could not be said that the review proceedings were without jurisdiction, the taking of additional evidence, even if it was not legal, could not vitiate the proceedings, nor could it be said that the final order of review was without jurisdiction. There is, therefore, no justification for issuing a writ of certiorari quashing the order of the Custodian. 3 Pepsu L R 347 : AIR 1952 Pepsu 82 (84) (Pt C) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Government servant transferred to distant place—Place not suitable on grounds of ill-health of near relatives of servant — Servant appealing to higher authorities to change place of transfer but without success—Servant tendering resignation with one month's pay—Authorities not accepting resignation and threatening servant with proceedings under Defence of India Rules (1962) — Transfer order challenged on grounds of mala fides—Held, on facts that there was no sufficient material to grant relief claimed — Duties of Government and Public servants in democratic set up fully explained. A I R 1965 Punj 455 (456, 457) (Prs 8, 9, 10).

——Art. 226 — Punjab Security of Land Tenures Act (10 of 1953), Ss 9 (1) (i), 24 and 84 —Punjab Security of Land Tenures Supplementary Rules (1956), R. 13 — Application for reservation and resettlement of land — Procedure to be followed — Misdescription of nomenclature by authorities — No ground for writ of certiorari. See Tenancy Laws—Punjab Security of Land Tenures Act (10 of 1953), S. 9(1)(i). 1965 Cur L J 420 (Punj).

——Arts. 226, 227 — Assessment proceedings — Assessee a coal agent — Assessment years for 1949-50 to 1955-56 — Writ petition for quashing assessment orders and for refund of payment of Sales-tax—Maintainability — E. P. General Sales Tax Act (46 of 1948), S. 7.

One company A had been doing business of procuring coal and coke as del credre agents. From 1953, they also started running a small coal and coke depot.

Under S. 7 of E. P. General Sales Tax Act they got themselves registered as "dealer". The assessments were completed and tax for years 1949 50 to 1955-56 was finally paid. A did not dispute that he was "dealer". On 22-3-1959 the Deputy Secretary to the Government of Punjab informed that coal agents were not covered by the term "dealer". A filed application for refund of the payment of sales tax, which was filed. In State of Bombay v. Messrs. Ratilal Vadilal and Brothers, A I R 1961 S C 1108, Supreme Court held that coal agents were not covered by the term dealer. A filed writ application on 15.10-1962 for issue of certiorari to quash the assessment orders and for issue of writ of mandamus to refund the payment of Sales tax.

Held, (1) that by the decision of the Supreme Court, all the previous assessments made by the Assessing Authority, which had become final under the Act, did not become without jurisdiction. There was no error of law in the assessment orders.

(2) that High Court would not quash the assessment orders after so much delay in proceedings under Art. 226 of the Constitution for the simple reason that on the record it was not possible to determine as to how much amount of sales tax was recovered from them as coal agents during the relevant years.

(3) that A was not entitled to the issue of mandamus for refund of the payment of Sales tax as there were disputed questions of fact and limitation. A I R 1964 S C 1006 and A I R 1965 S C 1740, Rel. on. ('65) 67 Pun L R 1185.

— Art. 226—Certiorari - No absence of jurisdiction —Writ petition also after delay of ten years—Certiorari would not lie.

The Municipal Committee revised the assessment of the rental value of the petitioner's property on the basis of S. 3(1)(c) of the Punjab Municipal Act (3 of 1911) as applicable to Delhi. The petitioner applied after a period of 10 years under Art. 226 of Constitution of India for a writ of certiorari to quash the said assessment alleging that the revision ought to have been made on the basis of S. 3(1)(b) and not S. 3(1)(c).

Held, a legal error was not the same thing as an error of jurisdiction. The committee had the jurisdiction under S. 67 of the Act to revise the assessment. In revising that assessment, it might or might not have committed the legal error. But if it had committed a legal error, the remedy was by way of an appeal or by a writ of certiorari. When the remedy of appeal was pursued without success, the petitioner should have moved the High Court. When the petitioner prayed for writ of certiorari after a delay of ten years, the prayer must be rejected. 67 Punj L R 1027 : I L R (1965) 2 Punj 164.

——Art 226—Power to issue writ under—When exercised—No manifest injustice—Impugned order substantially just and proper—Interference by writ not called for. AIR 1964 Punj 15 (20) (Pt C) (Prs 17, 18).

——Arts. 226 and 227 — Certiorari — Grounds on which writ can be issued, stated — Mistake not apparent on face of record — Errors in appreciation of documentary evidence — Writ cannot be issued. A I R 1958 S C 398, Rel. on. (1962-63) 23 F J R 419 : (1963) 2 Lab L J 17 : 1962 Cur L J 1 : A I R 1961 Punj 569 (570) (Pt A) (Pr 7).

[Reversed on another point in AIR 1964 Punj 313.]

● ——Art. 226—Jurisdiction of High Court — Order issuing permits by State Transport Commissioner—Absence of mala fides—Interference.

If the order granting permits is free from mala fides, the fact that the procedure adopted in implementing the said order was rather curious or even unfair would not be of much relevancy for the purposes of deciding this case. It is therefore impossible to find that the action of the State Transport Commissioner in granting the impugned permits was mala fide or that the said order is liable to be quashed on the ground. Ambala Ex-servicemen Transport Co-operative Society, Ltd. v State of Punjab, 60 Punj L R 515 : ILR (1958) Punj 1590 : AIR 1959 Punj 1 (8) (Pt E) (Pr 27) (FB).

——Art. 226—Issue of writ—Grounds — Civil Court vacating order of stay — No mala fides or error on face—Issue of writ.

Where on the facts alleged in the writ petition, it cannot be said that the Judge of a civil Court who vacated certain order of stay was acting mala fides or the exercise of his discretion was arbitrary, or that it was an order which on the face of it was erroneous, there is no case for the issuing of any writ under Art. 226. A I R 1952 Bom 235 and A I R 1952 Cal 72 and A I R 1951 Bom 406, Disting. 59 Punj L R 480 : AIR 1957 Punj 76 (76, 77) (Pr 10) (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 227 — (Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950), S. 27) — (Administration of Evacuee Property (Central) Rules (1950), R. 31) — Object of R. 31—Hearing petitions which are more than sixty days old is not beyond jurisdiction of Custodian General — Custodian General extending time — High Court will not interfere. A I R 1955 N U C (Punj) 4016.

——Art. 226—Wrong decision on merits given in proper exercise of jurisdiction—Writ of certiorari or prohibition, if can be issued.

A writ of certiorari will not be granted to quash the decision of an authority with its jurisdiction on the ground that the decision is wrong. Indeed it must be shown before a writ of certiorari is issued that the authority which passed the order has acted without jurisdiction or in excess of it.

A wrong decision on the merits of proceedings given in the proper exercise of jurisdiction is not the subject-matter of writs of certiorari or prohibition. AIR 1952 Punj 1 (5) (Pt C) (Pr 22) (DB).

——Art. 226—Question of jurisdiction — (Civil P. C. (1908), S. 9).

The question that as the original defendant had died leaving other sons and they were not brought on the record, the whole suit abated and the Revenue Court should not have passed a decree against the applicant alone is not a question of jurisdiction at all. This is a matter which incidentally arises in suits, and the Court having jurisdiction to try the suit can also decide this question. If the question is wrongly decided it cannot be a ground for a writ of certiorari unless it can be said that there has been a patent mistake of law apparent on the face of the record. 1954 Raj L W 385 : I L R (1954) 4 Raj 1 : A I R 1954 Raj 236 (237) (Pt B) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Art 226—Certiorari - Order passed by authority having jurisdiction and not acting in excess of power— Writ cannot issue even if order is erroneous.

An order though the decision in it is erroneous cannot be interfered with by a writ of Certiorari when the authority who passed the order had jurisdiction to decide the question and had not acted in excess of his powers.

In Saurashtra where the rent from the cultivators is collected by the Government and paid to the former talukdars, the Collector has jurisdiction, when a dispute arises, to fix the rent assessing the same on a measurement of the land and also to revise his original order when he finds that the procedure adopted and the measurements taken accordingly work out inequitably to one of the parties. His jurisdiction to revise the order will not be taken away from him, either by the fact that the measurements have already been taken or that the survey numbers measured were selected by the parties themselves who had agreed in the order itself to be bound by those measurements. Therefore if the Collector decides, on a dispute arising as to the quantum of rent based on the ground of the correctness of the norm adopted, decides that a fresh measurement is necessary, his decision cannot be interfered with by a writ of certiorari, even if it be a wrong decision, because in deciding so the Collector neither acts without jurisdiction nor in excess of his powers. (1953) 6 Sau L R 1 : AIR 1953 Sau 28 (30) (Prs 3, 4) (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Writ—Issue of—Grounds—Erroneous decision by Rent Controller — Decision, however, not without jurisdiction — High Court will not interfere. See Travancore Cochin Buildings, (Lease and Rent Control) Order, 1950, S. 9 (3) (a) (iii). A I R 1952 Trav-Co 125.

145. Income-tax Act, orders under.

● —Art. 226 — Income-tax Act (1922), S. 33-A (2) —Revisional jurisdiction of Commissioner — Orders passed are judicial and not administrative — Certiorari lies. A I R 1957 Cal 319 and (1960) 40 I T R 200 (Andh Pra) and A I R 1964 Cal 399, Overruled. Dwarka Nath v. I.-T. Officer, Special Circle, D Ward, Kanpur, (1965) 2 S C A 868 : (1965) 2 I T J 218 : (1965) 2 S C J 296: (1965) 57 I T R 349 : (1965) 2 S C W R 391 : A I R 1966 S C 81 (86 87) (Pt C) (Prs 6, 7).

● —Art. 226 — Scope — S 49-E, Income-tax Act— Section is subject to Ss. 228 and 229 of Companies Act (1918) — Income-tax Officer applying S. 49-E of the Income-tax Act (1922)—High Court can exercise its jurisdiction under Art. 226 of the Constitution. See Income-tax Act (1922), S. 49-E. (1965) 2 S C J 248 : AIR 1966 S C 35.

● —Art. 226 — Applicability — Assessment under S. 23 (5) (b), Income-tax Act without jurisdiction— Writ to set aside. See Income-tax Act (1922), S. 23 (5), (b). AIR 1959 S C 1207.

● —Art. 226 — Proceedings under S. 34 (1-A), Income-tax Act, are judicial or quasi-judicial —Principles of natural justice cannot be invoked for holding section void. See Ibid, Art. 14 AIR 1960 All 19 (FB).

——Art. 226 — Advance tax deposited in Lahore before 1947 —On partition assessee coming to India — Assessment for subsequent years —Assessee claiming adjustment or refund - Duty of I. T. Authority to refund— Omission — High Court has power to direct Authority to set off. See Income-tax Act (1922), S 12-A. (1956) 29 ITR 60 (All).

——Art. 226—Administrative orders — Income-tax Act (11 of 1922), S. 33-A—Order under is administrative and is not subject to removal on certiorari - Income-tax Act (11 of 1922), Ss. 30, 31, 33-A, 45 and 33-B — Powers of Income tax Officer to refuse time for payment of tax pending disposal of appeal - Income-tax Act, Ss. 29 and 46 (1)—Demand notice issued under S. 29 quantifying penalty leviable under S. 46 (1) — Contents of—Civil Procedure Code (5 of 1908), O 29, R. 2—Service of demand notice — Affixture to door of business premises — Propriety. (1960) 2 Andh W R 398 : (1960) 40 ITR 200 : ILR (1961) 1 Andh Pra 32.

[Overruled in AIR 1966 S C 81.]

● ——Art. 226 — Income-tax Act (1922) S. 33-A (1)— Commissioner's power of revision—Nature of—Order dismissing revision petition — It is an administrative order—No interference under Art. 226 of Constitution. See Income-tax Act (1922), S. 33-A (1). A I R 1959 Andh Pra 508.

——Arts. 226 and 227 — Income-tax Act (1922), S. 33-A—Order under S. 33-A correcting error committed by I. T. O. — Order being an administrative order will not be interfered with merely because party had not been heard. A I R 1964 Assam 136 (137, 138) (Pt B) (Pr 5) (DB).

[Not good law in view of AIR 1966 S C 81—Ed.]

● ——Art. 226 — Search and seizure under S. 37 (2), Income-tax Act, in excess of powers conferred—Executive action is ultra vires and illegal — Can be set aside under Art. 226. See Income-tax Act (1922), S. 37 (2). A I R 1964 Assam 1 (FB).

——Art. 226—High Court has power of superintendence over arbitrators functioning under S. 10-A, Industrial Disputes Act — Arbitrator acts as quasi-judicial body—His orders can be corrected by writ of certiorari provided there is an error of law apparent on the face of the record. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 10-A. A I R 1962 Bom 274 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Writ of certiorari —Income-tax Act (1922), S. 33-A—Exercise of power by Commissioner under—It is in his administrative capacity—No writ can be issued.

The power to be exercised by the Commissioner under S. 33-A is only in his administrative capacity. The High Court, therefore, has no jurisdiction to issue a writ of certiorari for quashing the order passed by the Commissioner under S. 33 A A I R 1948 P C 102 ; AIR 1959 Andh Pra 508, Foll. 1962 Nag L J 296 : 64 Bom L R 201 : ILR (1962) Bom 29 : (1962) 46 I T R 1023.

——Art. 226—Writ of certiorari — Commissioner of Income tax revising case under S. 33 A of Income-tax Act, 1922—He acts in administrative capacity — No writ of certiorari lies against his order passed under S. 33-A — Income-tax Act (1961), S. 264. A I R 1948 P C 102, Foll. (1964) 1 I T J 101 : 68 Cal W N 84 : (1964) 53 I T R 717 : A I R 1964 Cal 399 (409) (Pr 25) (DB).

[Overruled in AIR 1966 S C 81.]

——Art. 226—Income-tax Act (1922), S. 33A—Order of Commissioner under — Application for certiorari is not open against such order — Doctrine of natural justice, if attracted.

Section 33A prohibits the Commissioner to make any prejudicial order. For the making of prejudicial orders, there is now a separate provision, namely, S. 33B. The very refusal by the Commissioner to interfere with the order of the subordinate authority does not amount to a 'prejudicial order'. The requirement of a reasonable opportunity of being heard has also been taken away by the legislature by the amendment in 1941 leaving it to the Commissioner to "make such inquiry to be made . . . as he thinks fit." If that be so, certiorari would not be available on the ground that a hearing has been denied and the rules of natural justice have been violated because such expressions imply a determination on subjective satisfaction. A I R 1956 S C 153 and (1962) 44 I T R 870 (Cal), Rel. on.

The order contemplated by S. 33A (2) is an administrative order of a discretionary nature and the doctrine of natural justice cannot be imported because there is no obligation to hear, either expressly or impliedly. Hence, even though the Commissioner did not hear the petitioner, the petitioner cannot have any relief in application under Art. 226 on that ground. A I R 1959 S C 107 and AIR 1956 S C 153, Rel. on. (1963) 55 I T R 87 (Cal).

[Not good law in view of AIR 1966 S C 81—Ed.]

——Arts. 226 and 265—Certiorari — Invalid order of assessment — Failure of tax-payer to point out infirmities to Revenue Authorities in time—No ground to refuse writ—(Income-tax Act (1922), S. 24-B). ('62) 66 Cal W N 474.

——Art. 226—Certiorari — Notice of demand to pay tax issued by Income-tax Department—Writ cannot be issued. (1957-58) 12 F J R 324 : (1958) 33 I T R 866 : A I R 1957 Cal 514 (520) (Pt E) (Pr 22) (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Jurisdiction under—When exercised — Decision of facts condition precedent to jurisdiction — Wrong decision—Superior Court will interfere — Wrong order under S. 18 (7), Income-tax Act—Order quashed—(Income-tax Act (1922), S. 18 (7).) AIR 1955 N U C (Cal) 5917.

——Art. 226 — Proceedings under S. 34, Income-tax Act—Proceedings dropped—Proceedings again taken up—Quashing of—See Income-tax Act (1922), S. 34. AIR 1955 Mys 103 (DB).

——Art. 226—Income tax Act (1922), S. 5—Income-tax authority—Jurisdiction and powers of—These are quasi-judicial tribunals. See Income-tax Act (1922), S. 5. AIR 1957 Punj 312.

——Art. 226 — Proceedings under S. 45, Income-tax Act—Nature of — Assessment proceedings are quasi-judicial—Order extending time for payment of tax is administrative — Writ of certiorari — Issue of. See Income-tax Act (1922), S. 45. AIR 1956 Punj 164.

——Art. 226—Extension of time to pay tax — Powers of Commissioner—Interference by High Court—Concept of continuing jurisdiction — See Income-tax Act (1922), S. 33A. AIR 1956 Punj 164.

146. Industrial disputes, orders in respect of.

●——Art. 226 — Industrial dispute — Finding by Labour Court that management's action amounted to victimisation — Interference under Art. 226. See Industrial Dispute. AIR 1964 S C 806.

●——Art. 226—Administrative orders—Notification under S. 10 (1), Industrial Disputes Act, 1947, found invalid — Proper writ—Mandamus and not certiorari.

In making a reference under S. 10 (1), Industrial Disputes Act, 1947, the appropriate Government is doing an administrative act and the fact that it has to form an opinion as to the factual existence of an industrial dispute as a preliminary step to the discharge of its function does not make it any the less administrative in character. That being so it would be more appropriate to issue a writ of mandamus against the State Government in respect of a notification issued by it under S. 10 (1), which is found to be invalid and ultra vires, than issuing a writ of certiorari against the State Government quashing the impugned notification : A I R 1953 Cal 53, Rel. on. State of Bihar v. D. N. Ganguly, (1958-59) 15 F J R 118 : (1958) 2 Lab L J 634 : 1958 S C A 1082 : 1959 Mad L J (Cr) 323 : (1959) 1 M L J (S C) 178 : 1959 S C J 533 : (1959) 1 Andh W R (S C) 178 : ILR 37 Pat 1524 : 1959 S C R 1191 : AIR 1958 S C 1018 (1026) (Pt B) (Pr 23).

●——Art. 226—Scope—Industrial Tribunal ceasing to exist — Writ against award of—Power to issue—(Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 7).

Under S. 7, Industrial Disputes Act, it cannot be said that the Government must be deemed to have brought into being not an ad hoc Tribunal to adjudicate upon the particular disputes referred to it but a permanent Tribunal though functioning intermittently. Where the Tribunal has ceased to exist and its members are subsequently engaged in the performance of other official duties, the Tribunal cannot be said to continue in a sort of suspended animation and hence a writ of certiorari cannot be issued for quashing its award. The Lloyds Bank, Ltd. v. The Lloyds Bank's Indian Staff Association (Calcutta Branches), AIR 1953 S C 743 (747) (Pt B) (Pr 3).

●——Art. 226—Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 10—Dismissal whether wrongful is a question for Tribunal—No interference by High Court under Arts. 226 and 227 of the Constitution unless there is grave miscarriage of justice or flagrant violation of law. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 10. AIR 1953 S C 58.

——Art. 226 — Administrative orders — Certiorari—Issue of, for quashing — Notification under S. 3 of U. P. Act (28 of 1947) - (Industrial Disputes — U. P. Industrial Disputes Act (28 of 1947), S. 3).

A notification issued by the Government of the State of Uttar Pradesh in exercise of its administrative and executive power conferred on it by S. 3 of the U. P. Industrial Disputes Act, 1947, does not incorporate in it any decision or determination by any judicial or quasi-judicial authority. No writ of certiorari can be issued for quashing such a notification. ILR (1958) 1 All 434 : AIR 1958 All 80 (84) (Pt C) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 226—Invalid order—What is—U. P. Industrial Disputes Act (28 of 1947), S. 3 — Ingredients of order passed under S. 3 published in part—Validity of order.

Normally when an order is passed (e.g., one under S. 3, U. P. Industrial Disputes Act, 1947) the whole of the order must be contained in one single document. But if there happens to be an occasion where parts of the ingredients of that order have already been notified it would be wrong to hold that the order becomes invalid because these parts are not reproduced in the subsequent order and the persons concerned are informed of these parts of the order by making a reference to the earlier notification. AIR 1956 All 689 (697, 698) (Pt H) (Pr 13) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Dispute concerning leave rules in Standing Orders—Reference of, by State Government to Industrial Tribunal—Validity — Powers of Tribunal—Scope and extent — Power of High Court to interfere with award, under Art. 226 of Constitution—See Industrial Employment (Standing Orders) Act (1946). AIR 1956 All 597.

——Art. 226—Certiorari against Regional Conciliation Board.

Where the Regional Conciliation Board acts in disregard of S. 3 (b) of the U. P. Industrial Disputes Act, namely, that a Government Order, under that provision can direct the observance of terms and conditions of employment in the future and not in the past and an order of the Board is passed in these circumstances, it can be quashed by a writ of certiorari. AIR 1954 S C 440, Foll. (1955) 2 Lab L J 51 : ILR (1956) 1 All 216 : AIR 1955 All 578 (580) (Pt D) (Pr 12) (DB).

——Art. 226—Withdrawal of reference of industrial dispute by Government — Order should be in writing giving reasons — Reasons are not justiciable by High Court — (Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 10). AIR 1955 N U C (All) 3554.

——Art. 226 — U. P. Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 3 (b), (d) and Proviso 2—Applicability and scope—(Cl. (2) of Proviso to S. 3 applies to all orders under Cl. (b) — Order under S. 3 (b)—Question can still be referred to Industrial Tribunal—Labour Appellate Tribunal treating cl. (b) as binding upon it, refusing to apply its own mind to question raised before it—Appellate Tribunal held failed to exercise jurisdiction on erroneous view of law—It is error apparent on face of judgment — Certiorari can issue. See U. P.

Industrial Disputes Act (28 of 1947), S. 3 (b) (d) and Provisos. AIR 1955 N U C (All) 3296.

——Art. 226—Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 2 (k) —Industrial dispute — What is—Held on facts that there was clearly an industrial dispute and reference for adjudication under S. 3 being valid, the proceedings could not be interfered with under Art. 226. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 2 (k). AIR 1955 N U C (All) 2664.

——Art. 226 — U. P. Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 3—Reference under—It is in discretion of Adjudicator to go into certain dispute again after lapse of long period—High Court will not express any view on the matter in application under Art. 226. See U. P. Industrial Disputes Act (28 of 1947), S. 3. AIR 1955 N U C (All) 2664.

——Art. 226—Writ against Industrial Tribunal—U. P. Government Order No. U 686 (LL) XXXVI-B-257 (LL) 1954, D/- 8-9-1954 construction, effect and validity of considered. See U. P. Industrial Disputes Act (28 of 1947), S. 3. AIR 1955 N U C (All) 1782.

——Art. 226 — U. P. Industrial Disputes Act (1949), S. 6 (1) — G. O. No 3092 (T. D.) XVIII-28 (T. D.)/ 1951, D/- 28-6-1951—Powers of Adjudicator and Tribunal — Powers are not restricted with respect to matters which would be taken into consideration by them in coming to conclusion on question referred about the justifiability of retrenchment—Jurisdiction held not exceeded. See U P Industrial Disputes Act (28 of 1949), S. 6 (1). AIR 1953 All 624 (626, 627) (Pt A) (Prs 6, 8, 12) (DB).

——Art. 226—Administrative order — Government of Madras declining to make reference of labour dispute —Power of Andhra Government, its successor, to make reference after consideration of subsequent events — Interference. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 10 (1). AIR 1958 Andh Pra 276.

● ——Art. 226 — Powers of Industrial Tribunal and Labour Court — Termination of service of workmen under Standing Orders — Termination punitive—Inquiry necessary—Dispute referred to Industrial Tribunal—It has power to see whether termination is justified—High Court's power of interference with order of Tribunal. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 10. AIR 1963 Assam 108 (FB).

——Art. 226—Award of Industrial Tribunal—Issue of writs.

An Industrial Tribunal is a judicial body, and writs of certiorari and prohibition can be granted under Art. 226 of the Constitution in matters arising out of an award passed under the Industrial Disputes Act. AIR 1950 S C 188, Ref. to. 3 F J R 195 : ILR (1951) 3 Assam 147 : AIR 1951 Assam 96 (98) (Pt C) (Pr 13) (DB).

——Art. 226—Jurisdiction of High Court to entertain writ petition for quashing reference to Industrial Tribunal—(Industrial Disputes Act (1947) S. 15 (1) Power of tribunal to examine validity of reference)

The Tribunal to whom an industrial dispute is referred for adjudication cannot enter into the question if the reference is valid or otherwise, but is bound to deal with it as it stands. At any rate the language of S. 15 (1) does not seem to permit the Tribunal to go behind the validity of the reference and examine it for that consideration. AIR 1953 Mad 89, Rel. on; AIR 1953 Mad 30, Dist; AIR 1952 Punj 134 and AIR 1952 All 992, Ref. to.

Hence the High Court has jurisdiction to entertain a petition under Art. 226 of the Constitution of India for the issue of a writ of certiorari for quashing a reference to an Industrial Tribunal, when the petitioner challenges the validity of the reference on the ground that the matter referred to related to a closure and not an illegal lock-out and further alleges that the order of the Government compelling the petitioner's factory to run is invalid and is also liable to be quashed. AIR 1954 Bhopal 17 (18, 19) (Pt A) (Prs 12, 16).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Writ of—Industrial Tribunal—Award on question of bonus—Tribunal going wrong in its calculations on question of rehabilitation charges—Principles laid down by Supreme Court relating to distribution of available surplus not considered—Award of bonus held was defective and must be set aside. 64 Cal W N 979 : (1960) 2 Lab L J 508 : (1960) 1 Fac L R 425.

——Art. 226—Arbitration award under S. 10-A of Industrial Disputes Act—Writ of certiorari can issue against such award.

A writ of certiorari can issue against an arbitration award passed by an arbitrator to whom a reference has been made by agreement of parties under S. 10-A of the Industrial Disputes Act. The view of the Supreme Court in Civil Appeals Nos. 182, 183 and 204 of 1962, dated 18-10-62 is that an arbitrator functioning under S. 10-A can be considered to be, at least in a loose sense, as a statutory arbitrator and that therefore in an appropriate case a writ may lie against his award. In (1961) 1 Lab L J 81 (Ker) and 1962 Ker L J 865 holding that the arbitrator functioning under S. 10-A stands on the same footing as that of a private arbitrator and hence a writ would not lie against him can no longer be accepted as good law. (1961) 1 Lab L J 81 (Ker) and 1962 Ker L J 865 held overruled by AIR 1963 S C 874. (1963) 1 Ker L R 517 : (1964) 1 Lab L J 102 : ILR (1963) 2 Ker 132 : AIR 1963 Ker 324 (329, 330) (Prs 45, 46, 47).

——Art. 226—Administrative act—Issue of certificate under S. 33 (c), Industrial Disputes Act, affecting fundamental rights of citizens—It is open to High Court to interfere though act may be administrative. 1959 Ker L R 1195 : 1959 Ker L J 1267 : 1959 Ker L T 1208 : (1960) 1 Lab L J 319 : AIR 1960 Ker 220 (222) (Pt F) (Pr 14).

——Art. 226—Administrative act—Order of reference under S. 10 (1), Industrial Disputes Act—No certiorari. AIR 1957 SC 532 and AIR 1953 SC 53 and AIR 1958 SC 1018 Rel. on. 1959 Ker L J 1449 : 1960 Ker L T 90 : (1960) 1 Lab L J 823 : ILR (1960) Ker 222 : AIR 1960 Ker 190 (192, 193) (Pt A) (Pr 6) (DB).

——Art. 226—Applicability—Termination of service of employee under standing orders on ground of superannuation—Application by employee to Labour Court challenging such order—No previous application to employer as required by proviso to S. 31 (3) read with R. 34—Labour Court has no jurisdiction to entertain application—Order of termination set aside by Labour Court—Revisional jurisdiction of Industrial Court—Order of Labour Court confirmed by Industrial Court—Order is patently erroneous. See M P Industrial Relations Act (27 of 1960), S. 31 (3). AIR 1964 Madh Pra 156 (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari — Jurisdiction—Registered establishment — Employees discharged—Dispute regarding reinstatement and payment of retrenchment compensation—Reference under S. 10 (1), Industrial Disputes Act—Maintainable—Scope of Ss. 58 and 61 of Establishments Act—Opinion expressed by Tribunal on merits after declining to entertain reference—No legal adjudication. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 10 (1). AIR 1964 Madh Pra 20 (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 227—Certiorari—Adjudication by Industrial Tribunal—Error made at the instance and in favour of petitioner—Writ will not be granted.

Where in an industrial dispute relating to fixation of fair wages and provision for gratuity scheme, the petitioner had induced the adjudicator to adopt the industry-cum region basis for determining the paying capacity and taken a chance of a decision in its favour on that basis, it cannot be permitted to question that basis after the decision has gone against it By its conduct, it has clearly precluded itself from challenging it. AIR 1962 SC 676, Rel. on.

A writ of certiorari will, save in most exceptional cases not be granted to the party at whose instance or in whose favour the error was made. It is a discretionary remedy which will not be granted as a matter of course. AIR 1957 SC 227; AIR 1954 SC 207, Rel. on. 1962 M P L J 132 : 1962 Jab L J 240 : 1962 M P C 165 : (1962-63) 22 F J R 339 : (1963) 1 Lab L J 606 : ILR (1963) Madh Pra 56 : AIR 1962 Madh Pra 172 (175) (Pt B) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 227—Adjudication by Industrial Tribunal — Dispute relating to fixation of fair wages and provision for gratuity scheme—View taken by the tribunal on paying capacity of industry not impossible on evidence recorded—High Court cannot deal with the matter as a Court of appeal and substitute its own judgment. AIR 1954 SC 440. Rel. on. (1963) 1 Lab L J 606 : ILR (1963) Madh Pra 56 : (1962-63) 22 F J R 339 : 1962 M P L J 132 : 1962 Jab L J 240 : 1962 M P C 165 : AIR 1962 Madh Pra 172 (175) (Pt C) (Pr 10) (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari, writ of — Industrial Tribunal, decision of -Certiorari to quash.

Generally speaking, a writ of certiorari would be issued only in the event of a flagrant violation of law and consequent grave miscarriage of justice. This principle applies particularly to industrial tribunals which exercise functions relating to welfare and industrial harmony.

Held, that there was no irregularity and consequent miscarriage of justice in the instant case. AIR 1949 FC 111 and AIR 1953 SC 53; 1 M L J 212, Rel. on. (1960) 1 Fac L R 499 : AIR 1960 Madh Pra 358 (361) (Pt D) (Pr 18) (DB).

——Art. 226—Industrial Disputes Act (1947), Ss. 10, 2 (k) and 2 (s) -Reference of industrial dispute for adjudication of Tribunal—Tribunal has jurisdiction to decide whether industrial dispute exists—Wrong decision can be corrected under Art. 226 -See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S 10. AIR 1960 Mad 82.

——Art. 226 -Industrial Disputes- Award—Bonus—Agreement between employer and workers — Construction — Terms free from ambiguity — Evidence by employer to explain or contradict terms not allowed — Employer held not prejudiced—No interference with award under Art 226—Evidence Act (1872), S. 93—Deed—Construction —(Industrial Dispute). (1960) 1 Lab L J 628 (Mad)

——Art. 226 -Certiorari — Decision of Conciliation Officer under Industrial Disputes Act— Conciliation officer does not act judicially or quasi judicially — No interference by writ. (1959) 1 Lab L J 520 : (1959 60) 16 F J R 106 (Mad) : 72 Mad L W 386 : (1959) 2 Mad L J 173 : 1959 Mad L J (Cr) 627 : I L R (1959) Mad 891 : A I R 1959 Mad 441 (444) (Pt B) (Prs 10, 12).

——Art. 226 — Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 2 (rr) — Wages — Fixation of — Financial capacity of employer — Opportunity to place material on record to sustain its claim — Denial of — Finding regarding capacity to pay increased remuneration vitiated — Statutory bodies — Duties of - Industrial Tribunal. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 2 (rr). A I R 1959 Mad 212.

——Art. 226 — Reference to Industrial Tribunal — Issue of writ of certiorari or prohibition — Question as to 'workmen'—Jurisdiction to decide—(Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 10 (1) (c)).

A reference of an industrial dispute to an Industrial Tribunal under S. 10 (1) (c) of the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 being administrative in its scope, is outside the purview of correction by the issue of a writ of certiorari. Since an industrial dispute has been referred and the Industrial Tribunal has jurisdiction to take up the enquiry there can be no writ of prohibition issued at this stage.

The question whether the workers are really "Workmen" as defined by the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947, may be viewed as a jurisdictional issue but it is still for the Industrial Tribunal to decide that question in the first instance: (1958-59) 15 F J R 88 : (1958) 2 Mad L J 611 : 1958 Mad L J (Cr) 976 : 1958 Mad W N 719 : AIR 1959 Mad 202 (202) (Pr 1).

——Art. 226 — Administrative order — Order under S. 10 of the Industrial Disputes Act.

An order of reference under S. 10 of the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947, is administrative in its nature and an executive act by itself cannot be quashed by a writ of certiorari; but if by virtue of such an administrative act a quasi judicial tribunal like the Industrial Tribunal is vested with jurisdiction to proceed with an adjudication which certainly will be proper subject matter of a writ of certiorari at a later stage then it would be open to the High Court, under the powers conferred on it by Art. 226 of the Constitution, to issue a writ in the nature of a writ of prohibition prohibiting the quasi judicial tribunal from proceeding with the enquiry 71 Mad L W 549 : 1958 Mad W N 456 : (1958) 2 Mad L J 266 : (1959-59) 14 F J R 457 : 1958) 2 M L J (Cri) 719 : ILR (1958 Mad 981: AIR 1958 Mad 578 (579) (Pt A) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Issue of—Industrial Tribunal passing erroneous order -Power of High Court to interfere—(Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 33 (2).)

The Industrial Tribunal is a creation of a statute which has vested it with limited jurisdiction. Where such Tribunal transgresses the limits of its jurisdiction and passes an order which it had no jurisdiction to pass, the aggrieved party has a right to approach the High Court to set aside that order under Art. 226 of the Constitution.

Where the Industrial Tribunal passes an erroneous order by wrongly construing S. 33(2) of the Industrial Disputes Act, the order would be either an order which the Tribunal had no jurisdiction to pass or one in regard to which it assumed jurisdiction by reason of an error apparent on the face of the record namely, by an erroneous construction of the statute. Viewed in this light the jurisdiction of the High Court to issue the writ of certiorari in such a case would be beyond question. (1958) 1 Lab L J 300 : 71 Mad.L W 88 : 1958 Mad W N 26 : (1957-58) 13 F J R 356 : (1958) 1 Mad L J 164 : 1958 Mad L J (Cr) 139 : ILR (1958) Mad 374 : AIR 1958 Mad 433 (440, 441) (Pt B) (Pr 28).

——Art. 226 — Jurisdiction — Order of High Court Judge acting as Industrial Tribunal -Power of High Court to interfere by writ.

The High Court under Art. 226 has jurisdiction to issue a writ of certiorari and to call for the records of an order passed by a Judge of the High Court when that Judge was acting in his capacity as the Industrial Tribunal. AIR 1955 Mad 1 (FB), Foll ; 1956 R P C 323, Rel. on. 1958 Mad W N 26 : I L R (1958) Mad 374 : (1957-58) 12 F J R 356 : 71 Mad L W 88 : (1958) 1 Lab L J 300 : (1958) 1 Mad L J 164 : 1958 Mad L J (Cr) 139 : A I R 1958 Mad 433 (441) (Pt C) (Pr 29).

——Art. 226—Administrative acts—Reference under S. 10 (1) (c) of Industrial Disputes Act — Writ to challenge validity — Issue of — (Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 10 (1) (c)).

The validity of the reference under S. 10 (1) (c) of the Industrial Disputes Act by the Government cannot be challenged by an application for the issue of a writ of certiorari, because in making the order of reference, the Government is only doing a ministerial or administrative act. 70 M L W 258 : 1957 Mad W N 268 : (1957-58) 12 F J R 389 : A I R 1957 Mad 700 (701) (Pr 1).

——Art. 226—Administrative orders—Orders making reference under S. 10 (1) (c), Industrial Disputes Act is administrative— No correction by certiorari or issue of writ of prohibition to Industrial Tribunal — (Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 10 (1)(c)). (1958-59) 14 F J R 417 : 1957 Mad W N 519 : (1957) 2 Mad L J 357 : (1957) Mad L J (Cr) 519 : 1957 Ker L T 963 : (1958) 1 Lab L J 62 : AIR 1957 Mad 615 (616) (Pr 2).

——Art. 226 — Peference under S. 10 (1) (c) of Act 14 of 1947 — Validity challenged — Proper writ to issue—(Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 10 (1) (c)).

Though a writ of certiorari cannot be issued to set aside an administrative act of the Government the validity of a reference under S. 10 (1) (c) of the Industrial disputes Act can be canvassed and decided if the relief asked for is the issue of a writ of prohibition to restrain the Industrial Tribunal from taking cognizance of a dispute as it is the jurisdiction of the Industrial Tribunal that is questioned in such proceedings. A I R 1946 Mad 113, Rel. on. (1955-56) 9 F J R 160 : (1956) 1 Lab L J 498 : A I R 1956 Mad 115 (118, 123) (Pt B) (Prs 9, 34).

——Art. 226—Administrative act— Certiorari —Writ of, against order of reference under S. 10 (1) (c), Industrial Disputes Act — (Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 10 (1) (c)).

A reference under S. 10 (1) (c), Industrial Disputes Act, 1947, constitutes an administrative act of the Government to correct which no writ of certiorari can issue: AIR 1953 S C 53, Rel. on. 1955 Mad W N 897 : (1955-56) 9 F J R 125 : (1956) 1 Lab L J 221 : (1956) 1 M L J 280 : AIR 1956 Mad 113 (114) (Pt A) (Pr 4).

——Art. 226—Industrial tribunal—Award of —Interference by High Court.

If the Tribunal has jurisdiction to give its award a retrospective operation, then the validity of the award cannot be questioned in a petition for the issue of a writ of certiorari on the ground that the provisions of the said award from their very nature are incapable of being given such a retrospective effect. 36 Mys L J 97 : (1958) 2 Lab L J 613 : I L R (1957) Mys 388 : AIR 1958 Mys 85 (89) (Pt B) (Pr 24) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Jurisdiction to issue — Declaration by Registrar under S. 28, Mysore Labour Act—Nature of act—If judicial or quasi-judicial act —Writ—Issue of.

To support an application claiming a writ of certiorari under Art. 226 of the Constitution of India the applicant has to show that the act complained of constitutes a judicial or quasi judicial act, and not a ministerial one and further that it was done without or in excess of jurisdiction.

A declaration under S. 28 of the Mysore Labour Act, by the Registrar to the effect that an announcement by an employer to close for a certain date some department of work carried on in the employer's factory and dispense with the services of the employees in those branches was a lock-out and illegal for want of notice, is not a judicial or a quasi-judicial act. It is a discretionary one having but a recommendatory or a moral force, which does not by itself create a liability or impose any penalty. It is therefore not a case in which a writ of certiorari can issue. 30 Mys L J 82 : I L R (1951) Mys 105 : A I R 1954 Mys 141 (141, 142) (Pt A) (Prs 1, 3, 6) (DB).

——Art. 226—Industrial Disputes Act (1947), Ss. 15, 19—Decision of Tribunal — Interference by Court — When open.

Generally the necessary prerequisites for Court's interference to set right decisions arrived at by Tribunal whose conclusions on questions of fact are final can be classified under the following categories, namely,—

(i) where the Tribunal acts in excess of the jurisdiction conferred upon it under the statute or regulation creating it or where it ostensibly fails to exercise a patent jurisdiction;

(ii) where there is an apparent error on the face of the decision; and

(iii) where the tribunal has erroneously applied well-accepted principles of jurisprudence.

It is only when errors of this nature exist, that interference is called for. (1964) 1 Lab L J 187 : I L R (1964) Cut 805.

——Art. 226—Arbitrators whose jurisdiction is based on S. 10-A, Industrial Disputes Act are not private arbitrators but statutory arbitrators — Hence writ of certiorari will lie against their awards. (1925) 1 K B 641 and (1953) 1 Q B 704, Rel. on. (1963-65) 25 F J R 395 : I L R 42 Pat 819 : 1962 B L J R 660 : (1962) 2 Lab L J 420 : AIR 1963 Pat 170 (177) (Pt E) (Pr 16) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Application for permission to remove employee — Charge against employee not covered by Standing Orders—Rejection of permission — Decision could not be disturbed in writ proceedings. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 33. ('64) 66 Punj L R 447.

——Art. 226—Certiorari — Quasi-judicial decision — Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 10-A — Reference under — Decision of Arbitrator is quasi judicial decision and not purely administrative determination — Reasons not given—Award liable to be quashed under Art. 226. AIR 1963 S C 874, Foll. (1964) 1 Lab L J 89 : (1963-64) 25 F J R 276 : I L R (1963) 2 Punj 84 : 1963 Cur L J 232 : A I R 1963 Punj 472 (474, 477, 478) (Pt A) (Prs 4, 11, 16, 17) (DB).

——Art. 226—Dismissal for misconduct after inquiry by the management—Interference with order of dismissal by Industrial Tribunal—Extent of jurisdiction of the Tribunal—In cases of dismissal for misconduct the Tribunal does not act as a Court of appeal and substitute its own judgment for that of the management — Tribunal has to see if termination of service is justified—It can only interfere when there is victimisation, or unfair labour practice or violation of principle of natural justice or baseless or perverse finding. (1961-62) 21 F J R 241 : (1962) 1 Lab L J 555 (Punj).

——Art. 226 — Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 10 —Nature of act done in making reference — Administrative Act—No interference — Constitution of India, Art. 226). See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 10. AIR 1959 Punj 603.

——Art. 226 — Interference—Grounds — Application by employer under S. 33, Industrial Disputes Act, for permission to dismiss or discharge workman — Complaint by workman under S. 33-A — Duty of Tribunal pointed out — Tribunal dismissing application of the employer, without examining whether employer has made out a prima facie case for the dismissal of the workman, on ground that the employer had committed breach of the conditions laid down in proviso to S. 33 (2) (b)—There is failure on part of Tribunal to exercise jurisdiction — Tribunal commits error of law and its order is liable to be set aside by issue of writ of certiorari. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 33 (1). I L R (1959) 9 Raj 1302.

——Art. 226 — Administrative Order — (Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 12 (5)).

A reference under S. 12 (5) of the Industrial Disputes Act would be an administrative act a fortiori. Where there is a dispute which is unquestionably industrial, and in the opinion of the Government there was a case for reference to a tribunal its correctness cannot be canvassed in a Court of law. AIR 1950 S C 222, Foll. I L R (1953) Trav-Co 118 : AIR 1953 Trav-Co 286 (291) (Pt C) (Pr 10).

147. Judicial decision.

See also Note 126.

(a) Elements of.

(b) Judicial power, meaning of.

147. Judicial decision.

See also Note 126.

● —Art. 226 — Judicial tribunal — Departmental enquiry under Police Act — Officer conducting inquiry, acts in judicial capacity — (Police Act (1861), S. 7). Bose J. The State of U. P. v. Mohammad Nooh, 1958 S C J 242, : I L R (1957) 2 All 422 : 1958 S C A 73 : 1958 M L J (Cr) 197 : 1958 S C R 595 : A I R 1958 S C 86 (96, 97) (Pt D) (Pr 24).

● —Art. 226 — Certiorari — Writ of — Death of Nawab — Appointment of Special Commission by Nizam to enquire into question of succession to his estate—Special Commission whether judicial body—(Hyderabad Atiyat Enquiries Act (10 of 1952).

Under the Atiyat Law as prevailed in Hyderabad State whenever a jagirdar died his successors had to appear before a Special Court viz., the Atiyat Court, which enquired into the question of the succession to the estate of the jagirdar and submitted its recommendations to H. E. H. the Nizam. The Nizam was the final authority to sanction or not to sanction the succession in favour of any particular individual. With regard to succession relating to high noblemen styled as 'Umarai Uzzam', the Nizam could constitute a Special Commission instead of directing the case to be enquired into by the ordinary Atiyat Court. The Special Commission so constituted is a judicial body whose orders are subject to the Certiorari Jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution. The fact that although it is a judicial body exercising judicial functions its decisions are not final but are only in the nature of recommendations subject to the confirmation of the Nizam does not make the Special Commission to cease to be a judicial body. The law in such a case is that because a proceeding is subject to the confirmation and approval of another authority the proceeding does not cease to be a judicial proceeding. (1926) App Cas 586; A I R 1950 S C 222; A I R 1950 S C 459, Rel. on. Ahmed-Un-Nissa v. State, AIR 1953 Hyd 21 (22, 23) (Pt A) (Prs 4, 5, 6) (FB).

——Art. 226 — Erroneous order — Quashing of — (Panchayats — Vindhya Pradesh Gram Panchayat Ordinance (XXIV of 1949), Cl. 14).

Tare J. — Where the Collector wrongly removes the Sarpanch of Gram Panchayat from his office, and the Sarpanch files a writ petition to get the order quashed, the fact that the tenure of office of the petitioner has meanwhile expired, is no reason why the wrong order should not be quashed. It is not desirable that the order of the Collector should be allowed to remain on record, which would be in derogation of the petitioner's reputation for all time to come. 1959 Jab L J 441 : 1959 M P L J 815 : 1959 M P C 492 : A I R 1959 Madh Pra 407 (410) (Pt C) (Pr 16) (DB).

——Art. 226—Suit under S. 14, Madras Hereditary Village Offices Act—Order—Appeal to Revenue Board — Order of Revenue Board is judicial act liable to be quashed in appropriate cases—(Madras Hereditary Village Offices Act (3 of 1895), S. 14). (1953) 2 M L J 644: 66 Mad L W 700 : A I R 1953 Mad 972 (974) (Pt E) (Pr 8).

——Art. 226—Houses and Rents—Madras Buildings (Lease and Rent) Control Act (1949), S. 13 — Order under is not a judicial act. See Houses and Rents—Madras Buildings (Lease and Rent) Control Act (35 of 1949). AIR 1953 Mad 351.

——Art 226—Judicial order—[Sales Tax—C. P. and Berar Sales Tax (21 of 1947), S. 8-A (5)].

On 24th December, 1951, the petitioner made an application to the Commissioner for a declaration that it was not a dealer and was not liable to registration. By an order, dated the 7th January, 1952, passed under S. 19 of the Sales Tax Act, the Commissioner held that on the facts stated by the applicant it was clear that the petitioner did not carry on the business of selling or supplying goods and was more than an intermediary between the seller or the supplier on the one hand, and the buyers on the other, and received remuneration for its service as intermediary. The Commissioner characterised it as a broker and held that a broker is not a dealer. On 29th January, 1952, the petitioner made an application to the Sales-tax Officer, for cancellation of the registration certificate. After recording evidence the Sales-tax Officer submitted the report dated 13th March, 1952, to the Sales tax Commissioner. The Officer held that the assessee was not liable to registration and to payment of the tax on the transactions made by the seller company and that the tax on such sales was to be paid by the seller company. The Commissioner did not accept this recommendation. He was of the view that the petitioner was a commission agent inasmuch as it was required to pay the price if the buyer did not pay it and that such a commission agent was covered by the definition of buyer in S. 2 (c) of the Sales-tax Act. By the impugned order he directed the Sales-tax Officer to proceed with the case.

Held, that the decision of the Commissioner was certainly a judicial order under S 8-A (5) of the Sales-tax Act and the communication to the Sales-tax Officer could be quashed by a writ of certiorari. 1952 Nag L J 446, Dist. I L R (1954) Nag 355 : 1954 Nag L J 277 : AIR 1954 Nag 148 (150) (Pt B) (Pr 8) (DB).

● ——Art. 226 — Words and Phrases — "Judicial"—Rent Controller acting under C. P. and Berar Letting of Houses and Rent Control Order (1949) is a legal tribunal and not merely an executive officer—(Houses and Rents—C. P. and Berar Letting of Houses and Rent Control Order 1949, Cls. 13 and 21). Bhailal v. Additional Deputy Commr., Akola, 1952 Nag L J 1 : I L R (1952) Nag 943 : AIR 1953 Nag 89 (92, 93, 94) (Pt A) (Prs 13, 15, 20, 22) (FB).

——Art. 226—Jurisdiction — Order by tribunal exercising judicial functions—If subject to writ—The Chairman, Provincial Transport Authority is not a Court as ordinarily understood. But when he passes an order in appeal after hearing the parties and after deciding between a proposal and an opposition a writ of certiorari lies against the order inasmuch as the order is judicial. 16 Cut L T 201 : AIR 1951 Orissa 81 (84) (Pr 8) (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 227 — Scope — Function of Advocate-General under S. 92, Civil P. C —Nature of—Judicial or administrative—Order refusing permission to sue—Interference under Arts. 226 and 227.

The functions of the Advocate-General under S. 92, Civil P. C., are judicial in nature and not administrative or executive. 24 Cal 418 and AIR 1954 Trav-Co 331, Rel. on. 104 Pun Re 1910, AIR 1955 Raj 166 and AIR 1955 All 372, dissented from. Where it is nobody's case that the Advocate General has not acted within the scope of his jurisdiction under S. 92, Civil P. C. and no question of jurisdiction is involved and there is no apparent error on the face of the record in so far as the orders of the Advocate-General are concerned, and there is no case of either grave miscarriage of justice or flagrant violation of law by the Advocate-General in withholding his consent, interference is not possible either under Art 227 or by a writ of certiorari under Art. 226. The jurisdiction is vested in the Advocate-General alone and the High Court has no power to either order him to give consent for the institution of the suit or to itself give such consent for that purpose. AIR 1954 Trav-Co Co 331, Rel on ILR (1956) Patiala 162 ; AIR 1956 Pepsu 65 (68, 69) (Prs 10a, 12).

● —Art. 226 - Constitution of Mewar (1947), Art. 18 (2)—Judicial and quasi judicia tribunals — Commissioners appointed under Mewar Proceedings of the Special Commission Validating Act (17 of 1944).

The Commissioners appointed or deemed to have been appointed under Act No. 17 of 1944, constitute a judicial tribunal. In any case, the tribunal was a quasi-judicial tribunal, and the High Court having powers to issue writs had authority to interfere. The restriction on the Civil Courts under S. 4 of Act 17 of 1944 to question the validity of the orders of the Commissioners does not prohibit the High Court from correcting the errors of the Commissioners by issue of proper writs or orders of directions. Lakshmi Lal v Bhagwat Singh Mehta, 1951 Raj L W 484 ; ILR (1951) 1 Raj 570 : AIR 1952 Raj 22 (FB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Administrative or judicial order.

The petitioner, a public servant, applied to the State Government for correcting his age in the service book. The Government rejected the application.

Held, that the order was the result of an enquiry as to the correct age of the petitioner. The decision was one based on evidence taken by the Government relating to the age of the petitioner. The proceedings were of the nature of a judicial enquiry. The petition under Art. 226 was therefore maintainable. ILR (1956) Trav-Co 879 : 1956 Ker LT 906 : AIR 1957 Trav-Co 124 (128) (Pt A) (Pr 9) (DB).

147 (a). Elements of.

● —Art. 226—Judicial decision—Authority acting judicially—How determined.

Whether an Authority, like the Board of Revenue acts judicially is to be gathered from the express provisions of the Act in the first instance. Where however, the provisions of the Act are silent, the duty to act judicially may be inferred from the provisions of the statute or may be gathered from the cumulative effect of the nature of the rights affected, the manner of the disposal provided, the objective criterion to be adopted, the phraseology used and other indicia afforded by the statute. AIR 1962 S C 1110, Foll. Board of Revenue, U. P. v. Sardarni Vidyawati, 1962 S C D 767 : (1963) 1 Andh L T 128 : (1963) 1 S C J 324 ; I L R (1963) 1 All 1 : (1962) Supp 3 S C R 50 ; 1962 All L J 691 : 1962 All W R (H C) 594 : A I R 1962 S C 1217 (1220) (Pt B (Pr 5).

● —Art. 226—Tests of judicial Tribunal.

A true judicial decision presupposes an existing dispute between two or more parties and then involves four requisites :— (1) The presentation (not necessarily orally) of their case by the parties to the dispute, (2) If the dispute between them is a question of fact, the ascertainment of the fact by means of evidence adduced by the parties to the dispute and often with the assistance of argument by or on behalf of the parties on the evidence; (3) If the dispute between them is a question of law, the submission of legal argument by the parties; and (4) A decision which disposes of the whole matter by a finding upon the facts in dispute and application of the law of the land to the facts so found including where required a ruling upon any disputed question of law. AIR 1950 S C 188; (1937) 2 K. B. 309, Foll. Maqbool Hussain v. State of Bombay, 1953 S C A 641 : 1953 Mad W N 648 ; 1953 S C J 456 : (1953) 2 M L J 113 ; 1953 Cri L J 1432 : 1953 All W R (Sup) 84 ; 1953 S C R 730 ; 56 Bom L R 13 : A I R 1953 S C 325 (329) (Pt B) (Pr 13).

● ——Art. 226—Judicial and administrative orders—Distinction—Former can by its determination impose liability or affect rights—Authority has also a duty to act judicially.

One of the essential elements of a judicial or quasi judicial order as distinguished from an administrative or ministerial order is that the former has power by its determination to impose liability or affect rights. Another distinction between the two classes of cases is that in cases of acts that are amenable to writ of certiorari or prohibition the authority concerned is not only legally empowered to determine questions affecting the rights of subjects but is also laid under a duty to act judicially. (1950) 2 Mad L J 703 : 1950 S C J 451 : AIR 1950 S C 222 and AIR 1959 S C 896, Rel. on. Sri Durga Gita Vidyalaya v State of U. P., 1962 All L J 329 : 1962 All W R (H C) 243 : ILR (1962) 1 All 737 : AIR 1962 All 187 (192) (Pt E) (Prs 18, 19, 21) (FB).

——Art. 226 — Notice to landlord under U. P. Land Utilisation Act, 1948 — Essentials of — Landlord not served with proper notice — Ex parte order of allotment against landlord—Order held without jurisdiction and quashed. See U. P. Land Utilisation Act (5 of 1948), S. 3. 1952 All L J 380 : A I R 1952 All 822 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Judicial decisions — Reasons for — Necessity.

It is necessary that the order of a tribunal exercising judicial functions should ex facie show reasons not only for setting aside the orders of the subordinate tribunal but also for confirming the same. (1955) Andh L T (Cri) 831 : 1956 Andh W R 652 ; A I R 1957 Andh Pra 739 (742) (Pt B) (Prs 13, 14).

——Art. 226 — Powers of High Court — Arms Act—Granting authority giving reasons for refusing licence —High Court if can examine reasons. See Arms Act (1878), S. 17. 1958 Cri L J 1014 : A I R 1958 Cal 470.

——Art. 226 — Writ of certiorari and mandamus—Essential conditions for issue of—Quasi-judicial and administrative acts—Distinction—Order of Collector under S. 42, Bengal Excise Act, cancelling excise licence and appellate order of Excise Commissioner cofirming same — Issue of writs against orders—(Bengal Excise Act (5 of 1909), Ss. 42 and 8).

A Collector cancelling an excise licence under S. 42, Bengal Excise Act (5 of 1909) for violation of its terms acts in a purely administrative capacity. Neither the Act nor the rules thereunder require him to hold any quasi-judicial investigation into the matter. He is not required to give any notice to the licencee before cancelling the licence and the mere fact that in a particular case such a notice was given and the licensee was allowed an opportunity to cross-examine the witnesses is immaterial for the purposes of determining the nature of his act. He has to decide whether there is any violation of the terms and when there is he has a discretion to cancel the licence where the licencee himself admits the violations and the Collector thinks that on these grounds alone the licence should be cancelled it is not for the Court to interfere.

The Excise Commissioner who hears an appeal from the order of the Collector cancelling the licence however does not act administratively. It cannot be said that because the original order is an administrative one the appeal against it may not be quasi-judicial. The appeal under the rules framed under the Bengal Excise Act requires a judicial approach and therefore is a quasi-judicial proceeding. The Commissioner should in hearing the appeal follow the principles of natural justice since there is no particular procedure prescribed and when he hears the excise officer who is in the position of the accuser behind the back of the licencee and confirms the order of the Collector without giving an opportunity to the licensee or meeting any particular statement the officer might have made, he fails to follow those principles of natural justice.

Still the High Court would not cancel the order and direct a retrial of the case when even after excluding the evidence of the excise officers which relates to one of the items of violation only, the same result would follow at the retrial on the admitted violations of other terms of the licence. In such a case the writs would be useless. A I R 1952 Cal 808 (811 to 815) (Prs 13, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25).

——Art. 226—Judicial or quasi-judicial order.

To constitute a judicial or quasi-judicial order, it must be necessary that the Tribunal should have to weigh the pros and cons before it can come to a conclusion. It would also have to consider facts and circumstances bearing upon the subject. If the determination or decision of the authority results in binding the subject so as to affect his right or impose a liability upon him, and if the exercise of the power by the authority is made dependent by the Legislature upon a contingency or a condition, which condition or contingency is an objective fact to be established and not left to the opinion of the authority, then, the Court will come to the conclusion that there is a duty upon the authority not only to decide and determine but to decide and determine judicially. I L R (1953) Hyd 412 : A I R 1953 Hyd 235 (236) (Pt B) (Pr 6) (DB).

——Art. 226 — M. P. Abolition of Proprietary Rights (Estates, Mahals and Alienated Lands) Act (1 of 1951), Ss. 91 (1), 3 (2), 34 — Rules under — Rules published under Notification No. 777-XXVIII dated 27-10-1951 —Nature of—Orders under—Appeal — Rules cannot be treated as executive instructions — They are statutory rules — In implementing these rules, Revenue Officers have to act on judicial principles — Their orders are capable of being examined by way of appeal under S. 34 of the Act. 1957 Nag L J 134 : 1957 M P C 192 : 1957 M P L J 206 : 1957 Jab L J 892 : I L R (1957) Madh Pra 25 : A I R 1957 Madh Pra 43 (44) (Prs 6, 7, 8) (DB).

——Art. 226—Requirements—Appeal—Duty of Court to hear both parties before deciding appeal—Failure to give opportunity — Effect. See Electricity Act (1910), S. 36 (3). 1958 M P L J (Notes) 12.

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Jurisdiction of Court—Presence of offending officer before Court—Necessity—Judicial and quasi-judicial Tribunals—Enquiry by—Form and procedure.

The true scope of the writ of certiorari is to merely demolish the offending order. Hence in such cases the presence of the offender before the Court is not necessary.

The person proceeded against must be given a fair and reasonable opportunity to defend himself. The person charged with the duty of holding the enquiry must discharge that duty without bias and certainly without vindictiveness. He must conduct himself objectively and dispassionately not merely during the procedural stage of the enquiry, but also in dealing with the evidence and the material on record when drawing up the final order. A further requirement is that the conclusion must be read on the evidence and not on matters outside the record. Where enquiry is judicial there is yet another requirement which should be complied with, namely, that it is not sufficient that justice is done, but that justice should be manifestly appear to be done. (1959) Mad L J (Cri) 433 : (1959) 2 Mad L J 15.

——Art. 226—Special tribunal — Administrative and judicial—Test to decide.

When a question is raised as to whether an authority constituted under a special statute is an administrative body or a tribunal discharging the functions of a judicial character or a Court, the answer to it must depend on the nature of the powers conferred on the authorities by the provisions of the statute. 66 Mad L W 287 : (1953) 1 Mad L J 542 : 1953 Mad W N 200 : A I R 1954 Mad 340 (342) (Pt B) (Pr 3).

——Art. 226—Judicial order — Interference — Order de-reserving part of village grazing ground and for settlement thereof to local landless people issued under Notification—Order held was judicial order as it sought to maintain rights of parties within political community by means of physical force of the State — Order held infringed the fundamental rights of parties who had acquired easement rights of pasturage—Writ could therefore be issued to quash the same. AIR 1957 Manipur 18 (21) (Pt D) (Pr 14).

——Art. 226—Speaking order — Order passed under S. 33 of Displaced Persons (C. and R.) Act, not required to be speaking order — Order giving reasons for conclusions — High Court is competent under Art. 226 to go into entire record including grounds of revision to see if order is open to apparent legal infirmity.

An order on revision passed under S. 33, Displaced Persons (C. and R.) Act by Central Government authorities need not give reasons in support of the conclusions and in that view, the law does not require the order to be a speaking order, but if reasons are given, then it would be open to the High Court under Art. 226, Constitution of India to see that the conclusions and the reasons in support thereof are not tainted with an apparent legal infirmity exposing them to challenge in writ proceedings, and for this purpose, it would be open to the High Court to look at the entire relevent record including the grounds of revision. 67 Pun L R 173 : AIR 1965 Punj 225 (230) (Pt A) (Pr 14) (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 227—Judicial proceedings—Proper notice to parties—Necessity—Rules of natural justice—Duty of Courts and tribunals to follow—(Natural justice).

A judicial decision, reached when there is no notice or when there is improper notice in material respects is without jurisdiction and deserves to be quashed. Such an order clearly violates the fundamental and basic rules of natural justice The tribunal must give the parties an opportunity of being heard and of submitting their case and their views. In order effectively to discharge this obligation, it is mandatory that the Tribunal concerned must also conscienciously satisfy itself that such notice has in fact been duly served. The High Court must, in view of the Preamble of our Constitution be jealous in checking breaches of rules which are designed to ensure justice. 61 Pun L R 529 : A I R 1960 Punj 41 (41, 42) (Pt A) (Pr 1).

——Art. 226—Judicial order—Requisites of—Custodian of Evacuee Property can effing allotment acts judicially - (Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950) S 26 (1)).

The requisites of a judicial decision or act may be stated thus : if (a) a competent authority, not being a Court in the ordinary sense, (b) has power to give a binding and authoritative decision, (c) after hearing evidence and opposition and upon consideration of facts and circumstances, and (d) imposing liability or affecting the rights of the parties, there is a duty to act judicially.

The expression 'judicial approach' postulates (a) that the authority in arriving at the decision or taking action must be bound to act fairly and justly and (b) that it does so on basis to which objective test can be applied, limited by the consideration of the facts and circumstances of the case and the evidence led by the parties and the application of the law.

As the Custodian of Evacue Property has to decide the question of cancellation of allotment while acting under S. 28 (1) of the Administration of Evacuee Property Act with a judicial approach, it follows that his decision or act in so doing is a judicial decision or act and not an administrative or executive decision or act. A I R 1952 S C 16 : 1951 S C J 803 Distg. ILR (1957) Punj 1629 : AIR 1958 Punj 63 (68, 69, 70, 71) (Pt E) (Prs 16, 18. 19, 21) (D 3).

——Art. 226—Certiorari —Setting aside of judgment —Power of High Court.

If there is no evidence, which term evidently means "legally admissible evidence", the judgment can be set aside on a writ of certiorari. AIR 1954 S C 440 : 1954 S C J 695, Foll. ILR (1957) 7 Raj 34: AIR 1957 Raj 189 (200. 201) (Pt G) (Pr 30) (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari, writ of conditions for issue — Duty to act judicially, meaning of — Saurashtra Land Reforms Act (25 of 1951), S. 59—Rules under, Rr. 105 to 108—Committee appointed under R 105 is not a judicial or quasi-judicial body — Nor has it a duty to act judicially — No writ can be issued.

Whenever any body of persons (1) having legal authority (2) to determine questions affecting rights of subjects and (3) having the duty to act judicially (4) act in excess of their legal authority a writ of certiorari may issue. But it is essential that all these conditions must be satisfied before such a writ can be issued. AIR 1950 S C 222, Rel. on.

The test to see whether a body of persons have a duty to act judicially is that the law itself must provide that in reaching the decision the authority making the order must approach the subject in a judicial manner, and further that the recognised principles of approach, which appear to mean the rules of natural justice, must be required to be followed by the statute itself. AIR 1951 Bom 131, Foll.

A committee appointed under R. 105 of the rules framed under S. 59 of the Saurashtra Land Reforms Act (25 of 1951), cannot be held to be a judicial or quasi-judicially body charged with making certain decisions so as to bind the parties. It is only a recommendatory body and it has no powers to decide the issue for itself nor upon such decision to pass orders as is clear from Rr. 107 and 108.

R. 107 merely says that the Committee may after making such inquiry as it deems fit determine whether the person should be included as girasdar. Hence even assuming that the Committee is a judicial or quasi-judicial body no duty has been cast on it by R. 107 to act judicially and the enquiry contemplated is not a judicial enquiry. Consequently, no writ of certiorari can be issued against the order of such Committee dismissing the applicant's claim to be declared as girasdar without giving him a hearing.

Moreover, no useful purpose will be served even if a writ is issued, because after all the committee can only recommend to the Government which may or may not accept it. 1953-6 Sau L R 24 : AIR 1953 Sau 26 (27, 28) (Prs 5, 6, 7, 8) (DB).

147 (b). Judicial power, meaning of.

■ ——Art. 226—Certiorari—Essential features, effect and conditions under which writ is issued.

One of the fundamental principles in regard to the issuing of a writ of certiorari is, that the writ can be availed of only to remove or adjudicate on the validity of judicial acts. The expression 'judicial acts' includes the exercise of quasi-judicial functions by administrative bodies or other authorities or persons obliged to exercise such functions and is used in contrast with what are purely ministerial acts. The second essential feature of a writ of certiorari is that the control which is exercised through it over judicial or quasi-judicial tribunals or bodies is not in an appellate but supervisory capacity. In granting a writ of certiorari the superior Court does not review or reweigh the evidence upon which the determination of the inferior tribunal purports to be based. It demolishes the order which it considers to be without jurisdiction or palpably erroneous but does not substitute its own views for those of the inferior tribunal.

The supervision of the superior Court exercised through writs of certiorari goes on two points. One is the area of inferior jurisdiction and the qualifications and conditions of its exercise; the other is the observance of law in the course of its exercise. These two heads normally cover all the grounds on which a writ of certiorari could be demanded.

Certiorari may and is generally granted when a Court has acted without or in excess of its jurisdiction. The want of jurisdiction may arise from the nature of the subject-matter of the proceeding or from the absence of some preliminary proceeding or the Court itself may not be legally constituted or suffer from certain disability by reason of extraneous circumstances. When the jurisdiction of the Court depends upon the existence of some collateral fact, it is well settled that the Court cannot by a wrong decision of the fact give it jurisdiction which it would not otherwise possess.

A tribunal may be competent to enter upon an enquiry but in making the enquiry it may act in flagrant disregard of the rules of procedure or where no particular procedure is prescribed, it may violate the principles of natural justice A writ of certiorari may be available in such cases. An error in the decision or determination itself may also be amenable to a writ of certiorari but it must be a manifest error apparent on the face of the proceedings, e. g., when it is based on clear ignorance or disregard of the provisions of law. In other words, it is a patent error which can be corrected by certiorari but not a mere wrong decision. Basappa v. T. Nagappa, 1955 S C R 250 : 1954 S C J 695 : 1954 S C A 620 : 67 Mad L W 613 : I L R (1954) Mys 235 : A I R 1954 S C 440 (444) (Pt B) (7, 8, 9, 10).

——Arts. 226 and 227—Special Assistant Agent exercising powers under Agency Tracts Interest and Land Transfer Act exercises judicial functions — (Madras) Agency Tracts Interest and Land Tranfer Act (1 of 1917), S. 4 (2). 18 Cut L T 267 : ILR (1952) Cut 615 : AIR 1953 Orissa 238 (239) (Pt B) (Pr 6) (DB)

——Art. 226 — Person with "judicial experience" within meaning of S. 44 (2) (as amended) of Motor Vehicles Act — Experience at Bar or as presiding officer of quasi-judicial tribunal is not "judicial experience". See Motor Vehicles Act (1939 as amended by Act 100 of 1956), S. 44 (2). A I R 1960 Raj 105 (DB).

148. Jurisdiction.

See also Note 144.

(a) Power of superior Court to disturb decision of inferior Court or Tribunal on question of jurisdiction.

148. Jurisdiction.

See also Note 144.

■ ——Art. 226 — Writ of certiorari — When can be issued.

A writ of certiorari can be issued for correcting errors of jurisdiction committed by inferior Courts or tribunals : these are cases where orders are passed by inferior Courts or tribunals without jurisdiction, or are in excess of it, or as a result of failure to exercise

Jurisdiction. A writ can, similarly, be issued where in exercise of jurisdiction conferred on it, the Court or Tribunal acts illegally or improperly, as for instance, it decides a question without giving an opportunity to be heard to the party affected by the order, or where the procedure adopted in dealing with the dispute is opposed to principles of natural justice. Syed Yakoob v K. S Radhakrishnan, (1964) 5 S C R 64 : A I R 1964 S C 477 (479, 480) (Pt A) (Pr 7).

●——Art. 226 — Jurisdiction of High Court — Bihar Private Irrigation Works Act (5 of 1922), S. 11 — Demand made from landlords under S. 11—Contention raised by landlords that demand is invalid by reason of non-observance of S. 5-A—Demand made after commencement of Constitution — Held, High Court had jurisdiction to quash demand.

Demands were issued against the landlords under S. 11 of the Bihar Private Irrigation Works Act, 1922, and were sought to be recovered as arrears of public demands under S. 12. Those demands had their origin in or were ultimately based upon an order passed by the Collector under S. 5-A. The argument which the landlords presented to the High Court was that the demands were illegal and not justified by law, because they had ultimately to be based upon orders (under S. 5-A) which were without jurisdiction and therefore void.

Held, (1) that the High Court had jurisdiction under Art. 226 to direct that these demands be quashed and should not be enforced, (2) that as the several demands which were quashed were made after the Constitution, the High Court could exercise the jurisdiction that was for the first time conferred on it by Art. 226 of the Constitution. Collector of Monghyr v. Keshav Prasad Goenka, 1962 B L J R 463 : (1962) 2 S C A 708 : (1963) 1 S C R 98 : ILR 42 Pat 112 : A I R 1962 S C 1694 (1702, 1703) (Pt E) (Prs 18, 19).

●——Art. 32 — Jurisdiction — Meaning of, stated — Decision of judicial or quasi-judicial authority — Issue of certiorari against order — When lies. See Civil P. C. (1908), S. 9. A I R 1962 S C 1621.

●——Art. 226 — Error in exercise of jurisdiction—Interpretation and application of relevant items in Tariff Schedule by Customs Authorities for assessing duty even if grossly erroneous is an error in exercise of jurisdiction—They cannot make order beyond their jurisdiction. A. V. Venkateswaran, Collector of Customs, Bombay v. Ramchand Sobhraj Wadhwani, (1962) 1 S C J 170 : (1962) 1 Mad L J (SC) 83 : (1961) 1 Andh W R (SC) 83 : 64 Bom L R 386 : (1962) 1 S C R 753 : (1961) 2 S C A 622 : AIR 1961 S C 1506 (1510, 1511) (Pt D) (Prs 11, 15).

●——Art. 226 — Income-tax assessment — Alleged irregularity or illogicality — Issue of writ.

Where the ground taken against an assessment order is that the course taken by the Income-tax Officer in making orders of fresh assessment under S. 34 is irregular and illogical and therefore it should be corrected, it relates to the merits of the order and does not raise any question of jurisdiction under Art. 226. Y. Narayana Chetty v. Income-tax Officer, Nellore 1959 S C J 250 : (1959) 35 ITR 388 : (1959) 1 Andh W R (SC) 109 : (1959) 1 Mad L J (SC) 109 : 1958 Cal L J 320 : (1959) Supp (1) S C R 189 : A I R 1959 S C 213 (219) (Pt C) (Pr 12).

●——Art. 226—Certiorari is generally granted when Court has acted without or in excess of jurisdiction — Want of jurisdiction may arise from the nature of the subject-matter or from the absence of some preliminary proceedings or the Court itself may not be legally constituted or suffer from certain disability by reason of extraneous circumstances. Basappa, T. C. v. T. Nagappa, 1954 S C A 620 : 67 Mad L W 613 : 1954 S C J 695 : ILR (1954) Mys 235 : 1955 S C R 250 : 10 Ele L R 14 : AIR 1954 S C 440 (444) (Pt B) (Prs 7, 10).

●——Art. 226 — Writ to quash decision of inferior Court.

A writ cannot be granted to quash the decision of an inferior Court within the jurisdiction of the High Court on the ground that the decision is wrong. It must be shown before such a writ is issued that the authority which passed the order acted without jurisdiction or in excess of it or in violation of the principles of natural justice Once it is held that the Court has jurisdiction but while exercising it, it made a mistake, the wronged party can only take the course prescribed by law for setting matters right inasmuch as a Court has jurisdiction to decide rightly as well as wrongly. Ebrahim Aboobakar v. Custodian-General, Evacuee Property, New Delhi, ILR (1953) Punj 17 : 1952 S C A 501 : 1952 Mad W N 502 : 1952 S C J 483 : 1952 S C R 696 : 90 Cal L J 133 : A I R 1952 S C 319 (322) (Pt B) (Pr 13).

●——Art 226—Power of High Court under — Writ of certiorari—When can be issued.

An inferior tribunal vested with powers to exercise judicial or quasi-judicial functions might have come to an erroneous conclusion, but where the conclusion is in respect of a matter which lies entirely within the jurisdiction of the tribunal and it does not relate to anything collateral, an erroneous decision upon which might affect its jurisdiction, and where records of the case do not disclose any error apparent on the face of the proceeding or any irregularity in the procedure adopted by the tribunal which goes contrary to the principles of natural justice, there are absolutely no grounds which would justify a superior Court in issuing a writ of certiorari for removal of an order or proceeding of such tribunal. In such a case High Court cannot exercise the powers of an appellate Court and correct what it considered to be an error in the decision of the tribunal. The position might have been different if it had omitted to decide a matter which it was bound to decide and in such cases a mandamus might legitimately issue commanding the authority to determine questions which it left undecided but no certiorari is available to quash a decision passed with jurisdiction by an inferior tribunal on the mere ground that such decision is erroneous. 1911 A C 179, Rel. on., Parry and Co Ltd Dare House Madras v. Commercial Employees Association Madras. 90 Cal L J 7 : (1952) S C A 299 : 1952 S C R 519 : 65 Mad L W 491 : 1952 Mad W N 429 : 1952 S C J 275 : 1952-1 Mad L J 813 : A I R 1952 S C 179 (179, 180, 181) (Pt A) (Prs 4, 11).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Order passed under S. 29, Defence of India Act (1962)—Court can decide whether order falls within ambit of section — If not, certiorari can be issued. A I R 1965 All 236 (239) (Pt B) (Pr 17).

——Art. 226—Disputed question of fact and finding in respect to it.

Jurisdiction of State Government to entertain application under S. 7-F of U. P. (Temporary) Control of Rent and Eviction Act and pass order though it can be questioned in proceedings under S. 7-B, can be challenged in writ petition, since decision depended on consideration of Act and not controversial question of fact. See Houses and Rents—U. P. (Temporary) Control of Rent and Eviction Act (3 of 1947), S. 7-F. AIR 1964 All 395.

——Art. 226 — Question of jurisdiction—Powers of High Court—Scope of.

If a question goes to the root of a case in determining the jurisdiction of the Court to deal with it, it is always competent for the supervisory Court, like the High Court, acting in exercise of its jurisdiction under Art. 226 of the Constitution to examine and see whether the inferior Court does or does not possess jurisdiction and, for that purpose to determine what is the correct interpretation of the law applicable. AIR 1964 All 386 (389, 390) (Pt D) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 226—Writ of certiorari—U. P. Consolidation of Holdings Act (5 of 1954), S. 48—Jurisdiction of Director of Consolidation under—Limited to circumstances specified in the section — Order by quasi-judicial authority without jurisdiction—Quashed by issue of certiorari. See Tenancy Laws—U. P. Consolidation of Holdings Act (5 of 1954), S. 48. I L R (1962) 2 All 359.

——Art. 226 — Court will not go normally behind finding of fact unless jurisdiction to pass orders depends upon it. 1961 All W R (HC) 86 : 1961 All L J 36.

——Art. 226 — U. P. Industrial Disputes Act (28 of 1947), Ss 3, 6A, 8 — U. P. Govt. Notification No. U 464 (LL) Y X XXVI B 257 (LL) 1954 D/- 14.7-1954, Cls. 3, 11 — Individual dispute espoused by wholly foreign trade union—Not industrial dispute—Reference of such dispute to Adjudicator is without jurisdiction—Power of High Court to interfere under Art. 226 and quash order of reference — See U. P. Industrial Disputes Act (28 of 1947), S. 3. AIR 1960 All 734.

——Art. 226—Certiorari — Issue of —Order of tribunal having no jurisdiction—Effect of.

If any judicial or quasi judicial Tribunal exercises jurisdiction and the conferment of that jurisdiction is ab initio void, there is no necessity for issue of any writ of certiorari to quash the decision of the Tribunal and the Court would be competent to issue appropriate directions and orders completely ignoring the effect of that decision. AIR 1956 All 684, Rel. on. I L R (1958) 1 All 434 : AIR 1958 All 80 (85) (Pt D) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Power to quash by certiorari order of inferior tribunal on ground that it is on face of it erroneous in law.

The purpose of inserting Art. 226 in the Constitution was 'apparently to place all the High Courts in this Country in somewhat the same position as the Courts of King's Bench in England. In England, if the record of the proceedings of an inferior tribunal discloses on examination an error of law the proceedings can be quashed by a writ of certiorari and the Supreme Court in AIR 1954 S C 440 has declared such to be the law in India, and has not taken the view that the English rule is to be applied in India subject to certain modifications or limitations. There can, therefore, be no doubt that in the exercise of the jurisdiction to issue a writ of certiorari the Court does not, and has no power to, substitute its own views for those of the inferior tribunal, nor has it power to quash a decision because it thinks it wrong unless the error is an error of law and is apparent on the face of the record. AIR 1954 S C 440 explained and followed; AIR 1954 All 497 (FB) not followed; AIR 1952 S C 179: 1952 S C J 275: (1952) 1 M L J 813, held cannot be reconciled with AIR 1954 S C 440. Case-law discussed. 1955 All L J 244 : I L R (1955) 1 All 698 : AIR 1955 All 131 (134, 135) (Pt B) (Prs 9, 10).

——Art. 226—Rules under U. P. Sugarcane Factories Control Act, Rule 23 — Jurisdiction of Cane Commissioner arises, only when there is agreement under S. 18 (2) in form No. 12 Appendix III, Schedule to Act—It is agreement written and signed—Oral agreement—Cane Commissioner exercisiong jurisdiction—Decision will be quashed under Art. 226—See U. P. Sugarcane Factories Control Act (1 of 1938), S. 18 (2). AIR 1955 N U C (All) 3596.

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — U. P. Land Revenue Act (1901), S. 145.

Remission of land revenue allowed by mistake over a number of years — Government is entitled to recover the same in one lump sum—Failure to obtain certificate under S. 145, U. P. Land Revenue Act, though a defect in procedure which affected jurisdiction of the Government to recover the same High Court refused to issue a writ of certiorari because the defect did not affect the equities and justice of the claim of the Government and did not interfere with the fundamental rights of the petitioner. The hardship which might result to petitioner as a result of recovering amount in a lump sum held was not a matter which the High Court could consider in the writ petition. 1953 All W R (H C) 475 : 1953 All L J 513 : AIR 1954 All 4 (5) (Prs 4, 5, 6) (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 136 — Labour Appellate Tribunal deciding that there is no question of law — Writ application is not maintainable—(Industrial Disputes Labour (Appellate) Tribunal Act (1950), S. 7)—(C. P. Code (1908), S. 9).

Before a writ of certiorari can be granted to quash the decision of an interior Court within its jurisdiction, the applicant must show that the authority which passed the order acted without jurisdiction or in excess of it or in violation of the principles of natural justice. Once it has been established that the Court had jurisdiction but, while exercising it, made a mistake, the wronged party cannot ask the High Court to set matters right as a Court having jurisdiction can decide rightly as also wrongly.

Where the question before the Labour Appellate Tribunal is not whether the strikes were legal or illegal or whether the employers had acted legally or illegally in dismissing the employees but whether the appeal preferred by the employers was a competent one, the Labour Appellate Tribunal has to decide the question, not as a collateral and extrinsic issue but as a direct and intrinsic issue, whether the appeal raised any substantial question of law or not. Its decision of this question, right or wrong, does not give the High Court writ jurisdiction under Art. 226 of the Constitution. A I R 1953 All 260, AIR 1952 S C 319, Relied on.

The applicants have another remedy open to them namely, that of preferring an application for special leave to appeal against the judgment of the Labour Appellate Tribunal to the Supreme Court. 1953 All L J 488 : I L R (1954) 1 All 198 : AIR 1953 All 531 (532, 533) (Prs 5, 7) (DB).

——Art. 226—Industrial Disputes Act (14 of 1947), S. 10 — "Refer the dispute" — Notification not referring to names of individuals whose disputes had to be considered by Tribunal but left the specific cases to be cited by employees — It is duty of Tribunal to determine whether persons whose names were cited were workmen or not — If it held that particular individual was not a workman, it meant that his case was not referred — Such determination was of fact which was itself subject matter of dispute referred for adjudication—Decision of such matter is exercise of jurisdiction and cannot be challenged by certiorari. Even wrong determination would not amount to exercise of jurisdiction not vested. AIR 1953 All 260 (261, 262) (Prs 4, 4a) (DB).

——Art. 226—Cognizance of case taken by a Panchayat Bench of five panchas—Decision by three is without jurisdiction—Order quashed. See U. P. Panchayat Raj Act (26 of 1947), S. 49. 1952 Cri L J 940 : AIR 1952 All 510 (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Writ of—Registration Act (1908), Ss. 68 (2), 74, 7 (2)—Joint Sub-Registrar functioning as District Registrar, refusing to register document without holding enquiry as required by S 74 — District Registrar directing Joint Sub-Registrar to hold enquiry — No injustice caused to parties by order of District Registrar — High Court will refuse to quash order though passed without jurisdiction, under Art. 226, Constitution — Registration Act (1908), ss. 68 (2), 74, 7 (2).

Where the Joint Sub Registrar, who was functioning as District Registrar under S. 74, by reason of the delegation of powers under S. 7 (2), refused to register a document without holding an enquiry as required by S. 74, and the District Registrar on a petition under S. 73, purporting to act under S 68 (2), diverted the Joint Sub-Registrar to perform the functions which he was bound to do under S. 74, the High Court will refuse to quash the order of the District Registrar by a writ of certiorari even assuming that the District Registrar had acted without jurisdiction in issuing the direction. It is not every error of law that would induce the High Court to exercise its extraordinary jurisdiction but only in cases where there is failure of justice. (1963) 2 Andh W R 285.

— Art. 226 — Certiorari — Jurisdiction of revising authority — Sale of property for recovery of arrears held and completed on 20-8-1950 — Defaulter filing registered security bond after expiry of time allowed by Collector on 9-10-1950 - No application to Collector to set aside confirmation of sale—Revenue Minister in revision has no jurisdiction to set aside confirmation of sale. See Hyderabad Land Revenue Act (8 of 1317-F), S. 166-B(1). (1963) 2 Andh L T 392.

——Art. 226—Jurisdiction - Order of Industrial Tribunal confirmed by Labour Appellate Tribunal—Writ petition against order of Industrial Tribunal—Maintainability — (Industrial Disputes (Appellate Tribunal) Act (1950), S. 9(2)).

Where a person applying under Art. 226 of the Constitution can successfully demonstrate that the order of the original tribunal is void for want of jurisdiction, the fact that that order has been confirmed by an appellate authority does not detract from the power of the High Court to invalidate it.

Thus where on rejection of appeal summarily under S. 9(2) of the Industrial Disputes (Appellate Tribunal) Act the Labour Appellate Tribunal was not in existence and the writ petition was directed against the order of the Industrial Tribunal instead of against the order of the Labour Appellate Tribunal, on the ground that it was void for want of jurisdiction:

Held, that the writ petition was maintainable. AIR 1957 S C 444, Rel. on. (1958) 1 Lab L J 17 : I L R (1958) Andh Pra 183.

——Art. 226—Civil P. C. (1908), S. 9—Matters dealt with by special Tribunal — Minimum Wages Act (1948), Ss. 20 15, 22, 24, 25—Notification fixing minimum wages and making them payable to unskilled labour in tea industry—Order under S. 20 by Authority directing payment, in interpreting notification, to all unskilled labour including sub-normal workers—Suit by employers questioning correctness of decision of Authority — Whether barred — Jurisdiction of Authority to interpret notification and decide whether it applies to particular class of workmen—Ambit and scope—Jurisdiction whether exclusive. See Civil P. C. (1908), S. 9. AIR 1963 Assam 62 (FB).

——Art. 226 — High Court when can interfere with administrative order.

The High Court has power to interfere even with an administrative order in exercise of its powers under Art. 226 if the said order be passed without or in excess of his jurisdiction by a public officer or there is malice in fact or law.

Where the Deputy Commissioner in exercise of his powers under Sch. 4, R. 1 of the Assam Municipal Act fixed a certain date for holding of the first meeting of the newly elected members of the board knowing fully that certain election petitions were pending in respect of certain members but subsequently postponed the meeting till the decision of the election petitions, the order of postponement even if administrative is in excess of his jurisdiction and is liable to be quashed The Assam Municipal Act undoubtedly gives him a discretion to vary the date for the meeting, when considered necessary but not to obliterate or drop it or postpone the meeting sine die to suit certain purpose for which there is no legal sanction. I L R (1953) 5 Assam 212 : A I R 1954 Assam 86 (87, 88) (Pt B (Prs 9, 10, 13, 14) (DB).

——Art 226 -(Assam) High Court Rules and Orders, 1950 Chap V-A, R. 2 — Application under Constitution of India, Art. 226 — Hearing by single Judge — Jurisdiction—Remedy if order is without jurisdiction. See High Court Rules and Orders — (Assam) High Court Rules and Orders (1950), Chap. V-A, R. 2. AIR 1953 Assam 62.

——Art. 226 - Jurisdiction of High Court — Bombay Land Requisition Act, 1948, S 6(4) and proviso — Order of requisition — Decision that premises are vacant - Interference by certiorari — Jurisdiction of High Court.

An order of requisition by the Government under S. 6(4)(a) of the Bombay Land Requisition Act, as well as the declaration under the proviso is a quasi-judicial act and a writ of certiorari will no doubt issue if the Government act in excess of their jurisdiction. But the jurisdiction exercised by the High Court in issuing the high prerogative writ of certiorari is a limited jurisdiction. The Court is neither a Court of appeal nor a Court of revision and has no power to correct either findings of fact or even errors of law. Its sole function is to correct persons or tribunals exercising judicial or quasi-judicial functions when they assume jurisdiction which they do not possess or when they refuse to exercise jurisdiction which is vested in them by law, or when in exercise of their jurisdiction they violate principles of natural justice. Under S. 6(4) and the proviso, jurisdiction has been conferred upon the Government to decide and determine the question of vacancy, and the jurisdiction to determine that question is not made conditional upon the finding of any collateral or extraneous fact. A distinction has to be borne in mind, i.e., the distinction between a collateral fact and the actual matter to be decided by a tribunal.

The legal aspect of vacancy is not a matter collateral to the actual matter which the Government has to decide, but it is a part of the very issue and if the issue is erroneously decided, the superior Court has no jurisdiction or right to interfere with the decision of the inferior Court. There is again a distinction between a wrong assumption of jurisdiction and the wrong exercise of it. However wrong the exercise of jurisdiction may be by a lower Court, it does not empower the High Court to correct by a writ of certiorari.

It is only when the jurisdiction is wrongly assumed or is assumed when it does not exist that the power of the superior Court comes into play. When the Government determines the question of vacancy, it determines it as a Judge, and so long as its jurisdiction to do so cannot be challenged, its decision, however erroneous, cannot equally be challenged. There is consequently no power in the High Court to interfere by a writ of certiorari with any decision of Government arrived at under the proviso to S. 6(4) of the Act with regard to the existence of a vacancy even though such decision may be erroneous in law. If the declaration is mala fide, the subject can always challenge such decision. 51 Bom L R 997, Dissented; 51 Bom L R 418, Ref 53 Bom L R 94: I L R (1951) Bom 701 : A I R 1951 Bom 303 (304 to 307) (Pts A, B, C) (Prs 3, 4, 5, 10) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari, writ of — Jurisdiction to issue when not exercised—(Certiorari).

The jurisdiction that the High Court exercises when it issues the high prerogative writ of certiorari is a limited jurisdiction. Thus, when any Court has been empowered to determine certain question and jurisdiction has been conferred upon it to determine those questions then the determination by the Court of those questions, however erroneous in fact or in law, cannot call into question the jurisdiction of the High Court under its high prerogative of issuing a writ of certiorari. To this principle there are two exceptions: the first is that the superior Court will interfere when an error of law is patent on the face of record; and the second is that the determination is arrived at mala fide in which case it will not be a determination at all and fraud or mala fides will vitiate any decision however arrived at. I L R (1951) Bom 701 : AIR 1951 Bom 303 (305, 306, 307) (Pt B) (Prs 4, 5, 10) (DB).

——Art. 226—Under Art. 226, the High Court interferes if there is a plain excess of jurisdiction; where the question of jurisdiction turns upon the disputed questions of fact the Court generally declines to interfere. AIR 1963 Cal 275 (276) (Pt A) (Pr 4).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari—Inherent lack of jurisdiction—Failure to object to jurisdiction will not clothe tribunal with jurisdiction — Certiorari can be issued to correct such lack of jurisdiction. I L R 9 All 191 (P C) and I L R 11 Mad 26 (P C) and AIR 1954 S C 340, Foll.; AIR 1958 Cal 208 and AIR 1954 Bom 202 and AIR 1957 S C 425 and AIR 1957 S C 397, Disting. (1961) 2 Lab L J 36 : (1961-62) 21 F J R 247 : (1961) 2 Fac L R 407 : 65 Cal W N 478 : AIR 1961 Cal 227 (229)(Pt C) (Pr 14).

——Art. 226- Certiorari — When can issue—(Industrial Disputes (Appellate Tribunal) Act (1950), S. 7).

In regard to cases where the jurisdiction of a tribunal depends upon the existence of some preliminary fact of a collateral character, that is, collateral to the actual matter which the tribunal has to try, a distinction has been made between cases where the Legislature has merely laid down the condition that if the preliminary fact exists, the tribunal shall have jurisdiction and cases where while laying down the condition, the Legislature has made it clear that it intends the very same tribunal to have jurisdiction to decide whether the preliminary fact exists or not.

Held, that the question whether the appeal before Industrial Appellate Tribunal involved a substantive question of law and was therefore maintainable was within the Appellate Tribunal's jurisdiction, as an appellate Court to decide and, therefore, no certiorari could issue against its decision. (1956) 2 Lab L J 328 : 60 Cal W N 602 : AIR 1957 Cal 560 (568, 568, 569) (Pt C) (Prs 21, 26, 28) (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—When to issue.

If the fact in question is not collateral, but a part of the very issue which the inferior tribunal has to enquire into, an order will not be granted, although the inferior tribunal may have arrived at an erroneous conclusion with regard to it. (1950) 2 Lab L J 329 : 60 Cal W N 602 : AIR 1957 Cal 560 (569) (Pt D) (Pr 30) (D B).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Central Excise Rules (1944), R. 9 (2), order under—Order made with jurisdiction but stating wrong part of section—Court will not interfere unless party is prejudiced—AIR 1957 S C 227 and AIR 1958 S C 232, Foll. I L R (1965) Gui 40 : (1965) 6 Guj L R 137 AIR 1965 Guj 215 (225) (Pt C) (Pr 17) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Patent lack of jurisdiction — Writ of certiorari can be issued.

Where there is patent lack of jurisdiction, or where there is a case of clear absence of jurisdiction, a writ of certiorari can issue, though not of right nor as a matter of course, but almost as a matter of course. AIR 1957 S C 227; AIR 1960 S C 407, Disting. (1961) 2 Guj L R 299.

——Art. 226—Conferment of jurisdiction.

Jurisdiction is not conferred on grounds of natural justice. It has to be specifically conferred by statute and more so in the case of administrative bodies exercising judicial or quasi-judicial functions. Such bodies have to keep themselves strictly within the four corners of jurisdiction that is specifically conferred upon them, otherwise their orders become null and void. The fact that an officer has to keep law and order does not confer any jurisdiction to decide questions of title to property. I L R (1953) Hyd 412: AIR 1953 Hyd 235 (237) (Pt E) (Pr 10) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Administrative bodies—Orders without jurisdiction—Null and void.

Jurisdiction is not conferred on grounds of natural justice. Jurisdiction has to be specifically conferred by statute and more so in the case of administrative bodies exercising judicial or quasi-judicial functions. Such bodies have to keep themselves strictly within the four corners of jurisdiction specifically conferred upon them; otherwise their orders become null and void. I L R (1952) Hyd 791 : AIR 1953 Hyd 79 (88) (Pt I) (Pr 49) (DB).

[Reversed on another point in AIR 1956 S C 319.]

——Art. 226—Certiorari jurisdiction invoked under Art. 226 — Usurpation or excess of jurisdiction of inferior tribunal should be proved.

In order to invoke the certiorari jurisdiction under Art. 226 of the Constitution, the petitioner has to show that there has been a usurpation of jurisdiction or that there has been an excess of jurisdiction on the part of a judicial body. Excess of or want of jurisdiction arises where it has no authority to entertain an enquiry. The issue of a writ is not to reopen or vacate the judgment of an inferior tribunal as is done in the case of an appeal. The exercise of the writ is regulated and limited by fixed principles. The High Court merely determines the validity or invalidity of the record of such inferior tribunal and confirms or reverses in whole or in part accordingly. Ahmed-Un-Nissa Begum v. State, AIR 1953 Hyd 21 (23) (Pt B) (Pr 7) (FB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Jurisdiction of High Court—Order by Revenue Minister without jurisdiction and not authorised by Land Revenue Act—Cancellation of patta to jagir lands held by pattadar for over 30 years—Objections to, by rival party rejected several times and matter closed by Government officer—Writ to quash order of Minister.

Where a dispute as to certain jagir lands held by a pattadar under a patta granted by the Naib of the Jagirdar is one purely between two private parties, and so far as the Government is concerned it has no claim for anything due to insufficient assessment having been levied from the pattadar holding the lands for over 30 years, the dispute should properly be decided by a Court of law under judicial process.

It is not within the province of the Revenue department or the Revenue Minister to decide such private claims and to cancel a patta granted over 30 years ago on the objection of a private party when such objection raised on several prior occasions had been turned down and rejected by the superior revenue officers and the Revenue Department and even by the President of Council and the proceedings had been closed.

If the Revenue Minister passes an order cancelling the patta it is not a mere ministerial act as it affects rights of property of the pattadar and a judicial approach to the question is by Collector. Even in cases of administrative and executive orders, acting in excess of legal authority would vitiate the decision. Where the Minister had no jurisdiction under the Land Revenue Act to act in the way he did, to decide the matter, when there was no legal evidence or other material in support of the decision and there was no judicial inquiry, the High Court will issue a writ of certiorari to quash his order and direct that the patta and possession of the original pattadar who has been holding for over 30 years should not be interfered with in pursuance of the Minister's order. 48 Cal W N 766; AIR 1950 S C 222; AIR 1949 Mad 535, Ref. I L R (1951) Hyd 845 : AIR 1952 Hyd 10 (13, 14, 15) (Pt A) (Prs 15, 16, 17, 18, 18a, 19) (DB).

——Art. 226 (1) — Certiorari — Writ of — Object of — Unwarranted usurpation of jurisdiction by Ecclesiastical Department in Hyderabad — Power of High Court to issue writ.

The object of a writ of certiorari is to correct excess of jurisdiction. This power is exercised by the High Court by virtue of its extraordinary jurisdiction where the act complained of is a judicial or quasi-judicial act. Where there is an adequate remedy, a writ of certiorari will not lie and that remedy, should be such which should be equally beneficial and speedy and not merely one which at some further time will bring relief. A writ of certiorari is invoked before a trial is completed to secure a fairer trial than can be obtained before an inferior Court or to prevent an excess of jurisdiction after trial; it is in fact to quash an order which has been made without jurisdiction or in defiance of the rules of natural justice.

But a writ of prohibition is issued to prevent the commission of a future act and not to undo an act already performed. An application for such a writ cannot lie to restrain an inferior tribunal after its judgment has been executed. Where the Court has nothing further to do in pursuance of its order the question of restraining the action of the Court does not arise. This would be the position even if the order was void.

Per Siddiqi J. — The powers of the Hyderabad High Court in this respect are similar to those of the Indian High Courts.

Where the Director of Ecclesiastical Department in Hyderabad has no right to eject the tenant of endowed property without applying to a Court of law, a writ can be issued to the Director, restraining him from taking possession directly of the premises. But no writ can be issued in respect of that part of the endowed property of which the Department has already taken possession before the petitioner moved the High Court. ILR (1951) Hyd 149 : AIR 1950 Hyd 5 (10, 12, 13, 14) (Pt A) (Prs 18, 24, 31, 32) (DB).

——Art. 226 — M. B. Panchayat Act (58 of 1949), S. 20 — Grounds for certiorari — Authority having jurisdiction deciding wrongly — No certiorari.

Where the Legislature entrusts the authority with jurisdiction to determine whether the preliminary state of facts exists, no certiorari can lie even if the decision be wrong, the reason being that the jurisdiction having been conferred the authority has power to decide both rightly or wrongly. Thus, S. 20 of the Panchayat Vidhan confers jurisdiction on the Government to decide whether any Panchayat Board has abused its powers or neglected its duty; consequently in the proper exercise of its jurisdiction if it decides wrongly the High Court cannot interfere by way of certiorari proceedings. (1888 21 Q B D 313 and AIR 1950 S C 222, Rel. on. AIR 1955 Madh B 173 (175) (Pt D) (Pr 6) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari, when can issue.

A writ of certiorari can be issued to quash the order of an inferior tribunal or a quasi judicial authority if it goes beyond the jurisdiction, or to ensure observance of the rules of natural justice. 1957 M P C 291 : 1957 Jab L J 509 : AIR 1958 Madh Pra 11 (12) (Pt B) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 33 (2) (as amended by Act 36 of 1956) — Object of — Grant of approval to action taken by employer — Jurisdiction of Tribunal — Nature of — Tribunal passing order in excess of jurisdiction — Power of High Court to interfere under Art. 226 of Constitution — Industrial Disputes (Appellate Tribunal) Act (1950), S. 22. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 33 (2) (as amended by Act 36 of 1956). AIR 1961 Mad 362.

——Art. 226 — Error of law — Award given by Industrial Tribunal based on no evidence — Setting aside of — (Industrial Disputes (Appellate Tribunal) Act (1950), S. 9 (7)).

The insufficiency of data is certainly not enough to reverse the finding of the Appellate Tribunal. But where there is really no evidence on which the Appellate Tribunal could rest its decision, the substituted award given by the Appellate Tribunal directing the reinstatement of workers is without jurisdiction and it is liable to be set aside under Art. 226. 1957 Mad W N 445 : (1957) 2 Mad L J 135 : 70 Mad L W 829 : (1957-58) 13 F J R 202 : (1958) 1 Lab L J 69 : AIR 1957 Mad 688 (689, 690) (Pt D) (Prs 10, 12).

——Art. 226 — Powers of High Court — Question whether industrial establishment is of a seasonal character when arises — Order of Government declaring petitioner's mill not of seasonal character when no such question arose — Validity — Interference. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 25 A. AIR 1957 Mad 410 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Jurisdiction.

Where the order of the Deputy Commissioner under S. 57 (b) of the Madras Hindu Religious and Charitable Endowments Act (19 of 1951) is set aside as one passed by a Tribunal wholly devoid of jurisdiction, the order of the Commissioner, which confirmed that order in appeal would have no basis by itself.

Hence the fact that under Art. 226, the petitioners applying for a writ of certiorari ask in form only for setting aside the order of the Deputy Commissioner and do not pray for setting aside the order of the Commissioner is not a bar to the exercise of the jurisdiction vested in the High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution. ILR (1957) Mad 631 : 1955 Mad W N 865 : 68 Mad L W 777 : (1955) 2 Mad L J 612 : AIR 1956 Mad 146 (149) (Pt B) (Pr 20).

——Art. 226 — Scope of inquiry — Finding on jurisdictional issue — Power to examine.

The correctness of a finding on a jurisdictional issue is open to examination afresh, if necessary, in proceedings under Art. 226 of the Constitution. (1956) 2 Mad L J 254.

——Art. 226 – Certiorari —Tenancy Laws —Madras Estates (Abolition and Conversion into Ryotwari) Act (1948), S. 67 – Rules relating to procedure for being followed by Tribunals appointed under S. 8 of Act – Validity—Orders passed by two members sitting as Tribunal is without jurisdiction. See Tenancy Laws – Madras Estates (Abolition and Conversion into Ryotwari) Act (26 of 1948), S. 67. AIR 1953 Mad 129.

——Art. 226—Application for review under S. 96(2), Manipur Land Revenue and Land Reforms Act (1960) filed after period of limitation — Order passed on it held was in excess of jurisdiction and it being quasi-judicial High Court could interfere with it under Art. 226. See Tenancy Laws — Manipur Land Revenue and Land Reforms Act (33 of 1960), S. 14 (2). AIR 1965 Manipur 3.

——Art. 226 – Writ of certiorari—Object of—Object is to secure proper exercise of jurisdiction.

One of the objects intended to be secured by a writ of certiorari is that the jurisdiction of the inferior tribunal should be properly exercised. This is also the English law. The superior Courts in India can make an order or issue a writ in the nature of a certiorari in all appropriate cases and in appropriate manner so long as they keep to the broad and fundamental principles that regulate the exercise of jurisdiction in the matter of granting such writs in English law. AIR 1954 S C 440, Rel. on. (1965) 1 Lab L J 357 : (1965-66) 27 F J R 418 : AIR 1965 Mys 121 (123, 124) (Pt B) (Fr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Jurisdiction — Failure to exercise — Interference — See Sales Tax — Mysore Sales Tax Act (25 of 1957), S. 40. AIR 1959 Mys 201 (DB).

——Art. 226 – Certiorari.

All questions of jurisdiction have to be decided in limine and the High Court cannot enter into the merits of a controversy even to reject a contention of the petitioner without its own jurisdiction to do so being clear and manifest. AIR 1930 P C 227, Rel. on. ILR (1953) Nag 772 : 1953 Nag L J 458 : AIR 1953 Nag 357 (358) (Pt A) (Pr 21) (DB).

——Art. 226 – Jurisdiction—Civil P. C. (1908), S. 9.

A Civil Judge may be vested with the jurisdiction of both kinds, namely, civil and criminal. But when two jurisdictions are so distinct they cannot be exercised even simultaneously, much less can criminal jurisdiction be exercised in relation to a civil matter, or civil jurisdiction in relation to a criminal matter. Therefore, an order which ought to have been made in exercise of civil jurisdiction, at appellate stage, if made in exercise of criminal jurisdiction, is made wholly without jurisdiction and can be set aside by the High Court under Art. 226. 1953 Nag L J 237 : 1953 Cri L J 1096 : ILR (1953) Nag 620 : AIR 1953 Nag 213 (214) (Pt D) (Pr 6) (DB).

——Art. 226– Certiorari — Proceedings of authorities exceeding jurisdiction. See Arms Act (1878), S. 18. 1954 Cri L J 951 : AIR 1954 Pat 299 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950), S. 46- Jurisdiction of Civil Court—S 46 must be construed to mean that the jurisdiction of a civil or revenue Court is ousted even if the Custodian has wrongly decided that any property is an evacuee property under the Act — Custodian has exclusive jurisdiction — The error does not go to the root of the jurisdiction. See Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950), S. 46. AIR 1953 Pat 112.

——Art. 226 — Cancellation of proprietary rights by Chief Settlement Officer for non-payment of mortgage money — Validity of — Departmental order — Interference under Art. 226 when authority exceeds jurisdiction. See Displaced Persons (Compensation and Rehabilitation) Act (1954), S. 24. ('64) 66 Pun L R 770.

——Art. 226—Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 15—Award in excess of worker's demand – Validity—Question of jurisdiction depending on facts—Cannot be raised in petition under Art. 226. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947). S. 15. AIR 1960 Punj 76.

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Jurisdiction—Order of removal from service entirely without jurisdiction—Delay in attacking order in appeal or under Art. 226 not a sufficient ground for refusal to interfere—Distinction between inherent want of jurisdiction and irregular exercise of it.

Where a Court or a tribunal passes an order which is entirely beyond its inherent jurisdiction to pass, then such an order is a nullity and has no effect in law.

Where the order of removal passed by the Inspector-General of Police was entirely without any statutory authority and patently illegal, mere delay in attacking that order would not be sufficient ground for the High Court to refuse to interfere in the exercise of certiorari jurisdiction. ILR (1959) 9 Raj 654 : 1959 Raj L W 523 : AIR 1960 Raj 56 (59, 60) (Pt C) (Prs 10, 11, 12) (DB).

——Art. 226—Order without jurisdiction—Waiver of objection to jurisdiction — Effect—Absence of jurisdiction — Effect of consent — Consent to obey order made without jurisdiction—Right to challenge later—Other remedies—Plea inconsistent—Maintainability.

It is a fundamental rule of law that the judgment of a Court without jurisdiction is a nullity and consent cannot give jurisdiction where there is none. (13 Ind App 134 (PC) and 14 Ind App 160, (PC), Foll.)

Where in the written statement it was stated the petitioner had exhausted all other remedies it cannot be urged that other remedy under the Evacuee Property Act by way of revision made to Custodian-general exists. The remedy by revision where the jurisdiction of Custodian is denied, cannot be taken because the Custodian-general also would have no jurisdiction in the matter. It is not an adequate remedy.

The consent of the petitioners to give possession was not free consent in the circumstances and the High Court will not refuse to grant the petition. On the ground the petitioner's action in taking time and then challenging it by the writ petition may amount to fraud otherwise. 1952 Raj L W 489 : ILR (1952) 2 Raj 415 : AIR 1952 Raj 184 (187) (Pt C) (Prs 7, 8, 9) (DB).

——Art. 226—Jurisdiction—Fundamental principles—See V. P. Gram Panchayat Ordinance (1949), S. 49. AIR 1956 Vin Pra 6.

——Arts. 226, 227—Exercise of jurisdiction under.

Where a subordinate tribunal acts without jurisdiction the illegality should be corrected by the High Court, if it has caused prejudice, even though to a single individual. On the other hand, a discretion will not be interfered with unless the subordinate tribunal has committed a serious mistake, or has caused a grievance of public importance.

Thus, a direction of the nature of certiorari (and of prohibition if the proceedings are still pending) should be given where the tribunal acts altogether without jurisdiction. Where, having jurisdiction, it acts mala fide or with bias, or commits a gross error of discretion, leading to a general grievance, and grave consequence, then a direction under Art. 227 should be given In the former case the test is whether the statutory jurisdiction has been exceeded; in the latter it is the seriousness of the mistake, and the gravity and the generality of the unwelcome consequence. (1951) 1 K B 711, Ref. AIR 1953 Vin Pra. 41 (42, 43) (Pt D) (Pr. 9, 10).

148 (a). Power of superior Court to disturb decision of inferior Court or Tribunal on question of jurisdiction.

● ——Art. 226 — Jurisdiction — Power of superior Court to disturb decision of inferior Court or Tribunal on question of jurisdiction.

There may be cases where the jurisdiction of an inferior tribunal may depend upon the fulfilment of some condition precedent or upon the existence of some particular fact. Such a fact is collateral to the actual matter which the inferior tribunal has to try, and the determination of whether it exists or not is logically and in sequence prior to the determination of the actual question which the inferior tribunal has to try. In such a case, in certiorari proceedings a Court can enquire into the correctness of the decision of the inferior tribunal as to the collateral fact and may reverse that decision if it appears to it on the materials before it to be erroneous. There may be tribunals, however, which, by virtue of legislation constituting them, have the power to determine finally the preliminary facts on which the further exercise of their jurisdiction depends. With respect to them, in such cases, their decision even if wrong on facts or law cannot be corrected by a writ of certiorari. Raman & Raman, Ltd. v. State of Madras, 1956 Mad W N 441 : 1956 S C J 368 : (1956) 1 Mad L J (SC) 169 : 1956 S C A 528 : 1956 Andh W R (SC) 169 : 1956 S C R 256 : AIR 1956 S C 463 (466, 467) (Pt A) (Pr 9).

——Art. 226 — Stay of proceedings for recovery of tax — Order directing recovery of tax in spite of stay order—If void and without jurisdiction — Civil P. C. (1908), O. 41, R. 5 — U. P. Agricutural Income Tax Act (1949), S. 32 (2).

All that a stay order does is to paralyse the power of the officer against whom it is directed and to restrain him from using those powers. If those powers are used in spite of that order of restraint, in appropriate cases such orders may have to be vacated and in a case of worst type it may even be possible to hold that the action taken in exercising the powers may amount to contempt of the Court which issued the stay order. The exercise of power is not without jurisdiction even after knowledge of the stay order has been conveyed to the officer exercising the power, much less so before the information is conveyed to him. A I R 1927 All 401, Foll.

Where, therefore, an order for recovery of the tax was passed before the stay order was received, it was held to be a proper order and further proceedings in pursuance of that order were not barred. 1960 All W R (HC) 412 : 1960 All L J 542 : ILR (1960) 2 All 812.

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Jurisdiction — Power of superior Court to disturb decision of inferior Court or Tribunal.

If the fact be collateral, to the actual matter which the lower Court has to try, that Court cannot, by a wrong decision with regard to it, give itself jurisdiction which it would not otherwise possess. The lower Court must, indeed, decide as to the collateral fact, in the first instance but the superior Court may upon an application for the issue of a writ of certiorari inquire into the correctness of the decision, and may quash the proceedings in the lower Court if such decision is erroneous or at any rate if there is no evidence to support it. On the other hand, if the fact in question be not collateral but a part of the very issue which the lower Court has to inquire into, certiorari will not be granted. (1956-57) 12 F J R 251 : (1957) 2 Lab L J 194 : 59 Bom L R 209 : ILR (1958) Bom 8 : A I R 1957 Bom 111 (116) (Pt D) (Pr 10) (DB).

——Art. 226 – Error of law—Question of jurisdiction —Whether adjudicator, who is a creature of statute had power to interfere with order of dismissal passed by employer, is a question of jurisdiction and question of jurisdiction is undoubtedly one of law — Even if the industrial tribunal wrongly held that it had jurisdiction, its view held could not be said to be manifestly wrong and no certiorari will issue. See Industrial Disputes Appellate Tribunal) Act (1950), S. 7. A I R 1957 All 650 (DB).

——Art. 226—Jurisdiction of High Court — Decision of Industrial Court under Bombay Industrial Relations Act (1947) — Jurisdiction of Industrial Court — Extent of — Limits to—Interference by High Court by issue of writ.

The Industrial Court is a Court of limited jurisdiction, it is a creature of statute and its jurisdiction is strictly controlled by the Bombay Industrial Relations Act which brings it into existence, and if the Tribunal acts in excess of the jurisdiction conferred upon it by the Statute the High Court can always correct the Court by an appropriate writ. When there is a collateral fact upon the determination of which the jurisdiction of the Tribunal arises, if the Tribunal decides the collateral fact erroneously, and assumes jurisdiction the superior Court can always correct the decision of the inferior Tribunal. It must be a fact which it is necessary to decide in order to assume jurisdiction in other words, the jurisdiction of the Tribunal must be conditional upon the existence of that fact. On the other hand, there are relevant facts or facts in issue to determine which the Court has been created. Express jurisdiction has been conferred upon the Court to decide and determine those facts and as far as the determination of those facts is concerned. the decision of the Court is final and however erroneous its decision may be in fact or in law, the superior Court will not interfere with that decision. The existence of an industrial dispute is the very foundation of the jurisdiction of the Industrial Court to decide certain matters. If there be no industrial dispute, it has no jurisdiction. In order to determine whether the dispute is an industrial dispute, that Court has to find whether there is any relationship of employer and employee, between the parties to the dispute; and it cannot assume to itself jurisdiction to decide the question by erroneously finding that the relationship of employer and employee did exist. It is unquestionable that the High Court has ample jurisdiction to consider whether such a finding of the Industrial Tribunal is right or not. 53 Bom L R 94, Ref. 53 Bom L R 263 : A I R 1951 Bom 68 (69, 70) (Pt A) (Pr 2) (DB).

——Art. 226 – Income-Tax Act (1922), S. 34—(as amended by Income-tax and Business Profits Tax (Amendment) Act (1948)) – Re assessment under section—Condition precedent which gives jurisdiction to Income-tax Officer — Wrong decision as to existence of conditions precedent — Remedy. See Income-tax Act (1922), S. 34. AIR 1952 Cal 636.

——Art. 226 — Wrong decision on fact—Condition precedent to jurisdiction — War Injuries Ordinance (1941), S. 4 —Workmen's Compensation Act (1923), S. 19.

If the inferior Court has decided wrongly facts which are conditions precedent to the exercise of jurisdiction such decision may be questioned and the Superior Court has, power to quash it by certiorari. The fact whether injury was War Injury or not is a question on which the jurisdiction of the Commissioner to deal with the cases of the deceased workmen depends. If the Commissioner is wrong in his finding that the injury was not a War Injury the High Court has jurisdiction to interfere with the finding. (1888) 21 Q B D 313 and (1951) 1 All E R 195, Rel. on. 88 Cal L J 137 : ILR (1952) 2 Cal 412 : 56 Cal W N 73 : AIR 1952 Cal 112 (116) (Pt E) (Pr 32).

——Arts. 226 and 227—Scope of inquiry — Retrospective operation.

In a proper case, upon certiorari, the correctness of the decision as to a collateral fact may be enquired into with a view to ascertaining whether the lower Court or tribunal has by a wrong decision with regard to it given itself jurisdiction which it did not possess. Articles 226 and 227 of the Constitution have no retrospective operation and the transactions which are past and closed and the rights and liabilities which have accrued and vested would remain unaffected. 1959 M P L J (Notes) 133.

——Arts 226 and 227 — Finding of fact—Powers of High Court — Jurisdiction based on existence of certain facts — Finding can be reviewed under Art. 227 — (Tenancy Laws—C. P. Tenancy Act (1 of 1926), S. 40).

No tribunal of inferior jurisdiction can by its own decision finally decide on the question of the existence or extent of such jurisdiction; such question is always subject to review by the High Court, which does not permit the inferior tribunal either to usurp a jurisdiction which it does not possess, or to refuse to exercise a jurisdiction which it has and ought to exercise. Where the jurisdiction of the Board of Revenue depended on the finding whether the applicant was a sub-tenant on the date of the application under S. 40, C. P. Tenancy Act and the finding of the Board that he was such a sub-tenant was challenged by a petition under Art. 226;

Held, that though High Court cannot interfere with a finding of fact of the character, which was fundamental to jurisdiction, under Art. 226, the Court had ample power under Art. 227 to rectify a defect of this character. It being an error of jurisdiction on the face of the record, had to be corrected. (1910) 2 K B 859, Rel. on. 1958 M P C 346 : 1958 M P L J 452 : 1958 Jab L J 549 : AIR 1958 Madh Pra 368 (369, 370) (Pt A) (Prs 5, 7, 9) (DB).

——Art. 226—Jurisdiction — Question of — Issue of writ — Decision under S. 41 of Madras Act (36 of 1947) — Extent of finality.

All Tribunals acquire jurisdiction to act only when certain facts exist. Initially the responsibility of deciding whether those facts exist would rest on the tribunals themselves. The enactments setting up the Tribunals may lay down that the decisions of the Tribunals themselves whether on the facts proved they have jurisdiction or not shall be final and conclusive. On the other hand the statutes may not attach any such finality on this point. It has been held that though a writ of certiorari can issue in the latter class of cases such a writ cannot issue in the former class of cases.

Sections 41 and 51 of the Madras Shops and Establishments Act have not the result of placing the decision of the Commissioner of Labour in the former category of cases and therefore a writ can issue. (1959) 2 Lab L J 771 : AIR 1960 Mad 288 (293) (Pt C) (Prs 23, 24).

[Reversed in AIR 1960 Mad 425.]

——Art. 226 — Question of jurisdiction — Findings whether labourers were workmen and disputes were industrial disputes are on jurisdictional issue — Correctness of decision of Appellate Tribunal can be questioned in writ proceedings. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 2 (k) and (s). AIR 1957 Mad 632.

——Art. 226—Jurisdictional issue—Question whether certain employees were workmen — High Court's power to examine decision of tribunal under Article —(Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 2 (s)).

The question whether certain categories of employees are workmen as defined by the Industrial Disputes Act is what can be called a jurisdictional issue which it is within the competence of the statutory tribunals to decide. The correctness of the finding of the statutory tribunal on such a jurisdictional issue is open to examination by the High Court in proceedings under Art 226 for the issue of a writ of certiorari. 1954) 2 Mad L J 155, Approved. 69 Mad L W 923 : AIR 1957 Mad 60 (61) (Pt A) (Pr 5).

——Art. 226—Jurisdictional issue — Wrong decision by Tribunal to give it jurisdiction.

Where the jurisdiction of a statutory Tribunal depends on the correct determination of a jurisdictional issue, the Tribunal cannot give itself jurisdiction by deciding that issue wrongly unless that jurisdiction also is specifically conferred by the statute which created the Tribunal. 69 Mad L W 923: AIR 1957 Mad 60 (64) (Pt D) (Pr 15).

——Art. 226—Finding of fact—Interference—Industrial Tribunal deciding wrongly jurisdictional issue — Writ against Tribunal—Issue of.

A statutory body like an Industrial Tribunal cannot give itself jurisdiction by deciding wrongly a jurisdictional issue. But where the findings of fact arrived at by the tribunal are correct on the material placed before it and the petitioner has himself to blame for his failure to place before the Tribunal the evidence which he had in his possession all along to prove his contentions, the findings of fact did not call for any revision by the High Court in a writ petition filed at the instance of the petitioner, even if that were permissible. (1956) 10 F J R 467 : (1956) 2 Mad L J 225 : (1956) 2 Lab L J 238 : AIR 1956 Mad 636 (637, 638, 639) (Pt B) (Prs 4, 6).

——Art. 226—Jurisdiction.

A statutory authority cannot give itself jurisdiction by deciding wrongly a jurisdictional issue, nor can a statutory authority decline to exercise a jurisdiction by an erroneous decision on a question of fact on which depends the presence or absence of jurisdiction. Therefore, the correctness of the decision of jurisdictional issues is open to challenge in proceedings under Art, 226. (1956) 2 Lab L J 497 : 69 Mad L W 779.

——Art. 226 — Issue of writ against Income-tax Officer giving notice under S. 34 (1) I. T. Act— (Income-tax Act (1922), S. 34 (1)) —(Special Tribunal) —(Civil P. C. (1908), S 9).

The tribunals established by and working under the Income-tax law belong to the class of the Tribunals who are entrusted by the Legislature with a jurisdiction, which includes the jurisdiction to determine whether the preliminary state of facts exists as well as the jurisdiction, on finding that it does exist, to proceed further to do something more. All points arising out of and affecting the assessment, whether they be points of fact or law, must be raised before, and adjudicated upon, by those tribunals and no writs can be issued against those tribunals except when their proceedings are vitiated by total want of jurisdiction or the defect of jurisdiction is apparent on record. (1888) 21 Q B D 313, Rel on. Case law discussed.

Whether the attack on the proceedings under S. 34 of the Act is due to the want of preliminary conditions or conditions precedent or to the bar of time, or illegality due to the matter being res judicata, or due to the provisi on being ultra vires or the amendmnet being prospective. they are all questions of law and do not affect the jurisdiction of the Income-tax Officer. AIR 1953 Punj 55, Foll. ILR (1953) Patiala 451 : AIR 1953 Pepsu 88 (95, 96) (Pt E) (Prs 25, 27) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Quasi-iudicial tribunal — Order of — Issue of writ - (Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 15 (1)).

The jurisdiction of every judicial or quasi-judicial tribunal is derived from and limited by the statute or other instrument by which it has been credited, and every judicial or quasi-judicial tribunal has power to determine the boundaries of its own jurisdiction. Indeed it has been said that every such tribunal should of its own motion, consider the question of its jurisdiction over any matter brought before it even though it is not raised by the parties. Nor is there any substance in the contention that the language of S. 15 (1) of the Industrial Disputes Act does not permit the Tribunal to question the validity of a reference made to it by the State Government. 60 Punj L R 425 : (1958-59) 15 F J R 49 : (1959) 1 Lab L J 274 : ILR (1958) Punj 2061 : A I R 1959 Punj 75 (80) (Pt G) (Pr 18) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Jurisdiction of High Court — Proceedings of statutory bodies — Jurisdiction to question.

When the legislature establishes a tribunal or body with limited jurisdiction, they also have to consider whatever jurisdiction they give them whether there shall be any appeal from their decision. It would be an erroneous application of the formula to say that the tribunal cannot give them jurisdiction by wrongfully deciding certain facts to exist, because the legislature gave them jurisdiction to determine all the facts, including the existence of the preliminary facts on which the further exercise of their jurisdiction depends, and if they were given jurisdiction so to decide, without any appeal being given, there is no appeal from such exercise of their jurisdiction. ILR (1958) Punj 854 : A I R 1958 Punj 490 (494, 495) (Pt B) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari — When lies — Application under S. 6, Rajasthan Relief of Agricultural Indebtedness Act (28 of 1957) — Applicant whether agriculturist or not is collateral fact on which jurisdiction of Debt Relief Court depends — Collateral fact if wrongly decided, certiorari would lie — High Court has jurisdiction to see whether collateral fact is properly decided. A I R 1954 S C 440, Rel. on. 1965 Raj L W 149 : ILR (1965) 15 Raj 272 : A I R 1965 Raj 184 (187, 188) (Pt A) (Prs 10, 11, 13) (DB).

——Art. 226—Wrong assumption of jurisdiction.

Where a Revenue Court and the Board of Revenue give themselves jurisdiction by a patently wrong decision on a question of collateral fact on which their jurisdiction depends, the High Court has jurisdiction to interfere on a writ of certiorari. 21 Q B D 313, Ref. : 1953 Raj L W 291 : ILR (1952) 2 Raj 852 : AIR 1953 Raj 84 (84) (Pt B) (Pr 5) (DB).

—— Art. 226—Industrial Tribunal—Jurisdiction.

The question whether a person is a "workman" within the definition of the Industrial Disputes Act is a fact collateral to the assumption of jurisdiction by the Industrial Tribunal. The Tribunal cannot by a wrong decision with regard to it give jurisdiction which it would not otherwise possess. It is competent for the High Court on a writ of certiorari to call for and examine the decision of the Industrial Tribunal. AIR 1951 S C 115, Rel. on; 6 Sau L R 227, Ref. AIR 1955 Sau 33 (35) (Pt B) (Pr 5) (DB).

149. Labour Relation Board.

● —Arts. 226 and 32—Wage Boards —Character of functions performed — Whether legislative, judicial or administrative - Decisions of Wage Boards—How far can be attacked on grounds of violation of principles of natural justice—(Natural justice).

It is impossible to state that the functions performed by the Wage Boards are necessarily of legislative character. It is no doubt true that their determinations bind not only the employers and the employees in the present, but they also operate when accepted by the appropriate Government or authorities and notified in accordance with law, to bind the future employers and employees in the industry. If that were the only consideration the functions performed by these Wage Boards would be invested with a legislative character. This is however not all, and regard must be had to the provisions of the statutes constituting the Wage Boards. If on a consideration of all the relevant provisions of the statutes bringing the Wage Boards into existence, it appears that the powers and procedure exercised by them are assimilated to those of Industrial Tribunals or their adjudications are subject to judicial review at the hands of higher Tribunals exercising judicial or quasi-judicial functions, it cannot be predicated that these Wage Boards are exercising legislative functions.

Even if on the construction of the relevant provisions of the statute the Court comes to the conclusion that the functions performed by a particular Wage Board are not of a legislative character, there is no doubt that these Wage Boards are not exercising purely judicial functions. They are not Courts in the strict sense of the term and the functions which they perform may at best be quasi-judicial in character. The fact that they are administrative agencies set up for the purpose of fixation of wages do not necessarily invest their functions with an administrative character and in spite of their being administrative bodies they can nevertheless be exercising quasi-judicial functions if certain conditions are fulfilled.

Whatever be the character of the functions performed by the Wage Boards whether they be legislative or quasi-judicial if proper safeguards are adopted e g. provision for judicial review or the adopting of the procedure as in the case of the recommendations of the Wage Councils in the United Kingdom, or the reports of the advisory committeea which come to be considered by the Administrator under the Fair Labour Standards Act of 1938 in the United States of America, no objection could ever be urged against the determinations of the Wage Boards thus arrived at on the score of the principles of natural justice having been violated. Press Trust of India v. Union of India, (1958-59) 14 F J R 211 : 1958 S C A 952 : 1958 S C J 1113 : A I R 1958 S C 578 (612, 614) (Pt D) (Prs 116, 117, 118, 123).

——Art. 226—Employees' Provident Funds Act (1952) Ss. 16 (1) and 1 (3) — Temporary closure of factory and restarting by lessee — Act applies — High Court cannot quash pending prosecutions or restrain any other action under Act. See Employees' Provident Funds Act (1952), S. 16 (1). AIR 1965 All 373 (DB).

— Arts. 226, 227 — Minimum Wages Act (1948), S. 20 Order under—High Court can interfere—(Civil P. C. (1908), S 115). See Minimum Wages Act (1948), S. 20. AIR 1960 Assam 123.

——Art. 226 — Administrative order ultra vires — Issue of writ—(Minimum Wages Act (1948), S. 5).

Though the fixation of minimum rates of wages in respect of any scheduled employment by the appropriate Government is an administrative act which is final, and is not subject to the judicial review on the question of the quantum of the wages fixed, if the fixation by the Government is ultra vires their powers under the Act admits of being so declared and corrected by the High Court under Art. 226. AIR 1955 Trav.-Co., 97. Rel. on. 1959 Ker L J 830 : 1959 Ker L T 904 : (1959) 2 Lab L J 610 : I L R (1959) Ker 941 : A I R 1960 Ker 67 (69) (Pt B) (Pr 12) (DB).

150. Land acquisition proceedings.

——Art. 226—Administrative order — Interference — Order awarding compensation — Land Acquisition Officer setting it aside—Issue of writ. See U. P. Land Acquisition (Rehabilitation of Refugees) Act (26 of 1948), S. 11. AIR 1958 All 154 (DB).

——Art. 226—Jurisdiction of Court — Power of High Court to issue writ of certiorari where there is no statutory bar to exercise powers under Art. 226—Court is not precluded from issuing writ of certiorari to Government where it comes to conclusion that notification under S. 6, Land Acquisition Act should not be made as purpose of acquisition cannot possibly be useful to public—After the Constitution came into force, no legislature has authority to take away a power conferred on the Courts by the Constitution. See Land Acquisition Act (1894), S. 6. AIR 1954 All 700.

——Art. 226—Conclusiveness of declaration of S. 6(1) of Land Acquisition Act, 1894 — S. 5A not complied with — Declaration not conclusive — Declaration quashed under Art 226. See Land Acquisition Act (1894), S. 5A. AIR 1952 All 752 (DB).

——Art. 226—Land Acquisition Act (1894), Ss. 6 (1), 6 (3) — Land acquisition proceedings challenged — Only question for consideration is whether it is requirred for public purpose — Once declaration is made by Govt. to that effect, that is conclusive evidence under S. 6 (3) of the Act and cannot be challenged in a civil Court — Validity — Proof of public purpose—See Land Acquisition Act (1894), S. 6 (1). AIR 1960 Andh Pra 343.

——Art. 226—Land acquisition—Public purpose — Power of Court to go into question. See Land Acquisition Act (1894), S. 6. AIR 1954 Assam 81 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Quasi-judicial proceeding—Enquiry conducted under S. 5-A of Land Acquisition Act — Proceeding is administrative and not quasi-judicial. AIR 1963 Guj 50, Foll. (1963) 4 Guj L R 405 : AIR 1963 Guj 80 (83) (Pt B) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 226—Quasi-judicial order—Order of authority when is quasi-judicial Test—Land Acquisition Act (1894), S. 6 and S. 5-A—Government functioning under Ss 6 and 5-A — Absence of lis in inquiry — Subjective satisfaction of Govt.—Government acts in its administrative and not in quasi-judicial capacity.

The material consideration for determining whether a particular act of a statutory body is a quasi-judicial act or mere administrative act is whether the statutory authority has the duty to act judicially. Where there is a lis between two parties and the statutory authority is an outside authority empowered to decide the lis, there would be prima facie, a duty on the statutory authority to act judicially. Where there are not two parties apart from the statutory authority and the contest is between the statutory authority proposing to do the act and the subject opposing it, in such a case the terms of the Statute must be examined in order to determine whether in any particular case a duty to act judicially is cast on the statutory authority. In respect of this latter case there is a general principle, namely, that where the language of a statute indicates with sufficient clearness that the personal satisfaction of the statutory authority on certain matters about which he has to form an opinion founds his jurisdiction to do a certain act or to make a certain order, the function should be regarded as an administrative function as opposed to a quasi-judicial function and in the absence of proof of bad faith, the Court would have no jurisdiction to interfere with the act or order of the statutory authority.

Applying this test it is clear that the act of the Government in issuing the notification under S. 6 for acquisition of land is an administrative act and not a quasi judicial act. AIR 1945 Mad 394 (FB) and AIR 1919 PC 155, Rel. on.

The function entrusted to the Government under S. 6 being thus an administrative function, the inquiry under S. 6-A which is but a step in the process leading up to the exercise of such administrative function would ordinarily in the absence of other factors, be an administrative inquiry. In the inquiry under S. 5-A, there are no two contesting parties as between whom the Government must come to a determination. The Government in exercising its statutory function cannot be regarded as a quasi-litigant vis-a vis the objectors. The present case, therefore, falls within the principle in Robinson's case. (1947) 1 All E R 851 and Franklin's case, (1948) AC 87 and does not fall within the principle in Errington's case, (1934) All E R 154 and Johnson's case, (1947) 2 All E R 395. The Government is therefore not under any duty to act judicially in considering the objections. (1963) 4 Guj L R 326 : AIR 1963 Guj 50 (63, 64, 67, 68, 74) (Pt H) (Prs 14, 15, 16, 21, 23, 28) (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 31 (2) — Statutory right of State to abridge right of ownership—Conditions for exercise of right must be strictly fulfilled—Proceedings for acquisition neither in conformity with provisions of Hyderabad Sanitary Powers A'in nor in accordance with Land Acquisition Act—Proceedings are invalid — Court will direct issue of writs of certiorari and prohibition—(Hyderabad Sanitary Powers A'in (5 of 1352F), S. 150) — Land Acquisition Act (1894), Ss. 6 and 50)—(Hyderabad Land Acquisition Act, Ss 5 and 35). See Ibid, Art. 31 (2). AIR 1955 Hyd 203 (DB).

——Art. 32 (2-A) (J. & K.) — Who can apply—Land acquisition proceedings in disregard of provisions of Land Acquisition Act—Case involves invasion of fundamental rights of owner under Arts. 19 and 31—Petition by owner under Art. 32 (2-A) for writ to quash proceedings—Maintainable. AIR 1962 J & K 19 (20) (Pt B) (Pr 4).

——Art. 226—Scope—Land acquisition—Declaration by Government that land is required for public purpose—If justiciable. See Ibid, Art. 31. AIR 1960 Ker 321.

——Art. 226—Administrative orders—Land acquisition proceedings—Final order for acquisition passed without giving notice of objections to Government Department requiring land—Interference. See Land Acquisition Act (1894), S. 5-A. AIR 1959 Ker 343 (DB).

——Art. 226—Land proposed to be acquired—Sufficient particulars not given in notifications—Acquisition proceedings are void — Notifications quashed. See Land Acquisition Act (1894), S. 4. AIR 1961 Madh Pra 140 (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari — Issue of—Acquisition of property for public purposes — Provisions of Land Acquisition Act not followed—Action held without jurisdiction — Writ of certiorari granted. See Ibid, Art. 31. AIR 1960 Manipur 20.

——Art. 226 — Land Acquisition Act (1894), S. 18 — Refusal to make reference—Remedy is under Art 226. See Land Acquisition Act (1894), S. 18. AIR 1961 Orissa 39.

——Art. 226—Opinion of Government that land was waste and arable—Opinion can be questioned in writ proceedings if it is based on no evidence. See Land Acquisition Act (1894), S. 4. 1965 B L J R 272.

——Art. 226—Land Acquisition Act (1894) S. 30 — There must be dispute as regards apportionment of compensation—Finding as to existence of dispute — Writ of certiorari. See Land Acquisition Act (1894), S. 30. AIR 1961 Pat 150.

151. Legislature, against.

See also Note 5.

——Art. 226—Passage of Bill in Legislature — High Courts have no power to interfere. See Ibid, Art. 194. AIR 1965 Andh Pra 306.

152. Licensing authority, against.

——Art. 226—Where the District Magistrate has not recorded his reasons for his refusal to renew licence under Arms Act there is no breach of any mandatory provision of any law and no interference under Art. 226 is called for. See Arms Act (1878), S. 18 (a). 1955 Cri L J 1019 : AIR 1955 Ajmer 32.

——Art. 226—Refusal to renew licence of arms dealer —Order passed without giving petitioner opportunity of being heard — Order is vitiated firstly because refusal was quasi-judicial act and secondly because it affected his right to carry on trade. See Arms Act (1959), S. 15 (3). 1965 All L J 596.

——Art. 226 — Procedure of executive bodies — Cinematograph Act (1918), S. 5 (3) — Order of State Government granting license is executive — No opportunity to hear given to parties—Effect—[Cinematograph Act (1918), S. 5 (3).]

There is no provision anywhere in the Cinematograph Act making it incumbent on the State Government to hear persons who want licenses for running cinema houses. Where the State Government grants a license under S 5 (3) to one of the applicants it is not necessary for the State Government to issue notices to the parties and to give them an opporunity of placing their cases before it. The order is in the nature of an executive order and it is neither a judicial nor a quasi-judicial order.

Hence the order cannot be challenged by the petitioners on the ground that no opportunity was given to them to place their case before the State Government.

Held, on facts that both the parties had full opportunity of placing their cases before the Cinema Magistrate and it was not necessary that subsequent opportunities also should have been given to the parties at every stage of the proceedings. ILR (1955) 2All 37 : AIR 1955 All 82 (85, 86) (Pt E) (Pr 8).

——Art. 226—Order cancelling excise licence—Nature of—Not judicial or quasi-judicial order. See U. P. Excise Act (4 of 1910), S. 35 (1) (a). AIR 1955 N U C (All) 2654.

——Art. 226 — U. P. Cement Control Order (1953), Cl. 5 — Order refusing renewal of license on ground of contravention of Cl. 4—Application under Art. 226 —At time of hearing, Cement Control Order repealed and replaced by order of 1955 — Rights of petitioner governed by 1955 Order — No relief held could be granted under 1955 Order — Order refusing to renew license held was invalid and should be quashed. AIR 1955 N U C (All) 1740.

——Arts. 226, 19 (1) (g)— Power to interfere with administrave orders — Refusal to renew license in Form B-1 under U P. Controlled Cotton Cloth and Yarn Dealers Licensing Order, 1948, on grounds irrelevant to the consideration of application for renewal—Order of refusal quashed and direction to consider application on merits issued—[U. P. Controlled Cotton Cloth and Yarn Dealers' Licensing Order (1948), Cl. 11].

A person has by virtue of Art. 19 (1) (g) of the Constitution the fundamental right to carry on his trade or business subject to such reasonable restrictions as may be imposed under Art. 19 (6). He is therefore, prima facie, entitled to a licence under U. P. Controlled Cloth and Yarn Dealers' Licensing Order 1948 and the granting of it cannot therefore appropriately be described as a privilege.

Held, on the facts as gathered from the affidavit, the counter-affidavit and the affidavit in rejoinder, that the order of the District Magistrate refusing to renew the license granted to the petitioner by Form B-I under the U. P. Controlled Cotton Cloth and Yarn Dealers' Licensing Order, 1948 was not bona fide inasmuch as it was based on irrelevant considerations, namely, that the petitioner had in he past dared to approach the High Court against the order of the District Magistrate and obtain a stay order against him. (The order of refusal was quashed and directions to consider the application for renewal on merits were issued.)

Ordinarily the High Court does not interfere with administrative orders; but where there are reasons to think that the order has been influenced by extraneous consideration the High Court has irrespective of the question whether the order can be classed as falling within the category of certiorari or not, ample authority under Art. 226 of the Constitution to interfere with it by a proper order or direction. The words of Art. 226 of the Constitution are wide enough to cover an order of that description. AIR 1952 All 836; A I R 1952 All 61 ; A I R 1951 Nag 33 ; A I R 1950 S C 163, Rel. on.

The fact that the Licensing Authority has under Cl. 11 of the Order, to record his reasons when he refuses to renew a licence is not, in the absence of any specification of the grounds on which a renewal may be refused or indeed of any other limitation on his powers in this respect, a sufficient indication that he has to act judicially. Therefore the act of the Licensing Authority in refusing to renew the petitioner's licence was an administrative act and accordingly the High Court could not interfere with such order by a writ in the nature of certiorari. AIR 1950 S. C. 222, Rel. on.

But the High Court has power under Art. 226 of the Constitution to issue directions and orders, as well as writs for any purpose ; and in exercise of that power it can direct that an administrative order be quashed. ILR (1954) 2 All 453 : 1953 All W R (HC) 723 : A I R 1954 All 144 (145, 146, 147, 149, 150) (Pt A) (Prs 1, 3, 5, 15, 16, 22) (DB).

——Art. 226—Arms Rules (1951) — Rr. 41 (1) (a), 41 (1) (b) —Validity —Application for licence to Collector —Reference to State Government — Does not constitute delegation of power or deprivation of right of appeal —(Arms Act (1878), S. 17.)

Rule 41 being one made under an Act must be deemed to form an integral part of the statute itself. Where such rules themselves in terms vest the licencing authority with a discretion to refer an application for the orders of the Government, it cannot be said that such a reference is void of legal authority or illegal as constituting a delegation of a power which should not be delegated.

Further the right of appeal in cases of this kind is the creature of a statutory provision and where the rules do not provide such an appeal there is no substance in the contention that the party is deprived of a right of appeal by such a reference. See Arms Rules (1951), R. 41 (1) (a). AIR 1960 Andh Pra 384.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — When can issue — Auction sale of liquor shop — Infringement of executive instructions—It affects validity of order.

At an auction sale of liquor shop the Government accepted the highest bid and granted a licence in favour of the highest bidder. The petitioner whose bid was lower, applied under Art. 226 for directing the Government to hold a fresh auction on ground that there was a breach of Notification of the Revenue Department, dated 12th July 1957 :

Held, that (i) the Notification issued by the Government was merely in the nature of executive instructions not intended to have the force of statutory rules. In law that would not affect the legality of the order made by the Auctioning Authority. (ii) Before the petitioner can succeed in claiming a writ of mandamus he must be able to show that the respondent has refused or neglected to perform a duty imposed on him by the statute. Even though the decision is erroneous when the proceedings have been conducted with fairness and impartiality, the High Court cannot and will not interfere (iii) Further the petitioner had no legal right to have his tender accepted by the Auctioning Authority and therefore he could not complain of any infringement of his legal rights. 1958 Andh L T 696.

——Art. 226 — Cinematograph Act (1898), S. 5 — Notice under S. 5 not issued — Writ of certiorari.

Section 5 (3) does not provide for any notice being issued to any of the parties. The order passed by the State Government under S. 5 is an executive or administrative order and is not a judicial or quasi judicial order. Before issuing a licence to another owner of a cinema theatre there is no obligation on the part of the State Government to issue notice to the petitioner (himself owner of another such theatre) and the order of the Government is not liable to be quashed by a writ of certiorari on the ground of want of notice to the petitioner, A I R 1955 All 82 and (1951) A C 66, Rel. on. 1956 Andh W R 46.

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Order cancelling license under S. 18 (a), Arms Act, not disclosing any reasons —Validity. See Arms Act (1878), S. 18 (a). AIR 1955 Andh 168.

——Art. 226 — Settlement of country spirit shops — Decisions of Deputy Commissioner and Board of Revenue are quasi-judicial —Writ can be issued under Art. 226. A I R 1965 Assam 87 (88) (Pt A) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Art. 226—Administrative orders—Interference — Scope—Order cancelling licence — Failure to record reasons — Order though administrative in nature is liable to be quashed under Art. 226 of the Constitution. See Arms Act (1878), S. 13 (a). 1961 (2) Cri L J 195 (Assam).

——Art. 226—Quasi-judicial orders— Eastern Bengal and Assam Excises Act (1 of 1910), S. 36 (2) — Rules under, R. 218.

Direction under R. 218 by State Government fixing period of settlement in respect of certain country liquor shops — Order of Commissioner of Hills Division and Appeals affirming or interfering with selection made by Deputy Commissioner — Order of Commissioner is quasi judicial—Order cannot be set aside under Art. 226 on the ground that as direction by State Government has not been published in official gazette as required under S. 75, it could not be read as part of R. 218 — It was open to Government to regularize matter by publishing direction in Gazette subsequently. ILR (1960) 12 Assam 453 : AIR 1960 Assam 218 (223, 224) (Pt E) (Prs 16, 17) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Administrative order — Assam Settlement of Fisheries Rules, R. 8 — Powers of Commissioner under R. 8 — Administrative or judicial.

Per Mehrotra J. — The power exercised by the Commissioner under R. 8 of the Rules is an administrative power and the High Court will be reluctant to interfere with the administrative order in the exercise of its powers under Art. 226 of the Constitution. Harinath Das v State of Assam, ILR (1958) 10 Assam 44 : AIR 1958 Assam 70 (73) (Pt B) (Pr 5) (SB).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Order refusing to renew arms licence — (Indian Arms Rules (1951), R. 41)— (Arms Act (1878), S. 18).

The effect of R. 41 of the Indian Arms Rules is that the grant or renewal of licences by the Deputy Commissioner may be controlled by the executive authorities, viz , the State Government, to which the Deputy Commissioner is subordinate. The State Government has the power to direct the Deputy Commissioner not to renew the licences if it thought that it was a desirable course to adopt and the adequacy of the reason which persuaded the State Government to take this action is not for the High Court to go into in the proceedings under Art. 226.

The order is within the jurisdiction of the State Government, and also not contrary to law and it is not liable to interference in the exercise of the extraordinary jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226. Where the validity of the relevant rules are not challenged on the ground that they do not provide for an appeal, when the order is passed by the State Government the petitioner has no ground for complaint against the order as the State Government had the authority and the jurisdiction to direct the Deputy Commissioner to refuse renewal of the licences. (1956) 26 Com Cas 39 : I L R (1955) 7 Assam 424 : 1955 Cri L J 1558 : A I R 1955 Assam 278 (279, 280) (Prs 8, 9) (DB).

——Art. 226—Electricity Act (1910), S. 4 (1) and (3) — Licence — Revocation on grounds mentioned in S. 4 (1) — Order of revocation — Government while making order does not act judicially.

An order of revocation of a licence passed under S. 4 of the Electricity Act, 1910, is an administrative order. There is nothing in the language of subss. (1) and (3) of S. 4 to suggest that in making such an order the Government is obliged to act judicially. The Government is no doubt required to determine the existence of the circumstances mentioned in Cls. (a) to (e) of subs (1) of S. 4 before deciding whether in those circumstances it would be in the public interest to revoke a licence. But from this it does not follow that the Government must determine those circumstances or facts judicially. The provision in sub-s. (3) of a notice to the licensee to show cause against the proposed revocation is not any condition imposing a quasi-judicial duty on the Government in passing an order of revocation. AIR 1950 S C 222 and A I R 1958 S C 398 and A I R 1958 S C 578 and A I R 1959 S C 308 and A I R 1960 S C 606 Applied. I L R (1963) Madh Pra 1021 : 1962 M P L J 1049 : 1962 Jab L J 829 : 1962 M P C 441 : AIR 1963 Madh Pra 41 (46) (Pt A) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Electricity Act (1910), S. 4 (3) — Notice to show cause — Meaning of "to show cause" —Object and purpose of sub-s. (3) of S. 4— Holding of inquiry by Government after notice — Inquiry is not judicial.

A notice under S. 4 (3) of the Electricity Act, 1910, to show cause to the licensee does not mean merely an opportunity to object to the revocation but also implies an opportunity for alleging a cause and proving it to the satisfaction of the authority. The term "to show cause" does not merely mean to allege cause nor, even to make out that there is room for argument, but both to allege cause and to prove it to the satisfaction of the authority issuing the show cause notice. But the giving of an opportunity to a licensee to show cause in this manner against the proposed revocation of the licence does not make the grounds on which it is proposed to revoke his licence and the material in support of the intended revocation matter of issue between the licensee and the Government so as to make it obligatory for the Government to adjudicate upon them in a judicial manner after holding an enquiry.

Sub-section (3) of S. 4 does not cast on the Government the duty to call evidence before the inquiry and justify the grounds on which it is proposed to revoke the licence and prove them. It simply gives an opportunity to the licensee to state his objections and call such evidence to substantiate them as he may think it necessary. The purpose of giving an opportunity to the licensee to allege sufficient cause and prove it to the satisfaction of the Government is further to inform the mind of the authority proposing the revocation of the licence and not to determine any issue between the Government and the licensee. I L R 20 Bom 208 and I L R 21 Cal 213 (FB) and ILR 17 All 21 (FB), Rel. on. 1962 M P L J 1049 : I L R (1963) Madh Pra 1021 : 1962 Jab L J 829 : 1962 M P C 441 : A I R 1963 Madh Pra 41 (46) (Pt B) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Order refusing to renew licence—It is purely administrative — Petitioner not heard before order passed — Order cannot be assailed as illegal. See Arms Act (1878), S. 18 1961 M P L J (Notes) 291 : AIR 1962 Madh Pra 133 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Arms Act (1878), Ss. 18, 17 — Order cancelling or refusing renewal of licence is administrative.

An order cancelling or refusing to renew a licence for firearms is an administrative one, and as such cannot be assailed in a petition under Art. 226 of the Constitution on the ground that the licencee had not been heard by the licensing authority. A I R 1960 Madh Pra 157, Applied. 1961 M P L J (Notes) 291 : 1962 Jab L J 475 : A I R 1962 Madh Pra 133 (136) (Pt C) (Pr 8) (DB).

——Art 226 — Arms Act (1878), Ss 18, 17 — Order cancelling or refusing to renew licence for firearms —Checks on exercise of powers by licensing authority — Reasons for orders — Power of High Court to go into reasons.

Although the High Court can appropriately look into the reasoning given by the licensing authority, in the orders cancelling or refusing to renew licences for firearms the purpose of the High Court in doing so is not to satisfy itself as to their sufficiency on the facts, but only to see if the reasons are in accordance with the purposes mentioned in the statute. All that the law requires is that there should be a record in writing of the reasons so that he appellate authority may be able to examine them and correct the decision wherever proper, and the High Court itself after the appellate authority had done its work, see if the reasons are relatable to the purpose mentioned in the law. 1961 M P L J (Notes) 291 : 1962 Jab L J 475 : A I R 1962 Madh Pra 133 (136) (Pt D) (Prs 8, 9) (DB).

——Art. 226 — M. P. Yarn Dealers Licensing Order (1956), Cl. 25 — Order under — Validity of—Reasons to act under Cl. 25 cannot be questioned in proceedings under Art. 226 — Deputy Commissioner having before him material to form requisite belief — His order was upheld. See M. P. Yarn Dealers Licensing Order (1956), Cl. 25. 1961 M P L J 1001.

——Art. 226 — Administrative Order — Refusal to renew arms licence is an Administrative Order — When the order is not arbitrary the High Court will not interfere See Arms Act (1878) S 17. 1960 Cri L J 613 : AIR 1960 Madh Pra 157 (DB).

——Art. 226 —Administrative Act — Authority granting permits should state reasons for its orders where objections for the grant of permits are made — Omission to state reasons — Jurisdiction of High Court under Art. 226. See Rice Milling Industry Regulation) Act (21 of 1958), S. 5 (4). (1963) 2 Mad L J 320.

——Arts. 226 and 19 — Cancellation of gun licence— The Administrative Order interferes with fundamental right of citizen to hold property — Hence cancellation is proper subject matter of application under Art 226. 70 Mad L W 605 : 1957 Mad W N 430 : (1957) Mad L J (Cr) 417 : (1957) 2 Mad L J 249 : 1957 Cri L J 1282 (1) : I L R (1957) Mad 1056 : AIR 1957 Mad 692 (693) (Pt B)(Pr 2) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Quasi-judicial orders — Licensing— (Madras Rice Mills Licensing Order, 1955).

Where statutory rules prescribe a licence as a condition precedent to the exercise by a person of his right to engage himself in a business of his choice, the grant or refusal of the licence by the licensing authority cannot be viewed merely as an administrative act. Where a person applies for the issue of a license and the issue thereof is objected to by another the question has to be determined by the licensing authority whether the applicant could be granted a licence That really makes the determination at least quasi-judicial in its scope.

Where the licensing authority having rejected the application for license, the Government passed an order directing the licensing authority to grant the licence such order does not fall outside the purview of correction by the issue of a writ of certiorari. (1957) Mad L J (Cri) 263 : 1957 Mad W N 308 : (1957) 2 Mad L J 1 : 70 Mad L W 547 : I L R (1957) Mad 845 : A I R 1957 Mad 551 (555) (Pt C) (Prs 15, 16).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Writ of—Grounds—Refusal to issue yarn and cloth dealer's license on sole ground that petitioner had not produced income-tax verification certificate and was in arrears.

The fact that a person is in arrears of income-tax is not germane to the issue of a licence under the Yarn Dealers Control Order. It is a circumstance extraneous to the right of the person concerned to carry on his business. The Income-tax Act provides an adequate machinery for realising the arrears due from an assessee.

Hence, where the Collector refuses to renew a yarn and cloth dealers license on the sole ground that the petitioner had not produced the income-tax and excess profits tax verification Certificate and that the firm was in arrears, relying upon the Madras Government G O. No. 867 (Finance dated 16th August 1949) the order of the Collector is liable to be quashed by certiorari. The order discloses that the Collector was using his powers under the Yarn Dealars Control Order for the purpose of collecting the amounts due to the Government of India. The restriction imposed was unreasonable and was not in the interests of the general public. (1952) 22 I T R 377 : (1952) 2 Mad L J 544 : 1952 Mad W N 782 : A I R 1953 Mad 84 (85) (Pr 4).

——Art. 226—Right to trade in beef—License granted to petitioner by Municipality on certain conditions— Cancellation of license without any allegation or proof as to breach of conditions opportunity to show cause not given to petitioner — Fundamental right to trade is violated by such cancellation—Order quashed See Ibid, Art. 19 (1) (g). A I R 1965 Mys 281 (DB).

4-

——Art. 226 — Nature of order under Arms Act (1878), S 18.

Under S. 18 (a), Arms Act, no duty is cast on the authority cancelling a license to act judicially. The order under the section is not open to appeal or revision. An order cancelling a licence under that section, therefore, is only an administrative or executive order and is not open to review by a writ of certiorari. 1954 Cri L J 1672 : I L R (1954) 4 Raj 170 : A I R 1954 Raj 264 (266, 267) (Pt D) (Pr 6) (DB).

——Art 226 — Quasi-judicial orders — Decision of Chief Inspector of Factories refusing or granting renewal of licence—Decision whether quasi-judicial —(Factories Act (1948), S. 6 (1) — Rules under — Travancore-Cochin Rules, R. 7).

A decision of a Chief Inspector of Factories refusing or granting renewal of licence after deciding whether the applicant is legally qualified to hold a licence is not merely administrative but quasi-judicial in its character and is, therefore, amenable to judicial review under Art. 226. (1957) 2 Lab L J 501 (Trav-Co).

153. Mandamus and certiorari.

See Note 189.

154. Mines and minerals, orders in respect of.

——Art. 226 —Certiorari—Writ of—Cannot be issued against administrative acts — Mines and Minerals (Regulation and Development) Act (1957), Ss 10 and 30 — Mineral Concession Rules (1949), Rr 32 and 54 —Grant of mining lease—State Government acts in its administrative capacity — Central Government exercising revisional powers however acts quasi-judicially Mines and Minerals (Regulation and Development) Act (1957), Ss. 10 and 30—Mineral Concession Rules (1949), Rr. 32 and 54.

The scheme of the Act and the Rules shows that the State Government acts in its administrative capacity while disposing of applications for the grant of mining leases and as such a writ of certiorari cannot be issued against its orders. A I R 1959 S C 107 and (1924) 1 K B 171, Rel. on. The Central Government, while deciding an application under Rule 54 of the Mineral Concession Rules, exercises quasi-judicial functions. Consequently, it is obligatory on the part of the Central Government to afford reasonable opportunity to the other party in the review application. But in taking action under R. 32 of the Mineral Concession Rules 1949, the State Government does not perform the act in a quasi-judicial capacity. (1962) 1 Andh L T 152 · (1962) 1 Andh W R 146 : AIR 1963 Andh Pra 54 (56, 57) (Pt A) (Prs 12, 13, 15) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Administrative orders — Mining lease for mica and beryl —Approval of Central Government —Failure to obtain — Tentative approval by State Government — Cancellation of—Writ petition—Maintainability. See Mineral Concession Rules (1949), R. 26 (1). A I R 1959 Pat 243 (DB).

155 Municipal laws, orders under.

——Art. 226 —Administrative orders—Issue of writ —(Municipalities — C. P. and Berar Muinicipalities Act (2 of 1922), S. 53-A).

S. R Das, C. J., S K Das and Kapur, JJ. — The function which the State Government exercises under S. 53 A of C. P. and Berar Municipalities Act, is administrative in nature and hence its action under the section is not amenable to a writ of certiorari.

When the Government takes action against a municipal committee under S. 53-A, C P. and Berar Municipalities Act, there is no question of two contending parties. There is also nothing in S. 53-A which in terms imposes any duty on the State Government to act judicially. Nor can such duty be inferred from the fact that the Government has to exercise its power under the section by an order stating reasons therefor.

K. Subba Rao, J. (contra) :—Before Government can take action under S. 53 A, three preliminary conditions for the exercise of the power must exist. They are (1) the committee is competent to perform the duties imposed upon it ; (2) the State Government considers that a general improvement in the administration of the municipality is likely to be secured by the appointment of a servant of the Government ; (3) an order stating the reasons therefor. The difference between Ss. 53-A and 57 in the matter of the duty cast upon the Government is not decisive of the question whether the action of the Government under the former provision is judicial or administrative. It would be against all canons of natural justice that a tribunal should arrive at a finding of far-reaching consequence without giving an opportunity to explain to the persons who would be affected by such finding. For these reasons it must be held that, S. 53-A imposes a duty on the Government to act judicially in ascertaining the objective and jurisdictional fact, namely, whether the committee is incompetent. Radhesham Khare v. State of Madhya Pradesh, (1959) 1 Mad L J (S C) 5 : (1959) 1 Andh W R (S C) 5 : 1959 S C J 6 : 1959 Nag L J 49 : 1959 M P L J 185 : 1959 S C R 1440 : A I R 1959 S C 107 (113 to 116, 118, 121, 126, 127, 128, 129, 133, 134, 135) (Prs 7, 8, 10, 10-A, 11-A, 23, 43, 48, 50, 64, 65, 66).

——Art. 226—Municipalities—Ajmer Merwara Municipalities Regulation (1925), S. 243 — Notification superseding municipality — Preliminary enquiry — Nature of—It is administrative or quasi-judicial only —Chief Commissioner is not bound to specify whether dissolution or supersession is proposed — Communication to show cause need not be signed by Chief Commissioner or expressed to have been issued under his direction. A I R 1955 N U C (Ajmer) 2616.

——Art. 226 — Quasi-judicial order — Dismissal of Municipal servant by Municipal Board — Appeal to State Governmeut — Dismissing authority and appellate authority act in administrative capacity — There is nothing to prevent State Government from reviewing its order—Essentials of quasi-judicial authority indicated. See Municipalities — U. P. Municipalities Act (2 of 1916), S. 74. 1964 All L J 727.

——Art. 226 — Certiorari, writ of — Administrative order — Order superseding town Area Committee under S. 36, U. P. Town Areas Act (2 of 1914) — Nature of—Certiorari to quash such order does not lie. A I R 1959 S C 107, foll. A I R 1962 All 264 (294, 295) (Prs 5, 8).

——Art. 226 — Supersession of Municipal Board — Order of Government under S. 30, U. P. Municipalities Act—Nature of — Order is not quasi-judicial but administrative—Order when can be challenged—Persistent default—Meaning of — Defaults committed by President or Executive Officer — Ultimate responsibility is with Board. See Municipalities—U. P. Municipalities Act (2 of 1916), S. 30. ILR (1960) 2 All 539.

——Art. 226 — Orders under Ss. 143 and 147, U P. Municipalities Act — Nature of — Orders are quasi-judicial and subject to certiorari jurisdiction of High Court. See Municipalities—U P. Municipalities Act (2 of 1916), S. 143 (2). A I R 1958 All 211.

——Art. 226 — Secretary appointed on probation — Termination of service—Where discharge not according to statutory requirements — Order must be quashed. See Municipalities — U. P. Municipalities Act (2 of 1916), S. 67. 1957 All LJ 30.

——Art. 226 — Powers of High Court — U. P. Municipalities Act (2 of 1916), S. 34 and S. 48 — Regulacion of conduct of meeting — Power of District Magistrate — Quashing of order made without jurisdiction.

If there be complaints made to the District Magistrate that the President wrongly records the minutes of the proceedings of the meetings, the State Government may have power to deal with the situation under S. 48, Municipalities Act by taking steps against the President; but the District Magistrate has no authority under S. 34, on the complaint being made by some of the members, to regulate the conduct of the meeting. Hence, if he makes such an order, it being wholly without jurisdiction deserves to be quashed under Art. 226, Constitution of India. AIR 1956 All 369 (372, 373) (Pt C) (Pr 4).

——Art. 226—Powers of High Court — Interference with interlocutory administrative order — Removal of President of Municipality—Action proposed under S. 48 (2) (b) (vi), U. P. Municipalities Act, by Government—Nature of inquiry.

Section 48 (2) (b) (vi) gives power to the State Government to pass an order of suspension. If the State Government proposes to take action namely, either to give a warning to the President or to remove him on any of the grounds enumerated in cls. (a) and (b) of S. 48, it is obligatory on the part of the State Government, before passing a final order, to give an opportunity to the President of explaining the conduct on account of which it is proposed to take action against him.

The orders removing the President or the proposal to take action against the applicant may themselves be administrative orders; but the inquiry started on the notice and terminating in the final order of removal or warning is an inquiry conducted by the State Government and can be regarded as a quasi judicial proceeding. Whether the conditions precedent for the starting of such an inquiry have been fulfilled in the case brought to the notice of the High Court, are questions which can be gone into by the High Court and necessary direction can be issued by it under Art. 226.

Article 226 does not limit the powers of the High Court to be exercised only when final orders have been passed by the Government or any other subordinate authority or tribunal, though generally it will not exercise its powers under that Article interfering with an interim administrative determination. A I R 1956 All 369 (374, 375) (Pt F) (Pr 6).

——Art. 226—Powers of High Court—U. P. Municipalities Act (2 of 1916), S. 48 (2) (b) (vi) — Misconduct of President—Objective determination — Power to issue writ of prohibition.

In S. 48 the words used are that the State Government may at any time, if it is satisfied that a President has committed gross misconduct in the discharge of his duties, remove him. The satisfaction of the State Government necessarily means the satisfaction based on materials before the State Government. It is an objective determination by the State Government and the existence of gross misconduct on the part of the President is a condition precedent for the exercise of the power under S. 48.

Hence, if the conduct attributed to the President on which proceedings are taken against him and he is asked to explain, does not come within the ambit of S. 48 itself, it is open to the High Court to issue a writ of prohibition directing the State Government not to proceed with the inquiry. A I R 1955 All 106, Disting. A I R 1956 All 369 (377) (Pt H) (Pr 9).

——Art. 226 — Interference at interlocutory stage — Proceedings under S. 48 (2) (b) (vi), U. P. Municipalities Act against President for granting leases of municipal lands without previous sanction of Board —Whether act of president amounts to gross misconduct—Proceedings whether without jurisdiction and mala fide—(Municipalities — U. P. Municipalies Act (2 of 1916), S. 48 (2) (b) (vi)).

Held, on facts that the act of the President in sanctioning the grant of leases to various applicants without the sanction of the Board was an act which was not permissible within the provisions of the Municipalities Act.

(ii) that the acts alleged against the President may, in certain circumstances, amount to gross misconduct, but it cannot be said that the grounds on which the State Government has proposed to take action against him do not fall within the scope of S. 48 (2) (b) (vi).

If the present proceedings have been validly started and the order of suspension passed by the State Government is within its competence, whatever may be the motive which influenced their decision, it is not a question which can be gone into by the High Court in this writ petition and it cannot be said that the act of the State Government proposing to start proceedings under S. 48 (2) (b) (vi) against the applicant is mala fide which can be quashed by the High Court on that ground. 1955 All W R (HC) 628 : AIR 1956 All 213 (214, 215 216) (Prs 4, 10, 11, 12).

——Art. 226 — Municipalities — U. P. Municipalities Act (1916), Ss. 143 (3), 160 — No objection to assessment—Order is not one under S. 143 (3) — Appeal to District Magistrate does not lie — Entertaining an appeal after 30 days amounts to disregard of provisions of law—Order quashed. A I R 1955 N U C (All) 2036.

——Art. 226 — U. P. District Board Manual Ch. III R. 3-A — Termination of service of servant drawing Rs. 40 per month — Validity of notice — Powers of Secretary. See U. P. District Boards Act (10 of 1922), S. 82. A I R 1955 N U C (All) 2025.

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Administrative orders — Writ will not issue — Order of Commissioner of Municipal Corporation sanctioning construction of building is administrative order — Order of Government in revision against Commissioner's order is judicial—Writ will issue against the order—Municipalities — Hyderabad Municipal Corporations Act, 1955 (2 of 1956), Ss. 397, 399, 679.

A writ of certiorari will not normally be issued to quash what is really an administrative act. Considering the scope and nature of the powers of the Commissioner of the Corporation under the relevant provisions of the Hyderabad Municipal Corporation Act of 1956 an order sanctioning a construction of a building is nothing more than a mere administrative order. A writ of certiorari to quash it is prima facie incompetent and untenable. A I R 1951 S C 41 and A I R 1958 Andh Pra 458 and A I R 1960 S C 321, Rel. on.

But an order passed by the Government in revision under S. 679 against the Commissioner's orders is a judicial or a quasi-judicial order as to which a writ of certiorari can well be issued especially as the order of the Commissioner must be deemed to have been merged in the order of the Government. A I R 1961 Andh Pra 489 (490, 491) (Pt A) (Prs 3, 4).

——Art. 226 — Administrative acts — Power to issue direction to Government.

There is no provision either in the Hyderabad Municipal Corporation Act or in the Hyderabad Abkari Act empowering the Revenue Minister either to direct the Municipality to desist from levying or collecting octroi duty or to direct the Government to meet the demand made by the Municipality in that regard. Such an expression of opinion canno be regarded as a judicial or quasi judicial one. It is only an opinion expressed by a Minister on the administrative side. The High Court cannot give a direction either to the Rajpramukh or to the Government to give effect to the noting of a single Minister. I L R (1960) Andh Pra 42: A I R 1960 Andh Pra 234 (244) (Pt H) (Pr 53) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Quasi-judicial tribunal. See Municipalities — Assam Municipal Act (1923), S. 89. A I R 1953 Assam 132 (DB).

——Art. 226—Bengal Municipal Act (1932), S. 215 (b) —Reviewing authority deals with assessment in quasi-judicial manner. See Municipalities — Bengal Municipal Act (15 of 1932), S. 215 (b). A I R 1957 Cal 447.

——Art. 226 -Certiorari — Administrative matters— (Election — Bengal Municipal Act (15 of 1932), Ss. 529-A and 44).

While the actual proceedings before the registering authority under R. 8 or before the Magistrate under S. 529-A of the Bengal Municipal Act may be said to be of a quasi-judicial nature, the publication of the preliminary or the final electoral roll is a purely administrative affair, and such publication cannot be quashed by a writ of certiorari. A I R 1956 Cal 456 (458) (Pt E) (Pr 6).

——Art. 226—Judicial or administrative act — Order of supersession under S. 131 of Bengal Local Self-Government Act (3 of 1885).

In order that a statutory authority may be deemed to act judicially, the lis need not be between two parties other than the authority which purports to make the order. The real test is that there must be a lis, that is, a controversy between the subject and another party which may be the party making the order and that, superadded to it, there must be a further condition that the statutory authority must act judicially. In order that a decision by a statutory authority may be regarded as a quasi-judicial act, the approach to the decision must be a judicial one. In other words, the conclusion which has to be reached by the statutory authority must require the application of a judicial process in arriving at a decision. Section 131 of the Bengal Local Self-Government Act, 1885, does not require the Provincial Government to start an enquiry at which the District Board would have a right of audience. The fact that an explanation may be called from the District Board does not necessarily show that the decision has to be arrived at by the Provincial Government or the officer concerned by the application of a judicial process. The order of supersession made under S. 131 of the Bengal Local Self-Government Act, 1885, is purely an administrative act on the part of the Provincial Government. A I R 1951 S C 23, Foll. A I R 1952 Cal 901 (903, 904) (Pt A) (Prs 14, 16).

——Art. 226 — Quasi-judicial order — Action under latter part of S. 23 (7) of Bombay District Municipal Act—Is quasi-judicial in nature — President must be given opportunity to meet charges against him before action is taken under S. 23 (7).

There may not be a lis between the two contending parties, but if before arriving at a finding materials placed before the deciding authority have to be judged and if facts have to be decided objectively and the decision has serious consequences, the exercise of the powers by the authority will have a quasi-judicial character although there is nothing one way or the other in the statute casting a duty on the authority to act judicially. It must however be remembered that these circumstances are only some of the relevant indicia to show the nature of the action taken. (1924) 1 K B 171; A I R 1959 S C 107 and A I R 1962 S C 1110, Rel. on.

The Court must turn to the provisions of S. 23 (7) of the Bombay District Municipal Act to determine whether the State Government while acting under that section has the duty to act judicially. Section 23 (7) contemplates the removal of the President in two ways: (1) removal of the elected president by the municipality by a resolution which must be passed after giving him a reasonable opportunity of showing cause why such a resolution should not be passed against him, and (2) removal of the President by the State Government for misconduct or neglect or incapacity to perform his duties. Though the latter part of S. 23 (7) is silent as to the function being quasi-judicial as against the first part of the sub-section where the legislature has been clear by providing for a reasonable opportunity, considering the various factors mentioned above, it would be legitimate to impute to the legislature the intention that the function performed under the latter part of this sub-section was to be treated as a quasi-judicial function. The circumstances attendant upon and the consequences following on the taking of an action under S. 23 (7) of the Bombay District Municipal Act indicate and justify the inference that there is a duty cast upon the authority taking action under that section to act judicially and the action taken under that section is quasi-judicial in nature. AIR 1957 Punj 100 and 59 Bom L R 930 (At Nag) and AIR 1953 All 195, Distinguished; AIR 1952 Cal 594 and AIR 1953 Cal 212, Rel. on. As to the nature and the extent of the right of the petitioner of having a fair and reasonable opportunity to meet the case against him before the final order was passed against him, no hard and fast rule can be laid down as that would depend on the nature and circumstances of each case. The principles which must be followed in an inquiry by a body exercising quasi-judicial functions are: (1) the delinquent must be given a fair opportnity to meet the accusation made against him and to state his defence; (2) some inquiry must be made such as would enable the deciding authority fairly to determine whether he was satisfied that the charge in question was made out; (3) in cases where there are prescribed rules of procedure, the rules must generally be followed. Where there are no such rules the authority can fix his own procedure, not contrary to the rules of natural justice. 1915 A C 120 and (1960) 1 All E R 631, Rel. on.

Held, that the materials relating to the charge against the petitioner were not properly considered by the authority before passing the order of removal under S. 23 (7) of the Bombay District Municipal Act and that the order was passed mechanically without a proper application of the mind by the authority. The petitioner did not get a reasonable opportunity of a proper hearing before passing final order. The whole order, therefore, must be struck down as illegal. I L R (1963) Guj 1046: A I R 1964 Guj 51 (54 to 59) (Prs 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 17, 18, 19, 21) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Order of removal from membership under S. 7 of Punjab Small Towns Act—Opportunity to show cause against proposed order not necessary —Opinion of State Government is subjective—Order is administrative and not amenable to writ of certiorari.

The Punjab Small Towns Act does not contain a provision that an opportunity should be afforded to a member of the Small Town Committee before ordering his removal from membership. The opinion which the State Government has to form under S. 7 as to the fitness or otherwise of a person to continue as member of the Small Town Committee is subjective and not purely objective. The order of the State Government removing the member from membership of the Small Town Committee is therefore an administrative order and is not amenable to a writ of certi-orari. A I R 1962 Him Pra 59 and A I R 1962 All 264 and A I R 1950 S C 222 and 1942 A C 206, Rel. on; A I R 1962 S C 1110 and A I R 1962 S C 1217, Disting. and Expl. A I R 1962 Him Pra 68 (68, 69, 72) (Prs 5, 19, 20).

——Art. 226—Certiorari, writ of —When can issue—Removal of member under S. 7, Punjab Small Towns Act, on ground of unfitness—Order is purely administrative —Cannot be quashed by certiorari when it is not mala fide—Nor can a writ of mandamus be issued —Principles of natural justice—Audi alteram partem Scope and applicability.

The audi alteram partem principle is applicable only to judicial and quasi judicial acts of an administrative body and not to administrative or executive acts of such body. The scope of a writ of certiorari is to a certain extent akin to the scope of the principle of audi alteram partem and the duty to act judicially is considered to be one of the conditions requisite for the issue of a writ of certiorari. Such a writ will not issue to quash the order of a body that has acted in a purely ministerial capacity notwithstanding that its ministerial order may have been preceded by a determination of a judicial character by another body. 1924 A C 988, Rel. on.

An order passed under S. 7, Punjab Small Towns Act removing the petitioner from the membership of the small town committee is not a judicial or quasi-judicial order but is purety an administrative order and it is not amenable to a writ of certiorari when it has not been found to be mala fide. A I R 1960 Punj 186, Dist.

A direction that the petitioner be restored to the membership of the small town committee cannot be issued unless the impugned order is quashed and if it is beyond the competence of the High Court to issue a writ of certiorari, it cannot issue a writ of mandamus either. AIR 1962 Him Pra 59 (64, 65, 66, 67, 68) (Pt B) (Prs 19, 21, 22, 31, 32, 33, 42, 43).

——Art. 32 (2-A) (read with Constitution of India (Application to Jammu and Kashmir) Order (1954))—Government removing petitioner from Chairmanship of Town Area Committee — High Court of J. & K.—Interference.

Where the Government has removed the petitioner from certain post, i e., Chairmanship of Town Area Committee, the High Court of Jammu and Kashmir will assume jurisdiction in such matters only if an authority which is bound to follow the provisions of a statute acts in contravention of those provisions. But if the Government or such authority acts according to the procedure provided by the said statute, holds an inquiry as provided by law, and then arrives at some conclusion, High Court of J and K. will not and cannot interfere on the ground that these conclusions are not warranted by facts. The Court will only see if the petitioner has or has not received equal protection of law. AIR 1956 J & K 32 (32) (Prs 3, 4).

——Art. 226— Government's power to take action under S. 11 (1), State Municipalities Act— Determination of collateral facts — Subjective determination — Judicial enquiry — Committee superseded without judicial enquiry — Issue of writ of certiorari. See Municipalities — Gwalior State Municipalities Act (1903), S. 11 (1). AIR 1954 Madh B 161 (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Essential condition for applying President and Vice President of Municipality — Removal from office — Application for writ — (Municipalities — Gwalior State Municipalities Act (1993-S), S. 11 (1).)

The right of the President and Vice-President of a Municipality to continue in office is a legal right irrespective of the fact that it came into existence by election or nomination, and if they are unlawfully removed from their office they possess sufficient interest to pray for a writ. Madh B L J 1954 H C R 1 : A I R 1954 Madh B 161 (163, 167) (Pt A) (Prs 4, 29, 35) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Administrative order without jurisdiction—Order is liable to be quashed—Order under S. 53, C. P. and Berar Municipalities Act (2 of 1922).

The making of an order under S. 53 (1) of the C. P. and Berar Municipalities Act is no doubt an administrative or executive act. But it has been made dependent on certain conditions and contingencies enumerated in that section. The fulfilment of these conditions is no doubt left to the subjective opinion or satisfaction of the Collector. But where the Collector makes an order solely on grounds altogether extraneous to S. 53 (1) the case would be one of want of jurisdiction in the Collector to make the order, and must be quashed by a writ of certiorari. I L R (1961) Madh Pra 252 : 1961 M P C 233 : 1961 Jab L J 771 : 1961 M P L J 667 : AIR 1962 Madh Pra 40 (42) (Pt A) (Prs 4, 5) (DB).

—— Art. 226— Directory and mandatory nature of Rules—Test to determine—Rules 29 and 30 are directory —Substantial compliance held sufficient — No interference under Art. 226. See Municipalities—C. P. & Berar Municipalities Act (2 of 1922), S. 85. 1961 M P L J 1473.

——Art. 226— Interference—Order of removal on grounds extraneous to those prescribed by law—Order will be quashed under Art. 226, Constitution of India. See Municipalities — M. B. Municipalities Act (I of 1954), S. 16 (1) (a). 1961 M P L J 1011.

——Art. 226—Quasi-judicial order —Order superseding municipality —Not purely administrative —Interference by High Court—See Municipalities—Madhya Bharat Municipalities Act (I of 1954), S. 208. A I R 1958 Madh Pra 397 (DB).

——Art. 226—Powers of High Court—Order superseding municipality —Grounds on which High Court may interfere in its writ jurisdiction. See Municipalities —C. P. and Berar Municipalities Act (2 of 1922), S. 57 (2). AIR 1958 Madh Pra 323 (FB).

——Art. 226—Administrative orders — Order under S. 173, M. B. Municipal Act, refusing to renew licence for running flour mill—No writ—Conduct of petitioner — (Municipalities — M. B. Municipal Act (I of 1954), S. 173).

The Municipal Council and Collector were both satisfied that the petitioner's flour mill was dangerous to the health and property of the persons living in the neighbourhood and decided that the renewal of the licence should be refused. The petitioner applied under Art. 226 to quash the order of the Municipality under S. 173, M. B. Municipal Act :

Held, (1) That the decision taken by the Municipal Council was purely an administrative decision and it was not incumbent to deal with the case judicially or to hear the petitioner before the decision was made, (2) That the conduct of the petitioner in continuing to work the mill even after expiry of the licence and the refusal of the Municipality to renew it was highly objectionable and also disentitled him to writ. 1957 M P C 291 : 1957 Jab L J 509 : A I R 1958 Madh Pra 11 (12, 13) (Pt C) (Pr 11) (DB).

——Art. 226—Madras District Boards Rules (1920), Rr. 5 and 5-A—Scope—Non-compliance— Effect — Order held was nullity —Certiorari held could issue — See Madras District Boards Rules (1920), R. 5. AIR 1958 Mad 211.

——Art. 226 — Madras District Municipalities Act (1920), S. 43 — Allotment of seats reserved under S. 7 (3) — Duty of Government to consult municipality

—Certiorari against order of allotment—See Municipalities—Madras District Municipalities Act (5 of 1920), S. 43. AIR 1953 Mad 392.

——Art. 226—Decision on appeal petition questioning election — Character of — Principles of judicial approach if should be followed — Decision based on material obtained behind back of party affected — Issue of writ of Certiorari — See Municipalities — Mysore Town Municipalities Election Rules (1951) (framed under Ss. 23 and 208)—Mysore Town Municipalities Act (22 of 1951), R. 11. AIR 1956 Mys 33.

——Art. 226—Quashing of executive order — Order under Proviso in Cl. (1), S. 14 (1-A), Mysore Town Municipalities Act, nature of — [Municipalities — Mysore Town Municipalities Act (12 of 1951), S. 14 (1)(A).]

The High Court has power to interfere in the cases of even so-called administrative orders which are made in defiance of the articles of Constitution or the mandatory provisions of law and without any jurisdiction.

Where orders are passed or action is taken under a Statute or an Act of the Legislature by a Court or tribunal which is vested with the power to take and enforce decisions regarding the rights between rival parties who appear before the tribunal or between them and the State, then proceedings, orders and action cannot be said to be executive.

Prescribed forms of procedure are not necessary to make an inquiry judicial, provided in coming to the decision the well-recognised principles of approach are required to be followed. Therefore, wherever any body of persons having legal authority to determine questions affecting rights of subjects and having the duty to act judicially in excess of their legal authority writ of certiorari may issue.

The order under Proviso to Cl. (1), S. 14 (1) (A) of the Government or the Minister who has got to decide a question of so vital and valuable interest to the Councillor and the electorate, in pursuance of a statutory power or duty cast on the Government to do so under Mysore Town Municipalities Act is not one which is merely executive or administrative and incapable of correction under Art. 226 of the Constitution in appropriate cases. AIR 1953 S C 210, Rel. on. I L R (1953) Mys 497 : 33 Mys L J 125 : AIR 1954 Mys 18 (21, 22) (Pt B) (Pr 12) (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Interference with order of inferior Tribunals—When permissible—Jurisdiction of High Court to interfere with order passed by the Authority acting under provisions of S. 398 read with S. 394 of Orissa Municipal Act.

There are two lines of cases—(1) where the jurisdiction of an inferior tribunal may depend upon the fulfilment of some condition precedent or upon the existence of some particular facts, such a fact is collateral to the actual matter which the inferior tribunal has to try, and the determination of whether it exists or not is logically and in sequence prior to the determination of the actual question which the inferior tribunal has to try. In such a case, in certiorary proceedings a Court can enquire into the correctness of the decision of the inferior tribunal as to the collateral fact and may reverse the decision if it appears to it, on the materials before it, to be erroneous. There is the other line of cases where there may be tribunals which, by virtue of legislation constituting them, have the power to determine finally the preliminary facts on which the further exercise of their jurisdiction depends. With respect to the second line of cases, their decision even if wrong on facts or law cannot be corrected by a writ of certiorari. In cases where the fact in question is a part of the very issue which the inferior tribunal has to enquire into, a Court will not issue a writ of certiorari, although the inferior tribunal may have arrived at an erroneous conclusion with regard to it. AIR 1956 S C 463, Rel. on; AIR 1958 Orissa 197, Dist.

Having regard to the provisions of S. 394 and S. 398 of the Orissa Municipal Act, this case falls under the category of the cases where the High Court has jurisdiction to interfere. Under S. 394, a duty has clearly been cast on the State Government to see that the proceedings of Municipal Council are in conformity with law and rules in force thereunder. Section 398 confers on the State Government such power of control by suspension or cancellation with regard to the resolutions, order, licence, permission and lays down procedure for the same. Undoubtedly the State Government in order to invoke its jurisdiction to suspend or cancel, has to determine regarding the collateral fact of there existing such conditions or contingencies, under which the State Government can have power of suspension or cancellation. Where the merit of the matter, on which the State Government has to exercise its powers of suspension or cancellation, has nothing to do with its jurisdiction of control over the proceedings of the Municipal Council, the High Court has jurisdiction to interfere with an order made by the State Government purported to have been made under S. 398 read with S. 394 of the Orissa Municipal Act. (1963) 5 Orissa J D 97.

——Art. 226 — Power of State Government under—Nature of—Is judicial or quasi-judicial — High Court can interfere with such an order in its jurisdiction under Art. 226 of the Constitution. See Orissa Municipal Act (1950), S. 398 read with S. 394. (1963) 5 Orissa J D 97.

——Art. 226—Executive order — Order under Ss. 16 and 22 of Punjab Municipal Act — [Municipalities — Punjab Municipal Act (3 of 1911), Ss. 16 and 22).]

The power of obtaining a writ, direction or order of the kind mentioned in Art. 226 of the Constitution extends to acts and orders of a competent authority or tribunal, including the Government in appropriate cases, which has power to impose a penalty or liability or to give decision determining the rights of the affected party or parties. The order of the State Government under Ss. 16 and 22 of the Punjab Municipal Act is not one which is merely executive or administrative and is, therefore, capable of correction under Art. 226 I L R (1954) Patiala 265 : AIR 1954 Pepsu 186 (190)(Pt D) (Pr 13) (DB).

——Art. 226—Natural justice—Quasi-judicial body—Opportunity to be heard—Municipal Committee under S. 67, Punjab Municipal Act (3 of 1911) revising rental value — Committee acts as quasi-judicial tribunal — Application by property-owner under section competent—Committee must decide application and must give hearing to applicant before passing order. See Municipalities — Punjab Municipal Act (3 of 1911), S. 67. I L R (1965) 2 Punj 164 : 67 Punj L R 1027.

——Arts. 226 and 227—Municipalities—Punjab Municipal Act (3 of 1911), S. 16 (1) (e)—Order of removal of petitioner from membership under section—Order passed on grounds which did not amount to a flagrant abuse of position as member — High Court has power to quash the order even though it is an administrative one—Certiorari.

Where the Government has passed an order under S. 16 (1)(e) of the Punjab Municipal Act, removing the petitioner from the membership of the municipal committee on a ground, namely that he had violated R. 3-A of the Rules framed under the Act, which does not amount to a flagrant abuse of his position as a member of the committee, the High Court has power in the proceedings under Arts. 226 and 227 of the Constitution to quash the Order, although it is an administrative one, on the ground that it is ultra vires of the power of the Government. AIR 1961 S C 1731, Rel. on. Although under S 16 (1) (e) of the Act, the Government acts in an administrative capacity, the determination of the fact whether there is a flagrant abuse or not, is an objective determination and not a purely subjective determination. An administrative action may in some cases be taken on a subjective determination but in other cases it may have to be taken on an objective determination. Where the administrative action has to be taken on purely subjective determination it is not open to review by any Court of law. But where the administrative action has to be taken in pursuance of a statute which requires that certain facts must exist before the action can be taken and those facts do not exist at the time the action is taken, it can always be shown that the action is uncalled for, because the conditions precedent for such an action do not exist, in such a situation the administrative action would be liable to be struck down as violative of the statute. ('64) 66 Pun L R 226.

——Art. 226 – Certiorari—Administrative orders — Punjab Municipal Act (3 of 1911), S. 14 (e) — Order under — Not justiciable — Municipalities — Punjab Municipal Act (3 of 1911), S. 14 (e).

Where the function which the State Government exercises is administrative in nature such an action is not amenable to a writ of certiorari. Where orders under S. 14 (e) of Punjab Municipal Act were made in exercise of administrative functions of the State Government, it will not be for High Court to go into the question whether it rightly deemed certain reasons as affecting public interest and quash them by certiorari. Hence, they were not justiciable. AIR 1959 S C 107, Rel. on. ('62) 64 Pun L R 685.

● ——Art. 226—Action of statutory body—Question as to legality — Matters to be considered—Rules of natural justice—Relevant only when action is judicial or quasj-judicial — Seat of municipal member vacated under S. 14 (e) of Punjab Municipal Act — Previous notice or hearing not necessary.

When a question arises whether a statutory authority has or has not acted in accordance with law, the terms of the statute setting up that authority have to be examined and the Court has to decide in view of the statutory provisions, whether the Authority concerned has exceeded its power or acted in a manner contrary to the statutory provisions. It is, therefore, neither permissible nor in any sense proper to invoke the assistance of any outside rule, whether of natural justice or otherwise.

Further, it is only when a statutory authority is required by the appropriate statute to act in a judicial or quasi judicial manner that any question of any rule of natural justice really arises. In every case, therefore, the real question always is whether the terms of the particular statute setting up the particular authority have been observed or violated : AIR 1957 S C 232, Rel. on.

Considering the language of S. 14 and other provisions of the Punjab Municipal Act, it is clear that when the State Government orders a seat to be vacated, it does not, and is not required to perform any judicial or quasi judicial function, and no rule of natural justice, therefore, comes into the picture. S. 14 does not require any notice or hearing, and the grievance, therefore, that there was none in the case, has no legal foundation. Jogindar Singh v. State of Punjab, 65 Pun L R 267 : I L R (1963) 1 Punj 588 : 1963 Cur L J 98 : A I R 1963 Punj 280 (286, 287) (Pt A) (Pr 18) (FB).

——Art. 226—Quasi-judicial order—Qrder removing Chairman from office under S. 22 (10), Rajasthan Town Municipalities Act — Interference — (Municipalities — Rajasthan Town Municipalities Act (23 of 1951), S. 22 (10)).

Removal of a Chairman is undoubtedly an administrative decision of the Government. But the power to remove, if exercised, requires the pre-existence of certain basic facts mentioned in S. 22 (10) of the Act. When the basic facts alleged in a case are the existence of the neglect of the chairman of his duties and incapacity to perform his duties there is no doubt that these facts have to be objectively determined. The finding of the existence of the basic facts is a decision of a quasi judicial nature. AIR 1950 S C 222 and AIR 1952 All 63 and AIR 1953 All 739, Rel. on. ILR (1957) 7 Raj 393 : AIR 1957 Raj 284 (288, 289) (Pt A) (Prs 17, 18, 22) (DB).

——Art. 226—Order under Municipal Law—Interference by Collector with order is authorised in cases when carrying out order is likely to cause injury or annoyance to public or is unlawful—Held that order of Collector under S. 195, Rajasthan Town Municipalities Act was not justified — Order quashed. See Municipalities — Rajasthan Town Municipalities Act (23 of 1951), S. 195. A I R 1955 N U C (Raj) 4610 (DB).

——Art. 226—Bikaner Municipal Act (1923), S. 172 —Supersession of municipality — Dutyto hear municipal Board before supersession—Writunder Art. 226, Constitution of India — See Municipalities — Bikaner Municipal Act (6 of 1923), S. 172. AIR 1953 Raj 149.

156. New point.

See Note 98.

157. Order for clarification.

See Note 24.

158. Orders that can be passed.

See also Notes 34 and 85.

● ——Arts. 32 and 226 – Illegal order – Severability—Proper order on writ petition—Renewal of permit for one year — In writ petition Supreme Court holding the order illegal – Proper order to pass is to maintain order of renewal and quash order relating to period and direct the authority to pass orders according to law—See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 58 (2). A I R 1960 S C 321.

● ——Art. 226—Powers of High Court under.

The High Court did not content itself with merely quashing the proceedings under the Motor Vehicles Act, it went further and directed the Regional Transport Authority, to grant to the petitioner permits in respect of the five buses in respect of which a joint application was made originally by the petitioner and one B and that in case the above buses had been condemned, the petitioner was to be at a liberty to provide substitutes within such time as may be prescribed by the authorities.

Held, that such a direction was clearly in excess of its powers and jurisdiction. Veerappa Pillai v. Raman and Raman Ltd., 1952 S C R 583 : 90 Cal L J 194 : (1952) S C A 287 : 65 Mad L W 620 : 1952-1 Mad L J 806 : 54 Pun L R 210 : 1952 Mad W N 431 : 1952 S C J 261 : A I R 1952 S C 192 (196) (Pt B) (Pr 24).

——Art. 226—Interference—Punishment of dismissal from service—Finding about one of charges vitiated —Whole order it to be quashed.

Two charges were framed against the petitioners and both of them were found established. It was on the basis of both the charges that punishment of dismissal was imposed on them. On account of the breach of the provisions of the Police Regulations the finding about one of the charges was vitiated.

Held, that it could not be said that the same punishment would have been given to the petitioners even if only one charge was established against them. The other charge became an extraneous consideration which could not be taken into account at all while determining the measure of punishment to be meted out to them. Under the circumstances the whole order of the dismissal becomes void and was liable to be quashed. AIR 1953 All 575, Rel. on. 1961 (2) Cri L J 327 (All).

——Art. 226—Civil P. C. (1908), O. 47, R. 1—Order without jurisdiction — Power to correct in review — See Civil P. C. (1908), O. 47, R. 1. A I R 1956 Madh-B 240.

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Order of inferior Tribunal or Court on appeal properly made to it, quashed — Effect — Power of inferior Court or Tribunal to rehear appeal.

Where the order of the inferior Court or Tribunal on an appeal properly made to it, is quashed by the High Court by a writ of certiorari on any ground which does not deal with the merits of the case, it is not only permissible but it is also incumbent on the inferior Tribunal or Court to take up the appeal and re-hear the same, and to pass any proper order in the light of the decision of the High Court. AIR 1952 Mad 605 and A I R 1957 Bom 46 ; (1951) 1 K B 711 and AIR 1960 S C 321, Foll. (1961) 3 Orissa J D 244 : AIR 1962 Orissa 97 (98) (Prs 4, 5) (DB).

159. Origin and nature of.
See Note 183.

160. Other remedy.
See Note 7.

161. Parties to proceeding.
See Note 87.

162. Persona designata.

——Arts. 226, 227 (1), 245 (1)—Orissa Municipalities Act (1950), Ss. 21, 22, 23 — District Judge as persona designata acting as Election Tribunal performs judicial function and comes under powers of judicial superintendence of High Court under Art. 227: (1) of Constitution. See Municipalities—Orissa Municipal Act (23 of 1950), S. 21. AIR 1952 Orissa 244 (DB).

163. Police Act, orders under.

——Art. 226—Order of Commissioner of Police under S. 39, Calcutta Police Act, is administrative and not judicial or quasi-judicial. Kishan Chand v. Commr. of Police. (1961) 2 S C J 309 : (1961) 2 SCA 150 : (1961) Mad L J (Cri) 541 : A I R 1961 SC 705 (710) (Pt D) (Pr 6).

——Art. 226—Quasi-judicial inquiry—Departmental inquiry under S. 7 of the Police Act is quasi-judicial in nature—(Police Act (1861), S. 7).

The departmental enquiry under S. 7 of the Police Act read with Cl. 489 of the Police Regulation is quasi-judicial in nature. A charge sheet has to be served on the accused officer. The proceedings are amenable to the jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226 and on sufficient cause being shown, a writ of certiorari can issue. AIR 1960 All 304 (313) (Pt F) (Pr 35).

——Art. 226—Interference with administrative orders—Opening of history sheet under Para 228, U. P. Police Regulations against person having only one prosecution — Action is without jurisdiction — High Court will interfere—(U. P. Police Regulations, Para 228).

Where a history sheet is opened against a person who has to his credit only one prosecution under S. 408, I. P. Code, and that too ending in his acquittal the action taken under para 228, U. P. Police Regulations is without jurisdiction and though the action taken is administrative in nature, the High Court in exercise of its powers under Art. 226 will interfere and set aside the administrative order. The person concerned cannot be said to be a confirmed or professional criminal for purposes of para 228. 1960 All W R (HC) 501 : 1960 All Cr R 314 : 1960 All L J 637.

——Arts. 226 and 311—Quasi-judicial order—Departmental enquiry by Tribunal under S. 7, Police Act, in U. P.—Nature of—Administrative or quasi-judicial —(Police Act (1861), S. 7)—(U. P. Police Regulations, Regn. 489).

The departmental enquiry by the Tribunal constituted under S. 7 of the Police Act, according to the rules prescribed by U. P. State Government is of a quasi-judicial nature, in respect of which a writ of certiorari can issue. :1958 All W R (H C) 265 : 1958 All L J 205 : (1958) 2 Lab L J 27 : 1958 All Cr R 217 : AIR 1958 All 607 (608, 609) (Pt B) (Pr 6) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Bombay Police Act (22 of 1951) S. 37 (3) —Administrative order—Provisions of S. 37 (3) are not void—Restrictions are in interest of public order. See Ibid, Art. 19. AIR 1956 Bom 300.

——Art. 226—Bombay Police Act (22 of 1961), S. 33 —Rules under—Rules relating to licensing of places of public entertainment—R. 5 —Function of licensing authority—Nature of—Tests of quasi-judicial acts—Function of Police Commissioner held merely administrative—Order refusing to renew licence—Held principles of natural justice not applicable—Order not invalid for want of giving prior hearing.

Though no exact rule can be laid down and each case must depend upon its own facts and circumstances, it would seem from the authorities that an act would be quasi-judicial (1) where the statute, from which the authority is derived, directs by express words or by implication that the determination should be made judicially, (2) where there is lis and (3) even if there is no lis and the parties are only the authority and the subject and where the existing rights of a subject are affected provided that the statute requires the authority to decide judicially.

In the case of licensing of places of public amusements and entertainments by the Police Commissioner under the rules made by him under S. 33 of the Bombay Police Act, 1951, the nature of the functions entrusted to him by the Act and the method of its disposal would clearly show that the act is administrative rather than judicial, or quasi-judicial. The nature of the function entrusted to the licensing authority is to see that a licence is given to a suitable person. The question whether a person is suitable or not is left to the satisfaction of the licensing authority and it is made dependent on his satisfaction as contrasted with an objective process of sifting and analysing evidence. Under these circumstances, the act cannot be anything else than an administrative act and therefore doctrine of natural justice does not apply to that case.

But even where an administrative action is taken it does not absolve the authority from observing the ordinary rules of fairplay and it may be necessary to give an opportunity to a party to have his say before an order is passed. That, however, is quite different from the well ordered procedure involving notice and an opportunity of hearing before an order is made. What is fairplay must, of course, depend upon the facts of each case.

Held, on facts that the order refusing to renew a licence under R. 5 (2) was an administrative one and as no question of natural justice arose in such a case the order could not be held invalid merely because no opportunity to give an explanation was furnished to the licence holder before making such an order. (1963) 4 Guj L R 897 : AIR 1964 Guj 102 (106, 107) (Prs 11, 12, 14) (DB).

—Art. 226—Executive actions—Mala fides — History sheets opened by police under Police Act — Petitioners' names entered in—Action of police held to be mala fide —High Court has power to issue writ in such case—Observations on honesty and integrity of police force.

The Station House Officer of Police of the petitioners' village placed the petitioners in the list of bad characters maintained under S. 10 of the Police Act and their history sheets had been opened in the police station. The Station House Officer had as a result, directed the lambardars and chowkidars of the village to watch the petitioner's movements and call them out every night, with the result that their movements were watched and they were constantly shadowed by the police. The petitioners approached the High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution for an appropriate writ, direction or order directing the Police officers to remove the names of the petitioners from Register No. 10, Police Act.

Held (i) that the material placed before the High Court by the Police Officers did not appear to be relevant and adequate for justifying the impugned action, which must, therefore, be held to be mala fide; (ii) That the power of the High Court to interfere in the present proceedings if the mala fides of the order were established was indisputable; (iii) that the impugned action had been inspired by collateral and extraneous motives and was therefore, mala fide which must be quashed. 1963 (2) Cri L J 586 : 65 Punj L R 922.

164. Pre-Constitution power of High Courts.

See Note 183.

165. Private body, against.

See also Note 5.

——Art. 226 — Certiorari and prohibition—Writ to private persons — Arbitrations under U. P. Co-operative Societies Rules (1936)—Power of High Court to issue writs—Co-operative Societies Act (1912), S. 43—Arbitration Act (1940), S. 46.

Ordinarily the High Court has no power to interfere with the arbitrations based on private agreements and a writ of certiorari or prohibition cannot be issued in respect of such agreements or awards. The only exception is in case of statutory arbitration wherein the arbitrator acts under the powers conferred by a statute. Provisions of the Arbitration Act including S. 46 are applicable to the arbitrations under the U. P. Co-operative Societies Rules. In view of the deeming clause in S. 46 of the Arbitration Act arbitrations under U. P. Co-operative Societies Rules are put on the same level as arbitrations based on agreements. Consequently, arbitrators under Co operative Societies Rules are not amenable to writ jurisdiction and writ cannot be issued to quash the award made in the arbitration under those Rules. 1962 All L J 876 : 1962 All W R (H C) 904 : AIR 1963 All 113 (115, 116) (Pt A) (Prs 3, 5, 6, 9).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Quasi-judicial orders — Private institutions — Resignation by servant — Acceptance of, is not judicial or quasi-judicial order — Certiorari will issue. A I R 1961 All 282 (284) (Pt B) (Pr 12).

——Art. 226—Petition under Art. 226 against private body—Maintainability. See Ibid, Art. 26. AIR 1964 Andh Pra 277 (DB).

——Art. 226—'Person'—Writ of certiorari to public limited company.

A writ of certiorari cannot be directed against a public limited company registered under the Companies Act. The expression 'person' as defined in S. 3, Cl. 39 of the General Clauses Act includes a company or association or body of individuals whether incorporated or not. But the expression 'person' in Art. 226 cannot be detached from the context and viewed apart from the nature of the writs that are enumerated in the Article. Writs of certiorari cannot issue to a private body or tribunal having no judicial or quasi-judicial authority.

That the Government of India has a controlling and administrative authority over the Hindustan Shipyard, Ltd., will not make any difference to the jural character of the company. It is still a limited liability company and can in no sense be called a judicial or quasi judicial tribunal or public or statutory authority discharging judicial or quasi-judicial functions. A I R 1958 All 413, Rel. on; A I R 1952 Mad 151 and A I R 1954 Mad 67, Disting. (1960) 1 Lab L J 164 : A I R 1960 Andh Pra 518 (519, 520) (Prs 6, 7, 11, 13).

——Art. 226—Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 10-A—Certiorari—Writ will not issue to a private arbitral body which derives its jurisdiction from contract, or to a voluntary association which derives its jurisdiction from consent of members. 1962 Ker L J 865.

[Held overruled by AIR 1963 S C 874 in AIR 1963 Ker 324.]

166. Production of records.

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Object of—Records—Duty of inferior Court or Tribunal.

When a superior Court issues a rule on an application for certiorari it is incumbent on the inferior Court or the quasi judicial body, to whom the rule is addressed to produce the entire records before the Court along with its return. The whole object of a writ of certiorari is to bring up the record of the inferior Court or other quasi judicial body for examination by the superior Court, so that the latter may be satisfied that the inferior Court or the quasi-judicial body has not gone beyond its jurisdiction and has exercised its jurisdiction within the limits fixed by the law. Messrs. Ghaio Mal and Sons v. State of Delhi (New Delhi Administration), (1959) S C J 105 : I L R (1959) Punj 277 : 1959 S C R 1424 : AIR 1959 S C 65 (69) (Pt A) (Pr 6).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari, writ of — Application for — Calling of record of proceedings before lower Court.

In an application for a writ of certiorari, it is ordinarily necessary that the record of the proceedings of the lower Court or the inferior officer, as the case may be, should be sent for and this is implied in the very nature of the writ. I L R (1952) Patiala 242 : AIR 1954 Pepsu 76 (76) (Pt A) (Pr 1).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Duty to produce all records when called for. I L R (1965) 1 Punj 57 : AIR 1965 Punj 284 (285) (Pt C) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Art. 226—Petition under—Documents necessary for disposal—Filing is necessary.

In matters where writ of Certiorari is prayed, it is necessary for the petitioners or the opposite parties to place on record every document which, in their opinion, is necessary for the disposal of the petition. In the absence of any document on the file of High Court, the original record is summoned and the writ petition is decided by referring to the documents filed therein. 1963 Raj L W 274 : I L R (1963) 13 Raj 682.

■ —Art. 226—Certiorari, writ of—Application for quashing of order of removal from service — Notice — Proper return — State cannot claim privilege in respect of documents forming part of record of proceedings—(Evidence Act (1872), Ss. 123, 124 and 162).

The proper return to an order issuing notice upon an application for writ of certiorari to bring up the proceedings terminating in the order removing the applicant from service, should be a return producing the records forming the subject-matter of the proceedings for certiorari.

The records of the proceedings sought to be quashed must commence with the preliminaries for placing the petitioner under suspension. Every document in the Secretariat file starting therefrom and terminating in the orders sought to be quashed must necessarily form part of the proceedings.

It is not competent for the State to take objection for production of any of the documents forming part of the record, based on Ss. 123, 124 and 162, Evidence Act.

If any document not expressly excluded heretofore forming part of the said proceedings is apprehended to be injurious to public interest if disclosed, liberty is given to the respondent to produce the same in Court in a sealed cover with an explanatory note and the said document will be dealt with by the Court appropriately. Joseph John v. State, 1952 Ker L T 417 : ILR (1952) Trav.Co 857 : A I R 1953 Trav Co 363 (363, 364) (Prs 2, 5, 8) (FB).

167. Prohibition and certiorari.

See Note 183.

168. Quasi-judicial orders.

(a) Duty to act judicially.
(b) Duty to observe rules of natural justice.
See also Note 78.
(c) Essentials.
(d) Subjective opinion of authority.
(e) Enquiry before decision.
(f) Duty to decide objectively.
(g) Duty to act according to law.
(h) Deciding authority, party to dispute.
See Note 129.
(i) Duty to pass speaking orders.
(j) Discretionary orders.
(k) Illustrative cases of quasi-judicial orders.

See separate Notes in Part B (Notes 126 to 185) relating to various authorities and tribunals.

168. Quasi-judicial orders.

■ —Art. 32 - Quasi judicial orders—Test indicated. See Defence of India Rules (1962), R. 30-A (8). (1965) 2 S C A 147 : AIR 1966 S C 91.

■ —Art. 226 — Scope —Held, the Excise Appellate Authority under the Eastern Bengal and Assam Excise Act (1 of 1910) was not altogether an administrative body having no judicial or quasi judicial functions. See Eastern Bengal and Assam Excise Act (1 of 1910), S. 9. AIR 1958 S C 398.

—Art. 226—Civil P. C. (1908), S. 11 — Consolidation authority holding that the question of fact decided in earlier consolidation proceeding between same parties is res judicata — Order was not without jurisdiction and could not be quashed by certiorari—Proceedings under U. P. Consolidation of Holdings Act are judicial proceedings — Principles of res judicata would govern consolidation proceedings.

Where, in a proceeding under U. P. Consolidation of Holdings Act, having considered the fact that the question of succession had already been decided in another consolidation proceeding between the same parties relating to another village, the Consolidation Officer held that the question of succession operated as res judicata and could not be re-agitated by the parties in subsequent consolidation proceedings.

Held, that the order was not without jurisdiction and could not be quashed by Certiorari. Proceedings under the U. P Consolication of Holdings Act are essentially judicial proceedings inasmuch as under certain provisions of the Act the Consolidation authorities have been given the power to decide the question of title. It is not necessary that the principle of res judicata should apply to a certain proceeding only when the provisions of S. 11 C. P. C. have been specifically made applicable. The principle of res judicata is based on the need of giving a finality to judicial decision. Once a res is judicata it shall not be adjudged again : 1960 R D 323 and AIR 1960 S C 941 and AIR 1961 S C 1457, Foll. Even though S. 11 Civil P. C. had not been made applicable specifically to proceedings under the Consolidation of Holdings Act the principle would no doubt govern proceedings under the Act and a question of fact decided by one Consolidation Court in a particular manner should operate as res judicata between the same parties in consolidation proceedings with respect to another village otherwise there would be no finality or sanctity to the orders of a Consolidation Authority. 1964 All L J 1112 : 1964 All W R (H C) 784 : AIR 1965 All 296 (297, 298) (Prs 3, 4, 5, 7, 8).

—Art. 226—Quasi-judicial order—Order of Government without notice—Writ of certiorari.

Held, on facts that the order of the Government relating to assignment on Darkhast of Sivoijama land was a quasi-judicial order and not merely an administrative order and that the order of the Government setting at naught the order of the Board of Revenue without giving notice was illegal and ought to be set aside. AIR 1957 Andh Pra 447 (450) (Pt E) (Pr 13).

—Art. 226—Certiorari against Transport Authority under Motor Vehicles Act—Motor Vehicles Act (1939), Ss. 47 and 48—Order under whether administrative or quasi-judicial—Error apparent on face of record—Order quashed—(Motor Vehicles Act (1939), Ss. 47 and 48.)

The Regional Transport Authority acting under Ss. 47 and 48, Motor Vehicles Act, 1939 is acting in a judicial or quasi judicial capacity. He can neither alter the timings nor change the system of rotation so as to prejudice the parties arbitrarily or capriciously: Such an order passed by the Regional Transport Authority is a quasi-judicial order and not an administrative order and as such is subject to the certiorari jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226, Constitution of India. AIR 1952 Mad 276, Foll. (1955) Andhra W R 914 : 1955 Andh L T (Cri) 746 : AIR 1957 Andh Pra 301 (303) (Prs 5, 6).

■ —Art 226— Authority whether quasi-judicial or administrative—Test to determine.

In order to determine whether a particular statutory authority is a quasi-judicial body or a mere administrative body, tests to be applied are : -

(i) whether there is lis inter partes; (ii) whether there is a claim and an opposition; (iii) whether the decision is to be founded on the taking of evidence or on affidavits; (iv) whether the decision is actuated in whole or in part by questions of policy or expediency, and if so, whether in arriving at the decision, the statutory body has to consider proposals and objections and evidence; and (v) whether in arriving at its decision the statutory body has only to consider policy and expediency.

Where before the appellate authority the dispute between the parties was as to who had title in respect of the land requisitioned and whether by virtue thereof the objector had a right to resist there was a lis and the matter had to be approached judicially for the purpose of a decision. AIR 1952 Assam 115 and AIR 1953 Assam 177 and AIR 1954 Assam 143, Disting. Prabhat Chandra Deka v. K. C. Barua, ILR (1959) 11 Assam 342 : AIR 1960 Assam 1 (5, 9, 10, 11) (Pt B) (Prs 13, 14, 35, 38, 40) (FB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari and Prohibition — Writs of —Duty to act judically—Assam Land (Requisition and Acquisition) Act (25 of 1948 as amended in 1949), S. 3 (1) and (3).

Before a writ of certiorari or prohibition could issue, it is necessary that there should be a tribunal or an officer having authority to determine questions affecting rights of subjects and having a duty to act judicially. Both the Provincial Government and the Sub-Divisional Officer who is authorised to act under S. 3 (1) of the Assam Land (Requisition and Acquisition) Act have the legal authority to form the opinion before acting under S. 3 (1) that the requisition of the land was necessary for any of the purposes defined in S. 3 (1). But the language used in S. 3 (1) indicates that a judicial approach is not contemplated. A judicial or quasi-judicial authority has to give its decision on the question of rights involved objectively. Its conclusions have to be arrived at by fixed and recognised standard. Even the discretion with which a judicial authority may be invested is to be exercised according to recognised principles. No such approach is expected from administrative authorities. This is one of the distinguishing features. The contemplated approach affords a basis for finding out whether the authority determining the questions affecting the rights of subjects is an administrative authority or judicial or quasi-judicial in character. Both the existence of a recognised purpose and also the need for requisitioning are matters to be decided by the authorities acting under S. 3 (1). For determining these matters no objective standards or tests are laid down. The determination is left to the subjective discretion of the authorities concerned. The mere existence of a right of appeal against an order is not enough to indicate that the officer whose order is subject to appeal is under an obligation to act judicially. The Provincial Government and any other officer of the Provincial Government who may be authorised to act under S. 3 (1) have an administrative function to perform. There is no difference in the nature of their function or duties. Even as an appellate authority the Provincial Government is under no obligation to act judicially. It is authorised to come to its decision by the exercise of its subjective discretion. Orders of the inferior and of the appellate authority both therefore would be administrative in character and no writ of prohibition or certiorari can issue. Case Law discussed. ILR (1952) 4 Assam 426 : AIR 1952 Assam 115 (117, 118) (Prs 8, 9, 13, 14) (DB).

——Arts. 226, 227—Quasi-judicial order — Order of State Government removing President of Municipality from office is quasi-judicial. AIR 1962 S C 1110, Applied. 67 Bom L R 11 : 1965 Mah L J 477 : ILR (1965) Bom 280 : AIR 1965 Bom 187 (189) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Administrative and quasi-judicial order—Difference.

The difference between an administrative and a quasi-judicial order does not lie merely in this that in the case of a quasi-judicial order a writ of certiorari can be issued. The more fundamental difference between the two orders is that in the case of a quasi-judicial order the Court must require and demand from the authority exercising his functions that he will conform to the judicial process. ILR (1959) Bom 923 : 61 Bom L R 1 : AIR 1959 Bom 372 (375) (Pt A) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Administrative and quasi-judicial orders—Tests.

The decision would be quasi judicial if in reaching that decision the authority is required first to ascertain certain facts by means of evidence and is then free to take such action as it may think fit on the facts so ascertained. In such a case the authority must consider the representations and objections of the parties affected and give them an opportunity to adduce and examine the evidence. On the other hand, the decision would be purely administrative if in taking that decision the authority is free to base its opinion on whatever material it thinks fit. One must, therefore look to the particular provisions of the statute in order to determine the question whether the authority acting under those provisions acts in an administrative or a quasi judicial capacity. AIR 1950 S C 222, Rel. on. 1960 M P L J 100 : 1960 Jab L J 135 : 1960 M P C 117 : 1960 Cri L J 613 : AIR 1960 Madh Pra 157 (159) (Pt A) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Order under Madras Hereditary Village Offices Act — High Court has jurisdiction to issue writ of certiorari in respect of such order. AIR 1952 S C 64, Foll. 1953-2 M L J 644 : 66 Mad L W 700 : AIR 1953 Mad 972 (973, 974) (Pt D) (Prs 4, 7).

——Art. 226 — Judicial or quasi-judicial orders — Orders of settlement or Assistant Settlement Officer under Chapter X, Bihar Tenancy Act — (Tenancy Laws—Bihar Tenancy Act (8 of 1885), Chap. X).

Chapter X of the Bihar Tenancy Act would clearly indicate that the Settlement Officer and the Assistant Settlement Officer have been vested with powers and duties of a judicial, or at any rate of a quasi-judicial character, and therefore both the Settlement Officer and the Assistant Settlement Officer are tribunals whose orders are amenable to be challenged and quashed by a writ in the nature of certiorari or a writ in the nature of prohibition. 1957 B L J R 292 : 1957 Pat L R 147 : AIR 1958 Pat 4 (7) (Pt B) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Art. 226—Treasure Trove Act (6 of 1878), Ss. 7, 18—Enquiry by Collector—Nature of proceedings—Quasi-judicial — Procedure. A I R 1956 Punj 235, Reversed. See Treasure Trove Act (1878), S. 7. AIR 1960 Punj 82.

——Art. 226—Quasi-judicial orders—(Mineral Concession Rules (1949), Rr. 27, 28, 57 and 59)—(Mines and Minerals (Regulation and Development) Act, 1948).

There is no question of violating the principles of natural justice where an authority acts in a purely ministerial or administrative capacity. In passing an executive order which may or not react to the detriment of a subject the authority is not bound to give the subject an opportunity of being heard.

In the matter of granting or refusing a mining lease under the Mineral Concession Rules, 1949, neither the State Government nor the Central Government were required by the Mines and Minerals (Regulation and Development) Act, 1948, or by the Mineral Concession Rules, 1949, framed thereunder, to act in a judicial or quasi-judicial manner. The orders passed by them were no more than ministerial or administrative acts. The fact that the order of the State Government was made subject to review by the Central Government under Rr. 57 and 59 does not mean that these authorities were acting in a quasi-judicial manner. The authorities were not bound to hear the applicants. Except in so far as the priority between rival applicants may be determined with regard to time under R. 32, no guiding principles are laid down for determining the merits of the various applicants. AIR 1958 S C 398 and AIR 1950 S C 222 and AIR 1954 All 144 and AIR 1954 S C 440, Disting., 54 Cal W N 883 (P C), Rel. on; ILR (1957) Punj 39, Affirmed. 61 Punj L R 489 : ILR (1959) Punj 1332 : AIR 1959 Punj 510 (514, 515) (Pt B) (Prs 15, 16) (DB).

[Reversed in AIR 1960 S C 606].

——Art. 226—Quasi-judicial proceedings—Power of review.

By passing the Marwar Patta Act, the Government put fetters on its own power to deal with its property in the area comprised in the former State of Marwar and provided certain procedure for grant of Pattas of State lands. This Act confers rights on persons interested in the land for which a person makes an application to object to the grant of no objection certificate and the matter is decided according to the public interest and to have that objection decided in the manner provided by the Statute. The proceedings must be of a quasi-judicial nature and there can be no review of final orders passed in such proceedings unless there is a specific provision to that effect in the law. 1957 Raj L W 636 : ILR (1958) S Raj 72 : AIR 1958 Raj 56 (58) (Pt B) (Pr 8) (DB).

168 (a). Duty to act judicially.

■ ——Art. 226—Madras Hindu Religious and Charitable Endowments Act (19 of 1951), S. 64 (4)—Order passed under S. 64 (4) — Order is quasi-judicial in nature—Failure to hear the trustees—Order is invalid. Sri-la Sri Subramania v. State of Madras, 1965 S C D 918 : (1965) 1 S C J 711 : (1965) 2 Andh W R (S C) 167 : (1965) 2 Mad L J (SC) 167 : AIR 1965 SC 1578 (1581, 1582) (Pt A) (Prs 14, 16).

■ ——Art. 226 — Quasi-judicial order — Mines and Minerals (Regulations and Development) Act (1948), S. 6—Rules under, Mineral Concession Rules (1949) (as they stood prior to 1954), R. 54 — Review application—Duty to give opportunity to be heard. AIR 1959 Punj 510, Reversed. Shivji Nuthubhai v. Union of India, 1960 M P L J 516 : 1960 Nag L J 212 : 62 Pun L R 641 : ILR (1960) 2 Punj 43 : 1960 S C J 579 : (1960) 2 S C R 775 : AIR 1960 S C 606 (609) (Pr 9).

——Art. 226 — "Judicial act" includes exercise of quasi judicial functions by administrative bodies or other authority obliged to exercise such functions and is used in constrast with what are purely ministerial acts. 1962 All L J 116.

——Art. 226 — Quasi-judicial tribunal — Commissioner holding enquiry against subordinate Government servant on charge of illegal gratification.

A decision of a judicial or quasi-judicial tribunal will be quashed if it contains a manifest error apparent on the face of the record. The enquiry held by the Commissioner against the subordinate Government servant regarding the charge of having accepted illegal gratification is quasi judicial and he is under a duty to act judicially. His decision is amenable to a writ of certiorari if a proper case is made out against it. AIR 1960 All 323 (331, 332) (Pt D) (Pr 40).

——Art. 226—Quasi-judicial decision and administrative act—Distinction—Test—Order under S. 7 (2), U. P. (Temporary) Control of Rent and Eviction Act (3 of 1947)—Issue of writ of certiorari.

The essential test of a quasi-judicial decision which distinguishes it from an administrative act is that the law empowering the quasi-judicial authority to make a decision requires a judicial approach, either expressly or by necessary implication. AIR 1950 S C 222, Foll.

Since the proceedings under S. 7 (2) of the U. P. Act (1947) are administrative and not quasi-judicial no writ of certiorari can issue. AIR 1959 All 440 (445, 446) (Pt C) (Prs 16, 17).

——Art. 226 — Jurisdiction of High Court — Judicial or quasi-judicial or administrative powers—Test to decide.

The question whether a power is judicial or quasi-judicial or it is merely administrative has to be decided upon the language of the Statute, upon the nature of the power and the consequences of its exercise upon the rights of others and the exigencies of the situation. The main thing to be considered is whether the authority concerned has to decide a dispute between two parties or it has merely to take note of the dispute to inform its mind before it exercises the power conferred upon it in its discretion. In the former case it acts judicially or quasi judicially but in the latter case it acts administratively. AIR 1950 S C 222, Rel. on. AIR 1956 All 603 (606) (Pt A) (Pr 12) (DB).

——Art. 226—Acting judicially—Meaning of.

A writ can be issued not only against an inferior Court of Justice but also against statutory bodies or tribunals. By the phrase "acting judicially" what is meant is not merely strictly judicial acting but also quasi-judicial acting or, in other words, an acting analogous to judicial acting. The term 'judicial' does not necessarily mean acts of a judge or legal tribunal sitting for the determination of matters of law, but for the purpose of this question a judicial act seems to be an act done by competent authority, upon consideration of facts and circumstances and imposing liability or affecting the rights of others. There is, however, an important limitation to the principles above enunciated and the legislature may by express language or by necessary implication vest an absolute discretion in tribunal or a body which may not be bound to act judicially or quasi-judicially even though it may affect the rights and property of others. A quasi judicial act requires that a decision is to be given not arbitrarily or in the mere discretion of an authority but according to the facts and circumstances of the case as determined upon an enquiry held by the authority after giving an opportunity to the party to be affected of being heard and whenever necessary leading evidence in support of his contentions. The essential difference between an administrative or executive act on the one hand and a judicial and quasi judicial act on the other is that while in the former case, the authority vested with the power to give a decision affecting the rights of others, may be bound to enter upon an enquiry he is not bound to give a decision as a result of the enquiry, but may act in his discretion in utter disregard of the result of the enquiry, in the latter case such authority is bound by law to act on the facts and circumstances as determined upon the enquiry, in which a person to be affected is given full opportunity to place his case before the authority even though the decision of such authority, whether right or wrong may be final and may not be liable to be challenged in a Court of law. In order to determine whether a body is required to act quasi-judicially, the whole statute has to be considered and the decision has to be based upon a consideration of all the relevant provisions. When the right to be affected is a natural or common law right of a person, there is a presumption that an authority vested with the power to affect such right must act quasi-judicially. But this presumption may be rebutted by an examination of the provisions of the statute. When the right to be affected is a creation of the statute itself no such presumption arises at all. Case law discussed. I L R (1952) 2 All 783 : 1952 R D (HC) 229 : 1952 All L J 342 : A I R 1952 All 63 (67, 68, 69) (Pt B) (Prs 32, 37, 38, 44, 45) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Error apparent on face of record — Quasi-judicial proceedings — Previous finding of criminal Court—Binding effect.

A quasi-judicial tribunal cannot ignore the findings and orders of competent criminal Courts in respect of an offence when the tribunal proceeds to take any action on the basis of the commission of that offence. A I R 1952 Mad 853, Rel. on. (1957) 2 Lab L J 238 : AIR 1956 Andh 203 (205) (Pt A) (Pr 9).

——Art. 226—Powers of High Court—Excise Appellate Authority — If merely Administrative body — Quasi-judicial functions in deciding appeals—Powers of High Court. See Eastern Bengal and Assam Excise Act (1 of 1910), S. 9 (2). AIR 1957 Assam 182 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Rules under E. B. & Assam Act, 1 of 1910— Rules 205, 207, 208, 209 — Scope of — Settlement of liquor shops — Choice is with lower authorities —Duty of appellate authority— Appellate authority can interfere only where the choice made is perverse or not in accordance with rules. See Eastern Bengal and Assam Excise Act (1 of 1910), S. 36. AIR 1957 Assam 182.

——Art. 226—Quasi-judicial order—University Authorities, Calcutta — Jurisdiction —Disciplinary action— Sub-committee appointed by Examination Board to investigate —Committee reporting direct to Syndicate —Syndicate in confirming report acts without jurisdiction. See Calcutta University Regulations, Ch. 25, Reg. (5). AIR 1957 Cal 428.

——Art. 226 — Quasi-judicial orders — Essentials — —Order of supersession of Municipality—No duty to act judicially—Municipalities—Bengal Municipal Act (15 of 1932), Ss. 553, 552. A I R 1955 N U C (Cal) 5591.

——Art. 226 —Quasi-judicial proceeding—[Hyderabad Public Servants Tribunal of Enquiry Act (23 of 1950).]

Where the decision affects the right of a party and where the Statute prescribes that the authority should hear the objections of a party, institute an enquiry, make an investigation and come to a conclusion after taking into consideration all the facts and circumstances of the case, it would be regarded as a quasi-judicial proceeding and as such amenable to the certiorari jurisdiction of the High Court.

Hence, a proceeding before a Tribunal constituted under the Hyderabad Public Servants' Tribunal of Enquiry Act is a quasi-judicial proceeding. The mere fact that the order of the Tribunal becomes enforceable only after the Government approves of the same would not make the order the less a quasi-judicial order to be corrected if need be by a writ of certiorari. A I R 1950 S C 188, Rel. on; A I R 1952 M B 105, Ref. ILR (1953) Hyd 648 : A I R 1954 Hyd 28 (30) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Scope — Statutory authority when is said to act quasi-judicially.

Where a statutory authority has power to do any act which will prejudicially affect the subject, then even in the absence of two opposing parties apart from the authority, the determination by him will be quasi-judicial if the authority is required by the statute to act judicially. A I R 1950 S C 222 Foll. Madh B L R 1956 Civ 803 : A I R 1957 Madh B 4 (5) (Pt 6) (Pr 19) (DB).

——Art. 226—Question whether authority is required to act judicially or quasi-judicially must in the first instance be determined from express provisions of the Act under which it functions— If the provisions are silent then question has to be determined on consideretion of provisions of the Act and the cumulative effect of the nature of rights affected, manner of disposal and the objective criterion to be adopted. See Rice Milling Industry (Regulation) Act (21 of 1958), S. 5. AIR 1965 M P 247 (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 227—Administrative order—Decision of Excise Commissioner regarding confirmation or refusal to confirm sale of liquor shop is an administrative decision—Auction-purchaser is not entitled to hearing before Commissioner refuses to confirm the auction sale.

It is well settled that the rule of natural justice that a person whose rights are sought to be affected, by any action is entitled to a notice and a hearing is attracted only, where the authority making the order acts judicially or quasi-judicially. Again this rule about hearing does not apply where the power to make the order is exercised subjectively : A I R 1961 S C 705 ; A I R 1958 S C 578 ; A I R 1962 S C 1110, Rel. on.

The question whether the authority concerned is required to act judicially or quasi-judicially must in the first instance be determined from the express provisions of the Act under which it functions. If the provisions of the Act are silent, then the question whether the authority is required to act judicially must be determined on a consideration of the provisions of the Act and the cumulative effect of the nature of the rights affected, manner of disposal provided and the objective criterion to be adopted. The final determination of the authority cannot be regarded as a quasi judicial act unless the authority is required by the statute to act judicially or quasi-judicially. If the authority is not required to decide the matter before it objectively on the basis of the material before it but subjectively, then it cannot be held to be a quasi-judicial authority. A I R 1961 S C 705 ; AIR 1962 S C 1217 ; AIR 1962 S C 1110 ; 1950 S C R 621 ; A I R 1960 Madh Pra 157, Rel. on. A I R 1963 S C 786 and AIR 1962 S C 646, Disting.

In considering the question of the confirmation of the auction bid the Excise Commissioner can base his decision on whatever material he thinks fit and howsoever obtained in the course of his executive functions. The question has to be determined from the point of view of policy and expediency : and on considerations such as whether the person making the bid will be able to fulfil the contract and whether there was likelihood of a higher price still being obtained at a re-auction.

The order of the Excise Commissioner refusing to confirm sale may be appealable to the Board of Revenue. But from that mere fact it does not follow that in making the order refusing to confirm the sale the Excise Commisssioner discharged a quasi judicial function. AIR 1960 Madh Pra 157 ; 1943 (2) All E R 791; 1944 (1) All E R 179, Rel. on. 1964 Jab L J 242 : 1964 M P L J 237.

—Art. 226 — Judicial or quasi-judicial tribunal — Duty of.

It is not open to a Court or anybody, or officer, or authority, who is entrusted with quasi-judicial functions, to base his decision on mere conjecture and speculation. He is not entitled to make an order without reference to any evidence or any material at all. (1957-58) 12 F J R 59 : AIR 1957 Pat 647 (649) (Pt C) (Pr 15) (DB).

■ ——Art. 226 — Judicial or quasi-judicial Tribunal —Review—Power of—Extent of — Judicial or quasi-judicial tribunal — Whether has inherent power to re-call or review its own order on ground that it is erroneous on merits—Order under S. 42, East Punjab Holdings (Consolidation and Prevention of Fragmentation) Act, 1948—Additional Director, held not competent to recall or review his order on merits. AIR 1959 Punj 457, Overruled.

Held, on facts, that the Additional Director was not competent to recall or review his orders on the merits and therefore the order, dated 18-3-1961 passed by the Additional Director has to be quashed.

The broad and unqualified proposition that Courts are empowered to recall or review their earlier erroneous and unjust orders whenever it is discovered that the error was due to their own mistaken view on the merits of the controversy cannot be accepted as correct. So also judicial and quasi-judicial tribunals do not possess, in this respect, any wider or more extensive inherent power than the Courts. Observations in the Full Bench decision in AIR 1959 Punj 457 in this respect are too broadly worded and do not represent the correct exposition of law. The contention that power to recall an erroneous order is distinct and different from power of review and is, therefore, inherent in every quasi-judicial tribunal, is supported neither by statute nor by any recognised principle or precedent, for, power to recall an order is only another name for the power to review it, and therefore, cannot be claimed as a separate and distinct jurisdiction.

Section 151, C. P. Code, undoubtedly reserves to the Court the inherent power to make such orders as may be necessary for the ends of justice or to prevent abuse of the process of the Court but this power, though undefined, and rightly so, cannot be utilised for permitting a judicial or a quasi-judicial tribunal to vary and alter any order passed by it on the ground that it is later considered to be erroneous on the merits. A I R 1963 S C 692, Rel. on. The case of void orders, or orders which are without jurisdiction certainly stands on a different footing. An order which is a nullity or which is invalid does not require to be set aside and may be properly ignored, for, it is not only bad but is incurably bad. It is automatically null and void without more ado, though it is sometimes convenient to have it declared to be so. Again, power to correct apparent clerical or similar mistakes may also be presumed, but only if they do not affect the substance of the decision; otherwise there can be no power of review on the merits except to the extent that the statute confers it. A I R 1959 Punj 457, Overruled. Deep Chand v. Addl. Director, Consolidation of Holdings, Punjab, 1964 Cur L J 128 : 66 Punj L R 318 : I L R (1964) 1 Punj 665 : A I R 1964 Punj 249 (257, 258, 259) (Prs 18, 22, 25, 26) (F B).

——Art. 226—Judicial or executive act — Executive function required to be exercised in quasi judicial manner—Effect.

An executive function does not cease to be executive merely because it is to be exercised impartially and in accordance with principles of natural justice. It is not possible to hold that when an executive authority performs some judicial or quasi-judicial function, it ceases to be an executive authority while exercising that power. 59 Punj L R 199 : AIR 1958 Punj 302 (303, 304) (Pt D) (Prs 4, 5).

——Art. 226—Judicial or quasi-judicial orders.

Whether a particular function exercised by an administrative tribunal is a judicial function or not depends on the nature of decision and on the provisions of law according to which that decision is to be made. When a question arises, whether an authority created by an act is a quasi-judicial tribunal, then one has to see if the tribunal has a duty to decide disputes in a judicial manner and declare the rights of parties in a definitive judgment.

To decide in a judicial manner involves that the parties are entitled as a matter of right to be heard in support of their claim and to adduce evidence in support of it and that the authority has to decide the matter on a consideration of the evidence produced before it. If the decision is to be made by the authority on a purely subjective view of the matter and not objectively then it is the exercise of administrative and executive functions. A I R 1950 S C 188 and A I R 1956 S C 153, Rel. on. I L R (1957) Punj 1728 : AIR 1958 Punj 35 (36, 37) (Pt A) (Pr 4).

——Art. 226—Natural justice—Quasi-judicial orders —Duty to act judicially.

In the exercise of quasi-judicial function the doctrine of natural justice must be observed and complied with by the tribunal, if no procedure is laid down in the statute. The doctrine of natural justice in substance only means that the interested parties should have a fair and reasonable chance of putting their case before the authority or in other words they should have a fair and reasonable hearing. This doctrine is not concerned with the form of the proceedings taken but with the substance of the matter. I L R (1957) Punj 1728 : AIR 1958 Punj 35 (36, 37) (Pt B) (Pr 4).

——Art. 226 — Quasi-judicial orders — Order under Displaced persons (Verification of Claims) Act — (Displaced Persons (Claims) Act (1950), Ss. 5, 6) — (Displaced Persons (Supplementary Claims) Act (1954) — Displaced Persons (Debts Adjustment) Act (1951), Ss. 2 (3) and 32) — (Displaced Persons (Compensation and Rehabilitation) Act (1954), S. 7).

The scope and object of the Displaced Persons (Claims) Act, 1950, as set out in the preamble is to provide for the registration and verification of claims of displaced persons in respect of immovable property in Pakistan. The Officers acting under this Act are under an obligation and duty to observe the provisions of the Civil Procedure Code. They have no administrative or executive functions to perform. These Officers discharge quasi-judicial functions.

It is clear from S. 7 of the now enacted Displaced Persons (Compensation and Rehabilitation) Act of 1954 that the displaced persons are to receive compensation on the basis of verified claims registered under the Displaced Persons (Verification of Claims) Act, 1950 and 1954. The proceedings and decisions under these Acts are quasi judicial and therefore these proceedings and decisions are subject to the controlling jurisdiction of High Courts under Art. 226 of the Constitution by issue of writs in the nature of certiorari and mandamus. A I R 1950 S C 188 Rel. on. ILR (1957) Punj 348 : 59 Punj L R 27 : AIR 1957 Punj 186 (188, 189) (Pt A) (Prs 5, 6, 7).

——Art. 226 — Quasi-judicial order — Order of Advocate-General under S. 92, C. P. Code—(C. P. Code (1908), Ss. 9 and 92).

The real test which distinguishes a quasi-judicial act from an administrative act, is the duty to act judicially. While the presence of two parties besides the deciding authority will prima facie and in the absence of any other factor impose upon the authority the duty to act judicially, the absence of two such parties is not decisive in taking the act of the authority out of the category of quasi judicial act if the authority is nevertheless required by the statute to act judicially.

The decision of the Advocate General under S. 92, Civil P. C., whether the consent asked for should be given or not, is a decision affecting the rights of the persons. When the consent is sought for, it is the duty of the Advocate General to come to a definite decision as to whether such consent should be given or not. Even though the section does not specify the manner and the extent of the investigation, it is obvious that the section contemplates the necessary investigation and inquiries being made by the Advocate-General before he finally decides whether the sanction or consent applied for should be given or not. It is equally obvious that he has to make a judicial approach to the question in controversy and then to arrive at a decision after due consideration of the facts and the evidence made available to him. There cannot be any doubt that the decision which the Advocate-General arrives at under S. 92 of the Code of Civil Procedure is a quasi-judicial decision.

If it is established that in passing the order, the Advocate-General acted in excess of his jurisdiction or legal authority or that he failed to exercise the jurisdiction lawfully vested in him, the order is liable to be interfered with by the issue of a writ of certiorari. Case-law discussed. ILR (1954) Trav-Co 369 : A I R 1954 Trav.Co 331 (336, 337, 338) (Pt B) (Prs 10 to 13) (DB).

[Overruled in AIR 1962 Ker 90 (FB)].

168 (b). Duty to observe rules of natural justice.

See also Note 78.

——Art. 226—Procedure—Provided under S. 4, U. P. Government Land (Eviction and Rent Recovery) Act, 1953, is quasi-judicial—Both the parties are to be heard. See Tenancy Laws—U. P. Government Land (Eviction and Rent Recovery) Act (29 of 1953), S. 4. (1960) All L J 52.

——Art. 226—Judicial and quasi-judicial tribunals.

The Custodian in issuing a notification under S. 7 (3) of the Administration of Evacuee Property Ordinance (1949) and requisition under S. 10 (2) (1) exercises quasi judicial functions. If the orders are in excess of jurisdiction or are passed in violation of the fundamental principles of justice they can be corrected by the issue of a writ of certiorari by the High Court. I L R (1952) Bom 378 : 53 Bom L R 621 : AIR 1951 Bom 440 (445) (Pt B) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Bengal Finance (Sales Tax) Act (6 of 1941), S. 11 (1)—Best judgment assessment—Decision is quasi-judicial — Authority must observe rules of natural justice and base his decision after considering evidence put in by assessee. AIR 1965 Cal 498 (501, 502) (Pt B) (Prs 7, 11, 14, 15).

——Art. 226—Central Excise Rules, R. 151—Proceedings for contravention of, are of quasi-judicial nature involving obligation to follow rules of natural justice. See Central Excise Rules, R. 151. A I R 1962 Madh-Pra 112 (DB).

168 (c). Essentials.

——Art. 226—Writ of certiorari—When may issue.

When the executive authority has to form an opinion about an objective matter as a preliminary step to the exercise of a certain power conferred on it the determination of the objective fact and the exercise of the power based thereon are alike matters of an administrative character and are not amenable to the writ of certiorari. When the law under which the authority is making a decision itself requires a judicial approach decision will be quasi judicial. Prescribed forms of procedure are not necessary to make an enquiry judicial, provided in coming to the decision the well recognised principles of approach are required to be followed. Province of Bombay v. Khushaldas. (1950) 2 Mad L J 703 : 1950 S C J 451 : 80 Cal L J 330 : 1950 Mad W N 802 : 1950 S C R 621 : 53 Bom L R 1 : A I R 1950 S C 222 (225, 226) (Pt A) (Pr 7).

——Art. 226—Administrative and quasi judicial order—Tests. See Houses and Rents — U. P. (Temporary) Control of Rent and Eviction Act (3 of 1947), S. 7. 1965 All W R (H C) 736.

——Art. 226 — Judicial decision — Tests to find whether authority or tribunal functions judicially.

In order to determine whether a particular body is acting in a judicial capacity when performing a particular function, out of the various tests so far evolved two broad categories have to be taken into consideration, namely, (i) the character of the judgment and (ii) the procedural attributes in making the decision. It is necessary to find out whether the performance of the function terminates in the order that has conclusive effect. An authority acts in a judicial capacity when after investigation and deliberation it performs an act or makes a decision that is binding and conclusive and imposes obligations upon and affects the rights of individuals :

It has, in this respect, to be remembered that the answer to the question whether a particular body is acting in a judicial capacity when performing a particular function does not necessarily depend upon the degree in which that body's general characteristics resemble those of an ordinary Court although the degree of resemblance may be a factor influencing a decision that the function in question is judicial. (1964) 2 Andh L T 94 : AIR 1965 Andh-Pra 69 (72, 73) (Pt C) (Prs 10, 12, 15).

——Art. 226—Quasi-judicial orders — How to determine whether an order is quasi-judicial order.

In order to constitute an order as a quasi-judicial order, the determination must affect the rights and liabilities of subjects, which is arrived at after consideration of facts and circumstances by a competent authority although such authority may not be a Court in the regular sense of the term. Those elements, however, do not conclusively point to a quasi-judicial decision as distinguished from an administrative decision. (1878) 2 L R (I. R.) 371, (1926) A. C. 586, Rel. on.

In addition to the features mentioned above the authority should be under the duty to act judicially. This duty to act judicially may exist in situations other than those in which there is express statutory provision for the determination of an issue analogus to a lis inter partes : (1931) 2 K. B. 215, (1951) A. C. 66, (1952) 2 Q. B. 413, Rel. on.

The functions of an authority acting quasi-judicially may, in respect of the subject-matter under enquiry, be divided into separate compartments. It may thus act both in its judicial and administrative capacity in one and the same enquiry. It may be under a duty to act judicially only at a certain stage of its functions. And even in such a case writ will issue to quash an order if the decision is in excess of jurisdiction committed at a non judicial phase of its functions. (1964) 2 Andh L T 94 : AIR 1965 Andh-Pra 69 (73, 74, 75) (Pt D) (Prs 17, 20, 21).

——Art. 226—Quasi-judicial order.

A lis is not always necessary to hold that an order is a quasi-judicial one. (1931) 2 K B 215 (243) & AIR 1950 S C 222, Rel. on. A I R 1957 Andh-Pra 447 (450) (Pt D) (Pr 11).

——Art. 226—Quasi-judicial orders—Test.

In deciding whether certain order is a quasi-judicial order or not, the test that has got to be applied is the test laid down by the Supreme Court in A I R 1950 S C 222. The test is the famous test laid down by Lord Justice Atkin in Rex v. Electricity Commissioners; Ex parte London Electricity Joint Committee Co. (1924) 1 K B 171, and the test is 'Whether any body of persons having legal authority to determine questions affecting the rights of subject, and having the duty to act judicially, act in excess of their legal authority they are subject to the controlling jurisdiction of the King's Bench Division exercised in these writs.' This definition lays down three tests. There must be a body of persons who must have legal authority to determine questions, the second test is that the questions which they have to determine affect the rights of subjects, and the third test is that a duty must be imposed upon this body of persons to act judicially. 61 Bom L R 1 : ILR 1959 Bom 923 : AIR 1959 Bom 372 (375) (Pt B) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226—Quasi-judicial orders.

The Court must look at the statute which sets up a tribunal or which provides for certain decisions by officers, to see whether that statute requires the tribunal or the officer to act judicially.

It is not necessary that there should be a formal lis before it could be said that the decision of the authority is a quasi-judicial decision. It is sufficient if there are proposals and opposition and evidence has to be taken by the authority. (1952) 2 Q B 413 (428), Rel. on. 61 Bom L R 1 : ILR (1959) Bom 923 : AIR 1959 Bom 372 (375, 376) (Pt C) (Prs 4, 5, 6) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Quasi judicial acts — Essential requisities—Judicial decision and administrative acts—Distinction.

There are three requisities each of which must be fulfilled in order that the act of a statutory body may be a quasi-judicial act. They are that the statutory body (1) must have legal authority (2) to determine questions affecting the rights of subjects and (3) must have the duty to act judicially. The first two characteristics are not exclusive to quasi-judicial tribunals. But the third test, namely, that the statutory body must have the duty to act judicially is the really decisive test : (1928) 1 K B 411 and AIR 1950 S C 222, Rel. on Even in performing an administrative act, the authority will have to apply its mind to the materials before it. But the distinction seems to lie in the method and manner of its arriving at the determination. A quasi judicial act necessarily pre supposes the application of some judicial process. The necessary element of judicial procedure marks off the region of administrative action from that of quasi-judicial determination. A judicial process excludes what is called a purely subjective satisfaction or personal opinion regarding a matter. If, on the other hand, a statute indicates with sufficient clearness that the personal satisfaction of the authority on certain matters about which he has to form opinion founds his iurisdiction to do certain acts or make certain orders, his function should be regarded as an executive function. AIR 1961 J & K 47 (49, 50) (Pt B) (Prs 3, 5, 6) (DB).

168 (d). Subjective opinion of authority.

——Art. 226—Natural justice — Decision of Reserve Bank being subjective cannot be challenged as violative of principles of natural justice. See Banking Companies Act (1949), S. 35-B (1) (b). 1964 Ker L T 824 : AIR 1966 Ker 6.

168 (e). Enquiry before decision.

——Art. 226 — Tests to decide whether particular order is judicial or quasi judicial as distinguished from administrative order indicated. 1955 Andh W R 914 : 1955 Andh L T 746 : AIR 1957 Andh-Pra 301 (302, 303) (Pr 3, 8).

——Art. 226—Certiorari — Writ of—Application for registration as citizen—Collector must satisfy himself on matters enumerated in R. 9 of Citizenship Rules, by making enquiry though no personal hearing is reguired—Where there was nothing to show that such an enquiry was held the writ in the nature of certiorari could be issued. See Citizenship Act (1955), S. 5 (1) (a). AIR 1961 Cal 299.

[Overruled in AIR 1965 Cal 160].

● ——Arts. 226, 166 (1)—Appointment of Commission to enquire into the matter of succession to a noble man—Firman of Nizam in 1948—Report of Commission—Chief Minister of State accepting majority report—Nature of the order — Order is quasi-judicial—Challenge under Art. 226 — Prerogative right of Nizam to sanction succession—If survives—Power of the Government to confirm succession—Validity — (Atiyat Enquiries Act and Hyderabad (Abolition of Jagirs) Regulation — Effect). See Ibid, Art. 166 (1). AIR 1952 Hyd 163 (FB).

——Art. 226 — M. B. Panchayat Act (68 of 1949), S. 20 — Action of Government under S. 20 is quasi-judicial.

It is clear from the language of S. 20 that before the order of dismissal is passed against Panchayat, it is to be given an opportunity to make representation. If the Panchayat chooses to adduce some evidence to disprove the charges levelled against them there is nothing in the section to stop them from doing so. An opportunity to show cause, therefore, may also involve making some kind of enquiry, hearing and weighing evidence and considering all the facts and circumstances bearing on the merits of the controversy, before the decision affecting the rights of the Panchayat is given.

In these circumstances it is right to infer that the Government is to act quasi-judicially under S. 20 of the Panchayat Vidhan. AIR 1950 S C 222 and AIR 1954 Madh B 181, Rel. on. M B L J 1955 H C R 569 : AIR 1955 M B 173 (174) (Pt B) (Pr 3) (DB).

168 (f). Duty to decide objectively.

——Art. 226 — Order under S. 26, Hyderabad City Police Act—Satisfaction of Commissioner—Finality— Interference by High Court. See Hyderabad City Police Act (9 of 1348-F), S. 26. AIR 1954 Hyd 221 (DB).

——Art. 226—Decision that particular group is backward—Must be based on objective approach—Does not depend on subjective satisfaction of State Government—Court can examine the basis of decision. See Ibid, Art. 15 (4). AIR 1964 Ker 39.

● ——Art. 226—Bihar Private Irrigation Works Act (B. and O. 5 of 1922), Ss. 3, 4 and 5—Action taken by Collector under Ss. 3 to 5—It is quasi-judicial.

Where the Collector proceeds under Ss. 3 to 5 of the Bihar Private Irrrigation Works Act, 1922, he is a quasi-judicial authority and has to decide objectively on the basis of the materials placed before him. Collector of Monghyr v. Keshav Prasad Goenka, (1962) 2 S C A 708 : (1963) 1 S C R 98 : ILR 42 Pat 112 : 1962 B L J R 863 : AIR 1962 S C 1694 (1700) (Pt A) (Pr 9).

168 (g). Duty to act according to law.

● ——Art. 32—Scope—Rules made by Governor for transaction of business—Applicability to quasi-judicial acts.

Per Das, C. J., Bhagwati and Subba Rao, JJ.—The concept of a quasi-judicial act implies that the act is not wholly judicial, it describes only a duty cast on the executive body or authority to conform to norms of judicial procedure in performing some acts in exercise of its executive power. The procedural rules made by the Governor for the convenient transaction of business of the State Government apply also to quasi-judicial acts, provided those rules conform to the principles of judicial procedure. Gullapalli Nageswara Rao v. Andhra Pradesh Road Transport Corpn. (1959) 2 Andh W R (SC) 156 : (1959) 2 Mad L J (SC) 156 : 1959 S C J 967 : 1958 Andh L T 1014 : (1959) 1 S C R (Supp) 319 : AIR 1959 S C 308 (326) (Pt F) (Pr 28).

——Art. 226 — Bengal Village Self-Government Act (5 of 1919) — Rules under, Rr. 6 and 22—Non-compliance with — Proceedings quashed — See Bengal Village Self-Government Act (5 of 1919). AIR 1955 N U C (Cal) 806.

——Arts. 226, 227 — Quasi-judicial order — Mineral Concession Rules (1960), R. 54 — Order of Central Government in revision under R. 54, setting aside order of State Government, refusing renewal of petitioner's mining lease and directing State Government to renew same — Order is quasi judicial and State Government is bound by directions of Central Government—Order not complied with, by State Government —Application lies under Arts. 226 and 227 for direction to State Government commanding it to carry out order of Central Government and to renew lease. AIR 1961 S C 182; AIR 1960 S C 606 and AIR 1964 S C 1643, Foll. 1964 Jab L J 625 : 1965 M P L J 79: AIR 1965 Madh Pra 159 (160) (Pt A) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Issue of—Order of cancellation of lease on ground of lessee's failure to keep correct accounts passed under Cl. (xvi) of R. 25 of Madhya Pradesh Minor Mineral Rules (1961)—Order is quasi-judicial — Order passed in contravention of provisions of Cl. (xvi) can be quashed by writ of certiorari — AIR 1962 Madh Pra 40, Rel. on. 1965 M P L J 51 : 1965 Jab L J 130 : AIR 1965 Madh Pra 153 (157) (Pt C) (Pr 10) (DB).

——Art. 226—Quasi-judicial order—Mines and Minerals (Regulations and Development) Act 1957, S. 13—Rules under—Mineral Concession Rules (1960), R. 54 —Revision application — Application barred by time —Still applicant is entitled to notice of hearing of application and opportunity to represent his case. AIR 1960 S C 606, Foll —Natural justice. 1964 M P L J (Notes) 155 : 1965 Jab L J 667 : 1965 M P L J 655.

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Interference by High Court— Judicial or quasi-judicial tribunal—Decision of—Liability to be quashed by writ Grounds of—Erroneous decision—Necessity to prove mala fides.

A writ of certiorari will issue only if an authority exercising a judicial or a quasi judicial power acts without or in excess of its jurisdiction and not when in the exercise of its jurisdiction it has arrived at a decision which is erroneous or wrong. Irrespective of whether the decision is right or wrong it is not open to the High Court to issue a writ unless the officer or authority concerned has acted mala fide. 1951 K L T 714 : I L R (1951) T C 808 : AIR 1952 T C 1 (4) (Pt B) (Pr 12) (DB).

168 (h). Deciding authority party to dispute

See Note 129.

168 (i). Duty to pass speaking orders.

——Art. 226 — Quasi-judicial act — Order under S. 5 (3), C. P. & Berar Revocation of Land Revenue Exemption Act must give reasons — It is quasi-judicial act. AIR 1959 Madh Pra 339 (FB), Reversed. See C. P. & Berar Revocation of Land Revenue Exemption Act (37 of 1948), S. 5 (3). AIR 1965 S C 1222.

——Art. 226—Motor Vehicles Act (1939), Ss. 47 and 64-A—Order of Government under S. 64-A—Interference by writ.

The considerations which should weigh with transport authorities in the grant or refusal of a stage carriage permit must be germane to the matters mentioned in S. 47, Motor Vehicles Act. The exercise of the power by the Government must be 'bona fide' and unbiased. The orders of the tribunals must 'ex facie' disclose the reasons which operated on them in granting or refusing a permit. The orders must be passed after due notice to the parties affected thereby. If the aforesaid conditions are satisfied and the Government exercises its power under S. 64-A 'bona fide,' the High Court will not substitute its own notions and opinions for the policies or opinions of the Government. ILR (1956) Andh Pra 712 : AIR 1956 Andhra 217 (221) (Pt A) (Pr 19) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Authority exercising power concerning fundamental rights — Duty to give reasons for decision.

Where a power is conferred upon an authority to do an act which concerns the fundamental rights of a subject and an appeal is provided against the decision of such authority, although on the face of the statute the power conferred on the authority may appear to suggest that the authority had uncontrolled and arbitrary power, still the authority is bound to act on reasonable grounds and to give its reasons for coming to such a decision. A I R 1956 Bom 304 (315, 316) (Pt J) (Pr 21).

——Art. 226 — Quasi judicial orders — Discretion, exercise — Alternative reliefs — Granting of lesser relief should be supported by reasons — Non-speaking orders can be interfered with—Orders of Appeal Committee under West Bengal Secondary Education Act (37 of 1950), Ss. 36 (2) (q), 30 and Regulations 3 to 7).

Where the Appeal Committee on a teacher's appeal against the Management's order dismissing him from service, though found grave irregularities in the manner of termination of his services, did not give a clear finding that the dismissal was wrongful, but granted only the lesser alternative relief of compensation without recording any reasons for its refusal to grant the larger relief of re-instatement to which he was normally entitled the order being a non-speaking one could be interfered with.

Regulation 7 prescribes two alternative reliefs which the Appeal Committee may grant in favour of a dismissed teacher, if his appeal succeeds, namely either re-instatement or gratuity by way of compensation. The exercise by the Appeal Committee of the discretion thus impliedly vested by law should not be capricious but guided by principles of justice and in an objective manner. When from the facts found, it is clear that the dismissal is wrongful, the Petitioner becomes entitled to re-instatement, unless, for reasons which must appear he may be given the lesser relief of monetary compensation. The order not containing a clear finding as to the impropriety of dismissal and mentioning no reasons why re-instatement is not ordered, but merely allowing compensation which is also not in accordance with the provisions of Regulation 7 cannot be sustained. (1965) 10 Fac L R 223 (Cal).

——Art. 226—Decision by quasi-judicial tribunal — Reasons for decision when are required to be stated.

Neither principle nor authority requires that a quasi-judicial body giving its decision must give reasons in support of the decision. The only qualification to this rule is where an appeal is provided against the decision of the quasi judicial body. In such a case the necessity of giving reasons in support of the decision is imported because unless reasons are given, it would not be possible for the appellate authority to examine the correctness of the decision. But apart from such case, there is no obligation on a quasi-judicial body to give reasons in support of the decision arrived at by it so long as the decision is reached after observing the principles of natural justice. (1965) 6 Guj L R 554 : ILR (1965) Guj 811: AIR 1966 Guj 175 (177) (Pt B) (Pr 2) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Quasi-judicial orders must be speaking orders.

Authorities vested with quasi-judicial powers would be well advised to assign reasons for their orders in such a form as to justify the orders being called what is described as 'speaking orders.' AIR 1961 Kerala 197 and (1951) 1 K B 711 (718), Rel. on. 1961 Ker L T 134 : 1961 Ker L J 469 : AIR 1961 Ker 301 (302) (Pt A) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Art. 226—Administrative order or quasi-judicial order—Order of removal of non-departmental branch Post-master—Reasons not given—Interference.

The order of an administrative authority inflicting punishment on the employee is not of an administrative nature but a quasi-judicial one which is required to be a "speaking" order, i. e. one giving reasons for it so as to tell the superior authority why the inferior authority made that order, and the absence of reasons in it is fatal to its legality.

Where the punishing administrative authority ordered the removal of an employee—a non-departmental branch post-master, but failed to assign reasons in the order, for doing so, as required under the rules, the omission to give reasons amounted to a legal error which vitiated the exercise of the quasi-judicial power of the punishing authority. The employee becomes entitled to invoke the jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226 for claiming direction to the authority for the assignment of reasons ior the order. ILR (1961) 2 Ker 245 : 1960 Ker L J 1358 : 1960 Ker L T 1304 : (1961) 1 Lab L J 256 : A I R 1961 Ker 197 (198, 199) (Prs 4, 5, 7) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 12 (5) — Order under—Must give reasons—High Court under Art. 226 of Constitution can examine reasons given by Government. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947) S. 12 (5). AIR 1964 Orissa 255 (DB).

——Art. 226—Motor Vehicles Act (4 of 1939), S. 62—Order under — Must show on its face reasons for granting permit. See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 62. AIR 1961 Pat 227.

168 (j). Discretionary orders.

——Art. 226 — Quasi-judicial order — Discretionary orders—Extraneous matters should not be considered —Consideration of earlier and later report in granting sanction to cut trees under provisions of Madras Preservation of Private Forests Act (1949), S. 3 (1) (a) is not illegal.

Exercise of discretion in passing quasi-judicial orders must not be based on considerations of matters other than what is required by the statute.

Where the Collector had upon reports, rejected an earlier application of the petitioner for permission to cut some forest trees under the provisions of S. 3 (1) (a) of the Madras Preservation of Private Forests Act 1949, while passing orders on the subsequent application on the same subject upon fresh report, it is but proper that the Collector should weigh the earlier and later reports on the same subject in order to reach a conclusion and if he rejects the fresh application after consideration of both the reports, it cannot be said that the decision was tainted by consideration of something irrelevant. 1961 Ker L T 134 : 1961 Ker L J 469 : AIR 1961 Ker 301 (303) (Pt B) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Arts. 226, 14 — Discretion—Imposition of heavy penalty by customs authorities in exercise of discretionary power - Discrimination cannot be established by citing solitary instance in which lesser penalty was imposed - No interference under Art. 226 unless abuse of power is established — See Ibid, Art. 14. AIR 1965 Punj 305.

168 (k). Illustrative cases of quasi-judicial orders.

See separate Notes in Part B (Notes 126 to 185) relating to various authorities and tribunals.

169. Rent Control Acts, orders under.

See also Note 126.

——Art. 226— Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 68-D (3)—Final scheme published as approved by officer concerned —Writ petitions to High Court — High Court setting aside scheme and sending it back for reconsideration —Order of High Court is analogous to remand —Order passed by the officer on reconsideration is fresh order and does not amount to review of his previous order—See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 68-D (3). AIR 1963 S C 1098.

——Art. 226—Rent Control Legislation—Power vested in Government to exempt particular building or buildings from operation of Act — Madras Buildings (Lease and Rent Control) Act (25 of 1949), S. 13 — Constitutionality — Individual orders of Government passed under S. 13—Whether subject to judicial review under Art. 226—Grounds on which exemption cannot be justified. See Ibid. Art. 14. (1962) 1 S C J 194 : (1962) 1 M L J (S C) 92 : (1962) 1 An W R (S C) 92 : A I R 1961 S C 1731.

——Art. 226—Administrative order— Writ of certiorari — Order of Commissioner condoning delay in filing revision under U. P. (Temp) Control of Rent and Eviction Act is without jurisdiction— It is amenable to writ jurisdiction irrespective of whether it is administrative or quasi judicial. 1965 All L J 211.

——Art. 226 - Order whether judicial or administrative— Test—Power to determine rights of parties — Not sufficient—No duty to act judicially— Order not judicial—Order of State Government under S. 7-F, U. P. (Temporary) Control of Rent and Eviction Act (3 of 1947), is only administrative and not quasi-judicial. (1963) All L J 752 Overruled). See Houses and Rents — U. P. (Temporary) Control of Rent and Eviction Act (3 of 1947), S. 7-F. AIR 1964 All 148 (DB).

——Art. 226—Judicial decision — U. P. (Temporary) Control of Rent and Eviction Act (3 of 1947), S. 7-F — Exercise of power under — State Government is under duty to act judicially.

The state Government is under a duty to act judicially when in the exercise of its powers under S. 7-F of the U. P. Control of Rent and Eviction Act it calls for the record of any case in which the Commissioner has granted or refused permission to sue the tenant for ejectment and reverses or alters the decision of the Commissioner. It follows that the State Government before making its decision under S. 7-F must observe the principles of natural justice and give an opportunity to the parties affected to show cause. 1963 All L J 752.

[Overruled in A I R 1964 All 148].

——Art. 226—Writ of certiorari—U. P. Act 3 of 1947, S. 7 F—State Government acting under — Does not act judicially or quasi-judicially. See Houses and Rents—U. P. (Temporary) Control of Rent and Eviction Act (3 of 1947), S. 7-F. 1962 All L J 672.

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Administrative orders. See Houses and Rents—U. P. (Temporary) Control of Rent and Eviction Act (1947), S. 3. 1962 All L J 533.

——Art. 226—U. P. (Temporary) Control of Rent and Eviction Act (3 of 1947), Ss. 7-A (1), 7-F, and 7 (2) — Powers of District Magistrate to cancel previous allotment order—Cancellation of previous allotment order before accommodation is let out or before tenant actually occupies some — Order of cancellation not judicial or quasi-judicial—Remedy under Art. 226 not open against such cancellation—Scope of S. 7-A (1)—Government allotting under S. 7-F — Proceedings under S. 7-A (1) not tenable— Allotment by Government—When open—Landlord letting by virtue of order under S. 7 (2)—Effect of—Order of Government and that of District Magistrate quashed. See Houses and Rents—U. P. (Temporary) Control of Rent and Eviction Act (3 of 1947), S. 7-A (1). 1962 All L J 426.

——Art. 226—Houses and Rents—U. P. (Temporary) Control of Rent and Eviction Act (3 of 1947), S 3 (1) —Revision against order refusing permission to file suit for eviction of tenant — Order of the Commissioner in revision is of a quasi-judicial nature— Hence it can be quashed if it suffers from apparent error of law. 1961 All W R (H C) 102 : 1961 All L J 32 : I L R (1961) 1 All 300.

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Application under section 3 (1), U. P. (Temporary) Control of Rent and Eviction Act—District Magistrate must weigh respective claims of landlord and tenant before granting or refusing the permission for filing suit for eviction of tenant — Provided he has acted in good faith and is not shown to have misdirected himself as to the purposes of the Act his order cannot be successfully challenged. 1961 All W R (H C) 102 : 1961 All L J 32 : I L R (1961) 1 All 300.

——Art. 226—Quasi-judicial order—Proceedings before Rent Controller—Order of allotment—Cancellation without giving opportunity of hearing—Validity (Houses and Rents — U. P. (Temporary) Control of Rent and Eviction Act (3 of 1947), S. 7).

The Rent Control and Eviction Officer has the power to review or recall an order of allotment He can cancel it if the order was obtained by fraud or misrepresentation. But before cancelling his order on this ground the Rent Control and Eviction Officer must inquire into the matter and formally pronounce the allottee guilty of fraud. The proceedings are quasi-judicial and the allottee must be given an opportunity to meet the charges of fraud or misrepresentation. Further, in the case of a tenant in possession his tenancy rights partake of the character of property rights. A man must not be deprived of his property without being given the opportunity of being heard. AIR 1954 All 144, Rel. on.

Where the order cancelling the allotment of the shop is passed without giving the petitioner a proper opportunity to show cause against the proposed action, it is an illegal order and liable to be quashed on that ground alone. 1959 All W R (H C) 214: A I R 1959 All 580 (582, 583) (Prs 7, 12).

——Art. 226—Since the proceedings under S. 7 (2) of the U. P. (Temporary) Control of Rent and Eviction Act (3 of 1947) are administrative and not quasi-judicial, no writ of certiorari can issue. AIR 1959 All 440 (446) (Pt C) (Fr 17).

——Art. 226—Determination of reasonable annual rent of shop—Duty of Rent Controller—Power whether quasi-judicial — Opportunity of being heard — Duty to give. See Houses and Rents—U. P. (Temporary) Control of Rent and Eviction Act (3 of 1947), S. 2 (2) (f). 1959 All W R (H C) 187.

——Art. 226—Jurisdiction of High Court — Orders under Rent Control Act—Certiorari to quash.

Where the petitioner's application under S. 3, U. P. Control of Rent and Eviction Act, for permission to file a suit against his tenant for eviction was dismissed by the Rent Control Officer on the ground that it was not bona fide, after giving a fair opportunity to both sides to be heard and after the officer had made an inspection of the property in dispute, the decision was within the competence of the Rent Control Officer and could not be challenged in a writ petition. 1959 All L J 733.

——Art. 226—Administrative orders.

Administrative orders such as under S. 7-A of U. P. (Temporary) Control of Rent and Eviction Act can be quashed in exercise of the general powers conferred by Art. 226 of the Constitution to issue directions or orders, and an order passed without jurisdiction which adversely affects a person ought ordinarily to be set aside. A I R 1959 All 16, Foll. 1959 All W R (H C) 192 : 1959 All L J 263.

——Art. 226—Scope of S. 3 (4) of U. P. Act 3 of 1947—Suit filed on permission of Commissioner—Effect on application under S. 7-F — Powers of State Government — State Government was competent to consider the application — Rejection of the application on account of filing of suit held amounted to non-exercise of jurisdiction vested under S. 7-F. See Houses and Rents — U. P. (Temporary) Control of Rent and Eviction Act (3 of 1947), S. 3 (4). 1958 All L J 724.

——Art. 226 — Administrative orders—Order passed by Rent Control and Eviction Officer under S. 3 and S. 7 of the U. P. Act 3 of 1947—Nature of — Order is administrative — District Magistrate has no power to revise order passed by Rent Control and Eviction Officer—Power of Rent Control and Eviction Officer to rescind or modify his own previous order. See Houses and Rents—U. P. (Temporary) Control of Rent and Eviction Act (3 of 1947), S. 3. 1958 All L J 234.

——Art. 226 — Question of inconvenience to tenant—Duty of Rent Control and Eviction Officer to consider—Power of High Court to interfere in exercise of discretion under Art. 226, Constitution of India. See Houses and Rents — U. P. (Temporary) Control of Rent and Eviction Act (3 of 1947), S. 3. 1958 All L J 234.

——Art. 226 — Scope — Order of Rent Controller—Duty to give opportunity of being heard. See Houses and Rents — U. P. (Temporary) Control of Rent and Eviction Act (3 of 1947), S. 7-F. A I R 1957 All 359.

——Art. 226—Houses and Rents—U. P. (Temporary) Control of Rent and Eviction Act (1947), S. 7 (1)—Order under — Nature of revision — Writ petition—Maintainability.

An order under S. 7 (1), U. P. Act 3 of 1947 is an administrative order. The High Court can in the exercise of its powers under Art. 226 of the Constitution interfere with an administrative order if it is passed by an authority which is not competent to do so or is otherwise without jurisdiction. 1957 All L J 912.

——Art. 226 — Order of allotment made without ascertaining whether previous tenant has vacated—Quashing of order. See Houses and Rents — U. P. (Temporary) Control of Rent and Eviction Act (3 of 1947), S. 7. 1957 All L J 119.

——Art. 226 — Allotment order without complying with R. 7 — Government not interfering under S. 7-F—Nature of order—Issue of writ of certiorari against allotment order. See Houses and Rents—U. P. (Temporary) Control of Rent and Eviction Act (3 of 1947), S. 7-F. I L R (1957) 2 All 463.

——Art. 226—Certiorari — Order of District Magistrate and Rent Control and Eviction Officer cancelling order of allotment—(Houses and Rents—U. P. (Temporary) Control of Rent and Eviction Act (3 of 1947), S. 7).

The Rent Control and Eviction Officer passed an order of allotment under S. 7, U. P. (Temporary) Control of Rent and Eviction Act (3 of 1947), but subsequently, in pursuance of an order of the District Magistrate, cancelled that order. The allottee applied for a writ of certiorari.

Held, that an order of allotment is not a judicial or a quasi-judicial order and therefore a writ of certiorari could not issue. But in order to give redress to the petitioner against the illegal orders passed by the District Magistrate and on his command by the Rent Control and Eviction Officer High Court had jurisdiction to issue a writ of any other description as the situation may demand. In the circumstances of the case, High Court directed that a writ of prohibition should issue to the District Magistrate and the Rent Control and Eviction Officer forbidding them to enforce their order cancelling allotment.

A writ of mandamus should also issue to them directing them to give effect to the previous order of allotment. 1955 All L J 252 : A I R 1955 All 501 (505) (Pt E) (Pr 28) (DB).

——Art. 226—Houses and Rents — U. P. (Temporary) Control of Rent and Eviction Act (3 of 1947), S. 7-A —Exercise of jurisdiction in quasi-judicial capacity—Cancellation of order of allotment by Rent Control and Eviction Officer when amenable to writ of certiorari. A I R 1955 N U C (All) 4811.

——Art. 226 — Nature of High Court's power — Incorrect decision by Rent Control Officer having jurisdiction — Decision will not be set aside. A I R 1955 N U C (All) 2031.

——Art. 226—Power of High Court to issue certiorari and prohibition—Order under S. 7-D of U. P. (Temporary) Control of Rent and Eviction Act 3 of 1947 held without jurisdiction — Order is quasi-judicial order — Enquiry cannot be dispensed with — High Court can issue certiorari and prohibition. A I R 1955 N U C (All) 1717.

——Art. 226—Houses and Rents — U. P. (Temporary) Control of Rent and Eviction Act (3 of 1947), S. 7-D —Quasi-judicial order — Order of Rent Control and Eviction Officer under S. 7-D is quasi-judicial. A I R 1955 N U C (All) 1717.

——Art. 226—Quasi-judicial order—Order under S. 3 (3), U. P. Rent Control and Eviction Act is quasi-judicial—Certiorari can issue — (Houses and Rents—U. P. (Temporary) Control of Rent and Eviction Act (3 of 1947), S. 3 (3)). A I R 1955 N U C (All) 1714.

——Art. 226 — Order under S. 7, U. P. (Temporary) Control of Rent and Eviction Act, 1947 — Petition under Art. 226 to quash an order—When lies.

Finding that accommodation should be let to A is not an order under S. 7 of the Act. It is actually an order directing the owner of accommodation to let it out to allottee that is an order under S. 7 — Finding actually amounts to expression of opinion, given reasons that he would in future pass an order under S. 7 in favour of A — Such expression of opinion has no statutory force and if it is set aside by Commissioner in revision, the latter's order also has no statutory force — No petition will lie to quash such order. A I R 1954 All 606 (606, 607) (Prs 4, 5).

——Art. 226 — Scope — (Houses and Rents — U. P. (Temporary) Control of Rent and Eviction Act (3 of 1947), Ss. 3, 7-F).

A writ in the nature of certiorari can be issued to judicial or quasi-judicial bodies. One acts in quasi-judicial capacity when one has to ascertain facts or law with respect to a certain dispute between the parties and in dealing which he is expected to act judicially even though he does not constitute a judicial body.

Sub-section (4) of S. 3 of U. P. Act 3 of 1947 makes the order of the Commissioner in revision final subject to any order passed by the State Government under S. 7-F. But under S. 7-F the State Government is given absolute discretion to pass any order it considers necessary for the ends of justice on perusal of the order. It is not required to give notice to the parties or to afford them opportunities to lay or to argue their case before it. In passing such a discretionary order the State Government does not act in a quasi-judicial capacity. Therefore no writ of certiorari can be issued to the Government in connection with its orders under S. 7-F of the Act. A I R 1954 All 232 (233, 234) (Prs 3, 5, 6) (DB).

[Overruled in A I R 1965 S C 1767.]

——Art. 226—Order of allotment, validity. See Houses and Rents — U. P. Temporary Control of Rent and Eviction Act (3 of 1947), S. 7. AIR 1954 All 6 (DB).

——Art. 226—Houses and Rents — U. P. Temporary Control of Rent and Eviction Act (1947), S. 7—Allotment of accommodation—Jurisdiction of Rent Control Officer—(Civil P. C. (1908), S. 9—Special Tribunal) — (Evidence Act (1872), S. 115). See Houses and Rents—U. P. Temporary Control of Rent and Eviction Act (3 of 1947), S. 7. AIR 1953 All 458.

——Art. 226—Houses and Rents — U. P. Temporary Control of Rent and Eviction Act (1947), S. 17—Rules under, Rr. 6 and 7 — Order without considering the claim of landlord cannot stand. See Houses and Rents—U. P. Temporary Control of Rent and Eviction Act (3 of 1947), S. 17. AIR 1953 All 354.

——Art. 226 — Quasi-judicial Order — Order under Cl. 28, C. P. and Berar Rent Control Order for vacating premises — Interference. See Houses and Rents—Central Provinces and Berar Rent Control Order (1947), Cl. 28. I L R (1958) Bom 563.

——Art. 226—Powers of High Court — Interference with order of appellate or revising tribunal — Order reviewed on reconsidering facts not considered before —High Court will not interfere. See Houses and Rents — C. P. and Berar Letting of Houses and Rent Control Order (1949), Cl. 23 (2-A). 1958 Nag L J (Notes) 41.

——Art. 226 — West Bengal Premises Rent Control (Temporary Provisions) Act (1948), S. 7 — Amount paid by lessee towards costs of repairs of premises for purposes of development — Amount whether is premium or salami — Wrong order made by Rent Controller—Writ of certiorari if can be issued against Rent Controller. See Houses and Rents—West Bengal Premises Rent Control (Temporary Provisions) Act (38 of 1948), S. 7. A I R 1952 Cal 56.

——Art. 226 — West Bengal Premises Rent Control (Temporary Provisions) Act (1948), S. 32 (4)—Powers of Appellate Authority—'Decide the appeal,' meaning of—Order in excess of jurisdiction—Writ of certiorari or prohibition — (Special Tribunal). See Houses and Rents — West Bengal Premises Rent Control (Temporary Provisions) Act (38 of 1948), S. 32 (4). ('51) 87 Cal L Jour 180.

● ——Arts. 226 and 227 — Order of Rent Controller under special enactment.

Per Majority (Qamar Hasan J., Contra): When the Rent Controller enquires into the case before him under the special enactment he is exercising the powers as a persona designata and as such his decision is subject only to the certiorari and not revi-sional jurisdiction of the High Court. Case-law reviewed.

Per Qamar Hasan, J.—The Rent Controller is subject to the extraordinary jurisdiction of the High Court under S. 17 of the Hyderabad High Court Act.

Per Full Bench —After the 26th of January 1950, though not in revision but in the exercise of its powers of superintendence, the High Court can always set right the order passed by a Court of a Tribunal or any authority. The powers under the revisional jurisdiction, though to a certain extent limited in their scope, are wider than the powers under certiorari. Kishorilal v. Raja Rameshwardas, I L R (1952) Hyd 854 : A I R 1953 Hyd 67 (68, 71, 73) (Prs 2, 6, 18) (FB).

——Art. 226—Order for eviction passed under Cl. 9 of Travancore Cochin Building (Lease and Rent Control) Order (1950) — Can be executed under S. 14 — Even if the order is wrong the discretionary jurisdiction conferred by Arts. 226 and 227 cannot be exercised so as to correct an error of such kind by substituting an order which is manifestly just with an order which would be manifestly unjust. See Houses and Rents—Kerala Building (Lease and Rent Control) Act (16 of 1959), S. 14. I L R (1963) 1 Ker 402.

——Art. 226—Appeal against order passed without jurisdiction—Duty of District Judge. See Houses and Rents — M. B. Sthan Niyantran Vidhan (15 of 1950), S. 9. AIR 1954 Madh Bha 191 (DB).

——Art. 226—Interference—Grounds—Landlord and tenant—Finding about sub-letting—Absence of direct evidence—Interference. See Houses and Rents - C. P. and Berar Letting of Houses and Rent Control Order (1949), Cl. 13 (3) (iii). 1958 M P L J (Notes) 126.

——Art. 226—Interference — Grounds—Rent Control Act—Order under — Hardship to tenant — If ground for interference. See Houses and Rents — C. P. and Berar Regulation of Letting of Accommodation Act (11 of 1946). 1958 M P L J (Notes) 35.

——Art. 226—Improper exercise of power of requisition under S. 3(3), Madras Buildings (Lease and Rent Control) Act (25 of 1949) — Writ of certiorari. See Houses and Rents—Madras Building (Lease and Rent Control) Act (25 of 1949), S. 3(3). (1955) 1 Mad L J 454 : 68 Mad L W 224 : A I R 1955 N U C (Mad) 3217.

——Art. 226—Appellate authority reducing rent arbitrarily and in disregard of provisions of law—Manifest injustice — Order can be quashed by writ of certiorari. See Houses and Rents — C. P and Berar Letting of Houses and Rent Control Order (1949), Cl. 4. AIR 1953 Nag 284 (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari — (Civil P. C. (1908), S. 9—Special Tribunal) - (Houses and Rents — C. P. and Berar Letting of Houses and Rent Control Order (1949), Cls. 13 and 21 (3)).

Order in remand, while holding applicant's claim for relief under Item (a) of Cl. 13(3)(vi) of C. P. and Berar Letting of Houses and Rent Control Order was barred by Sub-Cl. (9 of that clause, directing A. D. C. to investigate his claim for relief under Item (c) of Sub-Cl. (3) (vi)—A. D. C. exceeds in jurisdiction in holding that claim under latter clause also was barred for the same reason as for relief under former clause and not investigating the genuineness of that claim as directed by High Court—Hence his order will be quashed on that ground even if it is conceded that powers of High Court to issue writs are restricted by the provision in the Order which makes A. D. C.'s orders final. 1953 Nag L J 279 : I L R (1953) Nag 226 : A I R 1953 Nag 148 (150) (Pt C) (Pr 8) (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—C. P. and Berar Letting of Houses and Rent Control Order (1947), Cl. 4—Retrospective fixation — (Civil P. C. (1908), S. 9 — Special Tribunal). See Houses and Rents — C. P. and Berar Letting of Houses and Rent Control Order (1949), Cl. 4. AIR 1953 Nag 146.

——Art. 226—Certiorari — Houses and Rents — C. P. and Berar Letting of Houses and Rent Control Order (1949), Cl. 5 — Tax enhanced before date of petition cannot be taken into account — Order which does so is unsustainable — (Civil P. C (1908), S. 9 — Special Tribunal). See Houses and Rents — C. P. and Berar Letting of Houses and Rent Control Order (1949), Cl. 5. AIR 1953 Nag 146.

——Art. 226—C. P. and Berar Letting of Houses and Rent Control Order (1949), Cl. 13 (3) (vi)—Landlord's needs — Order by Rent Controller — Certiorari. See Houses and Rents—C. P. and Berar Letting of Houses and Rent Control Order (1949), Cl. 13 (3)(vi). A I R 1953 Nag 144.

——Art. 226—C. P. and Berar Letting of Houses and Rent Control Order (1949), Cls. 13, 23 and 25—Allotment of house to Government servant — Subsequent retirement from service Effect — Termination of tenancy—Law applicable—Notice by Rent Controller to vacate house on retirement — Validity — T. P. Act (1882), S. 106. See Houses and Rents — C. P. and Berar Letting of Houses and Rent Control Order (1949), Cl. 13. AIR 1953 Nag 31.

——Art. 226—C. P. and Berar Letting of Houses and Rent Control Order, Cls. 13 and 21—Writ — Certiorari—Essentials.

The writ of certiorari lies if two conditions are fulfilled, The decision of the authority must be judicial or quasi-judicial and the challenge must be in respect of excess or want of jurisdiction of the deciding authority. AIR 1950 S C 222 (227), Foll.

There can be no doubt that the question whether the landlord is entitled to a permission under Cl. 13, C, P. and Berar Letting of Houses and Rent Control Order is at any rate a quasi-judicial determination. If therefore the order in appeal is without jurisdiction the case is fit for issue of the writ. 1951 Nag L J (Notes) 102 (DB).

——Art. 226— C. P. and Berar Letting of Houses and Rent Control Order (1949), Cl. 13 (3) (vi) (a) — Landlord's application for possession on ground of bona fide requirement —Order refusing application—Order if can be quashed by way of writ of certiorari. See Houses and Rents—C. P. and Berar Letting of Houses and Rent Control Order (1949), Cl. 13 (3) (vi) (a). AIR 1952 Nag 4.

——Art. 226— Certiorari — Allotment of house to Government servant — Subsequent retirement from service — No automatic termination of tenancy — Notice by Rent Controller to vacate house or retirement quashed. See Houses and Rents—C. P and Berar Letting of Houses and Rent Control Order (1949), Cl. 13. 1952 Nag L J 400 (DB).

——Art. 226—C. P. and Berar House Rent Control Order, Cl. 13 (vi)—Certiorari or mandamus.

Landlord applying for eviction—Tenant contesting maintainability—Rent Controller holding application competent—Landlord appealing—A. D C. dismissing appeal as not maintainable— Certiorari and not mandamus is appropriate writ. 1951 Nag L J (Notes) 107 (DB).

●——Art. 226—Order against dead person — Order for possession. See Houses and Rents — C. P. and Berar House Rent Coutrol Order, Cl. 23 (1). 1951 Nag L J (Notes) 103 (FB).

——Art. 226 — Orissa House Rent Control Act (31 of 1958), S. 7 (1) Cl. 4, Proviso — Order passed under, technically illegal—No substantial injury caused thereby to writ-petitioner—Held, discretionary power under Art. 226 should not be exercised to interfere with order. AIR 1952 S C 192, Rel. on. I L R (1965) Cut 574.

—Art. 226 - Applicability — Magistrate directing payment of arrears of rent to landlords within specified time—In case of default, tenant liable to eviction—Amount deposited in Court — Direction complied with — Writ application is maintainable — Houses and Rents — Orissa House Rent Control Act (13 of 1958), S. 7.

Where in a writ petition against an appellate order of the District Judge whereby the tenant was allowed to continue occupation of the premises on payment of arrears of rent within a specified time to the landlords, it was contended that the writ petition was not maintainable because the amount was not paid to the landlords but was deposited in Court with a prayer to the Court that the amount should not be handed over to them :

Held, that depositing the entire amount in Court to the credit of the landlords was full compliance with the order of the Magistrate in terms and the order of eviction did not operate on the performance of the conditions imposed, so that their contention that the writ application was not maintainable as the tenant did not comply with the direction was devoid of force. (1964) 6 O J D 152 : 30 Cut L T 497.

—Art. 226 — Error apparent on face of record — Rent control case for eviction of tenant on ground of landlord's bona fide requirements — No findings as to fair rent - Direction that rent should be paid from certain date at rate higher than that claimed by landlord is error apparent on face of record—Houses and Rents—Orissa House Rent Control Act (13 of 1958), S. 7. (1964) 6 O J D 152 : 30 Cut L T 497.

—Art. 226—Houses and Rents— Orissa House Rent Control Act (11 of 1951), S. 7—Act not in force during period in dispute—Rent Controller fixing fair rent at varying rates—Fixation not under any statutory provision but as persona designata - Discretion of Rent Controller cannot be interfered with under Art. 226 of Constitution. See Houses and Rents — Orissa House Rent Control Act (11 of 1951), S. 7. (1961) 3 Orissa J D 169.

—Art. 226 — Houses and Rents — Bihar Buildings (Lease, Rent and Eviction) Control Act (1947), S. 11 (2) (a) (as amended by Bihar Act 16 of 1955) — Allotment order without satisfying conditions mentioned in S. 11 (2) (a) about notice — Order is ultra vires and can be quashed. See Houses and Rents — Bihar Buildings (Lease, Rent and Eviction) Control Act (3 of 1947) (as amended by Bihar Act 16 of 1955), S. 11 (2) (a). AIR 1961 Pat 254.

—Art. 226 — Houses and Rents — Bihar Buildings (Lease, Rent and Eviction) Control Act (1947), S. 11 —Wrong decision of Rent Controller on misconstruction of S. 11 — Order cannot be interfered with under Arts. 226 and 227. See Houses and Rents — Bihar Buildings (Lease, Rent and Eviction) Control Act (3 of 1947), S. 11. AIR 1955 Pat 142.

—Art. 226 — Houses and Rents — Bihar Buildings (Lease, Rent and Eviction) Control Act (1947), S. 11 (1) (a) — Non-payment of rent — Irregular payment amounts to — No error of law - No interference with decision of Rent Controller under Art. 226, Constitution of India. See Houses and Rents — Bihar Buildings (Lease, Rent and Eviction) Control Act (3 of 1947), S. 11 (1) (a). AIR 1955 Pat 142.

—Art. 226 — Determination of standard rent — Improvements and alteration in premises — Interference under Art. 226 - See Houses and Rents — Jaipur Rent Control Order (1947), S. 6 (2). AIR 1955 NUC (Raj) 4655.

—Art. 226 — Patent error of law — Houses and Rents - Jaipur Rent Control Order (1947), S. 6 (2) and Second Sch., S. 1 (b) (i).

The express meaning of S. 1 (b) (i) of the second schedule of the Jaipur Rent Control Order is that in case the premises were on hire on the 1st day of September, 1939 then the standard rent is to be fixed on the rent payable on the 1st day of September, 1939. Where the Collector in appeal held that as the shop was not given on rent on the first day of September 1939, but was previously let out, second schedule of the Jaipur Rent Control Order did not apply to this case and the standard rent was, therefore, determined under the provisions of S. 6 (2) of the Order, the Collector in deciding the appeal has committed a patent error in interpreting S. 1 (b) (i) of the second schedule of the Order and he has exercised his jurisdiction erroneously under S. 6 (2) of the Order which it was not open for him so to do, if he had not misconstrued the plain meaning of the provisions of the second schedule of the Order. Under these circumstances, it is the duty of the High Court to correct the error committed by an inferior Court and to direct it to exercise its jurisdiction according to law. The decision of the Collector acting as an appellate authority in a case under the Jaipur Rent Control Order is in exercise of his judicial or quasi-judicial functions and consequently his decision is amenable to the jurisdiction of the High Court in issuing a writ of certiorari under Art. 226 of the Constitution of India. A I R 1951 Bom 303, Rel. on. 1952 Raj L W 29 : I L R (1951) 1 Raj 639 : AIR 1952 Raj 107 (108, 109) (Prs 1, 3, 5) (DB).

—Art 226 — Application by owner for writ of certiorari against Rent Control authorities to quash order of allotment of building to R — Allotment order found void and quashed — But it is beyond scope of the application for a writ to direct R to surrender possession to petitioner with mesne profits. AIR 1955 N U C (Sau) 4113.

—Art. 226 — Order of Rent Controller under Travancore-Cochin Buildings (Lease and Rent Control) Order, 1950 erroneous but not without jurisdiction —High Court will not interfere — The question as to whether business which is in fact conducted by the husband of the landlord can be said to be a business that the landlord is carrying on, within the meaning of clause (3) to S. 9 is a matter which can, and has to be decided by the authorities under the Act and the parties are bound by the final order passed in the proceedings however erroneous it may be—Tribunal having authority has jurisdiction to decide rightly or wrongly—(Houses and Rents—Travancore-Cochin Buildings (Lease and Rent Control) Order (1950), S. 9 (3). ILR (1951) T C 624 : 1951 Ker L T 638 : AIR 1952 Trav-Co 125 (126) (Pt A) (Pr 8).

—Art. 226 — Certiorari — Application for eviction of tenant under Rent Control Act — Jurisdiction of Rent Controller on denial of landlord's title. See Houses and Rents — Travancore-Cochin Buildings (Lease and Rent Control) Order (1950), S. 9 (1), Proviso 2. AIR 1954 Trav. Co 291 (DB).

—Art. 226 - Certiorari, writ of—Erroneous decision —No interference.

Certiorari will not lie when the authority entrusted with the decision of a question acts within jurisdiction and the only criticism is that this decision is erroneous. AIR 1952 T C 1, AIR 1952 T C 125, AIR 1950 S C 222 and AIR 1951 S C 115, Foll.

The Travancore Buildings Rent Control Order (1122) creates a self-sufficient and complete machinery for the decision and disposal of matters specified therein and if the authorities functioning thereunder decide matters within their jurisdiction, it is beyond the competence of the High Court to interfere with such exercise even though their decision may appear to be erroneous. 1952 Ker L T 355 : AIR 1953 T C 70 (74) (Pt D) (Pr 10).

170. Requisitioning order.

——Art. 226 — Application asking for not only writ of certiorari but any suitable orders — Application is maintainable even against administrative order — U. P. (Temporary) Accommodation Requisition Act (25 of 1947), S. 3.

When the law under which the authority is making a decision, itself requires a judicial approach, the decision will be quasi-judicial. A perusal of the provisions of the U. P. (Temporary) Accommodation Requisition Act, 1947, will show that it does not require the District Magistrate to make a judicial approach when he has to requisition an accommodation under S. 3. He is under no obligation to call for objections, to take evidence and to give a hearing. It is doubtful whether the order passed by the District Magistrate in such a case is quasi-judicial in its nature. In such a case a writ of certiorari is not permissible. Nevertheless, Art. 226 is now so wide that if any authority acts against law then an application under that article is maintainable against the authority for the issue of proper directions to act according to law. Where in an application under Art. 226 in the prayer the applicant has asked for suitable orders to be passed as may be thought fit and proper and not for a writ of certiorari only, the application against such an order is maintainable. 1952 R D (HC) 161 : 1952 All W R (HC) 241 : 1952 All L J 163 : ILR (1953) 1 All 216 : AIR 1952 All 836 (838) (Pt A) (Fr 3) (DB).

——Art. 226—Order under S. 3, Assam Land (Requisition and Acquisition) Act, 1948, is administrative order — Finding on question of 'public purpose' — Interference under Arts. 226 and 227. See Assam Land (Requisition and Acquisition) Act (25 of 1948), S. 3 (as amended by Order dated 24-4-52). AIR 1952 Assam 143 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Order under S. 3, Assam Land (Requisition and Acquisition) Act — Nature of proceedings—Proceedings are not judicial or quasi-judicial —They can be challenged only on ground of excess of jurisdiction or mala fides. See Assam Land (Requisition and Acquisition) Act (5 of 1948), S. 3. AIR 1953 Assam 177 (DB)

——Art. 226 — Assam Land Requisition and Acquisition Act (1948), S. 3 (1)—Owner residing in building continuously for period of one year preceding date of order — Order requisitioning it. See Assam Land (Requisition and Acquisition) Act (25 of 1948), Sec. 3 (1). AIR 1953 Assam 177 (DB).

——Art. 226—Assam Land (Requisition and Acquisition) Act (1948), S. 3 — Order under — Nature of proceedings. See Assam Land (Requisition and Acquisition) Act (25 of 1948), S. 3. AIR 1953 Assam 177.

——Art. 226 — Certiorari or prohibition — Issue of writ — Orders under S. 3 (1) and (3) of Assam Land (Requisition and Acquisition) Act.

Before a writ of certiorari or prohibition could issue, it is necessary that there should be a tribunal or an officer having authority to determine questions affecting rights of subjects and having a duty to act judicially. No such writ can issue against an order of the officer of the Provincial Government authorised to act under S. 3 (1) of Assam Land (Requisition and Acquisition) Act, 1948, or of the Provincial Government on appeal under S. 3 (3) of the Act, as such orders are administrative in character. There is no difference in the nature of their function or duties. Even as an appellate authority, the Provincial Government is under no obligation to act judicially. It is authorised to come to its decision by the exercise of its subjective discretion. ILR (1952) 4 Assam 426 : AIR 1952 Assam 115 (117, 118) (Prs 8, 9, 13, 14) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Powers of High Court—Land Requisition—Declaration of vacancy—How far conclusive —High Court exercising powers under Art. 226, if can go behind declaration. See Bombay Land Requisition Act (33 of 1948), S. 6 (4) (a). ILR (1959) Bom 390.

——Art. 226—Administrative order—Bombay Land Requisition Act, S. 5 (1) — Order of requisition — Nature of — If subject to writ. See Bombay Land Requisition Act, S. 5 (1). AIR 1951 Bom 131 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Act of requisition is not quasi-judicial act—Writs of certiorari or prohibition cannot lie. See Houses and Rents — Bombay Land Requisition Act (33 of 1948), S. 5 (1). AIR 1950 Bom 158.

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Vacant premises of which landlord gives intimation to Government—Requisition of such premises is quasi-judicial act — Declaration of Government is conclusive evidence—Writ of certiorari can be issued. See Houses and Rents—Bombay Land Requisition Act (33 of 1948), S. 6 (4), First Proviso. AIR 1950 Bom 144.

——Art. 226—Requisitioning of premises for Government servant—No choice of accommodation—Public purpose—Necessity of—Doctrine of Eminent Domain. See Houses and Rents—West Bengal Premises Requisition and Control (Temporary Provisions) Act (5 of 1947), S. 3 (1). ('61) 65 Cal W N 794.

——Art. 226—Order of requisition to rehabilitate refugee under W. B. Security Ordinance 2 of 1949—If facts are established, Court can be asked to issue mandamus — Writ of certiorari is not appropriate remedy. 55 Cal W N 297 : ILR (1952) 1 Cal 168 : AIR 1951 Cal 346 (347) (Pt C) (Pr 2) (DB).

——Art. 226—Power to issue writ—Order of Government requisitioning property.

Under Art. 226 of the Constitution, writs of certiorari and prohibition cannot issue unless the impugned order is a judicial or a quasi-judicial one, and an order of Government requisitioning property does not fall in either category. 1951 N L J 346 : ILR (1951) Nag 791 : AIR 1951 Nag 33 (35) (Pt A) (Pr 8) (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 227 — Certiorari — Requisition of premises under S. 3, Requisition and Acquisition of Immovable Property Act—Whether premises were required bona fide for their personal use by owners is a question purely of fact—Even an erroneous finding on the question cannot entitle High Court to interfere with the order of requisition when the Collector and Chief Commissioner have acted within the bounds of their jurisdiction and without doing any violence to principles of natural justice. AIR 1952 S C 192 and AIR 1954 S C 440 and AIR 1958 S C 398, Rel. on. 64 Punj L R 379 : AIR 1962 Punj 387 (389) (Pt D) (Pr 8).

——Art 226—'To show cause', meaning of — Objection to requisition dismissed without giving hearing —Effect. See Requisitioning and Acquisition of Immovable Property Act (30 of 1952), S. 3 (1) (a). AIR 1954 Punj 251 (DB).

——Art. 226—Power of High Court—Decision of requisitioning authority as to public purpose—Interference — E. P. Requisitioning of Immovable Property (Temporary Powers) Act, 1948.

The decision of the requisitioning authority under the E. P. Requisitioning of Immovable Property (Temporary Powers) Act, 1948, that the property was required for a public purpose, is not subject to review by the High Court and it cannot interfere. AIR 1952 Punj 55 and AIR 1950 SC 222, Foll. 54 Punj LR 366: AIR 1953 Punj 193 (194) (Pt A) (Pr 5) (DB).

171. Revenue and tenancy authorities.

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Tenancy Laws — U. P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act (1951)— Rules under, Rule 5 — Exercise of powers under, by Revenue Board—Decision of Board can be scrutinised under Art. 226. See Tenancy Laws—U. P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act (1 of 1951)—Rules under, Rule 5. AIR 1955 N U C (All) 2277.

——Art. 226—Administrative orders—Enquiry under or quasi-judicial enquiry. See Tenancy Laws—Madras Estates (Abolition and Conversion into Ryotwari) Act (26 of 1948), S. 20, Proviso. AIR 1958 Andh Pra 522 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Order made by Revenue Authority under Standing Order—Order is quasi-judicial. See Grant—Madras Revenue Board's Standing Order No. 15, Paragraph 15. AIR 1957 Andhra Pra 447.

——Art. 226 — Dispute prior to West Bengal Bargadars Act—Jurisdiction of Conciliation Board—Power of High Court under Art. 226—See Tenancy Laws—West Bargadars Act (2 of 1950), S. 7. AIR 1955 N U C (Cal) 194.

——Art. 226 — Proceeding under S. 84-D of Bombay Tenancy and Agricultural Lands Act—Nature of—It is neither judicial nor quasi-judicial. See Tenancy Laws—Bombay Tenancy and Agricultural Lands Act (67 of 1948), S. 84-D (inserted by Bombay Act 38 of 1957). AIR 1963 Guj 107 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Administrative order — Lumberdar stopped from collecting land revenue by Revenue Minister and same asked to be collected by patwari—Order is not by way of punishment but an administrative order. See J. & K. Land Revenue Act (12 of 1996), S. 20. AIR 1965 J & K 102.

——Art. 226—Administrative order — Natural justice —Order of Revenue Minister refusing permission to alienation—Not in quasi judicial capacity—Certiorari —Principles of natural justice not applicable. See J. & K. Alienation of Land (Temporary Restriction) Act (21 of 1959), S. 3 (2). AIR 1961 J & K 47 (DB).

——Art. 226—Administrative order — Writ of certiorari.

Where the land under dispute is waste land in a town as defined in R. 64 (f) in S. 4, Ch. 1 in Part II of Assam Land Revenue Manual (applied to Manipur), the appropriate rule governing the matter will be R. 67 in that section. The judicial element required to make the decision judicial or quasi-judicial is wanting and orders passed under R. 67 are purely executive or administrative. Such orders, therefore, are not amenable to a writ of certiorari. AIR 1950 S C 222; AIR 1951 Bom 131 and AIR 1952 S C 192, Rel. on. AIR 1957 Manipur 4 (5, 6) (Pt A) (Prs 6, 9).

——Art. 226 — Order setting aside sale under S. 211, Bombay Land Revenue Code—Whether judicial or administrative order. See Bombay Land Revenue Code (5 of 1879), S. 211. ILR (1958) Mys 620.

——Art. 226—Administrative orders—Orders of Subordinate Revenue Officers in their administrative capacity—They are subject to interference by higher revenue officers in appeal, revision or power of superintendence. ILR (1964) Cut 89 : AIR 1964 Orissa 176 (180) (Pt B) (Pr 17) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Order under S. 17, Punjab Tenancy Act is not an administrative order but is quasi-judicial —Order by Tahsildar without notice to landlord for division of produce—Order is within the jurisdiction of Revenue Officer—Cannot be quashed by certiorari. See Tenancy Laws—Punjab Tenancy Act (16 of 1889), S. 17. AIR 1952 Pepsu 102.

——Art. 226—Revenue Board not exercising jurisdiction under S. 7 of Rajasthan Protection of Tenants Ordinance — High Court can issue writ of certiorari — (Houses and Rents — Rajasthan Protection of Tenants Ordinance (1948), S. 7).

Decision of the Revenue Board under the Rajasthan Protection of Tenants Ordinance, 1948 is a judicial or quasi-judicial act. Where the Revenue Board and the Sub-Divisional Officer refused to exercise their jurisdiction under S. 7 of the Ordinance, application to the High Court for issue of a writ of certiorari, directing the authorities to exercise their jurisdiction according to law is maintainable. AIR 1951 Bom 303, Relied on. 1951 Raj L W 963 : ILR (1951) 1 Raj 505 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari or prohibition, writ of— Order of Chief Commissioner under S. 305, Rewa Land Revenue and Tenancy Code, 1935, restoring possession of State bandh to pattadar tenant.

Where the Chief Commissioner after the passing of the new Constitution, orders restoration of possession to a pattadar tenant who was dispossessed not by a Government order but by a note of the Revenue Minister prior to the Constitution and which note on the merits was highly inequitable and altogether in contravention of the mandatory provisions of S. 47, Rewa Land Revenue and Tenancy Code, 1935, the order of the Chief Commissioner is valid under S. 305 of the Code and also equitable. A writ of certiorari or of prohibition cannot issue against the authorities ordering restoration in such a case.

Further the order of the Commissioner re-instating the tenant, is purely an executive act and not even quasi-judicial one and therefore cannot be revised by the writ.

The fact that the matter in dispute between the parties has already been taken up by the ordinary Court at the choice of the applicant himself is another reason for refusing to issue the writ. AIR 1951 Vind Pra 5 (7, 8) (Prs 8, 9, 10, 11).

172. Revision, power wider than.

See Note 183.

173. Sales tax law, orders under.

——Art. 226 — M. P. General Sales Tax Act, 1958 (II of 1959), S. 33 (4) — Sales Tax proceedings are quasi-judicial — Rules of natural justice are to be observed.

The taxing authorities performing the duties under the M. P. Sales Tax Act exercise quasi-judicial functions and as such they must observe the rules of natural justice. Therefore, where an amount due as arrears of tax is sought to be recovered from the petitioner on the assumptions that he was a member of the Hindu undivided family owning the concern, that the money charged for payment of the arrears really belonged to that family and that when the petitioner separated he had undertaken to pay the arrears of tax but the same were contested, the petitioner had to be given an opportunity to substantiate his case that he was not liable for the tax That being so the procedure was contrary to law. 1965 M P L J 798 : (1965) 16 S T C 869 : 1965 Jab L J 923.

——Art. 226 —Orissa Sales Tax Act (1947), Ss. 20, 22 and 2 (c)—Collector deciding particular person to be a "dealer" within meaning of S. 2 (c) and levying assessment—Neither Certificate Officer nor High Court in petition under Art. 226 against orders of certificate officer has power to go into that question—(Bihar and Orissa Public Demands Recovery Act (4 of 1914), Ss. 10, 60, 62). See Sales Tax — Orissa Sales Tax Act (14 of 1947), S. 20. AIR 1952 Orissa 231 (DB).

——Art. 226—Judicial or quasi-judicial order—Bihar Sales Tax Act, 1947, S. 21 — Power of Commissioner under S. 21 is of a judicial or quasi-judicial character and determinition of question in exercise of that power is liable to be revised by Board of Revenue. See Sales Tax—Bihar Sales Tax Act (19 of 1947), S. 21. ILR 36 Pat 103.

174. Sea Customs Act, orders under.

■ ——Art. 226 — Quasi-judicial tribunal — Customs authority functioning under S. 167 (8), Sea Customs Act, 1878.

An order of a customs authority imposing confiscation and penalties under S. 167 (8) of the Sea Customs Act is quasi-judicial. The customs authority has the duty to act judicially in deciding the question of confiscation and penalty. A I R 1958 S C 119, Rel. on. Pioneer Traders v. Chief Controller of Imports and Exports, Pondicherry, (1963) 2 S C A 243 : (1964) 1 S C J 595 : (1963) Supp 1 S C R 349 : AIR 1963 S C 734 (740, 741) (Pt C) (Pr 14).

■ ——Art. 226—Quasi-judicial act—Order of confiscation or penalty under Sea Customs Act—Nature of —Application for writ of certiorari whether lies—Sea Customs Act (1878), S. 167 (8).

An order of confiscation or penalty under the Sea Customs Act is not a mere administrative or executive act but is really a quasi-judicial act and therefore, an application for a writ of certiorari lies in respect of such order. AIR 1957 S C 648 and AIR 1958 S C 119, Foll. Sewpujanrai Indrasanrai, Ltd. v. Collector of Customs, 1958 Cr L J 1355 : (1958) S C J 1199 : (1958) M L J (Cr) 929 : 1959 S C R 821 : A I R 1958 S C 845 (849, 850) (Pt A) (Pr 9).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Quasi judicial orders — Order confiscating goods and imposing penalty under Sea Customs Act, is quasi judicial — Certiorari can be issued. AIR 1957 S C 648 and AIR 1958 S C 119 and A.I R 1958 S C 845, Foll. 1960 Cr L J 1307 : I L R (1960) 12 Assam 271 : A I R 1960 Assam 150 (152, 153) (Pt A) (Pr 6) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Administrative orders — Order of assessment under S. 87, Sea Customs Act is administrative and not quasi-judicial. See Sea Customs Act (1878), S. 87. AIR 1959 Bom 372 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Sea Customs Act (1878), S. 182 and S. 167 (37)—Confiscation of goods — Order made by Customs Officer under S. 167 (37)—It is quasi-judicial —Order in excess of jurisdiction—Writ of certiorari will lie.

An order of confiscation under S. 167 (37) of goods imported made by the Customs Officer after adjudication under S. 182 of the Sea Customs Act, 1878, is quasi-judicial in character, hence a writ of certiorari will lie under Art. 226 of the Constitution if there is an excess of jurisdiction. AIR 1961 Cal 636, Rel. on. A I R 1959 Bom 372 and A I R 1961 Andh Pra 170, Disting. 1963 (1) Cri L J 749 : A I R 1963 Cal 331 (332, 333) (Pt A) (Pr 8).

——Art. 226 — Quasi-judicial order — Order under Sea Customs Act — Customs Authorities revising assessment or imposing penalty—Interference.

The Customs Authorities in making assessment were primarily an administrative body but in so far as they sought to revise the assessment or impose penalty for an alleged misdeclaration, after giving the petitioner an opportunity of being heard they performed their functions as a quasi-judicial body and as such are subject to the High Court's supervisory jurisdiction. Where there are disputed questions of fact, which the High Court cannot conveniently determine the Court will refuse to interfere. But, if there is an attempt to assess the duty under a wrong heading, in an arbitrary manner, and if this is clear upon the admitted facts the Court has ample jurisdiction to interfere : A I R 1958 S C 86, Rel. on. AIR 1958 Cal 694 (696) (Pt B) (Pr 5).

——Art. 226—Order imposing fine under S. 167, Sea Customs Act subsequently converted into order imposing personal penalty without hearing party — Case not fit for interference — (Sea Customs Act (1878), S. 167).

When an order made against certain parties is in any way altered, it is but just and fair that it should be altered in their presence, although they may have no conceivable case to make out against the alteration.

Hence, where the Collector of Customs after giving opportunity to the party for showing cause against liability imposes fine under S. 167, Sea Customs Act, but subsequently converts the order into one imposing personal penalty without giving the party an opportunity of showing cause against the alteration, the order is to be deprecated. The irregularity does not, however, make the case fit for interference under Art. 226 of the Constitution of India as the alteration is not one of substance, the party made liable and quantum of penalty not being altered. AIR 1955 Cal 241 (243, 244) (Pt A) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 226—Sea Customs Act (1878), S. 182—Special tribunal—Procedure — Customs authorities imposing duty acting in high handed and arbitrary manner—Power of civil Court to issue writ of certiorari against customs authorities—S. 198 if operates as bar to such proceedings—Civil P. C. (1908), S. 9, See Sea Customs Act (1878), S. 182. AIR 1950 Cal 103.

——Art. 226—Quasi-judicial authority—Wrong exercise of judicial discretion by—Collector of Customs directing confiscation of goods under S. 167 (8) of the Sea Customs Act (1878), by wrong exercise of discretion — Order held should be quashed — Sea Customs Act (1878), S. 167 (8).

The High Court under Art. 226 has the power to quash the order of the Collector of Customs made on a demonstrably absurd basis that a particular article fell within a particular class. The Collector of Customs when acting under S. 167 of the Sea Customs Act is acting in a quasi-judicial capacity. When discretion is vested in such a quasi judicial tribunal, such discretion must be exercised judicially and not arbitrarily. Under the third column of item 8 of S. 167 the customs authorities have got the discretion either to confiscate or not in a particular case. The Collector must decide in each particular case if there were circumstances which would call for the drastic punishment of confiscation.

Held, on the facts of the case that the Collector as a quasi-judicial tribunal had not exercised his discretion judicially, and hence the order of the Collector should be quashed. A I R 1957 S C 733, Dist. 74 Mad L W 672 : 1961 Mad L J (Cr) 675 : (1961) 2 Mad L J 443 : A I R 1962 Mad 164 (167, 168, 169) (Prs 6, 7, 8, 10) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Quasi-judicial order — Order under S. 167 (8) of the Sea Customs Act—Sea Customs Act (1878), S. 167 (8).

The restrictions imposed by the Sea Customs Act and the Foreign Exchange Regulation Act on the import of gold do not themselves constitute revenue or penal laws, despite the use of the words 'offence" and "punishment" in S. 167 (8) of the Sea Customs Act among others and they are civil proceedings. The decision arrived at by the appropriate Customs Officer in such proceedings to impose the penalties prescribed for instance, by S. 167 (8) of the Sea Customs Act is quasi-judicial in its scope. Such an order is liable to correction by the issue of a writ of certiorari. I L R (1959) Mad 222 : 72 Mad L W 104 : (1959) 2 M L J 35: AIR 1959 Mad 142 (151) (Pt D) (Prs 43, 44) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Order under S. 167 (8) of the Sea Customs Act (1878).

The restrictions imposed by the Sea Customs Act and the Foreign Exchange Regulation Act on the import of gold do not themselves constitute revenue or penal laws, despite the use of the words "offence" and "punishment" in S. 167 (8) of the Sea Customs Act among others. Penalties including confiscation imposed under S. 167 (8) of the Sea Customs Act do not constitute them criminal proceedings. They are civil proceedings. The decision arrived at by the appropriate Customs Officer in such proceedings to impose the penalties prescribed, for instance, by S. 167 (8) of the Sea Customs Act, is quasi-judicial in its scope. Such an order is liable to correction by the issue of a writ of certiorari. 72 Mad L W 104 : (1959) 2 Mad L J 35 : I L R (1959) Mad 222 : AIR 1959 Mad 142 (151) (Pt D) (Prs 43, 44) (D B).

[Overruled on another point in (1961) 2 M L J 382 (F B) & Reversed on another point in AIR 1962 S C 316.]

——Art. 226—Quasi-judicial order—Order of confiscation or penalty under Sea Customs Act — (Sea Customs Act (1878), Ss. 167 (8), 182 and 183)

The Collector of Customs under the Sea Customs Act is under a duty to act judicially in ordering confiscation or imposing a penalty. The use of the word "adjudge" in Ss. 182 and 183 involves the idea of judicial approach. Hence, an order of confiscation or penalty under the Act is amenable to the jurisdiction of the High Court. AIR 1952 Cal 656, Rel. on. 70 Mad LW 328 : 1957 Mad W N 256 : (1957) Mad L J (Cr) 283 : (1957) 2 Mad L J 41 : I L R (1957) Mad 642 : AIR 1957 Mad 496 (500, 501) (Pt A) (Pr 9) (D B).

——Art. 226 — Collector of Central Excise is not Court—Discharges quasi-judicial function—Principles of natural justice apply — Order under S. 167 (8)—Interference by High Court. See Sea Customs Act (1878), S. 167 (8). 1963 (2) Cr L J 467 (Mys).

—Art. 226 — Personal penalty under Sea Customs Act—Finding, either express or implied that the person was concerned in the offence of importation or exportation of goods, prohibited or restricted by the Act, necessary before levying penalty. See Sea Customs Act (1878), S. 167. 1964 (1) Cri L J 545 : AIR 1964 Punj 222.

——Art. 226 — Decision of Customs authorities based on wrong interpretation of item on Import Trade Control Policy is open to review by High Court—Tariff Act (1939), Sch. I, Item 80 (3). AIR 1961 S C 1506, Rel. on. ('64) 66 Pun L R 1029.

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Proceedings under Sea Customs Act—Nature of—Principle of natural justice has to be observed — Assessing authorities bound to give reasons for their conclusions — Orders not mentioning such reasons—Liable to be quashed by a writ of certiorari. See Sea Customs Act (1878), S. 30. AIR 1962 Punj 360.

—Art. 226 — Natural justice — Proceedings under S. 182, Sea Customs Act—Duty to give opportunity to be heard. See Sea Customs Act (1878), S. 182. AIR 1958 Punj 35.

175. Stage at which can issue.

See also Notes 88 and 93.

—Art. 226 — Certiorari — Order cancelling Motor Vehicle permit – Petition for quashing order filed before expiry of period of permit — Petition does not become infructuous because of expiry of permit during its pendency — Subsistence of order would act to the prejudice of petitioner and affect him adversely as under Motor Vehicles Act it can bar him from getting his permit renewed — Motor Vehicles Act (1939), Ss. 58 and 60. 1962 All L J 116.

——Art. 226 — Order by Rent Control Officer that premises are vacant — Proceedings for allotment not terminated—If bars application for writ — (Houses and Rents — U. P. (Temporary) Control of Rent and Eviction Act (3 of 1947), S. 7 (2)).

Where the Rent Control Officer has held that premises are vacant, but has not passed an order of allotment, this finding irrevocably affects the right of the landlord in respect of a property of which he is the owner. The passing of this order constitutes an imminent threat to the fundamental right of citizen to hold and dispose of his property. The fact that the proceedings for allotment have not yet terminated is not an absolute bar against the maintainability of a petition under Art. 226. AIR 1959 All 440 (444) (Pt A) (Pr 11).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Proceedings relating to disciplinary matters—Relief at intermediate stage.

In disciplinary proceedings it is normally not desirable that the Courts should interfere before the proceedings have terminated. If interference were made by Courts at intermediary stages it would result in unnecessary delay. I L R (1956) 1 All 622 : 1955 All L J 375 : AIR 1955 All 512 (515) (Pt C) (Pr 15) (DB).

——Art. 226 —Wrong order— Interference—Civil P.C. (1908), O. 6, R. 17—"At any stage" — Means, even at stage of suit or earlier—Applies to election petition—Tribunal may pass wrong order—Order is not open to scrutiny by certiorari under Art. 226. See Civil P. C. (1908), O. 6, R. 17. AIR 1955 N U C (All) 1750.

——Art. 226 — Applicability — Decision of quasi-judicial tribunal—Power of High Court—When can be invoked—Tenancy Laws—Bombay Tenancy and Agricultural Lands Act (67 of 1948), S. 52).

When the Legislature, by S. 52 of the Bombay Act (67 of 1948), has conferred the power of investigation into the existence, the history and the merits of the debts upon the Manager, the High Court cannot take upon themselves the duty to hold that investigation. The proceedings must be continued before the Manager and the Collector, and the jurisdiction of the High Court can only be invoked for rectifying mistakes or errors committed by those Officers after the claim has been investigated by those officers in the manner provided by law. 59 Bom L R 339 : I L R (1957) Bom 656 : AIR 1957 Bom 155 (160) (Pt F) (Pr 13) (DB).

——Art. 226—Writ of certiorari, if lies after judgment, for quashing conviction.

Per Chakravarti J.—Where an indictment has been tried and judgment pronounced, certiorari to quash will not be granted. But there is distinction between quashing an indictment and quashing the whole proceedings for want of jurisdiction and in the latter type of case, the writ would seem to lie even after the determination. This jurisdiction, however, is only procedural jurisdiction or jurisdiction in respect of the particular case in a tribunal otherwise competent, for when there was a total lack of authority in the person or persons who tried a case, the proceedings were not merely voidable but wholly void and in such cases no certiorari would lie. When it cannot possibly be said that the Special Judge in the case was a mere usurper of authority or a pretender, because the provision of law providing for the constitution of Special Courts, is not in itself ultra vires, the fact that the trial has been concluded is not therefore a bar to the quashing of the conviction on certiorari in the case. In any event, Article 226 of Constitution speaks not of the English writs but of writs "in the nature of" those writs and consequently there is no reason why the High Courts in India should always confine themselves strictly to the Crown Side Practice in England. Anwar Ali v. State of West Bengal, 1952 Cri LJ 450 : AIR 1952 Cal 150 (163, 164) (Pt D) (Pr 93) (FB).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari—(Industrial Disputes (Appellate Tribunal) Act (1950), S. 18).

An application for the issue of a writ of certiorari against the Labour Appellate Tribunal made within 30 days prescribed by S. 18 of the Industrial Disputes (Appellate Tribunal) Act is not premature. I L R (1953) Mys 287 : AIR 1953 Mys 59 (60) (Pt B) (Pr 5) (DB).

176. Stamp Act, orders under.

——Art. 226 — Stamp Act (2 of 1899), Ss. 31, 32 and 33—Document submitted to Collector under S. 31—Determination of duty—Subsequent order of impounding document — Validity — Quashing of. See Stamp Act (1899), S. 31. AIR 1951 All 851 (DB).

——Art. 226—Decision as to proper stamp—Decisions of Collector under S. 31 or of Chief Controlling Revenue Authority under S. 53 (2) are not quasi-judicial but are administrative. See Bombay Stamp Act (60 of 1958), S. 31. (1965) 6 Guj L R 554 : I L R (1965) Guj 811 : AIR 1966 Guj 175 (DB).

177. Statutary bodies, powers and duties of.
See also Note 126.
(a) Power to be exercised according to statute creating it.
(b) Exercise of discretion.
(c) Mala fides.
(d) Duty to act on evidence.
(e) Procedural irregularity.

177. Statutory bodies, powers and duties of.
See also Note 126.

——Art. 226—Jurisdiction of High Court—Service rules made by Devaswom Board — Force of—Infringement not justiciable.

The service rules relating to promotion, rank, etc., in Government servants have not the force of law and that infringement of the same cannot properly be brought up to the High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution.

Held, that the rules in question were made by the Devaswom Board for guidance in matters relating to promotion, etc., and the mere fact that these rules were made by virtue of a provision in the statute empowering the Board to make rules does not invest the same with statutory force. AIR 1959 Ker 21 (23) (Pt B) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Jurisdiction of High Court—Orders of Cochin Devaswom Board under Act 15 of 1950 — Interference.

The High Court has ample jurisdiction to interfere with the orders of Statutory Bodies created and functioning under a statute like the Cochin Devaswom Board, a statutory body constituted and functioning under Travancore Cochin Act 15 of 1950. AIR 1958 Ker 164, Rel on. 1959 Ker L R 692 : 1959 Ker L T 816.

■ ——Art. 226—Writ of certiorari against statutory tribunal—Jurisdictional issue—Wrong decision—Nature of jurisdiction exercised by High Court—(Tenancy Laws — Madras Estates (Abolition and Conversion into Ryotwari) Act (26 of 1948). Ss. 2 (7) and 9—Scope). Varadarajaswamivari Temple v. Sri Krishnapppa, 71 Mad L W 711 : (1958) 2 Mad L J 463 : I L R (1958) Mad 1023 : AIR 1959 Mad 40 (42, 43, 48, 49, 55) (Pt B) (Prs 5, 7, 38, 40, 41, 72) (FB).

——Art. 226—No breach of statutory rule—Relief under Article.

A contravention of the resolution of the Capital Oustees Board promising that no land of an evacuee which is less than fifty acres would be required for the purpose of allotment to capital oustees is not a breach of a statute or a statutory rule in regard to which the High Court can in its supervisory jurisdiction give relief. 56 Punj L R 286 : AIR 1954 Punj 241 (243, 244) (Pt B) (Prs 24, 32) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Right to relief—Statutory bodies — Contravention of statutory duties—High Court can interfere under Art. 226.

Where certain duties are cast by the Statute, and powers are conferred by the statute, a contravention of the powers conferred by the statutory rules can be challenged under Art. 226 of the Constitution. AIR 1953 Punj 88; AIR 1956 All 70; AIR 1956 All 460 and AIR 1957 Orissa 226, Rel. on. AIR 1955 Cal 56; AIR 1955 Cal 543; AIR 1957 Cal 720, Disting.

Where a municipal employee's discharge was ordered by the Chairman of the Municipal Committee who had no authority or power to do so, the High Court can grant relief to the employee under Art. 226. ILR (1958) 8 Raj 1016.

——Art. 226 — Notification prohibiting transfer of land — Registering Officer cannot refuse to register transfer if Ss. 34, 35 of Reg. Act are satisfied — Remedy. See Registration Act (1908), S. 34. AIR 1954 Raj 53 (DB).

177 (a). Power to be exercised according to statute creating it.

■ ——Art. 226—Engineer in service of District Board—Board terminating his service by paying salary in lieu of notice—Petition by him under Art. 226 for declaring the order unlawful and for restoring him in service—Maintainability—High Court has jurisdiction to entertain the petition—Jurisdiction is not restricted by S. 21 (b) of Specific Relief Act.

Where in a petition under Art. 226 by an Engineer whose employment under a District Board was terminated by the Board after giving him salary for three months in lieu of notice the petitioner prayed for a writ in the nature of certiorari for quashing the resolution of the Board and a writ in the nature of mandamus for restoring him in service and it was contended by the Board that the jurisdiction of the High Court even under Art. 226 of the Constitution was restricted by S. 21 (b) of the Specific Relief Act and that the remedy, if any, of the petitioner was to claim damages by suit for wrongful termination of employment and not a petition for a writ:

Held that the powers of a statutory body are always subject to the statute which has constituted it and must be exercised consistently with the statute, and the Courts have, in appropriate cases, the power to declare an action of the body illegal or ultra vires, even if the action relates to determination of employment of a servant. 1957 AC 488, Rel. on; AIR 1937 All 284 and AIR 1961 All 502 and AIR 1958 SC 1050, Disting. Held further that the High Court had the jurisdiction to declare the decision of the Board, as ultra vires though it may be exercised only when the Court is satisfied that departure is called for from the rule that a contract of service will not ordinarily be specifically enforced. S. R. Tewari v. District Board, Agra, (1964) 3 S C R 55 : 1963 All L J 944 : 1964 S C D 314 : ILR (1963) 2 All 883 : (1964) 2 S C J 300 : (1964) 1 Lab L J 1 : AIR 1964 SC 1680 (1682, 1683) (Pt A) (Prs 6, 7, 8).

● —Art. 226—Extent and scope of Court's powers in relation to acts of statutory bodies —U. P. District Boards Act (X of 1922), Ss. 82 and 84 — Scope of powers of dismissal and termination of service.

Under the Common Law the Court will not ordinarily force an employer to retain the services of an employee whom he no longer wishes to employ. But this rule is subject to certain well recognised exceptions. It is open to the Courts in an appropriate case to declare that a public servant who is dismissed from service in contravention of Art. 311 of the Constitution of India (1950) continues to remain in service even though by so doing the State is in effect forced to continue to employ the servant whom it does not desire to employ. Similarly, under the Industrial law jurisdiction of the labour and Industrial tribunals to compel the employer to employ a worker whom he does not desire to employ is recognised. The Courts are also invested with the power to declare invalid the act of a statutory body, if by doing the act the body has acted in breach of a mandatory obligation imposed by statute even if by making the declaration the body is compelled to do something which it does not desire to do. The jurisdiction to declare the decision of the District Board as ultra vires, exists though it may be exercised only when the Court is satisfied that departure is called for from the rule that a contract of service will not ordinarily be specifically enforced.

By S. 82 of the District Boards Act, 1922, power of the Board to decide questions arising in respect of the service including the power to punish, dismiss, transfer and control servants of the Board is statutorily delegated to the President in case of servants drawing a salary exceeding Rs. 40 per mensem and to the Secretary for other servants. But the exercise of the power is subject to the conditions prescribed in the provisos. Upon the exercise of the power under S. 82 vested in the Board, the President and the Secretary, there is yet another set of restrictions imposed by S. 84. The power is subject among others to the rules imposing conditions on the appointment of persons to offices, or to particular office requiring professional skill and on the punishment or dismissal of persons so appointed and to rules relating to servants of the Board. The rule providing for the procedure for termination of employment of servants of the Board is a rule relating to servants of the Board and may properly be made under S. 84 (d) read with S. 172 (2). Power to appoint ordinarily carries with it power to terminate appointment and a power to terminate may in the absence of restrictions express or implied be exercised subject to the conditions prescribed in that behalf, by the authority competent to appoint. The power to terminate employment is therefore to be found in S. 82 and the method of its exercise is prescribed by the rules referred to in S. 84. The rules deal with the conditions under which an officer or servant may be dismissed (the dismissal being by way of punishment) and also under which determination of employment may take place. The expression 'dismissal' in the Fourth Proviso to S. 82 does not include termination of employment simpliciter. In the law relating to master and servant, expression "dismissal" has acquired a limited meaning — determination of employment as a method of punishment for misconduct or other cause. An order of determination of employment which is not of the nature of an order of dismissal, was by virtue of the Rules framed under Cl. (d) of S. 84 to be exercised consistently with R. 3-A and an order of dismissal involving punishment must be made consistently with the Rule or regulation framed under S. 84 (b) and (d). S. R. Tewari v. The District Board, Agra, (1964) 3 S C R 55: (1964) 2 S C J 300 : 1963 All L J 944 : 1964 S C D 314 : ILR (1963) 2 All 883 : (1964) 1 Lab L J 1 : AIR 1964 S C 1680 (1685, 1686) (Pt B) (Prs 11, 13).

● —Art. 226 — Quasi-judicial or administrative function — Bengal Court of Wards Act, 1879, S. 18 — Court of Wards is a statutory body with powers granted to it under S. 18—Its action cannot be attacked on ground that it had erred in its conclusion—Statute confides on it and not to any outside authority, authority to judge whether act is beneficial to the estate—Exercise of this authority can be attacked on ground of absence of bona fide or on ground that it was fraud on the power—It can also be attacked on ground that court of ward did not in fact apply its mind to the question whether act was for benefit of estate or the ward — Where it has applied its mind and given thought to the question, its decision is not liable to be questioned on ground that it was erroneous on merits or that it was reached without considering some aspects that ought to have been considered, unless the failure is of such a character as to amount to their being no exercise of judgment at all — See Bengal Court of Wards Act (9 of 1879), S. 18. A I R 1956 S C 446.

—— Art. 226 —Certiorari—Principles of natural justice —Order by Sales-tax Officer in violation of mandatory provisions of S. 7 (3), Proviso, U. P. Sales Tax Act—Petitioner entitled to writ of certiorari — (Sales-tax — U. P. Sales Tax Act (XV of 1948), S. 7 (3), Proviso). AIR 1955 N U C (All) 6091.

——Art. 226 — Right to relief — Statutory body — Adoption of Fundamental Rules —Validity—Enforcement by writ— Commissioners under Calcutta Port Act, 1890, instead of framing rules, adopting Fundamental Rules framed by Government— Rules so adopted are valid and statutory rules— Their observance can be enforced by a writ —See Calcutta Port Act (III of 1890), S. 3 (1) (d). AIR 1957 Cal 720.

177 (b). Exercise of discretion.

——Art. 226 —Discretion—Income-tax recovery proceedings —Order granting or vacating stay — Order must conform to rules of reason and justice — Ex parte order vacating stay, passed on extraneous considerations and incorrect information — Order is violative of principles of natural justice — Order can be set aside under Art. 226 —Income-tax Act (1922), S. 45.

The power to grant or vacate a stay may be quasi-judicial or administrative in nature. Even if it is administrative it is not an arbitrary one. It has to be exercised according to the rules of reason and justice and not according to one's fancy or humour. The discretion vested in the Inspecting Assistant Commissioner is not arbitrary and fanciful. (1947) 15 I. T. R. (Sup.) 104, Rel. on. Art. 226 of the Constitution confers on the High Court ample jurisdiction to set aside an arbitrary order passed by a statutory authority. Appropriate orders, as may be necessary to meet the ends of justice, can be passed in respect of an administrative action. A I R 1961 S C 372 (380) and A I R 1961 S C 1731, Foll. Thus the order, vacating stay, passed on extraneous considerations and incorrect information and also without affording an opportunity of explanation to the assessee is arbitrary and violative of principles of natural justice and can be set aside under Art. 226. (1965) 2 I T J 85 : A I R 1966 All 176 (180, 181) (Pt B) (Prs 20, 21, 24).

——Art. 226—Representation of the People Act (1951), Ss. 90 (5), 90 (6)—Amendment application dismissed on ground that delay will result in not deciding election within six months—It is not judicial exercise of discretion — (Civil P. C. (1908), O. 6, R. 17) — See Representation of the People Act (1951), S. 90 (5). AIR 1958 All 705.

——Art. 226—Discretionary order —Breach of conditions of permit —Cancellation is matter of discretion —Interference by High Court under Art. 226. See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 60 (1). AIR 1957 Andh Pra 882 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Building in imminent danger of collapsing - Demolition — Commissioner's discretion to invoke power under R. 5 (4) of Sch. 17, Calcutta Municipal Act (1951)—Court's interference with such discretion— See Municipalities — Calcutta Muncipal Act (33 of 1951), Sch. XVII-Rule 5 (4). ('64) 68 Cal W N 1172.

——Art. 226 — No writ to compel exercise of discretion in particular fashion can be issued. A I R 1955 NUC (Trav-Co) 5996.

177 (c). Mala fides.

——Art. 226 — Board acting under S. 56 of the U. P. Muslim Wakf Act and not at instance of any person —Board cannot be said to be acting mala fide. See U. P. Muslim Wakf Act (13 of 1936), S. 56. AIR 1965 All 333.

——Art. 226—Mala fides.

Delay on the part of the Examination Board in communicating the result of the enquiry and the punishment imposed on the candidate for certain malpractices in the examination does not prove want of bona fides on the part of the Board. 1955 Andhra W R 439 : AIR 1955 N U C (Andhra) 5823.

——Art. 226—Interference—Grounds — Absence of mala fides in order of subordinate tribunal—(Assam Land Requisition and Acquisition Act (25 of 1948), S. 3 (1)).

From time to time the Municipal Board refused to grant licence to the petitioner to run the market and thereafter some negotiations were going on for taking the land on rent. Ultimately steps were also taken for acquisition of the land under the Land Acquisition Act. It was said that all this showed that the Municipal Board was acting mala fide in ultimately asking the Government to requisition the land under the Assam Act, 25 of 1948.

Held, that the circumstances did not make out a case of mala fides so as to justify the High Court's interference with the impugned order under Art. 226 of the Constitution. ILR (1959) 11 Assam 287 : AIR 1960 Assam 18 (20) (Pt C) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Party alleging mala fides must, in his pleadings, set out particulars and substantiate same by satisfactory evidence—Court would hesitate to attribute mala fides to any one and particularly to statutory bodies, excepting on convincing grounds. Civil P. C. (1908), O. 6, R. 10. (1965) 2 Mys L J 365 (DB).

177 (d). Duty to act on evidence.

——Art. 226—Order of Additional District Magistrate rejecting landlord's claim for release of shop in his favour — Relevant reasons given for arriving at conclusion that shop was not bona fide needed by landlord for his own use—Held, that it was within the competence of the Additional District Magistrate to form an opinion and as long as he did it on the material before him which was relevant to the point on which the opinion had to be formed, the High Court in exercise of its writ jurisdiction could not interfere with the order made by him. 1964 All W R (H C) 296 : 1964 All L J 710.

——Art. 226 — Railway Establishment Code (1951) App. 13, Part B, R. 1—Exercise of statutory powers —When can be declared ultra vires — Cause which is non-existent — Cannot reasonably be 'due cause' within R. 1.

It is established that the doctrine of ultra vires which attaches to any statutory power requires not only that it must not exceed the power conferred by the statute, that it must not only be exercised in good faith but also that it must not be exercised arbitrarily or capriciously, but 'reasonably'. The statutory authority cannot do what he likes but must follow the course which reason dictates. Even though the Court cannot substitute its own view as to what should be the proper course in such circumstances, it should interfere if the statutory authority has come to a decision that no reasonable body would have come to. (1925) A C 578 and (1947) 2 All E R 680, Rel. on. It is clear that no reasonable man could consider a cause which is non-existent as a 'due cause' within R. 1 of Part B of App. 13 of the Code. A I R 1965 Cal 389 (394, 395) (Pt F) (Prs 21, 22, 28).

——Art. 226—Duty of subordinate tribunals.

A statutory Tribunal entrusted with statutory functions and exercising statutory jurisdiction should not allow itself to be influenced by irrelevant and extraneous considerations in passing quasi-judicial orders in discharge of its duties. He must keep his capacity as a tribunal distinct and separate from his executive capacity, and must not permit his official superiors in the executive department to interfere in any manner with the exercise of his duties and functions as a Tribunal. If it is found that he permitted himself to be influenced by the directions of his official superior that order will be struck down. AIR 1960 J & K 19 (21) (Pt A) (Pr 7).

177 (e). Procedural irregularity.

——Art. 226—Andhra Pradesh Regional Committee Order (1958), Pr. 3—Regional Committee constituted under—Defect in procedure in holding its meetings—Bill in pursuance of its report passed into an Act—Art. 212 (1) applies—Validity cannot be questioned on grounds of irregularity of procedure—Court will not give ineffective declaration as to its validity. See Ibid, Art. 371 (1). AIR 1965 Andh. Pra 306.

178. Stranger, application by.

See Note 6.

179. Submission to or acquiescence in jurisdiction.

See also Notes 98 and 148.

——Art. 32 — Applicability — (Income-tax Act (1922), S. 5 (7-A) — Order of transfer under—Acquiescence and submission to jurisdiction — Assessee's right to relief.

Where none of the petitioners raised any objection to their cases being transferred under S. 5 (7-A) Income-tax Act and in fact submitted to the jurisdiction of the Income-tax Officers to whom their cases had been transferred :

Held, that the petitioners were not entitled to invoke the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court under Art. 32. Halsbury's Laws of England (3rd Edn.), Vol. II, p. 140, para. 265 : (1907) 97 L T 551 and AIR 1927 Mad 130 (FB), Rel. on. Messrs Pannalal Binjaraj v. Union of India, 1957 S C A 660 : (1957) 31 I T R 565 : 1957 S C R 233 : AIR 1957 S C 397 (412) (Pt I) (Pr 45).

——Art. 226—Objection to jurisdiction not taken at earliest opportunity—High Court in writ jurisdiction will not permit such objection to be taken before it for first time.

Objection to jurisdiction must be taken at the earliest possible opportunity, and if a party has not taken such an objection the High Court in its writ jurisdiction will not permit him to take any such objection. 1965 All L J 996 : 1965 All W R (H C) 779.

—— Art. 226—Objection as to jurisdiction not taken at earliest opportunity before authority whose jurisdiction is challenged cannot be allowed to be raised for first time in writ petition. See Houses and Rents – U. P. (Temporary) Control of Rent and Eviction Act (3 of 1947), S. 7F. 1965 All W R (H C) 736.

——Art. 226—Question of law or jurisdiction—If can be raised for the first time in second appeal—Position under S. 115, C. P. Code and Art. 226 of Constitution compared. See C. P. Code (1908), S. 100. A I R 1964 All 136.

——Art. 226 — Domestic Tribunals — Jurisdiction—Person submitting to and taking a chance to get a decision from it in his favour — Jurisdiction cannot be later challenged. AIR 1957 S C 397 & 1960 All L J 20, Foll. ILR (1963) 1 All 432 (D B).

——Arts. 226, 311—Certiorari—Acquiescence in jurisdiction—Dismissal order of police servant based on report of departmental proceedings conducted by officer not having requisite qualifications—Objections to jurisdiction not raised before enquiring officer although opportunity to raise such objection was offered—Omission debars police servant from challenging by a petition for certiorari, the dismissal order on that ground not raised before the subordinate tribunal—It is open to petitioner to explain his omission in an adequate manner. AIR 1959 All 710, Rel. on. AIR 1962 All 114 (116, 117) (Pt B) (Prs 8, 9) (DB).

——Art. 226—U. P. Police Regulation, Paras. 479, 490—Jurisdiction of subordinate authority not questioned before the authority—Question of jurisdiction cannot be raised for first time before High Court, when it depends upon investigation of facts — Jurisdiction of Dy. S. P. to hold departmental inquiry not questioned before any of the subordinate authorities cannot be raised in writ petition. A I R 1956 All 578, Dissented from. AIR 1961 All 169 (172, 173) (Pt C) (Prs 15, 16).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—No failure of justice—Writ will not issue.

A writ of prohibition will issue to stay further proceedings in an inferior Court where on the face of the proceedings of that Court there is a total absence of jurisdiction, notwithstanding the fact that the petitioner may have consented to or acquiesced in the exercise of the Court's jurisdiction. That, however, is not so in the case of certiorari the issue of which is discretionary; and the Court may refuse the writ, notwithstanding the fact that the order sought to be quashed was made by a Tribunal acting without jurisdiction. The High Court will refuse to interfere unless it is satisfied that the justice of the case requires it. AIR 1957 S C 227, Foll. 1960 All L J 441 : 1960 All W R (HC) 307 : ILR (1960) 1 All 744.

——Art. 226 — Submission to jurisdiction of tribunal —Effect of—Initial want of jurisdiction – Waiver.

In cases where a person submitted to the jurisdiction of a tribunal different considerations may arise when a relief of certiorari is claimed. But even in those cases it may be said that if there is an initial want of jurisdiction, the mere fact that the petitioner has failed to raise an objection to the want of jurisdiction in the trial Court, will not disentitle him to a relief by the High Court.

Thus when the Licensing Board constituted under the U. P. Excise Act for discharging certain administrative functions is not properly constituted, any decision taken by such a body will necessarily be without jurisdiction. It is no bar to the petitioners coming to the High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution and challenging the constitution of the Board itself.

There can be no waiver of the right to point out that the statutory body was not properly constituted at all. It is not a case of the exercise of jurisdiction but of the initial want of jurisdiction. A I R 1957 All 773 (777) (Pt C) (Prs 13, 14).

——Art. 226 — Madras District Boards Act (14 of 1920), Ss. 79, 86 and 111 — S. 79 does not violate Art. 14 of the Constitution on ground that right of appeal is discriminatory—Nor is discretion in regard to choice of persons for exemption under S. 111 unguided by any rules – Lessee having agreed to pay cess—High Court could not exercise extraordinary jurisdiction even if levy of cess was not valid. See Madras District Boards Act (4 of 1920), S. 79. A I R 1963 Andh Pra 288.

——Art. 226 — Jurisdiction of — Consent — If can confer.

It is open to the Government of Andhra to admit facts upon which jurisdiction of the High Court rests although they cannot confer jurisdiction on the High Court by their consent or by mere waiver of the question of jurisdiction. ILR (1956) Andhra 448.

——Art 226—Civil P. C. (1908), S. 9 — Consent cannot give or oust jurisdiction. See Civil P. C. (1908), S. 9. A I R 1956 Hyd 129.

——Art. 226 — Writ of Certiorari — Submission of applicant to jurisdiction—Effect.

In the matter of issue of a writ by way of certiorari the High Court's powers are discretionary, and where the applicant armed with the point which would oust the jurisdiction of the subordinate tribunal elected to get the case decided by the Court on its merits, he must be taken to have submitted to its jurisdiction and he cannot be allowed later to repudiate that decision in a petition for a writ of certiorari. ILR (1954) Hyd 983 : A I R 1955 Hyd 97 (98) (Pt A) (Pr 2) (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Submission to jurisdiction.

Where there is a statutory duty on the part of the petitioner to have raised the objection as to jurisdiction before the cause was gone into on its merit but he fails to demur in terms of the statute, he cannot be permitted to challenge that jurisdiction by way of certiorari. Case-law discussed.

On facts held that the applicant was not disentitled to the relief by submitting to the jurisdiction of the authority whose order he sought to impugn. ILR (1955) Hyd 337 : A I R 1955 Hyd 82 (95) (Pt E) (Prs 50, 51) (DB).

——Art. 226—Writ of certiorari, a discretionary remedy—Submission to or acquiescence in jurisdiction.

In the matter of issue of a writ by way of certiorari the High Court's powers are discretionary, and where the applicant armed with the point which would oust the jurisdiction of the subordinate tribunal has elected to argue the case on its merits before that Court, he must be taken to have submitted to its jurisdiction. He cannot be allowed later to repudiate that decision in a petition for a writ of certiorari. (1914) 1 K B 608; (1919) 2 K B 734; A I R 1927 Mad 130 (FB); AIR 1938 Mad 69 and A I R 1953 Mad 472, Rel. on.

Where the petitioner had submitted to the jurisdiction of an arbitrator to whom a dispute had been referred under S. 48, Hyderabad Co-operative Societies Act and had also filed a revision under S. 51 of that Act before the Registrar, the petitioner will not be allowed to invoke the jurisdiction of the High Court to quash the order of the Registrar on the ground that the reference to the arbitrator was without jurisdiction. I L R (1954) Hyd 689 : A I R 1955 Hyd 33 (34) (Pt B) (Prs 7, 8) (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Grounds.

The petitioner who had submitted to the review jurisdiction and argued the case on merits before an authority cannot repudiate the order passed by it in the review proceedings by applying for certiorari on the ground that it was not open to that authority to review its original decision. Case-law, Rel. on. I L R (1954) Hyd 632 : A I R 1954 Hyd 210 (211) (Pt A) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 226—Estoppel—Order without jurisdiction —Acquiescence—Effect.

Where there is a patent want of jurisdiction, i. e., a want of jurisdiction apparent on the face of the proceedings, acquiescence by submission to jurisdiction will not cure it, and the proceedings are eminently liable to be quashed by certiorari. A I R 1960 J & K 29 (31, 32, 33, 34) (Prs 10, 13, 22).

——Art. 226 — Jurisdiction of subordinate Tribunal —Estoppel against pleading want of — Discretion of High Court.

In a case where a person submits to the jurisdiction of a subordinate tribunal without objecting to its jurisdiction he cannot be heard to urge in certiorari proceedings that the subordinate Tribunal had no jurisdiction, except perhaps where it is shown by his affidavit that he had no knowledge of the facts which constituted the defect of jurisdiction of the subordinate tribunal. The principle applies a fortiori, where the petitioner himself moved the subordinate tribunal and invited it to adjudicate upon his grievance. A I R 1927 Mad 130 (FB) and A I R 1954 Bom 202 and AIR 1957 S C 397, Rel. on.

Even if there be some technical error of law or formal defect of jurisdiction in a given case, the High Court is not bound to issue a writ of certiorari unless it is satisfied that the interests of justice demand the granting of such a writ. A I R 1959 J & K 98 (102) (Pt C) (Prs 15, 17) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Jurisdiction of High Court—Tribunal not having jurisdiction—Petitioner submitting to jurisdiction—Jurisdiction of High Court to interfere under Art. 226 is not thereby limited. 1959 Ker L J 1425 : 1960 Ker L T 85 : A I R 1960 Ker 229 (231) (Pt B) (Pr 13) (DB).

——Arts. 226, 227 — Estoppel — Proceedings under S. 145, Criminal P. C.—Petitioner inviting adjudication — Right to challenge decision being illegal — (Evidence Act (1872), S 115) — (Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 145).

Where the petitioner in proceedings under S. 145, Criminal P. C., himself asked for an adjudication of his status it is not open to him in proceedings under Arts. 226 and 227 to say that the decision was bad on the ground that the question ought not to have been decided by the Magistrate in proceedings under S. 145 merely because the question raised by him is decided against him. The mere fact that the Magistrate considered this point does not amount to illegality especially when his conclusion on the question of possession is mainly based on another finding. 1958 Ker L J 1195 : 1958 Ker L T 1067 : 1958 Mad L J (Cr) 985 : ILR (1959) Ker 70 : 1959 Cri L J 1082 : A I R 1959 Ker 275 (276) (Pt B) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 227—Jurisdiction—Submission to or acquiescence in — Effect — (Panchayat — M. B. Panchayat Vidhan (LVIII of 1949), Ss. 75 and 89).

Where the petitioner failed to raise any objection to the jurisdiction of the Nyaya Panchayat to try the complaint preferred by him under the M. B. Panchayat Vidhan and of the Sessions Judge to hear and decide the revision petition filed by the accused persons, the petitioner cannot be allowed to raise a question of jurisdiction on a petition under Arts. 226 and 227. (1914) 1 K B 608, Foll. 1957 Jab L J 65 : 1957 M P C 91 : 1957 M P L J 244 : 1957 Cr L J 759 : ILR (1957) M P 57 : A I R 1957 Madh Pra 58 (59, 60) (Pt A) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Jurisdiction — Proceedings before Labour Appellate Tribunal covering not only order of Industrial Tribunal on application by the employer company but also on application by worker.

Questions whether there was substantial question of law and the Tribunal had jurisdiction not determined by Appellate Tribunal—Participation in proceedings held would not disentitle employer to the discretionary relief of writ of certiorari — (Industrial Disputes (Appellate Tribunal Act (1950), S. 7). (1956) 10 F J R 54 : (1956) 1 Lab L J 508 : (1956) 1 M L J 462 : AIR 1956 Mad 589 (592) (Pt B) (Pr 15).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Submission to jurisdiction.

Normally, when a party voluntarily submitted in the jurisdiction of a Tribunal which had no jurisdiction he would not be heard in proceedings under Art. 226 of the Constitution to say that the Tribunal had no jurisdiction merely because the decision of the Tribunal went against him. But it is not that submission to jurisdiction that confers jurisdiction on the Tribunal. It is merely a case of a factor being taken into account before the Court decides whether it should exercise its discretion in favour of the applicant before it. ILR (1957) Mad 631 : 1955 Mad W N 865 : 68 Mad L W 777 : (1955) 2 M L J 612 : AIR 1956 Mad 146 (150) (Pt D) (Pr 22).

——Arts. 226 and 311 — Certiorari — Submission to jurisdiction.

It is not open to the petitioner in proceedings under Art. 226 of the Constitution to object to the jurisdiction of the District Judge exercised to conduct an enquiry under Art. 311, because the petitioner had submitted to it. (1956) 1 Lab L J 516 : (1956) 2 M L J 145.

——Art. 226—Petitioner submitting to jurisdiction of Revenue Court—Bar of grant of relief under Article —(Tenancy Laws — Tanjore Tenants and Pannaiyal Protection Act (XIV of 1952), S. 13 (2)).

In invoking the extraordinary jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226 the fact that the petitioner submitted to the jurisdiction of the revenue Court and availed himself of the opportunity of participating in the enquiry bars the grant of any relief under Art. 226. AIR 1927 Mad 130, Foll. 68 L W 164 : (1955) 1 M L J 258 : 1955 Mad W N 176 : AIR 1955 N U C (Mad) 3197.

——Art. 226—Petitioner submitting to jurisdiction of Revenue Board — Petitioner is precluded from questioning jurisdiction in writ of 'Certiorari'—(Tenancy Laws—Madras Estates (Abolition and Conversion into Ryotwari) Act XXVI of 1948), S. 18). (1953) 1 M L J 362 : AIR 1953 Mad 472 (472) (Pt A) (Pr 3).

——Art. 226—Submission to jurisdiction—Effect.

Where the petitioners submitted to the jurisdiction of the Regional Transport Authority, it is too late to question the jurisdiction of the Tribunal to which they have submitted on the ground that the proceedings of the Regional Transport Authority were illegal as the earlier proceedings legally instituted and pursued were not finally disposed of. Failure to object to jurisdiction before the lower Court is a bar to obtaining a writ of certiorari, whether the objection to jurisdiction is based on a pure point of law or based on facts which were or should have been within the knowledge of the petitioners during the proceedings in the lower Court. A I R 1927 Mad 130 (FB), Foll. AIR 1953 Mad 59 (60) (Pt A) (Pr 1).

——Arts. 226 and 311 — Conduct of petitioner — Departmental enquiry — Acquiescence and submission to jurisdiction of Enquiry Officer without raising any objections—Petitioner cannot be allowed to challenge jurisdiction of Enquiry Officer—Evidence Act (1872), S. 115.

Where in a departmental enquiry against a civil servant the servant has acquiesced and submitted to the jurisdiction of the enquiry officer and has taken part in the enquiry without raising any objection to his competency to hold the enquiry the civil servant cannot, after the whole enquiry is over and after the enquiry officer has found against him, turn round and contend that the officer was not competent to hold the enquiry on ground that he was not properly nominated. AIR 1957 S C 397 and AIR 1965 Mys 41 and AIR 1953 Mad 59 and A I R 1954 Bom 202, Rel. on. (1965) 1 Mys L J 422 : (1965) 2 Lab L J 583 : AIR 1965 Mys 283 (285) (Pt D) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 226—Jurisdiction—Submission to or acquiescence in — Certiorari - Proceedings under Motor Vehicles Act — Objection regarding invalidity of constitution of R. T. A. not raised before Authorities under Act—Petitioner availing himself of chance of being successful before Authorities — Petitioner debarred from raising objection — (Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 44 (2)).

Where in the proceedings under Motor Vehicles Act, the petitioner did not raise any objection before the Authorities under the Act regarding the invalidity of the Constitution of R. T. A. and regarding lack of jurisdiction on the ground of its invalid constitution, but availed himself of a chance of being successful before those Authorities ;

Held, in a writ petition challenging orders of Authorities under the Act that the petitioner precluded himself from urging his contention in the writ proceedings to invoke the jurisdiction under Art. 226 : AIR 1964 Andh Pra 36 and A I R 1961 Raj 98 FB). Dissent from ; AIR 1956 Andh Pra 232 and AIR 1957 S C 397, Rel. on. (1964) 1 Mys L J 318 : AIR 1965 Mys 41 (44, 45, 46) (Pt C) (Prs 6, 7) (DB).

——Art. 226—Evidence Act (1872), S. 115—Acquiescence in jurisdiction — Tribunal not having jurisdiction to decide question referred to it — No objection raised as to want of jurisdiction — Petitioner not estopped from raising objection in writ petition—See Evidence Act (1872), S. 115. AIR 1963 Pat 118.

——Art. 226 — Bihar Panchayat Raj Act (1947) (7 of 1948), S. 65 — Scope—Suit for declaration of title and recovery of possession—Jurisdiction—Objection not taken before Gram Cutcherry—Effect—(Civil P. C. (1908), Ss. 9 and 21). See Panchayats—Bihar Panchayat Raj. Act (1947) (7 of 1948), S. 65. AIR 1958 Pat 105.

——Art. 226—Evidence Act (1872), S. 115—Failure to raise objection — Effect. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 115. AIR 1957 Pat 732.

——Art. 226—Submission to jurisdiction—Effect. See Civil P. C. (1908), S. 9. AIR 1956 Pat 294.

——Art. 226 — Patiala Recovery of State Dues Act (2002 B. K.), S. 6—Absence of certificate under—Proceedings before Collector are not rendered without jurisdiction — It is a case of irregular assumption of jurisdiction and not of inherent lack of it—No objection taken for long time — Irregularity should be considered as waived—Remedy under Art. 226 is not meant to correct technical errors—Power under, to be used only in cases of hardship and grave injustice—See Patiala Recovery of State Dues Act (2002 B. K.), S. 6. AIR 1955 Pepsu 129.

——Art. 226 – Absence of jurisdiction — Failure to raise objection.

It is true that if a party does not raise any objection to the jurisdiction of a Court of tribunal, which depends upon the allegations and proof of certain facts, that party will not be allowed to raise objection about jurisdiction in an application under Art. 226. Where, however, the lack of jurisdiction is patent, the mere fact that no objection was taken before the statutory authority would not disable the applicant from raising such question in an application under Art. 226. The High Court is bound to issue a prohibition in the case of total absence of jurisdiction on the face of the proceedings, although the applicant for the writ has consented to or acquiesced in the exercise of jurisdiction by the inferior Court. 1953 Raj L W 324 : I L R (1953) 3 Raj 13 : AIR 1953 Raj 193 (196) (Pt A) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Art. 226—Issue of permit under Motor Vehicles Act—Review granted by Government—Jurisdiction of Government not challenged by petitioner—He cannot get relief under Art. 226. AIR 1955 N U C (Trav. Co) 5772.

180. Tenancy laws, orders under.

See Note 171.

181. Transport authority, orders of.

●——Art. 226 — Scheme notified under S. 68-D, Motor Vehicles Act — Effect on permits of private operators — Powers of I. T. A. — Renewal of private permits not legal — Appeal Board can set aside such renewals — Board can act in revisional powers if appeal is incompetent — Decision of Appeal Board being correct in law, no interference under Arts. 226 and 227. See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 68-D. AIR 1962 SC 1135.

●——Arts. 32, 226—Regional Transport Authority granting permit acts as quasi-judicial authority. See Ibid, Art. 14. AIR 1960 SC 801.

●——Arts. 32, 154, 163, 166 — Scope — Scheme proposed by Transport Undertaking under Section 68-C, Motor Vehicles Act, 1939 — Scheme framed — If ultra vires the Act — (Natural justice) — (Motor Vehicles Act (1939) (as amended by Act C of 1956), Chap. IV-A) — (Motor Vehicles Rules (1939), Rr. 8, 9 and 10).

Whether an administrative tribunal has a duty to act judicially should be gathered from the provisions of the particular statute and the rules made thereunder. If there is a lis ordinarily there will be a duty on the part of the said authority to act judicially. AIR 1950 SC 222, AIR 1958 SC 398 and AIR 1958 SC 578, Rel. on.

Per S. R. Das, C. J., N. H. Bhagwati and Subba Rao, JJ.; Wanchoo and Sinha, JJ., Contra. — The Motor Vehicles Act imposes a duty on the State Government to decide the act judicially in approving or modifying the scheme proposed by the Transport Undertaking. Even if the grounds of attack against the scheme are confined only to the purpose mentioned in S. 68-C, the position will not be different, for, even in that case there is a dispute between the State Transport Undertaking and the person excluded in respect of the scheme, though the objections are limited to the purpose of the scheme. In either view the said two provisions, Ss. 68-C and 68-D, comply with the criteria of a judicial act. (1948) AC 87, Expl. and Disting.

Where pursuant to the rules, the Minister who was in charge of Transport, had made an order directing the Secretary to Government, to hear objection filed under S. 68-D against the scheme proposed by the State Transport Department, and the Secretary to the Government Transport Department, gave a personal hearing to the parties who had filed objections, and the Minister in charge of Transport Department made his order approving the scheme, it must be said that the State Government gave hearing to the parties, for filing objections in the manner prescribed by the Rules made by the Governor.

But such a hearing given by the Secretary, Transport Department, offends the principle of natural justice and the proceeding and the hearing given, in violation of that principle are bad.

Wanchoo, J., Contra. — Taking into account the express provisions contained in Chap. IV-A and the Rules framed thereunder, the conclusion is that the hearing under S. 68-D (2) was not before a quasi-judicial tribunal and the decision was not a quasi-judicial act and the State Government was acting purely administratively. 1948 AC 87, AIR 1950 SC 222, AIR 1958 SC 398 and AIR 1958 SC 578, Rel. on. Considering the nature and the scope of the hearing under S. 68-D (2) it seems that there is really no lis. Therefore, it cannot be said that the nature of the hearing in this case makes the State Government a quasi-judicial tribunal and the decision a quasi-judicial act within the meaning of the principles laid down in Advani's case, AIR 1950 SC 222, Rel. on. Where the hearing is administrative, it is not essential that the Minister must hear, so long as a hearing is given by an officer of the Government. 1915 AC 120 (132), Rel. on.

Sinha, J., contra (agreeing with Wanchoo, J.) — The State Government, in approving the published scheme, was not discharging any judicial or quasi-judicial function. On the other hand, in doing so the State Government was only performing its normal administrative function.

There is no lis between rival claims, no determinate tribunal to determine any lis, and no procedure prescribed in Chap. IV-A approximating or even stimulating judicial procedure. That being so, there is no question of any bias. Gullapalli Nageswara Rao v. Andhra Pradesh Road Transport Corpn., (1959) 2 Andh WR (SC) 156: (1959) 2 Mad LJ (SC) 156: 1959 SCJ 967: 1958 Andh LT 1014: (1959) 1 SCR (Supp) 319: AIR 1959 SC 308 (322, 323, 325, 326, 327, 333, 334, 335, 339, 340, 341) (Pt E) (Prs 21, 22, 27, 30, 31, 47, 49, 50, 51, 63, 67).

●——Art. 226 — Order of State Government interfering with order of subordinate transport authority in the matter of granting permit for stage carriage — Interference by High Court in writ proceedings — See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 64-A (Madras Amendment). AIR 1956 SC 463.

● ——Art. 226—Nature of functions performed by Regional Transport Authority Board and State Government under Motor Vehicles Act — See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 47. AIR 1956 SC 463.

——Art. 226 — Certiorari and mandamus — Nationalisation of bus transport services — R.T.A. offering alternative routes to displaced operators in lieu of compensation — Offer accepted — Offer and acceptance recorded in resolution by R.T.A.— Writ petition by existing operator on alternative route, for certiorari to quash resolution and for mandamus commanding R. T. A. not to permit displaced operators to operate on alternative route — Not maintainable — Recording of resolution purely administrative act — Prima facie loss in petitioner's earnings on account of increase in competition not sufficient for grant of mandamus. AIR 1961 All 214. Reversed. ILR (1961) 1 All 52: AIR 1962 All 551 (552, 553, 561) (Pt A) (Prs 5, 6, 7, 61) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Cancellation of Motor permit under S. 60, Motor Vehicles Act — Order quasi-judicial and is amenable to the writ — Essentials of judicial act — Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 60.

The order of a Regional Transport Authority cancelling a permit under S. 60 of the Motor Vehicles Act is in its character quasi-judicial and is therefore amenable to a writ of certiorari. AIR 1959 SC 694, Foll.

The expression 'judicial act' includes the exercise of quasi-judicial functions by administrative bodies or other authorities obliged to exercise such functions and is used in contrast with what are purely ministerial acts. AIR 1954 SC 440, Rel. on.

The presence of two parties before an authority one proposing and the other opposing is not essential to render the order of the authority judicial or quasi-judicial; nor is a lis necessary in order that a determination may be a judicial or quasi-judicial one. AIR 1950 SC 222, Rel. on. 1962 All LJ 116.

——Art. 226 — Administrative orders — U. P. Motor Vehicles Taxation Act (V of 1935), S. 4 (2) and Rr. 5 and 6 framed thereunder — State Transport Authority — Classification of route as 'A' class route — Interference.

The Regional Transport Authority recommended in favour of classifying a particular route as 'B' class but the State Transport Authority under S. 4 (2), U. P. Motor Vehicles Taxation Act, reclassified it as an 'A' class route without giving any opportunity to the petitioner or other persons plying for hire on that route.

Held, (1) that the power given to the State Transport Authority by S. 4 of the Act is not a judicial power but is an administrative power. (2) That neither S. 4 of the Act nor the rules framed thereunder, imposed any duty on the State Transport Authority to give any notice or to hear or give an opportunity to permit-holders before it re-classified the route. It could not be said that there was contravention of the rule of natural justice which cannot and in fact does not exist independently of the statutory provisions under which the impugned action is taken. AIR 1958 SC 398, Rel. on; AIR 1954 All 144, Dist.; C. M. A. No. 237 of 1957, dated 7-1-1959 (All), Dissented from. (3) That the re-classification of the route had not the effect of changing the route. Whatever changes have occurred are for purposes of the U. P. Motor Vehicles Taxation Act, 1935 and that too for the purpose of determining the amount of tax to be paid for the motor vehicles plying on that particular route. (4) That the petitioner was not entitled to any relief under Art. 226 and the petition was liable to be dismissed. 1961 All LJ 249: AIR 1961 All 374 (376, 377) (Pt B) (Prs 8 to 13).

——Art. 226 — Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 58 — Regional Transport Authority — It is in nature of quasi-judicial body — Refusal to renew permit on ground of conviction — Proof — Report of Superintendent of Police — Action on — Propriety — See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 58. AIR 1958 All 30.

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Grounds of certiorari — Writ to quash order of Transport Authority under Motor Vehicles Act refusing to renew permits coupled with writ of mandamus directing proper authority to reconsider application — Maintainability — (Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 55).

The Legislature has placed certain restrictions on the rights of a person to carry on business of plying public carriers under the Motor Vehicles Act and the restrictions may be justified in law, but the petitioner under Art. 226 can challenge the order passed by a quasi-judicial body on the ground that it is not in accordance with the provisions of the Motor Vehicles Act.

Where the petitioner seeks relief by means of a writ of certiorari for quashing an order passed by the Transport Authority refusing to renew its permits to ply public carriers (Originally granted as it had to carry out a certain contract) on the ground that the contract had come to an end and as such went beyond S. 55 of the Motor Vehicles Act, the petition cannot be rejected on the ground that the petitioner is seeking to enforce a privilege. What it was seeking to enforce was its fundamental right to carry on business of plying public carriers.

The right which the petitioner claimed or had been enjoying was not a conditional one. A particular privilege may be granted to a person because of a certain circumstance but that does not make the right to carry on business a conditional one.

Where the order of the Transport Authority refusing to renew the permit was based entirely on the ground that the contract had come to an end, a further prayer for mandamus in such a case, directing the Transport Authority, to consider the petitioner's application for the renewal of its permits in accordance with law cannot refuse to be considered on the ground that the relief will be infructuous inasmuch as even if the application is sent back for reconsideration it is likely to be rejected on the ground that the previous permits were irregular, since the question whether the permits were regular or irregular had not been gone into by the proper authority, and when the matter goes back to the Regional Transport Authority the Regional Transport Authority will have to go into that question if it is raised by any of the parties. The High Court will not usurp the jurisdiction of the Regional Transport Authority to determine the question whether the previous permits granted were valid in law or not. AIR 1956 Mad 143, Disting. (1956) All LJ 655: 1956 All WR (HC) 604.

——Art. 226 — Certiorari, writ of — Orders of Transport Authority under Motor Vehicles Act — (Motor Vehicles Act (1939), Ss. 55, 58).

The Transport Authority when granting or refusing permits acts as a quasi-judicial body and any decision arrived at by the Regional Transport Authority under Motor Vehicles Act is liable to be interfered with by the High Court by means of a writ of certiorari. A writ of certiorari can also be issued on the ground that the inferior tribunal has committed an error of law on the face of the record. (1956) All LJ 655: 1956 All WR (HC) 604.

——Art. 226 — Principles of natural justice — Hearing petitioner — Motor Vehicles Act does not give party right to appear and be heard — It is not violation of natural justice which requires that person should have opportunity at least at some stage — This opportunity is afforded at appellate stage — Regional Authority has discretion in granting permit — Act does not require him to act judicially in this matter — (Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 47). AIR 1955 NUC (All) 3589.

——Art. 226 — Judicial or quasi-judicial proceedings — Motor permit — Renewal — Proceedings for — Regional Transport Authority does not act as judicial or quasi-judicial authority — It is only appellate authority that acts as such — No grievance that appellate authority did not deny right to adduce evidence and be heard — There is no irregularity in procedure — Opinion of appellate authority that petitioner should not be given permit based upon relevant consideration — High Court will not interfere even though the view was wrong — (Motor Vehicles Act (1939), Ss. 58, 64) — (Motor Vehicles Rules (1940), Rr. 72, 73). AIR 1955 NUC (All) 3540.

——Art. 226 — Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 60 — Cancellation of permit upon breach of conditions by Regional Authority — State Transport Authority — Tribunal maintaining cancellation — Petition under Art. 226 — Sufficiency of grounds cannot be questioned — See Motor Vehicles Act, S. 60. AIR 1955 NUC (All) 2743.

——Art. 226—State Transport Authority hearing appeal, not constituted and composed as provided by S. 44 (2) — Order passed is without jurisdiction and is nullity — Certiorari will issue in spite of want of objection. See Motor Vehicles Act, (1939) (As amended by Act C of 1956), S. 44. AIR 1964 Andh Pra 36 (FB).

——Art. 226 — Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 68-D—Nature of order under—Order disclosing consideration of main points — No discussion under topical headings — Order cannot be challenged on the ground that all objections were not considered — Tribunal is not required to state its conclusions minutely on each question raised — Order of quasi-judicial Tribunal need not contain all attributes of judgment — See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 68-D. AIR 1960 Andh Pra 214 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Motor Vehicles Act (1939 as amended by Act 100 of 1956), S. 68-D — Hearing objections, if judicial function — Powers if can be delegated to Secretary—(Constitution of India. Art. 166 (3) — Rules under and Art. 226). — See Motor Vehicles Act (1939 as amended by Act 100 of 1956), S. 68-D. AIR 1959 Andh Pra 292.

——Art. 226 — Transport Authorities under Motor Vehicles Act — Whether exercise judicial or quasi-judicial functions — Order suspending permit without recording or considering evidence — (Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 60) — (Special Tribunal).

Held, on facts that the order of suspension should be quashed by a writ of certiorari as the R. T. A. had erred in giving its judgment merely on the report of the Deputy Superintendent of Police in preference to the statements made by certain respectable witnesses. 1956 Andhra LT 309: 1956 Andhra WR 192: AIR 1957 AP 608 (609) (Pr 4).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari against Transport Authority under Motor Vehicles Act (1939), Ss. 47 and 48 — Order under, is not administrative but judicial or quasi-judicial — Error apparent on face of record — Order quashed — (Motor Vehicles Act (1939), Ss. 47, 48). 1955 Andh WR 914: 1955 Andh LT 746: AIR 1957 Andh Pra 301 (303) (Pr 5, 6)

——Art. 226 — Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 64 — Order of appellate authority, should be a speaking order — Appellate authority has to decide judicially and its decision is amenable to a writ of certiorari by the High Court — See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 64. AIR 1961 Assam 56.

——Art. 226 — Quasi-judicial bodies — Regional Transport Authority constituted under the Motor Vehicles Act — Jurisdiction of High Court.

A writ of certiorari will issue against the administrative body acting in a quasi-judicial capacity if such a body has exceeded its jurisdiction or has failed to exercise jurisdiction vested in it or has failed to observe the principles of natural justice in the exercise of its jurisdiction or it has committed a manifest error of law. The Regional Transport Authority in dealing with the applications for grant or refusal of a permit under the Motor Vehicles Act acts in a quasi-judicial capacity. The decision therefore of the Regional Transport Authority will be amenable to a writ of certiorari by the High Court. ILR (1959) 11 Assam 447: AIR 1960 Assam 100 (102, 103) (Pt A) (Prs 3, 4) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Motor Vehicles Act (1939), Ss. 64, 47 — Powers of Appellate Board — Appellate Board can consider respective merits of various applicants in order to prefer one as against other — Board cannot direct Regional Transport Authority to start afresh with renotifying route and invite fresh applications — See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 64. AIR 1960 Assam 100.

——Art. 226 — Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 53 — Scope — Refusal of permit — Grounds for — Fitness of person held no ground — See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 53. AIR 1959 Assam 106.

——Art. 226 — Motor Vehicles Act (1939), Ss. 58 and 62 — Application for issue of temporary permit under S. 62 — Prayer for issue of permit for 3 years if can be ignored — Issue of temporary permits for three months — Subsequent refusal to renew — Validity — See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 58. AIR 1953 Assam 74.

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Mala fides — Grant of permit — Extraneous matters taken into account — Effect — Order granting permit — Validity. See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 47. AIR 1957 Cal 638.

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Order granting stage carriage permit to petitioner — Order reversed in appeal on a wrong interpretation of R. 57-A, Bengal Motor Vehicles Rules — Petition under Art. 226 — Held, that although no direction could be effectively given with regard to the permit which had already expired, order of appellate authority must be set aside — (Bengal Motor Vehicles Rules (1940), R. 57-A). 99 Cal LJ 133: 61 Cal WN 550: AIR 1957 Cal 462 (463) (Pt B) (Pr 6).

——Art. 226 — Power of fixing fare-stages by R. T. A. under S. 44, Motor Vehicles Act is administrative and not quasi-judicial — Such exercise of power is not liable to be corrected by High Court in a writ petition. AIR 1964 SC 1573, Rel. on. 1965 Ker LT 1186: 1965 Ker LJ 993: (1966) 2 Ker LR 409: AIR 1966 Ker 137 (139) (Pt B) (Pr 12) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Statutory bodies — Discretionary matters — Grant of stage carriage permits by Transport Authority under Motor Vehicles Act — Interference in writ proceedings — Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 47 (1) (a) and (e).

By and large, the assessment of the rival claims of the different applicants for stage carriage permit must be left to the authorities under the Motor Vehicles Act. It is only in cases where they deviated from well-established principles or took into consideration extraneous matters or had bound themselves by rigid rules which have affected the exercise of the free discretion vested in them that the High Court will be entitled to interfere in writ proceedings.

The Transport Authorities in Kerala do not commit any error in following the principles laid down in the Madras G. O. No. 1298 dated 28th April, 1956, while granting a stage carriage permit. Where after applying the principles of the Madras G. O., an applicant A was found to be the most qualified person for the grant of the stage carriage permit.

Held, that maintaining healthy competition was not a valid ground for ignoring his claims and granting the permit to the applicant who had obtained nearly 50 per cent of the marks obtained by A, unless the conclusion was reached that the grant of a further permit to A would be against public interest. AIR 1964 Ker 253 (254) (Prs 4, 7, 8).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Administrative Order — Motor Vehicles Act (1939) (as amended by Madras Act 20 of 1948), S. 43-A — Order under G. O. M. S. 1298 dated 28-4-1956 — Non-compliance with — Matter not justiciable.

In an appeal against the order of R. T. A. granting permits after allotting marks to each applicant for ensuring viability in accordance with Madras Government Order G. O. M. S. 1298 dated 28-4-1956 the State Transport Appellate Tribunal did not allot any marks for ensuring viability. The order of State Transport Appellate Tribunal was challenged. The evidence indicated that the marks as allotted by R. T. A. without taking into consideration the viability, were not equal.

Held, that (i) the correctness or otherwise of the marks allotted under the G. O. was not a matter that was justiciable under Articles 226 and 227 of the Constitution. S. C. Civil Appeal 198 of 1962 decided on 17-9-1962, Foll.

(ii) In view of the words "other things being equal" in the order the allotment of marks for viability was necessary only when other things were equal. O. P. No. 1999 of 1962, Affirmed. 1963 Ker LT 191.

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Transport Authority granting bus permit to one of several applicants — Discretion exercised in accordance with provisions of Motor Vehicles Act — High Court will not issue writ — Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 47.

The main criterion on which bus permits have to be made is in the interest of the travelling public. Where the authority has discussed the claim of the different applicants and selected one as the best suited for granting the permit in the interests of the travelling public, giving valid and convincing reasons, its order cannot be interfered with by the issue of a writ of certiorari.

After all, primarily, it is the duty and the obligation of the authorities of the Motor Vehicles Act to grant or refuse to grant a particular permit to a particular person. The High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution can only see that the provisions of the Motor Vehicles Act and the rules made thereunder had been complied with. There is a complete and precise scheme for regulating the issue of permits providing what matters are to be taken into consideration by the authority as relevant in granting a permit and if the provisions have been complied with the Court will not interfere with the discretion exercised by such authority and convert itself into a Court of Appeal and then, examine the correctness or otherwise of the orders made by the Tribunal. AIR 1952 SC 192, AIR 1954 SC 44 and (1952) 1 KB 338, Rel. on. 1961 Ker LJ 669: 1961 Ker LT 553.

——Art. 226 — Scope — Violation of condition attached to permit under S. 48 (a) (iii), Motor Vehicles Act — Cancellation of permit — Legality. See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 60 (1). AIR 1957 Ker 35.

——Art. 226 — Application for permit rejected on untenable grounds — High Court remitting case back for decision — Authority cannot decline to deal with the application.

A Transport Authority cannot decline to deal with an application for a permit legally and properly merely because it had rejected it earlier on untenable grounds, more particularly when the High Court has remitted application to it for such consideration. 1965 MPLJ (Notes) 168.

——Art. 226 — Power of selection of persons for grant of permit under Motor Vehicles Act rests with the Authorities — High Court will not interfere unless decision is based on irrelevant or invalid considerations. See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 47. 1964 MPLJ (Notes) 201.

——Art. 226 — Decisions of questions of fact under the Motor Vehicles Act have been left to Transport Authorities — Their decision should not be interfered with in writ proceedings unless decision is based on irrelevant consideration or on invalid consideration. AIR 1965 SC 107, Rel. on. 1964 MPLJ (Notes) 169.

——Art. 226 — Powers of Transport Authorities — They perform executive functions in quasi-judicial manner — Competitive claims—Considerations to be taken into account — Failure to bring out all grounds of preference — No ground for interference under Art. 226 of Constitution. See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 47. AIR 1962 Madh Pra 199 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Jurisdiction of High Court — Applications for stage carriage permit under S. 47, Motor Vehicles Act — Rival claimants A and B for particular route — Permit granted to A — Point urged in writ proceedings that previously A's application for permit was rejected on ground of his inexperience in business — Held, that the previous order could not be taken into consideration, for each order, when it comes up, has to be examined on its own merits — It may well be that the earlier orders may be wrong or that the claimant did not place before the Transport Authorities sufficient material to establish his previous experience of the business — Held, further that even if the impugned order was erroneous, it could not be assailed in writ proceedings because the High Court could not allow proceedings in certiorari to assume the cloak of an appeal in disguise. It has, in fact, no jurisdiction to do so. AIR 1959 Mad 492; AIR 1958 SC 398 and M. P. No. 212 of 1960, Rel. on. ILR (1963) Madh Pra 238: 1962 MPC 129: 1962 MPLJ 570: (1962) Jab LJ 941: AIR 1962 Madh Pra 199 (201) (Pt A) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Illegal order — Interference — Regional Transport Authority cannot grant temporary permit when application under S. 46 is pending — Grant of temporary permit illegal — High Court will interfere under Art. 226 even though remedy by way of revision not availed of. See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 46. 1961 MPLJ (Notes) 141.

——Arts. 226, 227 — Motor Vehicles Act (1939), Section 60 — Order granting permit to B in preference to A — Appeal by A on ground that B had obtained permit by fraud — Proper remedy — S. T. A. refusing to enquire into matter — Does not amount to failure to exercise jurisdiction. See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 60. AIR 1959 Madh Pra 320.

——Art. 226 — Interference — Grounds.

Whether or not the High Court may agree with the decision of the Appellate Authority acting under the provisions of the Motor Vehicles Act, if it cannot be said that there was any excessive exercise or non-exercise of jurisdiction or any apparent error on record which has resulted in manifest injustice the High Court will not scrutinise the matter for itself in a writ proceeding even if a different view may be taken of it. 1957 Jab LJ 724: 1957 MPC 344: AIR 1958 Madh Pra 9 (11) (Pt F) (Pr 9).

——Art. 226 — Writ against order of State Transport Appellate Tribunal under S. 64, Motor Vehicles Act — Interference.

Where in appeal filed against the order of R. T. A. refusing to grant permit to any of the applicants the State Transport Appellate Tribunal after considering the merits of the claims of the respective appellants grants the permit to one of them the order cannot be challenged under Art. 226. The question of allotment of marks is entirely one for the Tribunal and any error in that respect cannot be corrected by the High Court in proceedings under Art. 226. It is entirely within the jurisdiction of the Tribunal to refuse to grant permit to one of the appellants on the ground that he is almost a monopolist over that route and the matter cannot be raised in proceedings under Art. 226. ILR (1964) 2 Mad 631: AIR 1966 Mad 1 (6) (Pt D) (Pr 10) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 43-A (Madras) — G. O. No. 1298 of 1956 issued by Madras Government containing directions for issue of stage carriage permits — Order declared invalid — Regional Transport Authorities and Appellate Tribunal relying on the order in exercising their quasi-judicial functions — Their orders are not judicial and can be set aside under Art. 226 — Existence of error of law manifest on record not necessary — Setting aside of decision of only Appellate Tribunal held sufficient.

The existence of the Madras Government order No. G. O. 1298 of 1956 issued under S. 43-A of the Motor Vehicles Act 1939 and containing directions for issuing stage carriage permits which has been declared invalid by the Supreme Court had necessarily the effect of fettering the independent discretion of the quasi-judicial authorities like the Regional Transport Authorities and the Appellate Tribunal functioning under the Act and the consequence was inevitable that the decision reached by that quasi-judicial authority could no longer be regarded as having proceeded independent of the directions contained in the Government order, except perhaps in cases where that authority specifically stated for reasons recorded that it was not pursuing the directions contained in the Government order. Undoubtedly the result is that the decision reached by the authority is no longer a judicial one and looked at in that light, it is not a question whether there exists any error of law manifest on record or whether there is a legal misconduct in the disposal of the matter. It is clear that, if the mode of disposal of a judicial matter is unjudicial, the High Court can interfere in the exercise of its writ jurisdiction. AIR 1964 SC 1573, Rel. on.

Held that in the circumstances of the case, it would be sufficient if the order of the State Transport Appellate Tribunal alone was quashed and the matter remitted for reconsideration of the appeals before that authority. ILR (1964) 2 Mad 821: AIR 1965 Mad 473 (475, 476, 477) (Prs 8, 11, 13) (DB).

[Partially Reversed in AIR 1966 SC 1366.]

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Order of State Transport Appellate Tribunal granting permit suffering from constraining influence of Government orders — Order of Tribunal is vitiated and writ of certiorari will issue — But bare citation of Government orders cannot be tantamount to proof of constraining or compelling influence — Held on facts that appellant was entitled to urge his ground within ambit of S. 64 (1) (f), Motor Vehicles Act, that grant in favour of second respondent was vitiated by constraining influence of Government orders and that, therefore, appellant was entitled to issue of writ of certiorari quashing grant of permit to second respondent — Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 64 (1) (a) (Madras Amendment). ILR (1965) 2 Mad 256.

——Art. 226 — Motor Vehicles Act (1939), Section 47 — Mark system — Applications for grant of stage-carriage permits — Possession of facilities on date of hearing of Regional Transport Authority is alone relevant for assessment — State Transport Appellate Tribunal taking notice of subsequently acquired facilities and setting aside assessment of marks — It commits error of law justifying interference in certiorari. See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 47. (1963) 2 Mad LJ 405: AIR 1964 Mad 266 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Discretion of State Transport Appellate Tribunal — Interference — (Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 42 (1)).

Where the State Transport Appellate Tribunal had actually considered the record of service of a person applying for a permit to ply stage carriage, it was for that authority to decide what importance it would attach to his previous bad record. That subject was very properly within the jurisdiction of the Tribunal. It is not for the High Court under Art. 226 to substitute its discretion for that of the State Transport Appellate Tribunal in a matter of this kind. 1959 Mad WN 281: 1959 Mad LJ (Cr) 280: 1959 Cri LJ 1192: (1959) 1 Mad LJ 256: AIR 1959 Mad 453 (454) (Pt A) (Pr 5).

——Art. 226 — Quasi-judicial orders — Cancellation or suspension of permits under S. 60, Motor Vehicles Act. See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 44 (5). AIR 1957 Mad 387 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 68 — Rules under — Rule 160-B is intra vires — 'Individual cases of application of Rule 160-B is subject to review under Art. 226. AIR 1954 Mad 690, Rel. on. 1955 Mad WN 910: (1956) 1 MLJ 179: 69 Mad LW 1051: ILR (1956) Mad 1272: AIR 1956 Mad 349 (352) (Pt E) (Pr 15).

——Art. 226 — Application against Regional Transport Authority — (Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 44).

A Regional Transport Authority acts in the exercise of judicial or quasi-judicial functions and therefore its action can be called in question before the High Court on an application under Art. 226. AIR 1953 SC 79, Disting. (1953) 1 MLJ 533: 1953 Mad WN 250: 66 Mad LW 310: ILR (1954) Mad 36: AIR 1953 Mad 709 (710, 711) (Pt C) (Pr 6) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 64 — Powers of appellate authority.

A right of appeal can only be conferred by a statute and the scope of that appeal is also confined to the limits prescribed by the statute. The Regional Transport Authority in exercise of his original jurisdiction, and the Central Road Traffic Board and the Government in discharge of their appellate and revisional jurisdiction are bound to act judicially. The Central Road Traffic Board cannot therefore give a relief to an appellant in respect of a matter not covered by the appeal to the detriment of a person not a party to that appeal. The order made by the Central Road Traffic Board being without jurisdiction, the fact that the Government in revision refused to interfere, could not give it higher sanctity or make it any the less an order passed without jurisdiction. And a writ of certiorari can be issued as fundamental principles of jurisprudence are violated. 1927-1 KB 491, 1934-1 KB 277, Rel. on. ILR (1952) Mad 306: 1951 Mad WN 776 (2): 64 Mad LW 860: 1951-2 Mad LJ 406: AIR 1952 Mad 39 (39, 40) (Prs 4, 6).

——Art. 226 — Grounds for issue — Order of suspension of permit to run a bus by the Regional Transport Authority on the ground of overloading — Presence during the proceedings before the Board of the Secretary of the Transport Authority who detected the overloading and suggested action being taken — If ground for issue of writ.

A suspension order issued by the Regional Transport Authority was sought to be quashed on the ground that the presence of the Secretary of the Transport Board at the meeting of the Board vitiated the whole proceedings as it was the Secretary himself who put up the note that action should be taken against the petitioner for overloading and he also happened to be the person who actually detected the overloading.

Held, that as there was no decision of the Secretary which was the subject-matter of an appeal before the Transport Authority nor had he any personal interest in the matter, his presence cannot be a ground for quashing the order. 52 Cr LJ 1023: 1951 Mad WN 395: 64 LW 450: (1951) 1 MLJ 673: AIR 1951 Mad 852 (2) (853) (Pr 2) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Motor Vehicles Act (1939), Ss. 57 (3) and (5), 47, 64 — Provisions of S. 57 (3) and (5) are mandatory — Grant of permits by State Transport Authority without receiving representations and without hearing persons making representations — Grant of permits is arbitrary and without jurisdiction — Defect cannot be cured by appellate authority. See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 57 (3) and (5). AIR 1960 Manipur 36.

——Art. 226 — Application for revised timings — Order by Regional Transport Authority tentatively altering timings — Order is illegal — Order set aside in revision by State Transport Appellate Tribunal — Latter order not to be interfered with under Art. 226 of the Constitution on ground that though correct it was not rested on proper ground. See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 48 (3) (xxi). AIR 1962 Mys 87 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Writ against Regional Transport Authority (Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 57).

High Court can interfere and issue a writ against statutory Tribunals like the Regional Transport Authority and the Provincial Transport Authority if it is shown that their decisions disclose a violation of the provisions of the Motor Vehicles Act and are proved to be arbitrary. 18 Cut LT 296: AIR 1953 Orissa 235 (236) (Pt A) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Writ of certiorari — Jurisdiction to issue — Order of Chairman, Provincial Transport Authority, deciding incompetent appeal under S. 64, Motor Vehicles Act — Writ to quash — If can issue.

A writ of certiorari would lie not only against the orders of a Court but also against an order of a tribunal exercising judicial functions though such a tribunal is not a Court. The Chairman, Provincial Transport Authority, hearing and disposing of an appeal under S. 64 of the Motor Vehicles Act is not a Court, as ordinarily understood, but his order made in such an appeal is clearly a judicial act being one passed after hearing the parties and after deciding between a proposal and an opposition, and when an order is made without or in excess of jurisdiction (e. g., on an incompetent appeal), a writ will issue to quash the order. ILR (1944) Kar (PC) 119, AIR 1948 Mad 454, Rel. on. 16 Cut LT 202: AIR 1951 Orissa 81 (84) (Pt D) (Pr 8) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Motor Vehicles Act (1939), Sections 47 (1), 64-A — Grant of permit — Application under S. 64-A against order of Appeal Board — Transport Minister taking relevant matters into consideration — No error in exercise of discretion and revisional powers — Order not interfered with under Art. 226 — Motor Vehicles Act (1939), Sections 47 (1), 64-A. 1964 BLJR 459: ILR 44 Pat 282.

——Art. 226 — Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 64 — Grant of permit by Regional Transport Authority — Appeal Board setting aside the order — Ground not relevant for decision — Order held arbitrary and set aside under Art. 226. See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 64. AIR 1961 Pat 484.

——Arts. 226 and 19 (1) (g) — Right to carry on business of transport on public road — Extent of — State Government granting licence to ply buses on particular road to A in addition to that granted previously to B — Absence of notice to B — Order is not invalid and cannot be challenged by B by way of writ petition — Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 47 and S. 64-A (Bihar Amendment). See Ibid, Art. 19 (1) (g). AIR 1957 Pat 340 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Decisions by quasi-judicial Tribunal — Issue of writs — (C. P. Code (1908), S. 9) — (Special Tribunal) — (Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 64).

The writs in Art. 226 are obviously intended to enable the High Court to issue them in grave cases where the subordinate tribunals, or bodies or officers acted wholly without jurisdiction or in excess thereof or in violation of the principles of natural justice, and however extensive that jurisdiction may be, it is not wide or large as to enable the High Court to convert itself into a Court of appeal and examine for itself the correctness of the decision impugned. AIR 1952 SC 192 and AIR 1951 SC 217, Rel. on.

There is a basic difference between want of jurisdiction and illegal and irregular exercise of jurisdiction. Where there is illegality or irregularity in the exercise of jurisdiction, the defect, if any, can be corrected according to the procedure established by the law by way of appeal or revision; and where the appellate Court has pronounced its decision against the petitioner, the matter having been finally decided, it should not be ordinarily reopened in a proceeding by way of a writ.

Transport Authorities are bodies exercising quasi-judicial functions and have to act within the framework of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1939, in deciding matters which are placed before them and which affect valuable rights of parties; but when the appellate body has dealt with the matter on merits, it is perhaps too late for the High Court to interfere by a writ of certiorari to quash the orders of those Authorities when there is nothing to show that the appellate authority acted without jurisdiction, or in violation of fundamental principles of justice. 1953 BLJR 40: 32 Pat 43: AIR 1953 Pat 75 (76, 77) (Prs 6, 7) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Claims Tribunal — Powers of — S. 110-C of Motor Vehicles Act does not clothe Tribunal with all powers of Civil Court so as to attract provisions of O. 16, C. P. C. — Rules of natural justice to be complied with — Order disallowing production of witness — Order held contravened rules of natural justice — Order quashed. See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 110-C. AIR 1965 Punj 477.

——Art. 226 — Order of Chief Commissioner in appeal against order of State Transport Authority is quasi-judicial — Jurisdiction of High Court under Art. 226, can be invoked only if there is manifest error of law — Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 64. 63 Punj LR 930: AIR 1962 Punj 64 (65) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Variation in the condition of permit granted to the petitioner under S. 48 of the Motor Vehicles Act — Notice as required by Section 48 (3) (xxi) not given to petitioner — Change causing great financial loss to petitioner — As the non-issue of the notice as required by the statute had resulted in manifest injustice to the petitioner the High Court could interfere under Art. 226 of the Constitution. 64 Punj LR 34: AIR 1962 Punj 17 (21) (Pt B) (Pr 7).

——Art. 226 — State Transport Authority acting under S. 62 of the Motor Vehicles Act (1939) — Decision can be interfered with under Art. 226.

The State Transport Authority acts in a quasi-judicial manner while granting temporary permits under S. 62 of the Motor Vehicles Act. Where there is no material on the record for holding that there was a particular temporary need, mere assertion by the authority that there was such a temporary need without any basis, would not be a compliance with the statutory provisions of S. 62 of the Act in order to justify the grant of temporary permit. Under such circumstances, the High Court is justified in issuing a writ of certiorari and quashing the impugned finding. AIR 1952 SC 192 and AIR 1954 Raj 33 and AIR 1956 Madh Bha 231 and AIR 1959 Mys 120, Rel. on. 64 Punj LR 34: AIR 1962 Punj 17 (21, 22, 23) (Pt C) (Prs 10, 11).

——Art. 226 — Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 33 — Natural justice — Order passed under S. 33 of Act is quasi-judicial — Hearing not given to party concerned — Order is invalid. 1965 Raj LW 49: ILR (1965) 15 Raj 100: AIR 1965 Raj 149 (150, 151) (Pt A) (Prs 4, 6) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 33 — Quasi-judicial act — Suspension of registration certificate is quasi-judicial act.

To determine whether an administrative act has to be performed judicially, the test is whether the statute has expressly or impliedly imposed upon the statutory body the duty to act judicially. The question whether or not there is a duty to act judicially must be decided in each case in the light of the circumstances of the particular case and the construction of the particular statute with the assistance of the general principles laid down in judicial decisions. AIR 1950 SC 222 and AIR 1959 SC 107 and AIR 1954 SC 728 and AIR 1957 SC 232 and AIR 1958 SC 398, Rel. on. A quasi- judicial act is also an administrative act, though a duty is cast on the executive authority acting quasi-judicially to conform to norms of judicial procedure in performing the act in exercise of executive powers. AIR 1959 SC 308, Rel. on.

Looking to the language of S. 33 of the Motor Vehicles Act, it is evident that the decision that the authority has to reach before passing the requisite orders is not contemplated to be a capricious or an arbitrary one, but should only be reached in a reasonable manner and after an opportunity is given to the owner of the vehicle of making a representation, if any. Sub-s. (2) of S. 35 of the Act is more or less assimilated to the procedural provisions of hearing appeals under S. 64. This affords a further clue to get at the true character of the proceedings before the registering authority or the prescribed authority. Hence, in view of the grave consequences that will result in denial of a vested right to an owner of a motor vehicle, the administrative act taken under S. 33 of the Act must be construed to be quasi-judicial in character. The suspension of registration certificate is a matter of infliction of punishment for a wrong act on the part of the owner of the motor vehicle and is not merely one of policy. AIR 1959 SC 107 and AIR 1950 SC 222 and AIR 1959 SC 308, Foll. (1952) 1 All ER 480, Rel. on. 1965 Raj LW 49: ILR (1965) 15 Raj 100: AIR 1965 Raj 149 (151, 152) (Pt B) (Prs 6, 7) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Quasi-judicial order — Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 64-A — Necessary parties — Applicants for fresh permits applying for revision without impleading existing operators — S. T. A. relaxing restrictions on issue of permits and remanding case to R. T. A. for disposal — Existing operators ought to have been impleaded as respondents in revision although final order was not passed. See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), Section 64-A. AIR 1964 Raj 275 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Plying of buses on particular route — Operators acquire proprietary right — Right affected — Existing operators must be given opportunity of being heard. See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 42. AIR 1962 Raj 174 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Order by appellate authority under Motor Vehicles Act when it was illegally constituted suffers from patent want of jurisdiction. See Motor Vehicles Act (1939 as amended in 1950), S. 44. AIR 1960 Raj 105 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy — Appeal pending before Appellate Tribunal of State Transport Authority — Petition before High Court agitating same — (Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 35).

Where the petitioners have come up to the High Court, in a matter which is properly pending before the Appellate Tribunal of the State Transport Authority, it is for that Tribunal to decide the question on the merits whether the temporary permit granted by the Regional Transport Authority to the opposite party was in accordance with law or not, and it is not for the High Court to interpose its decision on that point at this stage. 1957 Raj LW 488: ILR (1957) 7 Raj 1025: AIR 1958 Raj 165 (166, 167) (Prs 5, 6) (DB).

● ——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 47 (1) (c) — Rajasthan Motor Vehicles Rules (1951), R. 90 — Few more permits granted on route on which existing stage carriages were not running daily — Order is not liable to be quashed by writ of certiorari — Order is not repugnant to condition regarding adequacy of existing road passenger transport service. Malik Ram v. Regional Transport Authority, Jaipur, 1956 Raj LW 257: ILR (1956) 6 Raj 751: AIR 1956 Raj 142 (145) (Pt C) (Pr 13) (FB).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Decision on collateral point—Powers of Appellate Authority under S. 64, Motor Vehicles Act — Decision on question of limitation and locus standi — Interference with on writ of certiorari— (Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 64) — (Rajasthan Motor Vehicles Ordinance (XIV of 1950), Rules under R. 108).

In every case it has to be seen whether the decision which is challenged by a writ of certiorari is on a point collateral to the merits of the case or a part of the very issue which a lower Court has to enquire into. If it is the former, certiorari will lie; but if it is the latter, certiorari will not be granted. The question whether the matter is collateral or part of the very issue in the case depends upon the powers granted to the tribunal by the Legislature. If the legislature entrusts the tribunal with a jurisdiction which includes the jurisdiction to determine whether the preliminary state of facts exists, as well as the jurisdiction on finding that it does exist to proceed further or do something more, the tribunal will have the jurisdiction to decide the matter and it will not be collateral.

Reading S. 64, Motor Vehicles Act, with R. 108 framed under Rajasthan Motor Vehicles Ordinance, the conclusion is obvious that the appellate authority has the widest power and has jurisdiction to determine questions of limitation and locus standi and the High Court cannot interfere with their decision on a writ of certiorari even though it may be wrong. AIR 1952 SC 319, Applied. ILR (1953) 3 Raj 931: 1954 RLW 649: AIR 1955 Raj 19 (23, 24) (Pt C) (Prs 9, 10, 11a) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mala fides — [Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 62].

Regional Transport Authority exercising powers of issuing temporary and non-temporary permits, acts as quasi-judicial authority — Certiorari will issue if it acts without jurisdiction or refuses to exercise jurisdiction or acts illegally or with material irregularity — Authority exercising powers under S. 62, Motor Vehicles Act, and granting temporary permit — It is for the authority to decide the need for temporary permit — High Court will not interfere because it considers that there was no need for temporary permit, unless the action of the authority is mala fide. AIR 1952 SC 192, Rel. on: AIR 1948 Mad 400: AIR 1951 All 257 (FB): AIR 1953 Assam 74, Considered. 1953 Raj LW 440: ILR (1953) 3 Raj 250: AIR 1954 Raj 78 (80) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 226 (1) — Writ of certiorari — R. T. A. acting under S. 62, Motor Vehicles Act is quasi-judicial authority. See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 62. AIR 1954 Raj 33 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Judicial authority — Appellate authority under Motor Vehicles Act is a quasi-judicial authority. See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 64. AIR 1953 Raj 193.

——Art. 226 — Motor Vehicles Act (1939), Sections 58 (2) and 47 — Application for renewal of permit — Discretion of Regional Transport Authority — No absolute right to renewal at old rate — Renewal of permit at a rate below prescribed minimum — Petitioner cannot accept permit and repudiate the rate.

The grant of a permit is entirely within the discretion of the Regional Transport Authority and there is neither an absolute right to a permit or a renewal thereof, nor again to its being given at the old rate.

Where the petitioner under Art. 226 had been granted the renewal of his permit on his offering a rate below the prescribed minimum under an apprehension that he would lose his permit in case he did not offer a lower bid as required by the Regional Transport Authority, it is not open to the petitioner to accept the renewal of the permit and to repudiate the condition requiring him to charge fares at the agreed rate. If the proceedings of the Regional Transport Authority and the final decision taken by it are illegal then the entire proceedings and the decision must be set aside. The petitioner cannot have it both ways, namely, to retain the benefit of the permit and to disown the rate at which it was granted. If he seeks to operate the routes under the renewed permit then he has to abide by the permit together with its conditions. 8 Sau LR 90: AIR 1955 Sau 57 (59, 60) (Pt D) (Prs 8, 10) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Issue of stage carriage permits under Motor Vehicles Act — (Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 48).

Grant of a permit is entirely within the discretion of the Transport authorities to be exercised according to Motor Vehicles Act which provides for what matters are to be taken into consideration — The remedies for the redress of grievances or the correction of errors are found in the statute itself and should generally be resorted to — Act under which applications were made superseded during their pendency — Issue of permits on those applications when they have not been renewed under new Act is mere irregularity in exercise of jurisdiction and can be waived — When parties join issues in the proceedings and object to the applications on merits they cannot question authority to issue the permits, on the ground of irregularity in the proceedings under Art. 226 — Order is also not vitiated on the ground of arbitrariness because it states that it is against the interest of travelling public to encourage monopoly for thereby it does not take into consideration any policy extraneous to the Act. Case-law relied on. ILR (1952) Trav-Co 923: 1952 Ker LT 652: AIR 1953 Trav-Co 102 (103, 104) (Pt A) (Prs 2, 3, 4, 5,) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Transport Authority is quasi-judicial body — Violation of provisions under Motor Vehicles Act — Writ can be issued.

The Transport Authority is a body constituted under the Motor Vehicles Act. It is a quasi-judicial body when dealing with the application for the State Carriage permit. When such a body has violated the provisions of the Statute by which it is created the High Court has certainly the power to issue a writ of certionari. English and Indian Case-law relied on.

Where the Transport Authority violated the provisions of the Motor Vehicles Act and exceeded its jurisdiction in granting a Stage Carriage permit to the counter-petitioner for running a Stage Carriage on a route not included in its application and notified as R. O. C. No. 302 M. R. B./50 the order of the Transport Authority, and that of Government confirming that order, were quashed. 1952 Ker LT 515: ILR (1953) Trav-Co 234: AIR 1953 Trav-Co 74 (76) (Pt B) (Pr 8).

——Art. 226 — Travancore Motor Vehicles Act (1 of 1117), S. 54 (4) — Application rejected by Transport Authority — On appeal Government ordering issue of writ — Decision of Government is not ultra vires. See Travancore Motor Vehicles Act (1 of 1117), S. 54 (4). AIR 1952 Trav-Co 443.

——Art. 226 — High Court, powers of — Stage carriage permit granted without following essential requirements of law — Discretion of Transport Authority — (Motor Vehicles Act (1939), Ss. 62 and 57).

In a certiorari proceeding the Court will not deal with the matter as a Court of appeal, and will not examine the order in detail, and will confine itself only to errors of law apparent on the face of the record.

Where the Transport Authority in granting stage carriage permit did not follow the mandatory requirements of law, the proceedings will be amenable to Certiorari. The High Court will not, however, give direction to issue permit to petitioner, since this is in the discretion of the transport authorities, but it will quash the illegal order of the Authority. AIR 1959 Tripura 35 (37) (Pt C) (Pr 14).

——Art. 226 — Motor Vehicles Act (1939), Sections 47, 48 — Transport authority refusing permit for bus service on grounds other than those mentioned in S. 47 — Validity of order. See Ibid, Art. 19 (1) (g). AIR 1956 Vin Pra 25.

——Arts. 226 and 227 — Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 64 — Appellate tribunal under.

The Appellate Tribunal under M. V. Act is a judicial authority subject to the High Court's judicial supervision, and amenable to its guidance and correction. AIR 1953 VP 41 (42) (Pt C) (Pr 9).

182. University, college and education authorities.

● ——Art. 226 — Order by quasi-judicial tribunal based on no evidence — High Court will interfere — Enquiry Committee of University cancelling examination result of student — Nature of evidence — Duty of High Court in writ petition — Education Institution. H. S. and I. E. Board v. Baglesh-war, (1963) 1 SCWR 1: 1963 SCD 584: (1963) 2 SCJ 651: 1963 All LJ 676: ILR (1963) 2 All 499: (1963) 2 Andh LT 119: (1963) 3 SCR 767: AIR 1966 SC 875 (876, 878) (Prs 4, 12).

● ——Art. 226 — Academic matters—Board of experts appointed by university for selection of candidates for post of Reader — Recommendation of Board — Interference by Court, propriety of.

Boards of Appointments to the posts of teachers are nominated by the Universities and when recommendations made by them and the appointments following on them, are challenged before Courts, normally the Courts should be slow to interfere with the opinions expressed by the experts. If there is no allegation about mala fides against the experts who constituted the Board, it would normally be wise and safe for the Courts to leave the decisions of academic matters to experts who are more familiar with the problems they face than the Courts generally can be. The Board is not in the position of an executive authority, issuing an executive fiat, nor does it act like a quasi-judicial tribunal, deciding disputes referred to it for its decision. In dealing with complaints made by citizens in regard to appointments made by academic bodies, like the Universities, such an approach would not be reasonable or appropriate. Tests which would legitimately be applied in the case of writs of certiorari cannot be applied. The question of manifest error is a consideration which is more germane and relevant in a procedure for a writ of certiorari. What the High Court should consider is whether the appointment made by the Chancellor on the recommendation of the Board had contravened any statutory or binding rule or ordinance, and in doing so, the High Court should show due regard to the opinion expressed by the Board and its recommendations on which the Chancellor has acted. University of Mysore v. Govinda Rao, (1964) 1 SCWR 44: AIR 1965 SC 491 (496, 497) (Pt D) (Pr 13).

●——Art. 226—Quasi-judicial act — What constitutes — Administrative body — Statutory education authority — Examinations Committee under U. P. Intermediate Education Act — Action in cases of examinees using unfair means — Committee acts quasi-judicially — Principle of audi alteram partem applies — U. P. Intermediate Education Act (II of 1921), Ss. 13 and 15.

If a statutory authority has power to do any act which will prejudicially affect the subject, then, although the contest is between the authority proposing to do the act and the subject opposing it, the final determination of the authority will yet be a quasi-judicial act provided the authority is required by the Statute to act judicially: AIR 1950 SC 222 (260) and AIR 1958 SC 398 and AIR 1959 SC 107 and AIR 1959 SC 308 and AIR 1960 SC 606, Foll. The statute is not likely to provide in so many words that the authority is required to act judicially; that can only be inferred from the express provisions of the statute. The inference whether the authority has the duty to act judicially will depend on the express provisions of the statute read along with the nature of the rights affected. A duty to act judicially may arise in widely different circumstances. Observations of Parker, J. in (1952) 2 QB 413, Rel. on.

The Examinations Committee of the Board of High School and Intermediate Education, U. P., appointed under S. 13 of the U. P. Intermediate Education Act (II of 1921), when it exercises its powers under R. 1 (1) of Chap. VI of the Regulations framed under S. 15, in dealing with cases of examinees using unfair means in examination halls, is acting quasi-judicially and the principles of natural justice will apply to the proceedings before the Committee. AIR 1952 Cal 594 and AIR 1953 Cal 212, Approved.

Where no opportunity whatever was given to the examinees to give an explanation and present their case before the Committee, the resolution of the Committee cancelling their results and debarring them from appearing at the next examination is vitiated. Decision in AIR 1956 All 539, sustained, though its view that the Committee was acting merely administratively when proceeding under R. 1 (1) held not correct. Board of High School and Intermediate Education, U. P. v. Ghanshayam Das Gupta, ILR (1962) 2 All 661: (1963) 2 SCJ 599: (1962) Supp 3 SCR 36: 64 Pun LR 575: 1962 All LJ 776: AIR 1962 SC 1110 (1113, 1114, 1115, 1116) (Prs 7, 8, 11, 12).

——Art. 226 — Quasi-judicial act — Statutory educational authority — Board of High School and Intermediate Education under U. P. Intermediate Education Act — Examinee securing undue admission to examination — Action against — Board acts quasi-judicially — Order cancelling his examination or refusing to declare result is penal — Denial of opportunity to candidate — Natural justice violated.

The Board of High School and Intermediate Education, U. P. constituted under the U. P. Intermediate Education Act and the Chairman of the Board while performing Board's functions act quasi-judicially in considering the cases either of using unfair means at or securing undue admission to examination. Before passing an order either cancelling the examination or refusing to declare the result of a student admitted to the examination though short of prescribed attendance, the Board or the Chairman has to give an opportunity to the student concerned for an explanation. Denial of such an opportunity contravenes principle of natural justice.

The Board or the Chairman in considering the cases of either using unfair means at the examinations or of securing undue admission has to form an objective opinion on some questions of fact or law and such an order amounts to imposition of penalty since it would adversely affect the career of the student and would deprive him or her of the labour put in. In cases where the question relates only to a breach of the rules and regulations for securing undue admission to an examination no stigma may be involved but on that account the order withholding the result or cancelling the examination does not cease to be penal. AIR 1962 SC 1110, Foll. AIR 1950 SC 222 and AIR 1959 SC 107, Dist. AIR 1963 All 41 (42, 43, 44) (Prs 11, 13, 14) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Regulations under Chap. VI, Para. 1 (1) — Examinations committee considering cases under Para. 1 (1) — Committee not required to act judicially or quasi-judicially. See U. P. Intermediate Education Act (2 of 1921), S. 15. AIR 1956 All 539.

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Interference in University matter.

The High Court is always reluctant to interfere in matters relating to the management of educational bodies. The Court's discretion must however be exercised on judicial principles, and if there is nothing in the conduct of the petitioner which disentitles him from the relief which he seeks, certiorari cannot be refused on the ground that the matter is essentially a University matter and the order was made in good faith and that the harmonious working of the University requires the unquestioning acceptance of the decision of the Chancellor. 1955 All LJ 244: ILR (1955) 1 All 698: AIR 1955 All 131 (137) (Pt F) (Pr 16).

——Art. 226 — Administrative body — Opportunity to be heard.

Though the Board of Examiners is an administrative body the functions exercised by the Examination Board when it investigates into cases of misconduct are quasi-judicial and the candidate concerned should have a reasonable opportunity to offer an explanation. If such an opportunity has been afforded and the explanation of the candidate concerned has been considered, the principles of natural justice are complied with and thereafter the procedure to be followed and the penalty to be imposed are matters which are solely within the jurisdiction of the Examination Board. AIR 1952 Cal 594, Rel. on. 1955 Andhra WR 439: AIR 1955 NUC (Andh Pra) 5823.

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Issue of writ — Direction by University regarding constitution of governing body of College as condition for recognition.

A direction issued by a University regarding the constitution of a governing body of a College as a condition for recognition of the college by the University, emanates from an executive authority, and is not quasi-judicial in character. A writ of certiorari does not, therefore, lie in such a case. ILR (1951) 3 Assam 348: AIR 1951 Assam 163 (165) (Pt C) (Pr 18) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Writ against college authority for refusal to admit student. See Ibid, Art. 20 (2). AIR 1954 Hyd 25 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Writ against University in Disciplinary matter — Rustication of delinquent student by University authorities — Rustication order affects civil rights of student — Order is not purely administrative act but quasi-judicial act — Writ against order is maintainable. AIR 1950 SC 222, Foll.; AIR 1954 Pepsu 151, Rel. on. 1965 Kash LJ 23: AIR 1965 J and K 23 (26) (Pt A) (Prs 20, 22, 23, 24).

——Art. 226 — Power to interfere with quantum of punishment decided by educational authority against delinquent student — Educational authority is exclusive judge. AIR 1954 Pepsu 151, Dissented. AIR 1956 All 46 and AIR 1960 All 579, Rel. on. 1965 Kash LJ 23: AIR 1965 J and K 23 (28) (Pt C) (Pr 37).

——Art. 226 — Administrative order — Order to manager of School to appoint new headmaster — Issue of writ.

No certiorari can issue to quash an administrative order. The real test as to whether an order is administrative or judicial is to see whether there is a duty to act judicially. A memorandum, passed by the Director of Upper and Lower Primary Schools, Trivandrum, calling upon the manager of an Upper Primary School to appoint a new headmaster is nothing but an executive or administrative order. This administrative order is not subject to such defect or infirmity, as would warrant the exercise of the extraordinary jurisdiction under Art. 226. 1959 Ker LT 1130: 1959 Ker LJ 1285: (1960) 1 Lab LJ 73: AIR 1960 Ker 145 (145, 146) (Prs 3, 5, 7).

——Art. 226 — Quasi-judicial tribunal — Statutory bodies under University Act — The Syndicate and the Results Committee while condemning a student alleged to have used unfair means at examination act quasi-judicially — It is their duty to decide whether student has in fact used unfair means, objectively and to act quasi-judicially — They must give opportunity to the student to be heard. See Vikram University Act (XVIII of 1955), S. 19. 1965 Jab LJ 912: AIR 1966 Madh Pra 136 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Powers of High Court — University — Punishment inflicted on candidate at examination for mal-practice — Administrative act— If subject to writ jurisdiction — Powers of Court — Natural justice — Procedure and practice — Duty of University Authority in taking decision — Principles.

It is not the law that where an academic body, such as a University, imposes on its pupil (a candidate appearing for an examination) a punishment for a malpractice at the examination, it is doing a mere administrative act, the propriety of which cannot be called in question in proceedings under Art. 226 of the Constitution. The absence of rules or regulations prescribing the procedure to be followed in such cases for taking disciplinary action cannot vest in the University an absolute power to do what it likes. At the same time, it has to be borne in mind that it is not every act of the statutory authority that can be called in question under the extraordinary powers vested in the High Court under the Constitution.

Where the University entrusted with the authority to determine whether there has been a breach of discipline and to punish for such breach, the imposition of punishment, in that case is a quasi-judicial act and is subject to the controlling jurisdiction of the High Court exercised under Article 226. The fact that the University is the judge and there are no two parties to the dispute is not material. It is therefore implicit that the University Authority should come to its own conclusions on the subject-matter left to its decision and in so doing it should conform to the principles of natural justice. When the student has been given sufficient opportunity of which he has availed himself to show that the charge against him was not true, there can be no grievance so far as that matter is concerned.

In considering whether the authority has itself considered the matter and come to its own conclusions, the circumstance that the minutes books of the meeting held for the purpose makes no reference to any discussion having taken place does not lead to the conclusion that the authority has not properly discharged its duty. A minutes book is generally not intended to contain and does not usually contain all that took place at the meeting. In this respect a distinction should be made between the report of a meeting and the minutes thereof, as the purpose of the latter is only to record the decision arrived at.

When it is found that the practice of the University is only to record its resolutions and there is nothing in the constitution, regulations or statute to oblige it to record even a summary of the discussion on the resolutions, it is not obligatory on the authority to write a judgment giving reasons. The burden is on the applicant to show that the authority did not actually decide the matter or acted in excess of its powers. ILR (1964) 1 Mad 582: (1964) 2 MLJ 251: 77 Mad LW 591: AIR 1965 Mad 107 (108), 109) (Pt A) (Prs 2, 3, 4) (DB).

——Art. 226—Educational institution—Misconduct by student — Disciplinary action — Power of head of institution — Duty to maintain moral standard among students — Institution giving vocational training — Student writing love letter to innocent girl, stranger to him and entering her house to deliver it — Expulsion of student for misconduct justified — Educational Institution — Penal Code (1860), Sections 441, 442.

The power to take disciplinary action against misbehaviour of a student is inherent in the head of an educational institution. The maintenance of moral and intellectual standards among the students is inherent in the very idea of an educational institution and does not depend upon the fact whether the institution is ad hoc or permanent. The responsibility of the head of the institution is not confined to the pupil who errs. He has a greater responsibility of protecting the morale of other students of the institution. He further owes a duty to maintain the reputation of the institution and while taking disciplinary action against a student who has misbehaved should take into account not only the interests of the particular pupil concerned but also those of the other students. 176 ER 734 (756); AIR 1952 Mad 151; AIR 1947 Bom 93, Rel. on.

Although the conditions under which students are admitted to the Training Centre do not expressly reserve a power to its head to take disciplinary action against a misbehaving student, such a power is inherent in the head of the institution.

The writing of love letters by a student to an innocent girl, who is a perfect stranger to him, must necessarily annoy her. Where therefore a student of a Government Footwear Training Centre, is found guilty of aforesaid misconduct, the head of the institution has power to expel him from the institution after he has been given full opportunity to explain his conduct and full inquiry is made in the matter. The offences committed by the student are such that it cannot be said that the termination of his training is unreasonable or even an excessive punishment. If the authorities thought that the maintenance of moral standard of the institution required a particular punishment, it will not be for the Court to advise or suggest a lesser punishment, as to do so would tantamount to require them to lower their standards. 75 Mad LW 602: (1962) 2 Mad LJ 435: ILR (1963) Mad 63: 1963 (2) Cri LJ 200: AIR 1963 Mad 68 (70, 71) (Pt A) (Prs 8, 9, 12, 13, 14, 15) (DB).

——Arts. 226, 19 (1) (g), 245 — Notification by Director of Public Instruction prescribing certain copy books for use in schools — Order arbitrary and creating monopoly — Notification quashed.

By a petition under Art. 226, two Notifications, dated 20th and 30th March 1954, respectively, and a Circular, dated 11th May 1954, issued by the Director of Public Instruction in Mysore were attacked as being unwarranted and unconstitutional. The notification prescribed the text books and copy books to be used in all the Primary and Middle Schools of the State. Objection was taken only to the prescription of the Kannada Copy Books described as "Adarsha Lipi Pusthaka" printed by the second Respondent. Special emphasis was laid on the use of the Copy books by means of a "N. B." in the notifications and the Educational Officers were enjoined in the Circular to enforce the same. The petitioner was a dealer in Kannada copy books, who was materially affected by his books being excluded from use in schools during the year. It was alleged by him that the orders were arbitrary and designed to benefit a particular businessman by creating a monopoly of trades in his favour.

Held, that on reading the provisions in the Mysore Education Manual and Notifications as a whole, the Director could not be deemed to be competent to prescribe the books of his choice suo motu.

(2) That the agency for determining the text books was the Secondary Education Board and the determination had to be given effect to by a formal notification. In any event, the consideration of the books by the Board was a pre-requisite for an order prescribing them.

(3) That the principle that if there are no rules for guiding and controlling the exercise of discretion by the person or body of persons then the power must be held to be arbitrary and unreasonable applied to the acts of the Director. AIR 1951 Cal 90 and AIR 1952 Mad 565; (1952) 1 MLJ 514, Ref.

(4) That under Art. 19 (1) (g) of the Constitution the citizen had the right to carry on any occupation, trade or business, subject to such restrictions as the State may impose in the interests of the public and such qualifications as are necessary for carrying on any occupation, trade or business.

(5) That the persons who made a living by sale of books or to whom it was a calling and those who had to provide the books necessary for education of pupils who depend on them were entitled to expect and demand the observance of rules and adherence to methods settled by practice so that there was no room for doubt-fancied or real-about play of personal predilections in the choice of books.

(6) That the orders in question were found to be without or in excess of jurisdiction and not in conformity with practice. Restrictions were placed on the use of books published by the petitioner and several others by granting monopoly of supply to the 2nd respondent. The burden of paying more for the 2nd respondent's books than for books of others was imposed on the pupils. Orders suffered from the infirmity of the absence of reasons for all this. The petitioners were therefore justified in challenging them, and the notifications and the circular so far as the copy books of 2nd respondent were concerned were quashed. ILR (1955) Mys 203: AIR 1955 Mys 81 (83, 84, 85, 86) (Pt A) (Prs 4, 6, 9, 10) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Jurisdiction of High Court.

The Principal of a College is subject to the jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution in respect of any disciplinary action taken by him against a student of the College, when the College of which he is the Principal is a public institution and the Principal is a public or quasi-public official. (1959) 1 OJD 195: ILR (1959) Cut 311: AIR 1959 Orissa 196 (200) (Pt B) (Pr 11).

——Art. 226 — Jurisdiction of High Court — Public or quasi-public office — Office of College Principal.

Held on facts (1) that the fact that the principal donor was the Rajah Bahadur of Khallikote and the College was named after him would not make it a purely private institution;

(2) that the Khallikote College was a public institution and the Principal of the College held an office which might be called a public or quasi-public office. AIR 1952 Mad 151, Rel. on.; AIR 1954 Trav-Co 199, Disting. (1959) 1 OJD 195: ILR (1959) Cut 311: AIR 1959 Orissa 196 (200) (Pt C) (Pr 11) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Writ of certiorari and Mandamus — Issue of against principal of college — Patna University Act (III of 1962), S. 34 — Regulations under — Patna University Regulations 4, 5 and 7 — Interpretation of — Shortage in attendance at lectures, tutorials and practicals — Calculation of minimum prescribed percentage — Mode of — Principal by notice, debarring student from appearing at University examination on ground of shortage on basis of miscalculation — Condonation of shortage not considered by Vice-Chancellor who was the proper authority under Regulation 5 — Notice held bad. 1965 BLJR 513.

——Art. 226 — Order of rustication of ex-students by Inspector of Schools — Legality — Writ in nature of certiorari to quash order. See Bihar and Orissa Education Code, Art. 211. AIR 1954 Pat 405 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Quasi-judicial authorities.

Where the petitioner had a right to continue as a scholar in the college and he could only be expelled on reasonable grounds, once that right of his under the law is affected by a decision of the Principal about his misconduct there is a presumption that the authority vested in the Principal to affect such right of the petitioner must be exercised quasi-judicially. AIR 1952 Cal 594, Ref. ILR (1954) Patiala 414: AIR 1954 Pepsu 151 (154, 155) (Pt B) (Pr 9).

——Art. 226 — University passing order in writing disqualifying petitioner from examinership — Petitioner not given opportunity to defend his case — Held that action of University involved exercise of quasi-judicial functions and opportunity of being heard should have been given to petitioner. See Punjab University Act (1961), Regulation VII Cl. 1. ILR (1965) 1 Punj 704: 1965 Cur LJ 197.

——Art. 226 — Power to interfere — Quasi-judicial order by Standing Committee of University — Use of unfair means in examination by student — Student disqualified without any supporting material on record — High Court can interfere in writ jurisdiction: AIR 1964 Punj 327, Foll. Educational Authority — Enquiry Proceedings. 1964 Cur LJ 348: 66 Punj LR 852.

——Art. 226 — Quasi-judicial tribunal.

The Board of Secondary Education, Rajasthan which is a statutory body under the Rajasthan Secondary Education Act, 1957, does not act as a quasi-judicial body in cancelling the registration of a publisher of educational books. Such order of cancellation is merely an executive act and no writ of certiorari can be issued to quash the order of the Board. ILR (1960) 10 Raj 760: 1960 Raj LW 209: AIR 1960 Raj 185 (187, 188) (Pt B) (Prs 6, 7) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Managing committee or ad hoc committee of school — Issue of certiorari.

A school is a public institution, and its Managing Committee or Ad hoc Committee is a public or quasi-public body, and there is nothing in Article 226 which debars the Courts from issuing a certiorari to such bodies or person in suitable cases. AIR 1954 Pat 297, Dissented from. AIR 1959 Tripura 27 (33) (Pt H) (Pr 37).

183. What is.

(a) Origin, nature and object.

(b) Pre-Constitution powers of High Court.

(c) Prohibition and certiorari.

(d) Mandamus and certiorari.

See also Note 229.

(e) Certiorari and revision.

183. What is.

●——Art. 226 — Writ of certiorari — Jurisdiction of High Court to issue — Nature and limits of — Finding of fact — Writ in respect of — When can be issued.

The jurisdiction of High Court to issue a writ of certiorari is a supervisory jurisdiction and the Court exercising it is not entitled to act as an appellate Court. This limitation necessarily means that findings of fact reached by the inferior Court or Tribunal as result of the appreciation of evidence cannot be reopened or questioned in writ proceedings. An error of law which is apparent on the face of the record can be corrected by a writ, but not an error of fact, however grave it may appear to be. In regard to a finding of fact recorded by the Tribunal, a writ of certiorari can be issued if it is shown that in recording the said finding, the Tribunal had erroneously refused to admit admissible and material evidence, or had erroneously admitted inadmissible evidence which has influenced the impugned finding. Similarily, if a finding of fact is based on no evidence, that would be regarded as an error of law which can be corrected by a writ of certiorari. The adequacy or sufficiency of evidence led on a point and the inference of fact to be drawn from the said finding being within the exclusive jurisdiction of the Tribunal, the points cannot be agitated before a writ Court. AIR 1955 SC 233 and AIR 1958 SC 398 and AIR 1960 SC 1168, Rel. on.

Thus where in dealing with the rival claims of A and B for stage carriage permits on certain route, the Transport Authority and Transport Appellate Tribunal were mainly influenced by the fact that A had a workshop at one terminus of the route in question, whereas B had a workshop and a place of business only at an intermediate station of the route and did not possess a workshop at either of the termini of the route, and hence issued the permit to A.

Held, (by Majority — Subba Rao J., dissenting) that the question whether B had workshop at a terminus of the route was a pure question of fact and the High Court had no jurisdiction to interfere with the finding recorded by the Appellate Tribunal and seek to correct it by issuing a writ of certiorari. (2) That, though it would have been better if the Tribunal had given reasons for its finding, the failure of the Appellate Tribunal to give a reason in that behalf or to refer specifically to the evidence adduced by B would not, by itself, constitute such an error in its decision as to justify the issue of a writ of certiorari under Art. 226. (3) That the argument that some evidence was not duly considered by the Tribunal, would normally pertain to the realm of the appreciation of evidence and would, as such be outside the purview of an enquiry in proceedings for a writ of certiorari under Art. 226. Decision of Madras H. C. in Writ Appeal No. 157 of 1961, dated 19-12-1962, Reversed.

Per Subba Rao, J. — If a Tribunal ignores or fails to investigate a material circumstance put forward by a claimant and gives a finding against him, the said finding can certainly be said to be vitiated by an error of law apparent on the face of the record. Syed Yakoob v. K. S. Radhakrishnan, (1965) 5 SCR 64: AIR 1964 SC 477 (479, 480, 481, 484) (Pt B) (Prs 7, 9, 10, 23).

●——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Essential feature.

Broadly speaking, an essential feature of a writ of certiorari is that the control which is exercised through it over judicial or quasi-judicial tribunals or bodies is not in an appellate but supervisory capacity. Sewpujanrai Indrasanrai, Ltd. v. Collector of Customs, 1959 SCR 821: 1958 Cri LJ 1355: (1958) MLJ (Cr) 929: (1958) SCJ 1199: 1959 SCR 821: AIR 1958 SC 845 (855) (Pt G) (Pr 20).

●——Art. 226 — Conditions under which certiorari can lie.

With regard to the character and scope of the writ of certiorari and the conditions under which it can be issued, the following propositions may be taken as established: (1) Certiorari will be issued for correcting errors of jurisdiction, as when an inferior Court or Tribunal acts without jurisdiction or in excess of it, or fails to exercise it. (2) Certiorari will also be issued when the Court or Tribunal acts illegally in the exercise of its undoubted jurisdiction, as when it decides without giving an opportunity to the parties to be heard, or violates the principles of natural justice. (3) The Court issuing a writ of certiorari acts in exercise of a supervisory and not appellate jurisdiction. One consequence of this is that the Court will not review findings of fact reached by the inferior Court or Tribunal, even if they be erroneous. This is on the principle that a Court which has jurisdiction over a subject matter has jurisdiction to decide wrong as well as right and when the Legislature does not choose to confer a right of appeal against that decision, it would be defeating its purpose and policy, if a superior Court were to rehear the case on the evidence and substitute its own findings in certiorari. AIR 1952 SC 179, AIR 1952 SC 192, AIR 1952 SC 319 and AIR 1954 SC 440, Rel. on. Hari Vishnu v. Ahmad Ishaque, 1955 Mad WN 449: (1955) 1 MLJ (SC) 157: 1955 SCJ 267: (1955) Andhra WR (SC) 157: 1955 All WR 339: 1955 SCR 1104: 1955 Nag LJ 1: 1955 SCA 105: AIR 1955 SC 233 (243) (Pt T) (Pr 21).

●——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Applicability of principles under English law.

As is well known, the issue of the prerogative writs, within which certiorari is included, had their origin in England in the King's prerogative power of superintendence over the due observance of law by his officials and tribunals. The writ of certiorari is so named because in its original form it required that the King should be 'certified of' the proceedings to be investigated and the object was to secure by the authority of a Superior Court, that the jurisdiction of the inferior tribunal should be properly exercised. These principles were transplanted to other parts of the King's dominions. In India, during the British days the three chartered High Courts of Calcutta, Bombay and Madras were alone competent to issue writs and that too within specified limits and the power was not exercisable by the other High Courts at all. The language used in Arts. 32 and 226 of the Constitution is very wide and the powers of the Supreme Court as well as of all the High Courts in India extend to issuing of orders, writs or directions including writs in the nature of habeas corpus, mandamus, quo warranto, prohibition and certiorari as may be considered necessary for enforcement of the fundamental rights and in the case of the High Courts, for other purposes as well. In view of the express provisions in our Constitution the Court need not now look back to the early history or the procedural technicalities of these writs in English law, nor feel oppressed by any difference or change of opinion expressed in particular cases by English Judges. It can make an order or issue a writ in the nature of certiorari in all appropriate cases and in appropriate manner, so long as it keeps to the broad and fundamental principles that regulate the exercise of jurisdiction in the matter of granting such writs in English law. AIR 1953 SC 210, Ref. to. Basappa v. T. Nagappa, 1955 SCR 250: 1954 SCJ 695: ILR (1954) Mys 235: 1954 SCA 620: 67 Mad LW 613: AIR 1954 SC 440 (443) (Pt A) (Prs 5, 6).

● ——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Nature of writ — Principle governing the issue of.

What certiorari does is to require the record of proceedings in some cause or manner pending before an inferior Court, judicial tribunal or quasi-judicial tribunal to be brought before it so that it may deal with it and ensure speedy justice. This can only be used with respect to judicial as distinguished from administrative acts.

The Court should refuse to entertain applications for writs of certiorari or prohibition where the ordinary remedy of approaching the Court by an application in revision is available to the party. The power of prohibition or certiorari should in no case be used to interfere with interlocutory orders where it is possible for an applicant to question its correctness or legality when the final order comes to be passed by way of revision. Asiatic Engineering Co. v. Achhuram, 1951 R. D. (HC) 241: 1951 ALJ 576: ILR (1952) 2 All 838: AIR 1951 All 746 (768, 769) (Prs 59, 62) (FB).

● ——Art. 226 — Conditions for grant of writs.

The exact conditions necessary to be satisfied for granting a writ are not defined in the Constitution but are laid down to be a body of persons: (1) having legal authority; (2) to determine questions effecting legal rights of subjects and (3) having the duty to act judicially; (4) act in excess of their legal authority. AIR 1950 SC 222, Rel. on. Sampu Gowda v. State of Mysore, ILR (1953) Mys 440: 32 Mys LJ 12: AIR 1953 Mys 156 (160) (Pt F) (Pr 18) (FB).

183 (a). Origin, nature and object.

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Nature of writ in England.

Certiorari is a high prerogative which had its origin on historical grounds in England. But the purpose it serves in England now is that it enables a superior Court, a Court of record, to correct the orders and decisions of inferior Courts and inferior Tribunals discharging judicial functions. If an order is made without jurisdiction or if a Court or Tribunal refused to exercise jurisdiction vested in it by law, or if there is an error of law patent on the record, the High Court in England by means of the writ of certiorari corrects the errors in jurisdiction or in law of inferior Courts and Tribunals. The superior Court does not act as a Court of appeal. 57 Bom LR 1148: (1956) 1 Lab LJ 246: ILR (1956) Bom 37: AIR 1957 Bom 46 (47, 48, 49) (Pt A) (Prs 2, 4, 5) (DB).

● ——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Nature of the writ.

Certiorari is the prerogative writ which requires that the records of the proceedings in some case or matter pending before an inferior court or tribunal or other judicial or quasi-judicial body shall be transmitted to the Supreme Court to be there dealt with. In a completed case certiorari lies merely to quash. The High Court acting under the process of certiorari and mandamus cannot either decide a case itself or compel the inferior legal tribunal to come to a particular decision. By the term 'writs' it is not the intention to empower the High Court to issue antiquated and obsolete writs numbering hundreds issued by English Courts. The word 'writ' has been used in the sense of a document under the seal of the Court issued to a person or authority including Government in appropriate cases commanding them or any of them to do or forbear from doing some act. The word 'direction' in this context may mean that the person to whom it is issued is not commanded peremptorily to do a particular act or forbear from doing it, but is merely guided in the matter of doing of that deed or forbearance from it. Bhailal Jagadish v. Additional Deputy Commr., ILR (1953) Nag 839: 1952 NLJ 613: AIR 1953 Nag 89 (98) (Pr 49) (FB).

——Art. 226 — Writ — Certiorari — Nature explained — Record must be sent for on admission of petition.

A writ of certiorari (whatever may be the position of other writs) is issued to bring up the proceedings of an inferior Court so that the proceedings and the order may be examined and if found to be without jurisdiction or wrong in law on their face they may be quashed. The necessary concomitant of an issue of the writ is the bringing up of the record. It is wrongly apprehended that the writ is issued at the end. In fact the writ goes out when the case is admitted for hearing. It is only when the record is in that the writ is made absolute if the proceedings are quashed or in the alternative the record is returned and the writ withdrawn. The record has to be sent for when writ is issued. 1952 Nag LJ (Notes) 57 (DB).

183 (b). Pre-Constitution powers of High Court.

——Art. 226 — Writ of certiorari — Order impugned passed before Constitution — Jurisdiction of T. C. High Court.

The erstwhile High Court of Travancore was exercising jurisdiction in certiorari on the ground that the said jurisdiction was inherent in the High Court as a Court of record. The Travancore-Cochin High Court also has held in favour of and exercised jurisdiction in certiorari even before the coming into force of the Constitution of India. It cannot therefore be contended that jurisdiction in the matter of writs was conferred upon the High Court only by the Constitution and that the order impugned in the case having been passed before the coming into force of the Constitution, certiorari does not lie. AIR 1956 Trav-Co. 35 (42) (Pt H) (Pr 28).

183 (c). Prohibition and certiorari.

●——Art. 226 — Difference between writs of prohibition and certiorari.

There is one fundamental distinction between the two writs, namely, a writ of prohibition and a writ of certiorari. They are issued at different stages of the proceedings. When an inferior court takes up for hearing a matter over which it has no jurisdiction, the person against whom the proceedings are taken can move the superior Court for a writ of prohibition, and on that, an order will issue forbidding the inferior Court from continuing the proceedings. On the other hand, if the Court hears that cause or matter and gives a decision, the party aggrieved would have to move the superior Court for a writ of certiorari, and on that, an order will be made quashing the decision on the ground of want of jurisdiction. Broadly speaking a writ of prohibition will lie when the proceedings are to any extent pending and a writ of certiorari for quashing after they have terminated in a final decision. Hari Vishnu v. Ahmad Ishaque, 1955 Mad WN 449: (1955) 1 MLJ (SC) 157: 1955 SCJ 267: 1955 All WR 339: 1955 SCR 1104: 1955 Nag LJ 1: 1955 SCA 105: 1955 An WR (SC) 157: AIR 1955 SC 233 (241) (Pt F) (Pr 15).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari and prohibition — Distinction.

Writ in the nature of certiorari cannot be issued in respect of pending proceedings, but a writ of prohibition can be issued forbidding a Court from continuing the proceedings. AIR 1955 SC 233, Foll. AIR 1956 Ajmer 73 (75) (Pt B) (Pr 14).

——Art. 226 — Prohibition and certiorari — Writs of — When can be issued.

The question whether an order is an interlocutory order or final order arises when it is sought to be quashed by a certiorari; a High Court may refuse to quash an interlocutory order by a certiorari. No such question arises in respect of a writ of prohibition. A prohibition is always issued while a matter is pending before a tribunal; if the tribunal has passed a final order there would arise no question of issuing a prohibition though there may arise a question of issuing a certiorari to quash its final order. (1953) 1 A. E. L. R. 862, relied on; AIR 1958 SC 845, Foll. 1960 All LJ 865: ILR (1960) 2 All 878.

——Art. 226 — Writ of — Nature and object of — Prohibition — Distinction.

A writ of prohibition and a writ of certiorari are two complementary writs. A writ of certiorari is issued requiring that the record of the proceedings in some cases or matter pending before an inferior Court be transmitted to the superior Court to be dealt with, for rectifying an order or proceeding. That writ is issued when an order has been passed by a tribunal having judicial or quasi-judicial authority but the tribunal has no jurisdiction to pass the order or to hold the proceeding complained of. A writ of prohibition is issued for preventing a tribunal from continuing a proceeding pending before it on the ground that it has no jurisdiction to hold the proceeding. A writ of certiorari is remedial, whereas a writ of prohibition is preventive. 53 Bom LR 381: (1951-52) 3 FJR 81: AIR 1951 Bom 158 (158, 159, 160) (Prs 5, 6, 11, 12).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari and prohibition — Distinction.

A writ of certiorari lies where the decision be vitiated by absence of jurisdiction, failure to observe principles of natural justice or legal error apparent on the face of the record, while prohibition is issued to prevent, still incomplete proceedings of lower tribunals, where no jurisdiction exists, from being continued. 1960 Ker LT 1262: 1960 Ker LJ 1519: AIR 1961 Ker 183 (186) (Pt B) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Writ of — Origin and nature of writ indicated — Madhya Bharat High Court has no jurisdiction to issue — Its jurisdiction is circumscribed by S. 32 (2), Madhya Bharat High Court Act (VIII (8) of 1949) to S. 115, Civil P. C. and S. 435, Criminal P. C.

The ancient writ of certiorari in England is an original writ which may issue out of a superior Court requiring that the record of the proceedings in some cause or matter pending before an inferior Court should be transmitted to the superior Court to be there dealt with. The writ is so named because, in its original Latin form, it required that the King should "be certified" of the proceedings to be investigated and the object was to secure by the exercise of the authority of Superior Court, that the jurisdiction of the inferior tribunal should be properly exercised. The remedy, in point of principle, is derived from the superintending authority which the Sovereign's Superior Court and in particular, the Court of King's Bench, possess and exercise over inferior jurisdictions. This principle has been transplanted to other parts of the King's dominions, and operates, within certain limits in British India: AIR 1943 PC 164, Rel. on.

The power to issue writs of certiorari and mandamus has to be expressly conferred by Charter and there is no such thing as inherent jurisdiction with regard to the exercise of high prerogative writs. The Madhya Bharat High Court Act does not confer power on the High Court of Madhya Bharat to issue those writs. On the contrary S. 32, Cl. (2) of Madhya Bharat High Court Act, which is in similar terms as S. 224 (2), Government of India Act, clearly states that nothing in this section shall be construed as giving to the High Court any jurisdiction to question any judgment of any inferior Court which is not otherwise subject to appeal or revision. These words clearly take away the power of High Court to issue high prerogative writs of certiorari and mandamus. The wordings of S. 32, Cl. (2) limit the powers and jurisdiction of the High Court within the four corners of S. 435, Criminal P. C. and S. 115, Civil P. C. Such is the legal and constitutional position of Madhya Bharat High Court. It is not a Court of King's Bench and this High Court cannot issue writs of certiorari or mandamus: AIR 1940 Rang 84, Disting; AIR 1943 Pat 245 (SB); AIR 1941 Nag 282 and AIR 1919 PC 31, Rel. on.

Obiter (Per Mehta J.) — No other High Courts in India, except those of Bombay, Calcutta and Madras, which are Chartered High Courts, possess these powers.

(Per Sanghi J.) — Jurisdiction has to be conferred by the authority constituting the Court. If it is unlimited, there is no matter of which it cannot take cognizance. The jurisdiction conferred on this Court by S. 22 of the High Court Act is a limited jurisdiction and within the prescribed limits there is no enactment under which the application can be entertained. 51 Cri LJ 813: AIR 1950 Madh B 28 (28 to 31) (Prs 2, 5, 6, 7, 9, 10, 17) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Writs of certiorari and prohibition — Difference between issuing of.

A writ of certiorari is for a discretionary relief and normally a writ of certiorari will not be viewed by the High Court as a parallel remedy which a petitioner can seek simultaneously with the other statutory remedies open to him. However, it is not so in the case where the issue of a writ of prohibition is asked. If the order itself is without jurisdiction and if any portion of that order is still operative, the issue of a writ of prohibition will not be a matter of discretion, and in that respect it differs from the discretionary relief of a writ of certiorari.

Further, while a writ of prohibition will lie when the proceedings are to any extent pending, a writ of certiorari will lie for quashing the proceedings after they have terminated in a final decision. (1961) 42 ITR 715: (1961) 2 Mad LJ 564.

——Art. 226 — Certiorari and prohibition — Issue of writs — Conditions — Assessment Officer of Municipality acting without jurisdiction.

A writ of certiorari may issue wherever any body of persons (1) having legal authority, (2) to determine questions affecting rights of subjects, and (3) having the duty to act judicially, (4) act in excess of their legal authority. The conditions for the issue of a writ of prohibition are almost the same as those of certiorari. But the issue of writ of prohibition is contemplated where the act, against which the prayer for the issue of writ is made, is threatened. While a writ of certiorari will not issue in a case where an equally efficacious remedy is available to the petitioner, a writ of prohibition may issue even where a party has got an equally efficacious remedy by way of a regular suit.

An Assessment Officer of a Municipality is supposed to act judicially in the matter of hearing and disposing of the objections of the owners and occupiers of the properties included in the assessment list, and where he acts without jurisdiction or in excess of it, a writ of certiorari or prohibition, as the case may be, would lie against him. Where the petitioner is forced to pay a tax without the authority of law, he has certainly a good case for coming to the High Court for the issue of a writ of prohibition under Art. 226 of the Constitution, for he has the right under Art. 265 of the Constitution not to be subject to any tax without the authority of law. AIR 1951 Raj 139 (144) (Pt D) (Prs 11, 12) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Prohibition and certiorari — Writs of, distinction.

Before a writ of prohibition can be issued, it is necessary that the authority against which such a writ is issued should be a judicial or quasi-judicial authority and the proceedings should be judicial or quasi-judicial. In this respect there is no difference between the writ of prohibition and the writ of certiorari. The former is issued at an earlier stage and the latter at a later stage. The officers of the Government in the matter of recovery of arrears of rent of a lease of the Government mines from the lessee, do not act judicially or quasi judicially and no writ of prohibition or certiorari can therefore be issued against them. AIR 1950 SC 222, Foll. 1951 Raj LW 426: ILR (1951) 1 Raj 496 (DB).

183 (d). Mandamus and Certiorari.

See also Note 229.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus and certiorari — When issued — Other remedy — Sea Customs Act (VIII of 1878), Ss. 188 and 191.

It is now absolutely settled that a writ of certiorari could only issue to remove a judicial or quasi-judicial order and such a writ will not be available to quash administrative orders. Incontrovertibly, assessments made by Customs Authorities under the Sea Customs Act cannot have the attribute of judicial or quasi-judicial proceeding, they being only administrative in character. That being the case, certiorari will not be granted to quash the order directing the appellants to pay additional duty as per the finalisation of the assessments.

A writ of mandamus is issued to a public officer to enforce the performance of a duty. It is employed when a public officer refuses to exert a ministerial duty. In order that a mandamus to compel a public officer to perform a particular duty should be issued, the duty must be plainly prescribed. If these conditions exist, its performance will be compelled by the issue of a writ of mandamus, unless there is a specific provision to the contrary. If on the other hand a statute is susceptible of two constructions, a writ of mandamus will not issue. If the act done is plainly and palpably wrong, as a matter of law, then only the mandamus jurisdiction will be exercised. Questions of law, the solution of which require the construction of an Act, cannot form a ground for the issue of a writ of mandamus; that is to say, mere error of law or wrong interpretation of a statute cannot entitle a party to invoke mandamus jurisdiction. The determination of the export duty according to clause (a) or (b) of S. 30 of the Sea Customs Act is incidental to the effective exercise of the undisputed jurisdiction of the Customs Officer. Consequently, the proceedings culminating in the finalisation of the assessment under the Act are not amenable to mandamus jurisdiction. The existence of an adequate remedy will exclude mandamus. The Sea Customs Act has conferred on the assessee the right of appeal to the Chief Customs Authority against orders of the subordinate authority and a right of revision to the Central Government. Ss. 188 and 191 of the Act afford efficacious and specific remedies to an aggrieved person, and therefore the appellants could obtain their remedy from those Tribunals. When a Legislature prescribes a condition for filing an appeal, such a right could not be regarded as inadequate or ineffective. There is nothing illegal or unauthorised or burdensome in requiring the appellants to make the deposit pending an appeal. AIR 1954 SC 403, Distinguished; AIR 1960 SC 424, Relied on. (1960) 2 An WR 545: AIR 1961 Andh Pra 170 (172) (Pt A) (Prs 15, 16).

183 (e). Certiorari and revision.

——Art. 226 — (Civil P. Code (1908), S. 115).

Considerations applicable to the remedy by way of revision under the Civil Procedure Code and those applicable to the remedy by way of the issue of a writ of certiorari are altogether different. (1956) 2 Lab LJ 328: 60 Cal WN 602: AIR 1957 Cal 560 (569) (Pt F) (Pr 33) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Refusal to exercise jurisdiction — Case dismissed on ground of wrong view of limitation — Scope of powers under Art. 226 and S. 115 of Civil Procedure Code.

The powers of granting writ of certiorari under Art. 226 are much wider than the revisional powers under S. 115 of the Civil Procedure Code: ILR 7 Bom 341, AIR 1955 SC 233, Rel. on.

Where the Revenue Board by wrongly applying the law of limitation dismisses the suit as barred by time, without entering into the merits of the case, the Board fails to exercise a jurisdiction vested in it by law. It is true that the Board of Revenue has the jurisdiction to decide the point of limitation rightly or wrongly but the erroneous decision has the effect of wrongly refusing to exercise jurisdiction vested in it. 1958 Raj LW 590.

184. Who can apply.
See Note 6.

185. Writ of right.
See also Note 39.

——Art. 226 — Writ of certiorari is discretionary — It may be refused unless the justice of the case requires it. AIR 1957 SC 227, Foll. ILR (1962) Madh Pra 788: 1962 MPLJ 281: 1962 Jab LJ 523: AIR 1962 Madh Pra 280 (287) (Pt E) (Pr 17).

——Arts. 226 and 227 — Proceedings by way of certiorari are not of course and the High Court should not interfere when the justice of the case does not require it. AIR 1957 SC 227, Ref. 1965 Jab LJ 1087: 1965 MPLJ 990.

PART C

HABEAS CORPUS.

(Notes 186 to 223)

186. Against whom can be issued.
See Note 219.

187. Appeal.
See also Note 10.

——Arts. 226, 132, 134(1)(c) — Order of release on application for writ of habeas corpus — Appealability under Constitution — Principles — (Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 491).

Under the Constitution which contains fuller and wider provisions as to appeal than those of the Government of India Act, 1935, which contained only Section 205 corresponding to Article 132, there is no such immunity from appealability in the case of an order of release on an application for a writ of habeas corpus as obtains in England. The question of appealability of such an order must be judged with reference to the provisions of the Constitution and appealability must be recognised and given effect to within the limits defined by Article 134 thereof. The intention of the framers of the Constitution seems to be that if on the one hand the absolute immunity from appeal against an order of release obtaining in England is not to be imported into India, appealability in India ought not to be treated as a matter of course on the other hand. The Constitution accordingly provides for a certificate of fitness from the High Court or for special leave from the Supreme Court as a 'sine qua non' for imperilling the liberty of a released subject, which is a matter of vital moment. Even so the High Court ought to be extremely chary of exercising its power under clause (c) of the Article against the person released.

In all other criminal matters other than those which fall under sub-clauses (a) and (b) of Article 134(1), the Constitution of India undoubtedly intends that the High Courts in the respective States in the territory of India should ordinarily be the final Courts of Appeal. This is a fact which must not be lost sight of by the Court when considering the question as to whether a certificate of fitness should or should not issue in any given case.

If the matter of an application for the writ of habeas corpus is not criminal in nature the provision of the Constitution governing appealability will be Article 132 under which, except where a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of the Constitution arises, there can be no question of an appeal to the Supreme Court. 65 Mad LW 892: (1952) 2 Mad LJ 725: 1953 Cri LJ 256: AIR 1953 Mad 66 (70) (Pt F) (Prs 9, 10, 11) (DB).

188. Application for.
See also Note 98.
(a) Affidavit.
(b) Stranger, by
(c) Minor, by
(d) Person on bail, by.

188. Application for.
See also Note 98.

——Art. 226 — Habeas corpus — Falsity of facts which are not material — Writ petition will not be thrown out. 1960 All Cr R 374: 1960 All WR (HC) 591: 1960 All LJ 776.

●——Art. 226 — Application challenging proceedings under Abducted Persons (Recovery and Restoration) Act, S. 4 — Allegations in application vague — Effect on maintainability of application. See Abducted Persons (Recovery and Restoration) Act, S. 4. 1955 Cr LJ 50: AIR 1955 Pepsu 1 (FB)

188(a). Affidavit.

——Art. 226 — Pleadings — Affidavits — By whom to be sworn — Application for habeas corpus — Counter affidavit by subordinate official — If can be acted upon. See High Court Rules and Orders — Allahabad High Court Rules, Ch. 4, R. 12. 1958 All LJ 267.

——Art. 226 — Writ of habeas corpus — Application for — Procedure for making — Form and contents of — Application by person other than detenu or prisoner — When permitted — Affidavit of person detained — Necessity for — When may be dispensed with.

In the case of an application for a writ of habeas corpus an affidavit of the prisoner or detenu should ordinarily be filed in support. Generally the person who is alleged to be illegally imprisoned or detained is entitled to apply for a writ; but it is not always necessary that the application should proceed from him. The detenue or any other person on his behalf may institute the proceedings. A mere stranger or a volunteer who has no authority to represent the detenu is not allowed to apply for habeas corpus, such a stranger not being in a position to make a detailed affidavit as to the circumstances of the detention which is alleged to be illegal. But in cases where access is denied to the person unjustifiably or illegally detained, and hence instructions from him cannot be obtained an application for a writ may be made by a relation or a friend on an affidavit setting forth the reasons for its being so made. At any rate the court will not grant a writ of habeas corpus to bring up a prisoner for the purpose of being discharged on the ground that he is illegally in custody unless there be an affidavit from himself or it is shown that he is so coerced as to be unable to make one.

Where in the affidavit filed by a relation of the prisoner, there is absolutely no indication as to why an affidavit from the prisoner could not be filed, the absence of the prisoner's affidavit is a material defect in the case. 52 Cr LJ 641: 1950 TCLR 701: 1950 KLT 481: AIR 1951 TC 123 (124, 125) (Pts A, B) (Prs 4, 6).

188 (b). Stranger, by.

——Art. 226 — Habeas Corpus — Petition by stranger on behalf of detenu is maintainable — But it is open to Court to examine bona fides of such petition. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 491 (2). 1965 (1) Cri LJ 583: AIR 1965 Pat 209 (DB).

●——Art. 226 — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 491— Petition for writ of habeas corpus — Who can move — Petition by a stranger — When can be considered.

Petition for writ of habeas corpus is ordinarily moved by the person detained or in custody and can also be moved by a friend or relation, but not by an utter stranger. In the rarest of cases, where the Court has been apprised of material which immediately and obviously establishes the illegality of the detention or custody, of course the Court will for the ends of justice, proceed to issue the necessary writ, direction or order and in such rare cases a stranger may come in, but such a contingency should appear to be so rare as to be almost non-existent. AIR 1961 SC 41 and AIR 1962 SC 1044, Rel. on. Ram Kumar Pearaylal v. District Magistrate, Delhi, ILR (1965) 2 Punj 853: 1966 Cr LJ 153: AIR 1966 Punj 51 (58, 59) (Pt E) (Pr 10) (FB).

——Art. 226 — Writ of habeas corpus — Application by third party — When lies. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 491. 1955 Cri LJ 740: AIR 1955 Trav-Co 74 (DB).

188 (c). Minor, by.

——Art. 226 — Application in case where minor is incarcerated.

Where a girl incarcerated is a minor, the only person competent to move the High Court in habeas corpus under Art. 226 is one who is entitled either to the custody of the child or to represent her legally. Where, however, such a person is shown to be incapable of making the application, or where no such person exists, the question of the right of a friend to make such an application may properly arise. But in that case, it must be shown by an affidavit, firstly, that no one who is legally entitled to the custody of the child or to represent her exists, or that such a person, if any, is unable, for reasons to be set out in the affidavit, to make such an application and, secondly, that the applicant himself is interested in the welfare of the child. ILR (1955) 1 Cal 76: 1953 Cr LJ 1187: 57 CWN 507: AIR 1953 Cal 522 (523) (Pt A) (Pr 3) (DB).

188 (d). Person on bail, by.

——Art. 226 — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 491 — Writ of habeas corpus — Person arrested and released on bail — Petition for writ of habeas corpus filed by such person — Such petition lies.

The fact that a person has been granted bail does not amount to his being set at liberty. Taking into consideration the provisions contained in Ss. 499, 500, 502, 514 and 367 (4) of the Criminal P. C., it is clear that whereas a person released on bail is not in physical confinement, he still remains under the control of the Court and notionally in the custody of the Court, and that persons, who are his sureties, are only the agents of the Court. For those reasons, even a person who has been temporarily let out on bail but still on trial, can present an application for a writ of habeas corpus, under Art. 226 of the Constitution. AIR 1934 All 148, Foll.; AIR 1950 Madh Bha 17, Rel. on. ILR 30 Cal 872 (PC) and AIR 1950 All 4 and (1884) 114 US 564 and (1919) 253 US 339, Disting. AIR 1948 All 281, held not good law.

Held, that in view of the circumstances operating in this case the petitioner was not being illegally detained and that no ground for issue of a writ of habeas corpus was made by him. 1962 All LJ 654: 1962 All Cri R 295: 1962 All WR (HC) 543: ILR (1962) 2 All 496: 1963 (1) Cri LJ 20: AIR 1963 All 4 (5, 6, 9, 11, 12) (Pt A) (Prs 4, 19, 25, 29, 30) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Writ of habeas corpus — Petitioner released on bail — High Court can issue writ of habeas corpus.

Even if a person is released on bail, he must be considered to be detained in the constructive custody of the Court through the surety, as his liberty is subject to restraint and he has to be produced before the Court by the surety. Hence the fact that the petitioner is released on bail and on his personal recognisance bond will not prevent the High Court from exercising its power to issue a writ of habeas corpus. AIR 1950 Madh Bha 17 and AIR 1934 All 148, Foll. Madh BLJ 1955 HCR 1560: AIR 1955 MB 200 (201) (Pt A) (Pr 17) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 491 — Writ of habeas corpus — Application for, by person released on bail — Person released on bail remains in constructive custody of Court through surety and his liberty remains subject to restraint — Application is maintainable and does not become infructuous on ground that applicant is on bail: AIR 1934 All 148 (DB), Foll—Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 496 — Effect of grant of bail. 1965 BLJR 35.

189. Bail and habeas corpus.

——Art. 226 — Application under S. 491, Criminal P. C. — Considerations involved — Refusal of bail application by trial Court — Effect. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 491. 1955 Cri LJ 740: AIR 1955 Trav-Co 74 (DB).

190. Contempt, detention for.

● ——Arts. 226, 194 (3) — Contempt of Legislative Assembly — Committal of citizen for contempt of Legislative Assembly on general warrant — Petition to High Court by citizen's Advocate to issue writ of habeas corpus — Citizen released on bail by High Court — Assembly holding Judges of High Court, Advocate and citizen responsible for having committed its contempt — Reference of case to Supreme Court by President — Opinion of Supreme Court — Held, contempt was not committed. See Ibid, Art. 194 (3). AIR 1965 SC 745.

——Art. 226 — Member of U. P. Legislative Assembly convicted by the Assembly for its contempt — Petition for writ of habeas corpus under Art. 226 — Conviction cannot be challenged on ground of violation of Art. 21 or of principles of natural justice. See Ibid, Art. 21. (1965) 2 Cri LJ 170: AIR 1965 All 349 (DB).

191. Conviction by criminal Court, power to question.

● ——Art. 32 (2)—Conviction and sentence by trial Court — Confirmation by Appellate Court — Finality of appellate order — Want of jurisdiction of trial Court — Writ of habeas corpus — Cri. P. C. 1898, S. 430.

If it should appear on the face of the return that a person is in detention in execution of a sentence on indictment on a criminal charge, that would be a sufficient answer to an application for a writ of habeas corpus. Assuming, however, that it is open even in such cases to investigate the question of jurisdiction, where the conviction and sentence had been upheld on appeal by a Court of competent jurisdiction the mere fact that the trial Court had acted without jurisdiction would not justify interference, treating the appellate order also as a nullity. Evidently, the appellate Court in a case which properly comes before it on appeal, is fully competent to decide whether the trial was with or without jurisdiction and it has jurisdiction to decide the matter rightly as well as wrongly. If it affirms the conviction and thereby decides wrongly that the trial Court, had the jurisdiction to try and convict, it cannot be said to have acted without jurisdiction and its order cannot be treated as a nullity.

It is well settled that if a Court acts without jurisdiction, its decision can be challenged in the same way as it would have been challenged if it had acted with jurisdiction, i.e., an appeal would lie to the Court to which it would lie if its order was with jurisdiction. Janardhan Reddy v. State of Hyderabad, 1951 SCJ 320: 52 Cri LJ 736: 1951 SCR 344: 1951 All LJ (SC) 94: 1951 Mad WN 613 (2): 1951 Mad WN (Cri) 189 (2): 64 MLW 406: AIR 1951 SC 217 (225) (Pt F) (Prs 25, 26).

——Art. 226 — Writ of — Basis of jurisdiction and nature of writ — Judgment of conviction in criminal case — Enhancement of sentence without following procedure under S. 362, Tr. Cr. P. C. — Remedy — Application for writ of Habeas Corpus — Maintainability.

An application for a writ of habeas corpus is not maintainable and cannot lie for the purpose of circumventing a judgment of conviction of a criminal Court, merely by praying for release of the party convicted on the ground of an alleged illegality. A judgment of a Court cannot be attacked by a collateral means and for that purpose a petition of the nature cannot be allowed. The writ of habeas corpus is a prerogative process for securing the liberty of the subject by affording an effective means of immediate release from unlawful or unjustifiable detention, whether in prison or in private custody. Illegal detention of a subject, i.e., detention or imprisonment, which is incapable of legal justification, is the basis of jurisdiction in habeas corpus.

There is ordinarily a presumption in favour of a judgment under which a person has been convicted and of the regularity of the proceedings. On habeas corpus the Court may only look at the record to see whether a judgment did exist, and if it finds that there is a judgment, the Court in such proceedings has no power to determine whether it is right or wrong, because the judgment is conclusively presumed to be right until brought up for revision in the regular way of appeal or revision.

The fact that the sentence on a convicted person was enhanced without conforming to the provisions of S. 36, Travancore Cr. P. Code, and that the sentence was enhanced without hearing him or giving an opportunity to show cause, as required by the Code, would only entitle him to move for rehearing of the case in question and would not entitle him to file a petition for habeas corpus to attack the judgment in the case. Such a petition would be an abuse of the process of the Court. 52 Cr LJ 641: 1950 TCLR 701: 1950 KLT 481: AIR 1951 TC 123 (125) (Pt B) (Pr 5).

192. Costs in proceedings for.

See also Note 31.

——Art. 226 — M. P. High Court Rules, R. 11 — Rules regulating Habeas Corpus applications — Release of person arrested by Government after rule is issued by High Court — No reasons for release supplied — Costs to arrested person awarded — (Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 491).

Where a person arrested by Government is released after a rule is issued by the High Court but before the date on which the rule is returned and comes for hearing, though the Government can release the person arrested after the issue of rule nisi, yet if they think that the arrest and detention of the petitioner was always legal and that he was released as a matter of grace, some material should be produced before the High Court to indicate that prima facie the arrest and detention was legal and that the High Court should not exercise its discretion in making an order for costs against the Government. Where this is not done, a suppliant moving for a writ of Habeas Corpus cannot be deprived of costs merely because the detaining authority released him on its own initiative before the hearing of the application. AIR 1953 SC 277, Considered. 1959 MPC 471.

193. Criminal P. C., S. 491, powers under.

——Art. 226 — Other remedy — Cr. P. Code (1898), S. 491 — 'Habeas Corpus' to obtain custody of children — Propriety — (Guardians and Wards Act (1890), S. 25).

The powers conferred by Art. 226 in regard to the issue of writs of the nature of habeas corpus are exercised for the purposes enumerated in Section 491, Cr. P. Code. Normally, the remedy indicated in S. 491, Cr. P. Code, is for a person deprived of his liberty. Ordinarily, this jurisdiction should not be invoked to decide disputes as to who should be the guardian of a child. They are properly adjudicated upon in an application under the Guardians and Wards Act as that is the ordinary remedy. 1956 Andhra WR 939: AIR 1957 AP 704 (705) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226 — High Court's power under — Cr. P. Code, S. 491 — Distinction — Habeas corpus — Common law writ — Issue of.

The High Courts before the enactment of the Constitution had not the power to issue the common law writ of habeas corpus. The only power which they had was to pass orders under S. 491, Cr. P. Code. But the power of the High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution is no longer confined to issuing writs in the nature of habeas corpus. It has been given the power to issue any direction, any order or any writ for the purpose of enforcing fundamental rights, though that power is outside, and may be wider than the power conferred under S. 491, Cr. P. Code. 66 IA 222 (PC); AIR 1939 Mad 120 (FB), Ref. Prahlad Krishna Kurne, In re, ILR (1951) Bom 181: 5 AI Cr D 79: 53 Bom LR 61: 52 Cr LJ 305: AIR 1951 Bom 25 (25) (Pt A) (Pr 2) (FB).

——Art. 226 — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 491 — "Illegally or improperly detained" — (Public Safety — Jammu and Kashmir Defence Rules (1996 S), R. 24 (1) and (2)). See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 491. AIR 1953 J and K 18.

——Art. 226 — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 491 — Habeas corpus, Writ of — Application under Section 491 can be treated as one under Art. 226 — Successive applications to seek same relief either under S. 491 or under Art. 226 not maintainable.

The power to issue a writ in the nature of habeas corpus, is vested only in the High Court. It is therefore permissible to treat an application under S. 491, Criminal P. C. as being a compendious one under the two relevant provisions of law. Under S. 491, Criminal P. C., a detenue cannot make successive application for a writ of habeas corpus and it is not open to him to ask for a review of an order already made under that provision. AIR 1948 Bom 326 (FB), Rel. on.

Even under Art. 226, it is only the High Court that can issue a writ for the enforcement of a fundamental right. The jurisdiction is conferred upon the High Court as such and not upon any Judge or Judges of that Court. An order of dismissal of a writ of habeas corpus by a Division Bench which is thus only an order of dismissal by the High Court cannot be revived either under the provisions of the Criminal P. C. or under any other provisions of law. AIR 1951 Bom 25 (FB) and AIR 1953 SC 52 and AIR 1951 Mad 611, Rel. on; AIR 1949 EP 67 (FB), Dissented from. 1962 Mad WN 190: 1964 Mad LJ (Cri) 442: 75 Mad LW 260: ILR (1962) Mad 674: 1962 (2) Cr LJ 381: AIR 1962 Mad 354 (356, 357, 358, 359, 360) (Prs 6, 8, 9, 15, 17, 18) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 491 — Issue of writ of Habeas Corpus — Powers under these provisions — Difference.

The power under Art. 226 of the Constitution is a much wider power than that under S. 491 of the Code of Criminal Procedure and these provisions overlap; where, however, a habeas corpus petition is made under Art. 226 of the Constitution, reference to S. 491 of the Code of Criminal Procedure is, for practical purposes, a superfluity and is probably made merely as a matter of caution. Ram Kumar Pearay Lal v. District Magistrate, Delhi, ILR (1965) 2 Punj 853: 1966 Cr LJ 153: AIR 1966 Punj 51 (54) (Pt A) (Pr 7) (FB).

194. Delay in applying.

See Note 35.

195. Discretion of High Court.

See Note 39.

196-197. Disobedience of order.

——Art. 226 — Writ of habeas corpus when to be issued — Disobedience of order — Punishment — Powers of High Court. See Cr. P. Code (1898), S. 491. 1964 (2) Cr LJ 590: AIR 1964 SC 1625.

——Art. 226 — Habeas Corpus — Father taking the girl in his custody upon undertaking to produce her in Court — In answer to writ of Habeas Corpus, he pleaded his inability to produce her on the plea that she had disappeared — Held, that father could not escape liability as the circumstances of disapperance were such which created grave doubts and suspicion and was deliberate for purposes of avoiding her production before the Court. 1960 All Cr R 374 : 1960 All WR (HC) 591: 1960 All LJ 776.

198. Enquiry, scope of.

See also Note 208.

——Art. 226 — Question of fact — Habeas Corpus — Investigation of disputed facts.

Where the application alleged that the order made under S. 112, Criminal P. Code, was not read out or explained to the petitioners, that there was no compliance of the provisions of S. 113, Criminal P. Code, and therefore their detention was illegal but the affidavit filed on behalf of the State categorically stated that the Magistrate had actually read out and explained the notice to them, and, further, that after it had been so read out and explained the petitioners were asked to put their thumb marks and signature on the back in token thereof.

Held, that the Court would not in the proceedings under Art. 226 enter into an investigation of disputed facts. In view of the affidavit by the State and also the order recorded on the order sheet of the case under S. 107, Criminal Procedure Code, wherein also it was stated that the order under S. 112, Criminal Procedure Code was read out and explained to the persons proceeded against it should be assumed for the purposes of the petition that it was read out and explained to them. 1958 All LJ 46: 1958 All WR (HC) 101: 1958 Cri LJ 988: 1958 All Cr R 83: AIR 1958 All 578 (581) (Pt A) (Pr 8) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Habeas Corpus proceedings — Allegations in — No decision as to truth or falsehood.

In proceedings for a writ of habeas corpus the High Court will not decide the question whether the allegations made against the petitioner are true or false. That point will have to be decided, by the trial Court if the case goes for trial. For the purposes of the petition they have to assume that the allegations made in the police report may be true. 1956 Cr LJ 13: ILR (1956) 2 All 527: AIR 1956 All 56 (58) (Pt F)(Pr 9) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 491 — Scope — High Court can decide legality of civil matter put forward in answer to writ of habeas corpus — Habeas corpus jurisdiction comes under Art. 226 of the Constitution. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 491. AIR 1963 Cal 261.

——Art. 226 — Grounds of detention — Truth of — Powers of High Court. The High Court has no power to investigate the truth or otherwise of the grounds of detention. See Public Safety — Preventive Detention Act (1950), S. 3. 1962 (1) Cr LJ 311: AIR 1962 Cal 162 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Scope of enquiry — Habeas Corpus — Validity of law authorising detention, if can be challenged. 52 Cri LJ 710 (2): ILR (1951) Hyd 168: AIR 1951 Hyd 83 (84) (Pt C) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Habeas Corpus — Illegal detention — Enquiry into — Scope of. See Cr. P. C. (1898), S. 491. 1962 (2) Cr LJ 72: AIR 1962 Ker 215 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Habeas Corpus — Proceedings for — Scope — Detention as a result of conviction and sentence — High Court required only to enquire into the legality of detention — Irregularities or illegalities of trial cannot be looked into — These matters should be agitated by convicted person through normal channel of appeal and revision under Criminal P. C. (1963) 2 Cri LJ 322: AIR 1963 Tri 31 (33, 35) (Pt B) (Prs 8, 18).

199. Foundation of Court's jurisdiction.

——Art. 226 — Habeas Corpus — Basis of jurisdiction under.

Application for a writ of habeas corpus is not maintainable and cannot lie for the purpose of circumventing a judgment of conviction of a criminal Court, merely by praying for release of the party convicted on the ground of an alleged illegality. A judgment of a Court cannot be attacked by a collateral means and for that purpose a petition of the nature cannot be allowed. The writ of habeas corpus is a prerogative process for securing the liberty of the subject by affording an effective means of immediate release from unlawful or unjustifiable detention whether in prison or in private custody. Illegal detention of a subject, i.e., detention or imprisonment, which is incapable of legal justification, is the basis of jurisdiction in habeas corpus. 1950 KLT 481: 1950 TCLR 701: AIR 1951 TC 123 (125) (Pt D) (Pr 6).

200. Illegal detention.

(a) Material date.

(b) Power to enquire into legality.

(c) Valid order passed, pending writ petition.

200. Illegal detention.

●——Art. 226 — Release of convict on ground of illness — Re-arrest and detention in jail — Lawful authority under which re-arrest made not disclosed — Detention is illegal. State of Bihar v. Kameshwar Prasad, 1963 Mad LJ (Cri) 315: (1962) 2 Ker LR 192: 1965 (1) Cri LJ 494: 1963 All WR (HC) 534: (1963) 2 SCR 183: 1962 BLJR 798: 1963 All Cri R 262: 1962 SCD 851: (1963) 2 SCJ 89: AIR 1965 SC 575 (577) (Pr 8).

——Art. 226 — Habeas corpus — Detention for offences under Ss. 143, 145 and 188 — Legality — (Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 144) — (Penal Code (1860), Ss. 143, 145 and 188).

The District Magistrate of Manipur had promulgated an order on the analogy of S. 144, Criminal P. C., prohibiting assemblage of five or more persons within certain area. The petitioners, seven in number, were arrested under Ss. 143, 145 and 188, I. P. Code, for holding a meeting regarding the satyagraha movement for Legislative Assembly in Manipur which had been abolished by the Manipur Administration order. The meeting was attended only by the petitioners and they were exercising their right of speech and assemblage without arms in a peaceful manner in order to vindicate their rights for enforcement of public rights adumbrated in the Manipur State Constitution Act, 1947 which was still in force. The petitioners applied for a writ of habeas corpus under Art. 226 of the Constitution.

Held, that in the circumstances of the case the order under S. 144, Criminal P. C., was not a legal and valid order and, therefore, no prosecution under S. 188, I. P. C., could ensue for disobedience of this order. Moreover the assembly of 7 persons could not be deemed to be an unlawful assembly within the meaning of S. 141, I. P. Code, and the petitioners could not legally be deemed to be members of that assembly. Hence, the detention of the petitioner was illegal and the order of commitment under Ss. 143, 145 and 188 must be quashed. 1955 Cr LJ 1603: AIR 1955 Manipur 41 (49) (Pt G) (Prs 37, 38, 39).

——Art. 226 — Habeas Corpus — Improper detention — What is — (Criminal Procedure Code (1898), S. 491).

Per Prasad, J.:—Every person in India has a right to his personal liberty, which cannot be taken away except by procedure established by law. Where there is any complaint by any person that he is being detained illegally or improperly, the law has provided the means to set him free. One of them is by writ of habeas corpus. The use of the word 'improper' obviously means that although the forms of law have been observed in a particular case of detention, but if there has been fraud upon an Act or an abuse of powers given by the Legislature, it will be a fit case for interference by the High Court by a writ of habeas corpus. AIR 1946 Bom 333 (336), Rel. on. 1958 BLJR 531: 1959 Cr LJ 501: AIR 1959 Pat 146 (149) (Pt B) (Pr 15) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Right to relief — Illegal detention — Investigation by Police — Third degree treatment — Protection from — (Criminal Procedure Code (1898), S. 491).

The practice, still prevailing with some police officers of putting a suspect through 'third degree' treatment, or subjecting him to what is called a 'sweating' process, in the hope of discovering clues or obtaining confession, by torturing his body or by tormenting his mind is most dangerous and more often hampers than helps in the discovery of the truth. In criminal jurisprudence there is no room for such procedure. It is the duty of police to locate the violator of law but not by employing violence. Volition and violence cannot coexist. 1960 Cr LJ 390: ILR (1960) Punj 162: AIR 1960 Punj 122 (125) (Pt B) (Prs 14, 15).

——Art. 226 — Habeas corpus — Illegal detention.

Where, although life imprisonment was equivalent to 20 years rigorous imprisonment according to the law of the former Jaipur State, the Sessions Judge of Jaipur sentenced the accused to life imprisonment for an offence under S. 290, Jaipur Penal Code, which was described by the Sessions Judge as equivalent to 25 years rigorous imprisonment and the judgment of the Sessions Judge was confirmed by the then High Court of Jaipur, the sentence of 25 years rigorous imprisonment is obviously illegal and should be treated as a sentence of 20 years rigorous imprisonment only. When the legal portion of the sentence has been undergone by the accused, he should be ordered to be released; 1954 RLW 212 (FB), Rel. on. 1956 Raj LW 26: ILR (1955) 5 Raj 372: 1955 Cr LJ 1390: AIR 1955 Raj 161 (162) (Pt B) (Pr 9) (DB).

200 (a). Material date.

●——Arts. 32 and 226 — Habeas corpus petition — Legality of detention — Material date.

It is well settled that in dealing with a petition for habeas corpus, the Court has to see whether the detention on the date on which the application is made to the Court is legal if nothing more has intervened between the date of the application and the date of hearing. Gopalan v. Government of India, 1965 Ker LT 1229: 1966 Ker LJ 45: (1966) 1 SCWR 449: 1966 Cr LJ 602: AIR 1966 SC 816 (818) (Pt A) (Pr 5).

●——Art. 32 — Crucial date of detention.

In habeas corpus proceedings, the Court is to have regard to the legality or otherwise of the detention at the time of the return and not with reference to the institution of the proceedings. Ram Narayan Singh v. State of Delhi, 1953 Mad WN 647: (1953) SCJ 326: 1953 Cr LJ 1113: 1953 All WR (Sup) 68: 1953 SCR 652: 1953 SCA 399: AIR 1953 SC 277 (278) (Pt B) (Pr 4).

——Arts. 226 and 22 (1) — Petition for writ of habeas corpus — Legality of detention — Material time — Subsequent information — Effect.

In habeas corpus proceedings the Court is to have regard to the legality or otherwise of the detention at the time of the return and not with reference to the institution of the proceedings. AIR 1953 SC 277, Rel. on. If the petitioners detention is illegal on date of return and on subsequent days for non-compliance of Art. 22 (1) the fact that the necessary information somehow reached him on a subsequent date would not render the detention legal.

Per Desai, J. :—Since the law is that detention is unlawful so long as grounds for arrest are not communicated, once the detention becomes unlawful, it cannot later become lawful on the grounds being communicated. 1956 Cr LJ 13: ILR (1956) 2 All 527: AIR 1956 All 56 (59) (Pt E) (Prs 22, 23) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Habeas Corpus — Illegal detention — Enquiry into — Scope of — Cause of detention — Legality at the stage of hearing of petition to be considered. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 491. 1962 (2) Cr LJ 72: AIR 1962 Ker 215 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Habeas Corpus proceeding — Legality of detention — Court is to have regard to legality at time of return. AIR 1955 NUC (MB) 3872.

——Art. 226 — Habeas corpus — Legality of detention is to be considered at time of return of rule issued by High Court — (Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 491). 1959 MPC 471.

——Art. 226 — Jurisdiction of High Court — Exclusion under S. 6 of Abducted Persons (Recovery and Restoration) Act — Initial custody and detention must be legal to oust jurisdiction of High Court. 1955 Cri LJ 702: AIR 1955 Pepsu 48 (51) (Pr 9).

——Art. 226 — Habeas corpus — Illegal detention — Time of arrest and not of hearing of petition is material.

In Habeas Corpus proceedings the question has to be settled whether at the time of arrest of the detenu, the detention was legal or not. The contention that at the time of hearing of the writ petition, the challan for offences had been put in Court and therefore the detenu was in proper legal custody is wholly untenable. ILR (1959) Punj 1111: 61 Pun LR 413: 1959 Cr LJ 1209: AIR 1959 Punj 506 (508) (Pt C) (Pr 11).

——Art. 226 — Petition for writ of habeas corpus — Material date of detention — (Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 491).

In a petition for writ of habeas corpus the High Court is concerned with the validity of the detention at the time of the return. ILR (1954) TC 121: 1954 Ker LT 710: 1955 Cr LJ 740: AIR 1955 Trav-Co 74 (75, 76) (Pt C) (Pr 3) (DB).

200 (b). Power to enquire into legality.

——Art. 226 — Habeas Corpus application — Validity of Act challenged — Competency of.

The true position in regard to the scope and nature of a petition of habeas corpus excludes the possibility of a challenge in regard to the constitutionality of an enactment. 1954 All LJ 355: 1954 Cr LJ 1317: ILR (1955) 1 All 793: AIR 1954 All 601 (604) (Pt C) (Pr 23) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Habeas corpus — 'Person' arrested for disobedience of order under S. 144, Criminal Procedure Code — Fact that order is vague and widely worded is no ground for releasing person on habeas corpus — It may be ground for challenging it during his trial under S. 188, Indian Penal Code — (Penal Code (1860), S. 188). 1956 Cri LJ 1026: 1956 All LJ 671: AIR 1956 All 481 (483) (Pt B) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Habeas corpus — Proceedings for — Scope — Detention as a result of conviction and sentence — High Court required only to enquire into the legality of detention — Irregularities or illegalities of trial cannot be looked into — These matters should be agitated by convicted person through normal channel of appeal and revision under Criminal P. C. (1963) 2 Cri LJ 322: AIR 1963 Tri 31 (33, 35) (Pt B) (Prs 8, 18).

200 (c). Valid order passed, pending writ petition.

●——Art. 226 — Habeas corpus, writ of—Detention valid on date of hearing — That there was no valid cause for detention at prior stage if ground for release.

The analogy of civil proceedings where the rights of parties ordinarily have to be ascertained on the date of their institutions cannot be invoked in habeas corpus proceedings. If at any time before the Court hears the applications valid orders authorising custody are produced, the release cannot be ordered on the ground that at some prior stage there was no valid cause for the detention. The question is not whether the later orders validate the earlier detentions, but whether in the face of the later orders release can be directed. Abdur Rahim v. Joseph A. Pinto, 1952 Cri LJ 1333: ILR (1951) Hyd 1: AIR 1951 Hyd 11 (29) (Pt F) (Pr 85) (FB).

——Art. 226 — Constitution of India (1950), Art. 226 — Habeas Corpus — Nature of proceedings — Jurisdiction of Court to consider validity of orders passed subsequent to institution of proceedings — (Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 491).

The analogy of civil proceedings in which the rights of parties have ordinarily to be ascertained as on the date of the proceedings cannot be invoked in habeas corpus proceedings. It is open to the Court in such proceeding to consider if there was a valid order which came into existence later directing the detention and decline to release the person even if the earlier order was invalid. AIR 1949 Pat 247 and AIR 1945 FC 18, Rel. on. 65 Mad LW 876: 1952-2 Mad LJ 690: 1953 Cri LJ 224: AIR 1953 Mad 41 (48, 51) (Pt C) (Prs 11, 19) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Habeas corpus — Order of court declaring detention invalid — Effect on valid order of detention passed before pronouncement of judgment but not brought to notice of court — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 491).

Satyanarayana J. (Raghava Rao J. dubitante) — A writ of habeas corpus is concerned with the justification for detention. The justification may be based upon an order originally passed or an order which was subsequently made and brought to the notice of the Court. But the essence of the matter is that if an order came into existence before the judgment is pronounced, it is the duty of the Government to bring it to the notice of the Court. The effect of the omission to do so would be that the order of the court directing the release of the detenu would automatically discharge the fresh order passed before the pronouncement of the judgment and the Government thereafter would be precluded from putting forward the fresh order of detention in justification of the arrest and detention of the detenu. AIR 1949 Pat 247, Rel. on. 65 Mad LW 876: 1952-2 Mad LJ 690: 1953 Cri LJ 224: AIR 1953 Mad 41 (48, 53) (Pt D) (Prs 11, 26) (DB).

201. Internment, order for.

——Art. 226 — Scope — Habeas corpus — Writ in respect of order of internment under S. 2 (1) (b) of Orissa Maintenance of Public Order Act (X of 1950) — Power of High Court — Cr. P. Code, S. 491.

Strictly speaking a writ of habeas corpus will not issue against an order of "internment" under S. 2 (1) (b) of Orissa Act (X of 1950), which is not detention as ordinarily understood. But though S. 491, Cr. P. Code, will not entitle the High Court to issue a writ or direction against such an order, Art. 226 of the Constitution empowers the High Court to issue necessary directions for the enforcement of any of the rights guaranteed by Part III of the Constitution, even though such directions may not strictly conform to one of the writs specifically mentioned in that Article; and the High Court has power to issue a direction prohibiting the State Government and any of their officers from taking any action to enforce the order of internment under S. 2 (1) (b) of Orissa Act (X of 1950). 5 A. I. Cr. D. 436: 16 Cut LT 209: AIR 1951 Orissa 86 (89) (Pt A) (Pr 7) (DB).

202. Lunatic asylum, detention in.

——Art. 226 — Cr. P. C. S. 491 — Habeas Corpus lies against authorities of Mental Hospitals and clinics. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 491. AIR 1963 Cal 261.

203. Minor, application by.

See Note 188.

204. Object of the writ.

——Art. 226 — Habeas corpus — What is — Its nature, object and importance.

The writ of Habeas corpus is a prerogative writ of highest constitutional importance. It is designed to afford immediate relief from illegal confinement or restraint and issued for the vindication of the right to personal liberty by scrutinising the legality of the restrain. Apart from other uses of the writ as in cases of extraditing, or in matters involving validity of detention of the insane or rights to the custody of children it is a process devised in the main for obtaining deliverance from unlawful detention. The purpose of the writ cannot be utilised for any other collateral object. 1960 Cr LJ 390: ILR (1960) Punj 162: AIR 1960 Punj 122 (126) (Pt C) (Prs 17, 18, 20, 23, 24).

205. Power of Court to go behind order of executive.

——Art. 226 — Satisfaction of Magistrate under S. 117 (3) Cr. P. C. — High Court cannot interfere. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 117 (3). 1960 All LJ 227.

——Art. 226 — Question of fact — (Criminal Procedure Code (1898), S. 491).

The detenus challenged the validity of the initial action taken by the police in arresting them on the ground that the arrest was mala fide. It appeared from the report submitted by the police to the Sub-Divisional Magistrate according to the police the acts which had been committed by the detenus were such that there was imminent danger of breach of the peace taking place.

Held, that such question of fact could not be investigated in a petition under Art. 226 of the Constitution or S. 491 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. 1957 AWR (HC) 14: 1957 All LJ 152: 1957 Cr LJ 427: AIR 1957 All 189 (191, 192) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Habeas Corpus — Mala fide detention alleged — Duty of Court — (Public Safety — Preventive Detention Act (1950), S. 3).

It is accepted on all hands that in dealing with applications for the issue of a writ of Habeas Corpus, the court can in a proper case consider and determine the question whether there has been an abuse of the power vested in it under the law. No hard and fast rule can be laid down by which this question can be decided. The petitioner has to satisfy the court that there has been in fact a misuse of the powers vested in the executive. The legislature has given the power of detention of a person to the executive and that power can be exercised by the executive subject to the restrictions imposed and under the conditions laid down in the Act. If the authority comes to a particular conclusion on the material placed before it and passes an order of detention, the court will presume that the action was validly and properly taken; and it would be upon the applicant who alleges fraud or malice (malice in law) to establish as a fact such fraud or malice. Sweeping assertions in the affidavit without materials or sources of information with regard to the allegations made in the affidavit cannot be taken into consideration. AIR 1944 FC 1, 1942 AC 284, Ref. ILR (1952) Hyd 122: 1952 Cri LJ 1076: AIR 1952 Hyd 112 (119) (Pt K) (Pr 19) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Order under — Mala fides — See Pepsu Civil Services (Safeguarding of National Security) Rules (1954), R. 3. AIR 1956 Pepsu 19.

206. Pre-Constitution order of detention.

● ——Art. 226 — Writ of Habeas Corpus — Sentence becoming final before Constitution — Power of High Court to examine legality — Court cannot make elaborate enquiry into jurisdiction of Court passing sentence — Legality of sentence which is ex facie excessive can be examined by High Court although sentence had become final before the Constitution — High Court should order release if legal portion of sentence has been served and dismiss the application if such portion has not expired still — (Criminal P. C., (1898), S. 491). Chhotia v. State, AIR 1955 NUC (Raj) 4353 (FB).

207. Prerogative process for securing liberty.

See also Note 204.

——Art. 226 — Habeas Corpus, writ of — Scope — The right of a petition for Habeas Corpus is a high prerogative right and is a constitutional remedy for all manner of illegal confinement — This is one of the most fundamental rights known to the Constitution but it does yield to another matter namely the safety of the State and its people. ILR (1952) Hyd 122: 1952 Cri LJ 1076: AIR 1952 Hyd 112 (118) (Pt H) (Pr 14) (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 32 — Writ of habeas corpus — Nature of — Powers of High Court — (Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 491).

The writ of habeas corpus is a prerogative process for securing liberty of the subject by affording an effective means of immediate release from unlawful detention whether in prison or in private custody. The full name of writ is 'habeas corpus ad subjiciendum' which means that you have the body to submit or answer.

Under both the Arts. 226 and 32 powers have been conferred to issue writs in the nature of habeas corpus untrammelled by any statutory provision and a writ in the nature of common law writ of habeas corpus may be issued now by the High Courts. In view of the wider powers of the High Courts under Art. 226, the provisions of S. 491, Criminal P. C., can be treated as practically superseded by Art. 226 of the Constitution of India. Chitaley's Constitution of India, Vol. II, p. 1659, Ref. to. 1955 Cr LJ 1603: AIR 1955 Manipur 41 (48) (Pt D) (Pr 29).

208. Preventive detention.

● ——Art. 226 — Habeas corpus — Detention of petitioners under R. 30 (1) (b) of D. I. Rules (1962) by orders of Governor of Kerala passed on 29-12-1964 — President's rule in Kerala under his proclamation of 10-9-1964 — Cancellation of detention orders by President on 4-3-1965 — Fresh detention orders by Central Government on same date — Legality of orders — General election in Kerala was to be held in beginning of March, 1965 — Orders if mala fide. See Ibid, Art. 32. 1966 Cr LJ 602: AIR 1966 SC 816.

● ——Art. 226 — Habeas Corpus — Issue of — Advisory Board under S. 10, Preventive Detention Act not making report within 10 weeks — Detention becomes illegal. See Public Safety —

Preventive Detention Act (1950), S. 10. 1958 Cr LJ 282: AIR 1958 SC 152.

●——Art. 226 — Preventive detention — Mala fides of detaining authority — Public Safety — Where an order of detention is challenged on the grounds of mala fides what has got to be made out is not want of bona fides on the part of the police but want of bona fides as well as the non-application of mind on the part of the detaining authority viz. Government. Lawrence D' Souza v. State of Bombay, 1956 SCA 766: 1956 Cri LJ 935: 1956 SCJ 559: 1956 All WR (Sup) 121: 58 Bom LR 989: 1956 SCR 382: AIR 1956 SC 531 (533, 534) (Pt A) (Pr 3).

●——Art. 32 — Habeas Corpus — Detention under Preventive Detention Act — Validity — (Public Safety — Preventive Detention Act (1950), S. 3 (1)).

Where the detenus were alleged to have published and distributed pamphlets which were couched in the most filthy and abusive language and amounted to a vitriolic attack upon the character and integrity of the present Chief Justice of Pepsu who was accused inter alia of gross partiality and communal bias in the matter of recruiting officers for judicial posts and also in deciding cases between the litigants.

Held, that the orders of detention should be held to be illegal and must be set aside as the publication or distribution of these pamphlets could not have any rational connection with the maintenance of law and order in the State or prevention of acts leading to disorder or disturbance of public tranquillity. Whatever other remedies that might be open to the aggrieved party or to the Government to prevent such scurrilous attack upon the head of the judiciary in the State, the provisions of the Preventive Detention Act could not be made use of for that purpose. The utmost that could be said was that the allegations in the pamphlets were calculated to undermine the confidence of the people in the proper administration of justice in the State. But it was too remote a thing to say, therefore, that the security of the State or the maintenance of law and order in it would be endangered thereby. Sodhi Shamsher Singh v. State of Pepsu, 1954 Cr LJ 735 : AIR 1954 SC 276 (277, 278) (Pt B) (Pr 5).

——Art. 226 — Habeas corpus — Preventive detention — Mala fides — Proof — Serious lapses and irregularities on part of executive not enough — Burden of proof lies on petitioner to establish charge beyond doubt or suspicion.

Serious lapses and irregularities committed by authorities in detaining the petitioner does not necessarily prove that the authorities that were responsible for them were acting in a mala fide manner. In order, however, to find a charge of mala fides a Court of law would require something more than the bare existence of such defects.

The burden of proving that the detention order is mala fides lies heavily on the petitioner. In order to entitle the petitioner to succeed on this aspect of the case, clear and definite facts have got to be alleged so as to enable the Court to hold that the charge which has been sought to be levelled has been established to the hilt. ILR (1961) 1 All 427.

——Art. 226 — Procedure — Detention under S. 3 (1) (a) (ii) of Preventive Detention Act and also under ordinary law — Habeas corpus Petition — Proper order to be passed. See Public Safety — Preventive Detention Act (1950), S. 3 (1) (a) (ii). 1957 Cr LJ 1361: AIR 1957 All 782 (DB).

——Arts. 226, 21 and 22 — Habeas Corpus — Detention under Preventive Detention Act — Allegation as to non-existence of grounds — Remedy — (Public Safety — Preventive Detention Act (1950), Ss. 7 and 10) — (Natural justice.)

The complaint that a detenu under the Preventive Detention Act is deprived of the opportunity of proving before the Court that the statements contained in the grounds for detention were incorrect is untenable since it is open to him to prove the allegation before the Advisory Board constituted under the Act, which consists of three persons who are, or have been, or are qualified to be, appointed as Judges of a High Court. Non-existence of any of the grounds upon which the detention order is based would be a basis for the Board to hold that there was no sufficient cause for detention. A petition for a writ of habeas corpus is not the only judicial proceeding where finality is given to a finding of fact before it reaches the High Court.

Article 21 of the Constitution empowers the Legislature to provide for preventive detention, and the Act in question is a product of that power. Should it be considered that under the Act or the Constitution there ought to be a provision for a reagitation of the matter in the High Court, the remedy lies in the public opinion asserting itself through the Legislature. 1956 Cr LJ 1152: AIR 1956 All 589 (592) (Pt A) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Arts. 226, 19, 21 and 22 — Habeas Corpus — Deprivation of personal liberty under Statute by preventive or punitive detention — Person can challenge constitutionality of Act on ground that it infringes Art. 19 — (U. P. Special Powers Act (XIV of 1932), S. 3).

It is not correct to say that the scope and nature of a petition of habeas corpus excludes the possibility of a challenge in regard to the constitutionality of an Act.

A person who is arrested for purposes of prosecution under S. 3, U. P. Special Powers Act, can undoubtedly challenge the constitutionality of the Act on the ground that the Act directly infringes the freedom of speech and expression: there is no reason and no authority, for saying that the bare fact that an action taken under a certain enactment results in a person's being deprived of his personal liberty, prevents him from challenging the constitutionality of the provision on the ground of its being inconsistent with Art. 19. Observations in AIR 1954 All 601, held obiter. AIR 1950 SC 27; AIR 1951 SC 270, Disting.

Art. 21 guarantees that a person shall not be deprived of his personal liberty except according to procedure established by law. This guarantee is broken the moment he is arrested for doing an act that is made penal by a Statute which is unconstitutional, and the High Court has, not only the power, but also the duty to issue a writ of habeas corpus to enforce his right to personal liberty. The function of a writ of habeas corpus does not extend beyond an enquiry into the jurisdiction of the Court by which the warrant of arrest was issued and the validity of the warrant upon its face. Jurisdiction is the power to hear and determine the subject-matter in controversy between the parties to a suit. But proceedings under an unconstitutional Act are absolutely void and the Act, being void, has no effect to confer jurisdiction. An unconstitutional law is no law and an offence created by it is not crime. If a Court tries a person for an act which is made penal by a void Act, it transcends its jurisdiction and he is entitled to a discharge just the same as if the non-jurisdiction of the Court were apparent in any other manner.

The validity of an enactment is to be judged with respect to the provisions of Art. 19, if the legislation directly attempts to control a citizen's freedom of speech. But if the freedoms enumerated in Art. 19, are restricted indirectly as a result of the operation of a legislation, authorising punitive or preventive detention, then the validity of the legislation is not to be judged with reference to Art. 19 but with reference to the Articles dealing with the subject of detention. If the legislation, permitting detention, is in conformity with Arts. 20 to 22, the mere fact, that it indirectly affects the freedoms under Art. 19, will not make it a void legislation. So that the crucial point to be determined is what is the exact action which the impugned legislation hits at. If it is the curtailment of any of the freedoms guaranteed under Art. 19, then it has to be judged with reference to the provisions of that Article, but on the other hand if those freedoms are affected as an indirect result of a legislation authorising punitive or preventive detention, then the provisions of Art. 19 are not to be taken into consideration. So that it is not every legislation, which permits punitive or preventive detention, which is immune from a consideration as to its validity by reference to the freedoms guaranteed under Art. 19. What has to be seen in every case is the actual action which the statute prohibits. The law, as laid down in Gopalan's case. AIR 1950 SC 27: is not that if a legislation directly interferes with freedom of speech and is not saved by the provisions of Cl. (2) of Art. 19, then it should be held to be invalid, if it merely provides for the imposition of a fine by way of punishment: but that it would be valid if it provides for imprisonment instead of fine.

Where an Act directly curtails the right of freedom of speech and as a result of the violation of the provisions of which a person is punitively detained then in such a case he can rely upon the rights to the freedoms guaranteed to him by Art. 19. While Art. 19 (1) is not contravened when curtailment of the freedom mentioned therein is brought about as a result of detention preventive or punitive under laws otherwise valid, (and it may be further said that while in the case of preventive detention. Art. 19 (1) is not contravened at all), Art. 19 (1) is contravened when punitive detention is effected as a result of the exercise of those freedoms. 1955 Cr LJ 623: ILR (1955) 1 All 355: AIR 1955 All 193 (199 to 201, 206, 207, 209, 210, 218) (Pt B) (Prs 7, 8, 18, 31, 69) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Power of High Court to grant writ of habeas corpus — Preventive Detention Act 1950, S. 8 — Neither S. 8 nor Art. 22 (4) (a) constitutes Advisory Board a Court of law or imposes on it the duty of determining whether previous detention is legal — If opinion does not oust the jurisdiction of High Court to determine whether grounds upon which the petitioner was detained satisfied requirements of law — High Court is not concerned with proceedings of the Advisory Board — Right of High Court to grant writ of habeas corpus where initial arrests in the opinion of the High Court was illegal or improper is not taken away. 1954 Cri LJ 685: 1954 All LJ 6: AIR 1954 All 315 (315 to 317) (Pt A) (Prs 5, 10) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Preventive detention — Satisfaction of detaining authority — Powers of High Court. See Public Safety — Preventive Detention Act (1950), S. 3. AIR 1957 Andhra Pra 143 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Public Safety — Preventive Detention Act (1950), Ss. 3 (1) (a) (ii) and 4 — Validity of order of detention — Detention order against person already in custody — Question that would arise is whether detaining authority was satisfied that order was necessary — This depends on circumstances — It may be argued that the order was not bona fide — It may be challenged on ground of mala fide without imputing improper motive — Order is mala fide when there is malice in law though no malice in fact — Malice in law may be deemed to exist when the order is made contrary to the objects and purposes of the Act or on considerations which are outside the scope of the Act. See Public Safety — Preventive Detention Act (1950), S. 3 (1) (a) (ii). AIR 1953 Assam 97.

——Art. 226 — Art. 14 is suspended by notification under Art. 359 (1) — Attack on ground of discrimination, in R. 30 (4) D. I. Rules 1962 under Art. 14 cannot stand. See Defence of India Act (1962), S. 3 (1). ('65) 69 Cal WN 913.

——Art. 226 — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 491 — Order of detention under Preventive Detention Act (1950) — Powers of High Court to interfere — High Court cannot investigate truth or falsity of particulars. It can only consider whether detenu could make effective representation or mala fide on point of detaining authority. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 491. AIR 1964 Cal 231.

——Art. 226 — Satisfaction of detaining authority — Sufficiency of materials — Powers of High Court to examine. See Public Safety — Preventive Detention Act (1950), S. 3. 1962 (1) Cr LJ 311: AIR 1962 Cal 162 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Members of State Legislature — Immunity from arrest for Preventive Detention — Representation of the People Act, (1951), Ss. 5 to 8. See Ibid, Art. 105. 1952 Cri LJ 1454: AIR 1952 Cal 632 (SB).

——Art. 226 — Application challenging order of detention — Detenu's case not considered by Advisory Board — Preventive Detention Act, Ss. 8 to 11. See Cr. P. C., S. 491. 1952 Cr. LJ 204: AIR 1952 Cal 26 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Habeas Corpus — (Cr. P. C. Code (1898), S. 491).

The mere fact that the ban on the communist party to which the detenu belonged has been removed will not entitle the detenu to obtain an order of release from the High Court. The justification for imposing a ban or laying restrictions on the activities of an association may cease to exist but the right of the Government to exercise its powers under the Preventive Detention Act with regard to a particular individual in the interest of maintenance of public order and for the sake of public security will continue as long as the Government is responsible for the security of the State and for the maintenance of law and order. It is one thing to remove a ban on an association and it is quite a different thing to release a member of that organisation to whom violent and subversive activities are attributed. ILR (1953) Hyd 459: 1953 Cr LJ 1845: AIR 1953 Hyd 277 (280) (Pt F) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Writ of habeas corpus — Order of detention under Preventive Detention Act — Grounds furnished vague — Acts attributed relating to security of State — Order of detention for maintenance of public order — Offence of dacoity recited — Discharge upon charge for dacoity — Sufficiency of grounds for detention.

In an application for a writ of habeas corpus the points raised were (1) that the grounds were vague; (2) that the detaining authority has failed to take note that he was discharged on the charge against him for the offence of dacoity which formed one of the acts relied on; (3) that the acts relied on were all relevant only if at all to the security of State and not for the maintenance of public order for which purpose the order purports to have been made.

Held: The grounds can be said to be vague only when the detenu could not understand them so as to enable him to make representations. AIR 1951 SC 157 and AIR 1951 SC 270, Rel. The detenu has made representations to the Advisory Board and so they could not be held to be vague.

Under S. 3 (1) of the Act it is open to the detaining authority to detain for reasons of security of State or for maintenance of public order. It is only when the reasons given for the detention is not within the scope and ambit of the Act the detenu can question the validity. The fact that the grounds relate to their being prejudicial to the security of State and the order is for the maintenance of the public order does not make any difference as the detaining authority has power to detain in either circumstances. (AIR 1950 All 709, Ref.).

The detaining authority is competent to continue the detention if he finds that the detention is still necessary in view of the other activities mentioned in the grounds in spite of his discharge from the charge on the offence of dacoity.

It is only where the grounds furnished do not relate to matters within the scope of the Act and did not fall within S. 3 (1) of the Act it is open to the detenu to say that the authority had no jurisdiction to pass the order of detention. The sufficiency of the grounds for the passing of the order is beyond that scope of inquiry in the proceeding under Art. 226. AIR 1951 SC 481, Foll. 1952 Cr LJ 1756: ILR (1952) Hyd 770: AIR 1952 Hyd 186 (187) (Pt D) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Scope of inquiry — Application for writ of habeas corpus — Validity of law authorising detention — If can be challenged or gone into.

In an application for a writ of habeas corpus under Art. 226 of the Constitution or under S. 529, Hyderabad Cr. P. Code, the validity of the law under which an order of detention has been passed can be challenged; and it is open to the High Court to ascertain if that law (Preventive Detention Act) under which the order of detention complained of has been passed is ultra vires and beyond the competence of the authority by which it was passed. AIR 1945 PC 48, Rel. ILR (1951) Hyd 168: 52 Cr LJ 710 (2): AIR 1951 Hyd 83 (84) (Pt C) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Public Safety—J and K Preventive Detention Act (4 of 2011 sm.) S. 3 (1) (a) — Detention under, challenged in writ petition for habeas corpus on grounds of mala fide — Mere allegation of mala fide in affidavit without details is not enough. 1963 (1) Cri LJ 765: AIR 1963 J and K 23 (27) (Pt D) (Pr 8).

——Art. 226 — Preventive Detention — Preventive Detention Act (1950), S. 19 — Effect of, on High Court's powers. See Public Safety — Preventive Detention Act (1950), S. 19. AIR 1954 J. and K. 59 (FB).

——Art. 226 — Order of detention directing that detenu be detained at place beyond jurisdiction of detaining authority — Order is illegal. See Public Safety — Jammu and Kashmir Public Security Act (XV of 2003 Sm.) S. 3. AIR 1954 J. and K. 7 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Preventive Detention Act (1950), S. 3 — Detention under — Grounds — Sufficiency of — If and when can be challenged in court of law — Court not to inquire into truth of otherwise of facts stated therein. See Public Safety — Preventive Detention Act (1950), S. 3. 1956 MBLJ 1270.

——Art. 226 — Habeas Corpus — Preventive detention — Justiciability of grounds in the order. 1956 MB LJ (HCR) 1276.

——Art. 226 — Grounds — Sufficiency — Power of High Court to examine material — See Public Safety — Preventive Detention Act 1950, S. 3. AIR 1955 NUC (MB) 3864.

——Art. 226 — Habeas corpus — Preventive detention — Detention found to be not in accordance with procedure established by law — Detenu is entitled to be released. AIR 1955 NUC (MB) 3100.

——Art. 226 — Person arrested by police under S. 151 Cr. P. C. — Order of detention under S. 3 of Act 4 of 1950 can be made against him. See Public Safety — Preventive Detention Act (1950), S. 3. Madh BLJ 1954 HCR 289.

——Art. 226 — Habeas Corpus — Detention under Preventive Detention Act — Factual correctness of ground for detention verified by Advisory Board after hearing petitioner — Matter cannot be investigated by High Court under Art. 226 — (Public Safety — Preventive Detention Act (1950), Ss. 9, 10 and 11).

It is not open to the petitioner to challenge in Habeas corpus proceedings before the High Court the factual correctness of a ground as set out in the grounds of detention, when the petitioner had an opportunity to challenge the correctness of that allegation in the proceedings before the Advisory Board in which he fully participated. If the Court has no jurisdiction to investigate the factual position by taking evidence at this stage, the purpose to be served by such an investigation would appear to be immaterial. Such an investigation is barred even for the purpose of establishing mala fides of the Government in confirming the order of detention. 71 Mad LW 328: 1958 Mad WN 369: 1958 Mad LJ (Cri) 607: 1958 Cri LJ 1047: (1958) 2 Mad LJ 169: ILR (1958) Mad 692: AIR 1958 Mad 425 (427) (Pt A) (Prs 5, 6) (DB).

——Arts. 226, 22 — Preventive Detention Act (4 of 1950), Ss. 3, 7, 11 — Bona fides of detention — Relevant factors — Petition held not mala fide —See Public Safety — Preventive Detention Act (1950), S. 3. AIR 1958 Mad 425.

——Arts. 226, 22 — Public Safety — Preventive Detention Act (1950), Ss. 3, 7, 11 — Detenu charge-sheeted in Criminal prosecution against him — Ground of detention not same as offence set out in charge — No question of mala fide arises — See Public Safety — Preventive Detention Act (1950), S. 3. AIR 1958 Mad 425.

——Art. 226 — Public Safety — Preventive Detention Act (1950), Ss. 3 and 12 — Right of detenu to challenge order on ground of mala fide — Burden of Proof — Duty of Government — Malice and mala fide explained — Validity of prior order in question — Fresh order for detention passed before pronouncement of judgment — Omission by Government to inform court's order reflects on their bona fide — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 491. 65 Mad LW 876: 1952-2 Mad LJ 690: 1953 Cri

LJ 224: AIR 1953 Mad 41 (45, 46, 47, 49, 50, 51) (Pt A) (Prs 7, 9, 14, 17, 18) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Detention under Preventive Detention Act — Application for writ of habeas corpus — Scope of proceedings in High Court. See Public Safety — Preventive Detention Act 1950, S. 1 (3). AIR 1952 Pat 298 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Preventive Detention Act (1950), S. 7 — Grounds — Even one vague ground affects the legality of detention — All the grounds supplied must be precise, definite clear and specific — AIR 1953 SC 318 and Cri. Misc. No. 66 of 1953, D/ 10-8-1953 (Pepsu), Foll. See Public Safety — Preventive Detention Act (1950), S. 7. AIR 1955 NUC (Pepsu) 2157.

——Art. 226 — Vague grounds of detention, effect. See Ibid, Art. 22 (5). 1953 Cr LJ 1838: AIR 1953 Pepsu 207.

——Art. 226 — Preventive Detention Act (1950), S. 7 — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 491 — Detenu's petition for release — Scope of — It is not within scope of such petition to inquire into the truth or falsehood of the grounds supplied — See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 491. AIR 1953 Pepsu 190.

——Art. 226 — Preventive Detention Act (1950), S. 7 — Grounds not true — Interference by High Court — See Public Safety — Preventive Detention Act (1950), S. 7. AIR 1953 Pepsu 145.

——Art. 226 — Preventive Detention Act (1950), S. 3 — Validity of detention — Petitioner all along detained in jail for about six months as under-trial prisoner in three cases — In one of them he was acquitted and in other discharged — Immediately after acquittal, when third case was pending, he was served with order of preventive detention under S. 3, mentioning the last activities prior to detention extending for period of two years as grounds of detention — Detention order held was made for collateral purposes as there was likelihood that the object was either to punish him for his past acts or to prejudice his defence in case pending against him. ILR (1952) Patiala 620: 1953 Cri LJ 1210: AIR 1953 Pepsu 111 (112) (Pt B) (Pr 5).

——Art. 226 — Habeas Corpus — Detention for preventing a person from acting in a manner prejudicial to defence of India — Grounds of detention must have rational connection with objects in S. 30 — Satisfaction of Government — Sufficiency of material on which satisfaction based not justiciable—Order cannot be challenged alleging vagueness of grounds—Interference not permissible unless order shown to be mala fide. See Defence of India Act (1962), S. 3 (2). 1963 (2) Cri LJ 320: AIR 1963 Punj 408.

——Art. 226 — Habeas corpus — Detention under Preventive Detention Act, 1950 — Advisory Board examining case of detenu and deciding not to order release — Petition by detenu under Art. 226 not barred. 62 Punj LR 339: 1960 Cri LJ 981: AIR 1960 Punj 332 (335) (Pt B) (Pr 6).

——Art. 226 — Preventive Detention — Grounds of detention — Rational relation between the two necessary — Legality of detention. See Ibid, Art. 22. 1957 Cri LJ 100: AIR 1957 Raj 5 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Habeas corpus — District Magistrate passing order of preventive detention — Grounds of detention drawn more than three weeks thereafter — Legality. See Ibid, Art. 22. 1957 Cri LJ 100: AIR 1957 Raj 5 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Public Safety — Preventive Detention Act (1950), Ss. 10 (1) and 11 (1) — Report of Advisory Board received within ten weeks — Order of confirmation passed beyond ten weeks, but within three months of order of detention — Further detention is valid. See Public Safety — Preventive Detention Act (1950), S. 10 (1). AIR 1953 Sau 138.

——Art. 226 — Illegal detention — Order of detention under Preventive Detention Act, 1950 — Order not served on detenu nor copy granted after request — Grounds alone communicated three days after arrest and detention — Legality of detention — Issue of writ of habeas corpus. See Ibid, Art. 22 (5). 52 Cr LJ 845: AIR 1951 TC 130 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Habeas Corpus — Detention under Preventive Detention Act — Case examined by Advisory Board and report submitted — Petition under Art. 226 is not maintainable — (Public Safety — Preventive Detention Act (1950), Ss. 3 and 10).

Where a person has been detained under S. 3, Preventive Detention Act (1950), and his case has already been examined by the Advisory Board and report under S. 10 has duly been submitted, a habeas corpus petition under Art. 226, Constitution of India, is legally not maintainable. 1957 Cr LJ 480: AIR 1957 Tripura 25 (26) (Pr 8).

——Art. 226 — Habeas corpus — Preventive detention — Legality — (Public Safety — Preventive Detention Act (1950), S. 3 (1) (a) (i) and (ii)).

No doubt the writ of habeas corpus is intended for the protection of personal liberty which is a Fundamental Right under the Constitution, and, considering the object for which the power has been conferred, it is conceived that whenever the case of unlawful deprivation of personal liberty is brought to the notice of the Court, the Court will not hesitate to issue the writ; but as the writ of habeas corpus ad subjeciendum is a writ of right and as it is not a writ of course, it can be issued only on probable cause and so the writ may be refused where there is an alternative remedy available.

Where, the petition was not supported by any affidavit, it was presented after considerable delay, the petitioner was detained under the Preventive Detention Act and the procedure laid down under that Act was duly followed. 1956 Cr LJ 118: AIR 1956 Tripura 1 (1, 2) (Prs 3, 7).

209. Private custody, detention in.

——Art. 226 — Habeas corpus — Petition for production of girl — Father in counter-affidavit alleging that she has disappeared from the house — Writ will not be discharged unless respondent-father satisfies the Court that he is really unable to produce the girl — His mere statement that she has run away is not enough — Circumstances showing that father is not innocent as he claimed to be — Court entertaining doubt and suspicion about the manner in which the girl was removed — Respondent-father cannot escape liability. 1960 All Cr R 374: 1960 All WR (HC) 591: 1960 All LJ 776.

210. Production of prisoner in Court.

——Art. 226 — Habeas corpus — Rule nisi for production of detenu in Court — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 491.

The High Court has a discretion in the matter of directing the attendance of the detenu in Court. Generally the allegations made in a petition for habeas corpus are not conclusive by themselves and the practice is to issue an order to the respondent to show cause why the petition should not be granted. A Rule nisi for production of the detenu in Court would be made only where a prima facie case of unlawful detention has been made out on behalf of the person invoking the aid of the Court. Where the order of detention produced by the Government appear to be on the face of it a proper order and there is no defect or irregularity about the same it cannot be said that the detenu has made out prima facie case for the issue of an order directing the production of the detenu in Court. 1952 Cri LJ 710 (2): ILR (1951) Hyd 168: AIR 1951 Hyd 83 (85, 86) (Pt A) (Prs 7, 8) (DB).

211. Protective custody.

——Art. 226 — Habeas Corpus — Suppression of Immoral Traffic in Women and Girls Act (1956), S. 17 (2) — Proceedings under, pending — Petition for Habeas Corpus does not lie.

The law is well established that if proceedings are being taken under some provisions of law, a petition for habeas corpus would not lie. Where proceedings under S. 17 (2) are pending against the girls arrested under S. 15 of the Suppression of Immoral Traffic in Women and Girls Act for being sent to protective custody, no question of habeas corpus being issued in the case arises. AIR 1951 SC 217, Foll. 1962 All LJ 725: 1962 All WR (HC) 577: 1962 All Cri R 326: (1963) 1 Cri LJ 505 (507) (Pt B) (Pr 8) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Illegality — Production of kidnapped girl in pursuance of search warrant — Magistrate remanding girl to jail custody on ground of apprehension of breach of peace — Order whether justified by Ss. 100, 107 or 552, Criminal Procedure Code — Legality of detention. See Criminal Procedure Code (1898), S. 100. 1957 Cr LJ 1445: AIR 1957 Pat 689 (DB).

212. Re-arrest after release.

■——Arts. 32, 226 and 356 — Habeas corpus — Detention of petitioners under R. 30 (1) (b) of D. I. Rules (1962) by orders of Governor of Kerala passed on 29-12-1964 — President's rule in Kerala under his proclamation of 10-9-1964 — Cancellation of detention orders by President on 4-3-1965 — Fresh detention orders by Central Government on same date — Legality of these orders — General election in Kerala was to be held in beginning of March 1965 — Orders if mala fide.

Held, on facts, (i) that the allegation that the detention orders of 4-3-1965 were mala fide as they were passed to circumvent the possibility of the petitioners being released in case a party Government came into power in the State after the elections must be rejected as, apart from the denial of the allegation, the Central Government had clearly stated that on the materials placed before it, it was satisfied as to the likely prejudicial activities of the petitioners before it passed the orders. The contention that the orders were illegal as there was no material before the Central Government before it passed the orders must also be rejected; (ii) that the orders of the Governor, dated 29-12-1964 were in the circumstances the orders of the President acting through the agency of the Governor and it was open to the President to cancel the orders passed by his agent. There was nothing illegal in the Central Government thereafter passing the detention orders of its own on the same date.

Further, as the Government of Kerala was functioning under the President by virtue of the proclamation the decision of the Central Government to detain the petitioners for itself could be given effect to by asking the President to cancel the orders of the Governor. Even where persons are detained by orders of the State Government, there is no illegality in the Central Government asking the State Government to withdraw its orders and to detain the persons thereafter by orders of the Central Government, provided the State Government is agreeable to withdraw its orders. It was not necessary to carry out the empty formality of release of the petitioners from jail under the orders of cancellation and to arrest them immediately they came out of jail and to serve on them the new orders of detention. AIR 1964 SC 1128, Rel. on. Gopalan v. Government of India. 1965 Ker LT 1229: 1966 Ker LJ 45: (1966) 1 SCWR 449: 1966 Cr LJ 602: AIR 1966 SC 816 (818, 819) (Pt B) (Prs 6, 7, 9).

■——Art. 226 — Habeas Corpus, Writ of — Return to writ — Failure to file — Convict undergoing sentence of imprisonment — Release on grounds of ill-health — Re-arrest and detention in jail — Lawful authority under which re-arrest made not disclosed — Detention is illegal.

No member of the executive can interfere with the liberty of a subject except on condition that he can support the legality of his action before a Court of justice: AIR 1931 PC 248, Rel. on.

A convict sentenced to imprisonment was released from custody on grounds of his ill-health but was subsequently re-arrested and detained in jail. On an application under Art. 226, for a writ of Habeas Corpus, the State did not file any return showing the provisions under which the convict was released or re-arrested.

Held, that as it had not been shown that there was lawful authority under which the convict was re-arrested, his detention could not be supported and was illegal. State of Bihar v. Kameshwar Prasad Verma, (1962) 2 Ker LR 192: (1963) 2 SCR 183: 1962 BLJR 798: 1962 SCD 851: (1963) 2 SCJ 89: 1963 Mad LJ (Cri) 315: 1963 All Cri R 262: 1963 All WR (HC) 534: 1963 (1) Cri LJ 494: AIR 1965 SC 575 (577) (Pr 8).

——Art. 226 — Habeas Corpus—Effect of release.

Where a person, arrested for having committed an offence punishable under an Act is released on a writ of habeas corpus, on the ground that there was a contravention of the provision contained in Art. 22 (2), Constitution of India, he can still be tried in respect of the same accusation. 1954 All LJ 355: 1954 Cr LJ 1317: ILR (1955) 1 All 793: AIR 1954 All 601 (605) (Pt H) (Pr 36) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Habeas corpus — Powers of High Court — Scope — High Court not to go into merits of arrest and detention after release of detenu. 1961 MPLJ 1199.

——Art. 226 — Subsequent order of detention not brought to the notice of Court at the time of delivery of judgment in a writ of habeas corpus questioning detention under an earlier order — Rearrest of detenu on such order — Mala fides of Government — Effect of the later order.

On 19th February, the Court reserved judgment in an application for writ of habeas corpus filed by the petitioner and on 22nd February, the Court delivered judgment making the rule nisi absolute. During this interval the Government and its legal advisers had a conference wherein they came to the conclusion that the petitioner would in all probability be released by the Court on account of a technical defect in the form of the order and that if it was so a subsequent order of detention could be passed on account of the antecedents of the petitioner. The fact that such an order was in fact passed was not communicated to the learned Advocate-General or learned Public Prosecutor and so was not brought to the notice of the Court at the time of delivery of the judgment. Within a few minutes after the delivery of the judgment the petitioner was re-arrested by the Assistant Commissioner of Police who had orders to re-arrest. In fact, the subsequent order of re-arrest had not cured the technical defect on which the earlier judgment was based.

Held, in the circumstances (per Satyanarayana Rao and Raghava Rao, JJ.) that the subsequent order of the Government lacked bona fide and that therefore the rule nisi should be made absolute and petitioner set at liberty.

The subsequent order not having been brought to the notice of the Court when the judgment was delivered on the earlier order, the order directing the release of the petitioner on 22nd February, automatically discharged the first order of detention passed earlier on that date.

Assuming that it was the duty of the Government at the time of delivering judgment in the habeas corpus application of the detenu to bring to the notice of the Court all orders of detention which might justify the detention of the person whose application for release was under consideration then there is no principle on which the Government's dereliction of duty in this respect has the effect of nullifying the order for detention which had been made and not brought to the notice of the Court. It is not a question of constructive res judicata nor is it a matter of necessary implication of the judgment that all prior orders of detention should cease to operate thereafter. The judgment can only relate to the matters in fact brought to the notice of the Court. 65 LW 876: (1952) 2 MLJ 690: 1953 Cr LJ 224: AIR 1953 Mad 41 (48, 53) (Pt D) (Prs 11, 26) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Habeas corpus — Release of prisoner on ground of illness — Subsequent arrest — Legality — (Bihar and Orissa Jail Manual, R. 549 (2)).

Where a prisoner was properly unconditionally released under R. 549 (2) of Bihar and Orissa Jail Manual, by the District Magistrate subsequent order of the District Magistrate ordering his re-arrest is illegal.

Per Prasad, J. :—In a case in which the release is conditional, the authority releasing the prisoner must necessarily have powers to recall the prisoner concerned, if the condition is not fulfilled. But in a case where the release has been unconditional, it shall be taken that as soon as the prisoner is released, the unexpired portion of the sentence on him shall be deemed to have been remitted, so that the prisoner is no longer under the liability of being recalled to undergo any further sentence.

Rule 549 of the Bihar and Orissa Jail Manual does not make all release under it conditional. The words of the rules are not open to this construction. That part of this rule which actually confers the power of release on the prescribed authorities under specified circumstances, does not contain anything to limit the powers of release so conferred.

It is reasonable, therefore, to interpret this rule as fettering the powers of the authorities including the State Government and limit them so that not even the Government can release the prisoner concerned unconditionally, under R. 549 of the Jail Manual. 1958 BLJR 531: 1959 Cr LJ 501: AIR 1959 Pat 146 (148, 149, 150) (Pt. A) (Prs 7, 8, 9, 10, 14, 19, 21) (DB).

213. Res judicata in writ proceedings.

See also Notes 105, 114 and 216 and Civil P. C. (1908), S. 11.

●——Art. 32 — Habeas Corpus petition — Rejection on merits — Reconsideration on constitutional points — Case cannot be reopened for reason that grounds of detention are vague. AIR 1952 SC 324, Considered. Godavari Parulekar v. State of Bombay, (1953) 1 MLJ 203: (1953) SCJ 28: 1953 SCR 210: (1953) Cr LJ 508: 1953 SCA 287: AIR 1953 SC 52 (53) (Pt C) (Pr 13).

——Art. 226 (1) — Rejection of earlier petition under Article on preliminary issue — Subsequent petition cannot be treated as barred because of rejection of earlier petition — Per Deka, J. AIR 1953 Assam 12 (15) (Pt D) (Pr 11) (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 32 — Habeas Corpus — Prior application dismissed by High Court — Subsequent application to Supreme Court can be made directly without leave. 52 Cri LJ 1360: ILR (1951) 3 Assam 42: AIR 1951 Assam 143 (1) (143) (Pr 2).

●——Art. 226 — Cr. P. Code (1898), S. 491 — Second petition for writ of habeas corpus — When maintainable.

No second petition for writ of habeas corpus lies to the High Court on a ground on which a similar petition has already been dismissed by the Court. However, a second such petition will lie when a fresh and a new ground of attack against the legality of detention or custody has arisen after the decision on the first petition, and also where for some exceptional reason a ground has been omitted in an earlier petition, in appropriate circumstances, the High Court will hear the second petition on such a ground for ends of justice. In the last case it is only a ground which existed at the time of the earlier petition, and was omitted from it, that will be considered. Second petition will not be competent on the same ground merely because an additional argument is available to urge with regard to the same.

Held, on facts, that second petition was not maintainable as in both the petitions the same matter was put in different words. Ram Kumar Pearay Lal v. District Magistrate, Delhi, ILR (1965) 2 Punj 853: 1966 Cr LJ 153: AIR 1966 Punj 51 (54 to 58) (Pt D) (Prs 8, 9) (FB).

214. Return to the writ.

●——Art. 226 — Habeas Corpus — Return to writ — Affidavit by detaining authority — Need for — (Criminal Procedure Code (1898), S. 491 (2)).

The incalculable value of habeas corpus is that it enables the immediate determination of the right to the appellant's freedom. As soon as there emerges a fact into which the Court feels it should enquire, the necessity for an affidavit arises. Ordinarily, an affidavit may not be necessary in making the return if the detention is under orders of the detaining authority in exercise of its plenary discretion or a person is detained under the Orders of a Court. But where the detention is in police lock-up it becomes necessary for the detaining authority to justify its action by disclosing facts which would show to the satisfaction of the Court that the custody is not improper. When issues of fact are raised and the actions of the police officers are expressly challenged and facts are set out which if unrebutted and unexplained would be sufficient for the writ to issue, an affidavit becomes necessary. Ranjit Singh v. State of Pepsu (now Punjab), ILR (1959) Punj 1709: 26 Cut LT 576: (1960) 2 Ker LR 541: (1959) Supp (2) SCR 727: 1959 Mad WN (SC) 86: 37 Mys LJ 869: 1959

SCJ 905: 1959 All WR (HC) 371: 1959 Cr LJ 1124: 1959 All Cr R 298: 1959 Mad LJ (Cr) 618: (1959) 2 MLJ (SC) 121: (1959) 2 SCA 552: (1959) 2 Andh WR (SC) 121: AIR 1959 SC 843 (845, 846) (Pt A) (Pr 4).

●——Art. 32 — Returns.

In a question of habeas corpus, when the lawfulness or otherwise of the Custody of the persons concerned is in question, the documents containing order of remand would be of vital importance and should be produced at time of filing return. Ram Narayan Singh v. State of Delhi, 1953 Mad WN 647: (1953) SCJ 326: 1953 Cr LJ 1113: 1953 All WR (Sup) 68: 1953 SCR 652: 1953 SCA 399: AIR 1953 SC 277 (278) (Pt C) (Pr 4).

——Art. 226 — Habeas corpus, writ of — Detention of petitioner in pursuance of commitment by Legislative Assembly — Legality — Onus of proof — Duty of Court — Only one of respondents appearing to oppose petition can be allowed to do so.

Where in a petition for the issue of a writ of habeas corpus it was alleged that the petitioner was detained in pursuance of a commitment by the Legislative Assembly, the detention cannot be treated as prima facie unlawful and it is for the petitioner to show that the commitment was illegal. Even if no one appears to oppose the petition, the High Court would still have to decide whether the commitment was legal or illegal. Therefore, if only one of the respondents, viz., the Jail Superintendent has appeared to oppose the petition, he should be allowed to urge that the commitment and the warrant on the basis of which he was detaining the petitioner was valid. 1965 (2) Cri LJ 170: ILR (1965) 2 All 281: 1965 All WR (HC) 286: 1965 All Cr R 213: AIR 1965 All 349 (352) (Pt A) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Habeas Corpus — Writ of — Return to writ — Basis of detention prior order of District Magistrate — State cannot plead at stage of arguments that basis of detention was subsequent order of detention passed by State.

When a detenu files an application of habeas corpus, the authority detaining the petitioner is bound to disclose the basis of his detention in the return made by it in the clearest possible terms. It should, at the stage of return, produce the order justifying the detention of the person concerned so as to enable him to meet the case set up against him.

If in the return by the State and the counter-affidavit filed on behalf of the State which constitutes a part of the return, the basis for the detention of the petitioner is the order passed by the District Magistrate under S. 3 (2), Preventive Detention Act, it would not be open to the State at the stage of arguments to abandon that stand and to base the detention of the petitioner on a subsequent order of detention passed by the State. AIR 1954 All 601, Rel. on. ILR (1961) 1 All 427.

——Art. 226 — Habeas corpus — Counter-affidavit — Petition for production of girl — Father in counter-affidavit alleging that due to shock caused to the girl by the infamy of the whole affairs, the girl had disappeared from the house of her aunt where she was sent and that her whereabout were not known — Father not in contact with girl when she was alleged to have disappeared — Allegations verified on personal knowledge — Verification held to be false, since deponent could not verify upon personal knowledge to state of mind of another with whom he had no contact — Civil P. C. (1908), O. 6, R. 15. 1960 All Cr R 374: 1960 All WR (HC) 591: 1960 All LJ 776.

——Art. 226 — Habeas corpus — Return to — — Duty of respondent.

The return to a writ of habeas corpus has to be an unambiguous return and it has got to set forth clearly, and with sufficient particularity the facts and the cause for the accused person's detention. There can be no scope for a presumption being pressed into service or a verbal assertion being pressed into service in order to justify a detention which on the materials placed before the Court appears unjustified. AIR 1954 All 601, Rel. on. 1959 All LJ 50: 1959 All WR (HC) 79: 1959 All Cr R 105: 1959 Cr LJ 685: AIR 1959 All 384 (388) (Pt E) (Pr 22) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Disclosure of facts in return to writ of habeas corpus — (Cr. P. Code (1898), S. 491).

It is well established that a return to a writ of habeas corpus has to be unambiguous and it has got to set forth clearly and directly and with sufficient particularity the facts and the cause for the petitioner's detention. The return has to state all the facts and all the grounds which constitute valid and sufficient grounds for the detention of the persons alleged to be detained. There is no scope of any presumptions being pressed into service by a Court to make up deficiencies in the return which the opposite party was in law bound to make. ILR (1955) All 793: 1954 All LJ 355: 1954 Cr LJ 1317: AIR 1954 All 601 (605) (Pt C) (Pr 35) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Writ of habeas corpus — Return has to state facts and grounds for detention.

A return to a writ of habeas corpus has to be unambiguous and it has got to set forth clearly and directly and with sufficient particularity the facts and the causes for the petitioner's detention. The return has to state all the facts and all the grounds which constitute valid and sufficient grounds for the detention of the persons alleged to be detained. There is no scope of any presumptions being pressed into service by a Court to make up deficiencies in the return which the opposite party was in law bound to make. AIR 1954 All 601, Rel. on. Madh BLJ 1955 HCR 1560: AIR 1955 MB 200 (202) (Pt B) (Pr 21) (DB).

——Art. 226 — No returns filed to the writ petition by person who was alone competent to give reply and who was made respondent to the petition — Reply by other respondent vague — Statement made by petitioner must be taken to be correct. 1964 Cur LJ 392.

——Art. 226 — Habeas corpus — Return to writ — Who should make — (Criminal Procedure Code (1898), S. 491).

In a habeas corpus proceeding, the return to the writ is the principal pleading of the person against whom the writ is directed. It must be made in accordance with the rule issued. Further, it must be made by the person to whom the writ was issued and on whom it was served. A return on behalf of another officer, who is not a respondent in the case, and who is not named in the proceedings as a party thereto is not in accordance with any rule of pleadings. 1960 Cr LJ 390: ILR (1960) Punj 162: AIR 1960 Punj 122 (124, 125) (Pt A) (Pr 8).

215. Review or rehearing.

●——Art. 32 — Privilege of legislature — Power to punish citizen for contempt on general warrant — Review of case by Supreme Court. See Ibid, Art. 194 (3). AIR 1965 SC 745.

216. Successive applications.

See also Notes 105, 114 and 213 and Civil P. C. (1908), S. 11.

——Arts. 32, 226 — Habeas Corpus — Prior application dismissed by High Court — Subsequent application to Supreme Court can be made directly without leave.

A petitioner whose petition for habeas corpus has been dismissed by the High Court need not ask for leave of the High Court to move another habeas corpus petition to the Supreme Court. He can move the Supreme Court directly under Art. 32. ILR (1951) 3 Assam 42: 52 Cri LJ 1360: AIR 1951 Assam 143 (1) (143) (Pr 2).

——Art. 226 — Application under, against detention under Preventive Detention Act — Grounds available but not taken in previous application against same detention or in the present application, will not be allowed to be raised.

Point available to the detenu against his detention under Preventive Detention Act in his previous applications under Art. 226 before the High Court an under Art. 32 before the Supreme Court, cannot be allowed to be taken in subsequent application under Article 226 against the same detention. Similarly grounds not stated in the application under Art. 226; against which the Government could not have an opportunity to file an affidavit cannot be allowed to be raised. ('52) 54 Bom LR 629 : 1953 Cri LJ 322: 22 Bom Cri C 1: ILR (1953) Bom 182: AIR 1953 Bom 59 (59, 60) (Pt A) (Prs 3, 4) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Successive applications for writ of habeas corpus —Competency— Second application to different Judges of same High Court after rejection by a Bench — Power to entertain — Power of review.

When orders under S. 491, Cr. P. Code are passed by the High Court, the decision is that of the High Court and not that of the Judges though the High Court acts through a Judge and Judges composing the Bench nominated by the Chief Justice for the purpose. The judgment is not of the Bench but the judgment of the High Court. There is no provision either in the Letters Patent or in any of the rules framed by the High Court for a Judge or Judges of the High Court to exercise independent judgment. Nor is there any independent jurisdiction conferred upon any Judge of the High Court to issue writs contemplated by Art. 226. Even under Art. 226 it is only the High Court that can issue a writ for the enforcement of a fundamental right. The jurisdiction is conferred on the High Court as such and not upon any Judge or Judges of the High Court, and, therefore, when a Division Bench of the High Court hears an application under Art. 226, it is hearing that application as the High Court and its ultimate decision is not the decision of the bench but the decision of the High Court. When a Division Bench has rejected an application for a writ, it is not open to the applicant to approach any other Judge or Judges of the High Court for a similar purpose notwithstanding the decision of the High Court to the contrary. To make a second or successive applications would be to apply for a review by the High Court of its decision on an application for a writ for the enforcement of the fundamental rights under Art. 226. No Court has an inherent power of review. There is nothing in the Cr. P. Code or in Art. 226 which would warrant the view that any power is conferred upon the High Court to review decisions in matters falling under the article or under S. 491. The decision of the High Court is final qua the High Court, notwithstanding that the interest of individual liberty and the cause of fundamental rights guaranteed to the citizen are involved. The applicant has, however, an independent right to approach the Supreme Court, notwithstanding the refusal of the High Court, in its primary jurisdiction, and he has also a right of appeal to the Supreme Court. A second application after the rejection of a prior application is therefore incompetent. AIR 1948 Bom 326 (FB), Ref. Prahlad Krishna Kurne, In re, ILR (1951) Bom 181 : 5 AI Cr D 79 : 52 Cr LJ 305 : 53 Bom LR 61 : AIR 1951 Bom 25 (26, 27) (Pt B) (Prs 5 to 7) (FB).

——Art. 226 — Habeas Corpus — Writ of — Successive applications.

Quaere :— Whether successive applications for writs in the nature of habeas corpus on the same facts can be made ? 1953 Cri LJ 361 : AIR 1953 Cal 129 (135) (Pt E) (Pr 45) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Habeas Corpus — Writ of — Applications under different circumstances.

Applications were made under Art. 226 after the Act of 1951 was passed amending the earlier Preventive Detention Act of 1950. In these applications it was contended that the later amending Act was ultra vires and further that if it was intra vires, certain new rights were granted to the detenus. Held, that a decision under the Preventive Detention Act of 1950 could never prevent an application made when that Act had been amended in the manner in which it was amended by the 1951 Act. The fact that an application had been dismissed under the 1950 Act might afford no answer whatsoever to the contentions of the detenu under the Act as amended in 1951. That being so the High Court was bound to hear these applications even if the law prohibited successive applications. 1953 Cri LJ 361 : AIR 1953 Cal 129 (135) (Pt F) (Pr 46) (DB).

——Art. 226 and Criminal Procedure Code (V of 1898), S. 491 — Scope —Writ of habeas corpus— Maintainablity of successive applications.

The remedy provided for under Art. 226 of the Constitution of India, and the remedy provided for under S. 491, of the Criminal Procedure Code overlap and after the Constitution of India S. 491, of the Code has become redundant, if not obsolete. But so long as the provision stands unrepealed it can be availed of by a party. It is now well settled that under S. 491 of the Criminal Procedure Code a party cannot make successive applications for the issue of a writ of habeas corpus when once his earlier application for the same relief is dismissed. The position will be the same under Art. 226, of the Constitution and a second application seeking the same relief which was disallowed in an earlier application cannot be maintained. AIR 1951 Bom 25, Approved. AIR 1949 East Punjab 67, Diss. 1962 Mad WN 190 : (1964) MLJ (Cr) 442 : 75 Mad LW 260 : ILR (1962) Mad 674 : (1964) 2 Cr LJ 381 : AIR 1962 Mad 354 (356 to 360) (Prs 6, 8, 9, 15, 17, 18) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 369 & 491 — Judgment — Order on writ application is not "judgment" — Successive writ applications (for habeas corpus) are not barred by S. 369. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 369. AIR 1955 NUC (Pepsu) 2157.

——Art. 226 — Petition under for habeas corpus — Power to issue writ resides in High Court and not in any Single or Division Bench — It might be that because of internal arrangement cause might be decided by Single Bench or larger Bench — But the decision is by High Court and not by any Bench as separate. Ram Kumar Pearay Lal v. District Magistrate, Delhi, ILR (1965) 2 Punj 853: 1966 Cr LJ 153: AIR 1966 Punj 51 (58) (Pt B) (Pr 9) (FB).

217. Suspension of fundamental rights — Effect.
See also Notes 12 and 119 and Ibid, Arts. 358, 359.

——Arts. 226, 14, 359 (1) — Notification under under Art. 359 (1) suspending Art. 14 — Attack on ground of discrimination on R. 30 (4), D. I. Rules 1962, under Art. 14, cannot stand. See Defence of India Act (1962), S. 3 (1). ('65) 69 Cal WN 913.

——Arts. 226, 352, 358 and 359 — Proclamation of emergency and suspension of fundamental rights —High Court's power to issue writs or direction under Art. 226 — How far affected — Order of detention under Defence of India Act — Interference by High Court — Defence of India Act (1962), S. 45 — Powers of High Court under Art. 226 not affected. ILR (1964) 1 Mad 327: (1965) 1 Mad LJ 486: (1965) Mad LJ (Cri) 258: 1965 (1) Cri LJ 714: AIR 1965 Mad 225 (228, 229, 234, 246) (Pt B) (Prs 4, 7, 23, 24, 66) (DB).

218. Territorial jurisdiction.
See Note 120.

219. To whom writ may be issued.

——Art. 226 — Habeas corpus — Petition for production of girl — Father in counter affidavit alleging that she has disappeared from the house — Writ will not be discharged unless respondent-father satisfied the Court that he is really unable to produce the girl — His mere statement that she has run away is not enough — Circumstances showing that father is not innocent as he claimed to be — Court entertaining doubt and suspicion about the manner in which the girl was removed — Respondent-father cannot escape liability. (1892) LR App. Cas 326 (333), 12 Ir. Com LR 233, 249 BD 283, Rel. on. 1960 All Cr R 374: 1960 All WR (HC) 591: 1960 All LJ 776.

——Art. 226 — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 491 — Scope — Habeas Corpus lies against authorities of Mental Hospitals and clinics. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 491. AIR 1963 Cal 261.

——Art. 226 —Writ of habeas corpus — Petitioner arrested and released on furnishing personal recognisance bond — Petition directed against police officer alone is misconceived.

Where the petitioner is arrested and released on furnishing surety and personal recognizance bond to appear before a Magistrate the constructive custody is that of a Court before whom he is to be produced by the surety whenever required. Under S. 167, Criminal P. C. a Police Officer conducting an investigation is bound to produce the accused before a Magistrate within 24 hours and further detention and custody is that of the nearest Magistrate or of the Magistrate having jurisdiction to try the case as the case may be. Consequently no effective order can be passed regarding illegal character of the detention of the petitioner in the absence of either of these Magistrates in whose custody the petitioner can legally be held to be.

Hence the petition for a writ of habeas corpus directed against the Police Officer alone is misconceived. Madh BLJ 1955 HCR 1560: AIR 1955 MB 200 (202) (Pt D) (Prs 29, 30) (DB).

220. Under-trial prisoner, detention of.
(a) Detention without order of remand.

220. Under-trial prisoner, detention of.

——Art. 226 — Habeas Corpus — Provisions of S. 491, Cr. P. Code, has to be kept in view — Order of preventive detention against under-trial prisoner is not invalid — But matter depends on facts — Under trial prisoner held "improperly detained" under S. 3 of Preventive Detention Act — (Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 491) — (Preventive Detention Act (1950), S. 3). AIR 1955 NUC (Raj) 1480 (DB).

220 (a). Detention without order of remand.

●——Art. 32 — Detention without remand — (Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss.167 and 344).

Detention of a person in custody after the expiry of remand order,without any fresh order of remand committing him to further custody while adjourning the case under S. 344, Cr. P. C. is illegal. Ram Narayan Singh v. State of Delhi, (1953) SCJ 326: 1953 Mad WN 647: 1953 Cr LJ 1113: 1953 AWR (Sup) 68: 1953 SCR 652: 1953 SCA 399: AIR 1953 SC 277 (278) (Pt A) (Pr 4).

——Art. 226 — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 112 — Remand to jail custody — Failure to give substance of information under S. 112 —Effect — Habeas Corpus petition — Maintainability. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 112. AIR 1959 All 346.

——Art. 226 — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 344 — Absence of order in writing remanding to custody — Legality of detention. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 344. AIR 1958 All 578.

221. Who can apply.
See Note 188.

222. Wife, to recover custody of.

——Art. 226 —Writ of habeas corpus can be issued where wife is wrongfully restrained by her husband against her will. AIR 1959 MP 356 and AIR 1933 Nag 374, Foll. 1963 MPLJ (Notes) 233.

223. Writ of right.
See Note 39.

PART D

MANDAMUS

(Notes 224 to 275)

224. Administrative authorities, proceedings of.
(a) Administrative authority characteristic of.
(b) Burden of proof.
(c) Decision on merits.
(d) Duty to act within limits of power and according to law.
(e) Facts giving jurisdiction.
(f) Mala fide and arbitrary exercise of power.
(g) Matter involving decision by executive.

224. Administrative authorities, proceedings of.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Order of requisition — (Bombay Land Requisition Act (XXXIII of 1948), Ss. 8-B, 9) — (Contract Act (1872), S. 73).

An allottee under the Bombay Land Requisition Act is a licensee and he is a licensee on certain terms and conditions. Not only the Act itself makes him a licensee liable to have his licence cancelled at any time without assigning any reason, but the licensee takes the licence on the terms and conditions set out in the allotment Order itself. Even if an allottee goes into possession that possession can be put an end to by the Government at any time and at any short notice under the Land Requisition Act. Even if the de-requisitioning is done mala fide for a collateral purpose, namely, letting into the premises a nominee of the tenant the order made of de-requisition is not bad.

Where the petitioner is served with an allotment order, if he is to have a cause of action at all against the State that cause of action would be for wrongful revocation of the licence issued to him. No fundamental right is involved or any statutory obligation on the part of the State broken in such a case. AIR 1956 Bom 614 (615) (Prs 3, 4).

——Art. 226 — When a writ of mandamus is asked for, the first question that the Court has to determine is whether there is any statutory obligation upon the officer concerned, and the next question is whether the officer has failed to discharge that obligation. It is not left to the officer to determine for himself what his obligation is and to act on that interpretation of the statute. The question is one of statutory obligation, and it is only for the Court to decide whether there is such an obligation and what that obligation is; and having decided that question it is for the Court to consider next whether the officer has acted consistently with his obligation or in opposition to or in violation of that obligation. See Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950), S. 28. AIR 1951 Bom 406 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Administrative orders — Panchayats — M. B. Panchayat Rules, R. 38 — Scope.

(Obiter):— Rule 38 is sufficiently elastic and leaves to the discretion of the Director of Rural Uplift whether there should be a detailed inquiry while removing a panch from the office. Further, the order of removal of a panch is in the nature of an administrative order which cannot be easily assailed and quashed by a mandamus. Madh BLR 1956 (Civ) 819: AIR 1957 Madh B 26 (31) (Pt C) (Pr 55) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus —Writ against executive orders — Inquiry not shown — Writ will not be issued.

No doubt, under Art. 226 of the Constitution of India, the High Court has jurisdiction to issue an order against even an executive officer who has issued an administrative order in order to safeguard the fundamental rights of a citizen and to prevent injuries being caused to the rights of a citizen by the order.

An Order passed by the Jagir Commissioner in exercise of his powers of supervision and control over Jagirdars, and confirmed by the Government in appeal, directing a jagirdar to collect rent from his tenants at the rate fixed when the lands were originally leased out and not according to the enhanced rate agreed by them under renewed leases is an executive order and not a juridical order which determines the question of rent payable by the tenants to the jagirdars. The order has not the effect of ousting jurisdiction of Court in the suits filed by the jagirdar against the tenants for enhanced rent under the renewed leases and it is open to the jagirdar to contend in those suits that the order is not valid and binding on the Court if the tenants plead it in defence. If the Government assumes superintendence of the jagir on the ground of the jagirdar's disobedience to its order the latter can always approach the Court and challenge the validity of that order. But a mere apprehension that the Government may assume superintendence is not a ground for issuing the writ of mandamus. Thus against the order which neither infringes nor is likely to infringe any right of the jagirdar, the jagirdar will not be entitled to any relief by way of mandamus or an order in the nature of it either against the Commissioner or the Government. ILR (1953) MB 24: AIR 1953 Madh B 54 (55) (Pt B) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Auction sale of motor vehicles parking dues — Writ of mandamus — Prayer for, as the highest bidder in auction sale—Whether the Mayor was really clothed with a discretion to intervene and demand additional security from the petitioner during the progress of an auction and to exclude the petitioner from further participation because the petitioner failed to furnish the additional security forthwith —Conditions of lease termed 'cashier des charges', Arts. 3 and 4 — Scope and effect.

According to Art. 4 of the conditions of lease termed 'cashier des charges' it is clear that the highest bid has to be settled before the surety can be demanded by the party holding the auction. That is not what happened in the present case, according to the very averments on record. The petitioner has no doubt made a bid, but that was not settled as the highest bid, nor was the auction then closed. The auction was in progress, and further bids might well have been made, when the surety was demanded by the Mayor for the uncovered amount. This the Mayor had really no jurisdiction to do, under the terms governing the auction. Hence, it can be said that the principles of natural justice were contravened in the manner in which the petitioner was excluded from further participation in the auction, and that one of the terms of the auction was definitely infringed because the Mayor demanded the security, not after settling the highest bid, but while bids were still in progress. In the instant case if the petitioner had not been improperly excluded from the auction at that stage, the bids would have gone far higher and there has been a detriment to public revenues by the exclusion of the petitioner at a stage which was not a final stage of the auction but a transitional stage. Since petitioner was improperly excluded from the auction as the relevant article did not clothe the Mayor with the jurisdiction to exclude him at that stage and because, had he not been excluded, a much higher bid might actually have been realised the interference in writ jurisdiction is imperative and called for. AIR 1958 Mad 572 & AIR 1954 SC 592, Rel. on. ILR (1964) 1 Mad 918: (1965) 1 MLJ 210: 78 Mad LW 211: 1965 Mad WN 134: AIR 1964 Mad 437 (438, 439) (Pt B) (Prs 5, 6) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 10 (1) — Order of reference under Act — It is an Administrative Act — No interference by High Court — Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 10 (1).

The order of reference under Industrial Disputes Act is an Administrative Act and once the Government comes to the conclusion that an industrial dispute exists between the workmen and the Management of the Company, then the High Court would not interfere with the discretion exercised by the Government in this respect. AIR 1953 SC 53, Rel. on. (63) 65 Pun LR 901: (1964) 1 Lab LJ 644 :(1964-65) 26 FJR 385.

224 (a). Administrative authority, characteristic of.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Proceedings of administrative authorities — Functus officio — Principle does not apply.

The principle of functus officio does not apply to administrative actions and it is permissible for the same or higher authority to act for correction of what according to them is an error. It is on account of his consideration that a suitor while praying for a writ of mandamus is required to demand justice before coming to the High Court. Madh BLJ 1955 HCR 1577: Madh BLR 1955 Civil 473: AIR 1955 MB 202 (205) (Pt B) (Pr 28) (DB).

224 (b). Burden of proof.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus against Administrative authorities —Petitioner must satisfy Court that there was clear duty incumbent on the authority to act in accordance with law with certain specific provisions of law & that it has failed to discharge that duty and has acted in contravention of law. 61 Bom LR 1: ILR (1959) Bom 923: AIR 1959 Bom 372 (380) (Pt G) (Pr 18) (DB).

224 (c). Decision on merits.

——Art. 226 — Jurisdiction — Power of High Court to go into merits.

It is not open to the Court to act as a Court of appeal against the order of the Settlement Commissioner passed in revision in a case under the Displaced Persons (Supplementary Claims) Act and go into the merits of the case when it is exercising jurisdiction under Art. 226 of the Constitution. ILR (1957) Punj 348: 59 Punj LR 27: AIR 1957 Punj 186 (189) (Pt D) (Pr 11).

224 (d). Duty to act within limits of power and according to law.

●——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Issue of — Transport tribunal— Delay in disposing of application for renewal of permit— Writ of mandamus. See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 58 (2). AIR 1961 SC 93.

●——Art. 226 — Industrial Disputes Act (1947), Ss. 10, 12 — Discretion of Government to refer dispute under S. 12 (5) — Section 12 (5) does not confer power on Government to make reference independently of section 10 (1) — Under S. 12 (5) Government can consider other relevant facts besides the report of Conciliation Officer — Government in considering question of reference taking into consideration extraneous matters — Writ of mandamus can issue requiring Government to reconsider its decision.

Even if the appropriate Government may be acting under S. 12 (5) the reference must ultimately be made under S. 10 (1). Section 12 (5) by itself and independently of S. 10 (1) does not confer power on the appropriate Government to make a reference. While deciding whether a reference should be made under S. 12 (5) it would be open to the appropriate Government to consider, besides the report of the Conciliation Officer, other relevant facts which may come to its knowledge or which may be brought to its notice. Just as discretion conferred on the Government under S. 10 (1), can be exercised by it in dealing with industrial disputes in regard to non-public utility services even when Government is acting under S. 12 (5), so too the provisions of the second proviso to S. 10 (1) can be pressed into service by the Government when it deals with an industrial dispute in regard to a public utility service under S. 12 (5).

Whether S. 12(5) is construed as making it obligatory on the Government to make a reference when it is satisfied that there is a case for reference or as only conferring a discretion, if in refusing to make a reference Government is influenced by reasons which are wholly extraneous or irrelevant or which are not germane, then its decision may be open to challenge in a Court of Law. Though considerations of expediency cannot be excluded when Government considers whether or not it should exercise its power to make a reference it would not be open to the Government to introduce and rely upon wholly irrelevant or extraneous considerations under the guise of expediency. Even in dealing with the question as to whether it would be expedient or not to make the reference Government must not act in a punitive spirit but must consider the question fairly and reasonably and take into account only relevant facts and circumstances. If the work done by the employees prima facie justified their claim for classification and if the claim was in consonance with the practice prevailing in other comparable concerns the misconduct of the employees cannot be used as a relevant circumstance in refusing to refer the dispute about classification to industrial adjudication. Any consideration of discipline cannot be legitimately allowed to impose such a punishment on the employees. Similarly, even in regard to the claim for bonus, if the employees are able to show that the profits earned by the employer during the relevant year compared to the profits earned during the preceding years justified their demands for additional bonus it would plainly be a punitive action to refuse to refer such a dispute solely on the ground of their misconduct. If the Court is satisfied that the reasons given by the Government for refusing to make a reference under S. 12 (5) are extraneous and not germane then the Court can issue, and would be justified in issuing a writ of mandamus even in respect of such an administrative order. Hence, in such a case issue of writ of mandamus against the Government to reconsider the question of making or refusing to make a reference under S. 12 (5) ignoring the fact of misconduct of the employees and considering only such reasons as mere germane to the question of determining whether a reference should or should not be made is justified. State of Bombay v. K. P. Krishnan. (1960) 1 FLR 392: (1960) 2 Lab LJ 592: (1960-61) 19 FJR 61: (1960) 2 SCA 527: 63 Bom LR 127: 1961 Nag LJ 205: (1961) 1 SCR 227: (1961) 2 SCJ 360: AIR 1960 SC 1223 (1225 to 1228, 1230 to 1232) (Prs 5, 8 to 12, 16 to 18).

●——Art. 32 — Ss. 38, 39 and proviso to S. 46 of Orissa Hindu Religious Endowments Act held invalid —Application under Art. 32 allowed and writ in the nature of mandamus issued restraining Commissioner and State Government enforcing against petitioners provisions of the above sections. See Orissa Hindu Religious Endowments Act (IV of 1939), S. 38. AIR 1954 SC 400.

●——Arts. 226, 14, 13 (1) — Scope of Bihar Act 34 of 1950 is invalid — (Writ of mandamus was issued directing the State Government not to take any steps in pursuance of the Act) — (Bihar Sathi Lands (Restoration) Act (34 of 1950), S. 1), AIR 1952 Pat 194, Reversed. See Ibid, Art. 14. AIR 1953 SC 215.

●——Art. 226 — Application for writs against Regional Transport Authority and the Government of the Uttar Pradesh in regard to temporary permits issued to motor bus-owners — Writs, if and when could issue.

Certain bus-owners had been granted permits by the Regional Transport Authority under the provisions of Motor Vehicles Act to use stage carriages and ply them for hire on various routes in the State of Uttar Pradesh. For some time these permits were renewed. But later on only temporary permits were issued valid for three months which were periodically renewed. Before the expiry of the period of the last issued temporary permit, the Regional Transport Officer issued notification requiring the permit holders not to ply their buses on those routes as a State-operated bus service would commence to run on those routes. On an application by the various permit-holders under Art. 226 for the issue of a writ of mandamus to the Regional Transport Authorities to decide the applications for renewal of the permits and for directions to the Government of Uttar Pradesh not to introduce the State Transport service.

Held, in cases where applications for permanent permits had been made, it was the duty of the Authority under the Motor Vehicles Act concerned to dispose of them according to law and where he has not done so, a writ of mandamus could be issued. But where such applications have neither been made nor kept pending, no writ can issue.

Directions could not be issued to Government of the State of Uttar Pradesh asking them not to ply the buses for hire. Moti Lal v. State of Uttar Pradesh, ILR (1951) 1 All 269: AIR 1951 All 257 (274, 284 (Pt B) (Prs 82, 129) (FB).

——Art. 226 — Income-tax Act (1922), S. 45 — Exercise of discretion — Income Tax Officer declining to hear and consider application of assessee under S. 45 for an order of stay of collection of tax pending appeal from assessment order — There is failure to perform duty cast on him by the section and is enforceable by mandamus. See Income-tax Act (1922), S. 45. AIR 1957 Andhra Pradesh 114.

——Art. 226 —Administrative orders — Interference under Art. 226 —Settlement of fisheries in Assam — Mandamus against State Government directing them to hear appeal according to law — Cannot be issued — Petitioner entitled to Mandamus if there is breach of statutory provision — If there is violation of any contractual obligation, the remedy is to bring a suit—Fishery Rules (Assam). AIR 1964 Assam 56 (57, 58) (Prs 6, 7) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus.

Relief against illegal taxation — Customs duty — Demand notice issued in the absence of statutory provisions authorising it — Party can come to Court under Art. 226 and ask for issue of writ of mandamus directing Government authorities not to enforce the notice. ILR (1958) 10 Assam 311: AIR 1959 Assam 136 (138, 139) (Pt A) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Want of notice — Of order of requisition under S. 3 (2) of Assam Act (XXV of 1948) — Order sought to be given effect to — Issue of mandamus. See Assam Land (Requisition and Acquisition) Act (XXV of 1948), S. 3 (2). AIR 1958 Assam 140 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus against Administrative authorities.

Where an order of assessment is an administrative order there can be no doubt that by a writ of mandamus the High Court could compel the assessing authorities to act according to law. But before such a writ could be issued, it must be clear on the language of the statute itself that the action of the authorities was in contravention of the law. The petitioners must satisfy the Court that there was a clear duty incumbent upon the assessing authorities to act in accordance with certain specific provisions of the law and that they had failed to discharge that duty and have acted in contravention of the law. 61 Bom LR 1: ILR (1959) Bom 923: AIR 1959 Bom 372 (380) (Pt G) (Pr 18) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus— Authority discharging administrative functions — Mandamus against illegal assessment — Sea Customs Act (VIII of 1878), S. 87.

An assessing authority discharging an administrative function is not above the law. The assessing authority is bound to assess the duty according to law and if the very basis of the assessment is illegal, a writ of mandamus may well issue commanding the authority to forbear from enforcing the illegal order: AIR 1959 Bom 372, Relied on. 65 Cal WN 153: ILR (1961) 2 Cal 265: AIR 1961 Cal 636 (639) (Pt B) (Pr 12) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Assessor acting ultra vires — Writ of mandamus against order of assessment can issue. See Municipalities — Bengal Municipal Act (XV of 1932), S. 128 (1). ('64) 68 Cal WN 949.

——Art. 226 — Administrative orders of Auditor-General of India — Jurisdiction to interfere — Art. 148 (5).

Power has been given to the President and/or Government to frame rules which will regulate the conditions of service of certain class of Government employees. If an employee is appointed and no rules are made which will govern his conditions of service, then the matter must be dealt with administratively. If there are rules, and such rules are violated, recourse could at once be had to the High Court. But the Court is not concerned with administrative orders or violations of merely administrative practices.

So far as the petitioners, who were employed in the Subordinate Accounts Service in the Indian Audit and Accounts Department were concerned, no statutory rules have been framed governing their conditions of service. So far as promotions were concerned there are some statutory rules stating that the Comptroller and Auditor General of India would have the right administratively to promote such an employee or not to promote him. As long as he did not violate the constitutional safeguards there is no limit to his powers and as long as he exercises his powers administratively in a bona fide manner, no Court can interfere. Held, further that the High Court had no jurisdiction to interfere because the Comptroller and Auditor General was beyond its jurisdiction. The Accountant General of West Bengal and the Deputy Accountant General (Administration), West Bengal are bound to give effect to the directions given by the Comptroller and Auditor General of India, and consequently a Writ of Mandamus could not and should not be issued upon them. 1959 Cal LJ 30.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus against executive officer.

The High Court has jurisdiction to issue a writ of mandamus against a responsible officer within the jurisdiction of that Court who is alleged to be executing the illegal order or making the illegal requisition. A. No. 109 of 1956 in Misc. App. No. 289 of 1956 (Bom), Disting. (1959) 1 Lab LJ 249: ILR (1959) 2 Cal 162: (1958-59) 15 FJR 219: AIR 1958 Cal 570 (574, 575) (Pt G) (Pr 24).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Administrative orders.

Even in the case of administrative orders, public officers must be kept within the four corners of the law. 59 Cal WN 373 : AIR 1956 Cal 96 (99) (Pt C) (Pr 10).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Order of District Magistrate under S. 18, Arms Act, cancelling licence without recording reasons — Interference — (Arms Act (1878), S. 18).

The District Magistrate acting under S. 18, Arms Act, cancelled the licence of the petitioner without recording reasons and simply basing his order on Police Report. The petitioner applied for a writ of mandamus directing the District Magistrate to cancel or withdraw the order of cancellation of the fire-arms licence. At the time of the application the holder of the licence had sold his gun and the licence itself had expired and the Police Report indicated that a riot might break out at any time and the petitioner has been found shooting off his gun on his roof.

Held, that though the order of the District Magistrate was not in accordance with law, on the facts and circumstances of the case, the High Court should not interfere and make the order praved for. 59 Cal WN 373 : AIR 1956 Cal 96 (99) (Pt D) (Pr 10).

——Art. 226 (1) — Mandamus — Application by Railway servant — Powers of High Court — (Government of India Act (1935), S. 241 (2)).

Where a Railway servant applies under Art. 226 for issue of a writ of mandamus against the General Manager of the Railway directing him to forbear from giving effect to his order requiring the petitioner to undergo a test for passing efficiency bar when he has already undergone such test, the High Court can only investigate as to whether the law has been observed. It can see that the rules promulgated under S. 241 (2) of the Government of India Act have not been violated. If however any 'administrative error' has been committed, it cannot remedy that. AIR 1954 Cal 187 (188) (Pt A)(Pr 6).

——Arts. 226 and 265 — Sales tax — Assessing officer acting outside his jurisdiction in imposing tax — Authority seeking to collect such tax — Citizen has right to call in aid Art. 265 & seek assistance of High Court — (Sales Tax — Madras General Sales Tax Act (IX of 1939), S. 3).

The finality of an assessment under the terms of taxing statute is not always or necessarily conclusive of the legality of the assessment. An assessment made without jurisdiction, or in pursuance of a provision which is found to be ultra vires, continues to be unlawful.

Where an assessing officer acts outside the boundaries of his jurisdiction, his acts would to that extent be null and void. If any authority seeks to collect a tax so imposed, the citizen can call in aid Art. 265 and seek the assistance of the High Court.

Held, that a writ of mandamus should issue directing the sales-tax authorities to forbear from collecting the amounts of tax as it was imposed without jurisdiction. (1959) 10 STC 345 : 1959 Mad WN 325 : ILR (1959) Mad 750 : 72 Mad LW 446: (1959) 2 Mad LJ 97: AIR 1959 Mad 382 (383, 386) (Pt B) (Prs 9, 31, 33) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Failure to exercise jurisdiction — Error apparent on face of record.

The assessee company which was assessed to income-tax for the assessment years 1949-50 and 1950-51, claimed that it was entitled to deduct a certain percentage of the net profits which was paid to the managing director as his commission as per the Articles of Association and the resolution of the company. The Income-tax Officer disallowed the claim on ground that it was practically sharing the profits between the Managing Director and the Company and as such it was not a permissible deduction. The order was confirmed in appeal by the Appellate Assistant Commissioner and subsequently by the Appellate Tribunal. In a revision filed under S. 33-A, Income-tax Act before the Commissioner of Income-tax, the assessee claimed exemption under Notification No. 878-F, Income-tax, dated 21st March, 1922. The Commissioner declined to interfere with the order but there was no indication in his order whether he had considered that the case was within the exemption laid down in this notification or not. The assessee thereupon applied under Art. 226 for the issue of a writ of mandamus or other appropriate writ.

Held, that the orders of Income-tax Authorities left no room for doubt that the disallowance of the claim made on behalf of the company to deduct the commission paid to the Managing Director was only on the ground that it was a division of the profits and therefore, the assessee was undoubtedly within the purview of the Notification granting exemption, and the Commissioner of Income-tax had misdirected himself & failed to exercise the jurisdiction vested in him by law. Further, there was an error apparent on the face of the record, as, on the facts found, the rejection by the Commissioner of the petition was not justified in law.

(Income-tax Commissioner directed to restore the petition to his file and dispose it of according to law.) (1954) 26 ITR 367: AIR 1954 Mad 1118 (1120) (Pt B) (Prs 6, 7) (DB).

——Arts. 226, 19 (1) (f), 31 — Settlement of certain tribe in a village under private agreement — Order of S. D. O. asking them to move away under threat of prosecution — Legality — Order held not covered by Ss. 60 to 64 of Hill Peoples Regulation and infringing rights under Arts. 19 (1) (f), and 31 — State cannot shelter under the cloak that it was purely on administrative order — Jurisdiction of High Court — Abolition of right of appeal by virtue of certain changes in the administrative set up — Effect — Writ of mandamus issued compelling the authority to act in accordance with law. AIR 1961 Manipur 21, (23, 24) (Prs. 9, 10, 11, 12, 13).

——Art. 226 — Excess in exercise of statutory power — Houses & Rents — C. P. and Berar Accommodation (Requisition) Act (63 of 1948), S. 3.

The Court can undoubtedly check any excess in the exercise of a statutory power. To exercise a statutory power for achieving a collateral object, i.e., for any purpose other than the one for which the power is given by the statute is to abuse such a power. The power conferred by S. 3 (1) of Central Provinces and Berar Act 63 of 1948 on the Government is very wide. The statute does leave the determination of the necessity for requisition to the discretion of the authority empowered by or under the statute. But the authority exercising the power of requisition must act bona fide and can only use the power for fulfilling ends permitted by the statute. Where the order of requisition was not dictated by the necessity of providing accommodation to an officer of the State but was devised as a means to eject the petitioner because of the religious susceptibilities of the landlord, the order is a misuse of the power given by the statute and cannot be sustained. AIR 1950 SC 222, Disting. Case Law

Ref., ILR (1951) Nag 959: AIR 1951 Nag 138 (140, 141, 142) (Pt A) (Prs 18, 21, 22, 30, 32) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus.

Interferences with the liberties and properties of citizens have to be supported by some law, and the State must support the legality of its actions before the High Court. AIR 1931 PC 248, Foll.

Where, therefore, the petitioner was in possession of the property in dispute under a right and the officers of the State in dispossessing him acted unreasonably, arbitrarily and in a manner not contemplated by law:

Held, that the petitioner was entitled to the issue of a writ quashing the order of dispossession and to an order for his possession being restored.

Held further, that if there was no lawful authority or legal order by which the petitioner could be dispossessed, the mere fact that possession had been given to somebody else could not be a ground for not setting aside an illegal order and to direct the undoing of an act which had been done through a manifest illegality. ILR (1954) Punj 211: AIR 1954 Punj 151 (154) (Prs 11, 12, 13) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus, writ of — Mandamus ordering municipality to deliver back property— (Municipalities — Tripura Municipal Act, II of 1349, T. E.)

Petitioner occupied a market site belonging to the municipality with the permission of the municipality and built on it with their permission or at least with their knowledge, and they had been accepting rent for the same, and his possession was about 5 years old when he was ejected by force.

Held, that there was nothing in the Tripura Municipal Act (II of 1349 T. E.), which authorised the Municipality to eject the holder of a site like the petitioner, in the manner the petitioner was ejected. Therefore the action of the Municipality was without the authority of law and therefore illegal and without jurisdiction. If the petitioner had no right to continue in possession the only course open was to eject him by having recourse to a civil suit, in which alone the question of the rights involved could be decided. AIR 1955 Pepsu 60, Rel. on. Thus there was a clear breach of the legal rights of the petitioner and he would be entitled to a writ of mandamus. AIR 1959 Tripura 47 (48, 49) (Prs 9, 14, 15, 16, 17).

224 (e). Facts giving jurisdiction.

——Art. 226 — Appeal against order under S. 76 of U. P. Municipalities Act (1916) by Municipal Executive Officer dismissing Municipal employee filed 10 days after date of order — No period of limitation for appeal provided by S. 76, or any bye-law — Period of limitation prescribed by S. 61 (2) does not apply — Dismissal of appeal by President by applying S. 61 (2) held wrong— President held to have refused to exercise jurisdiction vested in him — Mandamus to hear appeal on merits issued. See Municipalities — U. P. Municipalities Act (II of 1916), Section 61 (2). 1963 All LJ 992.

——Art. 226— Mandamus — Orders without jurisdiction.

An order was passed by the District Magistrate directing Sub-Divisional Officer to eject refugees living in certain villages from all the lands by certain date as the said lands were to be allotted to the retired servants of the old Rampur State. In view of this order, the Sub-Divisional Officer issued an order to the Tahsildar to eject those persons from the lands in dispute occupied by them and in case of objection to dispossess them from the land through the help of the police.

Held, that those orders were without justification. They certainly tended to affect the rights of the petitioners in their possessing the land which they had occupied in certain circumstances. Therefore, these orders were beyond the jurisdiction of the District Magistrate and the Sub-Divisional Officer and therefore, a writ of mandamus could be issued to the District Magistrate and the Sub-Divisional Officer to withdraw their orders, and not to dispossess the petitioners in pursuance of those orders. AIR 1955 All 165 (166, 167) (Pt B) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Houses and Rents — U. P. (Temporary) Control of Rent and Eviction Act (1947), S. 2 — Duly appointed officer — Order of allotments by officer not duly authorised to act under the Act — Order cannot be given effect to — Petition for writ of mandamus by landlord allowed. See Houses and Rents— U. P. (Temporary) Control of Rent and Eviction Act (3 of 1947), S. 2. AIR 1954 All 457.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — License for private stockyard —Power of Municipality to grant — Power must be found within the jurisdiction of the Bengal Municipal Act or Rule made thereunder —Issue of Mandamus restraining Commissioner from giving effect to order passed in excess of power. See Municipalities — Bengal Municipal Act (15 of 1932), S. 402. AIR 1957 Cal 460.

——Art. 226 — Jurisdiction — Order cancelling Arms licence without recording reasons — Validity — Interference by High Court — Mandamus. See Arms Act, S. 18. AIR 1955 Cal 599.

——Art. 226 — Industrial dispute — Party to dispute has no absolute right to insist upon tribunal deciding in first instance a mixed question of law and fact, although the question relates to its own jurisdiction —No writ of mandamus will issue. See C. P. Code (1908), O. 14, R. 2. AIR 1962 Mys 108 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Co-operative Society — Finding of Registrar that dispute does not concern business of society —Petition for writ of mandamus — Maintainability. See Punjab Co-operative Societies Act (XIV of 1955), S. 50 (3). AIR 1957 Punj 61.

224 (f). Mala fide and arbitrary exercise of power.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — U.P. Sales Tax Act (15 of 1948), S. 7-E — Composition fee — Government Notification No. ST-349/X D/- 28-1-1958 fixing the time limit and authorising Sales Tax Commissioner to extend it—Power held not arbitrary or infringing Art. 14 of the Constitution — Petitioner not giving reasons for applying late— Extension of time refused — Question of mandamus did not arise. See Sales Tax —U.P. Sales Tax Act (15 of 1948), S. 7-E. ILR (1963) 1 All 892.

——Art. 226 —Mala fides — Examination Board —Result of enquiry — Delay in communicating — Punishment imposed on candidate for malpractices in examination — No want of bona fides. AIR 1955 NUC (Andhra) 5823.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Issue of writ — United Khasi Jaintia Hills District — Lyngdoh— Issue of licences —Orders under colour of authority — Mandamus. See Ibid, Sch. VI, Para 8. AIR 1958 Assam 33 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Scope —Administrative order — Liability to challenge — Officer vested with discretion to issue licences — Dishonest exercise of discretion and issue of licences in discriminatory manner — Application for mandamus or direction — Competency. See Ibid, Art. 14. 53 Bom LR 393: AIR 1951 Bom 132 (DB).

——Art. 226—Mandamus—Powers of High Court — Wrong order.

So long as the Assessor Inspector has acted within the four corners of the Bengal Foodgrains (Disposal and Acquisition) Order, 1947 and it is not shown that he has acted mala fide, the High Court has no jurisdiction to interfere with his order merely because he may have made a wrong measurement of stock and may have made a wrong estimate as to the quantity of paddy to be exempted from acquisition. 56 Cal WN 137: AIR 1952 Cal 100 (102) (Pt D) (Pr 34).

224 (g). Matter involving decision by executive.

——Art. 226 —Mandamus, writ of —Administrative act — Disregard of mandatory provisions of law —U. P. Police Regulations —High Court can interfere.

Even an administrative action taken by the executive officers will fall within the ambit of writ jurisdiction if such action is found to be in complete disregard of the mandatory provisions of law and is mala fide. The provisions contained in Police Regulations are not mere administrative directions but are to be treated as if they were a part of statutory law. The action of the police officers in opening a history sheet of the petitioner in defiance of the provisions of the Police Regulations is without jurisdiction, mala fide and improper and the High Court can direct a writ of mandamus to be issued to the officers directing them to forthwith close the history-sheet of the petitioner. AIR 1961 SC 751 and ILR (1959) 2 All 115, Rel. on. 1962 (1) Cr LJ 547: 1962 All WR (HC) 317: 1962 All Cr R. 192: AIR 1962 All 216 (218, 219) (Prs 15, 16, 17).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Executive routine orders — Defect in — Court ought not to take too technical and narrow view of the orders — Dist. Magistrate of K. authorising his successor to take up House Rent Control work — Successor Dist. Magistrate allotting house in dispute to M. — Former Dist. Magistrate's order found defective—Held, that order of allotment was valid and operative. See Houses and Rents — U. P. (Temporary) Control of Rent and Eviction Act (III of 1947), S. 7. AIR 1955 NUC (All) 2703 (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 19 — Mandamus — Police opening history sheets and watching movement of petitioner — Action in accordance with Police Regulation —Not a violation of freedom guaranteed by Art. 19 — Court will refuse to interfere with the action of Police as such interference would be putting in jeopardy the safety of the community at large in the locality. AIR 1962 All 216, Disting. 1962 All LJ 1152: 1963 All WR (HC) 17: (1963) 2 Cr LJ 201 (All).

——Art. 226 — Nationalisation of motor transport —Transport Authority refusing to issue permits to private owners under direction of Executive — Legality — Law of nationalisation by Legislature — Validity — Grant of mandamus. See Ibid, Art. 19 (1) (g). AIR 1954 Assam 212 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Indian Railway Establishment Code, R. 157 — Scope — General Manager of Railways can make rules in exercise of powers under R. 157 — Order dated 14th May, 1953 passed by General Manager of Central Railway—Held, order had the effect of Rule made under R. 157 — Order was binding on both parties — General Manager failing to discharge his duty — Writ of mandamus should issue. 66 Bom LR 773: AIR 1965 Bom 267 (270, 271, 272) (Pr 9).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Posts and Telegraphs Manual, Rules 32-A to 32-C in Vol. IV & Sch. 3 in Vol. III are executive instructions not statutory rules — Writ of mandamus is issued only when statutory rules are violated.

The Post and Telegraphs Manuals mainly contain rules intended for the guidance and instructions to officers of the department in the performance of their administrative and executive duties. Excepting in few cases, where they are expressly so indicated, the Manuals do not contain, statutory rules. Rules 32-A to 32-C in Vol. IV and Schedule 3 in Vol. III are merely executive instructions or administrative rules and have not the sanctity of statutory rules. Therefore, strict compliance of these rules may be difficult of enforcement by issue of mandate: AIR 1955 Cal 166 and Civil Rule No. 3015 of 1959 dated 14-6-1961 (Cal), Foll. (1964) 9 Fac LR 71: AIR 1965 Cal 298 (300, 301) (Pt A) (Pr 7).

——Arts. 226 and 311 —Remarks by superior officer in service book of subordinate officer — Expunging of — Writ for, does not lie — Bengal Subordinate Services (Discipline and Appeals) Rules (1936).

A superior officer must be free to express his sincere opinion about his subordinate and his work which he has to examine and, supervise. Such remarks by superior officer are not even censures. There is, therefore, no statutory or legal right of the subordinate on which he can found his claim under Art. 226 for a writ to expunge remarks made by the superior officer in the service book of the subordinate. Even an order of censure would be excluded under Rule 10 of the Bengal Subordinate Services (Discipline and Appeal) Rules 1936. 64 Cal WN 857: (1960) 2 Lab LJ 502: AIR 1961 Cal 164 (164, 165) (Pt A) (Prs 4, 5).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Writ of mandamus against Railway authorities.

In an application under Art. 226 for a writ of mandamus against the Railway Authorities, High Court has no jurisdiction to interfere with the internal administration of a Railway and the only question that can be investigated is whether the authorities concerned have acted in excess of the powers conferred on them by statutes or statutory rules. 59 Cal WN 812: AIR 1955 Cal 385 (387) (Pt A) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Art. 226 (1) — Mandamus — Issue of writ respecting Government's illegal order under S. 10 (3), Industrial Disputes Act — Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 10 (3).

A writ of mandamus does lie to control administrative acts where such acts interfere with the private rights of citizens and where the exercise of such executive acts is arbitrary and illegal. Thus, where the order of the Government under S. 10 (3) of the Industrial Disputes Act is not warranted under the law and infringes the fundamental rights of the petitioner relief under Art. 226 can be granted. AIR 1953 All 25, Diss. from. 1953 Raj LW 569: ILR (1953) 3 Raj 363: AIR 1953 Raj 188 (193) (Pt H) (Pr 26) (DB).

[Impliedly Overruled on another point in AIR 1963 SC 1811.]

——Arts. 226, 19 (1) (f) — Mandamus — Petitioner wrongfully deprived of his property by executive authority — Mandamus against executive.

Where there is any encroachment on the petitioner's fundamental rights under Art. 19 (1) (f) regarding his property by wrongfully taking possession of the same by the executive authorities and also by keeping the petitioner and his manager behind the bars, the latter is certainly entitled to get a writ of mandamus issued against the authorities. AIR 1956 Tripura 9 (16) (Pt F) (Pr 35).

225. Against whom can be issued.

(a) Educational authorities.
(b) Government.
(c) Individual officer.
(d) Private individual.
(e) Quasi-judicial authority.
See also Note 249.
(f) Statutory bodies of fluctuating nature.
(g) Universities.
(h) Body of persons holding office.
(i) Order merging in appellate order.

225. Against whom can be issued.

——Art. 226 —Mandamus — Against whom can issue — Mandamus directing to do what is beyond powers is futile.

Mandamus will issue only to a person, who is under an obligation by the statutes or rules having the force of a statute, to do a particular act. An officer cannot be directed by means of a writ of mandamus to do what he, under the statute, could not do and which is beyond his legal powers. A petition for directions to an officer to carry out anything which it is incompetent for him to do will be a futile one. AIR 1960 Andh Pra 431 (435) (Pt B) (Pr 18) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — M. B. Police Regulations — No mandamus can be issued against public servants who are not before the Court. AIR 1954 Assam 74 (75, 76) (Pt B) (Pr 6) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Company — Writ against — — Mandamus and certiorari cannot be issued against company. AIR 1956 Kutch 9 (10) (Pt A) (Pr 8).

225 (a). Educational authorities.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus against public authority — Assam Aided College Employees Rules (1960) — Rules in nature of administrative instructions without any statutory force — Direction by Director of Public Instruction, relying upon Rules, to Governing Body of aided college — Governing Body carrying out terms of directions & passing order affecting rights of employees — Employees cannot seek enforcement or non-enforcement of Rules by maintaining writ petition against Director of Public Instruction as Rules confer no rights on them. AIR 1963 Assam 46, Reversed.

There is no law to prevent the State from prescribing the conditions for giving grants-in-aid to educational institutions by mere executive instructions which have not the force of statutory rules. The Assam Aided College Empolyees Rules (1960) regarding Conduct and Discipline of Employees of Aided Educational Institutions admittedly have no statutory force and are framed in order to give revised grants to private colleges to enable them to give higher scales of pay, etc., to their teachers in accordance with the recommendations of University Grants Commission. Where such conditions of grants-in-aid are laid down by mere executive instructions it is open to a private college to accept those conditions or not to accept them. It is only for the governing body of the College to decide whether to carry out any direction contained in mere administrative instructions laying down conditions for grant-in-aid. Further it is open to the Governing Body not to carry out any such instruction which is not based on rules having statutory force, and then it would naturally be open to the State to consider what grant to make. But if the Governing Body chooses to carry out the instruction, it can hardly be said that the instruction is being carried out under any threat. It is not open to a teacher to insist that the Governing Body should not carry out the instruction. The rules for the purpose of grant-in-aid being — as in this case—merely executive instructions confer no right of any kind on teachers and they cannot apply to the High Court for a mandamus against the State through the Director of Public Instruction for enforcement or non-enforcement of the rules, even if indirectly there may have been some effect on them because of the grant-in-aid being withheld by the State in whole or in part : AIR 1963 Assam 46, Reversed. AIR 1959 SC 694, Rel. on. State of Assam v. Ajit kumar, (1965) 1 SCWR 984 : (1955) 2 SCA 376 : AIR 1965 SC 1196 (1200) (Prs 12, 13).

——Art. 226 —Scope.

Director of Education held has no authority either to refuse to grant or to grant permission to teachers to appear at University examination—He cannot be compelled to grant permission, only because such permission is granted to some — He can only grant leave of absence but only at appropriate time and not in advance—Promise of leave in advance is not binding on him. AIR 1953 Ajmer 26 (27) (Pt A) (Prs 6, 7).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Object of —Power of High Court — (Intermediate Education Act (1921) as amended by U. P. Act (V of 1941), S. 15 — Regulations under Ch. VI, R. 1 (1)).

The object of a mandamus is to compel performance of a legal duty on the part of some person or body entrusted by law with that duty. The Court in a proceeding for mandamus will never sit as a Court of appeal. Where the U. P. Board of High School and Intermediate Education withheld the result of a candidate and upon his writ petition the High Court holding the Board guilty of extraordinary and unreasonable delay in holding the inquiry directed the Board to declare the result within two days of the date of order :

Held, that after having considered the totality of the circumstances of the case, and having particular regard to the fact that some of the delay in completing the investigation was also occasioned by the candidate, the mandamus should have directed the Board to perform its statutory duty, namely, to conclude its investigation within the shortest possible time. AIR 1954 SC 217, Rel. on. 1958 All LJ 879 : AIR 1959 All 226 (229) (Pt A) (Prs 16, 17, 19) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus— Principal of College — Refusal to readmit student who had failed in University Examination — Application for writ — (Agra University (VIII of 1926) — Ordinances framed under, Ch. 20, R. 3; Ch. 29-B, R. 2 (2)).

Held, on facts (i) that the petitioner (M. Sc. student) could succeed only if two conditions were fulfilled: first that she had a legal right to be admitted to that class and second that there was a legal duty cast on the Principal to admit her; (ii) that neither the Agra University Act nor the Rules framed thereunder gave the petitioner any right to secure admission into the class she wants, nor was there any legal or statutory duty on the Principal of the College to admit her. Admissions of students are deemed to be domestic affairs of the institution concerned and are left to the discretion of the authorities. Such matters are not amenable to a writ of mandamus. 1958 All LJ 899: AIR 1959 All 224 (225, 226) (Prs 3, 8, 10).

——Art. 226 (1) — Mandamus — Publication of results in newspaper is not done in performance of statutory duty — High Court cannot prescribe manner in which Board should publish results — (U. P. Intermediate Education Act (II of 1921), S. 7 (7)).

The publication of the results in the newspaper is not done in performance of the statutory duty imposed on the Board by S. 7 (7). This statutory duty is performed by the Board when it publishes the results in the Government Gazette. Under the general law of the land also no newspaper has a right to have access to the results of the Board as soon as they are passed by the Results Committee. When the newspaper takes up the work of publishing the results, it does so in furtherance of its own trading activities and not as an agent employed by the Board in the course of the performance of its legal duties under Section 7 (7).

Therefore, it is not for the High Court to prescribe the manner in which the Board is to perform its duties in the exercise of its powers conferred by S. 7 (7). ILR (1956) 2 All 12 : AIR 1955 All 595 (606, 607, 608) (Pt D) (Prs 44, 45, 49).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Issue of — Circumstances justifying — Admission into College — Mandamus.

The scheme of selection and admission of students does not contemplate any enquiry as regards the correctness of the particulars given in the nativity certificate either by the Selection Committee or by the Government. That duty is entrusted only to the principal of the College before admitting the students.

Where neither the Government nor the Principal came to any definite conclusion on the correctness of the nativity certificate, but the Selection Committee withheld the publication of the name of the petitioner as one of the selected candidates;

Held, that the Committee did not discharge the duties enjoined on them under G. O. No. 1022, dated 30-5-1957 and mandamus could be issued. 1958 Andh LT 149 : (1958) 1 Andh WR 280 : ILR (1958) Andh Pra 496 : AIR 1958 Andh Pra 470 (471, 472) (Prs 3, 5, 6)(DB).

——Arts. 226 and 309 — Quasi-public authority— Private institution — Government making grant to private school and laying down rules for grant — Rules cannot be said to be prescribed under Art. 309 — Violation of rules —Mandamus cannot be issued — AIR 1954 Trav-Co. 199, Rel. on; AIR 1953 Him Pra 103, Disting. ILR (1962) 14 Assam 291 : AIR 1965 Assam 52 (53 to 55) (Pt A) (Prs 4, 9, 14) (DB).

——Art. 226 —Mandamus against public authority —Assam Aided College Employees Rules (1960), R. 7 — Not statutory rules — Direction by Director of Public Instruction, relying upon R. 7, to Governing Body of Aided College — Governing Body carrying out terms of direction and passing order affecting rights of employee — Employee has right to apply for proper writ — High Court has jurisdiction to issue mandamus to Director of Public Instruction not to give effect to that direction — Gauhati University Act (1947) (as amended by Act II of 1961), S. 22 (g). AIR 1963 Assam 46 (48, 49) (Prs 8 to 13).

[Reversed in AIR 1965 SC 1196.]

——Art. 226 — Mandamus against Managing Committee (or member thereof) of private school in West Bengal for infringement of R. 33 of Revised School Code — Revised School Code (West Bengal) (1930), R. 33.

The Revised School Code, 1930, in West Bengal is not a body of statutory rules.

The Managing Committee, or the members thereof, of a private school in West Bengal cannot be held to be a 'public body' carrying out public duties. Therefore, a writ in the nature of mandamus cannot be issued against the said Managing Committee or the members thereof, for infringement of a rule (R. 33, in the instant case) incorporated in the Revised School Code.

In the case of a private school, the Court ought not to take too technical view of the administrative procedure. 62 CWN 384 and AIR 1953 Cal 114, Rel. on. 65 Cal WN 1132 : 1964 Cal LJ 244 : AIR 1962 Cal 20 (22, 23) (Prs 6, 7).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Mandamus against educational authority.

When a public officer or a body is required under the law to do a certain act upon a given State of facts in a prescribed manner and without regard to his own judgment or opinion concerning the propriety or impropriety of the act to be performed, it is a ministerial act. Merely because the officer has to read and to construe a statute in order to ascertain the precise duty which he is required to perform, it does not cease to be a ministerial act.

Where a petitioner was refused permission to appear at the Intermediate Examination by the M. B. Board of Secondary Education which was a statutory body and required to act within the four corners of the Statute, because it was found that he did not fulfil certain condition and it is found by the High Court that the refusal was ultra vires as he had fulfilled the requisite condition and, therefore, entitled to appear at the examination, a writ of mandamus directing the Board to act according to law must be issued. 1960 MPLJ 581 : 1959 Jab LJ 256 : 1959 MPC 267: AIR 1959 Madh Pra 367 (374, 375) (Pt C) (Prs 44, 48, 51).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Refusal to admit student to college — Mandamus to admit — Delay — Discretion of administrative authorities — Interference.

It was not disputed that the petitioner as well as the respondents 7 to 9 did not come under any of Rr. 8 to 11 for selection of candidates to the Medical College. The petitioner was not able to show any rule under which he was entitled to preference over the respondents.

Held, that the High Court cannot sit in judgment on the wisdom of the Selection Board who gave preference to the respondents. In the absence of any Rules as to how candidates are to be selected for the unfilled seats after exhausting Rr. 8 to 11, it is not for the High Court to lay down additional rules. The matter was entirely in the discretion of the authorities who were in charge of the admissoin of the candidates. The petitioner was not entitled to any relief. Held, also that the petitioner had disentitled himself to any relief on ground of delay in approaching the High Court. 1959 MPLJ 541 : 1959 Jab LJ 470 : 1959 MPC 473 : AIR 1959 Madh Pra 265 (267) (Prs 6, 7, 9) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Writ of Mandamus when can be issued against college principal directing reinstatement of dismissed student.

Though the provisions of Art. 226 of the Constitution of India are apparently wide, directions in the nature of a writ of mandamus should not issue except to a public or quasi public body or officer which is under an obligation, statutory or otherwise to do or refrain from doing anything and which is likely to interfere with the rights of persons. The writ can issue even if the petitioner has his remedy by way of a suit for declaration of his rights when such an alternative remedy cannot be adequate as when the relief granted would be infructuous when it is given by lapse of time. A student studying in a College has a personal right to continue to study therein till the course is completed or he has otherwise been removed or expelled in strict compliance with the rules governing the institution. The Principal of an institution maintained from the funds of a public trust contributed from public funds affiliated to the University and governed by the rules of the University ,and the scheme framed by the High Court is certainly a person holding a quasi public office; (Principal of the Pachiappa's College, Madras was held to be such a person). The maintenance of discipline, the upkeep of the necessary tone and standards of behaviours in a body of students in such a College is primarily entrusted to the Principal or other officers of the institution. The High Court will not interfere with the discretion of such an authority unless it is clearly established that the authority concerned has not honestly exercised the discretion, actuated by some motive extraneous to the purpose committed to its discretion. The principle of natural justice is an elastic conception especially when applied to educational institutions. It is wrong to import the conception of "lis" in the dealings of a Principal with his students. The Court will interfere, only if it be satisfied on a consideration of the entire material placed before it that the action of the authority concerned is arbitrary, is due to a mala fide exercise of discretion actuated by extraneous circumstances. Case law reviewed.

Held, in facts that the action of the Principal in dismissing the petitioner student from the College on disciplinary grounds was not arbitrary. If so he had disciplinary jurisdiction to ask the student to leave the college.

Though it was not within the province of the Court to dictate what the Principal should or should not do to meet a particular contingency, his Lordship observed that the object or discipline might have been better served if the Principal had accepted the unconditional apology agreed to be tendered by the student and the undertaking by the father guaranteeing the future good conduct of his son, and magnanimously pardoned him as a father would do his son rather than putting a seal of finality in the punishment inflicted by him. That would have enhanced the prestige of the Principal and of his college in the eyes of not only his students present and future but also the public. 1951-2 Mad LJ 568: 1951 Mad WN 875: AIR 1952 Mad 151 (154, 156, 157) (Prs 7, 16, 18, 19).

——Arts. 226, 14 — Admisisons to educational Institutions — Discretion with authoritles concerned — Powers of Selection Board — Delegation of, to Principals —Validity — No question of discrimination.

The right to get admission in any College is a matter of discretion with the authorities concerned. The Gazette notification inviting applications has no statutory force. Similarly the Selection Board appointed by Government to make selections of candidates for admission to the Medical Colleges has no statutory function to perform. Nor is there any express prohibition in the instructions given to the Selection Board from further delegating their powers to the Principal when an extraordinary situation arises.

Once discretion was given to the respective Principals of the Medical Colleges to make spot selection, their exercise of such discretion could not be challenged by the High Court under Art. 226. Further, no mala fide was attributed to the Principal and he had not exceeded the authority conferred on him by the Selection Board. Thus there was not only no breach of instructions, but the Selection Board and the Principal had followed certain reasonable principles in making selections. Therefore, the High Court had no jurisdiction to exercise its powers under Art. 226. The question of discrimination under Art. 14 also did not arise. AIR 1962 Madh Pra 126, Rel. on. ILR (1963) Cut 281 : (1963) 5 Orissa JD 203: AIR 1963 Orissa 173 (174) (Pt B) (Prs 5 to 9) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Reg. XVI (12), Rajasthan Secondary Education Regulations, 1957 — Powers of Board to cancel registration —Writ of mandamus cannot be issued. See Rajasthan Secondary Education Regulations, 1957, Chap. VI, Regn. 16 (12). AIR 1960 Raj 185 (DB).

225 (b). Government.

●——Art. 226 — Industrial Disputes Act (1947), Ss. 10, 12 — Discretion of Government to refer dispute under S. 12 (5) — Section 12 (5) does not confer power on Government to make reference independently of section 10 (1) — Under S. 12 (5) Government can consider other relevant facts besides the report of Conciliation Officer — Government in considering question of reference taking into consideration extraneous matters — Writ of mandamus can issue requiring Government to reconsider its decision.

Even if the appropriate Government may be acting under S. 12 (5) the reference must ultimately be made under S. 10 (1). Section 12 (5) by itself and independently of S. 10 (1) does not confer power on the appropriate Government to make a reference. While deciding whether a reference should be made under S. 12 (5) it would be open to the appropriate Government to consider, besides the report of the Conciliation Officer, other relevant facts which may come to its knowledge or which may be brought to its notice. Just as discretion conferred on the Government under S. 10 (1), can be exercised by it in dealing with industrial disputes in regard to non-public utility services even when Government is acting under S. 12 (5), so too the provisions of the second proviso to S. 10 (1) can be pressed into service by the Government when it deals with an industrial dispute in regard to public utility service under S. 12 (5).

Whether S. 12 (5) is construed as making it obligatory on the Government to make a reference when it is satisfied that there is a case for reference or as only conferring a discretion, if in refusing to make a reference Government is influenced by reasons which are wholly extraneous or irrelevant or which are not germane, then its decision may be open to challenge in a Court of law. Though considerations of expediency cannot be excluded when Government considers whether or not it should exercise its power to make a reference it would not be open to the Government to introduce and rely upon wholly irrelevant or extraneous considerations under the guise of expediency. Even in dealing with the question as to whether it would be expedient or not to make the reference Government must not not in a punitive spirit but must consider the question fairly and reasonably and take into account only relevant facts and circumstances. If the work done by the employees prima facie justified their claim for classification and if the claim was in consonance with the practice prevailing in other comparable concerns the misconduct of the employees cannot be used as a relevant circumstances in refusing to refer the dispute about classification to industrial adjudication. Any consideration of discipline cannot be legitimately allowed to impose such a punishment on the employees. Similarly, even in regard to the claim for house, if the employees are able to show that the profits earned by the employer during the relevant year compared to the profits earned during the preceding years justified their demand for additional bonus it would plainly be a punitive action to refuse to refer such a dispute solely on the ground of their misconduct. If the Court is satisfied that the reasons given by the Government for refusing to make a reference under S. 12 (5) are extraneous and not germane then the Court can issue, and would be justified in issuing a writ of mandamus even in respect of such an administrative order. Hence, in such a case issue of writ of mandamus against the Government to reconsider the question of making or refusing to make a reference under S. 12 (5) ignoring the fact of misconduct of the employees and considering only such reasons as mere germane to the question of determining whether a reference should or should not be made is justified. State of Bombay v. K. P. Krishnan, (1960) 1 FLR 392 : (1960) 2 Lab LJ 592 : (1960-61) 19 FJR 61 : (1960) 2 SCA 527 : 63 Bom LR 127 : 1961 Nag LJ 205 : (1961) 1 SCR 227 : (1961) 2 SCJ 360 : AIR 1960 SC 1223 (1225 to 1232) (Prs 5, 8, 9 to 12, 16 to 18).

——Arts. 226, 72, 73, 161, 162 and 246 — Order of Governor commuting death sentence confirmed by High Court — Validity — Mandamus directing State to execute death sentence — Cannot be issued.

A combined reading of provisions of Arts. 72, 73, 161, 162 and 246 of the Constitution and those of Ss. 402 and 402-A, Cr. P. Code, indicates that the State Government continues to enjoy the power of commuting a sentence of death and since the expression 'State Government' means the Governor under the General Clauses Act, under S. 402, Cr. P. Code the Governor can commute a sentence of death under S. 402, Cr. P. Code. This power is kept intact by Cl. (3) of Art. 72. Therefore, when after its confirmation by High Court a death sentence of an accused found guilty under S. 302, I. P. Code, is commuted by the Governor a writ in the nature of mandamus commanding the State to execute the order of the High Court regarding the sentence of death and treat the order of the Governor as nullity cannot be issued. 1962 (1) Cr LJ 241 : 1962 All WR (HC) 225 : 1962 All Cr R 144 : AIR 1962 All 151 (152, 153) (Pt A) (Prs 2, 8).

——Art. 226 — Writ on State Government — (Municipalities — U. P. Municipalities Act (II of 1916), S. 68 (2)).

A writ in the nature of mandamus according to recognition to and approving the appointment by the Municipal Board, of the petitioner as overseer, cannot be issued against the State Government. AIR 1958 All 681 (682) (Pt A) (Pr 1) (DB).

——Arts. 226, 19(1) (f), 31, 132 (1) — Right to obtain mining lease, whether fundamental right — Mandamus to State Government to grant mining lease. U. P. Mining Concessions & Mineral Development Rules (1940) — See Ibid, Art. 19 (1) (f). AIR 1958 All 621.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus against Government — G. O. No. 615, dated 15-3-1951, Cl. (10) issued under Ss. 3, 4, and 8 of U. P. Industrial Disputes Act — Interpretation of — (U. P. Industrial Disputes Act, (XXVIII of 1947), Ss. 3, 4 and 8).

Under Clause (10) of the Government Order of March 15, 1951, the State Government has undoubtedly been empowered at any time to refer any dispute to the Industrial Tribunal. The formation of an opinion by the Government as to the existence or apprehension of an industrial dispute is a matter entirely within its discretion and jurisdiction. It is not a judicial or quasi-judicial matter at all.

Consequently where the State Government stated in its order of reference that the industrial dispute regarding retrenchment relief and compensation existed but it was silent as to the existence of the dispute relating to the re-employment of the retrenched workers or the payment of salary to them for the period of unemployment, the Court is not competent to direct the Government to refer the dispute regarding which the order of reference was silent. AIR 1953 SC 53, Rel. on. 1956 All WR (HC) 227: ILR (1957) 1 All 212: AIR 1956 All 367 (368) (Prs 5, 6) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus against Government.

Reference to Regional Conciliation Board regarding reinstatement of employee — Award — Appeal to Industrial Court — Court confirming findings of Board and making recommendations to Government for reinstatement of employee and payment of past wages — Order of Government dated 3rd December, 1949, directing enforcement of those findings — Validity. See U. P. Industrial Disputes Act (XXVIII of 1947), S. 3 (B). AIR 1954 All 705.

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1961 SC 420]

——Art. 226 — Fishery Rules — Assam — Administrative orders — Interference under Art. 226 — Mandamus against Executive — Settlement of fisheries in Assam — Mandamus against State Government directing them to hear appeal according to law — Cannot be issued. AIR 1964 Assam 56 (57, 58) (Prs 6, 7) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus against Government — Deprivation of lessee's right to fishery — Mandamus can be issued — Assam Land and Revenue Regulation (1886), Ss. 147, 151.

After a registered fishery was settled with the petitioner, a dispute arose as to whether certain area was covered by the lease granted to the petitioner or by lease of another fishery granted to the respondent, who had started fishing in that area. The State Government directed that the respondent should be allowed to fish in the disputed area on the ground that the disputed area formed part of the respondent's fishery. The petitioner sought to impugn the order of the State Government by a petitioner under Art. 226.

Held, that the petitioner under the settlement acquired a right to the fishery which was a right to property and the petitioner could not be deprived of the right except by the authority of law. Under the circumstances, the petitioner could appproach the High Court under Art. 226 and a mandamus could be granted to the petitioner against the Government directing them not to give effect to the order passed by it. Though no mandamus could be issued against a third party, that principle could not be invoked in the instant case. AIR 1957 SC 529, Disting. AIR 1961 Assam 126 (127, 128) (Prs 3, 4, 6) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus against Government.

Ordinarily if an individual makes a demand from his debtor of any amount, that by itself does not give any right to the debtor to ask for the issue of a writ under Art. 226, but when the Government authorities in the exercise of their powers as such issue a notice of demand, calling upon a person to pay some money, it is not only a case of a notice by a creditor. The demand has got to be justified on some statutory basis and it will not be a valid defence to say that the individual could well have refused to pay and if the Government brought a suit defended the suit on any ground. ILR (1958) 10 Assam 311: AIR 1959 Assam 136 (138, 139) (Pt B) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Assam Settlement Rules, R. 2 — Special or General orders — Meaning of — Rule cannot derogate from substantive provision — Reduction in area of Settlement by Commissioner — Right under previous settlement put in jeopardy by orders complained of — Writ against Government not to give effect to orders of Commissioner could be issued as the order was without any warrant in law. See Assam Settlement Rules R. 2. AIR 1955 Assam 45 (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 311 — Mandamus —Government servant — Claim for arrears of salary — Mandamus for direction to authority to pay will lie.

Where Government employees who are suspended for criminal offence, are afterwards reinstated in service as the allegations levelled against them are found untenable and where they ask only for a direction to the authorities to pay the arrears of their salaries, mandamus lies. AIR 1962 SC 1320 and AIR 1961 SC 1438 Rel. on. (1965) 2 Lab LJ 321: 68 Cal WN 1028: AIR 1965 Cal 281 (282) (Pt B) (Pr 5).

——Art. 226— Mandamus — Writ against Government — State proceeding to take things which had not vested in it — Mandamus or an appropriate writ will issue against Govt. See West Bengal Estates Acquisition Act (1 of 1954), S. 5. AIR 1957 Cal 350.

——Art. 226 — State claiming to be owner of land in possession of petitioner and giving him notice to quit — Writ petition by petitioner for mandamus against State — Maintainability — Petitioner's right to property under Art. 19 (1) (f) how far affected — See Ibid, Art. 19 (1) (f). AIR 1956 Cal 437 (441, 442, 443) (Pt A) (Prs 12, 13, 14, 15, 16).

——Art. 226 — Writ against order of Government — Mala fides alleged — Burden of proof — Evidence Act (1872), Ss. 101 to 103.

Before a Court can hold that the orders of Government are mala fide, facts must be established upon which the Court can hold affirmatively that an order was not honestly made or not made under a particular provision. It is not sufficient to place facts which raised a suspicion that the order might not have been made honestly. If the Government by its notification wishes to ensure a more reasonable and fair representation of all communities in a Municipality it is no evidence of mala fide. So also ousting of particular commissioner by changing the limits of wards is not by itself undesirable. 55 Cal WN 203: AIR 1952 Cal 147 (147, 148) (Pt A) (Prs 4, 5).

——Arts. 226, 311, 309, 16 — Appointment to Government service — Right of applicant to compel Government to disclose materials used in considering antecedents and character of applicant — Held applicant had no such right.

No doubt, if an opinion or a satisfaction has to be arrived at by a particular authority or an officer functioning under a statute it may be open to the parties, who are aggrieved by decisions arrived at by such officer to urge that the opinion or satisfaction has been reached by the officer or authority concerned on a consideration of irrelevant materials. But such cases stand on a different footing because the statute itself will give an indication as to the purpose which is sought to be served by the said enactment. But appointment to Government service is essentially an administrative or executive action. The position may, no doubt be different if the applicants are able to establish that in addition to the right to apply and being considered for a particular post, they have also a right guaranteed under the Constitution to be appointed to the particular post. But the constitutional right does not extend to conferring a right on any person of being appointed to Government service. The nature of the materials to be collected and the satisfaction that is to be arrived about character and antecedents of the person to be appointed are entirely matters for the appointing authorities, and the appointing authorities have a right to be so satisfied especially in view of the provisions of R. 10 (2) (b) of the Kerala State and Subordinate Services Rules on these matters before a person can be appointed to Government service. When there is no right to be appointed, as such to Government service, and when the limited right that is given under Art. 16 (1) and (2) has been sufficiently complied with, the grounds available to the Government to come to a conclusion one way or the other is not a matter which the High Court can be called upon to scrutinise, especially when the Government is entitled to pick and choose. AIR 1965 Ker 19 (26) (Pt C) (Prs 41, 42).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Administrative orders — Order of reference under S. 10 Industrial Disputes Act (1947) — Nature of refusal by Government to make reference based on irrelevant and extraneous considerations — Writ against — Maintainable. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 10 (1). AIR 1962 Ker 292.

——Art. 226 — Issue of writ of mandamus — (Gwalior State Civil Service Rules, Smt. 1991).

Where the right which the applicant is seeking to enforce in the petition does not depend merely on an interpretation and construction of certain Civil Service Rules but substantially rests upon certain doubtful facts which are under adjudication in a civil suit and on a controversial legal effect of the facts which may be held to be proved in that suit, there can be no question of issuing an order or a writ to compel the Government of the State to pass a pension payment order, particularly when the Government is willing to perform the act, but which has for the time being become difficult of performance by reason of the applicant's civil suit.

Moreover, to issue an order in the nature of mandamus directing the Government to pass a pension payment order in such circumstances would be "to create a defect of justice" and "not to supply a defect of justice" as it would amount to a determination of matters which are in substantial litigation in the applicant's suit. (1884) 12 QBD 461, Ref. ILR (1953) MB 393: AIR 1953 Madh B 165 (171) (Pt E) (Pr 11) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus against Government— Dismissal of Civil Servant — Power of High Court.

Held, on the facts of the case that the prayer of the petitioner for the issue of a writ of mandamus against the Government to the effect that he had a lien either on the post of a Judge, Labour Court or on some equivalent post in the Judicial department could not be granted. Since the petitioner was simply reinstated in service without giving him any particular post permanently no lien on any post was created. Besides that it will be beyond the province of the High Court to suggest to the Government to give a post to any individual. The Executive must have untrammelled powers and any interference in their administrative discretion is not called for. 1957 MPC 796 : 1957 Jab LJ 1115 : 1958 MPLJ 377 : AIR 1958 Madh Pra 135 (139, 140) (Pt D) (Pr 24) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Application by Union to direct Government to refer industrial dispute — Omission to implead management does not take away Court's jurisdiction to issue writ — Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 10 (1).

It is unnecessary for any aggrieved person moving the High Court for the issue of mandamus to direct the appropriate Government to refer an industrial dispute under S. 10 (1) of the Industrial Disputes Act to implead as a party thereto the other party to the dispute and hence it cannot be urged that the Court has no jurisdiction to issue the writ to the Government on the application of the aggrieved Union without giving an opportunity to the employer to show cause against its issue.

A writ of mandamus can issue even with respect to administrative acts, the only requirement being that there should exist a duty, public or quasi-public, in the body to whom the writ is addressed to perform that duty. It cannot be disputed that a writ of mandamus will lie against the Government, if it refused to refer an industrial dispute for adjudication under S. 10 (1) of the Industrial Disputes Act, if such refusal is found to be either not bona fide or based on considerations of wholly irrelevant facts and circumstances. Again where the Government does not record and communicate to the parties its reasons for not making a reference under S. 12 (5), it will be open to the aggrieved party to apply to the Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution for the issue of a writ of mandamus to direct the Government to perform its duty. AIR 1960 SC 1223, Rel. on.

The act which the Government will, in such a case, be directed to do is neither judicial nor quasi-judicial. It would, therefore, follow that in such cases the Government would not be bound to hear the parties before making a reference under S. 12 (5) read with S. 10 (1) of the Industrial Disputes Act. (1960) 1 All ER 274, Rel. on.

There are no two parties before the Government when it makes its mind either to refer or not to refer for adjudication of an industrial dispute by the appropriate tribunal and there can be no question of affecting the right of any party by such an administrative decision.

Therefore, when the superior Court is approached by the aggrieved party to issue a writ of mandamus to the Government the only question before the Court will be whether to issue a writ or not and on that question the only person interested will be the Government and not the other party to the dispute. (1965) 1 Mad LJ 517 : (1964) 1 Lab LJ 228 : ILR (1964) 1 Mad 850 : AIR 1964 Mad 468 (470) (Pt A) (Pr 2) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Issue of, against Government.

Where the Government declined to take into account the payments to which the religious institutions were entitled under S. 5 (1) of the Madras Estates Land (Reduction of Rent) Act in computing, even on a rough calculation, the amounts payable to each of these institutions under S. 38 (2) of the Madras Estates (Abolition and Conversion into Ryotwari) Act:

Held, that it being a statutory duty imposed on the Government, the obligation could be enforced by the necessary directions by the High Court. 71 Mad LW 311 : 1958 Mad WN 225 : ILR (1958) Mad 433 : (1958) 2 Mad LJ 65 : AIR 1958 Mad 465 (471) (Pt B) (Pr 31) (DB).

——Art. 226 — When mandamus may issue against Government.

Although mandamus cannot lie against an authority to compel it to take certain action which it has refused to take after considering pros and cons of the issue involved, yet, where the authority refuses to exercise its statutory powers discharges its statutory duty, mandamus will lie to compel it to carry its statutory duties to take up the matter and decide it according to law. AIR 1956 Manipur 4 (7) (Pt C) (Pr 10).

——Art. 226 — Provisional inter-State seniority list by departmental committee of State Government — Nature of — Non-compliance with directions issued by Central Government under S. 117, States Reorganisation Act — Remedy of aggrieved party — Refusal by State Government to forward representation — Mandamus if can be issued. See States Reorganisation Act (1956), Section 115 (5). AIR 1962 Mys 112 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus against Government — Mining and other subsidiary rights — Interference with by Government by granting contradictory lease given to another — (C. P. Land Revenue Act (II of 1917), S. 218 (3)).

Held, on facts that the petitioner having been granted a valuable statutory right under S. 218 (3), C. P. Land Revenue Act the Government could not create a hostile right in favour of respondent 2 without giving adequate notice to the petitioner and hearing him. The Government could not in this indirect manner deprive the petitioner of this valuable right in respect of which he had paid compensation to the owners and rent to the Government. The petitioner was therefore, entitled to the issue of a writ of mandamus against the State Government as well as respondent 2 not to interfere with the occupation of the two fields. ILR (1956) Nag 27 : AIR 1956 Nag 34 (37) (Pt B) (Prs 13, 16, 17) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Resignation by President of municipality based on vote of no confidence — Motion not legally passed — Writ to direct Government to accept resignation. See Municipalities — C. P. and Berar Municipalities Act (1922), S. 21. AIR 1955 Nag 35 (DB).

●——Art. 226—School managed and administered by Brahmo Samaj is entitled to protection guaranteed by Art. 30 (1), even though majority of students are not of Brahmo faith and no instructions in that faith are given — Order of Government interfereing with management is ultra vires and void — Mandamus will issue on Government and direction will issue to managing committee of school to hand over charge to the committee appointed by the Samaj. See Ibid, Art. 30 (1). AIR 1962 Pat 101 (FB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus against Government— Rajasthan Municipalities Act (XXXVIII of 1959), Ss. 26 (iii), 63 (1) (c) — Removal of members— Question regarding disqualification alleged to have been incurred by members of Board under S. 26 (iii) referrred to State Government — State Government is under statutory obligation to dispose of matter without due delay — Government not taking action in the matter for long period — Mandamus against State to expedite disposal of matter held should be issued.. 1961 Raj LW 266 : ILR (1961) 11 Raj 273.

——Art. 226 — Classification of prisoners — Government alone can do — Trial Courts are not authorised to do it — Right of prisoner to move High Court for direction. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 401. ILR (1959) 9 Raj 1212.

225 (c). Individual officer.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Against whom can be issued — ((Ajmer) Excise Regulation (I of 1915), S. 16 (4) — Notification No. E (1)/3/54-PWN Dt. 19-8-1955).

No writ should issue against the Chief Commissioner who had at no time prosecuted or threatened to prosecute the petitioner. If the petitioner wanted any relief, he should have asked for the writ against the Collector of Excise who alone controls the action of the officers who are likely to prosecute the petitioner. 1956 Cr LJ 657 : AIR 1956 Ajmer 50 (51) (Pt C) (Pr 6).

——Art. 226 — Under S. 30. Police Act the Dist. Supdt. of Police is the only competent authority to pass an order demarcating route for tazia procession and not the Dist. Magistrate — Order passed by Dist. Magistrate without authority and jurisdiction — Mandamus can issue to him to refrain from giving effect to the order by entering it in the Teohar Register. 1960 All WR (HC) 653 : 1960 All LJ 843.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus.

Before a mandamus can issue the petitioner must show that he has a legal right to the performance of a legal duty by the party against whom the mandamus is sought. There is no law under which the Deputy Commissioner has the authority or is bound to issue a permit to any one to run a butchery shop within the limits of a town under any circumstances when the Municipal Act does not apply to that place. If the Deputy Commissioner has no such authority or obligation, there would be no corresponding right in the petitioner to insist on a permit from the Deputy Commissioner for carrying on his trade. Where there is no duty cast on him by law to issue any permit for running a butchery shop a permit issued by him is one without any authority and its cancellation and a subsequent refusal to issue any permit do not contravene or infringe any legal right of the person in whose favour the permit was originally issued. AIR 1950 SC 163, Disting. AIR 1954 Assam 74 (75) (Pt A) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Direction when can be given — (Municipalities — Bengal Municipal Act (XV of 1932), Ss. 21, 529-A).

No one can be directed by a writ of mandamus to do something which he is not under a binding obligation to do. Even after the publication of the final electoral roll, it remains the duty of the registering authority, that is, the Committee contemplated by S. 21 (1) of Act XV of 1932 to carry out any further amendments that may be directed by the District Magistrate in an appeal under S. 529-A. Hence where the petitioner had not impleaded the registering authority as such, but had impleaded only the Chairman, who was one of the members of the Committee known as the registering authority but not also the remaining members, the Chairman cannot be directed to amend and republish the final electrol roll. AIR 1955 Cal 541 (543) (Pt A) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Consent validly given and suit instituted on basis of such consent —Consent cannot subsequently be revoked — Mandamus and not certiorari to isue restraining Collector or Advocate General from revoking consent. See Civil P. C. (1908), S. 92. AIR 1962 J and K 86.

——Art. 226 —Powers of administrator and State Government —Public notice issued—Administrator must carry out programme — Writ can be issued for failure — State Government can cancel date fixed for issue of notice — No writ could issue against Government to fix date — City of Jabalpur Corporation Act, Ss. 9 (3), 448 and R. 1 (2) — C. P. and Berar General Clauses Act, S. 20.

The administrator has not been given any discretion under the rules framed under the City of Jabalpur Corporation Act, in the matter of holding elections and after the issue of a public notice by him he has to carry out the programme specified in the notice. If the administrator of his own accord fails to carry out the programme he could be compelled by a writ of mandamus to carry it out.

There is no express provision under which the State Government could cancel the programme but rule 1 (2) framed under section 9 (3) read with section 448 gives unfettered power to the State Government in the mater of fixing a date for issue of public notice and therefore, under S. 20, C. P. & Berar General Clauses Act Government could cancel date originally fixed and fix another. If Government cancelled the programme they must be deemed to have cancelled date of issue of public notice. There is nothing in any of the provisions of the Act which makes it incumbent on the State Government to fix a date for issue of public notice by administrator within any particular period and no writ could be issued calling upon the Government to exercise these powers under Rule 1 (2). ('52) 1952 Nag LJ (Notes) 24 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus—Writ to subordinate officers.

Held, that respondents Nos. 2 to 5 being subordinate officers could not be issued writ to deliver possession of the land to the petitioners as they acted in obedience to the orders of their respective Governments. ILR (1954) Patiala 507 : AIR 1954 Pepsu 174 (179, 180) (Pt E) (Pr 7).

225 (d). Private individual.

●——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Issue of writ to private individual — Illegal eviction of displaced person —Another displaced person in possession — Issue of writ to latter — (Public Premises (Eviction) Act (1950), S. 3).

Normally, a writ of mandamus does not issue against a private individual. The eviction of a displaced person in contravention of the express provisions of S. 3 of the Public Premises (Eviction) Act is illegal and a writ of mandamus can issue to or an order in the nature of mandamus can be made against the Union of India to restore possession of the property to him from which he has been evicted if the property is in possession of the Union of India. If, however, the property is in possession of another displaced person and he is not in collusion with the Union of India or has no knowledge that the eviction was illegal, a writ cannot issue to or an order in the nature of mandamus cannot be made against him. (1885) 25 LJQB 61, Rel. on. Sohan Lal v.

Union of India, 35 Mys LJ 195 : (1957) SCJ 489: (1957) MPC 466 : (1957) BLJR 566 : (1957) 2 An WR (SC) 50 : (1957) 2 Mad LJ (SC) 50 : 1957 All WR 598 : 1957 SCA 417 : 1957 All LJ 382 : AIR 1957 SC 529(532) (Pt B) (Pr 7).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Issue of writ to private individual — Auction-sale in Income-tax recovery proceedings while stay-order was in operation — Sale set aside — Whether auction-purchaser in possession can be directed to restore possession to petitioner.

In the income-tax recovery proceedings, the properties of the assessee were sold by auction-sale and possession was handed over to the auction-purchaser. The assessee filed a writ petition challenging the recovery proceedings and order confirming the sale. The sale was effected in the teeth of the stay order and was not legally possible. The petitioner stood deprived of the title and, possession of his property without authority of law and his rights guaranteed under Art. 31 of the Constitution were infringed. It was not disputed by respondent auction-purchaser that High Court could direct the officers who took possesison of auctioned properties to restore it to the petitioner. The auction-purchasers, however, urged that High Court could not order auction-purchasers to restore possession to the petitioner as they did not hold any statutory office, and had also no statutory duty to perform.

Held, that the High Court could order respondent auction-purchasers to restore possession of properties to the petitioner. Under Art. 226 of the Constitution the High Court was not confined to what was known as the High Prerogative Writ of Mandamus in England. The High Court was not bound by its technical limitations. It could issue other writs, directions and orders. It had jurisdiction to issue such directions and orders as the ends of justice required or in order to effectively repair the breach of a citizen's fundamental rights. As the source of the auction-purchasers' possession was statutory action, the incidents and liabilities of such action attached equally to their right of possession. If such action were to be set aside and the statutory authority were to be directed to undo the wrong by restoring possession the purchasers were in the eye of law duty bound to aid and assist them. At common law they were deemed entrusted with the public duty to give back possession to the authorities. Mandamus was available against a private person or body, entrusted by common law with a public duty. When all concerned parties were before the Court, a complete and effective order was appropriate. (1965) 2 ITJ 85 : AIR 1966 All 176 (180, 181) (Pt D) (Prs 23, 24).

——Art. 226—No mandamus against private individual — Private or aided institutions —Managers of, are not public authority.

Unless an individual is acting under some public authority no writ of mandamus can be issued against a private individual. Managers of private or aided institutions cannot be said to be acting in any official capacity. They cannot therefore, be directed to do a certain thing by means of a writ of mandamus. AIR 1957 All 234 and AIR 1957 SC 529, Disting. W. P. No. 1842 of 1957, dated 12th August, 1957 (All), Foll. AIR 1961 All 282 (283, 284) (Pt A) (Prs 8, 10).

——Art. 226 — Issue of writ of mandamus.

A writ of mandamus only issues to a public authority or a holder of a public office not to act contrary to any provision of a statute in the capacity of such holder of public office. No such writ can issue against a person, whether an individual or a juristic person, who purports to exercise a right by virtue of a claimed title to a certain property.

Moreover, essentially the purpose for which a 'mandamus' exists is to ensure that justice is done in all cases where there is a specific legal right, and no specific legal remedy exists. For the enforcement of such rights, it is issued as a rule only in those cases where there is no legal remedy of an equally convenient, beneficial and effectual nature. Hence, no application for the issue of a writ of mandamus is maintainable if adequate relief is obtainable by the applicant by any other process of law. AIR 1951 All 1 (FB); AIR 1951 All 746 (FB), Foll. ILR (1954) 1 All 158 : 1953 All LJ 455 : 1953 All WR (HC) 465 : AIR 1953 All 678 (680) (Pt A) (Prs 4, 5) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Issue of, against private individuals.

A writ of mandamus normally will not be directed against private individuals nor will it issue to give effect to contractual obligations which could be enforced in the ordinary Courts of law. AIR 1958 Andh Pra 632 (637) (Pt B) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Issue of, against public utility concern.

Normally, a writ of mandamus does not issue to or an order in the nature of mandamus is not made against a private individual. Such an order is made against a person directing him to do some particular thing, specified in the order, which appertains to his office and is in the nature of a public duty. The statutory duty devolving upon a public utility concern is a public duty. Therefore, it cannot be said that a public utility concern like an electrical undertaking is in the same position as a private party. Such being the position, a writ can issue at the instance of any consumer to a public utility concern for its failure to perform its duty under the Electricity Act or under its licence. Similarly, a writ can issue to it restraining it from abusing its powers under any of the provisions of the Act or under its licence. 1958 Nag LJ 457: 60 Bom LR 1446 : ILR (1959) Bom 592 : AIR 1958 Bom 498 (506) (Pt F) (Prs 46, 47) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Against whom can issue — Writ against company.

Though a writ of mandamus does not normally or ordinarily issue against a private individual, there are instances in which such writs have been issued in the case of a company, or even a private individual. But in these restricted cases, it would have to be shown that there does not exist an alternative legal remedy or that such remedy is not sufficient or adequate. If it could be shown that the Calcutta Tramways Company, Ltd., was violating any provisions of the law for which there was no adequate remedy provided, then in that event a writ would have lain. AIR 1958 Bom 498, Rel. on. AIR 1960 Cal 398 (399, 400) (Pt D) (Prs 10, 11).

——Art. 226 —Mandamus — Writ — Issue of to private bodies.

In order to isue a writ of mandamus, it has to be established that the duties which are sought to be enforced by the writ are duties of a public nature and are duties, performance of which is imposed by a statute. The managing committee of an aided school which is not a creature of any statute is a private body and, therefore, no writ of mandamus can be isued to such a body. ('58) 62 Cal WN 384.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Writ of against private individual.

An application for a writ of mandamus may be directed only against the holder of a public office and not against a private individual. AIR 1952 Cal 74 (75) (Pt B) (Pr 8) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Against whom can be made.

Normally a writ of mandamus does not issue to or an order in the nature of mandamus is not made against a private individual. Such an order is made against a person directing him to do some particular thing, specified in the order which appertains to his office and is in the nature of a public duty. AIR 1957 SC 529. Foll. 1959 Ker LJ 197: 1959 Ker LR 281: 1959 Ker LT 580.

——Art. 226 —Mandamus — Against whom can issue — Private school receiving grant from Government is not public body — Mandamus cannot be issued against management of such school.

A mandamus cannot issue to private individual and it can be issued only against a person who can be directed to do an act which appretains to his office and is in the nature of a public duty. It is only in respect of a legal right that a mandamus will lie and mandamus can be granted only to compel the performance of duties of a public nature. The mere fact that a private institution receives grant from the State does not make it a public body nor do the conditions subject to which the grant is made, constitute public duties to be performed by those who are the recipients of the grant.

Hence, where the services of a Head Mistress of a private school, which received aid from the State Government, were terminated without giving a month's notice as required by the Mysore Educational Grant-in-aid Code :

Held, that a mandamus could not be issued against the management of the school to reinstate the Head Mistress. AIR 1957 SC 529. Foll. (1963) 1 Mys LJ 356 : AIR 1963 Mys 18 (19) (Prs 3, 6, 7) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Powers of High Court — Invasion of proprietary right of citizen —Issue of writ of mandamus against wrongdoer —Art. 32 — Distinction. 30 Pat 287 : AIR 1952 Patna 23 (26) (Pt C) (Pr 14) (DB).

225 (e). Quasi-judicial authority.

See also Note 249.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Rejection of nomination papers of members of co-operative Bank for election to Board of Directors by Chariman of Bank is a function performed in exercise of statutory power and is a quasi-judicial act — Mandamus can issue to the Committee (Board of Directors) to accept nomination papers improperly rejected — Mysore Co-operative Societies Act (11 of 1959), S. 129 (2) — Mysore Co-operative Societies Rules, R. 14 (3). 1963 Mys LJ (Supp) 501 (DB).

225 (f). Statutory bodies of fluctuating nature.

——Arts. 226 and 12 — Mandamus — Against whom writ lies — Public authority — Meaning— Co-operative Society registered under Bengal Co-operative Societies Act —Writ petition is maintainable against such society or its managing body.

A Co-operative Society registered under the Bengal Co-operative Societies Act, 1940, or its managing committee is amenable to the writ jurisdiction of High Court. What constitutes a public authority cannot be precisely defined. Commercial undertakings and Companies, which are profit making concerns are not generally public authorities. The management of the affairs, and the activities of such Societies are entirely controlled by the Registrar of the Co-operative Society who is a public authority. Such affairs cannot be private affairs. It is not necessary that a body in order to be a public body must always be constituted by a Statute though its powers and duties are created by an Act or the rules. The control which State Government and the Registrar have over such Co-operative Societies is one of the main distinguishing features for the maintainability of an application under Art. 226 of the Constitution. Even where the Society is a person, there cannot be any broad and general proposition that no writ lies against him. AIR 1966 Cal 23 (28, 29) (Pt A) (Prs 24, 26 to 28).

——Art. 226 —Writ of Mandamus — Issue of— Incomplete right.

Per Narasimham, J. :— An incomplete right may itself suffice for invoking the mandamus jurisdiction of the High Court. 98 ER 139, Rel. on.

Further, where the act, the doing of which is sought to be compelled by mandamus, is the final thing, and if done gives to the relator all that he seeks proximately or ultimately, then the question whether he is entitled to have that act done may be enquired into by the officer or person to whom the mandamus is sought, and is also to be considered by the tribunal which is moved to grant the mandamus. 38 Corpus Juris P. 585 Para. 56, Rel. on.

Thus, where the approval of the Syndicate is the final act which completes the right of the examinees to a declaration that they have passed certain examination, the examinees have a right to apply for a writ of mandamus issued to the Syndicate to approve their result and to publish it.

Per Ray, C. J. :— The right claimed by the examinees can be well understood with reference to the duties that the Syndicate have to perform in the circumstances of the instant case. Rights and duties are always correlated. One in whose interest or for whose benefit a public duty is enjoined by law has always the right to enforce the performance of the duty. The position, therefore, is that where the action of a public functionary threatens to violate the plain and imperative duty cast upon them to the substantial prejudice of the rights of the parties and where all other remedies are utterly inadequate, the speedy and prompt relief of mandamus is undeniable. ILR (1951) Cut 407 : 17 Cut LT 320 : AIR 1952 Orissa 1 (7, 8, 10, 11) (Pt B) (Prs 18, 30) (DB).

[Reversed on another point in AIR 1954 SC 217.]

225 (g). Universities.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — When can issue — Corporate body like University Syndicate passing resolution without notice to members — All members except one present — Question discussed not on agenda — Resolution unanimous — Case held not fit for issue of mandamus—(University — Meeting of Syndicate — Resolution without notice) — (Corporation — Resolution without notice) — AIR 1952 Orissa 1, Reversed.

Though an incorporated body like an University is a legal entity it has neither a living mind nor voice. It can only express its will in a formal way by a formal resolution and so can only act in its corporate capacity by resolutions properly considered, carried and duly recorded in the maner laid down by its Constitution. If its rules require such resolutions to be moved and passed in a meeting called for the purpose, then every member of the body entitled to take part in the meeting must be given notice so that he can attend and express his views. Individual assents given separately cannot be regarded as equivalent to the assent of a meeting because the incorporated body is different from the persons of which it is composed. Hence, an omission to give proper notice even to a single member in these circumstances would invalidate the meeting and that in turn would invalidate resolutions which purport to have been passed at it. But this is only when such inflexible rigidity is imposed by the incorporating constitution. The position is different when, either by custom or by the nature of the body or by its constitution and rules, greater latitude and flexibility are permissible. Each case must be governed by its own facts and no universal rule can be laid down: also it may well be that in the same body certain things, such as routine matters, can be disposed of more easily and with less formality than others. It will depend on the nature of the body and its rules. The substance is more important than the form and if there is substantial compliance with the spirit and substance of the law, an unessential defect in form will not be allowed to defeat what is otherwise a proper and valid resolution.

The ordinary meeting of the University Syndicate had been called to consider certain matters. The question of the leakage of a question paper of certain examination was not on the agenda but the last item was 'other maters, if any'. The Vice Chancellor who presided over the meeting put the question before the committee. After carefully considering the question the members present unanimously passed a resolution that they were satisfied that there was leakage of the question paper, that the examination in that particular subject be cancelled and that another examination in the subject be held. The Syndicate consisted of twelve members. In the meeting there was one absentee. The resolution was unanimous. The absentee member was not told that the question of leakage would be one of the matters to be considered at the meeting. Some days afterwards another meeting was called. This time also the question of reconsideration of the previous decision was not on the agenda. But the Vice Chancellor brought the question before the meeting suo motu. This time also only eleven members were present but the absentee member was not the same person who was absent in the first meeting. By unanimous resolution the members refused to review its previous decision.

Held, that there was actual appearance without objection at meetings properly convened and that there was complete unanimity on both occasions, that the two resolutions were not invalid and that whatever might be thought about each taken separately, the defects if any were cured when the two were read together and regarded as a whole. AIR 1952 Orissa 1, Reversed.

Held, further that in mandamus petitions, the High Court and the Supreme Court would not act as Court of appeal and consider and examine the facts for themselves. It was not the function of the Court of law to substitute their wisdom and discretion for that of the persons to whose judgment the matter in question was entrusted by the law. The University authorities acted honestly as reasonable and responsible men confronted with an urgent situation were entitled to act. This was decidedly not the sort of case in which a mandamus ought to issue. Vice Chancellor, Utkal University v. S. K. Ghosh, 1954 SCJ 252: 1954 SCA 311: 20 Cut LT 206: ILR (1954) Cut 288: 1954 SCR 883: AIR 1954 SC 217 (219, 220) (Prs 16 to 19).

——Art. 226 — Election under S. 11 (4) (i) (a) of Allahabad University Act (3 of 1921) — Election not held according to system of proportional representation by means of single transferable vote is void and cannot be protected by doctrine of internal management. See Allahabad University Act (3 of 1921), S. 11 (4) (i) (a). AIR 1966 All 45.

——Art. 226 — Writ against University authorities — Disciplinary action against students — Orders imposing punishments of rustication and expulsion passed by Authority having no jurisdiction — Interference by High Court.

Held, in the instant case (i) that in the special circumstances of the case the High Court would interfere in the proper exercise of its jurisdiction under Art. 226: AIR 1953 All 623 and AIR 1946 All 46 and AIR 1956 All 539 and AIR 1957 Bom 246 and AIR 1954 SC 217, Dist. (ii) that as the proceedings which culminated in the impugned orders were of an administrative nature and not judicial or quasi-judicial in character, a writ of certiorari could not be issued quashing the proceedings. But since the impugned orders were without jurisdiction and nullity a writ of mandamus should be issued to the respondents not to enforce the impugned orders. AIR 1960 All 256 (263, 264) (Pt C) (Prs 41, 50, 51).

——Art. 226 — Allahabad University Act (3 of 1921), Ss. 32 (c) and 34 (1) (b) — Ordinances and Regulations under Act — Ordinances (1) and (2) of Chap. 36 — Two years' course for B. Sc. Examination — College authorities can detain students on failure at class examination at end of first year — Regulation providing for such examination is not in contravention of Statutes. See Allahabad University Act (3 of 1921), S. 32 (c). AIR 1953 All 194.

——Art. 226 — (Allahabad University) Draft Ordinances — Ordinances 11 and 14 — Faculty of law asking applicant to revise thesis —Issue of writ of mandamus. See (Allahabad University) Draft Ordinance 11. AIR 1953 All 6.

——Art. 226 —(Allahabad University) Draft Ordinances — Ordinances 10, 11 and 12 — Ordinances requiring. University to arrange for viva voce examination, if report of examining body is that thesis is satisfactory — No viva voce examination held — It cannot be said that the Faculty acted mala fide —No mandamus will go ordering the Faculty to act in particular manner. See (Allahabad University) Draft Ordinance 10. AIR 1953 All 6.

——Art. 226 — Allahabad University Ordinances for the Degree of Doctor of Laws (Published at page 302, Vol. I of Calendar of University of Allahabad for the year 1948-49) — Thesis for Doctorate — Condition to be fulfilled — Faculty of law or Sub-committee — Examiners appointed to examine thesis cannot be considered as Sub-committee or Faculty of Law — Thesis not approved by Faculty of Law or Sub-committee thereof — Applicant cannot claim mandamus to the University ordering it to accept the thesis and award him degree of Doctor of Laws. See Allahabad University Ordinance for the Degree of Doctor of Laws (Published at p. 302; Vol. I of Calendar of University of Allahabad for the year (1948-49). AIR 1953 All 6.

——Art. 226 — Writ of mandamus against University.

A writ of mandamus would lie against public bodies compelling them to carry out their duties. The University is a public body. Ordinarily, a Court would be most reluctant to interfere with the internal discipline of the University and its autonomous working under the Statute. An august body of such importance is entitled to all the reasonable latitude which its position deserves. But the University is a creature of the statute and must obey the rules and regulations by which it professes to be bound. If it acts in violation of those rules and thereby adversely affects the rights of others, its conduct is open to question. Case-law Rel. on. 58 Cal WN 54: ILR (1954) 6 Assam 528: AIR 1954 Assam 65 (68, 69) (Pt E) (Prs 14, 15) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Illegal withholding by Principal of recommendation under S. 9 (a) of Calcutta University Regulations — Court has jurisdiction to issue mandamus. See Calcutta University Regulations, Ch. LI. AIR 1962 Cal 93.

——Art. 226 — Writ against University.

A writ of mandamus can be issued upon the University directing it to forbear from giving effect to an order made in violation of its own rules. Case-law Rel. on. 58 Cal WN 295: AIR 1954 Cal 141 (144) (Pt B) (Pr 15).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus.

Governing body of State Medical Faculty cancelling examination without giving opportunity to examinees to allay suspicion entertained by examiners as to the adoption of unfair means in examination — Principles of natural justice not observed — Good faith not enough to justify action — Amounts to failure to exercise their powers reasonably and with due care and caution — Cancelling of entire examination was not justified — Mandamus to revoke the order issued. Case-law Relied on. AIR 1953 Cal 289 (293) (Pt B) (Pr 16).

——Art. 226 — Petitioners aggrieved by acts of Calcutta University Syndicate — Prerogative writs against Calcutta University.

It is true that the Syndicate being a statutory body vested with the executive government of the University the persons constituting it become ipso facto holders of a public office and can be proceeded against by an application under S. 45 of the Specific Relief Act. This however, does not mean that any application for the issue of prerogative writs against the Calcutta University which is a body corporate and a statutory body and which is responsible for the acts of the Syndicate is necessarily bad. The acts of the Syndicate are the acts of the University and an application for a prerogative writ against the University should not be thrown out on such a highly technical ground although no doubt the appropriate thing would be to proceed against the Syndicate where its specific acts are complained of. 40 Mad 125, Ref. ('51) 55 Cal WN 443: AIR 1953 Cal 172 (176) (Pt C) (Pr 20).

——Art. 226 — Admission to college — Cancellation — Mandamus to University and Principal of college to forbear from preventing petitioner to complete his course and appear for examination. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 115. AIR 1956 Mad 309.

——Art. 226 — Writ of mandamus — Issue of, against public body like University Syndicate — Powers of High Court.

The High Court can, in its exercise of its special jurisdiction under Art. 226, issue a mandate in the nature of mandamus against a public body created by statute, like the Syndicate of a University compelling it to carry out its duties. AIR 1918 Mad 763, and 93 ER 698, Rel. on.

A body exercising statutory powers cannot rely on good faith alone for escaping the jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226. It must be further shown that the statutory powers were exercised reasonably and with due care. (1951) 1 App Cas 66, 46 ER 356; (1905) App Cas 426 and (1876) 1 App. Cas 611, Rel. on.; Case law referred.

The High Court, however, will not interfere with or revise the opinion of an administrative public body if there is anything on which that body could reasonably have come to its conclusion. But the discretion should be exercised in a judicial spirit, not allowing extraneous consideration to affect their decisions. (1915) 2 KB 466, Rel. on.

The High Court cannot take upon itself the functions of an appellate Court of fact, scrutinise the materials that were available to the public body and substitute its own discretion and judgment for that of the body. But the writ of mandamus being of the most extensive remedial nature and intended for supplying defects of justice its application should not be refused in cases where there is an abuse of discretion by a responsible statutory body.

Where, therefore, a Syndicate of a University was found to have acted with undue haste, assumed the existence of certain facts which did not exist, ignored certain papers that were before them and were carried away by the hearsay statement of certain person far beyond the limits to which he himself was prepared to go, in deciding that there was leakage of certain question papers and, therefore, passing a resolution that the result of that examination should not be published:

Held, that the resolution was passed unreasonably and with want of due care and a writ of mandamus was issued on the Syndicate requiring it to take immediate steps to publish the results.

Per Ray, C. J. :— A writ of mandamus cannot in any event be used as a substitute for an appeal or a writ of error to revise or correct the alleged errors by a public body in the proper exercise of its lawful jurisdiction however, inequitable and inconsistent its decision may be. The High Court should not interfere if the errors of law or wrongful conclusion of fact result from a mistaken judgment. A line of distinction, however fine should, however, always be drawn between a mistaken judgment and misguided judgment. Where a tribunal, whether administrative or judicial, allows its judgment to be vitiated by lack of reasonableness and care, the decision shall be subject to the superintendence and control by mandamus. 17 Cut LT 320: ILR (1951) Cut 407: AIR 1952 Orissa 1 (4, 7, 10, 11) (Pt A) (Prs 7, 17, 26, 27, 31) (DB).

[Reversed on another point in AIR 1954 SC 217.]

——Art. 226 — Mandamus against University authority — Delhi University — Rules relating to admission to the L. L. B. (Previous) Class of the Faculty of Law — Rule requiring character certificate from Magistrate — Character certificate from Joint Secretary of Government countersigned by Magistrate — Rule not satisfied — Mandatory rule — Writ against refusal to admit, in writ proceedings — Cannot be granted — Words and Phrases — Countersign —Writ Petn. No. 518-D of 1962, dated 15-10-1962 (Punj). Reversed — Observations to the contrary in AIR 1960 Punj 150, held obiter. AIR 1956 SC 140, Disting. AIR 1963 Punj 419 (420 to 422) (Prs 5, 6, 10, 12, 14, 15) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Jurisdiction of visitor, when can be invoked — No question of proceedings not being in conformity of Act Statute or Ordinance arising — Jurisdiction cannot be invoked— No mandamus will issue to visitor to act under S. 7-A (7) —Arbitration under S. 45 — Award filed — Objection by University to award — Proceedings are in conformity with S. 45. See Delhi University Act (1922), S. 7-A (7). AIR 1963 Punj 331 (FB).

——Art. 226 — Word "person" — If include Punjab University.

The word "person" occurring in Art. 226 of the Constitution includes the University of the Punjab which is a Corporation. That being so, the High Court has authority to issue mandamus to the University if the other conditions for that relief are present. 54 PLR 485 : ILR (1953) Punj 50 : AIR 1952 Punj 395 (398) (Pt D) (Prs 19, 21) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Grant of degree of Ph. D. by University — Petition for writ of mandamus against University to restrain it from conferring the degree —Petitioner's right not infringed — Writ of mandamus — Requirements for the issue of.

In order to maintain a writ for grant of mandamus the petitioner must show that there resides in him a right entitling him to compel the opposite party to act in a particular manner or to forbear from acting in a particular manner. In the absence of any such right the petition for the grant of mandamus cannot be allowed. The petitioner must show that his personal rights have in any way been infringed by the act of the opposite parties.

Hence, where the petitioner, who was a graduate of the University of Rajasthan, applied for a writ of mandamus to restrain the University from granting the degree of Ph. D. to a certain person:

Held, that the petition could not be entertained as the petitioner's right had in no way been infringed by the act of the University. ILR (1965) 15 Raj 50: 1965 Raj LW 53: AIR 1965 Raj 84 (86) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Writ of mandamus against University — Power of High Court to interfere with internal working of University —Candidate taking his examination on faith of certain regulations in force at time of examination — University has no power to alter or substitute regulations with retrospective effect to candidate's disadvantage — Candidate entitled to benefit under old regulation — Fact that he took supplementary examination under new regulation cannot disentitle him to such benefit — No estoppel against statute — AIR 1954 Assam 65 and AIR 1952 Orissa 1, Rel. on. Virendra Kapur v. University of Jodhpur, 1964 Raj LW 328 : ILR (1964) 14 Raj 463 : AIR 1964 Raj 161 (169 to 173) (Pt F) (Prs 32 to 34, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 49, 50) (FB).

——Arts. 226, 15 (1) and 29 (2) — Mandamus— University — Admission to public institution — Right of eligible persons — Nature of — Refusal on the basis of illegal instructions of University — Mandamus lies against the University and the authority refusing the admission.

In case of colleges maintained by the State so long as there are vacancies all persons who fulfil the requisite qualifications for admission have got a right to be admitted and not to be discriminated against or shut out from being admitted on arbitrary or illegal grounds. It is the duty of the Principal to run it in accordance with law and he cannot ignore the rules and the instructions by a mere refusal to admit a student at his sweet will. It is not for the University to which such colleges are affiliated to decide as to what students should be admitted to such colleges. When the University fails to carry out its duty according to law, it can be compelled to do so by a writ of mandamus. 1950 Raj LW 19, Rel. on.

Held, on facts that (i) the matter of admissions was not discretionary. Being the head of a public institution it was the duty of the Principal to act according to law in the matter of admission and he could not ignore the rules and refuse admission at his sweet will. The petition was maintainable. AIR 1953 All 194 and AIR 1959 All 224, Dist.; (ii) A writ of mandamus could lie against public bodies compelling them to carry out their duties. The University being a public body and not having followed the relevant law regarding admission, a writ could be issued against it. AIR 1954 Assam 65, Foll.; AIR 1956 Raj 158 and AIR 1959 Raj 260 (SB), Dist. 1962 Raj LW 500: ILR (1962) 12 Raj 277 : AIR 1963 Raj 172 (174, 175) (Pt A) (Prs 8, 9) (DB).

225 (h). Body of persons holding office.

——Art. 226 — Application against State Medical Faculty — Governing Body not made party — Impleading of State Medical Faculty by its name — Propriety — Duties of Faculty in deciding whether examination of candidates should be cancelled for using unfair means.

Where to an application under Art. 226 of the Constitution for a writ of mandamus directing withdrawal of the order of cancellation of the examination of the applicants for using unfair means the State Medical Faculty which was established by a resolution of the Government of Bengal, has been properly made a party, the Governing Body which passed the resolution for cancellation of the examination is also before the Court and the omission to make the Governing Body a distinct party is no obstacle to the success of the application. When the State Medical Faculty has been made a party, it is neither necessary nor proper that any part of it should be separately made a party. A command on the State Medical Faculty will, in law amount to a command on all its component parts —the Governing Body, the Fellows, the Members and the Licentiates.

Although the State Medical Faculty is not a body corporate, it is as such a "person" within the meaning of Art. 226 of the Constitution against whom a direction, order, or writ can issue.

The State Medical Faculty or the Governing Body, in performing its duty of deciding whether the candidates have been guilty of unfair means and what punishment should be inflicted, must not only act in good faith, but also fairly and reasonably and without violation of the principles of natural justice. Where the Faculty, gave no notice at all to the candidate of the charges against them and no opportunity whatsoever of showing that the allegation was not true or that even if the allegation was true, the punishment should not be what the Governing Body proposed, and apart from this there was no individual consideration of the different candidates, a writ of mandamus may issue to ensure that it performs its duties properly. ILR (1953) 2 Cal 107: 56 CWN 861: AIR 1953 Cal 212 (214, 215) (Pt C) (Prs 18, 30, 31, 32) (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 227 (4) — Power of High Court — Issue of writ of mandamus — Acts and proceedings of military authorities and tribunals— Interference by Civil Court — Acts without or in excess of jurisdiction or in violation of fundamental rights — Interference.

The general power conferred on the High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution has to be construed subject to the limitation imposed by Art. 227 (4) which prohibits the High Court from exercising any power of superintendence over any Court or Tribunal constituted by or under any law relating to the armed forces. Matters which are placed within the jurisdiction of the military tribunals or authorities constituted under the military law must be determined by such authorities themselves and their decisions cannot normally be reviewed or set aside by the Civil Courts, including the High Court; the civil Courts will not interfere with the administration of military law by the properly constituted tribunals acting within their jurisdiction or with the proceedings of a military Court of inquiry or with any action taken by the Army Council. If, however, there has been any violation of the fundamental rights guaranteed by the Constitution, and if the entire proceedings resulting in the orders passed by the military authorities are void ab initio, the parties aggrieved would certainly be entitled to the protection of their rights by means of a writ in the nature of mandamus. It cannot be said that the High Court has no jurisdiction to relieve against unauthorised or illegal acts of military authorities affecting the fundamental rights of persons in military service; the civil Courts can certainly interfere when the authority constituted under military law acts without or in excess of jurisdiction and does something which would be a wrong at common law. Where, however, the fundamental rights guaranteed by the Constitution have not in any way been violated or infringed by the proceedings or acts of the military authorities an application for the issue of a writ is clearly unsustainable and cannot be granted. 1951 KLT 385: AIR 1952 TC 7 (8) (Pt A) (Pr 3).

225 (i). Order merging in appellate order.

——Art. 226 — Writ against original authority after appeal — Order of Regional Transport authority merging in order of Appellate authority — Order of appellate authority maintained — Writ of mandamus directing Regional authority to rehear cannot be issued. AIR 1955 NUC (All) 3589.

226. Alternative remedy.

See Note 7.

227. Application for.

(a) Contents of.

(b) Joint application.

227. Application for.

——Art. 226 — Writ of mandamus, when issued.

There is no doubt that where a party, who has a legal right to the performance of a legal duty by another party, has no other specific remedy, the High Court will assist him by issuing under Art. 226 an order in the nature of mandamus in order to his obtaining such right. But the Court will not assist him unless he first shows that he has a clear and undisputable right and that justice cannot be done to him without a writ of mandamus being issued.

The object of Art. 226 being the enforcement of fundamental rights and other statutory rights and not the establishment of a legal right, the right of a petitioner to the performance of a statutable duty must be clear and complete.

If the High Court finds itself unable to decide on the rights of the parties and thinks they could be investigated more properly in a civil suit, no direction under Art. 226 can be issued. AIR 1952 SC 12, Foll.

The power under Art. 226 would not be exercised if the petitioner's right depended on facts which were disputed and on the legal effect of facts to be proved. AIR 1952 Madh B 105, Rel. on. ILR (1953) MB 393: AIR 1953 Madh Bha 165 (169, 170) (Pt A) (Pr 8) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Essentials.

There are four prerequisites essential to the issue of the writ of mandamus; (1) whether the petitioner has a clear and specific legal right to the relief demanded by him; (2) whether there is a duty imposed by law on the respondent; (3) whether such duty is of an imperative ministerial character involving no judgment or discretion on the part of the respondent; (4) whether the petitioner has any remedy, other than by way of mandamus for the enforcement of the right which has been denied to him. These are the questions, but only some of the questions, which are necessary to be decided in every application for mandamus. 60 Punj LR 425: (1958-59) 15 FJR 49: (1959) 1 Lab LJ 274: ILR (1958) Punj 2061: AIR 1959 Punj 75 (78) (Pt A) (Pr 7) (DB).

227 (a). Contents of.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Application for — Essentials.

Held, that where all the facts had been brought to the notice of the Court it could issue any direction having regard to the facts of the case under Art. 226 and therefore the failure on the part of the petitioner to specifically ask for the issue of a direction that the order should be quashed and a consequential mandamus should be issued directing the Returning Officer not to hold fresh elections was immaterial. Where the order itself had been placed before the Court by the opposite party and the Court came to the conclusion that order was without jurisdiction there was no bar to issuing a necessary direction quashing that order and a consequential mandamus. 1957 All WR (HC) 182: 1957 All LJ 938: AIR 1957 All 213 (215) (Pt B) (Pr 9).

——Arts. 32, 226 — Mandamus — False statement in application — This alone may be sufficient reason for throwing out application. (1957) 8 STC 105: AIR 1956 Cal 596 (599, 600) (Pt F) (Pr 13).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Writ of — Duty of applicant to make full disclosure — Failure — Effect.

A person who makes an ex parte application under Art. 226 of the Constitution for the issue of a writ of mandamus is under an obligation to the court to make full disclosure of all material facts within his knowledge and if he deliberately suppresses material facts then he disentitles himself to get any relief. (1917) 1 KB 486, AIR 1938 Cal 385, Rel. on. 56 Cal WN 302: AIR 1952 Cal 72 (72) (Pt A) (Pr 8).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Grounds — Apprehension of not having fair and impartial trial — Facts must be stated. ILR (1954) Madh Bha 440: Madh BLR 1954 Civil 140: Madh BLJ 1954 HCR 578: AIR 1954 Madh B 111 (113) (Pt C) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Right to apply for writ of mandamus.

Whether a person has a legal right to make an application for the issue of a writ of mandamus must depend upon the facts of each case and it would not be right to lay down a hard and fast rule enumerating the circumstances under which such a right can be said to exist. 32 Pat 592: 1953 BLJR 513: AIR 1953 Pat 370 (373) (Pt B) (Pr 13) (DB)

——Art. 226 — Merwar Land Revenue Act (1949), S. 231 — Occupation of land under S. 231 — Writ application — It must be shown that provisions of S. 231 have not been complied with — See Merwar Land Revenue Act (40 of 1949) S. 231. AIR 1953 Raj 173.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Issue of writ — Conditions.

A writ of mandamus is granted ordering that to be done which a statute requires to be done and the applicant for such a writ must show that there resides in him a legal right to the performance of a legal duty by the party against whom the mandamus is sought. Again, the writ of mandamus is normally a discretionary writ and should not be issued when there is a specific remedy which is convenient, adequate and effective. 1952 RLW 118: ILR (1951) 1 Raj 134.

227 (b). Joint application.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Writ of — Joint petition by two or more persons, against similar but separate orders — Maintainability — (Civil Procedure Code (1908) O. 1).

Two or more persons cannot join in a single petition for a writ of mandamus to enforce separate claims. There must be separate applications for separate writs, although the orders are similar in nature and involve a point of common interest. Principles embodied in O. 1, R. 1, Civil P. C. cannot be extended to such a case. The case, however, may be different where a common or class injury is done by some common order or orders. Even in cases where joint application is thus permissible the principle is that if it is found that even one of the applicants is disentitled to relief the whole application must fail. The general rule that there should be a separate petition for a separate writ is a rule of practical convenience warranted by the nature of the proceeding. AIR 1956 Mad 628, Relied on. AIR 1956 Cal 291, held obiter. 1957 An LT 189: (1957) 1 An WR 130: AIR 1957 Andh-Pra 88 (89, 90) (Pr 3).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus to compel Municipality to supply scheduled quantity of water — Joint application by several rate payers — Maintainablity — (Civil Procedure Code (1908), O. 1 (Gen.), O. 1, R. 1).

Where mandamus is sought by several rate-payers having different causes of action to compel a Municipality to supply scheduled quantity of water for domestic purposes, it would be sufficient to follow analogously the provisions of O. 1, Civil Procedure Code. 60 Cal WN 299: AIR 1956 Cal 291 (294, 295) (Pt D) (Pr 8).

228. Body of persons holding office.

See Note 225.

229. Certiorari and mandamus compared.

See also Note 183.

——Art. 226 — Certiorari and Mandamus — Writs of — Distinction.

A writ of certiorari is available for the removal of any judicial or quasi-judicial act of an inferior tribunal, whereas a writ of mandamus is issued to compel the performance of duties of a public nature. The condition that the act complained of should be a judicial act applies to the former relief and not to the latter. The division of the panchayat into wards and the conduct of elections are administrative acts of the Government but that itself is not a ground for rejecting a writ petition against Government. AIR 1960 Andh Pra 493 (494) (Pt A) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Writ of Certiorari and of Mandamus — Distinction — Prayer for alternative reliefs — Duty of Court — Petition for enforcing statutory duty against State Government — Maintainability. (1958) 1 Andh WR 480: ILR (1958) Andh Pra 466: AIR 1958 Andh Pra 458 (461) (Pt B) (Pr 8) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Writs of Mandamus and Certiorari — Distinction between pointed out. ILR (1955) 7 Assam 189: AIR 1955 Assam 163 (169, 170) (Pt D) (Pr 14) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Writs of mandamus and certiorari — When may be granted indicated. ILR (1955) 7 Assam 159: AIR 1955 Assam 163 (169, 170) (Pt E) (Pr 14) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus and Certiorari — When can issue — Pending proceedings.

Normally, a petitioner applying for writs of certiorari and mandamus must establish some material or pecuniary injury to him or the infringement of any legal right in his favour. But where, the question raised in the petition is a question of fundamental importance, going to the root of the matter, and affects the very jurisdiction of the authority to entertain or decide the lis before it, the matter can and ought to be decided by the High Court. 1957 Nag LJ 105.

——Art. 226 — Writs of — Mandamus and Certiorari, when can issue stated — Power of officer conditioned by limitation — Conditions not satisfied — Mandamus can issue — Requisition under Bombay Land Requisition Act of premises — Premises not premises to which the Act applies — Mandamus can issue — (Bombay Land Requisition Act 33 of 1948), S. 6. ('52) 54 Bom LR 681: AIR 1952 Bom 468 (471 to 474) (Pt B) (Prs 3, 5, 6, 8, 10) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Writ of mandamus and certiorari —Demand and refusal.

For the issue of a writ in the nature of mandamus, a demand for justice and its refusal is a condition precedent. In the case of a statutory body a demand of justice from such a statutory body would take the form of a letter or petition or something of that sort. In the case of a writ in the nature of certiorari prior demand of justice is not a condition precedent. If a quasi-judicial body exercises its powers beyond its jurisdiction or assumes jurisdiction wrongly, or there is an error on the face of the proceedings, any person affected can come up to the High Court and have the order quashed and/or set aside as a matter of right. 60 Cal WN 13: AIR 1956 Cal 490 (492) (Pt A) (Pr 4).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus and certiorari — Matters to be considered by High Court in application for writ of mandamus or certiorari, indicated. AIR 1952 Cal 808 (811, 812, 813, 814, 815) (Prs 13, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25).

——Art. 226 — Difference between writ of mandamus and writ of certiorari pointed out. — (1950) SCR 621, Foll. 1951-20 ITR 400: 56 Cal WN 232: AIR 1952 Cal 601 (603) (Pt D) (Prs 14, 15, 16) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Consent — Revocation — Consent validly given and suit instituted on basis of such consent — Consent cannot subsequently be revoked — Mandamus and not certiorari to issue restraining Collector or Advocate General from revoking consent. See Civil P. C. (1908), S. 92. AIR 1962 J. & K. 86.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus and certiorari — When available.

The exercise of power by the public authority should normally of course involve public duties. The mandamus is the form of a command issued to any public officer, corporation or authority or inferior tribunal compelling him or it to do or refrain from doing a thing which pertains to his office and is in the nature of a public duty. It will be available both against administrative and inferior tribunals. But Where a statutory authority or body is vested with judicial or quasi-judicial power it acts as a tribunal and the apporpriate process is certiorari. It serves to call for or remove the record or order from an inferior Court with a view to correct errors of jurisdiction the absence, excess or irregular exercise of it or errors of law apparent on the face of the record or order and this remedy in view of the later tendency of the legislatures to entrust more and more judicial or quasi-judicial power to authorities or bodies constituted as Tribunal, now extends to keep them within the bounds of the law. (1963) 2 Lab. LJ 304: AIR 1964 Mad 335 (346) (Pt D) (Pr 13).

——Art. 226 — Writ of mandamus and certiorari — Distinction pointed out. 22 Camp Cas (Ins) 33: ILR (1952) Punj 11: AIR 1952 Punj 9 (18) (Pt H) (Pr 60) (DB).

230. Contracts, rights relating to.

See also Note 29.

● ——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Rights relating to contract — Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950), S. 10 (2) (b) — Appointment of manager under S. 10 (2) (b) is contractual.

A writ of mandamus may be granted only in a case where there is a statutory duty imposed upon the officer concerned and there is a failure on the part of that officer to discharge that statutory obligation. The chief function of the writ is to compel the performance of public duties prescribed by statute and to keep the subordinate tribunals and officers exercising public functions within the limits of their jurisdictions, any duty or obligation falling upon a public servant out of a contract entered into by him as such public servant cannot be enforced by the machinery of a writ under Art. 226 of the Constitution. The appointment of a person as a Manager by the Custodian by virtue of his power under S. 10 (2) (b) of the Administration of Evacuee Property Act is contractual in nature and there is no statutory obligation as between latter and the former. Thus the former is not entitled to move the High Court for grant of a writ in the nature of mandamus under Art. 226 of the Constitution AIR 1936 P. C. 269 and AIR 1947 Cal 307, Approved. Lekhraj Sathramdas Lahani v. Shah, Deputy Custodian-cum-Managing Officer Bombay. (1965) 2 SC WR 885: (1966) 1 SCJ 24: AIR 1966 SC 334 (336, 337) (Pt C) (Pr 5).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Allegation of infringement of fundamental right — Dispute pertaining to contractual obligations — Dispute not capable of being resolved on affidavits — Court justified in refusing mandamus, although resort to alternative remedy was no bar. ILR (1963) 2 All 400: AIR 1964 All 236 (240, 242, 243) (Pt A) (Prs 11, 38, 45) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Issue of writ to enforce contractual right.

The power of the High Court to issue writ to 'any person' can only mean the power to issue such a writ to any person to whom, according to well-established principles, a writ lay. A writ may issue to an appropriate person for the enforcement of any of the rights conferred by Part III. But the words 'and for any other purpose' must mean for any other purpose for which any of the writs mentioned would, according to well-established principles, issue'. English and American Courts do not issue a writ or an order of mandamus in a case where the right which the petitioner wants to enforce by means of a writ is founded purely on a contract. The law in India on this point is not different from that prevailing in England and America. AIR 1960 All. 72 (80, 81) (Pt J) (Prs 24, 25, 26).

● ——Art. 226 — Applicability — Contractual rights — Enforcement of.

Where a contract is given by the Government to the petitioner which is subsequently cancelled and given over to another person, there is no discrimination because it is perfectly open to the Government, even as it is to a private party, to choose a person of their liking, to fulfil contracts which they wish to be performed. Similarly, a contract which is held from Government stands on no different footing from a contract held from a private party. The breach of the contract, if any, may entitle the person aggrieved to sue for damages or, in appropriate cases, even specific performance, but he cannot be granted any relief under Art. 226 of the Constitution on these facts which he can effectively seek by means of a suit. AIR 1959 SC 490 and AIR 1960 All 72, Rel. on. The High Court will not issue a writ of mandamus or any direction in the nature of mandamus for the enforcement of contractual rights as an obligation under a contract cannot be regarded as a statutory obligation. Parbananda Das v. Executive Engineer, Assam, (1960) 1 Assam LR 150: ILR (1960) 12 Assam 356: AIR 1961 Assam 101 (104, 105, 106) (Pt B) (Prs 11, 15) (FB).

● ——Art. 226 — Writ of mandamus — When issued — Enforcement of contractual rights.

Before a petitioner can get mandamus, he has to establish — (i) that a public officer has exercised his authority not in accordance with law and (ii) that the rules which he is alleged to have violated have statutory force.

Where the petitioner under Art. 226, in whose favour a contract was granted by the Government but was subsequently cancelled and given over to another party, attacks the validity of the contract given to the other party, he is, in effect, asking for a declaration that the contract in favour of the other party is illegal and this relief cannot be granted to the petitioner under Article 226. AIR 1953 Pat. 370 and AIR 1954 Pat 235 and AIR 1953 SC 309, Disting.

Held, further that it could not be said that there had been any failure to observe any public duty which could be enforced by means of a writ of mandamus by the High Court, under Article 226.

Per Deka, J., Contra. — The Government's order directing the Executive Engineer to cancel the work order in favour of the petitioner was vitiated and was ineffective in the eye of law, and accordingly, a writ of mandamus could issue according to the accepted principles of law. Parbananda Das v. Executive Engineer, Assam, ILR (1960) 12 Assam 356: (1960) 1 Assam LR 150: AIR 1961 Assam 101 (107, 108, 109, 110, 111, 113) (Pt C) (Prs 20, 28, 42) (FB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Writ of — Issue for enforcing contractual rights — Permissibility.

Contractual rights are not enforceable by writs of mandamus. The remedies are by way of suit.

The petitioners Calcutta Gas Company who were the managers of Oriental Gas Company of Calcutta applied under Art. 226 challenging the validity of Oriental Gas Company Act (15 of 1960):

Held, that as far as the petitioner's contract in respect of agency or managing agency was concerned it was not touched upon by the legislation. In the case of persons having contractual relation with the owner of property which is affected by legislation the agent or manager would not be able to enforce rights of the owner. There must be a legal right of the person applying and the duty which is sought to be enforced must also be a legal duty. In the present case the petitioner had no legal right under the legislation inasmuch as the petitioner's rights, if any, were not touched or affected by the legislation. Hence the petition under Art. 226 was not maintainable: AIR 1952 SC 12 and AIR 1958 SC 532 and AIR 1959 SC 490 and AIR 1959 SC 735 and (1825) 4 B. and C. 899 and (1897) 1 QB 498 Rel. on. 65 Cal WN 545: AIR 1961 Cal 267 (280, 281, 282) (Pt D) (Pr 36).

[Reversed in AIR 1962 SC 1044].

——Art. 226 — Mandamus to restrain performance of contractual obligation — Declaration under Art. 226 that contract is illegal.

A Mandamus does not lie to enforce or restrain the performance of a contractual obligation. AIR 1947 Cal 307, Rel. on.

Further, it is inappropriate to grant a declaration in an application under Article 226 that a particular contract is illegal and therefore unenforceable because it contains a provision for Begar or forced labour.

Even if an agreement had in fact been entered into under duress the remedy would be by an action and not under Art. 226 of the Constitution. AIR 1952 Cal 496 (498) (Pt A) (Pr 6).

——Art. 226 — Writ or order of mandamus — Conditions for issue stated — Mandamus to enforce contract cannot be issued. 87 CLJ 149: AIR 1952 Cal 315 (318, 319) (Pt A) (Prs 11 to 14).

——Art. 226—Mandamus — Writ compelling Government to carry out terms of contract — If can issue.

No writ of mandamus can be issued to compel the Government to carry out the terms of the contract for it is essential for the issue of a writ of mandamus that there ought to be a statutory duty imposed upon the authority against whom a writ of mandamus is sought and if such authority fails to carry out the statutory duty, then the Court would issue a writ of mandamus. ILR (1956) Hyd 630: AIR 1957 Hyd 19 (20) (Pt A) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Right founded purely on contract — Writ of mandamus cannot issue to enforce it. AIR 1960 All 72, Rel. on. 1964 Kash LJ 306: AIR 1965 J & K 39 (43) (Pt C) (Prs 24, 27) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Writ to restrain party from enforcing illegal contract cannot issue. AIR 1961 J and K 1 (2, 3) (Pt A) (Pr 6) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Writ of — Grounds — Ends of justice.

A writ of mandamus can only lie when the ends of justice so require. Where the petitioners had entered into the contract with open eyes and after full knowledge of the consequences they cannot subsequently turn round and ask the High Court for a declaration that the contract is void, for this would really amount to allowing the petitioners to take advantage of their own wrong. AIR 1961 J & K 1 (2) (Pt B) (Pr 6) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Contract — Writ to restrain authorities from recovering sum — Competency. See Jammu and Kashmir Land Revenue Act (12 of 1996, Smt.), S. 90. AIR 1961 J and K 1 (DB).

——Art. 226— Mandamus — Writ of, will not issue to enforce contractual obligation — Writ cannot be used as alternative mode of redress. AIR 1960 J and K 12 (14) (Pt B) (Pr 9).

——Art. 226— Mandamus to compel Government to enter into contract with third party will not issue. 1959 Ker LJ 197: 1959 Ker LR 281: 1959 Ker LT 580.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Contractual rights — Enforcement of.

Mandamus or an order in the nature of mandamus will not be issued for the enforcement of a private right. Therefore, it cannot be issued for enforcing a right arising out of a contract. AIR 1947 Cal 307 and 87 Cal LJ 147, Rel. on. ILR (1953) MB 24: AIR 1953 Madh B 54 (55) (Pt A) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Arts. 226, 227 — Mandamus — Contractual rights — Enforcement or prevention of breach of — Mining lease under Mineral Concession Rules, 1960 — Direction cannot be issued under Art. 226 or 227 for enforcing rights under the lease or preventing a breach thereof — C. P. Code (1908), S. 9. AIR 1962 SC 1044 and AIR 1954 SC 447 and AIR 1959 SC 735, Dist. 1963 MPLJ 701: 1963 Jab LJ 783: AIR 1964 Madh Pra 42 (44) (Prs 7, 9) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Writ of —Nature of duty to be enforced — Contractual obligations — Enforcing managing agency rights conferred under Memorandum and Articles of Association — Specific Relief Act, S. 45, Proviso (b) — (Companies Act (1956), Ss. 36 and 291).

It is clear from S. 45 (b) that the duty imposed on the person, Corporation or Court must be a duty imposed by any statute or law for the time being in force and that an order of mandamus will be granted only for ordering that to be done which a statute or rule of law requires to be done, and not for the enforcement of contractual obligations.

The duty sought to be enforced by the petitioners though embodied in the memorandum and articles of the company having regard to Ss. 36 and 291, Companies Act, cannot be placed on a higher footing than a contractual obligation, of which the articles and the memorandum are only the documented evidence, and a mandamus does not lie to enforce the contractual obligation.

Secondly, in denying the petitioner's right as managing agents, there is no question of any public duty involved, the matter being purely a private right between the petitioner on the one hand and the company on the other based upon contractual relations which were incorporated in the Memorandum and the Articles of Association. (1956) 26 Com Cas 431 : ILR (1957) Mad 383 : 70 Mad LW 28 : (1957) 1 Mad LJ 254 : AIR 1957 Mad 309 (314 to 316) (Pt C) (Prs 9, 10, 17) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Corporations.

Duties arising out of private contractual relations cannot be enforced by mandamus. See Specific Relief Act (1877), S. 45. AIR 1955 NUC (Mad) 3915.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus, writ of — Cannot be issued to enforce contractual obligation. (1954) 1 MLJ 429: ILR (1954) Mad 754: 1954 Mad WN 27: AIR 1954 Mad 549 (551) (Pt A) (Prs 5, 6, 8) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Issue of, to enforce contract — (Bihar and Orissa Excise Act (II of 1915), Ss. 34, 35).

It is well settled that a right that accrues under a contract cannot be the subject of mandamus. A writ of mandamus cannot be issued to carry out the terms of a contract.

Thus, where the petitioners bid at an auction of license of certain liquor shop with the full knowledge of its terms and voluntarily accept a provisional settlement, they have no right to invoke the jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226, as the alleged rights of the petitioners are merely contractual. 19 Cut LT 501 : AIR 1954 Orissa 74 (75) (Pt B) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Writ of mandamus when can be issued.

A party who has entered into an agreement with another party and is illegally dispossessed by the other in breach of the agreement cannot ask the High Court for a writ of mandamus as the aggrieved party can get an effectual and adequate remedy by an ordinary action in the Civil Court. AIR 1951 Pat 231 (241) (Pt B) (Pr 26) (DB).

231. Contractual duty.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Contract — Offer and acceptance — Tender notice calling for quotations — Mere offer of quotations does not create contract — Rights and duties of persons calling for quotations — Distinction between Government and private person — Acceptance of lowest quotations — Not obligatory — Refusal by Government to accept lowest quotations —Writ petition — Maintainability. See Contract Act (1872), S. 2 (a). AIR 1962 Manipur 47.

232. Decree, mandamus to enforce.

——Art. 226— Writ of mandamus — Writ cannot be issued for execution of decree — Specific Relief Act (1877), S. 45. ILR (1952) Madh Bha 231 : AIR 1950 Madh B 46 (53) (Pt K) (Pr 15) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus —Execution of decree or order — Writ cannot be issued for the purpose — Assessment of tax set aside — Absence of provision in taxation rules for refund — Direction for refund cannot be made — Remedy is by suit — Indore Industrial Tax Rules (1927), R. 8-A (2). AIR 1959 SC 135 and AIR 1959 SC 149, Rel. on. 1961 MPC 375: 1961 MPLJ 751: 1961 Jab LJ 999 : ILR (1962) Madh Pra 48 : AIR 1962 Madh Pra 10 (11, 12) (Prs 3, 4, 5, 6) (DB).

233. Defined.

(a). Specific Relief Act (1877), S. 45, powers under.

(b) Principles applicable.

233. Defined.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — When cannot be issued.

A writ of mandamus is issued only for directing a person or authority to do a certain thing and not to restrain him from doing it. 1965 All LJ 576.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Nature of writ— Mandamus to quash order of requisition under S. 6 (4), Bombay Land Acquisition Act — (Bombay Land Requisition Act (XXXIII of 1948), S. 6 (4)).

The Court issues a writ of mandamus in order to compel an authority to act according to the mandate of the Legislature. But mandamus can only function and operate within the law. Its main function is to see that law is observed. Therefore, where the Legislature has laid down certain provisions, if those provisions are complied with, then the assistance of the High Court cannot be sought because the citizen may feel a grievance that hardship is caused to him or that a better procedure should have been substituted in place of the one that the Legislature has thought fit to incorporate in the legislation.

The Court in exercising its jurisdiction under Art. 226 and issuing a writ of mandamus does not alter the law in order to remove the grievances. Its function is to enforce the law, whatever the nature or character of the law might be, and when a party comes to the High Court under Art. 226, it requires the assistance of the Court to carry out the provisions of the law on the assumption that those provisions are valid provisions and effect must be given to those provisions.

Therefore, the High Court cannot interfere by issuing a writ of mandamus under Art. 226 with a declaration made by a competent authority under S. 6 (4), Land Requisition Act that certain premises were vacant or had become vacant.

No question of mandamus can possibly arise where the Legislature has chosen to make the decision of a certain authority final and conclusive. AIR 1951 Bom 303, Approved: AIR 1954 SC 202 : Expl. and Disting. Kaikhusroo Phirozshah Doctor v. State of Bombay, ILR (1955) Bom 69 : 57 Bom LR 24: AIR 1955 Bom 220 (223) (Pt B) (Prs 4, 5) (FB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Nature of writ — When will issue.

A writ of mandamus is a high prerogative writ, and by it the Court issues a command in order to remedy, a grave error or to set right in justice. The Court would never issue such a command unless it is certain that the command would be respected and carried out. ILR (1952) Bom 785: 54 Bom LR 137: AIR 1952 Bom 277 (281) (Pt C) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Writ of mandamus — Condition for its issue.

The existence of a legal right or obligation is the foundation of every writ of mandamus. The applicant for an order of mandamus must show that there resides in him a legal right to the performance of a legal duty by the party against whom the mandamus is sought. Jyoti Prokash Mitter v. Hon'ble Mr. Justice H. K. Bose, Chief Justice of High Court, Calcutta, 67 Cal WN 662: AIR 1963 Cal 483 (492) (Pt H) (Pr 49) (SB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Writ of — Object of, stated — Cannot rectify absence of remedy under common law — Specific Relief Act, S. 45. (1956) 26 Com Cas 431: 70 Mad LW 28: (1957) 1 Mad LJ 254: ILR (1957) Mad 383: AIR 1957 Mad 309 (317) (Pt F) (Pr 21) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Nature and scope of writ.

An order of mandamus is in form, a command directed to some inferior Court, tribunal or board or to some corporation or person requiring the performance of a particular duty therein specified, which duty results from the official station of the party to whom the writ is directed or from operation of law. It compels a tribunal to exercise a jurisdiction which it possesses but declines to exercise. ILR (1957) Punj 152: 59 Punj. LR 272: AIR 1958 Punj. 168 (170) (Pt A) (Pr 6) (DB).

233 (a). Specific Relief Act (1877), S. 45, powers under.

——Art. 226 — Scope — S. 45, Specific Relief Act — Difference — Principles under English law— Applicability.

Article 226 of the Constitution is wider in scope than S. 45, Specific Relief Act and empowers the High Court to issue a writ of mandamus for the enforcement of any of the fundamental rights conferred by Part III "and for any other purpose" that is to say, for the enforcement of ordinary legal rights and duties. The High Courts have to keep the broad and fundamental principles that regulate the exercise of the jurisdiction in the matter of granting writs under the English law. ILR (1956) Andh Pra 480: 1956 Andhra WR 711: AIR 1957 A. P. 833 (835, 836) (Pt D) (Prs 6, 8) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Scope — (Specific Relief Act (1877), S. 45).

Article 226 is certainly much wider in its scope and amplitude than S. 45 of the Specific Relief Act. 58 Cal WN 54: ILR (1954) 6 Assam 528: AIR 1954 Assam 65 (68, 69) (Pt F) (Pr 14) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Power under — Not limited by Ss. 45, 46, Specific Relief Act — (Specific Relief Act (1877), Ss. 45, 46, 50). AIR 1955 NUC (Cal) 2073.

●——Art. 226 — Application under — Conditions appertaining to application under S. 45 of Specific Relief Act — If apply.

Article 226 of the Constitution has conferred almost unlimited powers on the High Court to make suitable orders or to give suitable directions which it can exercise in appropriate cases. The conditions appertaining to an application under S. 45 of the Specific Relief Act would not be strictly applicable to an application under that Article. Chairman, Budge Budge Municipality v. Mangru Mia, 57 CWN 25: AIR 1953 Cal 433 (441, 446) (Pt G) (Prs 28, 60) (SB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Writ for — English law — Specific Relief Act (1877) S. 45.

Before the Constitution the High Courts here could not issue any writ of mandamus after the Specific Relief Act of 1877 came into force. But the High Courts of Calcutta, Madras, Bombay and Rangoon could make orders under S. 45 of that Act for the enforecment of public duties. But in dealing with an application under S. 45 of the Specific Relief Act, the principles applicable to a writ of mandamus were generally followed. S. 45 of the Specific Relief Act has not been repealed by Art. 226 of the Constitution. That Article has enlarged the jurisdiction of these Courts for the issue of the writs mentioned in that Article. Our Constitution has adopted the nomenclature of the English writs and the English Law relating to these writs must govern the issue of the writs herein so far as they are not opposed to our Constitution. 1951-20 ITR 400: 56 Cal WN 232: AIR 1952 Cal 601 (602, 603) (Pt B) (Prs 9, 10) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus, writ of — English principles of prerogative writ of Mandamus as embodied in Ss. 45 and 46, Specific Relief Act, should be followed in applications under Art. 226 — Petition not verified by affidavit of petitioner himself but by Tadbirkar of petitioner — Petition cannot be entertained — AIR 1951 Cal 396 and AIR 1947 Cal 307 Rel. on. 56 Cal WN 302: AIR 1952 Cal 72 (73) (Pt B) (Pr 11).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Administrative direction — Enforcement by writ.

An administrative direction which creates a duty that is to be observed, can be enforced by Courts under S. 45, Specific Relief Act. The position is not different under Art. 226 of the Constitution, for rules regarding mandamus under S. 45 should be generally followed for mandamus under Art. 226: ILR 28 Cal 479 and AIR 1952 SC 16, Rel. on. 1960 Ker LJ 498: (1960) 1 Ker LR 610: 1960 Ker LT 543: ILR (1960) Ker 1006: AIR 1961 Ker 23 (25) (Pt B) (Pr 6) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Jurisdiction, nature of — Refusal to make reference under S. 18, Land Acquisition Act — (Specific Relief Act (1877), S. 45) — (Land Acquisition Act (1894), S. 18).

The jurisdiction under S. 45 of the Specific Relief Act is a special jurisdiction conferred on the High Courts of Calcutta, Madras and Bombay. But the significance of such a special jurisdiction conferred on these three High Courts disappeared with the passing of the Indian Constitution. The power to issue a writ of mandamus is now possessed by all the High Courts in India by virtue of Art. 226 of the Constitution and a party aggrieved by a Land Acquisition Officer's wrongful refusal to make a reference under section 18 of Land Acquisition Act can invoke the aid of this Article and seek an order to compel him to make a reference. ILR (1958) Ker 854: 1958 Ker LJ 1012: 1958 Ker LT 791: AIR 1959 Ker 136 (141) (Pt B) (Pr 6) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Powers of High Court — Specific Relief Act (1877), Ss. 45 and 50.

Though S. 50, Specific Relief Act, lays down that nothing in the chapter would affect the power conferred on a High Court by Clause 1 of Art. 226 of the Constitution, and though as a first impression, it would appear as if the terms of Art. 226 are of much wider import and give almost unlimited power to issue a writ of mandamus against any person and under any circumstances and for any purpose whatever, it is now well established that the High Court can issue a writ of prohibition or mandamus only in accordance with the established principles and which are formulated in S. 45 of the Specific Relief Act. (1956) 26 Com. Cas. 431: ILR (1957) Mad 383: 70 Mad LW 28: (1957) 1 Mad LJ 254: AIR 1957 Mad 309 (314) (Pt B) (Pr 8) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Principles of mandamus — See Specific Relief Act (1877), S. 45. AIR 1955 NUC (Mad) 3915.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — (Specific Relief Act (1877), S. 45).

A petitioner applying for issue of a writ of mandamus under Art. 226 must be able to bring his case within the principles underlying S. 45 of the Specific Relief Act. Case-law discussed. ILR (1953) Punj 472: AIR 1953 Punj 137 (144) (Pt E) (Pr 27) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Principles for issue of writs.

Per Soni J.: S. 45 Specific Relief Act lays down good conditions to be fulfilled before a writ can be issued even under the Constitution of India, Art. 226 has not varied in any manner the principles under which the writs were issued. 22 Comp Cas (Ins) 33: ILR (1952) Punj 11: AIR 1952 Punj 9 (30) (Pt M) (Pr 127) (DB).

233 (b). Principles applicable.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Nature of writ — Principles governing the issue of.

Mandamus is a writ which compels a person to perform a duty the law has imposed on him and it can be used to order things to be done as well as not to be done. The issue of the writ is entirely discretionary with the Court, and this being so, it is open to a Court to refuse it in cases where, for example, a Court of equity would in the exercise of a sound discretion refuse to lend its protection. Essentially the purpose for which a mandamus exists is to ensure that justice is done in all cases where there is specific legal right, and no specific legal remedy exists. For the enforcement of such rights, it is issued as a rule only in those cases where there is no legal remedy of an equally convenient, beneficent and effectual nature. Asiatic Engineering Co. v. Achhru Ram, 1951 ALJ 576: ILR (1952) 2 All. 838: AIR 1951 All 746 (768) (Pr 56) (FB).

——Art. 226 — Before mandamus can issue petitioner must show that he has a legal right to the performance of a legal duty by the party against whom the mandamus is sought. AIR 1954 Assam 74 (75) (Pt A) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus, writ of — When can be issued — Duty of High Court.

A writ of mandamus is ordinarily issued to a public officer in order to compel him to discharge his statutory obligations, and before a Court would issue such a writ it must ascertain what the statutory obligations of the public officer are and whether he has failed to discharge those obligations.

If the High Court finds that the public officer has discharged its duty under the statute and what the court is called upon to do upon a petition for writ of mandamus is to substitute its own decision for that of the officer; it will refuse to issue the writ. A petition for mandamus does not constitute the Court which issues the writ a Court of appeal from the decision of the public officer against whom the writ is intended to be directed. 54 Bom LR 137: ILR (1952) Bom 785: AIR 1952 Bom 277 (280, 281) (Pt B) (Pr 6) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Foundation for — Departmental instructions — Suspension under — Specific order — Necessity for — Post and Telegraphs Manual, Vol. II, Appendix 3, Section IV.

By mandamus the Court will enforce statutory rules or rules which have the force of a statute, mere departmental instructions cannot be the foundation for the issue of mandamus.

The rules contained in the general regulations of Vol. II of the Posts and Telegraphs Manual are not statutory rules which have the force of a statute and the position under the rules which are found in section IV in Appendix 3 of Vol. II, is that a Government servant against whom proceedings have been taken for arrest for a debt or for a criminal charge, is automatically considered to be under suspension, during the time he is detained in custody or is undergoing imprisonment. But if he is to be suspended for a period during which he is not in custody or undergoing imprisonment, it is necessary to make a specific order to the effect, "during the period he is actually detained in custody or imprisoned."

Where a person was suspended inasmuch as he was arrested and the memorandum directing his suspension was on the footing that he was arrested by virtue of certain charges having been preferred against him:

Held, that the order could not be taken to be a specific order which directed his suspension during a time when he was not detained in custody or imprisoned. A specific order was therefore necessary for a suspension during the period when he was not actually detained in custody or imprisoned. There was no such order. Therefore he could not be taken to be under suspension after the period of his detention in custody or imprisonment. ILR (1956) 1 Cal 255: 58 Cal WN 656: AIR 1955 Cal 365 (365, 366) (Prs 2, 3).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Writ to do impossible act — Issue of.

It is one of the fundamental principles of issuing a writ of mandamus that a public officer should not be commanded to do something which it is impossible for him to perform. ILR (1955) 2 Cal 470.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus, writ of — Conditions for issue of, stated. ILR (1953) Myd. 665: AIR 1954 Hyd 25 (27, 28) (Pt C) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Foundation for writ of mandamus is existence of a legal right in the petitioner — Petition for writ is not entertained merely on the ground that a public authority had a statutory or public duty to perform though the petitioner had no specific right in that behalf — AIR 1962 SC 1210, (1897) 1 QBD 498 (500-1), (1907) 2 KB 764 and AIR 1951 SC 46 (52), Rel. 1965 MPLJ (Notes) 111.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Writ of — Nature and scope — Conditions for issue — Legal remedy available but not immediately or at the moment — Risk of loss incapable of being compensated in money — Jurisdiction to issue writ.

A writ of mandamus is a most extensive remedial measure. Its purpose is to supply defects of justice and it will issue to the end that justice may be done in all cases where there is a specific legal right and no specific legal remedy for enforcing such right, and it may issue in cases where, although there is an alternative legal remedy, yet such mode or redress is less convenient, beneficial and effectual.

Where the lessees of certain coal mines were served with notice by the State Government to quit and deliver vacant possession within a fortnight, after cancelling the mining leases granted to them, it cannot be said that they have been left an opportunity to do necessary preliminaries that they have to do before they can sue the Government in a competent civil Court immediately or at the moment. The alternative of vacating the mines will cause them irreparable loss and irremediable loss of possession of the mining leases involving huge waste of labour, machinery and other resources of equipments of immense value hardly capable of being remedied by money compensation in case of success in the long run in establishing their right to remain in possession. In the circumstances therefore, the Court issued a writ against the Government directing them till three months or one week after the institution of a regular suit, to refrain from disturbing the applicants' (lessees') possession over the mining areas, and to permit the applicants to operate the mines in the usual manner subject to certain conditions as to the payment of rents and royalties, prevenion of devastation or damage, observance of rules and regulations and indemnity to make good the loss to Government in case Government succeeded in the long run, as well as the giving of security. I. A. Supp. Vol. 10 (17). Ref. ILR (1951) Cut 398.

[Reversed in AIR 1952 SC 12].

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Nature of remedy — Writ to restrain action by Government.

Mandamus is a positive or remedial process, not a negative or preventive one. It is not the province of mandamus to prohibit the passing of an order or to review one which has already been passed, or to undo an act which has already been performed, or to revise action which has already been taken, or to restrain or prevent an improper interference with the rights of petitioners. It is a coercive and not a corrective writ. It cannot lie to restrain action and cannot compel the State Government to recall an order of reference such as of an industrial dispute which has already been made by it in exercise of the powers conferred by law. 60 Punj LR 425 : (1958-59) 15 FJR 49: (1959) 1 Lab LJ 274: ILR (1958) Punj 2061: AIR 1959 Punj 75 (80) (Pt F) (Pr 15) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Who can apply for.

A writ of mandamus is controlled by equitable principles and can be issued only in favour of a person who comes into Court with clean hands and who is not guilty of fraud or bad faith in respect of the matters in controversy between the parties. 59 Punj LR 259 : ILR (1957) Punj 168: AIR 1957 Punj 220 (221) (Pt A) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus.

Where an act is specially enjoined by law, the manner of performance of which involves judicial action, mandamus will lie to compel performance of the act but not to compel performance in any particular manner. In other words, the office of mandamus is to compel the exercise of judicial action not to determine in advance what the action shall be. (Principles under which a writ of mandamus is issued stated). 55 Punj LR 304: ILR (1954) Punj 225: AIR 1953 Punj 225 (226) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus writs — When to issue.

A writ of mandamus can be issued only when an authority under an obligation to perform a legal duty fails to perform it. Mandamus does not lie in a case where the authority has functioned and the only criticism is that the order passed is unsustainable on the merits. What the Court can do is only to direct the authorities to do their duty if they have declined to do it. It is beyond the competence of the Court to direct the authorities to do the duty in a particular manner as in that case the Court would be appropriating to itself the jurisdiction of the authorities which the law does not allow. 1953 Ker LT 170 : ILR (1953) TC 52 : AIR 1954 Trav-Co 114 (115) (Pr 4).

234. Demand and refusal of relief.

See also Note 36.

(a) Absence of, if absolute bar to application.

(b) Implied.

(c) Proof of.

234. Demand and refusal of relief.

See also Note 36.

——Art. 226 — Administrative order — Before a writ of mandamus is issued the High Court must be satisfied that the petitioner approached the proper authorities for the redress of his grievance. AIR 1958 SC 1018, Rel. on. AIR 1961 All 92 (93) (Pt C) (Pr 8).

——Art. 226 — Powers of High Court — No prior demand by petitioner for relief — If bar to issue of writ.

The requirement of a demand by a person who seeks the issue of a writ of mandamus is necessary where that person seeks to compel a public authority or a public body to perform its duties under the statute. But where what the petitioner is seeking is not a demand for the performance of a duty but the issue of an appropriate writ, order or direction restraining a public body like a municipal corporation from doing an act which according to him, is in contravention of the statute, what the petitioner is seeking is not a writ of mandamus. If the Court comes to the conclusion that the petitioner is entitled to have his grievance removed, then it has the power to issue an appropriate writ or order though it may not strictly be a writ of mandamus. AIR 1950 SC 163, Rel. on. 1959 Nag LJ 263 : 61 Bom LR 1299: ILR (1959) Bom 1736: AIR 1959 Bom 458 (459, 460) (Pt B) (Prs 6, 8) (DB).

[Reversed on another point in AIR 1963 SC 897.]

●——Art. 226 — Demand and refusal of justice — If condition precedent to order being made.

The Court should of its own motion put limitations upon the wide powers conferred upon it under Art. 226 of the Constitution. While in a case of urgency, where an immediate order may be necessary, the Court may not insist upon conditions similar to those laid down in S. 46, Specific Relief Act, namely, a demand for justice and its denial before an order can be made, in ordinary cases the Court must insist upon compliance with those conditions. While the Court must be anxious to protect the fundamental rights of the citizens, it should also give an opportunity to Government to comply with the requirements made by citizens before it is dragged to Court. 52 Bom LR 544, Ref. Nusserwanji Balsara v. State of Bombay, ILR (1951) Bom 17 : 52 Cr LJ 80: 52 Bom LR 799: AIR 1951 Bom 210 (225, 226) (Pt P) (Pr 28) (FB).

[Partly Reversed in AIR 1951 SC 318.]

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — For issue of mandamus a demand for justice and its refusal is a condition precedent. In the case of a statutory body a demand of justice from such a statutory body would take the form of a letter or petition or something of the sort. 60 Cal WN 13: AIR 1956 Cal 490 (492) (Pt A) (Pr 4).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Demand for justice.

Where the authority which can amend the electoral roll is the registering authority there must be demand of justice from the registering authority. AIR 1956 Cal 456 (458) (Pt D) (Pr 6).

——Art. 226 — Demand of justice and failure.

Where issue of a writ in the nature of mandamus is asked for, there must be an averment of a demand of justice having been made and its refusal. AIR 1951 Cal 396; AIR 1952 Cal 601, Rel. on. AIR 1953 Cal 756 (756) (Pt A) (Pr 3).

——Art. 226 — Writ of mandamus — Requirements.

A demand for performance of a legal duty and its refusal is ordinarily a condition precedent to the maintainability of a petition for a writ of mandamus. AIR 1951 Him Pra 36 (40, 41) (Pt C) (Prs 11, 13).

——Art. 226 (1) — Writ of mandamus — Conditions for issue.

In order that a writ of mandamus may issue there must be a legal and specific right in the applicant which can be enforced and there must be a deprivation of that right and ordinarily this writ will not be issued where there exists an alternative remedy equally sufficient and adequate. There must also be the possibility of effective enforcement of the writ and a sufficient demand to perform the act sought to be enforced and non-compliance thereof should also be proved before a prayer for writ of mandamus can be entertained. AIR 1955 Manipur 49 (53) (Pt B) (Pr 11).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus, when can be issued— Previous demand and refusal necessary.

An application for mandamus must always be preceded by a demand and a refusal. Where there was no demand by the servant that he should either be declared as suitable for employment in a quasi-permanent capacity or that his case for employment in a quasi-permanent capacity should be considered under the first instruction of the instructions regulating the declaration to be made under R. 3 (ii) of the Central Civil Services (Temporary Service) Rules (1949), the application for mandamus does not lie, and cannot, therefore, be considered. ILR (1961) Mys 1129.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus, writ of, requires demand and refusal — In the absence of proof of this, writ of mandamus will not lie. AIR 1951 Cal 396, Rel. on. 55 Punj LR 279: ILR (1953) Punj 279: AIR 1953 Punj 30 (33) (Pt B) (Pr 24) (DB).

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1963 Punj 9.]

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — There must have been a definite demand and a definite refusal before a writ of mandamus can be granted. 54 Pun LR 236: AIR 1952 Punj 351 (353) (Pt C) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Writ of mandamus — Demand of performance of duty and its refusal should precede. AIR 1955 Tripura 33 (35) (Pt B) (Prs 7, 9).

234 (a). Absence of, if absolute bar to application.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Demand and refusal of relief — Circumstances rendering formal demand impossible — Petition maintainable. 67 Cal WN 460: AIR 1963 Cal 565 (569, 570) (Pt B) (Prs 15, 16).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Demand and refusal of relief — Necessity — Petition asking for writ in the nature of mandamus against Municipal Corporation — No demand in writing for justice upon Corporation made — Petition must fail in limine. 65 Cal WN 339: AIR 1961 Cal 389 (391, 392) (Pt B) (Pr 1).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Conditions — Demand for justice — Absence of — When fatal. 64 Cal WN 134: ILR (1960) 2 Cal 572: AIR 1960 Cal 102 (112) (Pt D) (Pr 24).

——Arts. 226, 310 and 311 — Mandamus — Issue of writ — Termination of service of Government servant — Demand for justice is essential condition. (1959) 1 Lab LJ 141: 62 Cal WN 352: AIR 1958 Cal 654 (655) (Pt A) (Prs 6, 7).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Demand of relief — Necessity — Form of demand.

The rule requiring that a demand for justice should be made before a party moves the Court for a writ of mandamus is to ensure that the respondent got an opportunity of knowing what was required of him to do and for deciding whether he would do it of his own motion without being compelled by the Court. It is no objection to the application for a writ that no formal demand had been made. ILR (1959) 1 Cal 91: AIR 1958 Cal 219 (221, 222) (Pt A) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Demand of relief — Breach of public duties — Where there has been a breach of a public duty on the part of State or a Public Officer, affecting, by its consequence, the general interests of the public and where such duty is one imposed by a statute, it is not necessary that a demand for justice should be made before the Court is moved for relief against the breach by way of a writ of mandamus. If the performance of the duty sought to be enforced is of such a character that it cannot be expected to be performed unless it is demanded, a demand is essential; and so also is a demand essential where the proper mode of performance is doubtful and, therefore, a demand specifying the proper mode is required before mandamus can be granted. ILR (1959) 1 Cal 91: AIR 1958 Cal 219 (222, 223) (Pt B) (Prs 9, 14) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Petition for — Absence of demand for justice and denial thereof— Effect.

In a petition for mandamus the petitioner must state his rights in the matter in question, his demand for justice and the denial thereof is not merely a technical point but a point of substance. The idea underlying the making of demand is that the authorities may have an opportunity of redressing the wrong. AIR 1952 Cal 601 and AIR 1952 SC 16, Rel. on

Held, on facts that in absence of any valid excuse for not complying with this salutary rule of law the petition was not maintainable. 60 Cal WN 917: (1957) 1 Lab LJ 69: AIR 1956 Cal 532 (535) (Pt A) (Prs 9, 11).

——Art. 226 — Issue of writ of mandamus.

Before a writ of mandamus can issue it must be shown that there is a distinct demand of that which the party seeking the mandamus desires to enforce and that such demand was met by a refusal. This is not merely a technical point but a point of substance. AIR 1952 Cal 601, Rel. on.

Where there is no specific pleading or any evidence to show that any such demand was made and the demand was refused, no relief can be granted to the petitioner by the issue of a writ of mandamus. AIR 1953 Cal 581 (583) (Pt B) (Prs 9, 10).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Writ for — When may be issued.

The petitioner was the Manager and Director of a company. He was getting a certain amount of salary and commission. He was assessed to income-tax and super-tax. The Income-tax Officer under Section 40 (2) of the Income-tax Act forwarded to the Collector a certificate under his signature specifying the amount of arrears due from the petitioner. The Collector proceeded to recover from the petitioner the amount specified in the certificate and certificate proceedings under the Public Demands Recovery Act were taken. Pending these proceedings on the 18th March 1949 the Income-tax Officer issued notice under S. 46 (5-A) of the Income-tax Act.

By issuing notice under this section the Income-tax Officer effectually stopped payment by the Company to the petitioner. In these circumstances the petitioner made an application to the Certificate Officer for allowing the petitioner to pay the amount due by monthly instalments. The instalment order was made without giving a hearing to the Income-Tax Officer. The petitioner's advocate informed the Income-tax Officer that the Certificate Officer had granted instalments to his client and requested him to withdraw all notices under S. 46 (5-A). The petitioner then askd for issue of a writ of mandamus or a writ of a like nature, of an order directing the Income-tax Officer to show cause why the order dated the 18th March 1949 should not be set aside.

Held, that the notice under section 46 (5-A) of the Income-tax Act was not a judicial or quasi-judicial act. It was an administrative act. Therefore, if the circumstances warranted it the proper writ would be a writ of mandamus.

However in a petition for mandamus the petitioner must state his rights in the matter in question, his demand of justice and the denial thereof. In this case the petitioner never asked the Income-tax Officer to do what he prayed for in the petition for mandamus. His demand was to withdraw the notice under S. 46 (5A). It was not to accept payment by instalments. There was no previous demand or refusal of the right which the petitioner sought to enforce in the High Court.

This was not merely a technical point but was a point of substance which must be taken into consideration when the Court issues a writ of mandamus. It would not be consistent with justice in circumstances of this case to issue the writ of mandamus. The granting of this writ is a matter for discretion with the Court and the Court must take into consideration all the circumstances of the case before it exercises its discretion. Therefore the Income-tax Officer should not be required to amend or modify the notice under S. 46 (5A) or to accept payment of the arrears due from the petitioner by instalments. 1951-20 ITR 400: 56 Cal WN 232: AIR 1952 Cal 601 (605, 606) (Pt A) (Prs 40, 41, 44, 45) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus, writ of — Petition not clearly setting out that there was any demand or refusal of the relief asked for before application for mandamus was made — Petition cannot be sustained. 56 Cal WN 302: AIR 1952 Cal 72 (73) (Pt D) (Pr 14).

——Art. 226 — Application under Art. 226 for Issue of writ of mandamus — Absence of allegation of demand of justice and its refusal in petition is fatal to its maintainability. AIR 1951 Cal 396, Foll. ('51) 55 Cal WN 583: (1951) 2 STC 111.

——Art. 226 — Writ of mandamus — Issue of — Failure to demand justice — Specific Relief Act (1877), S. 45.

Where the petitioner, being aggrieved by the order of the Health Minister of the State moved the High Court for a writ of mandamus without first approaching the Health Minister for a demand of justice and contending that in view of the stubborn attitude of the Health Minister it was meaningless to approach him for justice and that the act of the petitioner in asking the Health Minister to give him an opportunity of being heard by counsel was itself a demand of justice, Held, negativing the contentions, that the petitioner having failed to fulfil the essential requirement of a demand of justice, the petition for the issue of a writ of mandamus was not maintainable. ILR (1952) Madh Bha 231: AIR 1950 Madh B 46 (52) (Pt H) (Pr 14) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Demand for redress — If condition precedent.

Demand is not an absolute legal necessity before a petition for a writ under Art. 226 can be entertained. AIR 1959 Manipur 1 (8) (Pt C) (Pr 39).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Issue of writ — Previous demand — Tenancy ended by conduct — Tenant expanding munz on land — Idea of permanency of tenancy implicit in contract — Govt. ejecting tenant — Remedy by way of suit after notice under S. 80 Civil P. C. not equally convenient, beneficial and effectual — Govt. determined to evict — Previous demand would have been useless — Demand is not absolute legal necessity before petition for writ of mandamus can be entertained — Petition cannot be refused because there was no previous demand and refusal. See Transfer of Property Act (1882), S. 105. AIR 1958 Manipur 31.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus, writ of — Demand and refusal of justice not established — Writ cannot be issued. 1962 Mys LJ (Supp) 510 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Petition for writ of mandamus — No demand or refusal under impugned Act — Application whether maintainable.

Per Mangalmurti and Mudholkar, JJ.:— Ordinarily before a person petitions for a mandamus to enforce the performance of a public duty or makes some other demand, he must show that he had made such a demand from the appropriate authority and that the demand was refused or not met. This is however, not an inflexible rule. So, when in the particular circumstances such demand could not have been met, the absence of a demand has been held to be immaterial.

Thus where a petitioner applies under Art. 226 for a writ of mandamus directing the State Govt. not to enforce against him the C. P. and Berar Prohibition Act, 1938, or some sections thereof and to withdraw and cancel certain rules and notifications thereunder and it was found that he had not done any act under the Act nor was any action taken under the Act to his detriment and that there was no demand and refusal of a permit under the Act to him.

Held, that what the petitioner sought was something which the State Govt. or its agencies could not as things stood, be expected to comply with and hence, in the circumstances of the case, it being idle for him to make a demand upon them the absence of demand did not affect the tenability of the petition.

Per Hidayatullah J.:— The mandamus could not issue unless there was demand and a refusal or some act or omission is to be ordered and hence the application should be dismissed. Sheoshankar v. State Govt. of Madhya Pradesh, 52 Cri LJ 1140: ILR (1951) Nag 646: AIR 1951 Nag 58 (69, 79) (Pt D) (Prs 65, 143) (FB).

——Art. 226 — Tolls of ferry — Public auction — Highest bidder — Competency to apply for writ — (Bengal Ferries Act (1 of 1885) S. 9).

It is true that the advertisement of a sale by public auction does not amount in law to a contract with any one who might act upon the advertisement. But where the highest bidder at an auction sale of tolls of a ferry deposits the whole amount of the bid and executes a registered kabuliat, but the Magistrate rejects his bid and makes a private settlement, the bidder is competent to apply for a writ of mandamus to get the settlement cancelled, even though he did not make a formal demand for performance of duty on the part of the Magistrate. 1953 BLJR 686: 32 Pat 1129: AIR 1954 Pat 235 (237, 238) (Pt B) (Prs 9, 11) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Writ of mandamus — Demand of performance of duty when may not be made.

There are certain cases in which previous demand, which is a condition precedent for a writ of mandamus, may not be possible or sometimes may not be necessary and these cases can be (1) where it appears that a demand would be unavailing, it need not be made; (2) where the respondent has by his own conduct made a demand impossible; (3) where the duty sought to be enforced is of a public nature affecting the people at large and there is no one especially empowered to demand performance; (4) where the duty is imperatively required by law of ministerial officer particularly where respondent has done an act which he calls a performance; and (5) where a person has by inadvertence omitted to do some act which he was under a duty to do and where time within which he can do it has passed. AIR 1955 Tripura 33 (35) (Pt C) (Pr 10).

234 (b). Implied.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Demand and refusal of relief — No order passed on application — Writ petition, if premature.

Held, on facts that when the earlier petition for registration under the Post Offices Act was rejected as being infructuous, the petitioner was permitted to file a fresh petition and it is also clear from the attitude adopted by the opposite parties in the past that they had come to the conclusion that the periodicals did not fulfil the requirements of S. 9 and consequently there was no possibility of the petitioner's application being considered on its own merits. ILR (1957) 2 All 328: AIR 1957 All 662 (664) (Pt A) (Pr 4).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — When can issue — Dereliction of duty on part of municipality — Mandamus against — Madras District Municipalities Act (5 of 1920) Ss. 250 and 321 (ii) — Application for permission to instal machinery— Failure to reply by municipality — Effect. (1958) 2 Andh WR 187: 1958 Andh LT 681: AIR 1959 Andh Pra 460 (460, 461) (Prs 6 to 11).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Demand of justice and refusal.

If there was substantially a demand of justice and refusal, that would be sufficient. 58 Cal WN 617: AIR 1955 Cal 72 (75) (Pt F) (Pr 19).

——Art. 226 — Demand of justice and refusal thereof — Inference of refusal.

In order to succeed in an application under Art. 226 the petitioner should show that there was a demand of justice and refusal thereof. But it is not necessary that the word "refuse" or any equivalent to it should be used. It is enough to show that the party withholds compliance and distinctly determines not to do what is required of him. Refusal may be inferred from conduct. 40 Cal LJ 44, Rel. on. AIR 1951 Cal 570 (573) (Pt B) (Pr 16).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Demand and refusal of relief.

There is no doubt that in a case of a writ of mandamus a demand for relief from the authorities against whom he has made the application should be made. Where, however, the petitioner had made repeated representations, which constituted demand for justice before petitioning for a writ of mandamus, he had complied with this requisite. AIR 1956 Tripura 9 (12) (Pt B) (Prs 17, 18).

234 (c). Proof of.

——Art. 226 — High Court has no jurisdiction to issue mandamus contrary to law. 1959 All LJ 567.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Issue of writ — Grounds for — Demand and refusal.

One of the conditions for the grant of relief of mandamus is that there must have been a demand for the relief and its refusal by the authority concerned. The plea is not one of form but of substance. It is sufficient if there is in substance a demand and refusal may be inferred from conduct, no particular form or language being necessary. A demand is not required where it is manifest that it would be but an idle ceremony.

Held, that the prior institution of suit by the applicants for an injunction, to restrain the respondent from holding elections and the contest made by the respondent for the grant of interim injunction in that suit, was a sufficient demand and refusal. 1956 Andhra WR 711: ILR (1956) Andh Pra 480: AIR 1957 AP 833 (837) (Pt F) (Prs 15, 17) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Petition for writ of mandamus — When may be entertained, pointed out — Duty of Court stated. AIR 1947 Cal 307, referred to. 55 CWN 255: AIR 1951 Cal 396 (397) (Prs 6, 7) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Writ of mandamus — Demand for justice and denial — Failure to prove — Specific Relief Act (1877), S. 45.

Per Mehta J.:— The petition for a writ of mandamus and the affidavit should state in clear and unequivocal terms the demand for justice and the denial thereof. Where the petitioner fails to prove this, the petition is defective. ILR (1952) Madh Bha 231: AIR 1950 Madh B 46 (54) (Pt L) (Pr 22) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Writ of mandamus — Demand for justice must be independent of motion for writ of mandamus — Specific Relief Act (1877), S. 45. ILR (1952) Madh Bha 231: AIR 1950 Madh B 46 (54) (Pt M) (Pr 22) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Demand and denial of right must be prior to application for mandamus. 1956 Cr LJ 252: AIR 1956 Manipur 11 (12) (Pt C) (Pr 6).

——Art. 226 — Writ of mandamus — Petitioner has to show that he had made demand for justice — Refusal may be implied from facts stated. ILR (1952) Patiala 392: AIR 1952 Pepsu 152 (154) (Pt A) (Prs 7, 9) (DB).

235. Discretionary matters.

(a). Correctness of decision not to be questioned.

(b). Power coupled with duty.

235. Discretionary matters.

——Art. 226 — Writ of mandamus — Court's discretion — Election of Speaker.

The relief of writ of mandamus is discretionary with the Court. This discretion should not be exercised in the matter of election such as that of a Speaker of an Assembly in a manner that will make the will of the minority prevail over that of the majority even if for a short period. AIR 1946 Cal 121, Rel. on. AIR 1955 Ajmer 33 (38) (Pt E) (Pr 19).

——Art. 226 — Natural justice — Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 57 — Oral allegation against rival applicant — R. T. A. acting on such allegations — Tribunal setting aside those findings — Discretion of Tribunal — High Court cannot interfere under Art. 226. AIR 1965 All 194 (195, 196) (Pr 9).

——Art. 226 — U. P. Imposition of Ceiling on Land Holdings Act (1 of 1961) — Exemption of sugarcane plantations under S. 6 (vi) is in discretionary powers of State — Writ of mandamus cannot be issued. 1963 All LJ 793: 1963 All WR (HC) 669: ILR (1964) 1 All 211: AIR 1965 All 175 (182) (Pt K) (Pr 35) (DB).

●——Art. 226 — Writ Petition under — Existence of alternate remedy — Important questions involved in the matter — Correct decision by lower appellate Court — Petition need not be entertained. Per Desai C. J. Baburam Ashok Kumar v. Antarim Zilla Parishad, ILR (1964) 2 All 76: 1964 All WR (HC) 167: 1964 All LJ 353: AIR 1964 All 534 (535) (Pt E) (Pr 9) (FB).

——Art. 226 and Art. 311 (2) — Mandamus — Government servant — Fixation of his seniority in cadre — No law as to — It depends upon discretion of Government — No writ of mandamus can be issued. ILR (1961) 1 All 940: AIR 1963 All 358 (360) (Pt A) (Prs 5, 6).

——Art. 226 — Writ of mandamus — Under Excise Rules, acceptance of bid and the grant of licence is in the discretion of Excise authorities— Writ not proper even if rules were not merely executive directions but had statutory force. ILR (1962) 2 All 409.

——Art. 226 — Scope — Writ to compel Government to issue licence — Mining licences — Government deciding not to grant mining leases at all — Government cannot be compelled to grant leases. See Mineral Concession Rules (1949), R. 18. AIR 1960 All 570.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Writ of — Mandamus ordering District Magistrate to sell books containing forms — Police Regulations, Para 183 (ii).

Under Para. 183, Sub-Cl. (ii) of the Police Regulations, the District Magistrate cannot be compelled to sell the books containing form No. 54 to any party, nor can any party claim an unqualified right to obtain these forms from the District Magistrate. Hence, the issue of a writ of mandamus ordering the District Magistrate to sell the said books to the petitioner is not justified by the rule. 1960 All WR (HC) 563: 1960 All Cr R 358: 1960 All LJ 761.

——Art. 226 — Powers of High Court.

The High Court cannot in the exercise of its writ jurisdiction issue any order to an authority to exercise its discretion in a particular manner. 1957 All LJ 493.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Against whom can issue — Writ cannot issue against opposite parties directing them to modify list of seniority of drivers of Locomotive Running Staff. AIR 1955 NUC (All) 5818.

——Art. 226 — Making of report under S. 16, U. P. Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 — Discretion of District Magistrate — It is an administrative act — Not statutory duty — No writ can be issued. See U. P. Industrial Disputes Act (XXVIII of 1947), S. 16. AIR 1955 NUC (All) 3544.

——Art. 226 — U. P. Industrial Disputes Act (XXVIII of 1947), Ss. 3, 4 and 8 — G. O. No. 615 dated 15th March, 1951, Cl. 10 — Power of Government to refer dispute for adjudication is discretionary — Exercise of discretion not arbitrary — Writ of mandamus cannot be issued. AIR 1955 NUC (All) 1764.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus in discretionary matters — High Court when will not interfere.

In a petition to the High Court to issue a writ of mandamus to the State Government directing it to issue a notification under section 1 (3) of the Bar Councils Act, 1926, applying the provisions of that Act to the High Court: it was held that the High Court cannot do so as the State Government has a discretion in the matter and that it is not obligatory on the State Government to make the requisite notifications. 1954 All LJ 400: 1954 Cr LJ 1498: AIR 1954 All 735 (735, 736) (Pt B) (Prs 1, 5) (DB).

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1955 All 269 (FB).]

——Art. 226 — Mandamus, writ of — Mandamus where duty is discretionary — U. P. Agricultural Income-tax Act (III of 1949), S. 6 (1) Proviso.

It may be that while an officer may, in certain extraordinary circumstances, be compelled by mandamus to exercise his discretion one way or the other and not just simply refuse to act at all yet after he has honestly and reasonably exercised his discretion, mandamus will not lie where the act is truly discretionary, to control that discretion, as to the particular manner of performance, even though the discretion be erroneously exercised, for there is no method of review or correction provided by law to control such a discretion. The writ of mandamus can never be used as a substitute for appeal or what has been called in America a "writ of error".

Where the Senior Member, Board of Revenue, had exercised his discretion to grant permission under S. 6 (1) Proviso, U. P. Agricultural Income-Tax Act (III of 1949) to make a change in the method of computation of income for purposes of the Act, honestly and on a full consideration of the materials before him and had refused permission, there is no scope for the High Court to interfere by means of the writ of mandamus. 1952 All WR (HC) 517: 1952 All LJ 557: ILR

(1953) 1 All 817: AIR 1953 All 25 (29, 30) (Pt G) (Prs 26, 27) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus, discretionary remedy.

A writ of mandamus is a discretionary remedy and cannot be claimed as a matter of course or of right. (1964) 2 Andh WR 375.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Discretion — Amendment of date of birth — Government of India Act (1919), S. 96-B — Fundamental Rules, R. 74 (a) (IV) and note.

If the statute imposes a duty and the particular claimant has corresponding rights to enforce, mandamus would be issued. On the other hand, where the particular provision only confers discretionary powers, different considerations would arise. The word 'can' in the note to R. 74 (a) (IV) cannot be construed as creating an obligation: it merely confers a power to amend the mistake as to date of birth entered in the service book. Hence, mandamus would not lie to enforce the exercise of this power or discretion unless there is wrong exercise of discretion. (1959) 2 Lab LJ 567: AIR 1960 Andh Pra 363 (364) (Pt B) (Pr 4).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — When can issue.

A mandamus cannot be claimed as of right, nor need such a writ issue for every omission or irregularity even when it cannot be shown to have affected the jurisdiction or the merits of the case. The granting of relief by way of extraordinary writs is discretionary. The writ of mandamus is not a writ of right and the Court cannot be oblivious to the facts of the case. 59 Cal WN 373, Relied on. (1956) 29 ITR 122: ILR (1955) 7 Assam 362: AIR 1955 Assam 201 (209) (Pt D) (Pr 22) (DB).

[Reversed on another point in AIR 1961 SC 1579].

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Writ or order under Art. 226 can be issued to secure licence under S. 38, Calcutta Police Act. See Calcutta Police Act (IV of 1866), S. 39. 1965 (1) Cri LJ 679: AIR 1965 Cal 312 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Administrative act — Grant of licence by Commissioner, under S. 39, Calcutta Police Act, is administrative and not quasi-judicial act — Not mandatory on Commissioner to give hearing to applicant — Grant is discretionary with Commissioner — Discretion if based on considerations extraneous to Act mandamus would lie — (Calcutta Police Act (IV of 1866), S. 39): AIR 1961 SC 705, Rel. on. 1965 (1) Cri LJ 679: AIR 1965 Cal 312 (317) (Pt A) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Application to renew licence of eating house under S. 39, Calcutta Police Act — Refusal by Authority — Prayer under Art. 226 to re-examine facts and direct issue of mandamus — Held, High Court would not examine facts as Court of Appeal: AIR 1954 SC 217, Foll. 1965 (1) Cri LJ 679: AIR 1965 Cal 312 (328) (Pt B) (Pr 70) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Refusal of Police Commissioner to issue licence under S. 39 of Calcutta Police Act for running boarding and eating house — Use of discretion by Police Commissioner — Petition for issue of writ of mandamus — Duty of Court — Court has only to see whether there were materials for the exercise of proper and reasonable discretion by the Commissioner — Order refusing or granting licence is an administrative order — The discretion spoken of is dependent on the subjective satisfaction of the Commissioner as to whether the conditions in the section are duly satisfied — Calcutta Police Act (1866), S. 39. AIR 1961 SC 705, Rel. on. 66 Cal WN 487: AIR 1962 Cal 556 (559, 560) (Pt A) (Prs 10, 11, 12, 13, 19) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Issue of writ — Discretion — Writ of mandamus is not a writ of right. See Electricity Act (1910), S. 4. AIR 1958 Cal 85 (DB).

——Arts. 226, 32 — Mandamus — False statement in application — Effect.

Where a petitioner comes to the Court with a false statement, that alone may be a sufficient reason for throwing out his application. (1957) 8 STC 105: AIR 1956 Cal 596 (599, 600) (Pt F) (Pr 13).

——Arts. 226, 311 — State Railway Establishment Code, Vol. II Rule 2046 (2) (a) — Railway employee in ministerial service — No right to continue in service after age of 55 — Thereafter it is discretionary and the High Court cannot control a discretion either by the issue of a writ of mandamus or certiorari. See Ibid, Art. 311. AIR 1956 Cal 93.

——Art. 226 — Renewal of eating house licence — Discretion of Police Commissioner — Mandamus. See Calcutta Police Act (4 of 1866), Ss. 35, 39 and 40. AIR 1955 NUC (Cal) 193.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus against a registered Trade Union refusing to enroll a person as a member — (Trade Unions Act (1926), S. 21).

The law relating to corporations incorporated under a statute would be fully applicable to Trade Unions incorporated under an Act. A Trade Union incorporated under the Trade Unions Act, like a corporation, has as an incident belonging to it, a right to make any person it likes member, unless it is clearly deprived of that right by prescriptions or express words in its charter.

The rules of the Trade Union like the Asansol Iron and Steel Workers' Union are not statutory rules and are not like regulations which might be framed under S. 29 of the Trade Unions Act.

There is nothing in the Trade Unions Act or the rules made thereunder which confers absolute right upon a person to be admitted as a member of this particular Trade Union. Such a right might have been brought into existence if there was an express provision in the Act or the constitution of the Trade Union, that no one having the requisite qualifications could be refused membership. A mere description in the constitution of the class of persons who can become members, or the qualifications necessary for membership, does not confer an absolute right of becoming a member upon any person who might belong to that class or answer that description or possess such qualification and the Court will not enforce such a claim by mandamus. In other words, mandamus will lie to compel a corporation to do its statutory duty, but not where there is no duty cast by statute or where the corporation has a discretion in the matter. ILR (1956) 1 Cal 247: 58 Cal WN 457: AIR 1955 Cal 189 (191) (Pt B) (Prs 12, 13, 15).

——Art. 226 — Municipalities — Bengal Municipal Act (1932) S. 402 — Discretion to maintain slaughter house — Interference. See Municipalities — Bengal Municipal Act (15 of 1932) S. 402. AIR 1953 Cal 433.

——Art. 226 — Renewal of eating house licence — Discretionary powers of Commissioner — Refusal — No right to mandamus. See Calcutta Police Act (4 of 1866), S. 35. ('53) 92 Cal LJ 81.

——Art. 226 — Writ of mandamus.

An order for the issue of a writ of mandamus is a matter for the absolute discretion of the Court. Some of the essential conditions for the grant of such a writ are: (i) that the person applying must show that he is really and specially interested in the subject-matter and has a specific legal right to enforce; (ii) that there resides in him a legal right to the performance of the legal duty by the party against whom such a writ is sought; and (iii) that there is no other equally efficacious, convenient and beneficial remedy. ILR (1953) Hyd 311: AIR 1953 Hyd 222 (224) (Pt D) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus in discretionary matters.

Where there is no rule under which the Government can be made to count the period of service of a person towards the period of service which counts for his pension and it is a matter for the Government to relax the rules if they so desired in the case of any individual it is not open to the person to ask the Court for any direction to the Government to show favours to him. His remedy is to apply to the Government for such favour bringing to their notice the cases of those who had been granted such relaxation. AIR 1958 J and K 43 (45) (Pt D) (Pr 14).

——Art. 226 — Appointment to police service — Inclusion of names of petitioners in list of approved candidates selected by State Public Service Commission — No right to appointment to such post is conferred — State can exclude candidates from appointment if requisite qualifications prescribed by R. 10 (b) (ii) are not fulfilled — Art. 16 not violated. See Ibid, Art. 16 (1). AIR 1963 Ker 59.

——Art. 226 — Writ to compel the Municipal Council to issue a licence to the petitioner under S. 261 of the Travancore District Municipalities Act (1116) — The reports before the Municipality ought to be taken as decisive on the issue as to nuisance in proceedings under Art. 226 — AIR 1960 Orissa 88, Rel. on. (1960) 2 Ker LR 342: ILR (1960) Ker 1159: 1961 Ker LJ 40: 1961 Ker LT 475: AIR 1962 Ker 30 (31, 32) (Pt C) (Pr 3).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Delay in presentation of petition.

A writ of mandamus is not a writ of course or right, but is within the discretion of the Court; and if there has been undue delay in the presentation of the petition for issue of the writ, it is usually not granted. It would, however, depend on the facts of each case as to whether the delay in that particular case was sufficient to disqualify the petitioner from getting the relief. The mere fact that the petitioner was in jail does not prevent him from making a petition for issue of the writ to the High Court. AIR 1956 Kutch 9 (12) (Pt D) (Prs 18, 19).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Discretionary remedy.

Grant of writ of mandamus rests purely on the discretion of the High Court. Madh BLJ 1955 HCR 1577: AIR 1955 Madh Bha 202 (205) (Pt C) (Pr 29) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Issue of, to direct — Exercise of discretion.

Held, on facts that it was in the discretion of the chairman of the Board to condone the deficiency in attendance of any candidate and that discretion having been already exercised in favour of the petitioner by permitting him to appear at the practical examinations, it was not open to the Board to disallow him from taking examinations in theory subjects. After having exercised the discretion once the chairman does not retain the liberty to alter the decision taken by him by exercising it a second time.

Held further, that mandamus does not lie where the duty is clearly discretionary and the party upon whom the discretion rests has exercised the discretion reasonably and within his jurisdiction, but where a discretion is abused so as to work injustice it can be controlled by mandamus. 1960 MPLJ (Notes) 134.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Principle of merger of original order into appellate order applies in cases of writs of mandamus also — Writ compelling an authority to disobey orders of Superior authority cannot be issued. 76 Mad LW 76: ILR (1963) Mad 252: (1963) 2 Mad LJ 207.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus to compel institution of legal proceedings.

A writ of mandamus will not lie to compel a person to institute legal proceedings. AIR 1955 Nag 33, Rel. on. 1959 Mad WN 649: (1961) 2 Mad LJ 235: AIR 1960 Mad 231 (235) (Pt A) (Pr 20).

——Art. 226—Mandamus — Issue of — Discretion.

The grant of an order of mandamus is, as a general rule, matter for the discretion of the Court. It is not an order granted as of right and it is not issued as a matter of course. Courts will not exercise jurisdiction in this class of cases unless substantial injustice has ensued, or is likely to ensue. AIR 1955 SC 425, Rel. on.

Where to issue the writ would be to place an intolerable burden of inconvenience on numerous citizens of India, and another adjoining territory, namely, Pondicherry and to set at nought the usage of more than century and a quarter:

Held, that this was a case where writ of mandamus should be refused. 1959 Mad WN 649: (1961) 2 Mad LJ 235: AIR 1960 Mad 231 (235) (Pt B) (Prs 21, 22, 23).

——Art. 226 — Specific Relief Act (1877), S. 45 — Mandamus — Remedy is discretionary — Jurisdiction is subject to considerations of importance of case or of principle involved or delay on applying or of merits of case — Court is under obligation to take liberal views. AIR 1955 NUC (Mad) 3915.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Refusal to issue passport — Matter entirely within discretion of State. See Ibid, Art. 14. AIR 1954 Mad 240 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 12 (5) — Non-compliance with S. 12 (5)—Power of Court to direct State to make reference to Tribunal. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), Section 12 (5). AIR 1952 Mad 297 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Refusal of Registrar to register society under S. 11 Assam Co-operative Socities Act — Mandamus will not issue. AIR 1965 Manipur 1 (3) (Pt B) (Prs 5, 7).

——Art. 226 — Order passed in proper exercise of discretion upon direction of High Court under Section 517, Cr. P. C. — No case for issue of mandamus. 1956 Cr LJ 252: AIR 1956 Manipur 11 (12) (Pt A) (Prs 3, 4).

——Arts. 226, 14 and 19 (1) (g) — Mandamus to compel authority to start legal proceedings — Minimum Wages Act (1948), Ss. 20, 22 — Legal proceedings for enforcement of Act — Person not authorised by Act cannot compel authority to start prosecution — Court will refuse mandamus — Section 20, Minimum Wages Act contains complete machinery for enforcement of provisions of the Act. (1955-56) 8 FJR 106: (1955) 2 Lab LJ 13: 1955 Cr LJ 262: ILR 1954 Nag 839: 1954 Nag LJ 648: AIR 1955 Nag 33 (34, 35) (Prs 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Writ of mandamus when is not proper remedy — [Municipalities — Orissa Municipal Act (XXIII of 1950), S. 134 (d)].

Where a writ of mandamus is sought to be issued against a Municipality on the contention that the provisions of S. 134 (d) being mandatory, unless provisions for cleansing of private latrines, urinals and cesspools are made, no tax shall be leviable, and if the tax is imposed without the said conservancy arrangements the taxation is bound to be declared as illegal, and the contention is met by the production of the records kept in the Municipal Office showing that arrangements have been made for so cleansing, then it is not a fit case where the jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226 can be invoked. If the petitioners dispute the fact that the arrangements contemplated under S. 134 (d) have not been made, they may seek their remedy in appropriate proceedings. Where facts are disputed, they cannot be effectively determined in the writ proceedings. AIR 1954 Orissa 76 (77) (Pt A) (Prs 4, 5) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Writ of mandamus — Nature of.

The grant of a writ of mandamus is as a genral rule, a matter for the discretion of the Court and is not a writ of right. AIR 1951 Pat 231 (241) (Pt C) (Pr 26) (DB).

●——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Discretionary matters — Mandamus upon State Government directing it to refer dispute under S. 10 (1) Proviso, Industrial Disputes Act — Matter lies in complete discretion of State Govt. — Mandamus will not issue. Bagaram Tuloule v. State of Bihar, ILR 29 Pat 491: 1951 Cri LJ 1509: (1950-51) 2 FJR 71: AIR 1950 Pat 387 (388, 391) (Prs 5, 6, 8, 9, 10, 11, 15) (FB).

—Art. 226 — Mandamus — To issue writ is in discretion of Court — Conduct of petitioner has to be considered (Mandamus refused). ILR (1952) Patiala 482: AIR 1953 Pepsu 9 (12) (Pt C) (Pr 11).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Discretionary matter — Writ to recall reference under Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 — Administrative Acts.

The Industrial Disputes Act 1947, confers upon the State Governments the power, and imposes upon it the duty to decide for itself, in the exercise of its own judgment and discretion whether an industrial dispute does or does not exist or whether such dispute should or should not be referred for adjudication to a tribunal. The duty imposed upon the State Government is not of a ministerial character but is one involving judgment and discretion. AIR 1956 Cal 550, Rel. on. The decision may be wrong, but it cannot be said that by coming to a wrong decision the State Government has attempted to perform an act over which it had no jurisdiction. AIR 1952 Bom 468, Rel. on. Where the decision of the State Government was made in the exercise of judgment and discretion conferred by law, it cannot be controlled by mandamus. AIR 1953 SC 53 and (1840) 10 Law Ed 559 and (1903) 190 US 316, Rel. on. 60 Pun LR 425: (1958-59) 15 FJR 49: (1959) 1 Lab LJ 274: ILR (1958) Punj 2061: AIR 1959 Punj 75 (78, 79) (Pt D) (Prs 10, 12a) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Issue of writ — Grounds for.

The Courts can by mandamus compel the performance of acts prescribed by law, but they have no power to interfere with discretion of Government or require Government to act or to decide in a particular manner. They can ask Government to act, but not how to act. Courts exercise no general supervisory powers over Government or executive officers of Government; they cannot coerce or control their action in matter which requires the exercise of official judgment or discretion; and they cannot override or interfere with their decision even if erroneous, provided it is based on a sound and reasonable discretion founded on facts and exercised in good faith without collusion or fraud and not from motives of personal favouritism or ill-will. (1840) 10 Law Ed 559 (568), Rel. on. 58 Punj LR 299: ILR (1957) Punj 122: AIR 1956 Punj 201 (202) (Pt A) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — (Income-tax Act (1922), S. 45).

Petitioners were assessed under S. 23 (4), Income-tax Act. They therefore applied under S. 27 for cancellation of the assessment. The application was dismissed and while the appeal was pending another application to the Income-tax Officer was made under S. 45 to keep the recovery in abeyance. The Income-tax Officer fixed the instalments. But the petitioners moved the higher authority and obtained stay. The same was later on vacated and petitioners finally applied for writ of mandamus on the ground that the I. T. Officer did not exercise his discretion properly.

Held, Per Kapur. J.: (1) Under S. 45 whatever discretion there is, is of the Income-tax Officer and he having exercised it in a particular manner which was neither mala fide nor capricious, nor done for collateral purposes, nor had he taken matters into consideration which were extraneous to the issue, it was not open to the High Court to interfere in its supervisory jurisdiction. Case law discussed.

(2) When exercising his discretion under S. 45, Income-tax Act, the Income-tax Officer has not to look to the correctness of his own order of assessment. There are other considerations which have to be seen at the time of declaring an assessee to be a defaulter or otherwise. (1951) 20 ITR 51 (Cal) Dissented.

Per Soni, J.: It is a grave thing to interfere in the orderly administration of justice by the ordinary or special Tribunals constituted by the Legislature. Where they are acting within the limits of the powers assigned to them by the Legislature and have exercised their discretion, High Court will not ordinarily interfere unless the discretion has been exercised so capriciously or in such an outrageous manner as to attract the extraordinary jurisdiction of the High Court. (1952) 22 ITR 410: AIR 1953 Punj 113 (115, 116) (Prs 16, 17, 20) (DB).

235 (a). Correctness of decisions not to be questioned.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Powers of High Court — Public purpose within S. 6, Land Acquisition Act — High Court will not examine facts — (Land Acquisition Act (1894), S. 6 (1)). AIR 1958 All 126 (135) (Pt M) (Pr 28).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Error in exercise of jurisdiction — Refusal to grant exemption from excise duty against all reasonable interpretation of relevant item in Tariff Schedule — High Court can interfere in writ jurisdiction.

If two constructions are reasonably possible, then the Court will not interfere simply because the customs authorities have adopted the one which is most beneficial to the Revenue. But where refusal by the customs authorities to grant exemption from excise duty is against all reasonable interpretation and is perverse the Court will interfere in its writ jurisdiction. AIR 1961 SC 1506 and AIR 1963 SC 1319, Expl. and Foll. 69 Cal WN 328: AIR 1965 Cal 428 (433) (Pt E) (Pr 13).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus cannot be issued to vacate erroneous administrative orders — Grant of licence upon wrong interpretation of statutory rule — (R. 13, Abkari Rules, under Section 26, Travancore Abkari Act) — Error of decision — Writ cannot be issued. AIR 1946 Bom 407 and AIR 1952 Bom 468, Dissented: AIR 1954 SC 403 and AIR 1954 SC 415 and AIR 1954 SC 440 and AIR 1958 SC 1018, Disting. (1850) 81 Rr. 520; American Jurisprudence Vol. 34, p. 813 and Halsbury's Laws of England (3rd Ed.), Vol. II, p. 101, Rel. on. 1960 Ker LJ 1208: 1960 Ker LT 1109: ILR (1961) 1 Ker 134: AIR 1961 Ker 318 (321) (Pt B) (Prs 9, 10) (DB).

——Art. 226—Mandamus in discretionary matter—Travancore Jenmi and Kudiyan Act (V of 1071), S. 46 — Mandamus to State Government to revise commutation rates for Jenmikaran in accordance with S. 46 — Remedy is open to the party if the Government uses its discretion arbitrarily or capriciously. 1960 Ker LT 569: (1960) 1 Ker LR 691: 1960 Ker LJ 748: AIR 1961 Ker 133 (135) (Pr 6).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — When issued — Petitioner must have legal right of which performance can be enforced — Where statute confers discretion on authority mandamus will not lie unless exercise of discretion is capricious, arbitrary or mala fide. AIR 1962 SC 1210 Foll. Patna University Act (XXV of 1951), Reg. 7. 1965 BLJR 229.

——Art. 226 — Discretionary orders — Order by Board of Revenue under Section 43 of B. and O. Excise Act II of 1915 — Discretion not properly exercised — Mandamus could be issued. 1961 BLJR 201: AIR 1961 Pat 328 (329) (Prs 3, 4) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Issue of writ — Grounds of — Public Officer entrusted with judicial power — Decision of — Interference with by writ of mandamus — Error of law or fact — If ground for.

It is quite unusual to direct a judicial tribunal to act in a particular way unless it is quite plain that what they have to do is purely ministerial, and not judicial. The Court will not by mandamus order a public officer who is invested with judicial, as distinct from ministerial, power to perform a specific act in order to carry out his public duty. Where a question within the jurisdiction of a public officer entrusted with judicial powers has been bona fide entertained and decided by such officer, the Court will not interfere with his decision merely upon the ground that the decision was erroneous either with respect to facts or in points of law. 51 Cal 279, Rel. on. 31 Pat 145: AIR 1953 Patna 47 (50) (Pt C) (Pr 16) (DB).

[Held overruled by AIR 1952 SC 64 in AIR 1953 Pat 293.]

235 (b). Power coupled with duty.

●——Art. 226 — Industrial Disputes Act (1947), Sections 10, 12 — Discretion of Government to refer dispute under S. 12 (5) — Section 12 (5) does not confer power on Government to make reference independently of S. 10 (1) — Under S. 12 (5) Government can consider other relevant facts besides the report of Conciliation Officer — Government in considering question of reference taking into consideration extraneuos matters — Writ of mandamus can issue requiring Government to reconsider its decision. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 10. AIR 1960 SC 1223.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus in discretionary matters.

The exercise of discretion by the authority on which such discretion is conferred must not be lightly interfered with, more so in exercise of the powers of the High Court under Art. 226 of of the Constitution. There is an essential distinction between refusal to exercise the discretion and manner of its exercise. If the authority fails to discharge his duty by refusing to exercise his discretion when facts calling for its exercise exist, or if he exercises discretion which is not an exercise of discretion in law, the Court will compel him to do so. If the authority concerned exercises his discretion honestly and in the spirit of the statute, no mandamus will be issued directing him to exercise his discretion in a particular way. AIR 1957 Andhra Pra 114, Rel. on. AIR 1957 Andh Pra 830 (832) (Pt B) (Prs 11, 12).

——Art. 226 — Interpretation of statutes — Exercise of discretion — If the discretionary power under Income Tax Act is exercised arbitrarily, capriciously or unreasonably or by taking into consideration extraneous and irrelevant considerations, in the eye of law, the authority must be deemed to have not exercised the discretion at all, that is he has not discharged his duty — He can be compelled by mandamus to discharge his duty — (Civil P. C. (1908), Pre.) — (Income-tax Act (1922), S. 45). 1956 Andh LT 656: (1956) 30 ITR 252: 1956 Andh WR 752: ILR (1956) Andh 994: AIR 1957 Andh Pra 114 (117, 118, 119) (Pt B) (Prs 6, 7, 8, 14) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Power of Court — Mandamus — Object of — Act of Government or Officer under power conferred by Act — Power of Court to interfere with exercise of power.

The main and principal object of a writ of mandamus is to compel Government or its officers to carry out their statutory obligation. The duty of the Court is to see that Government and its officers do not overlap the limits and the bounds prescribed by Statute for the exercise of their power. The whole object of the Court is to see that the mandate which the Legislature has given to the Government or its officers is carried out, and if the Court finds that the mandate is not carried out or is being violated, the Court will pull up the Government or the officer and compel them to obey the mandate which the Legislature has issued.

It cannot be disputed that in the case of a discretion the Court cannot interfere by a writ of mandamus. But when the existence of an objective fact is laid down as a condition precedent to the exercise of power, there is no question whatever of the exercise of any discretion by the authority which has got to be satisfied about the existence of the objective fact before the power is exercised. The determination by the authority is not made final and is not made binding upon the Court. The objective fact must exist as a fact and it does not help the authority at all that it has determined that the fact exists. Its determination is irrelevant because the condition precedent is made justiciable and the Court of law is entitled to go behind the declaration of the authority of that fact and come to its conclusion whether the fact exists or not. AIR 1950 SC 222, Expl.; (1905) AC 426; (1951) AC 426, Ref. 54 Bom LR 681: AIR 1952 Bom 468 (471, 472, 473, 474) (Pt B) (Prs 3, 5, 6, 8, 10) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus in discretionary matters — Issue of.

The High Court can issue a writ in the nature of a mandamus to a public body only in respect of duties which are obligatory, but not in respect of duties which are of a discretionary character. AIR 1956 Cal 563 (569) (Pt F) (Pr 35) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Discretion of public officer — Power of review.

It is well settled that a Court of law does not ordinarily exercise jurisdiction to review an exercise of discretion vested in a public officer entrusted with the discharge of public duties. If however the reasons given are irrelevant to the matter in hand, if people who have to exercise a public duty, by exercising their discretion take into account matters which the Court consider not to be proper for the guidance of their discretion then in the eye of law they have not exercised their discretion. An arbitrary or capricious exercise of discretion would be no exercise at all. ('51) 55 CWN 667.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Writ or direction in the nature of — Power of High Court — Income-tax Act, S. 45 — Discretion of Income-tax officer — Interference by Court — Officer not passing orders on application for time for payment and not refusing same nor giving grounds for not extending time pending appeal under S. 30 of the Income-tax Act — Power of High Court to direct officer to forbear or refrain from taking steps to enforce payment of tax pending disposal of appeal. See Income-tax Act (1922), S. 45. (1951) 20 ITR 51 (Cal).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Discretionary orders — Interference.

A tribunal vested with the discretion is authorised to follow a policy but that should not be used as an invariable rule and to preclude exceptional circumstances of a particular case being decided on merits. Fettering of such discretion by self-created rule of policy is contrary to law. Where there be failure to exercise discretion mandamus can be issued, and therefore vesting of discretionary power in the authority does not preclude the High Court from exercising powers under Art. 226: (1957) 1 QB 350, Rel. on. 1960 Ker LJ 498: (1960) 1 Ker LR 610: 1960 Ker LT 543: ILR (1960) Ker 1006: AIR 1961 Ker 23 (25) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Discretionary orders — Order under S. 45, Income-tax Act — No failure to exercise discretion — No interference. See Income-tax Act (1922), S. 45. 1958 Ker LT 216.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — When issued.

Writ of mandamus cannot be issued for controlling the discretionary power vested in an authority or for directing it to exercise its discretion in a particular way, but where the authority fails to exercise any discretion at all and decline jurisdiction, then it can be compelled by a writ of mandamus to exercise the discretion vested in it. (1910) 2 KB 165, Rel. on.

Thus where in a case of quarry-lease the State Government (lessor) turned down the lessee's request for being allowed to transfer the lease to certain company by a wrong construction of the two agreements concluded by the lessee and failed to exercise at all the discretion given to it under the rules, the lessee's application was regarded as pending before the Government and the Government was directed to dispose it of according to law. 1965 MPLJ 51: 1965 Jab LJ 130: AIR 1965 Madh Pra 153 (158) (Pt E) (Pr 12) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Writ of mandamus — M. P. Secondary Education Board Regulations (1959), Ch. XVI, R. 9, Chap. XXIII Rr. 5, 8 — Deficiency in attendance — Chairman has discretion to condone — Student allowed to appear for practical examination despite deficiency in attendance — Admission card with roll number issued — Exercise of discretion is complete — Permission to appear for theory cannot be withheld — Mandamus will issue — Though mandamus will not lie where the duty is clearly discretionary and where the party upon whom the duty rests, has exercised the discretion reasonably and within his jurisdiction, where the mandatory direction that is sought is for compelling the opponents to act according to the decision they have already taken in exercise of their discretion such a writ will issue. Where a discretion is abused so as to work injustice, it can be controlled by mandamus. See M. P. Secondary Education Board Regulations (1959), Ch. XVI, R. 9. AIR 1962 Madh Pra 3 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 10 (1) — Scope — Section whether imposes a duty on Government to make a reference — Refusal to make reference under section 12 (5) without recording reasons — Writ of mandamus can be issued — See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 10 (1). AIR 1952 Mad 74.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus, when to be issued — Mandamus for declaration under Rule 3 (ii) of Central Civil Services (Temporary Service) Rules (1949) — Not to be issued unless appointing authority desisted from making declaration even after satisfaction. ILR 1961 Mys 1129.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Exercise of power when becomes duty.

It is a well-established rule of law that where the power is conferred in the nature of trust, there is an obligation to exercise it for the benefit of cestui que trust. (1880) 5 AC 214, Rel. on. 1957 BLJR 299 (2): ILR 36 Pat 557: AIR 1957 Pat 515 (527) (Pt H) (Pr 17) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Writs when can be issued.

Per Lakshmikanta Jha C. J. — Writs of mandamus and other writs "of like nature" can issue for the protection of legal rights to a corporation or to a person holding a public office who is required by reason of such office to do some particular thing which appertains to his office; it is within the discretion of the Court issuing the writ to decline to interfere by a writ of mandamus or by any other writ "of like nature" if it considers that there is another legal remedy available to the aggrieved person: Case law discussed. 30 Pat 287: AIR 1952 Pat 23 (26) (Pt D) (Pr 15) (DB).

——Arts. 226, 310 and 311 — Mandamus in discretionary matters — Civil servants.

The petitioner who was rejected for recruitment to the police service on the ground that he had been found medically unfit applied for the issue of a writ of mandamus directing the Government to appoint him to the service or to send him up for a second examination because the medical board which found him unfit had applied wrong standards of medical fitness. It was found that the medical board which ought to have applied the standard prescribed by the revised instructions failed to do so.

Held, it was for the Government to consider the suitability or otherwise of the candidate when he fulfilled all other requirements including that of physical fitness. But inasmush as the opinion of the medical board regarding his physical fitness was not in conformity with the instructions of the Government a direction to the Government to appoint a second medical board to examine the petitioner according to the proper instructions would be given. ILR (1958) 8 Raj 37: AIR 1958 Raj 242 (245) (Pt B) (Prs 11, 13) (DB).

236. Discretionary remedy.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Rules as to issue of.

When there are different conflicting interests and when the necessary parties are not on the record and the materials are not adequate for a complete adjudication of the points involved without going into evidence, the Court will not exercise its extraordinary jurisdiction in favour of the petitioner which will put the other claimants in a disadvantageous position. The grant of an order of mandamus is, as a general rule, a matter for the discretion of the Court. It is not an order granted as of right and it is not issued as a matter of course. 1959 BLJR 12: ILR 38 Pat 271: AIR 1959 Pat 243 (245, 246) (Pt B) (Pr 7) (DB).

237. Duties that can be enforced.

(a) Duty and liability, distinction.
(b) Legal duty and right.
(c) Private right.

237. Duties that can be enforced.

——Art. 226 — Act duly passed by Legislature — Government not issuing, within reasonable time, notification with regard to commencement of Act — Remedy lies in invoking writ jurisdiction of High Court for issue of mandamus. See Ibid, Art. 245. 1964 (2) Cr LJ 124: AIR 1964 All 339.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Nature of duties which can be enforced by.

Mandamus cannot be issued to compel the subordinate authority to perform an implied duty. It can be issued only for the performance of a statutory or legal duty. 1959 AWR (HC) 166.

——Art. 226 — Writ of mandamus or prohibition in pending appeal.

Scope of writ of mandamus and prohibition never embraced in its ambit or direction to inferior Tribunal to decide any cause or appeal pending before it in any particular way. Writ may be issued to direct subordinate judicial authority to exercise a jurisdiction vested in it. 1955 All LJ 211: AIR 1955 All 422 (425) (Pt A) (Pr 6) (DB).

——Arts. 226, 7 — Person migrating to Pakistan after 1-3-1947 and obtaining Pakistani Passport — Ceases to be Indian Citizen — If he subsequently intends to become an Indian Citizen he must obtain a permit for resettlement or permanent return — If Govt. of India is not willing to grant him such permit it cannot be compelled to do so. See Ibid, Art. 7. AIR 1961 Cal 482.

——Art. 226 — Governor amending statutory rules of recruitment of Gazetted probationers — Public Service Commission having no more power or statutory duty to make selection — Issue of mandamus against P. S. C. would be meaningless. See Ibid, Art. 245. AIR 1963 Mys 263 (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 215 — Prohibitory order, what is — Writ of mandamus directing authority to do what was imposed on him under law — Nature of — Direction held not prohibitory order — Action in contempt — Service of order held not necessary — (Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3). See Ibid, Art. 215. 1957 Cri LJ 1156: AIR 1957 Pat 528 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Nature of duties that can be enforced — Inter-State trade — Sale of goods from Bombay — Assessment of tax under Central Sales Tax Act — Additional Assistant Excise and Taxation Commissioner, Punjab issuing notices for same — Commissioner having no jurisdiction to issue notices can be stopped by issuing writ. Civil Writ No. 1618 of 1962 (Punj) dated 24-5-1963 Reversed. 1964 Cur. LJ 442: 66 Pun LR 978: (1964) 15 STC 746: ILR (1964) 2 Punj 869: AIR 1965 Punj 62 (64, 65) (Pt C) (Prs 6, 7) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Writ of mandamus — Writ can be issued only if there is any statutory duty cast on Government to do something. 52 Cri LJ 1230: AIR 1951 Punj 90 (1) (90) (Pt B) (Pr 4) (DB).

237 (a). Duty and liability, distinction.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Condition contained in S. 25-F (c) is not condition precedent — R. 80 of Industrial Disputes (Bombay) Rules, 1947, is consistent with policy underlying S. 25-F (c) — Non-compliance with Cl. (c), assuming it to be condition precedent, does not give rights to mandamus. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 25-F (c). AIR 1964 SC 1617.

——Art. 226 — Writ of mandamus — Issue of — Claim for dearness allowance by Government servants — Fundamental Rules, R. 44.

Mandamus can be granted only when there is in the applicant a right to compel the performance of some duty cast on the opponent. Rule 44 of the Fundamental Rules confers no right on the Government servants to the grant of dearness allowance; it imposes no duty on the State to grant it. It merely confers a power on the State to grant compassionate allowance at its own discretion. No mandamus can therefore issue to compel the exercise of such a power. Nor, indeed, could any other writ or direction be issued in respect of it, as there is no right in the applicant which is capable of being protected or enforced. State of M. P. v. Mandawar, 1955 SCR 599: (1954) SCJ 503: (1954) 2 MLJ 51: 1954 SCA 767: AIR 1954 SC 493 (495) (Pt B) (Pr 5).

——Art. 226 — Jurisdiction to do an act is different from duty to do it. There must be jurisdiction before there arises a duty to do an act but there must be something besides mere jurisdiction to make it a duty to do it. Order by Sessions Judge to Magistrate to accept bail and release the prisoner — Order taken to Magistrate — Magistrate leaving office before 5 p.m. and going home — Order taken to Magistrate's home — Order on Magistrate as presiding officer — Magistrate held not bound to carry out order at his house — Sessions Judge's order was in nature of mandamus — Magistrate was required to do positive act — Action in refusing to carry out order was not contempt — His action held, however, was vindictive and required investigation. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. AIR 1956 All 417.

237 (b). Legal duty and right.

——Art. 226 — Scope — Notice of demand — Duty of Income-tax Officer — Failure to issue notice — Writ of mandamus can be issued. See Income-tax Act (1922), S. 29. (1965) 3 SCR 536: AIR 1966 SC 81.

● ——Art. 226 — Refund — Tax — Payment by person not liable—Assessment set aside in appeal — No statutory provision for refund — Government's refusal to refund — Appropriate remedy stated — Suit — Practice — Mandamus does not lie solely to compel State to effect payment due under law — Non-statutory liability — Whether amenable to constitutional writ of mandamus— Specific Relief Act, 1877 (Central Act 1 of 1877), See 45, Proviso (b) — Indore Industrial Tax Act, 1927 — Indore Excess Profits Duty Order, 1944. AIR 1962 SC 1161; AIR 1962 SC 1320; AIR 1964 SC 1006: AIR 1957 SC 529: AIR 1952 SC 16; Ref. Suganmal v. State of M. P.. (1965) 1 ITJ 472: (1965) 56 ITR 84: (1965) 1 SCJ 443: (1965) 16 STC 398: (1965) 2 SCWR 582: 1965 Jab LJ 1046: 1965 SCD 1168: 1966 Mah LJ 361: 1966 MPLJ 385: AIR 1965 SC 1740 (1742, 1743, 1744) (Prs 6, 9, 13, 14).

● ——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Petitioner must have a legal right to enforce the performance of the alleged duty — University of Bihar Act (XXVII of 1951), S. 20 — Statutes under. Rai Shivendra Bahadur v. Governing Body of the Nalanda College, Bihar Sharif, (1962) 3 Fac LR 507: 1963 SCD 87: 1962 Supp (2) SCR 144: (1962) 1 Lab LJ 247: (1962) 1 Ker LR 566: (1962) 2 SCJ 208: AIR 1962 SC 1210 (1211) (Pr 5).

● ——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Income-tax Officer — Refusal to carry out directions given by Appellate Tribunal — Mandamus should issue. AIR 1956 Bhopal 18, Reversed, Bhopal Sugar Industries, Ltd. v. I. T. Officer, Bhopal, (1961) 1 SCR 474: (1960) 40 ITR 618: 1961 Jab LJ 1: (1961) 1 Ker LR 1: (1961) 1 MLJ (SC) 35: (1961) I An. WR (SC) 35: 1961 SCJ 191: AIR 1961 SC 182 (185) (Prs 8, 9).

● ——Art. 226 — Industrial Disputes Act (1947), Ss. 10, 12 — Discretion of Government to refer dispute under S. 12 (5) — Section 12 (5) does not confer power on Government to make reference independently of Sec. 10 (1) — Under S. 12 (5), Government can consider other relevant facts besides the report of conciliation officer — Government in considering question of reference taking into consideration extraneous matters — Writ of mandamus can issue requiring Government to reconsider its decision. State of Bombay v. K. P. Krishnan, (1960) 1 FLR 392: (1960) 2 Lab LJ 592: (1960-61) 19 FJR 61: (1960) 2 SCA 527: 63 Bom LR 127: 1961 Nag LJ 205: (1961) 1 SCR 227: (1961) 2 SCJ 360: AIR 1960 SC 1223 (1225. 1226, 1227, 1228, 1230,, 1231, 1232) (Prs 5, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 16, 17, 18).

● ——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Obligation on part of authority — (Hyderabad Court of Wards Act (XII of 1350-F), S. 53 (c) — Applicability.

The property was taken possession of immediately after the death of one Raja Durga Reddy and the supervision of the Court of Wards was established by notifications of the Government. It was thereafter that the Virasat in respect of Jagir Samasthan Papannapet was sanctioned in the name of Rani Shankaramma by a Firman of the Nizam. That Firman specifically committed the care of the property and the person of Rani Shankaramma to the Court of Wards. Subsequent proceedings had treated the supervision of the Court of Wards over the property as having been established by the Firmans of the Nizam.

Held, in the circumstances it was not shown that the Court of Wards was under a statutory obligation in this case to hand over to Rani Shankaramma possession of the properties which were in their control. Raja Ramachandra Reddy v. Rani Shankaramma, 1956 SCJ 459: 1956 SCA 636: ILR (1956) Hyd 398: 1957 Andh LT 127: AIR 1956 SC 319 (335) (Pt B) (Pr 16).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — When to be issued — Authorities concerned having no reasonable chance in the matter of time to make decision— Mandamus will not be issued. AIR 1963 All 394 (395) (Pt A) (Pr 7).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus when can issue — Mandamus can only be issued to compel performance of duty imposed by law — Petitioner had no legal right to be promoted to a particular post under memorandum issued by Chief Secretary to Government. (1960) 1 Fac LR 516: 1960 All LJ 50: (1960) 1 Lab LJ 286: AIR 1961 All 315 (316) (Pt A) (Prs 4, 5) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus directing authorities to renew permits — If can issue.

Where the route in respect of which the petitioner held a permit has since become a notified route and only Stage carriages run on it, Chapter IV of the Motor Vehicles Act including Section 58 becomes inapplicable. No permit can be granted to any one in respect of that route. Nor can any renewals be made. No writ of mandamus can be issued directing the authorities to do anything they are not entitled in law to do. AIR 1960 All 209 (210, 211) (Pt B) (Pr 8).

——Art. 226 — District Magistrate acting under S. 30, Police Act declaring and demarcating route for tazia procession — Legality — Route passing through Sahan of petitioners — Mandamus issued — (Police Act (1861), S. 30). 1960 All WR (HC) 653: 1960 All LJ 843.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — When issued — No mandamus for declaring result of examination held under Executive Orders — (U. P. Government Industrial Manual, 1950 — Examination Rules for Government Technical Institutions, R. 4). AIR 1937 PC 31, Rel. on. AIR 1959 All 681 (683, 684) (Pt C) (Prs 10, 11, 13).

——Arts. 226 and 227 — High Court has no jurisdiction to issue mandamus contrary to law — Temporary permits — R. T. A. cannot be compelled to grant — (Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 62). 1959 All LJ 567.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — When can issue — Industrial Disputes (Banking Companies) Decisions Act (XLI of 1955) — Bank Award — Contravention — Interference.

The order of mandamus is an order of a most extensive remedial nature, and is, in form, a command issuing from the High Court of Justice, directed to any person, corporation, or inferior tribunal requiring him or them to do some particular thing therein specified which appertains to his or their office and is in the nature of a public duty. For an order of mandamus to issue for the enforcement of a statutory right, it must appear that the statute in question imposes a duty.

The Industrial Disputes (Banking Companies) Decisions Act by itself does not create any statutory obligation against any person. The awards recognised by the Act cannot be placed on a higher footing than a decree of a civil Court. High Court cannot issue a writ of mandamus. Moreover the management of the Bank (Central Bank of India, Ltd.) not being a judicial body or tribunal, certiorari cannot issue against them, in order to quash the disciplinary action against the petitioner (a bank employee) being contrary the terms of the Award. AIR 1958 All 413 (415) (Pt B) (Prs 10, 11, 12, 13).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Issue of, for enforcing provisions of press notification.

Press notifications issued by the State Government have no legal force. Where they do not appear to have been passed under the provisions of the Income-tax Act or any other law, the petitioners are not entitled to any relief by way of mandamus directing the opposite parties to enforce the provisions of the press notifications. (1957) 32 ITR 133: AIR 1957 All 711 (712, 713) (Pt A) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus directing reference of dispute to Court regarding compensation under Land Acquisition Act — (Land Acquisition Act (1894), Ss. 35, 36 and 37).

The land of the petitioner acquired under S. 35, Land Acquisition Act, was restored and the Collector made an award under S. 36 (2) awarding compensation to the petitioner for the damage done to the land. The petitioner filed an application before the Collector disputing the amount of compensation. The Collector refused to interfere with the award. A petition was filed under Art. 226 of the Constitution of India contending that there was a duty cast upon the opposite parties to refer the matter to Court for determination of the amount of compensation.

Held, that (1) as no dispute was raised at the stage of acquisition there was no mandatory duty under S. 35, sub-S. (3) which could be enforced by the High Court by means of a writ of mandamus. (2) The petitioners had no right to ask for a mandamus for a reference to any Court, if there was any dispute with regard to the amount of compensation for the damage done to the land payable under S. 36 (2) of the Act. (3) Mandamus could not also be issued directing the opposite parties to make a reference to Court under S. 37. (1957) All WR (HC) 96.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — (Houses and Rents— U. P. Cantonments (Rent Control and Eviction) Act (X of 1952), S. 10) — Petitioners forcibly dispossessed without authority of law — Mandamus to deliver back possession will be issued. Writ No. 679 of 1952 (All), Rel. on. 1957 AWR (HC) 35: 1957 All LJ 183.

——Art. 226 — Municipalities — U. P. Municipalities Act (2 of 1916), S. 87-A(11) — Duty of Presiding Officer under S. 87-A (11) — Failure of duty — Writ of mandamus can be issued. 1957 All LJ 114: 1957 All WR (HC) 228.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Right to claim pension under Pensions Act — (Pensions Act (1871), S. 8).

There is a duty cast upon the Deputy Commissioner or the Collector to pay the money payable to the applicant as a pension or grant of money or land revenue and it is open to the applicant to enforce the duty by means of a writ of mandamus. AIR 1956 All 564 (567, 568) (Pt B) (Pr 11) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Writ against custodian of evacuee property — (Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950), Ss. 8 (4) and 9).

Where the petitioners are mere trespassers and have not acquired any rights under U. P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, any rights they might acquire by payment of rent to the custodian could be put an end to by the custodian. In such a case a notice given by the custodian for the surrender of possession is a valid and legal one and he could use or cause to be used such force as may be necessary for taking possession of the property from the person, who may be asked to surrender possession. Therefore, the prayer for the issue of a writ of mandamus commanding the custodian to refrain from taking any steps to dispossess the petitioners from the land in dispute cannot be granted. 1955 All LJ 218: 1955 All WR (HC) 257: AIR 1955 All 538 (541) (Pt C) (Pr 9).

——Art. 226 — Writ of mandamus — When can be issued — It can be issued only for directing public servant to act in accordance with law or to refrain from acting contrary to law. AIR 1955 NUC (All) 1993.

——Art. 226 — Interference.

Railway authorities — No statutory or legal duty to keep railway servant in employment until age of 60 — No grievance made out — No interference by High Court. 1953 All WR (HC) 162: 1953 All LJ 76: AIR 1953 All 352 (352) (Pt B) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Issuance of — Essentials — Petitioner must have a clear legal right to the performance of a legal duty by the person against whom writ is sought. (1965) 58 ITR 840: (1962) 2 Andh WR 436: AIR 1963 Andh Pra 324 (327) (Pt A) (Pr 25).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — When can issue — Dereliction of duty on part of Municipality — Statutory power coupled with duty — Exercise of power left to discretion of statutory body — It does not excuse it from discharging its duty — Petitioner's application for renewal of licence to instal machinery — No reply — There is clear dereliction of duty — (Municipalities — Madras District Municipalities Act (V of 1920), Ss. 250 and 321 (ii)). See Municipalities — Madras District Municipalities Act, S. 321 (ii). AIR 1959 Andhra Pra 460.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Nature of duties which can be enforced by.

Mandamus cannot be issued to compel the subordinate authority to perform an implied duty. It can be issued only for the performance of a statutory or legal duty. 1959 AWR (HC) 166.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — When issued.

When a person is granted a mining lease of a portion of land which has already been leased for mining purposes by the State to the petitioner, an application for the issue of a writ of mandamus, praying that the Government be refrained from giving effect to the subsequent lease, would not lie because mandamus would be issued only to compel the performance by the Government or a public body of its statutory duties or to refrain from doing something contrary to law. AIR 1958 Andh Pra 632 (637) (Pt A) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Issue of writ — Absence of statutory duty — Effect — (Hyderabad Land Revenue Act (VIII of 1317-F), S. 59 and Settlement Rules, R. 8).

In order to be entitled to a direction in the nature of the mandamus, the petitioner must have a legal right to compel the performance of a legal duty and the person against whom it is sought must be under the legal obligation to perform that duty.

When lands are taken under Government supervision under R. 8 of the Settlement Rules, if the heirs appear within one year and are held duly entitled to the Patta of the land, the lessee to whom the land was leased out by the Revenue authorities shall be dispossessed after the harvesting of the last crop of the year and permanent patta of the land shall be sanctioned in favour of the rightful heir in accordance with S. 59 of the Hyderabad Land Revenue Act. S. 59 of that Act relates only to the granting of a patta and does not provide for the delivery of possession of the property. The High Court cannot, therefore, direct the delivery of actual possession by writ of mandamus. (1958) 1 An WR 216.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Breach of duty — Issue of writ. See Tenancy Laws — Madras Estates (Abolition and Conversion into Ryotwari) Act (XXVI of 1948), S. 34. (1958) 1 An. WR 124.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Acquisition officer erroneously refusing to pay interest on amount of compensation — Mandamus can be issued to such officer to consider application for payment of interest — Assam Land (Requisition and Acquisition) Act, 1948, S. 7. (1969) 1 Assam LR 233: ILR (1961) 13 Assam 382: AIR 1962 Assam 20 (22, 23) (Pt C) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Delegation of Financial Power Rules, 1960, framed by Government under Art. 166 — Settlement of forest coupe with petitioner by Conservator of Forests; subject of sale notice—Terms providing for appeal to Government — Petitioner when he submitted tender was bound by terms — Settlement set aside in appeal — He cannot claim that settlement by Conservator of Forests was final — Delegation of Financial Power Rules which have force of law do not deal with settlement of present coupe — Petitioner has no legal right and is not entitled to mandamus. See Assam Forest Regulation (1891), S. 2. ILR (1962) 14 Assam 416.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Violation of statutory provision by executive authority — High Court is competent to issue mandamus. ILR (1962) 14 Assam 139.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Appeal — Mandamus may be issued to compel Income-tax Officer, to perform his duty under S. 45, Income-tax Act. See Income Tax Act (1922), S. 45. AIR 1960 Assam 162 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Municipalities — Assam Municipalities Act (15 of 1957) Ss. 68, 119, 117, 154 — Scope — Rickshaws — Licence — There cannot be restriction on number of — Obligation to grant licence, when person is willing to pay license fees. See Municipalities — Assam Municipalities Act (15 of 1957) S. 68. (1960) 1 Assam LR 118.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus to enforce performance of duty — (Land Acquisition Act (1894), S. 18).

Section 18 of the Land Acquisition Act would require the performance of certain duty on the part of the Collector and when he fails to perform such duty that would entitle the High Court to interfere and direct him to do that. ILR (1958) 10 Assam 113.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Before mandamus can issue the petitioner must show that he has a legal right to the performance of a legal duty by the party against whom the mandamus is sought. AIR 1954 Assam 74 (75) (Pt A) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 12 (5) — Duty of Government to make reference — Refusal — Neglect or misconduct of worker if proper reason — Refusal even when satisfied that there was case for reference — Power of High Court to issue mandamus — (Words and Phrases — 'May'). See Industrial Disputes Act (1947) S. 12 (5). AIR 1956 Bom 273.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Municipalities — Bombay Provincial Municipal Corporation Act (LIX of 1949), Sch. Chap. 12, R. 4 — Disapproval by Municipality of construction of proposed building — Disapproval not lawful — Mandamus against Municipality to give permission will be issued. AIR 1956 Bom 117 (119) (Pt C) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Collector refusing to convene meeting for election of new President under S. 23 (1-A), Bombay Municipal Boroughs Act (XVIII of 1925) — Mandamus will issue — Municipalities — Bombay Municipal Boroughs Act (XVIII of 1925), S. 23 (1-A). ILR (1955) Bom 584: 57 Bom LR 421: AIR 1955 Bom 334 (336) (Pt C) (Pr 6) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — There must be legal duty incumbent on officer — Registrar filing decree passed by Judge acting extra cursum curiae — No writ can be issued forbidding Registrar to file decree which he is bound by law to file — Decision of Judge of High Court cannot be challenged in petition under Art. 226. AIR 1965 Cal 3 (10, 11) (Pt B) (Pr 10).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Petitioner has to satisfy the Court that he has a legal right which can be enforced by the writ. See Life Insurance Corporation Act (1956), S. 11 (1). AIR 1961 Cal 285 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Government refusing to make reference of industrial dispute — Writ to compel Government — Issue of. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 10. AIR 1958 Cal 271.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus, writ of — If can be issued to compel Municipality to give scheduled quantity of water to rate-payer — (Municipalities — (Bengal Municipal Act (XV of 1932), Ss. 278, 302 (1) and 311) — (House Connection Rules, R. 19).

Where it can be clearly shown that the Municipality, which is under a statutory obligation to supply to a ratepayer paying water rate certain minimum quality of water for domestic use under the rules made by Government, has got the means of supplying the full scheduled quantity and still is not doing so, there is no reason why a mandamus should not issue to compel the Municipality to carry out its statutory liability. AIR 1956 Cal 291 (294) (Pt C) (Pr 7).

——Art. 226 — Bengal Municipal Act (15 of 1932) — House Connection Rules, Rr. 10, 19 — Municipality realizing water rate from inhabitants — Statutory liability of Municipality to provide sufficient supply of water for domestic use — See Municipalities — Bengal Municipal Act (15 of 1932), S. 278. AIR 1956 Cal 291.

——Art. 226 — Right to carry on business is fundamental right — There is, however, no right to carry it in particular fashion — Existence of rival business is not invasion of his fundamental right — Diminution of income is not invasion of fundamental right — There being no legal right involved mandamus cannot be issued. See Ibid, Art. 19 (1) (g). AIR 1955 NUC (Cal) 4290.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus.

In order to succeed in an application for a writ of mandamus the applicant must satisfy the Court that he had a legal right to compel the performance of the duty and the person against whom the right is sought was under a legal obligation to perform that duty. The High Court has no power to issue any directions or writs under Art. 226 unless the applicant has a right. AIR 1952 SC 12, Ref. 57 Cal WN 790: AIR 1954 Cal 159 (162) (Pt C) (Prs 11, 12) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus, writ of — When can be issued.

A writ of mandamus would be issued only when there is a legal right in the petitioner and a statutory obligation imposed on the State to do a particular act.

Hence, where a Government servant is dismissed as a result of an enquiry held in accordance with the Hyderabad Public Servants (Tribunal of Enquiry) Act, a writ of mandamus for his reinstatement cannot be issued. ILR (1953) Hyd 648: AIR 1954 Hyd 28 (32) (Pt H) (Pr 10) (DB).

——Arts. 226, 309 and 310 — Mandamus — Circular No. 1864/1887, dated 19th May, 1950, of the Director of Public Instruction, Hyderabad.

Before a writ of mandamus can be issued to a public servant it must be shown that a duty towards the applicant has been imposed by the Constitution or by a Statute upon the public servant, so that he can be charged thereon independently of any duty, which he may owe to the State as his principal.

The phrase "service at the pleasure" has certain well defined implications and one of them is that infringements of the rules relating to the public servants do not give rise to any cause of action. Shenton v. Smith, (1895) AC 229, Rel. on.

The disregard of the service rules, when the employment is at the pleasure, do not furnish any cause of action for damages and a fortiori it cannot be made the basis of an application for a writ of mandamus. In both cases the reason is common that the rules being directory do not create any duty in favour of the employee. Hence that circular No. 1864/1887 issued by the Director of Public Instruction is contrary in the Hyderabad Civil Service Rules will not justify the issue of a writ of mandamus.

Similarly the Regional Languages Examination Rules framed and published by order of Nizam in exercise of his power under proviso to Art. 309 is not mandatory and is liable to variation. AIR 1952 Raj 17; AIR 1952 Madh B. 105; AIR 1953 Trav.-Co. 140 and AIR 1937 PC 31, Rel. on.

The regulations relating to the public services under the Constitution are directory, liable to be changed to suit the public policy of the State. Where the executive of the State in pursuance of the policy of making regional languages the medium of instruction in all primary schools have varied as regards teachers in such schools, the rules of examination of these languages for public servants in general and by doing so no duty towards the teachers has been violated because there were not officers whose tenures of office were guaranteed under the Constitution and there was no act of legislature which regulated the conditions of public service in the State a writ of mandamus cannot be issued against the circular containing the variations.

Further in the case of public servants no matter to what service the servants may belong and no matter what position they hold in the service and whatever may have been the terms of their employment, the qualification that the terms of their services are always subject to the qualification dictated by the public policy is implied in the engagement and further they cannot claim that the rules in force at the time of their employment are to be observed for all time to come. Therefore the circular cannot be declared void on the ground that it sought to enforce stipulations which were not in force at the time of their employment. ILR (1953) Hyd 498: AIR 1953 Hyd 298 (301, 302) (Pt B) (Prs 8, 9, 10, 11, 12) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Tax illegally collected by State Government — Writ of mandamus may be issued to State Government to refund tax illegally collected. AIR 1959 SC 135 and 1961 Ker LJ 1336, Rel. on. ILR (1962) 2 Ker 400: 1962 Ker LJ 1312: 1962 Ker LT 826: AIR 1963 Ker 31 (42, 43) (Pt D) (Pr 67).

——Art. 226 — Inspector General of Municipalities incurring obligation under Gwalior Municipalities Act to notify election — S. 2, M. B. Municipalities Act if provides for implementation of such obligation — Issue of writ of mandamus. See Municipalities — M. B. Municipalities Act (1 of 1954), S. 2. AIR 1955 NUC (Madh B.) 3753 (DB).

——Arts. 226, 16 — Mandamus — Candidate eligible to appear for competitive examination — Permission refused by Public Service Commission — Writ of mandamus will be issued. AIR 1955 NUC (Madh B.) 3348 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Madhya Bharat Sthan Niyantran Vidhan (1950), Section 9. District Judge refusing to entertain appeal — Writ of mandamus. See Houses and Rents — Madhya Bharat Sthan Niyantran Vidhan (1950), S. 9. AIR 1955 NUC (Madh B.) 2118 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Writ of Mandamus, when issued — Party must have a legal right to the performance of legal duty by another party. ILR (1953) Madh B. 393: AIR 1953 Madh B. 165 (169, 170) (Pt A) (Pr 8) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Issue of — Civil servant officiating in higher post — Reversion to substantive post by way of penalty for certain period — No right to be promoted to higher post after expiry of period—Mandamus to direct promotion to Higher Grade cannot issue. See Ibid Art. 311. AIR 1960 Madh Pra 216 (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 19 (1) (g) — Mandamus — Writ can issue prohibiting authority to do certain thing — Infringement of fundamental right to carry on trade by stopping movement of foodgrains in absence of any notification — Mandamus may be issued. AIR 1956 Manipur 13 (16) (Prs 17, 18).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Failure to perform statutory obligation, under R. 96, Defence of India Rules — Mandamus will issue. AIR 1956 Manipur 1 (4) (Pt B) (Pr 15).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Refusal to make reference under S. 18, Land Acquisition Act — Mandamus can issue. See Land Acquisition Act (1894), S. 18. AIR 1960 Mys 264 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Exercise of powers — "For any other purpose" — Discretionary — When exercised.

A publisher of text books applied under Art. 226 for the issue of a writ of mandamus against the D. P. I. Orissa, to include a book published by her and the book included in the approved list for 1950-1951, should continue to be in the list for 1951-52 in accordance with the Education Code.

Held: The proper interpretation of Art. 226, would be that in enforcing a fundamental right guaranteed under the Constitution the Court is under a duty to exercise its power under the article, while it has discretion to exercise it "for any other purposes". No doubt the Article vests unlimited powers but it is not to be exercised arbitrarily, capriciously or indiscriminately. It is subject to sound judicial discretion and governed by well-established legal principles. A writ of mandamus will not be issued where there is no legal duty in the respondent to perform and a corresponding clear legal right in the petitioner to be enforced. (Case-law ref.)

(Per Das, C. J.) — Art. 226 cannot be construed to vest in the Courts unrestricted powers to administer, supposed equity not based on a justiciable foundation. (AIR 1944 Mad 187, Not foll).

Held: The petitioner had not proved any legal right in her that could be enforced against the authority who had exercised the discretion vested in him according to the instructions of the Government. He was under no legal obligation to be bound by the rules of a defunct committee and recognise the text book of the petitioner particularly when the instructions in the matter notified in Gazette were not carried out by the petitioner. ILR (1952) Cut 410: AIR 1952 Orissa 344 (347, 348, 349) (Pt A) (Prs 10, 11, 14) (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 149 — Mandamus — Circumstances for.

The duties imposed on the Comptroller under the Audit Code which derives its authority under Art. 149 of the Constitution are obviously statutory and the powers given thereunder in regard to the payment of passage benefit have to be exercised as warranted. Thus, where the Accountant General, Bihar, at the first instance issued passage certificates to the wife and children of the petitioner who was a member of Indian Civil Service, but later on refused to pay the same and this act was found to be arbitrary and without any legal justification, and also that no other remedy equally effective was available to the petitioner:

Held, that it was a fit case in which the writ of mandamus could be issued. 1957 BLJR 299 (2): ILR 36 Pat 557: AIR 1957 Pat 515 (526) (Pt G) (Pr 17) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Duty of Collector — Failure in — Mandamus. See Land Acquisition Act (1894), S 11. AIR 1955 Pat 63 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Industrial Disputes Act (1947) Ss. 10 (1) and 2 (k) — Strike notice containing several demands — Reference under S. 10 (1) in respect of only some is intra vires and legal — Mandamus directing State Government to refer remaining disputes cannot be issued. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 10 (1). AIR 1952 Pat 210 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus.

Where the petitioner submitted that a writ of mandamus be issued to the State directing them to implement the orders made by the Chief Minister and the Education Minister but the petitioner did not allege and prove that it was the duty of the Government to implement the orders in question, and further that he had approached the Government for the appropriate relief and they had refused to grant the same to him:

Held, that the petitioner did not make out any case for issue of a writ of mandamus. ILR (1953) Patiala 639: AIR 1954 Pepsu 129 (131, 132) (Pt D) (Pr 7).

——Art. 226 — Powers of High Court — Decision of appropriate Government not to refer a dispute to Tribunal — Nature of order — Interference — Report of Conciliation Officer under S. 12 (4) of Industrial Disputes Act, not considered — Reference declined on extraneous considerations — Government deciding on merits the matter sought to be referred — Government cannot usurp the function of tribunal or Industrial Court and refuse reference — Writ of mandamus Issued — Industrial Disputes Act (1947) Ss. 10 (1), 12 (5) — Refusal of reference by Government — Based on decision on merits of the case — Report of conciliation officer not considered — Refusal to refer based on extraneous consideration is illegal. 1965 Cur LJ 541: ILR (1965) 2 Punj 802: (1965-66) 29 FJR 155.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Application under S. 57 (8), Motor Vehicles Act, by Motor Service for increase in number of trips — Application calls for early disposal — Delay in disposal — Mandamus for disposal is justified. AIR 1962 Punj 532 (534) (Pt C) (Pr 11).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Right to apply for — Right must be clear and well defined — (Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 10 (1) (c)).

Mandamus is discretionary writ and will not be granted unless the rights of the petitioner are clear. He must show not only that he has a legal right to have the act performed but that the right is so clear and well-defined as to be free from any reasonable controversy. The writ cannot issue when the right is doubtful, or not complete, or is a qualified one, or where it depends upon an issue of fact to be determined by the respondent. Section 10 (1 (c), Industrial Disputes Act, 1947, confers no legal right on the employers, and imposes no duty on the State Government. Mandamus cannot issue to determine academic questions or empty and barren technical rights. 60 Punj LR 425: (1958-59) 15 FJR 49: (1959) 1 Lab LJ 274: ILR (1958) Punj 2061: AIR 1959 Punj 75 (78) (Pt B) (Pr 8) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Retrenchment of employee in violation of provisions of S. 25, Industrial Disputes Act — Raising of dispute by Union of which he was member — Failing settlement during conciliation proceedings, Conciliation Officer referring matter to Government under S. 12 (4) — Government refusing without assigning reasons to refer dispute under S. 12 (5) — Application by Union for issue of writ of mandamus is maintainable. AIR 1960 All 738; AIR 1962 Mys 25 and AIR 1962 Cal 45, Disting. AIR 1960 SC 1223, Rel. on. 1964 Raj LW 37: ILR (1964) 14 Raj 201: (1965) 1 Lab LJ 229.

——Art. 226 — Member of Legislative Assembly arrested and detained under due process of law — No privilege to be allowed to attend session of Assembly — Writ of mandamus will not issue directing State Government to enable him to attend Session of Legislative Assembly. See Ibid, Art. 194 (3). AIR 1955 Trav-Co 154 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 12 (5) — Scope — Statutory obligation under S. 12 (5) on Government — Writ of mandamus — See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 12 (5). AIR 1953 Trav-Co 286.

237 (c). Private right.

——Art. 226 — Certiorari and mandamus — Nationalisation of bus transport services — R. T. A. offering alternative routes to displaced operators in lieu of compensation — Offer accepted — Offer and acceptance recorded in resolution by R. T. A. — Writ petition by existing operator on alternative route, for certiorari to quash resolution and for mandamus commanding R. T. A. not to permit displaced operators to operate on alternate route — Not maintainable — Prima facie loss in petitioner's earnings on account of increase in competition not sufficient for grant of mandamus. AIR 1961 All 214, Reversed. ILR (1961) 1 All 52: AIR 1962 All 551 (552, 553, 561) (Pt A) (Prs 5, 6, 7, 61) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Right to property — Infringement — Hereditary managing agency rights — Nature of — Issue of writ of mandamus. See Ibid, Art. 19 (1) (f). AIR 1957 Mad 309 (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 14 — Applicability — Mandamus can issue for enforcement of public duty — Enforcement of private right under mortgage does not involve public duty — Enforcement of right to sell mortgaged property without intervention of Court under S. 69 T. P. Act, in City of Madras — Such right not granted outside limits of city — Art. 14 has no application — (T. P. Act (1882), S. 69). See Ibid, Art. 14. AIR 1954 NUC (Mad) 1828.

——Art. 226 — Writ of mandamus — Issue of, to enforce status — Right and status — Distinction.

Per Ray C. J. — Right should not be confused with status. Status may be the result of a perfected right; but the facts that would constitute the status to be declared by certain public authority, when performed, create a title to the status. This title, if it is a recognisable one, creates a right though the same, until recognised, falls short of the status.

To illustrate, it may be compared to a right to sue for declaration of a status which is as good a right as the right involved in the status itself for the purpose of enforceability. Whatever can be legally enforced is a specific legal right for the protection whereof a writ of mandamus may lawfully issue. ILR (1951) Cut 407: 17 Cut LT 320: AIR 1952 Orissa 1 (10, 11) (Pt C) (Pr 30) (DB).

[Reversed on another point in AIR 1954 SC 217].

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Grant of writ — Jurisdiction — When to be exercised — Private dispute between parties — Apprehension of dispossession — Appropriate relief available by resort to ordinary Civil Court — Application for writ will not lie — Discretion. AIR 1949 Bom 229, AIR 1946 Bom 216, AIR 1946 Bom 407; AIR 1928 Pat 49, Dist. AIR 1951 Pat 231 (241) (Pts B, C) (Pr 26) (DB).

238. Duty and liability, distinction.

See Note 237.

239. Educational authority, against.

——Art. 226 — Question of fact.

Matters of the internal administration of a College, involving disputed questions of fact are not proper matters for enquiry by the Court on an application under Art. 226. 62 Cal WN 259: ILR (1959) 1 Cal 28: AIR 1958 Cal 131 (134) (Pt A) (Pr 14) (DB).

240. Election, mandamus to elect.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus against Corporation to elect member to Standing Committee.

Where the election of a member to the standing Committee of a Corporation presided over by a Mayor is invalid, a writ of mandamus can be effectively issued to the Corporation to compel it to elect a member even though the Mayor is not a party when the corporation is a party represented by the Commissioner and he can be directed to perform the statutory duty. (1958) 1 An WR 22: ILR (1958) Andh Pra 17.

——Art. 226 — Assam Municipal Act (XV of 1957), S. 301 — Rules under — Rules for election of Commissioners of Municipal Boards, R. 11 — Non-compliance with rule — Writ of mandamus cannot issue after election. AIR 1957 SC 304 and AIR 1955 Nag 49 (FB), Dist. ILR (1963) 15 Assam 29: AIR 1963 Assam 168 (169, 170, 175) (Pt A) (Prs 7, 9, 23) (DB).

——Art. 226 (1) — Mandamus to restore, admit or elect to office.

Mandamus to restore, admit or elect to office will not be granted unless the office is vacant. If the office in fact is full, the proceeding should be taken by way of quo waranto or election petition to oust the party in possession — Mandamus will go only on supposition that there is no one holding the office in question. Mandamus however will be issued commanding election to an office, when although there has been an election to the office in question yet such election is void or merely colourable. AIR 1953 Assam 12 (13) (Pt B) (Pr 3) (DB).

241. Errors, mandamus to correct.

(a) Illustrative cases.

See also Note 237.

241. Errors, mandamus to correct.

●——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Industrial dispute —Refusal of appropriate Govt. to refer dispute — Propriety or correctness of reasons for refusal whether can be enquired into by Court in petition for mandamus. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 10 (1). AIR 1964 SC 1617.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Writ of — Will not issue for correcting mere errors of law — Wrong construction of S. 30 of Sea Customs Act by Customs Officer. (1960) 2 Andh WR 545: AIR 1961 Andh Pra 170 (172, 173) (Pt B) (Prs 17, 23) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Defects in statement of case and question formulated by Appellate Tribunal — Remedies open to party aggrieved — A party not satisfied by the statement of case of the Appellate Tribunal in a reference made under S. 66 I. T. Act, can get it amplified by moving High Court for a writ of mandamus. See Income-tax Act (1922) S. 66 (2). AIR 1956 Cal 636 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Issue of writ — Shipping Master and Government Medical Officers not conducting medical examination of seamen in reasonable manner — Madamus will lie. AIR 1951 Cal 570 (572, 573) (Pt A) (Prs 10, 15).

241 (a). Illustrative cases.

See also Note 237.

●——Arts. 226, 234, 309 — Proviso — Mysore Munsiffs (Recruitment) Rules (1958), Rr. 6, 9, 12 — Persons selected by Public Service Commission for posts of Munsiffs — Unsuccessful candidates challenging validity of selection by writ petitions — High Court finding the list vitiated by irregularities but directing inclusion of petitioners therein and confirming it — Order which was in the nature of mandamus held not authorised by Art. 226 — Other alleged irregularity also held not substantiated — Decision in Writ Petns. Nos. 923, 1080, 1446, 1461, 1462 and 1528 of 1962 dated 19-12-1962 (Mys), Reversed. AIR 1963 Mys 292, Affirmed. State of Mysore v. Chandrasekhara. 1965 SCD 243: (1965) 1 SCJ 702: (1965) 1 Andh LT 333: AIR 1965 SC 532 (537, 538, 539) (Prs 10, 12, 13).

——Art. 226 — Motor Vehicles Act (1939), Sections 48 and 64 — Civil P. C. (1908), O. 41, R. 33, Preamble—R. T. A. granting pucca stage carriage permit only to two applicants out of 70 — Appeal against order of R. T. A. only by 25 — Appellate authority remanding case for fresh disposal in accordance with law — On remand, R. T. A. issuing notices to all 70 applicants — Petition by one of appellants praying for issue of writ of prohibition directing R. T. A. to forbear from considering subject relating to grant of permits in pursuance of notices consequent on remand — Held, order of remand must mean and could only mean that direction was to consider 'case' of parties to 25 appeals before appellate authority — Though terms of one statute could not be interpreted with reference to another, by way of analogy, even applying principles of O. 41, R. 33, appeal against order of R. T. A. could not enure to benefit of anybody, except appellant, as each appeal was separate venture—Fact that appeals were considered in batch would make no difference to individuality of appeal—Though on remand, R. T. A. acted without jurisdiction there was no question of any lack of initial jurisdiction in him—Though, therefore, relief (writ of prohibition) could not be granted, petition would not fail for failure to ask appropriate relief—Proper relief would be writ of mandamus.

A I R 1954 Mad 848, Rel. on. I L R (1963) Andh Pra 1028.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Refusal to make reference under S. 18, Land Acquisition Act.

Person who was not present at time of passing award and to whom statutory notice under S. 12 (2), Land Acquisition Act remained unserved filing application for reference under S. 18 nearly 4 years after date of award but within six months from knowledge of award — Collector dismissing application as barred — Writ of Mandamus directing Collector to make reference issued as application was not barred by limitation under S. 18 (2), Land Acquisition Act. 1955 Andhra WR 912: 1955 Andh LT (Cri) 755: AIR 1957 Andh Pra 687 (688) (Pt B) (Pr 3).

——Art. 226 — Assam Land (Requisition and Acquisition) Act (1948), S. 8 (1) (b) — Collector's duty — A statutory duty is cast on the Collector to refer the question of compensation where land is requisitioned under the Act to the Court of the District Judge, if the question cannot be settled by agreement. When there was long delay in the performance of that duty the High Court directed the Collector to refer the question of compensation to the District Judge under S. 8 (1) (b) of the Act. See Assam Land (Requisition and Acquisition) Act (25 of 1948) S. 8 (1) (b). AIR 1953 Assam 143.

——Art. 226 — Legal right of unobstructed user of footpath — Liability of municipal and Police authorities to maintain such right — Failure by these officers — High Court can issue writ of mandamus. See Municipalities — Calcutta Municipal Act (XXXIII of 1951), S. 353. 65 Cal WN 133.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Failure to perform duties by Land Acquisition Officer — Writ — Issue of — (Land Acquisition Act (1894), S. 11).

Where the Land Acquisition Officer has failed in the performance of the duties cast by the statute upon him, a writ in the nature of mandamus would lie under Art. 226 of the Constitution commanding him to perform the statutory duty. AIR 1955 Pat 63, Foll. ('59) 63 Cal WN 851: ILR (1960) 2 Cal 103.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Failure to do public duty.

The foundation for an application for a writ of mandamus is the failure to do some public duty. Where a proposed resolution relates to a matter 'connected with the Gujarat University' (as required by Statute 22) it becomes the bounden duty of the Vice-Chancellor, who normally presides over the meeting of the Senate, to permit and regulate discussion of the same, unless there is some legal impediment to that being done. A resolution by which the Senate requests the State Government and the State Legislature to take early steps to amend the proviso to S. 4 (27) of the Gujarat University Act so as to extend the time limit of ten years mentioned in it to twenty years is certainly one relating to a matter connected with the University. Where the Vice-Chancellor does not allow the Senate to entertain and discuss such a resolution he must be held to have failed in his duty and a writ of mandamus must issue. (1960) 1 Guj HCR 60: (1960) 1 Guj LR 67: AIR 1960 Guj 14 (17, 18, 19) (Pt A) (Prs 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Grounds for — Failure to discharge duty—Proceedings under Land Acquisition Act — Officer acting arbitrarily — Refusal to make reference under S. 18 Land Acquisition Act — Writ of mandamus could be issued. 76 Mad LW 166: AIR 1963 Mad 109 (110) (Pr 4).

——Art. 226 — Land Acquisition Act (1894), S. 49 (1), Proviso — Application by owner claiming land to be part of house — Rejection of application by Collector — Validity — Reference of matter to Civil Court — Refusal to do so is without jurisdiction — Mandamus issued. See Land Acquisition Act (1894) S. 49 (1). AIR 1956 Mad 583.

——Art. 226 — Issue of writ — Grounds.

Refusal of Commissioner of Income-tax to entertain revision application on a wrong view as to limitation — Writ of mandamus can issue to direct him to entertain and dispose of the application according to law. See Income-Tax Act (XI of 1922), S. 33-A (2). AIR 1951 Mad 204 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Assam Co-operative Societies Act, 1949 (I of 1950), Ss. 10, 11 — Duty of Registrar — Order of Registrar not in accordance with provisions of Act — No remedy under Act against the order — Petition under Art. 226, is maintainable. See Assam Co-operative Societies Act, 1949 (I of 1950), S. 10. AIR 1965 Manipur 1.

——Arts. 226 and 227 — Making of interim payment of compensation — Collector failing to perform statutory duty — Writs can be issued — Tenancy Laws — Bihar Land Reforms Act (XXX of 1950), S. 33. 1960 BLJR 297.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Application for reference under S. 18 (1), Land Acquisition Act, wrongly rejected as barred by limitation — Mandamus issued to Collector to make reference, since he was bound to make reference in the circumstances. 1958 BLJR 350: AIR 1959 Pat 83 (86) (Pt C) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Claim for compensation in respect of damage done to property during period of requisition — Failure of State Government to appoint arbitrator — Mandamus could be issued — (Public Safety — Bihar Maintenance of Public Order Act 1949 (III of 1950), S. 12 (3) (ii)). 1958 Pat LR 82.

——Arts. 226 and 227 — Mandamus — Writ of — Refusal by Government to refer industrial dispute to tribunal for adjudication — High Court cannot issue writ or direction — Industrial Disputes Act, S. 10. (1952) 2 Lab LJ 17: AIR 1952 Pat 447 (448, 449) (Prs 12, 13) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Eviction proceedings — Necessity of show cause notice — Provisions of S. 4 (2) (a) mandatory — Order passed without complying with said provisions illegal—Mandamus issued — Constitution of India, Art. 226 — Restoration of possession. See Houses and Rents — Punjab Premises and Land (Eviction and Rent Recovery) Act (XXXI of 1959), S. 24 (2) (a). ('62) 64 Punj LR 997.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Vice-Chairman of Municipal Committee failing to convene meeting — (Municipalities — Ajmer-Merwara Municipalities Regulation (VI of 1925), Ss. 13 (2), 48 and 50 (2) — Scope.

At a meeting of the Municipal Committee the resignation of the Chairman was accepted and it was decided to call a fresh meeting within 10 days for election of a chairman. The Senior Vice-Chairman did not take any steps to call another meeting and failed to call a meeting till an application was filed for a writ of mandamus directing the Senior Vice-chairman to convene a meeting to elect a new chairman and the attempt of the Junior Vice-chairman to convene a meeting also failed.

Held, (i) that S. 13 (2) of the Regulation provides that a casual vacancy in the office of the Chairman shall be filled within fifteen days of the occurrence of the vacancy. Section 48 provides that it shall be the duty of the Vice-Chairman present to perform, during the temporary absence of the Chairman or during a vacancy in the office of Chairman, the duties of the Chairman. It was the duty of petitioner No. 1 to perform the duties of Chairman in the temporary absence of the Senior Vice-Chairman. As the Senior Vice-Chairman had gone out of station the Junior Vice-Chairman had authority to call a meeting. The action of the Senior Vice-Chairman in cancelling the meeting was illegal. So was the action of the Collector in cancelling the meeting. (ii) Under S. 50 (2), the Senior Vice-Chairman had no valid excuse for not calling a meeting on that requisition. (iii) That the Senior Vice-Chairman should be directed to convene a meeting of the Committee. ILR (1959) 9 Raj 303.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — When can issue —(Punjab Coal Control Order (1955), Paragraphs 10, 11).

A mandamus can issue only if the Court is satisfied that the petitioner has a specific legal right to the performance of the act sought to be enforced and that the respondent has a legal duty to perform the said act. The right must be so clear and certain as not to admit of any reasonable doubt and the duty must be a duty specially enjoined by law.

Where there was not the slightest suggestion that the petitioner had obtained his coal depot by false pretence or that he had contravened any of the provisions of Punjab Coal Control Order of 1955 and yet the Government cancelled his depot on the ground which was wholly unauthorised by law:

Held, that the State Government failed to perform the duty which had been imposed on it by law and the petitioner had a right to the enforcement of the said duty by the issue of a writ of mandamus. 59 Punj LR 647: ILR (1958) Punj 547.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Panchayat officer not notifying result of election — Mandamus to Chief Panchayat Officer, will issue — (Panchayats — Rajasthan Panchayat Election Rules, Rr. 19 and 20). 1958 Raj LW 219: ILR (1958) 8 Raj 177.

242. Executive duty and ministerial act.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Writ of, against ministerial officers — Forest Act (1927) S. 82 — Punjab Land Revenue Act (XVII (17) of 1887) Ss. 70, 97, 98.

In ordering or making attachment of the petitioner's property on receipt of a precept from the Chief Conservator of Forests under section 82 of the Forest Act the Collector and the Assistant Collector are merely carrying out a duty imposed upon them by that section and section 70 of the Punjab Land Revenue Act.

It is not incumbent upon them, before ordering or making attachment, to go into the merits of the precept. Sections 70, 97 and 98 of the Land Revenue Act, do not enjoin duty upon the revenue authorities to enter into the merits of a precept under section 82 of the Forest Act before executing it. The Collector and the Assistant Collector who are concerned merely with execution of the precept under S. 82, Forest Act received from the Chief Conservator of Forests, are nothing but "ministerial officers" obeying the orders of a competent authority and a writ of mandamus cannot be granted against them.

Further, when the Himachal Pradesh Government through the Chief Conservator of Forests issued the attachment, and have it in their power to forbear from demanding the dues in question or enforcing their recovery from the petitioner, any mandamus or other writ issued to the Collector & the Assistant Collector that they be ordered to withdraw the attachment and to forbear from demanding the amount claimed against him or enforcing the recovery of the same as arrears of land revenue would be entirely futile in its result. Such a mandamus or other writ will be merely brutum fulmen, for they have no power lodged in them to obey it and for this reason also writ of mandamus cannot be granted. Case law rel. on. AIR 1952 Him P. 16 (17, 18) (Pt A) (Prs 5, 6, 8).

——Art. 226 — Travancore-Cochin Public Health Act (XVI of 1955), S. 42 — Prohibitory order under S. 42 by Health Inspector and Taluk Health Officer — District Collector and District Superintendent of Police not entitled to consider validity of such order and permit breach of prohibitory order under public protection — Issue of mandamus. See Travancore Cochin Public Health Act (XVI of 1955), Section 42. 1964 (1) Cri LJ 190: AIR 1964 Ker 29.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Executive and Ministerial acts.

Where a matter is left to the absolute subjective discretion of the Executive, mandamus will not lie to question the decision of the Executive on such matter. Where a matter has to be decided by the Executive after considering pros and cons, mandamus will not lie to question the decision. AIR 1956 Manipur 1 (4) (Pt C) (Pr 15).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Issue of — Executive and ministerial act — Distinction pointed out. 60 Punj LR 425: (1958-59) 15 FJR 49: (1959) 1 Lab LJ 274: ILR (1958) Punj 2061: AIR 1959 Punj 75 (78) (Pt C) (Pr 9) (DB).

243. Futile writ.

See Note 53.

244. Government, against.

See Note 225.

245. Grounds of.

(a) Act impeached as ultra vires, duty under.

245. Grounds of

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Grounds for issue — Anticipatory breach of right.

An anticipatory breach of the alleged rights of a citizen cannot be a ground for the issue of a writ of mandamus. AIR 1958 Andh Pra 632 (635) (Pt E) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Issue of — Grounds — Madras Preservation of Private Forests Act (XXVII of 1949), S. 10 — Rules under, R. 7 — Order of District Collector directing District Forest Officer to issue Form II permit — Latter suspending permit — Issue of mandamus — Competency. See Andhra Preservation of Forests Act (XII of 1954), S. 3 (2). 1958 An. LT 639.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Refusal to make reference under S. 18, Land Acquisition Act, on application by person who was not present at time of passing award and to whom statutory notice under S. 12 (2) of Land Acq. Act had remained unserved — Application for reference nearly 4 years after date of award but within 6 months from knowledge of award — Dismissal of application as barred — Mandamus issued. 1955 Andh WR 912: 1955 Andh LT (Civ) 755: AIR 1957 AP 687 (688) (Pt B) (Pr 3).

——Art. 226 — Grounds for interference — (Life Insurance Corporation Act (1956), S. 11).

Sub-section (1) of S. 11 of Life Insurance Corporation Act, makes it clear that so far as a worker is concerned who was employed by an insurer before he became employed by the Life Insurance Corporation, he was to receive and continue to receive remuneration at the rate that he was receiving before. Where the petitioners were not receiving dearness allowance previously and their entire claim was based on sub-S. (2) of S. 11, they can only claim dearness allowance if the same is made payable by orders of the Central Government made under this provision of the Act.

Where the criteria for fitting the existing Field Officers into that scale have still to be determined the High Court will not interfere in the matter and compel the Corporation to make payments in haphazard fashion. AIR 1959 Cal 785 (785, 786) (Prs 1, 3).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Premature application.

The applicant was served with a notice by the Collector of Customs to show cause why the Fluorescent Tubes and accessories and/or the sale proceeds thereof should not be confiscated under S. 167 (8) of the Sea Customs Act. The petitioner had already been prosecuted and acquitted of a charge under S. 420/120-B, Penal Code in respect of the fraudulent misrepresentation in obtaining the licence. In a petition against the Collector for issuing a writ in the nature of mandamus directing him to recall the notice:

Held, at the present only a notice had been given to show cause and that was not a statutory notice required by the Sea Customs Act. It was a notice given because rules of natural justice required that the person whose goods were to be confiscated or upon whom a penalty was to be imposed, should be afforded an opportunity to defend his case. Such a notice should not be construed like a statutory notice. There was no reason why the Court should interfere at that stage. If the authorities after investigating the matter made an order not in accordance with law or followed a procedure not known to law then the petitioners might ask for relief at the proper stage. 1957 Cri. LJ 1116: AIR 1957 Cal 606 (613) (Pt D) (Prs 17, 18).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 12 (3) — Conciliation proceedings — Workers requesting their Union to convene general body meeting on failure to arrive at settlement — But workers themselves directly arriving at settlement before any such meeting was convened on ground that office bearers of Union had been removed — Settlement fully implemented on respondent Labour Officer and Conciliation Officer affixing signature thereto — Petition by Secretary of Union for prohibiting respondent to give effect to settlement or for declaring it nullity — Ground that failure by respondent to examine locus standi of workers to arrive at settlement resulted in failure to exercise functions under S. 12 — Petition challenged on ground that petitioner was not workman and had no locus standi to maintain petition — Held on facts that petitioner had locus standi to maintain petition — However he could not claim relief of mandamus or declaration. 1959-1 LLJ 520 and 1961-1 LLJ 303 Rel. on. Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 12 (3). 1965 Ker LJ 1077.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Issue of — Rules under S. 26, Trav. Abkari Act, R. 12 — Rule does not vest arbitrary power with Board of Revenue — Board not acting under rule nor declining to act — No mandamus can be issued against Board — (Travancore Abkari Act (IV of 1073), S. 26). 1959 Ker LT 1278: 1959 Ker LJ 1390: ILR (1959) Ker 1212: AIR 1960 Ker 164 (167) (Pt B) (Pr 16) (DB).

245 (a). Act impeached as ultra vires, duty under.

——Art. 226 — Issue of show-cause notice on petitioner for his removal from office of mutwallifship — Petitioner challenging vires of Act under which notice is issued — Petition is not premature. AIR 1955 SC 661 and AIR 1961 SC 372, Rel. on. AIR 1965 All 333 (336, 337) (Pt A) (Prs 9, 10).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Examination held by Government — Condition that candidate must have put in more than one year of continuous service on specified date — Petitioner not permitted to appear at examination as condition alleged to be not fulfilled — Validity of order.

To appear at Special Lower Division Secretariat Examination, one condition imposed by a Government circular was that an assistant who was employed on a temporary basis must have put in more than one year of continuous service as Lower Division Assistant. The petitioner was not permitted to appear at the examination as there was no continuous period of service for one year. But it appeared that the order was not actually communicated to the petitioner.

Held, that, in the circumstances, the order refusing to give permission to the petitioner to appear at the examination was ultra vires. Held, further that a writ in the nature of mandamus should be issued commanding the respondents to publish the result of the examination so far as the petitioner was concerned. AIR 1957 Pat 393 (395) (Prs 5, 6) (DB).

——Art. 226—Mandamus when to be issued — Order of Cloth Controller under constitutionally invalid provisions of Bihar Cotton Cloth and Yarn (Control) Order (1948), refusing to renew license — Mandamus will issue against authority commanding them not to give effect to order. See Bihar Cotton Cloth and Yarn (Control) Order (1948), Cl. 5 (1) and (2). AIR 1954 Pat 325 (DB).

246. History of.

See Note 234.

247. Individual officer, against.

See Note 225

248. Interim relief.

See Note 63.

249. Judicial and quasi-judicial authorities.

See also Notes in Part D (Notes 224 to 275) relating to particular authorities.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Issue of writ to Judicial and quasi-judicial authorities — (U. P. Cement Control Order (1955), Cl. 5).

No mandamus directing the Cement Controller to decide an appeal under the U. P. Cement Control Order, 1955 'immediately' will be issued. The word 'immediately' is not capable of any precise meaning. The Cement Controller's duties are multifarious and he alone is the best judge of the priorities of the various duties he has to perform. Hence the time of decision of an appeal should safely be left to his own consciousness and devotion to duty. 1959 All WR (HC) 166.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Orders without jurisdiction affecting rights of petitioners — Mandamus could be issued to officers concerned to withdraw orders. AIR 1955 All 165 (166, 167) (Pt B) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226 — U. P. Industrial Disputes Act (1947) S. 3 — General order of Government referring dispute to Tribunal — Clause in order empowering Tribunal to direct employers to pay travelling expenses and leave pay of representatives of workers, representing their case — Such direction must be included in costs in award — Amount can be recovered as arrears of land revenue — Writ of mandamus prohibiting its recovery held could not issue. See U. P. Industrial Disputes Act (28 of 1947), S. 3. AIR 1955 NUC (All) 2026.

——Art. 226 — Small Cause suit for recovery of rent — Application by tenant for fixation of rent — Maintainability — Writ of mandamus against Rent Controller directing him to fix rent — If lies — See Houses and Rents — U. P. Temporary Control of Rent and Eviction Act (3 of 1947), S. 3A. AIR 1951 All 710 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Jurisdiction of High Court — Mandamus when may be issued — Order of Income-tax Officer in clear violation of directions given by Appellate Tribunal — No injustice to petitioner — No writ will be issued. AIR 1956 Bhopal 18 (20, 21, 22) (Prs 9, 12, 13, 15, 18).

[Reversed in AIR 1961 SC 182].

——Art. 226 (1) — Writ of certiorari — Issue of to correct error of law.

Ordinarily the Court issues a writ of certiorari to correct the decisions of subordinate Courts and Tribunals when those decisions are given in excess of jurisdiction, or in the irregular exercise of jurisdiction, or when in the exercise of jurisdiction rules of natural justice are violated. The Court has the jurisdiction to issue a writ of certiorari even to correct an error of law provided that error is apparent on the face of the record. The error of law which can be considered to be apparent on the face of the record is not error which can be pointed out to the superior Court after a long and elaborate argument. The error of law contemplated is an error so patent, so manifest, that the superior Court will not permit the subordinate Court to come to a decision in the face of a clear ignorance or disregard of a provision of law. If a section of a Statute is clearly misconstrued, or if a provision of the law is overlooked or not applied, and that appears from the judgment of the lower Court itself, then the superior Court may interfere by a writ of certiorari. 53 Bom LR 1009: ILR (1952) Bom 995: AIR 1952 Bom 235 (240, 241) (Pt C) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Powers of High Court — High Court can issue direction to subordinate Tribunal to take further evidence and determine question. AIR 1952 Bom 443, Dissented from. ILR (1961) 1 Cal 938: AIR 1961 Cal 95 (97) (Pt B) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus and certiorari — Issue of writs — Matters for consideration — Quasi-judicial and administrative proceedings — Order of Collector cancelling license under S. 42, Bengal Excise Act and order of Excise Commissioner on appeal — Interference by High Court.

If an application for a writ of mandamus or certiorari is made, the High Court has to consider, where the proceedings are to be considered as judicial or quasi-judicial, whether they were conducted in accordance with those accepted principles in which a judicial proceeding or a quasi-judicial proceeding should be conducted. In such a proceeding, a party must have the amplest opportunity of testing any evidence given against him and must be given an opportunity of being heard at every stage and no evidence should be taken in his absence. If, however, the proceedings are purely administrative, the High Court can only interfere if a public officer does something which he has no jurisdiction to do or fails to do something which is incumbent upon him to do. The acts of commission or omission must relate to some provision of law. In other words, if a public officer is not required by any law or by anything which has the force of law to do or to refrain from doing any particular act then the High Court is powerless to direct him to do that act or refrain from doing it. It is not possible for the High Court to interfere on grounds of expediency alone. If something is left entirely to the discretion of an administrative officer, the High Court cannot interfere unless it is shown that the actual exercise of such discretion has been mala fide or done in bad faith.

There is nothing in the Bengal Excise Act or the rules which says that the Collector has to proceed in any particular manner or that he must follow a judicial approach for the purpose of cancellation of a license under S. 42 of the Act. Therefore, the proceedings before him culminating in his order cancelling a license is not quasi-judicial but purely administrative. If the Collector thinks in his discretion that a license should be cancelled on the admitted breaches of its terms, no exception can be taken to his order. An appeal under the provisions of the Act and the Rules to the Commissioner of Excise from the order of the Collector does however require a judicial approach and therefore is a quasi-judicial proceeding. Since no particular procedure has been laid down for the conduct of such a proceeding all that is necessary to do is to follow the rules of natural justice. The rules of natural justice are not followed if the Commissioner of Excise in declining to interfere with the Collector's order consults the Superintendent who is in the position of an accuser behind the back of the appellant and without giving him any opportunity of meeting any particular statement that the officer might have made. The High Court may set aside the order of the Commissioner on this point alone, but it will not do to so if that order is capable of being upheld on the evidence even after excluding the evidence of the Superintendent. It is a well established principle that a writ of certiorari or mandamus should not be issued when they would be useless. AIR 1952 Cal 808 (811 to 815) (Prs 13, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus to quasi-judicial authorities — M. B. Public Demands Recovery Act (XXIV of 1954) Ss. 8 and 9 — Demand of recovery — Objections by defaulter not heard and execution not stayed — Mandamus to direct Collector to hear defaulter and decide objections will be issued. 1956 Madh BLJ 726: Madh BLR 1956 Civil 573: AIR 1956 Madh B 221 (224) (Prs 18, 21) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Rejection of nomination paper — Power to issue writ of mandamus.

The Returning Officer has a judicial duty to perform at the scrutiny. It is his duty to decide whether or not a nomination paper should be accepted; and if he rejects the nomination paper, even though improperly, he acts with jurisdiction and discharges a judicial and not a ministerial function and in such a case the High Court has no power to interfere with the decision by a mandamus or any other appropriate writ. (1902) 86 LT at p. 590, (1923) ILR 51 Cal 279, Rel. on. ('52) 31 Pat 145: AIR 1953 Pat 47 (50) (Pt C) (Pr 16) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Applicability — Establishment of Panchayats under S. 3, Rajasthan Panchayats Act, 1953 — Subsequent minor changes made in formerly grouped areas — Action taken, if under

S. 3 or S. 86 — Non-compliance with provisions of S. 86 — Issue of mandamus — See Panchayats — Rajasthan Panchayat Act (21 of 1953), S. 86. ILR (1956) 6 Raj 834.

——Art. 226 — Powers under — Writ of mandamus will issue to Dt. Judge conducting enquiry under S. 22 of the Bombay District Municipal Act, when his acts are ultra vires. AIR 1951 Sau 15 (15, 16) (Prs 3, 4) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Disposal of articles seized — Applicability of S. 523 Cr. P. C. — No proceedings for 4 months under S. 23, Foreign Exchange Regulation Act (1947) — Order by Magistrate handing over possession of seized articles to Director of Enforcement — Validity — Functions of Magistrate under S. 19 (3) of the Act — Nature of — Order handing over possession, if can be quashed under Art. 226. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 90. 1962 (2) Cr LJ 794: AIR 1962 Tripura 50.

250. Laches.

See Note 35.

251. Legal duty.

See Note 237.

252. Legislature, against.

See Note 5.

253. Meaning of.

See Note 233.

254. Ministerial act and executive duty.

See Note 242.

255. Moral duty.

——Art. 226 — Annual grant of money as pension — Amount calculated on basis of one-fourth of revenue of pargana — Refusal by Government to pay grant after coming into force of Act — Right of pensioner to grant — Enforcement by writ of mandamus — See Tenancy Laws — U. P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act (1 of 1951), S. 4. AIR 1956 All 564.

256. Office, mandamus to restore to.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus, writ of — Election to office — One of contestants elected and accepting office — No writ can be issued against him he having accepted office and opposite party having acquiesced in the election proceedings and further successful party not being party to the proceedings under Art. 226. AIR 1957 SC 529 and AIR 1962 Cal 857. Rel. on. AIR 1963 All 447 (447, 448) (Prs 2, 3) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Wrongful dismissal of municipal servant — Writ for reinstatement — (Municipalities — U. P. Municipalities Act (II of 1916), S. 76).

Even where the municipal board did not terminate its employees' services in accordance with the law, the employees would not be entitled to get the relief of reinstatement but only damages. 1958 All LJ 363: AIR 1958 All 841 (844) (Pt D) (Pr 10).

——Arts. 226, 310 (1), 311 (1) & (2) — Scope — Petition for writ of mandamus directing State Government to reinstate petitioner in service — Competency.

The principle embodied in Art. 310 (1) that Government servants hold office during the pleasure of the President or the Governor, as the case may be, is qualified by the 'provisions of Art. 311' which give protection to Government servants. Under Art. 311 (1) the punishment of dismissal or removal cannot be inflicted by an authority subordinate to that by which the servant was appointed; and under Art. 311 (2) the punishment of dismissal, removal and reduction in rank cannot be meted out to the Government servant without giving him a reasonable opportunity to defend himself.

The petitioner was holding a substantive appointment in a permanent post in the Hyderabad Municipal Corporation before his services were transferred to the Government. He was entitled to hold a lien on that post. The termination of the petitioner's services attracts the provisions of Art. 311 of the Constitution. The right of the petitioner to the permanent post in the Municipal Corporation could not be taken away. The petitioner's reinstatement in his former service should carry with it all the benefits he would have earned but for the deviation from the parent department, viz., the Hyderabad Municipal Corporation. (1960) 1 Andh WR 256: (1960) 2 Lab LJ 391.

——Art. 226 (1) — Mandamus to restore, admit or elect to office — Mandamus to restore, admit or elect to office will not be granted unless the office is vacant. If the office is, in fact full, the proceedings should be taken by way of quo warranto or election petition to oust the party in possession. Mandamus will go only on supposition that there is no one holding the office in question. Mandamus, however, will be issued commanding election to an office, when although there has been an election to the office in question, yet such election is void or colourable. AIR 1953 Assam 12 (13) (Pt B) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Order by Government promoting junior over the head of senior in violation of Constitution — Court can quash order and direct Government to consider case of senior — It cannot except in case of hardship to petitioner, order the Government to promote him: Writ Petn. No. 654/62, dated 16th January, 1963 (Mys) Distinguished. (1964) 1 Mys LJ 212: AIR 1964 Mys 229 (232) (Pt B) (Pr 23) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus is not available to person unless he has a clear legal right to performance of particular act — Mandamus to restore an officer to a post from which he was removed will not be granted if he had no legal right to hold it — A person who is occupying higher post in an officiating capacity has no such right and can be deprived of it by competent superior officer without charges or hearing. He can be reverted to his substantive post. See Ibid, Art. 311. AIR 1956 Punj 207.

——Art. 226 — Person wrongfully dispossessed of public office — Writ of mandamus lies.

Writ of mandamus lies to compel the restoration of a person to an office of which he has been wrongfully dispossessed, provided such office is of a public nature. 53 Pun LR 443: AIR 1952 Punj 176 (177) (Pt B) (Pr 10) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Writ of — Writ can issue to compel restoration of person to office from which he has been wrongfully removed or compel public official to perform public duty. 53 Punj LR 268: ILR (1951) Punj 421: AIR 1952 Punj 58 (59) (Pt A) (Pr 8) (DB).

257. Order that can be passed.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Nature of order that can be passed — Illegal auction-sale of fishery rights — Refusal to accept highest bid — Fresh auction-sale directed.

The petitioner under Art. 226 was the highest bidder at an auction-sale of fishery rights, but the District Magistrate had refused to accept his bid and had accepted instead the higher bid made by one of the respondents by a tender submitted subsequently. The sale in respect of the fisheries was held to be illegal and the question was as to the proper form of relief to be granted to the petitioner.

Held, that in the circumstances the High Court could not make out a new contract for the parties in proceedings under Art. 226 nor could it issue a mandamus to the petitioner directing the respondents to accept the petitioner's bid. The proper order to be passed in the circumstances was to direct a fresh auction to be held within a reasonable time. 1957 AWR (HC) 756: 1957 ALJ 763: AIR 1957 All 487 (490) (Pt C) (Pr 11).

——Art. 226 — Nature of duties that can be enforced by mandamus.

The High Court can only direct in mandamus a public officer to act according to law. But it cannot order a public officer to do a particular thing. It is not within the competence of the Registrar of the Co-operative Societies to restore the employee of a Branch Union of a Co-operative Society. It would be the Executive Committee of the Co-operative Union who can do it. Besides the Honorary Secretary, Co-operative Union, will not be a public officer and it would be doubtful whether any writ of mandamus can be issued against him. (1956) 1 Lab LJ 242: AIR 1956 All 43 (46) (Pt F) (Pr 11).

——Art. 226 — Writs of mandamus or prohibition in pending appeal.

The scope of a writ of mandamus never has embraced in its ambit a direction to an inferior Tribunal to decide any cause before it in any particular manner, though that writ may be used to direct a subordinate judicial authority to exercise a jurisdiction vested in it. So also a writ of prohibition cannot be issued so as to interfere in the matter pending before an inferior Tribunal and direct it to decide the appeal in a particular manner. AIR 1952 Mad 613. Disting. 1955 All LJ 211: AIR 1955 All 422 (425) (Pt A) (Pr 6) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Writ of mandamus — Nature of direction that can be given.

Under Art. 226 the High Court has no power to give a direction to the opposite party by a writ of mandamus as to the manner in which the petitioner's petition presented to the opposite party should be decided by the opposite party. AIR 1951 All 257 (FB). Rel. on. 1954 All LJ 264: AIR 1954 All 522 (523) (Pt B) (Pr 3).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Alternative writ of.

Where there is a dispute of fact requiring further investigation upon further materials, the Court should direct the issue of a writ of mandamus in the alternative in order that the dispute may be determined on the return to the writ. Witnesses can if necessary be examined and advantage taken of the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure for discovery and inspection. ILR (1954) 1 All 582: AIR 1954 All 393 (401, 402) (Pt J) (Prs 35, 36, 38) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Writ of mandamus — Order complained against quashed — Mandamus directing authority not to give effect to it not necessary. 1953 ALJ 183: 1953 All WR (HC) 248: 1953 Cri LJ 1078: AIR 1953 All 476 (477) (Pt B) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Power to order restitution.

Civil P. C. (1908), Ss. 144 and 151 — Inherent power of High Court to grant restitution — Person receiving payments under wrong interim order passed during pendency of writ proceedings — Power of High Court to direct repayment with interest. See Civil P. C. (1908), S. 144. (1960) 2 Lab LJ 281 (Andh Pra).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus, writ of — Jurisdiction of High Court to direct Income-tax authorities to refund tax paid — Income-tax Appellate Tribunal refusing to pass orders in conformity with judgment of High Court — Power of High Court to compel Tribunal to perform its duty — Income Tax Act (1922), S. 66 (1) and (2) — Hyderabad Income Tax Act (VIII of 1357), S. 82 (1) and (2)).

In conformity with the judgment of the High Court under S. 66 (1) and (2) of the Indian Income-tax Act if any amounts have to be refunded it is for the Tribunal to pass such orders or to give directions to the Income Tax Officer relating thereto. If the Tribunal refuses to discharge its functions or refuses to revise or alter the figures or give necessary directions in conformity with the judgment of the High Court, it can be compelled to perform its duty by the issue of a writ of mandamus. The High Court however, cannot direct the Income-tax Authorities to refund any amounts of tax paid. AIR 1936 P. C. 269. Rel. on. ILR (1958) Andh Pra 65: (1958) 1 Andh WR 16 and 538: (1959) 36 ITR 337: AIR 1959 A. P. 263 (264, 265) (Pt A) (Prs 8, 9) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Writ against public body.

The petitioner filed a petition under Art. 226 on the allegation that the land in dispute was leased out to her predecessor-in-interest by the Government of Assam, that she had been in continuous possession after the death of her mother by exercise of rights of ownership, that the respondent District Council had issued a prohibitory order upon her not to cut any trees from the forest land.

Held, that to give proper relief to the petitioner it was not necessary to go into the question of title to the land. On the allegations in the petition the petitioner had sufficient interest to invoke the jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution. Where an authority exercising such a right is a public body and in the exercise of its right as such issues a prohibitory order interfering with the possessory right of a citizen, the public body has to show the authority of law under which such order has been issued. On its failure to show any such authority, the High Court can issue a writ of mandamus directing the public authority to forbear from giving effect to any such order. ILR (1959) 11 Assam 213: AIR 1960 Assam 131 (131, 132) (Pt A) (Pr 2) (DB).

——Art. 226 — West Bengal Foodgrains (Intensive Procurement) Order (1952), Paras 3 (3) (b) and 3 (5) — Direction under, to supply certain quantity of paddy — Application under Art. 226 — Rule issued to show cause why petitioner should not be directed not to give effect to directive — Rule discharged — Appeal — Appellate Court directing petitioner to supply certain quantity of paddy — Direction complied with — Order for further supply withdrawn — Order to be passed in appeal.

Held, on facts that though it could not be contended that if a producer, served with a directive to sell and deliver a quantity of paddy, is compelled to carry out the direction during the pendency of the appeal, because he fails to obtain a stay order, he must for that reason alone be kept out of the benefit of his appeal, the position in the present case was different and the difference had been created by the appellant himself. The directive had exhausted itself and there was nothing which the respondents could be directed to forbear from;

(2) that having regard to the structure of the Rule as also the fact that the directive was no longer sought to be enforced, it had become impossible to make any effective order in the appeal even if it were held on the merits that the appeal ought to succeed. AIR 1954 SC 307 Distinguished. ('56) 60 Cal WN 273.

—— Art. 226 — Mandamus — Relief to be granted must be specific and qua the petitioner.

The petitioners who were members of an association of licensed sugar dealers, challenged the order of the Collector, a licensing authority, to entrust the wholesale distribution of sugar to co-operative societies. The order was attacked on the ground that the Collector had no authority to issue such directions except when the State Government laid down such policy in accordance with S. 3 (2) (d) and S. 3 (5) of the Essential Commodities Act. By a petition under Art. 226, the petitioners contended that they were entitled to a direction to the State Government that in the matter of putting resrictions on the petitioner's right to carry on business as dealers in sugar, the State Government should act only in accordance with the provisions of law and not in the manner in which it had done:

Held that a writ of mandamus could not issue in such a general form and that any relief to be granted by the Court must be specific and must be qua the petitioner. It was only when any right of the petitioners was infringed by an action of the State which was not in accordance with law, that the petitioners could ask the Court to issue an appropriate writ against the State. The petitioners would equally have no right to have the sugar distributed through the association of which the petitioners were some of the members since no order regulating wholesale distribution of sugar had been made by the State Government under S. 3 (2) (d) and in that event the petitioners could not complain of any infraction of their right so as to entitle them to relief under Art. 226 of the Constitution. (1961) 2 Guj LR 38: AIR 1961 Guj 38 (43) (Pt A) (Pr 8) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Orders that can be passed in writ proceedings — Writ against executive.

Where the petitioner was dispossessed in a highhanded manner on account of certain orders of the executive he can be restored possession in writ petition for mandamus. AIR 1955 Pepsu 60 and AIR 1952 Hyd 36, Rel. on. AIR 1956 Tripura 9 (17) (Pt I) (Pr 40).

258. Order affecting legal right.

See also Note 237.

——Art. 226 — Landlord's preferential right to occupy — Duty of Rent Control and Eviction Officer — Rent Control Officer not considering landlord's bona fide needs — Mandamus will issue. See Houses and Rents — U. P. (Temporary) Control of Rent and Eviction Rules, 1949, S. 6. 1956 All LJ 694.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Person as rate-payer has no right of franchise under S. 23, Bengal Municipal Act — Petition for mandamus not alleging that rate-payer's property right was affected — Petition is not maintainable.

The right of franchise is neither a civil right, nor a common-law right nor a fundamental right: AIR 1952 SC 64, Rel. on.

Under the provision of S. 23 of the Bengal Municipal Act, as it stood prior to the amendment in 1962, a person was entitled to be a voter if he attained the age of 21 years, was a citizen of India, had for a period of not less that 12 months preceding the application been a resident within the limits of the municipality, or had for the said period been in occupation of a holding and carrying on any trade or profession within the limits of the municipality and either had during the financial year immediately preceding the year in which such election was held, paid municipal rates specified in clauses (a), (b), (c) or (d) of sub-s. (1) of S. 23, or paid in respect of municipal fees and taxes for such financial year an aggregate amount not less than the sum prescribed by the State Government in this behalf as a minimum for the municipality. There was provision also for being entitled to vote at the first general election held under the said Act and a person who paid rates or had been assessed to income-tax or had certain educational qualification mentioned therein could become a voter. By the amendment of 1962 these qualifications have been changed and there is to be universal adult franchise, and the only two qualifications are that a person should be in the rolls of the corresponding Legislative Assembly and be a resident within the municipal area. Therefore, payments of rates and taxes or fees are not to be regarded as qualifications for obtaining the franchise. Therefore, a person who has no franchise right and whose franchise right has been expressly excluded by the law as it now stands, cannot claim that there is any invasion of his right.

Undoubtedly, a rate-payer contributes to the municipal funds. If it can be shown that the said fund was being misapplied a cause of action may arise. In the case, the petition does not mention the existence of any such fund nor is there any allegation that such fund is about to be misapplied. AIR 1957 Andh Pra 833 and AIR 1949 Bom 229, Disting.

After all, a writ of mandamus must be based on an invasion of a legal right. That legal right must be specifically formulated in the petition and the invasion clearly set out. Since it is nowhere stated in the petition that the petitioner's property right was being affected or any allegation that any fund to which he contributed was being misapplied, the petitioner is not entitled to maintain the application at all. AIR 1965 Cal 380 (383, 384, 385) (Pt B) (Prs 7, 9).

259. Other remedy open.

See Note 7.

260. Principle applicable.

See Note 223.

261. Private individual, writ against.

See Note 225.

262. Private right, enforcement of.

See Note 237.

263. Prohibition and mandamus compared.

——Art. 226 — Writs of mandamus and prohibition — Distinction.

Mandamus is neither a writ of course nor a writ of right, but that it will be granted if the duty is in the nature of a public duty and specially affects the rights of an individual, provided there is no more appropriate remedy. The person or authority to whom it is issued must be either under a statutory or legal duty to do something, or not to do something, the duty itself being of an imperative nature.

The writ of prohibition on the other hand can only lie against a body exercising public functions of a judicial or quasi-judicial character and cannot in the very nature of things be utilised to restrain legislative powers. ('51) 1951 ALJ 246: ILR (1951) 2 All 505: AIR 1951 All 228 (230) (Pt B) (Prs 8, 9, 10) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus or prohibition petitions — Contents.

When petitions of the nature of mandamus or prohibition are filed the petitioner should state precisely the nature of the relief which he asks for. For example in the case of an externment order under W. B. Security Act, 1950 made by the District Magistrate of Dinajpur, West Bengal, the relief claimed should be an order in the nature of a mandamus upon the District Magistrate of West Dinajpur calling upon him to refrain from giving effect to the order alleged to be invalidly made. 55 Cal WN 53: AIR 1951 Cal 3 (7) (Pt D) (Pr 35) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus and prohibition — Writs of.

The grant of an order or the issue of a writ of mandamus is as a general rule a matter for the discretion of the Court. Some of the essential conditions for the issue of such a writ are: (i) The person applying must show that he has a real and special interest in the subject-matter and a specific legal right to enforce; (ii) he must show that there resides in him a legal right to the performance of the legal duty by the party against whom such a writ is sought; and (iii) that there is no other equally effective, convenient and beneficial remedy.

Prohibition on the other hand is a writ which used to be issued by the King's Bench Division primarily to prevent a Court or Tribunal or a quasi-tribunal from exceeding the jurisdiction or acting contrary to rules of natural justice. It is well-settled that the writ of prohibition can only be against a body exercising public functions of a judicial or quasi-judicial character and cannot in the very nature of things be utilised to restrain legislative powers. ILR (1952) Hyd 791: AIR 1953 Hyd 79 (92, 93) (Pt M) (Prs 85, 86, 90) (DB).

[Reversed on another point in AIR 1956 SC 319.]

——Arts. 226, 32 — Mandamus and prohibition — When to issue — Anticipatory mandamus.

Where the law is good on its face and there is no unconstitutionality in the law it is essential for the petitioner who applies for the writs of mandamus and prohibition to satisfy the Court that he has been discriminated against. A mere threat of or possibility of unequal treatment is not sufficient to give him relief. AIR 1953 SC 156 Rel. on. Rehman Shagoo v. State of J. & K., 1958 Cr LJ 885: AIR 1958 J and K 29 (37) (Pt J) (Pr 42) (FB).

——Art. 226 — Prohibition and mandamus — Writs of — Nature of, explained — Sales Tax authority — Assessment orders and demand for tax, after orders had become final, issued by sales tax officer ignoring finding of Appellate Tribunal in the matter of applying administrative G. O. — Relief to which assessees are entitled under Art. 226 — Mandamus and not prohibition — Madras General Sales Tax Act (XI of 1939), Section 8-B (2) — Madras G. O. Ms. No. 2386, Revenue, dated 13-6-1956. 75 Mad LW 732: ILR (1963) Mad 51: (1963) 14 STC 94: AIR 1964 Mad 166 (170, 171) (Pt D) (Prs 12 to 18) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Prohibition and mandamus, when can issue — Writ in anticipation of breach of legal obligation — Direction under S. 43-A (2), Motor Vehicles Act — Writ against Regional Transport Authority — (Motor Vehicles Act (1939), Ss. 43-A (2) and 48 (a).

Where after a direction is given under S. 43-A (2), Motor Vehicles Act by the Government to extend an existing route restricting the extension to a specified number of buses, a transport concern, operating on the existing route, makes an application to the Regional Transport Authority for the variation of the conditions of permits for its buses, the authority has jurisdiction to consider that application. The petitioner, another transport concern operating on a portion of the extended route, has a right to make representations and raise objections when the authority takes up for consideration that application. Writ of prohibition cannot issue to the Regional Transport authority to provide for any anticipated breach of its legal obligations. Nor can a writ of mandamus issue, in anticipation of a refusal by the Regional Transport authority to consider the objections preferred by the petitioner to the grant of variation. 1957 Mad WN 302: (1957) 2 Mad LJ 76: 70 Mad LW 616: 1957 MLJ (Cr.) 344: ILR (1957) Mad 908: AIR 1957 Mad 536 (540, 541) (Pt E) (Prs 23, 27, 29).

——Art. 226 — Writs of prohibition and mandamus — Distinction.

Prohibition is the converse of mandamus in that prohibition is used to prevent a Court or Tribunal from doing something which it has not the power to do while mandamus is used to require it to do something which it is required to do. 22 Com Cas (Ins) 33: ILR (1952) Punj 11: AIR 1952 Punj 9 (19) (Pt K) (Pr 68) (DB).

264. Quasi-public authority, writ against.

See Note 225.

265. Question of title.

——Art. 226 — Dispute about title — Writ of mandamus — Practice.

Where a dispute exists about the title to a property which requires investigation of facts and recording of evidence, that can only be done appropriately by the Civil Court in a regular suit. The High Court will in such a case refuse to issue any writ of mandamus. For, it ordinarily decides applications for issue of writs under Art. 226 of the Constitution on the basis of affidavits only and, in such cases, the applications have to be decided only on admitted facts. ILR (1954) 1 All 158: 1953 All LJ 455: 1953 All WR (HC) 465: AIR 1953 All 678 (681) (Pt C) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Question of title — (Electricity Act (1910), Ss. 12, 21).

A question of title cannot be tried in mandamus proceeding. Such question should properly form the subject-matter of a suit. It is clear from Section 12 (2) of the Electricity Act and the conditions of supply stated in para. 1 (b) in the rate book of 1940 that the consent of the owner is necessary before an electric installation can be made on the premises in respect of which supply is asked for. So the question as to who is the owner is a material question which has to be decided before the licensee can be directed to supply electrical energy to the premises in question. Where there is a dispute as to the title of the petitioner he can have recourse to civil suit for the purpose of determination as to the question of title. Until that is decided, the licensee is really helpless in the matter. 33 Cal 553, Rel. on. AIR 1955 Cal 249 (250, 251) (Pr 5).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus proceedings — Questions of title to property and complicated questions of fact will not be decided. 38 Cal 553, 41 Cal 518, Rel. on. ('51) 55 Cal WN 443: AIR 1953 Cal 172 (176) (Pt A) (Pr 17).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus proceeding — Scope of — Trial of title to property.

It is a sound and salutary principle that the title to property will not be tried in mandamus proceedings, and the writ will not issue when it is necessary to try or decide complicated questions of fact. 38 C 553 and 41 C 518. Ref. to. 55 CWN 443: AIR 1953 Cal 172 (176) (Pt B) (Pr 17).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Question of title.

Where the land claimed by the petitioner is ascertainable and there is not any serious dispute about material facts and it is established from undisputed documents in the case that the petitioner had got a title to the land in dispute and he was dispossessed therefrom and his fundamental rights under Art. 19 (1) (f) had thereby been infringed, a petition under Art. 226 for mandamus against State authorities is maintainable. AIR 1956 Tripura 9 (16, 17) (Pt H) (Pr 39).

266. Revenue matters.

——Art. 226 — Stamp Act (1899), Section 57 (1) — Chief Controlling Revenue Authority — Has obligation to refer intricate question of law in respect of construction of document — If the Authority omits to do so High Court can direct Authority to discharge its duty. See Stamp Act (1899), Section 57 (1). AIR 1955 NUC (All) 3561.

——Art. 226 — M. P. Land Revenue Code (1959), Section 146 — Proceedings for recovery of arrears as land revenue without issue of notice of demand are vitiated — Absence of notice of demand goes to the root of the matter — Point can be raised even in High Court — 1964 MPLJ 32, Foll. 1965 MPLJ (Notes) 1.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus to Board of Revenue to make a reference under Section 57, Stamp Act — It can issue in appropriate cases. 76 Mad LW 443: (1963) 2 Mad LJ 409: ILR (1964) 1 Mad 75: AIR 1964 Mad 128 (129, 130) (Pt B) (Prs 4, 10).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — High Court's power to issue writ to direct reference under Section 57 (1), Stamp Act — (Stamp Act (1899), Sections 56 (1) and 57 (1)).

Whatever might have been the position before the Constitution, by virtue of Art. 226 the High Court's power to issue an appropriate writ to direct a reference under Section 57 (1) of the Act does not depend upon the pendency of a case before the Chief Controlling Revenue Authority. While the Chief Controlling Revenue Authority may not have power to refer the matter under Section 57 (1) in a case where there is no matter pending before it, the matter would be different when the High Court is approached under Art. 226 of the Constitution for the issue of a writ of certiorari to quash the final order of the inferior Tribunal, or to issue a writ of mandamus to direct the Chief Controlling Revenue Authority to refer the case. AIR 1950 SC 218, Followed. 72 MLW 531: 1959 Mad WN 532: (1959) 2 MLJ 339: ILR (1959) Mad 1086: AIR 1960 Mad 21 (22, 23, 24) (Pt B) (Prs 4, 5, 6).

——Art. 226 — Writ of mandamus — Court having discretion — Stamp Act (1899), S. 57.

No writ of mandamus can be issued to require the Board of Revenue to refer the question of the liability of a document to stamp duty to the High Court under Section 57, Stamp Act, as the Board has discretion in the matter. 63 Mad LW 829: 1950-2 MLJ 399: AIR 1951 Mad 276 (277, 278) (Pt B) (Pr 2) (DB).

[Impliedly Overruled by AIR 1950 SC 218 — Ed.]

——Art. 226 — Decision of Collector as to proper Stamp Duty, is final and cannot be upset under Art. 226 — (Travancore-Cochin Stamp Act, Section 35) — (Stamp Act (1899), Section 40). AIR 1955 NUC (Trav-Co.) 1658.

267. Specific Relief Act (1877), S. 45, powers under.

See Note 223.

268. Statutory body of fluctuating nature.

See Note 225.

269. Stranger, application by.

See Note 6.

270. Successive applications.

See Note 114.

271. To deliver or to allow inspection of accounts or documents.

——Art. 226 — Income-tax Act (1922), Section 37 (2) Proviso — Recording of reasons for impounding books of account — Provision is mandatory — Income-tax Officer in possession of account books without complying with provision — Writ of mandamus will issue. See Income-tax Act (1922), Section 37 (2) Proviso. AIR 1959 All 705.

272. University, against.

See Note 225.

273. When may be issued.

See Note 223.

274. Who can apply.

(a) Exclusive right, applicant whether must have.

274. Who can apply.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Who can apply.

An application for a writ of mandamus is not maintainable unless the right of the person filing it is said to have been directly affected. AIR 1956 Ajmer 25 (27) (Pt A) (Pr 5).

——Art. 226 — Right to apply under—Landlord nominating person as tenant — Rent Controller allotting to another person in contravention of rules — Landlord's nominee has right to apply for mandamus — (Houses and Rents — U. P. (Temporary) Control of Rent and Eviction Rules (1949), Rule 4). 1957 All LJ 791: 1957 All WR (HC) 763: AIR 1958 All 153 (154) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Who can apply.

An application for a writ in the nature of mandamus or such like order or direction is not maintainable unless it has been filed by a person whose right is said to have been directly affected. The relief as claimed must have relation to the rights of the petitioner. AIR 1951 All 1 (FB), Rel. on. 1954 Cr LJ 691: ILR (1955) 1 All 25: AIR 1954 All 319 (322) (Pt B) (Pr 2) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Provident Funds Act (19 of 1925), Sections 3 (2) and 4 (1) (a) — Railway provident fund — Fund vesting in dependant on death of subscriber — Administrator General has no right to receive fund — His remedy is not by writ of mandamus but in a regular Court. See Provident Funds Act (1925), Section 3 (2). AIR 1951 All 815 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Writ of mandamus — Who can apply — Municipalities — Madras District Municipalities Act (Mad. Act V of 1920), Sec. 303 — Rules framed under — Rules relating to Receipts and Expenditure of Municipal Council, Rule 12 (1) (f) — Lease of municipal theatre — Such lease to be by public auction as required by Rule 12 (1) (f) — Power to relax Rule 12 (1) (f) — Government has no such power — Order relaxing rule can be nullified by writ of mandamus — Person paying municipal rates and also interested in getting lease of theatre can apply under Art. 226 of Constitution. AIR 1949 Bom 229, Rel. on; AIR 1953 Mad 94, Disting. (1963) 1 Andh LT 149: (1963) 1 Andh WR 151: AIR 1963 Andh Pra 212 (215, 216) (Prs 21, 23, 24).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Right to apply for — Existence of specific legal right is necessary — Rate-payers and electors of municipality — Locus standi to apply.

It is no doubt true that for the issue of a writ of mandamus the existence of a specific legal right is a qualification in the applicants but it is not necessary that the right must reside in the individual applicant and in no one else. If other rate payers had an equal interest with the applicants to see that the law was obeyed, that, by itself, would be no bar to the grant of relief to the applicants who seek the protection of the Court to enforce their right which is infringed. AIR 1918 Mad 763: 31 Mad LJ 634: AIR 1949 Bom 229, Rel. on.

An application for the issue of a writ of mandamus directing the authorities not to hold municipal elections is maintainable at the instance of rate-payers and electors of the Municipality. A violation of the statutory rules of election affects the applicants who are voters in the wards. The applicants have a right to prevent the municipal authorities to which they pay rates, from spending municipal funds on unauthorised and illegal elections. As rate-payers, the applicants have a specific legal interest which entitles them to come to Court for the protection of that interest and in order to prevent the misapplication of municipal funds on elections held contrary to law. AIR 1949 Bom 229, Foll. 1956 Andhra WR 711: ILR (1956) Andh Pra 480: AIR 1957 AP 833 (836) (Pt E) (Prs 9, 10) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Who can apply — Right in property adversely affected by order of public officer passed without jurisdiction — Person aggrieved entitled to file petition for mandamus. AIR 1952 SC 12 and AIR 1958 SC 289 and AIR 1953 Assam 155, Dist. AIR 1963 Assam 15 (17, 18) (Pt A) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus cannot be claimed unless the authority on whom the duty is cast has been approached to discharge its obligation. ILR (1963) 15 Assam 332: AIR 1963 Assam 162 (163, 164) (Pt B) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Who can apply — Temporary appointment of petitioner as Daloi by Executive Committee of District Council — Order terminating service impugned — Petitioner has no locus standi — Order held could not be said to be in excess of jurisdiction — (Assam Autonomous Districts (Constitution of District Councils) Rules (1951). Rules 28 and 29 (1) and (2) (c) and (f). AIR 1955 Assam 238 (239) (Pt A) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Disobedience of orders.

If the petitioners are in default and have not obeyed orders which the Deputy Commissioner was authorised to issue under the rules, under Assam Forest Regulation (1891) they would be out of Court on that ground alone. Mandamus may be refused when to grant it would accomplish a wrong. AIR 1953 Assam 168 (170) (Pt B) (Pr 8) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Right to apply for.

Where a person in the forces of a native State, after its merger, expressed his unwillingness to continue in the Indian army, the question of his being placed in the same position as he was before the merger does not arise. Nor has he any right to project his army career into the civil department of the Government. The Government cannot therefore be compelled to grant any benefits when he was not legally entitled to them. AIR 1957 Cal 576 (578) (Pt A) (Pr 3).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Right to apply for — Application for, by association interested in provision of road transport facilities — (Motor Vehicles Act (1939), Section 47).

Section 47, Motor Vehicles Act, confers a statutory right of representation upon an association interested in the provision of road transport facilities. The right of representation implies that the association is affected by the grant of the permit and if it is a person affected by the grant of a permit, then like any other member of the public it has a legal right to see that the provisions of law relating to the grant of a permit are observed. A writ of mandamus can, therefore, be granted, where such association applies for the same, directing the transport authorities to forbear from giving effect to their illegal orders. 61 Cal WN 217: AIR 1957 Cal 444 (446) (Pt D) (Pr 11).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Writ of — Who can apply for — Illegal appointment of Vice-Chancellor under Jabalpur University Act — Members of Executive Council and Academic Council can apply. LR (1910) 2 KB 601 and (1933) 1 KB 668, Rel. on. ILR (1962) Madh Pra 360: 1962 MPC 785: 1961 MPLJ 1326: 1962 Jab LJ 335: AIR 1962 Madh Pra 180 (189, 190) (Pt B) (Prs 17, 18) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Action of Mayor of Corporation — Validity of — Rate payer is competent to challenge — Municipalities — M. B. Municipal Corporation Act (XXIII of 1956), S. 25 (2). AIR 1925 Cal 48, Diss.; AIR 1949 Bom 229 and AIR 1960 Cal 102, Foll. 1961 Jab LJ 1254.

——Art. 226 — Writ of mandamus — Who can apply for.

Even though no person has any inherent right to sell liquor, still it is open to the petitioner under Art. 226 to approach the High Court for a 'mandamus' if the officers concerned have conducted themselves not in accordance with law or if they have acted in excess of their jurisdiction. AIR 1954 SC 220: 1954 SCJ 246, Rel. on. ILR (1956) Punj 390: AIR 1956 Punj 97 (99) (Pt F) (Pr 8) (DB).

[Reversed on facts in AIR 1959 SC 65].

——Art. 226 — Writ of mandamus.

Issue of — Writ cannot be issued for enforcement of rights claimed in general and in several alternatives. 1951 Ker L Tim 385: AIR 1952 Trav-Co. 7 (11) (Pt E) (Pr 8).

274 (a). Exclusive right, applicant whether must have.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus.

One of the conditions precedent to the issue of a writ of mandamus is that the party applying for it must have a right to enforce. Unless the applicant proves the existence of such a right he cannot succeed. AIR 1952 SC 12, Rel. on. AIR 1953 Cal 653 (656, 657) (Pt C) (Prs 31, 32) (DB).

275. Writ of discretion.

See Note 236.

PART E.

(Notes 276 to 291).

PROHIBITION, WRIT OF.

276. Against whom can be issued.

(a) Against private body.

276. Against whom can be issued.

——Art. 226 — Writ of prohibition — Notice of confiscation of goods issued against importer — Notice if found to be one without any statutory basis, writ of prohibition can be issued against Collector of Customs.

A writ of prohibition is an order directed to an inferior Tribunal forbidding it from continuing with a proceeding therein on the ground that the proceeding is without or in excess of jurisdiction or contrary to the laws of the land, statutory or otherwise. (1881) 6 AC 424, Foll.

Per Majority:— Where a Collector of Customs proposes to take action under Section 167 (8) of the Sea Customs Act, read with Section 3 (2) of the Imports and Exports (Control) Act, 1947, the proceedings under the said sections being quasi-judicial in nature, whether a statute provides for a notice or not, it is incumbent upon the Collector to issue notice to the importer disclosing the circumstances under which proceedings are sought to be initiated against him. Any proceedings taken without such notice would be against the principles of natural justice. And if on a reading of the said notice, it is manifest that on the assumption that the facts alleged or allegations made therein were true, none of the conditions laid down in the specified sections was contravened, the Collector would have no jurisdiction to initiate proceedings pursuant to that notice. In such a case the Collector can be prohibited from proceeding with the same.

Per Sarkar, J. (Contra.):— The Collector has jurisdiction to decide whether the goods were liable to confiscation. If he has this jurisdiction he has also the jurisdiction to decide whether the importer is liable to have a further pecuniary penalty imposed on him under Section 167 (8) of the Sea Customs Act. If so, then the importer is not entitled to the writ. East India Commercial Co. Ltd., Calcutta v. Collector of Customs, (1963) 3 SCR 338: (1963) 1 SCA 622: AIR 1962 SC 1893 (1898, 1903) (Pt B) (Prs 15, 26, 27).

——Art. 226 — Prohibition against corporation — Power of High Court to issue.

There is no provision in the Constitution debarring issue of writs of prohibition against a corporation (such as a Municipality) and the High Court is empowered to issue such a writ or order in the nature thereof against authorities other than tribunals. AIR 1956 Ajmer 73 (75, 76) (Pt C) (Prs 14, 20).

——Art. 226 — U. P. Kshettra Samitis (Election of Pramukhs, Up-Pramukhs and Settlement of Election Disputes) Rules (1962), Rule 35 — Civil Court can entertain an election petition — No writ of prohibition can issue against that Court. See U. P. Kshettra Samitis (Election of Pramukhs, Up-Pramukhs and Settlement of Election Disputes) Rules (1962), Rule 35. 1964 All LJ 180.

——Art. 226 — Quasi-judicial proceedings — Writ of prohibition does not issue.

In cases of quasi-judicial proceedings generally a writ of prohibition does not issue. It is issued only against a Court or a judicial body which though may not be called a Court but has been created specifically under a statute. AIR 1962 All 166 (174) (Pt E) (Pr 32).

——Art. 226 — Powers of High Court — Order of Collector under Rule 115, U. P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Rules, 1952 — Proceedings are quasi judicial — High Court could issue a writ of prohibition. See Tenancy Laws — U. P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Rules (1952), Rule 115. AIR 1958 All 97.

——Art. 226 — Writ of prohibition — Trial not pending before Magistrate — Writ of prohibition cannot be issued restraining him from delivering judgment. AIR 1955 All 705 (706) (Pt B) (Prs 6, 7).

——Art. 226 — Power to issue writ of prohibition against Government from giving consent to acquisition or issuing notice under S. 6, Land Acquisition Act (1894). See Land Acquisition Act (1894), Section 40. AIR 1954 All 700.

——Art. 226 — Issue of writ of prohibition.

A writ of prohibition only issues against a judicial or quasi-judicial tribunal in order to restrain it from exercising jurisdiction not vested in it. 1953 All LJ 455: 1953 All WR (HC) 465: ILR (1954) 1 All 158: AIR 1953 All 678 (680) (Pt B) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Income-tax Officer restarting proceedings under S. 34 of Income-tax Act in pursuance of order of remand by Appellate Tribunal — Writ of prohibition against Income-tax Officer can be issued in absence of appellate Tribunal as party respondent. M/s. Tansukhrai Bodulal v. Income-tax Officer, Nowgong. (1962) 46 ITR 325: AIR 1961 Assam 35 (38) (Pt D) (Pr 4) (FB).

——Art. 226 — Expenditure of public money for defence of Government servants in Criminal prosecution — Prohibition — No writ can be issued. See Ibid, Art. 282. AIR 1961 Bom 167 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Prohibition, writ of.

A writ of prohibition cannot lie against a registered Trade Union which is not an inferior Court or Tribunal. 58 Cal WN 457: ILR (1956) 1 Cal 247: AIR 1955 Cal 189 (192) (Pt C) (Pr 18).

——Art. 226 — Prohibition — Issue of writ — Reference under S. 10 (1), (c), Industrial Disputes Act — Question whether there is relationship of employer and employee between parties — Workers not parties to dispute — Prohibition, writ of, if can issue. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), Section 10. AIR 1958 Ker 217.

——Art. 226 — Prohibition, writ of — Cannot issue to tribunal which is branch of High Court, for quashing its proceedings — If can issue only to restrain inferior Courts. Madh BLJ 1955 HCR 138: AIR 1955 Madh Bha 69 (69) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Prohibition, writ of.

Canteen run for use and benefit of collectorate staff by Recreation Club — Canteen neither a partnership nor a registered body — Its transaction of sales not assessable to sales tax — Assessment of sales tax against canteen represented by its secretary — Proceeding for recovery of arrears of sales tax cannot be started under S. 24 (2) (b) against the secretary personally the liability being that of the canteen — Proper direction against State is to issue writ of prohibition. See Sales Tax — Madras General Sales Tax Act (9 of 1939), S. 24 (2) (b). (1963) 14 STC 972 (Mad).

——Art. 226 — Prohibition — Writ of — Administrative order — Order of Transport Commissioner under S. 44 (3) (c), Motor Vehicles Act, is administrative — Order cannot be challenged indirectly by writ petition for prohibition against Regional Transport Authority restraining it from dealing with application for variation of bus permit on basis of such order. AIR 1957 Mad 536, Foll. (Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 44 (3) (c)). 73 Mad LW 161: (1960) 1 Mad LJ 396: ILR (1960) Mad 642: AIR 1960 Mad 365 (365) (Pt B) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Prohibition — Writ of — Chairman of Legislative Council acting under S. 35 (3) of States Reorganisation Act (1956) — Writ of prohibition lies — (States Reorganisation Act (1956), S. 35 (3)). (1956-57) 12 Ele. LR 345 (Mad).

——Art. 226 — Quo-warranto and Prohibition when to be issued — Fact finding Committee — Issue of writ — If justified.

A writ of quo-warranto is issued in cases where a person usurps a public office or is otherwise unfit to hold it. The writ of Prohibition (in spite of its name) issues to judicial bodies or quasi-judicial bodies. The inquiry by Niyogi

Committee could not be described to be a judicial or a even quasi-judicial one; it was fact-finding committee. That it was dealing with a matter which affected a section of the public did not mean that it had any power. No doubt, the selection of the personnel of a Committee is subject to public opinion but it is not subject to the mandates of a Court. It was not a fit case for issue of a writ of prohibition or a writ of quo-warranto. (1957) MPLJ 1 (Nag).

——Art. 226 — Writ of prohibition can issue against executive acts.

The power of the Court under Art. 226 is not restricted by any of the technical limitations governing the issues of the well-known writs under the common law. The Court is empowered under Art. 226 to issue, apart from the well-known writs, orders or directions for the enforcement of fundamental rights or for any other purpose. When a right of a citizen is infringed or his liberty or property is put in peril by the executive in disregard of the law, for the Court to refuse redress to the citizen under Art. 226 merely on the ground that the order or direction is sought against an executive act is to render the power under that article largely otiose. Case law Ref. ILR (1952) Nag 156: AIR 1952 Nag 139 (144) (Pt H) (Pr 42) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Writ of prohibition —Issue of against Income-tax Officer proceeding under S. 34, I. T. Act — (Income-tax Act (1922), S. 34).

The High Court cannot issue a writ of prohibition against the Income-tax Officer where he proceeds under S. 34 against an assessee who objects to his jurisdiction. The Income-tax Officer has to determine the facts and the law to get jurisdiction to proceed with the case and if he goes wrong then the remedy provided in the Act should be availed of by the assessee. AIR 1951 Simla 1, Foll. AIR 1954 SC 403, Disting. (1956) 29 ITR 507: AIR 1956 Punj 71 (72) (Pt A) (Pr 4).

——Art. 226 — Writ of prohibition — Order of appellate authority under Motor Vehicles Act.

Where a person having no right of appeal appeals to the appellate authority under the Motor Vehicles Act and that authority passes an order of stay as the order of the appellate authority could only be brought before the High Court in a writ of certiorari the High Court will issue a writ of prohibition, the effect of which would be to render orders of the appellate authority of no force and effect. 1956 Raj LW 182: ILR (1956) 6 Raj 110: AIR 1956 Raj 65 (67) (Pt F) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Prohibition — Issue of writ to Union of India — Notice by Income-tax Officer to petitioner.

A notice by the Income-tax Officer, who is acting on behalf of the Government of India, is a judicial act by the latter in respect of which a writ of prohibition may be issued to the Union of India. 1951 Raj LW 56: ILR (1951) 1 Raj 96: (1951) 20 ITR 214: AIR 1951 Raj 94 (2) (105) (Pt J) (Pr 28) (DB).

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1954 SC 158].

——Art. 226 — Writ of prohibition — Issue on taxing authority.

A writ of prohibition cannot be issued on a taxing authority pure and simple. AIR 1952 Vindh P. 35 (36) (Pt B) (Pr 5).

276 (a). Against private body.

——Art. 226 — Certiorari and Prohibition — Writs to private persons — Arbitrations under U. P. Co-operative Societies Rules, 1936 — High Court has no power to issue writ to quash award — Co-operative Societies Act (1912), S. 43 — Arbitration Act (1940), S. 46. AIR 1943 Cal 255 and AIR 1955 Hyd 238 and AIR 1946 Mad 504 and AIR 1955 Mad 694, Dist. 1962 All LJ 876: 1962 All WR (HC) 904: AIR 1963 All 113 (115, 116) (Pt A) (Prs 3, 5, 6, 9).

——Art. 226 — Prohibition — Writ of, cannot be issued to private individual or to authority which is not judicial or quasi-judicial — Prohibition and certiorari — Distinction pointed out. AIR 1960 J. and K. 12 (14) (Pt C) (Pr 11).

277. Application for, stage at which may be made.

(a) Pre-mature.

277. Application for, stage at which may be made.

——Art. 226 — Laches — Writ of prohibition — Assessee attempting to have proceeding quashed by Income-tax Officer but failing — Petition filed thereafter is not barred by laches. (1965) 1 ITJ 580: (1965) 58 ITR 828 (All).

——Art. 226 — Writ of prohibition — Trial not pending before Magistrate — Writ of prohibition cannot be issued restraining him from delivering Judgment. AIR 1955 All 705 (706) (Pt B) (Prs 6, 7).

——Art. 226 — Writs of prohibition and certiorari — When lie — Lack of jurisdiction in Lower tribunal — Writ of prohibition lies at initial stage. AIR 1963 Andh Pra 148 (150, 151) (Pt A) (Pr 9).

——Art. 226 — Writ of prohibition against private party from enforcing industrial award — Cannot be granted. (1951-52) 3 FJR 81: 53 Bom LR 381: AIR 1951 Bom 158 (158, 159, 160) (Prs 5, 6, 11, 12).

——Art. 226 — Proceeding started without jurisdiction — Person seeking assistance under Art. 226 — Writ proceedings are not premature — Sea Customs Act (1878), S. 190-A.

Where the issue of notice under S. 190-A of Sea Customs Act was intended to be a definite step in aid of the proceedings to revise an earlier order under S. 39 of the Act and the proceedings were without jurisdiction as the notice was not issued within the period prescribed by S. 39, the person affected has a right to seek the Court's assistance for the purpose of stopping a proceeding which is bound to be infructuous and abortive and, therefore, the objection that the application under Art. 226 is premature has no substance. 66 Cal WN 501: AIR 1962 Cal 258 (262, 263) (Pt B) (Pr 23) (DB).

——Arts. 226, 311 (2) — Prohibition, writ of — When can issue at interim stage — Issue of second show cause notice under Art. 311 (2) by compelent authority — No absence of or usurpation or excess of jurisdiction — Prohibition will not issue on ground that findings in preliminary enquiry were not supported by evidence. Petitioner must show that there is no jurisdiction vested in the authority regard to the second show cause notice or that he is exceeding the same and that such absence or excess of jurisdiction is patent on the record. (1966) 7 Guj LR 56: (1965) 2 Lab LJ 645: (1966) 13 Fac LR 45.

——Art. 226 — Prohibition — Writ of — Departmental enquiry against Civil servant pending — Writ to restrain Government.

Held, that the prayer of the petitioner to issue a writ of prohibition against Government not to pass any order on the departmental enquiry conducted against the petitioner could not be granted. The Government has an inherent right to carry on an enquiry against the servants for their alleged acts of omissions and commissions. No case had been at all made out for stopping the Government from passing an order on the enquiry, which was still pending. 1957 MPC 796: 1957 Jab LJ 1115: 1958 MPLJ 377: AIR 1958 Madh Pra 135 (140) (Pt E) (Pr 25) (DB).

277 (a). Pre-mature.

——Art. 226 — Premature application — Quashing of proceeding — Petitioner has right to approach High Court instead of submitting to Government which has no jurisdiction to proceed against him — Writ can be issued not only to quash the wrong decisions after they have been arrived at but also to prevent proceedings being started by an authority having no jurisdiction to start it. — U. P. Municipalities Act (2 of 1916), S. 48 (2) (b) (vi)). AIR 1955 NUC (All) 2297.

——Art. 226 — Breach of privilege of legislature — Matter referred to Privilege Committee for investigation and report — Committee issuing show cause notice to editors — Writ petition against notice — Held Court had no jurisdiction to interfere at that stage. See Ibid, Art. 194. AIR 1965 Assam 74 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus and Prohibition — Stage at which petition may be filed — Order by Government Labour Officer to implement award by re-instating workmen, failing which petitioner threatened with prosecution under S. 29 of Industrial Disputes Act — Petition praying for writs of mandamus and prohibition on ground that award was not binding on him — Held no writ could be issued at that stage. (1965-66) 27 FJR 424: (1964) 9 Fac LR 211: (AIR 1965 Cal 280 (281) (Prs 6, 7).

●——Arts. 32 and 226 — Writs of mandamus and prohibition — When to issue.

Where the law is good on its face and there is no unconstitutionality in the law, it is essential for the petitioner who applies for the writs of mandamus and prohibition to satisfy the court that he has been discriminated against. A mere threat of or possibility of unequal treatment is not sufficient to give him relief. AIR 1953 SC 156, Rel. on. Rehman Shagoo v. The State of J and K. 1958 Cri LJ 885: AIR 1958 J. and K. 29 (37) (Pt J) (Pr 42) (FB).

——Art. 226 — Prohibition, writ of — Premature application.

The question whether the appeal under the Motor Vehicles Act is tenable is entirely a matter for the appellate authority to decide. Where the appellate authority has not finally decided the question, it is not open to the High Court to decide the question in writ proceedings. AIR 1952 SC 319 and AIR 1954 SC 73, Rel. on. 1960 MPLJ 68: ILR (1959) Madh Pra 357: 1960 Jab LJ 633.

——Art. 226 — Prohibition and mandamus, when can issue — Writ in anticipation of breach of legal obligation — Direction under S. 43-A (2), Motor Vehicles Act — Writ against Regional Transport Authority — (Motor Vehicles Act (1939), Ss. 43-A (2) and 48 (a)).

Where after a direction is given under S. 43-A (2), Motor Vehicles Act, by the Government to extend an existing route restricting the extension to a specified number of buses, a transport concern, operating on the existing route, makes an application to the Regional Transport Authority for the variation of the conditions of permits for its buses, the authority has jurisdiction to consider that application. The petitioner, another transport concern operating on a portion of the extended route, has a right to make representations and raise objections when the authority takes up for consideration that application. Writ of prohibition cannot issue to the Regional Transport Authority to provide for any anticipated breach of its legal obligations. Nor can a writ of mandamus issue, in anticipation of a refusal by the Regional Transport Authority to consider the objections preferred by the petitioner to the grant of variations. 1957 Mad WN 302: (1957) 2 Mad LJ 76: 70 Mad LW 616: 1957 Mad LJ (Cr) 344: ILR (1957) Mad 908: AIR 1957 Mad 536 (540, 541) (Pt E) (Prs 23, 27, 29).

——Art. 226 — Premature writ.

Where the petitioner applied for a writ against the Inquiry Committee appointed by the Government:

Held, that the Court could not issue a writ since there was no action yet taken, and because without any action affecting the petitioner a writ from the Court must be regarded as premature. (1957) MPLJ 1 (Nag).

——Art. 226 — C. P. and Berar Sales Tax Act (1947), S. 2 (g) — Prohibition — Petitioner not filing return for relevant period — Premature application. Held writ could not be issued in such circumstances. (1952) 3 STC 448 (Nag).

[Reversed in AIR 1954 SC 403].

——Art. 226 — Mere show cause notice, why license of petitioner should not be suspended — No final orders passed — Writ petition is premature. Punjab Agricultural Produce Markets Act (1961), S. 10 (2) ('65) 67 Punj LR 66.

278. Certiorari and prohibition.

See Note 183.

279. Discretionary remedy.

——Art. 226 — Writ of prohibition — Defect of jurisdiction not patent — Writ does not lie as a matter of course. AIR 1962 All 166 (174) (Pt F) (Pr 32).

——Art. 226 — Writ of prohibition — When issued.

If the defect of jurisdiction is apparent on the face of the proceedings, then only can the order of prohibition go as of right: where the defect is not apparent, the discretion lies with the Court to grant or not to grant the relief. 1958 All LJ 894.

——Art. 226 — Prohibition — Writ of — Discretion of Court — Defect or absence of jurisdiction apparent on face of proceedings.

The granting of all writs under Art. 226 of the Constitution including the writ of prohibition is always discretionary though of course different considerations may prevail in cases of different writs. In a case where the State Government has usurped jurisdition and authority by issuing a show cause notice under S. 26 (1), Bombay Local Boards Act which it does not possess and the absence of jurisdiction is apparent on the face of the show cause notice itself, the High Court in the exercise of its discretion should grant relief, by issuing a writ of prohibition unless there is some very strong case made out for withholding the same. The High Court is bound to act with discretion and when it appears that there has been usurpation of jurisdiction, it is that discretion itself that requires that the High Court should act and not refuse to act in the matter. The issuance of the writ, though not of right nor of course, would almost be as a matter of course. AIR 1956 Bom 530, Foll. (1960) 1 Guj LR 260: (1961) 2 Guj HCR 1: AIR 1961 Guj 27 (30) (Pt C) (Pr 11) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Writ of prohibition — Issue of — Principle — Application for variation of route under Motor Vehicles Act (IV of 1939) as amended by Madras Act (III of 1964) — Authority under that Act has jurisdiction to deal with application — Writ of prohibition cannot issue on ground that proposed variation is not one permitted under Motor Vehicles Act — Motor Vehicles Act (IV of 1939) as amended by Madras Act (III of 1964), Ss. 48 and 57 — Application for variation of permit — Death of applicant — Successor-in-interest can continue application — Transport operator who came into existence subsequent to notification of above application under section 57 (3) and (4) is not precluded from being heard. (1965) 2 Mad LJ 453: 78 Mad LW 394: ILR (1965) 2 Mad 461: AIR 1966 Mad 8 (11, 12) (Pt A) (Prs 10, 11) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Assessee deliberately evading tax by suppressing facts — Order for rectification of assessment by taxing authority — Assessee is not entitled to relief under Art. 226 on ground that rectification order was unauthorised — Writ of prohibition prohibiting authority to collect tax on rectified assessment will not issue — Mysore Agricultural Income-tax Act (IV of 1955), S. 36 (1). ILR (1962) Mys 741: (1963) 47 ITR 884: AIR 1963 Mys 186 (188, 189, 190) (Prs 5, 7, 11, 13, 18) (DB).

280. Erroneous decision as to jurisdiction.

●——Art. 226 — Imports and Exports (Control) Act (1947), Sections 3 and 5 — Sea Customs Act (1878), Sections 19, 167 (8) and 182 — Licence to import goods — Licence issued subject to condition not to sell goods imported — Goods received and delivery taken after paying customs duty — Subsequently breach of condition detected — Notice issued to licence-holder to show cause against confiscation of goods — Writ of pohibition filed against notice — Held (per Majority, Sarkar, J., contra) that writ application was competent as breach of condition in licence was not breach of order under Act and issue of notice was without jurisdiction. A. F. O. O. No. 54 of 1957, D/- 5-1-1959 Cal., Reversed. East India Commercial Co., Ltd., Calcutta v. Collector of Customs, Calcutta. (1963) 3 SCR 338: (1963) 1 SCA 622: AIR 1962 SC 1893 (1898, 1899, 1900, 1903, 1904, 1905, 1906, 1907, 1908) (Pt A) (Prs 14, 15, 20, 21, 27, 29, 30, 31, 34, 35, 36, 38).

●——Art. 226 — Prohibition — Issue of — (Sea Customs Act (1878), Section 183).

Where proceedings in an inferior Court or tribunal are partly within and partly without its jurisdiction, prohibition will lie against doing what is in excess of jurisdiction. Where, therefore, the Collector of Customs has imposed invalid conditions for release of gold on payment of the fine in lieu of confiscation, the High Court can issue a writ of prohibition prohibiting the Customs Authorities from enforcing the invalid conditions. Sewpujanrai Indrasanrai, Ltd. v. Collector of Customs. 1958 Cri LJ 1355: (1958) SCJ 1199: (1958) Mad LJ (Cr) 929: 1959 SCR 821: AIR 1958 SC 845 (855, 856) (Pt H) (Prs 22, 23).

——Art. 226 — Prohibition, writ of — Suit under Section 73, Trade Marks Act, filed in Court of Additional Civil Judge — Objection to jurisdiction disallowed by Civil Judge but allowed by High Court in writ proceedings against that decision — Writ of prohibition to Court of Civil Judge not to proceed with trial of suit — Power of Civil Judge to return plaint under Order 7, Rule 10, Civil P. C. See C. P. Code (1908), Order 7, Rule 10. AIR 1963 All 448.

——Art. 226 — Prohibition, writ of against Government — Case under U. P. Municipalities Act (2 of 1916), Section 40 — Conditions under which power can be exercised under Section 40, indicated — No foundation for exercising power under Section 40 — High Court will issue writ prohibiting State from proceeding further in the matter. See Municipalities — U. P. Municipalities Act (2 of 1956), Section 40 (3). 1958 All WR (HC) 56.

——Art. 226 — Writ of prohibition — When can issue. A writ of prohibition issues only when a judicial or quasi-judicial tribunal exceeds its jurisdiction or tries to exercise jurisdiction not vested in it. AIR 1955 All 106 (108, 109) (Pt B) (Pr 5).

——Art. 226 — U. P. Medical Act (3 of 1917), Sections 25, 26 — Erasing of name from register of Medical Practitioners.

Section 25 does not enable the Council to remove the name of a person simply because he has been struck off the register of graduates of the body which originally granted the degree. In so doing, the Council acts without jurisdiction and it is a proper case in which a writ of prohibition should issue restraining the Council from proceeding further with any steps to erase the name of the person from the register of medical practitioners. There is no question of infamous or disgraceful conduct in a 'professional respect' in such a case and Section 26 does not apply. (1887) 19 QBD 467; (1894) 1 QB 750, Rel. on. 1953 All LJ 518: AIR 1953 All 580 (584) (Pt A) (Pars 13, 16).

●——Art. 226 — Prohibition — Writ of — Presiding officer having personal interest.

If the Presiding Officer of a judicial tribunal has a personal interest in any dispute or clearly acts mala fide, he will have no jurisdiction to deal with the proceedings before him and a writ of prohibition would issue to remove those proceedings from his cognizance. Asiatic Engineering Co. v. Achhru Ram. 1951 RD (HC) 241: 1951 All LJ 576: ILR (1952) 2 All 838: AIR 1951 All 746 (767) (Pt E) (Pr 50) (FB).

——Art. 226 — Prohibition, writ of — Labour Court entertaining reference under Section 10 (1) (c) — Industrial Disputes Act, without jurisdiction — Writ of prohibition can be issued — Industrial Disputes Act (1947), Section 10 (1) (c). (1964) 1 Lab LJ 622 (Andh Pra).

——Art. 226 – Motor Vehicles Act (1939), Ss. 48 and 64 — Civil P. C. (1908), O. 41, R. 33, Preamble — R. T. A. granting pucca stage carriage permit only to two applicants out of 70 — Appeal against order of R. T. A. only by 25—Appellate authority remanding case for fresh disposal in accordance with law — On remand, R. T. A. issuing notices to all 70 applicants —Petition by one of appellants praying for issue of writ of prohibition directing R. T. A. to forbear from considering subject relating to grant of permits in pursuance of notices consequent on remand — Held, order of remand must mean and could only mean that direction was to consider 'case' of parties to 25 appeals before appellate authority — Though terms of one statute could not be interpreted with reference to another, by way of analogy, even applying principles of O. 41, R. 33, appeal against order of R. T. A. could not ensure to benefit of anybody, except appellant, as each appeal was separate venture —Fact that appeals were considered in batch would make no difference to individuality of appeal — Though on remand, R. T. A. acted without jurisdiction there was no question of any lack of initial jurisdiction in him — Though, therefore, relief (writ of prohibition) could not be granted, petition would not fail for failure to ask appropriate relief— Proper relief would be writ of mandamus AIR 1954 Mad 848, Rel. on. ILR (1963) Andh Pra 1028.

——Art. 226 — Writs of prohibition and certiorari — When lie — Lack of jurisdiction in lower tribunal — Writ of prohibition lies at initial stage.

Both writs of prohibition and certiorari have for their object the restraining of inferior Courts from exceeding their jurisdiction. A writ of prohibition will lie when the proceedings are to any extent pending and a writ of certiorari will be an appropriate remedy after the proceedings have terminated in a final decision. In a case, therefore, where the petitioner challenges the lack of jurisdiction of the Tribunal to hear the matter pending before it, the aggrieved party can ask for a writ of prohibition. It is no answer to that claim to say that the petitioner can as well put forward his defence before the Tribunal, and then if the decision is adverse to him, seek a writ of certiorari. If there is a clear want of jurisdiction, it is open to the party to seek to interdict the proceedings by applying at the earliest stage for a writ of prohibition. AIR 1955 SC 233, Rel. on. (1962) 2 Andh WR 103: AIR 1963 Andh Pra 148 (150, 151) (Pt A) (Pr 9).

——Art. 226 — Prohibition — Scope of writ.

A petitioner for a writ of prohibition has to make out that the proceedings impugned are manifestly beyond the scope of the jurisdiction of the respondent or clearly opposed to any law or statutory provision. (1960) 11 STC 581: AIR 1960 Andh Pra 451 (452) (Pt A) (Pr 4).

——Art. 226 — Writ of prohibition — Question of limitation or laches.

As long as there is something to be acted upon, the writ of prohibition runs and there is no question of limitation or laches. The obvious reason for this exception is that the threatened action being challenged on the ground of want of jurisdiction or illegality, can be prohibited if it can be shown that the order is prima facie illegal and unwarranted and there is still something upon which the order can act. AIR 1957 Andh Pra 1027 (FB); (1937) 3 All ELR 324; (1927) KB 491, Rel. on. AIR 1958 Andh Pra 205, Disting. 1958 Andh LT 129.

——Art. 226 — Jurisdiction — Power of High Court to issue writ of prohibition.

Under Art. 226 the Andhra High Court is empowered to issue a writ of prohibition against any authority in the Andhra State. To enable the High Court to exercise jurisdiction, the only question to be considered is whether a tribunal, functioning within the terriorial limits of its jurisdiction, has jurisdiction to proceed with an enquiry, or, whether it is exercising jurisdiction in excess of that conferred on it. If the tribunal is illegally constituted, the fact that the constituting authority is in Delhi cannot make the tribunal any the less an illegal body. The High Court is only concerned with a tribunal functioning within its jurisdiction. If it was illegally constituted, the said tribunal would be acting without jurisdiction and therefore, it would be within the reach of the writ of prohibition. 1956 Andh WR 431: ILR (1956) Andh Pra 786: AIR 1957 Andh Pra 1007 (1009) (Pt A) (Prs 5, 6) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Prohibition, when can be issued — Discretion.

Where the High Court is satisfied that an inferior Court or authority has exceeded its jurisdiction and that absence of jurisdiction is patent a writ of prohibition will issue. But where the defect is not apparent, the Court, in its discretion, may refuse the writ. (1957) Andh WR 13: AIR 1957 Andh Pra 777 (779) (Pt B) (Pr 6).

——Art. 226 — Reference to Industrial Tribunal — Reference void — Tribunal has no jurisdiction to act on such reference — Order of prohibition issued. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 2 (k). AIR 1954 Bhopal 17.

——Art. 226 — Prohibition — Order of reference to Industrial Tribunal without jurisdiction — Interference.

The decision in AIR 1958 Ker 217 is not an authority for the position that a writ of prohibition cannot be issued even if the order of reference is ex facie without jurisdiction and when such absence of jurisdiction can be seen without considering disputed questions of fact, it would be proper for the Court to interfere even before the Tribunal decides the question. The question whether the Court should interfere or not depends on the facts of each case and the test appears to be whether the question can be decided without investigation of disputed facts. If it involves such investigation, the Court should not interfere. AIR 1958 Ker 217 and AIR 1958 SC 1018, Rel. on. 1959 Ker LJ 1449: 1960 Ker LT 90: (1960) 1 Lab LJ 323: ILR (1960) Ker 222: AIR 1960 Ker 190 (193) (Pt B) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Prohibition, writs of — Industrial Tribunal — Issue of jurisdiction not depending upon question of law but upon collateral questions of fact requiring evidence — Writs, when can be issued.

A prohibition does not lie on a wrong decision on the merits of proceedings. Where the Judge of an inferior court has given himself jurisdiction by an erroneous conclusion on a point of law, prohibition will lie, but where the judge, for the purpose of ascertaining whether he has or has not jurisdiction, has decided a question of fact, on conflicting evidence, the Court will not interfere except on very strong grounds.

A Labour Court or an Industrial Tribunal has every jurisdiction to enquire into existence of certain facts upon which its jurisdiction to adjudicate on the dispute depends. The preliminary jurisdiction of the Labour Court extends, and must be permitted to extend, to that point of time when, upon adequate material adduced, it is able to come to a definite conclusion, whether the Institution is an "industry" as defined in the Act, and it hence possesses jurisdiction or otherwise. But if the material on record is inconclusive and insufficient, the Labour Court can be directed to arrive at a proper decision after recording further evidence. AIR 1961 Mad 239, Reversed. (1962) 2 Lab LJ 472: 1963 Mad WN 35: 75 Mad LW 668: (1962-63) 23 FJR 93: ILR (1963) Mad 125: AIR 1963 Mad 89 (91) (Pt A) (Prs 7, 8) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Prohibition — When can issue — — Industrial dispute — Reference to Industrial Tribunal — Power of High Court to prohibit Industrial Tribunal from assuming jurisdiction — Industrial Disputes Act (1947), Ss. 10 (1), (d); 2 (k); 2 (1).

An Industrial Tribunal is a judicial authority subject to the supervisory jurisdiction of the High Court and if the Tribunal exceeded its jurisdiction or is about to do so, the High Court can always, restrain or correct. If a dispute is not an 'industrial dispute' the Tribunal would not acquire jurisdiction merely because the Government have made a reference to it. AIR 1956 Mad 113 and AIR 1958 Mad 578 and AIR 1958 Mad 108; AIR 1956 Mad 636 and AIR 1960 Mad 82, Rel. on.

The High Court has no doubt jurisdiction to interfere by issuing a writ of prohibition even prior to the assumption of jurisdiction by the industrial tribunal or the commencement of the inquiry by the industrial tribunal. But this must be a case where the absence of jurisdiction of the tribunal is so patent ab initio, that it would be an abuse of power, or an injustice, to permit it to proceed further. AIR 1960 Mad 82 and AIR 1958 Mad 108; AIR 1956 Mad 636, Rel. on. Where the circumstances and grounds relied upon are not decisive to hold that the employer is effecting a closure of his business and in the interests of justice further inquiry and evidence appear inevitable, the industrial tribunal should be permitted to function and no writ of prohibition should be issued so as to preclude the tribunal from proceeding into the preliminary issue of its own jurisdiction. (1960) 1 Lab LJ 351: AIR 1961 Mad 331 (334, 335, 336, 337) (Pt A) (Prs 8, 10, 12, 15, 17, 21) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Prohibition — When can issue.

A writ of prohibition can issue to an inferior tribunal only when it is proceeding with a matter which is beyond the jurisdiction of that Tribunal. ILR (1960) Mad 642: 73 Mad LW 161: (1960) 1 Mad LJ 396: AIR 1960 Mad 365 (365) (Pt A) (Pr 2) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Prohibition — Writ of — Issue of — Reference under S. 10 (1) (c), Industrial Disputes Act — Plea that there is no industrial dispute — Power of Tribunal to decide — Issue of writ of prohibition at that stage — If an industrial tribunal wrongly decides the jurisdictional issue and comes to the conclusion that the dispute is an industrial dispute when it is not, the aggrieved party can ask for the writ of prohibition. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 10 (1), (c). AIR 1958 Mad 108.

——Art. 226 — Prohibition — Writ of, against Industrial Tribunal — (Industrial Disputes Act (1947), Ss. 10 (1) (c) and 15).

A writ of prohibition can issue against the Industrial Tribunal if it is established that the Tribunal had no jurisdiction to proceed with the adjudication of the dispute referred to. Absence of an Industrial dispute would obviously be sufficient to negative jurisdiction. The validity of the order of reference is open to examination by the High Court to decide whether the Tribunal had jurisdiction. (1955-56) 9 FJR 125: 1955 Mad WN 897: (1956) 1 Lab LJ 221: (1956) 1 MLJ 280: AIR 1956 Mad 113 (114, 115) (Pt B) (Prs 5, 8).

——Art. 226 — Prohibition — Issue of.

Where the Regional Transport Authority had no right under S. 62, Motor Vehicles Act, to entertain an application for a temporary permit when applications for new permits were still pending, the grant of temporary permits in those circumstances was beyond the ambit of the power conferred upon the Regional Transport Authority and a writ of prohibition prohibiting the R. T. A. from proceeding with the application for temporary permit should go: (1948) 1 All ER 72 and (1951) 2 All ER 728, Rel. on. 1959 BLJR 68: ILR 38 Pat 281: AIR 1959 Pat 248 (249, 250) (Pt B) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 226— Prohibition — Writ of — Issue of.

Although the issuance of prohibition is discretionary with the High Court, where there is patent lack of jurisdiction a writ will be granted, unless an irresistible case for withholding the writ is made out. 61 Punj LR 785: ILR (1959) Punj 1518: AIR 1959 Punj 460 (461) (Pt A) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Prohibition — Issue of writ — Principles.

It is a recognised practice of Courts that when a person challenges the jurisdiction of a tribunal, the Court declines to examine the question until the question has been examined and pronounced upon by the tribunal itself (AIR 1957 Mad 700, Rel. on). The superior Court should not proceed on the assumption that the tribunal will go beyond its jurisdiction and should therefore refrain from interfering, by a writ of prohibition before the inferior tribunal has had an opportunity of considering whether any of the matters in controversy between the parties falls within its jurisdiction. (1959) 1 Lab LJ 274: ILR (1958) Punj 2061: 60 Punj LR 425: (1958-59) 15 FJR 49: AIR 1959 Punj 75 (81) (Pt H) (Pr 19) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Prohibition — When issued — Wrong order.

It is one thing to exercise a jurisdiction not vested in a particular body and it is quite another for that body to pass a wrong order in exercise of its jurisdiction. No writ of prohibition can be issued where the grievance of the petitioner is in fact not against illegal exercise of jurisdiction by the respondent, but his allegation is that he has committed a mistake in exercise of his jurisdiction. ILR (1959) 9 Raj 1255: 1960 Raj LW 306: AIR 1960 Raj 86 (89, 90) (Pt D) (Pr 9).

——Art. 226 — Writ of prohibition — Inferior tribunals having no semblance of jurisdiction — Petitioner for writ unwillingly submitting due to circumstances — Prohibition can issue at his instance — (Municipalities — Jodhpur Municipal Act (1943), S. 27). AIR 1937 Cal 427: (1894) 1 QB 552, Rel. on. 1952 Raj LW 199: ILR (1952) 2 Raj 18: AIR 1952 Raj 104 (106) (Pt C) (Prs 11, 12) (DB).

●——Art. 226 — Writ of prohibition — Scope of inquiry by Central Commission in cases referred to it — Attempt to enlarge scope — Writ of prohibition. See Trav-co. Taxation on Income (Investigation Commission) Act (XIV of 1124), S. 5. AIR 1954 Trav-Co. 131 (FB).

——Art. 226 — Writ of Prohibition — Change in timings of buses — Appeal does not lie to Tribunal under S. 64 — Writ prohibiting Transport Appellate Tribunal from proceeding with appeal can be issued. See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 47. AIR 1956 Vin Pra 44.

281. Grounds.

——Art. 226 — Income-tax Officer issuing notice on 31-1-1958 of re-assessment to a 'factory', through firm K whose individual members constituted the factory — K filing writ petition challenging validity of notice — High Court, with consent of petitioner's counsel, staying recovery of provisionally assessed tax and penalty till completion of proceedings under S. 34/44, Income-tax Act — K filing another writ petition on 7-1-1963 again challenging validity of notice, dated 31-1-1958 — Held, K had no cause of action to file writ petition and no writ of prohibition could be issued as there was nothing to justify that Income-tax Officer had no jurisdiction to initiate proceedings under S. 34, Income-tax Act (1922). See Income-tax Act (1922), S. 34. (1965) 1 ITJ 375: (1965) 57 ITR 765 (All).

——Art. 226 — Writ of prohibition — It cannot be issued for limited purpose.

A Court cannot issue a writ of prohibition for a limited purpose such as prohibiting the Tribunal from looking into a particular paper recording recommendations or relying upon a particular piece of evidence. AIR 1962 All 117 (122) (Pt F) (Pr 17).

——Art. 226 — U. P. Agricultural Income-tax Act (1948), Section 22 — Powers of Board — Application under S. 22 made after very great delay — Board is entitled to entertain application — Writ of prohibition cannot issue. See U. P. Agricultural Income-tax Act (1948), S. 22. AIR 1958 All 528.

——Art. 226 — Prohibition — Issue of writ — Notice under S. 7 (1), Administration of Evacuee Property Act defective — If ground for.

Where a notice under S. 7 (1), Administration of Evacuee Property Act, is issued to a person, it is open to him to object to the validity of the notice before the Custodian on the ground that the notice is defective and it is open to him to pass any orders according to law: but that is not a ground on which a petition for issue of a writ of prohibition can be allowed to be supported. AIR 1958 All 104 (105) (Pt C) (Pr 4).

——Art. 226 — Writ of prohibition in pending appeal.

A writ of prohibition cannot be issued so as to interfere in the matter pending before an inferior Tribunal and direct it to decide the appeal in a particular manner. 1955 All LJ 211: AIR 1955 All 422 (425) (Pt A) (Pr 16) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Writ of prohibition against State Government — Government proposing to take action against a municipal member under S. 40 (3), U. P. Municipalities Act and giving him show cause notice under S. 40 (4) — Writ if can be issued — (U. P. Municipalities Act (II of 1916), S. 40 (3), (4) and (5)). AIR 1955 All 106 (108, 109) (Pt C) (Pr 5).

——Art. 226 — Prohibition, writ of.

A notice was issued by the Sales Tax Officer calling upon the assessee to file the returns of his turnover for the year 1952-53 and at the same time to appear and produce the account books before him on the 30th December, 1953. The assessee in reply to this notice sent an application to the Sales Tax Officer asking to be relieved from the order directing him to file the account books. This application was rejected by the Sales Tax Officer and consequently the assessee filed a petition under Art. 226 praying for issue of a writ of prohibition directing the Sales Tax Officer not to proceed with the assessment.

Held, that the application was not maintainable as it was competent for the Sales Tax Officer to call for the account books to verify the correctness of the turnover. No assumption could be made that the Sales Tax Officer would not correctly apply the law as laid down in AIR 1952 All 764. 1954 All WR (HC) 174: 1954 All LJ 228: AIR 1954 All 448 (449) (Pr 2).

——Art. 226 — U. P. Medical Act (3 of 1917), Ss. 25, 26 — Erasing of names from the Register of Medical Practitioners — Writ of prohibition — If can issue. See U. P. Medical Act (3 of 1917), S. 25. AIR 1953 All 580.

——Art. 226 — Requisition of premises under R. 75-A, D. I. Rules — Subsequent order directing restoration to applicant owner passed prior to Act of 1947 — Appointment of arbitrator under S. 6 of the Act — Legality — Writ of prohibition issued — See Requisitioned Land (Continuance of Powers) Act (1947), S. 6. AIR 1952 All 959 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Prohibition — Writ of — Grounds for, and object of, issue. See Expenditure Tax Act Ss. 3 and 13 (2). AIR 1961 Andh Pra 374.

——Art. 226 — Prohibition — Writ of — Writ of when issued. Office of the writ of prohibition is primarily supervisory having for its object, confinement of Courts and tribunals of peculiar, limited or inferior jurisdiction within their bounds. Usurpation of powers will be restrained by it. 1961-2 Andh WR 9: (1961) 43 ITR 239: 1961 Andh LT 554: AIR 1961 Andh Pra 374 (378) (Pt C) (Pr 26).

——Art. 226 — Writ of prohibition.

Normally, a writ of prohibition is issued in cases to correct apparent errors. 1960 Andh LT 126: (1960) 1 Andh WR 181: ILR (1960) 1 Andh Pra 339.

——Art. 226 — Appropriate relief — Writ of prohibition.

Where the gist of the petitioner's complaint was that the States Reorganisation Act was ultra vires of the Constitution and, on that ground, he asked the Court to issue an appropriate writ restraining the respondents, i.e., the State of Andhra Pradesh and the Chief Minister of the State, from functioning under the Act:

Held, that the relief claimed was neither misconceived nor inappropriate and if the petitioner had succeeded on the merits, he would certainly be entitled to a writ of prohibition restraining the respondents from functioning under the Act. (1957) 2 An WR 43: ILR (1957) AP 345: AIR 1957 Andh Pra 734 (739) (Pt D) (Pr 17) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Prohibition — Writ of — Grounds — Discretion.

The petitioner was a vendor of sweets and miscellaneous articles on a railway platform. He having fallen into arrears of Income-tax, the Income-tax Officer addressed a letter to the petitioner calling upon him to pay the tax immediately and also threatening that if he failed to pay the tax in time, he would be constrained to write to the railway authorities to withdraw forthwith the Government patronage extended to him. The petitioner filed a petition under Art. 226 for the issue of a writ of prohibition prohibiting the Income-tax Officer from taking any action in the collection of arrears of tax.

Held, that the fact that the Income-tax Officer warned the petitioner that he would write to the railway authorities about his default did not afford him a right to approach the High Court to issue any writ or direction. Moreover the threat of the Income-tax Officer to write to the railway authorities could not be a ground for staying the collection of arrears of tax, altogether. (1957) 31 ITR 788: (1957) Andhra LT 255.

——Art. 226 — Prohibition — Writ of — Suspension of permit of bus — Stay orders by appellate authority and High Court — Effect — Issue of writ of prohibition. See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 60. AIR 1957 Ker 142.

——Art. 226 — Income-tax Act (1922), Sections 34 and 46 — Proceedings under S. 34 — Limitation — Certificate issued under S. 46 (2) — Recovery of higher sum from assessee than what is actually due — Writ of prohibition — Issue of. See Income-tax Act (1922), S. 46 (2). 42 ITR 715: (1961) 2 Mad LJ 564.

——Art. 226 — Prohibition — When can issue.

A writ of prohibition can issue to an inferior tribunal only when it is proceeding with a matter which is beyond the jurisdiction of that Tribunal. 73 Mad LW 161: (1960) 1 Mad LJ 396: ILR (1960) Mad 642: AIR 1960 Mad 365 (365) (Pt A) (Pr 2) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Prohibition — Issue of writ — Statutory body — Decision of Election Tribunal — Refusal to dismiss election petition in limine under S. 90 (3), Representation of People Act, 1951 — Application for writ of prohibition — Maintainability. 71 Mad LW 25: ILR (1958) Mad 257: (1958) 1 Mad LJ 110: AIR 1958 Mad 187 (196) (Pt C) (Prs 24, 25, 26) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Prohibition — Inspector of Police C. I. D., having jurisdiction to investigate charges against accused — No writ of prohibition can issue — (Criminal Procedure Code (1898), S. 157 (1)). 1956 Mad WN 866: 1957 Cr LJ 205: (1957) 27 Com Cas 97: (1957) MLJ (Cr) 27: AIR 1957 Mad 65 (66) (Pt A) (Pr 10).

——Art. 226 — Dispute whether factory comes under S. 1 (3), Employees' Provident Funds Act, not decided — Writ prohibiting Regional Provident Fund Commissioner from enforcing demands for contributions granted — (Employees Provident Funds Act (1952), Ss. 1 (3) and 19-A).

Where there is a dispute as to whether a factory owner's factory is a factory in which 50 or more persons are employed and if so it comes within the scope of S. 1 (3), Employees Provident Funds Act, and that dispute has yet to be decided under S. 19-A of the Act, the factory owner is entitled to a writ prohibiting the Regional Provident Fund Commissioner from enforcing demands for contributions under the Act till the dispute is decided under S. 19-A of the Act. (1955) 2 MLJ 271: (S) AIR 1955 Mad 387 (389, 391) (Pt C) (Prs 9, 25).

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1964 Mad 371].

——Art. 226 — Bombay District Municipal Act (3 of 1901), S. 26 (2) — Request by Councillors to hold special general meeting for passing resolution for removal of Chairmen of Committees — Charge of incompetence, misuse of power and neglect of duty — Matter for discussion relates to general business of municipality — President cannot refuse to convene meeting — Writ prohibiting holding of meeting cannot be issued. See Municipalities — Bombay District Municipal Act (3 of 1901), S. 26 (2). ('62) 40 Mys LJ 827 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Prohibition — Party questioning vires of Act — Remedy.

The proper course for a petitioner who desires to challenge the vires of an Act is to move for a writ of prohibition straightway before he joins issue on the merits of the case. Otherwise, unwarranted adjudications involving much time and expense if the Act is subsequently held to be invalid, would already have taken place resulting in nothing. ILR (1956) Nag 569.

282. Mandamus and prohibition, compared.

See Note 263.

283. Nature and object of writ of prohibition.

——Art. 226 — Prohibition — Grounds for and object of issue. See Expenditure Tax Act, Ss. 3 & 13 (2). (1961) 2 Andh WR 9: AIR 1961 Andh Pra 374.

——Art. 226 — Writ of prohibition — Question of limitation or laches.

As long as there is something to be acted upon, the writ of prohibition runs and there is no question of limitation or laches. The obvious reason for this exception is that the threatened action being challenged on the ground of want of jurisdiction or illegality, can be prohibited if it can be shown that the order is prima facie illegal and unwarranted and there is still something upon which the order can act. AIR 1957 Andh Pra 1027 (FB), Relied on. AIR 1958 Andh Pra 205, Disting. 1958 Andh LT 129.

——Art. 226 — Writ of prohibition — Object and nature of.

The purpose of issuing a writ of prohibition is to prevent a person or a body of persons having legal authority to determine questions affecting the rights of a subject judicially from acting in excess of their legal authority and the writ goes ex debito justitiae. It is preventive in its character and not remedial. Hence, the contention that if the Court were to interfere before the final order is passed officers against whom departmental inquiries were going on, would all of them at any stage of the inquiry rush to the Court asking for writs of prohibition, was not tenable. 56 Bom LR 350: ILR (1954) Bom 1271: AIR 1954 Bom 361 (363, 364) (Pt B) (Pr 11).

——Arts. 32, 226 — Prohibition — Writ of — Nature, object and scope of — Jurisdiction to issue.

Normally a writ of prohibition can issue only for the purpose of prohibiting an inferior tribunal from continuing proceedings instituted in that tribunal on proof that the tribunal had either no jurisdiction to entertain the proceedings or to continue the proceedings. Where there is no such proceeding pending which could be restrained by a writ of prohibition issued to the inferior tribunal, a petition for such a writ is not maintainable. The writ is not a remedial writ but is preventive. (1951-52) 3 FJR 81: 53 Bom LR 381: AIR 1951 Bom 158 (158 to 160) (Prs 5, 6, 11, 12).

——Art. 226 — Prohibition — Purpose for which writ can issue.

A writ in the nature of prohibition does not command anyone to refrain from usurping jurisdiction in respect of executive acts. It goes only to inferior tribunals to control judicial or quasi-judicial action and is not intended to control executive acts or administrative action aimed at collection of revenue. (1958) 33 ITR 866: (1957-58) 12 FJR 324: AIR 1957 Cal 514 (Pt F) (Prs 12, 23) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Writ of prohibition.

The writ of prohibition is a writ which is issued primarily to prevent a Court or tribunal, judicial or quasi-judicial, from exceeding jurisdiction or acting contrary to rules of natural justice. ILR (1953) Hyd 311: AIR 1953 Hyd 222 (224) (Pt E) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Prohibition — Writ of — Nature and scope.

A writ of prohibition commands the Court or tribunal to whom it is issued to refrain from doing something which it is about to do. It prevents a tribunal possessing judicial or quasi-judicial powers from assuming or threatening to assume jurisdiction which it does not possess. 59 Punj LR 272: ILR (1957) Punj 1521: AIR 1958 Punj 168 (170) (Pt B) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Prohibition, when to issue.

There can be no question of a writ of prohibition being issued in a case, where it has not been alleged or proved that there has been any wrongful adjudication by an unauthorised body. 58 Punj LR 512: ILR (1957) Punj 198: AIR 1957 Punj 42 (43) (Pt B) (Pr 5) (DB).

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1958 SC 36].

——Art. 226 — Prohibition.

The principles under which a writ of prohibition lies are practically the same as those under which a writ of mandamus lies. Where there is authority to do the act, but the manner of doing it is improper, the writ will not lie. In other words, whatever power is conferred may be exercised and if it be exercised injudiciously, erroneously or irregularly, it amounts to error merely and not to an usurpation or excess of jurisdiction. In such a case, however gross the error, irregularity or mistake, the writ does not lie, not because there exist other adequate remedies, or such remedies are inhibited, but for the reason that there has been no usurpation or abuse of power. 55 Punj LR 304: ILR (1953) Punj 225: AIR 1953 Punj 225 (226) (Pt B) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Prohibition, writ of — There must be a statutory or a legal provision prohibiting a certain thing before a writ of prohibition can be issued. ('52) 54 Punj LR 236: AIR 1952 Punj 351 (353) (Pt B) (Pr 8) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Writ of prohibition.

From the point of view of convenience it is certainly desirable that objection relating to jurisdiction should first be taken before the original Court or tribunal, and it should be enabled to express its opinion on this question. If such an objection is raised before the inferior Courts and their decision is taken thereon, in some cases it may be that the parties might be satisfied with that decision, and may not increase the work of the High Court by rushing to it without enabling the inferior Courts to pronounce their decision on the question. A practice had developed in almost all the High Courts that applications for revision against an order of a Magistrate are not entertained unless the party aggrieved has first gone in revision to the Sessions Court and obtained its decision. Such practice is very desirable in cases of prohibition under Art. 226 of the Constitution. At present, however, there is no such practice. Of course in cases where a right of appeal or revision to the High Court has been given by a statute against order or decrees of an inferior Court, a writ of prohibition shall not be allowed because the question can be brought before the High Court in appeal or revision.

Held, that if the objections raised by the petitioners were valid, the absence of jurisdiction was patent and therefore legally the petition under Art. 226 could not be thrown off on the ground that the question of jurisdiction was not raised before the lower tribunal. 1955 Raj LW 170: ILR (1954) 4 Raj 577: AIR 1954 Raj 185 (188, 189) (Pt E) (Pr 13) (DB).

284. New point.

See Note 98.

285. Non-compliance with order.

●——Arts. 226, 215 — Income-tax proceedings — Documents and books of assessee seized — Application by assessee against seizure order made to High Court under Art. 226 — Prohibitory order passed by High Court not to give effect to seizure order and directing release of documents and books — No personal service of such prohibitory order on Income-tax Commissioner held was necessary — Refusal of Income-tax Commissioner to release books etc., held amounted to contempt of Court. See Ibid, Art. 215. AIR 1964 Assam 92 (FB).

286. Other remedy open.

See Note 7.

287. Premature application.

See Note 277.

288. Private body, against.

See Note 276.

289. Submission to jurisdiction.

——Art. 226 — Writ of prohibition — Delay — — Lack of jurisdiction — Delay is immaterial.

In cases of patent lack of jurisdiction the writ of prohibition can be claimed as of right and the writ cannot be refused on the ground of delay or omission to raise the point before the inferior tribunal. If, therefore, lack of jurisdiction in the Compensation Officer under the U. P. Act I of 1951 is established the aggrieved party is entitled to urge the High Court to issue a writ of prohibition even at the late stage. If there is complete want of jurisdiction, the fact that the application for restoration had been pending for sometime before the Compensation Officer and is being contested on other grounds is immaterial and a writ of prohibition can be issued even after a delay of two years. If the entire proceedings are without jurisdiction and cannot be carried on interlocutory orders must fall along with them. 1962 All LJ 501: 1962 All WR (SC) 475: AIR 1962 All 590 (603, 604) (Pt K) (Prs 52, 53, 54) (DB).

[Reversed on another point in AIR 1966 SC 1164].

●——Art. 226 — Alternative remedy — Delay and acquiescence of petitioner — If and when bar to writ of prohibition.

The existence of an alternative remedy is not an absolute bar to grant a relief by the High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution. If the defect of jurisdiction is apparent on the face of the record, i. e., patent, the High Court will not refuse relief to the petitioner even on the ground of acquiescence. In cases where the defect of jurisdiction is latent, namely it can be discovered after enquiry, the ground of laches and misconduct may be valid ground to refuse the relief of prohibition. AIR 1956 Bom 530, Foll. M/s. Tansukhrai Bodulal v. Income-tax, Officer, Nowgong, (1962) 46 ITR 325: AIR 1961 Assam 35 (45, 46, 47) (Pt C) (Prs 22, 26) (FB).

——Art. 226 — Writ of prohibition — Want of jurisdiction — Notice under Land Acquisition Act — Objection raised protesting against acquisition proceedings — If amounts to submission to jurisdiction — (Land Acquisition Act (1894), S. 5-A).

Where want of jurisdiction is patent, the grant of a writ of prohibition follows as a matter of course. (1894) 1 QB 552, Rel. on.

If the Land Acquisition Officer has no jurisdiction to take proceedings under the provisions either of the Land Acquisition Act or the Hyderabad Sanitary Powers' A'in, the mere fact that the petitioner once in answer to the notice given by the Tahsildar, who under Land Acquisition Act, was not authorised to give such a notice, had submitted his objections protesting against the acquisition proceedings does not either amount to a submission to the jurisdiction or make the proceedings valid. ILR (1955) Hyd 494: AIR 1955 Hyd 203 (206, 207) (Pt B) (Pr 17) (DB).

290. Who can apply for.

——Art. 226 — Prohibition — Issue of Writ — Stage Carriage permit — Change of timings whether variation of condition of permit — Person aggrieved is the holder of permit — No other person has a right of appeal — See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 64 (b). AIR 1965 AP 115.

——Art. 226 — Right to apply — Rate-payer of municipal corporation — Application by to restrain corporation from moving and deliberating a resolution which is beyond the scope of municipal affairs, is maintainable. ILR (1960) 2 Cal 572: 64 Cal WN 134: AIR 1960 Cal 102 (111, 112) (Pt C) (Pr 23).

——Art. 226 — Prohibition — Right to apply for.

The purchasers of stones from the quarry-men are entitled to file a writ petition when even though the charge by way of royalty is to be made from the quarry-men, the contractor is authorised to collect the royalty from the quarry-holder or from persons taking stones from such quarry-holders. 1958 Raj LW 155: ILR (1956) 6 Raj 712: AIR 1956 Raj 161 (162) (Pt A) (Pr 7) (DB).

291. Writ of right.

See Note 279.

PART F

QUO WARRANTO.

(Notes 292 to 305).

292. Advocate General or Government Pleader, validity of appointment.

——Art. 226 — Quo warranto, writ of — When will issue — Public office — Government Pleader in Madras holds public office.

Quo warranto is generally regarded as an appropriate and adequate remedy to determine the right or title to a public office and to oust an incumbent who has unlawfully usurped or intruded into such office or is unlawfully holding the same. A proceeding in quo warranto against a public officer is for the purpose of determining whether he is entitled to hold the office and discharge its function. Quo warranto, unless enlarged by statute to cover private offices, is confined to testing the right or title to public office of a civil character.

The duties of the Government Pleader, Madras, are duties of a public nature. Besides, the public are genuinely concerned with the manner in which a Government Pleader discharges his duties. The State Prosecutor in the City and Public Prosecutors in the mofussil are holders of public offices. The Government Pleader in the City of Madras is the counterpart on the civil side of the State Prosecutor (in the City) and the Public Prosecutors (in the districts) on the criminal side of judicial administration. ILR (1961) Mad 553: AIR 1961 Mad 450 (460, 461, 463, 464, 471, 472, 475) (Pt B) (Prs. 45, 46, 48, 67, 72, 74, 103, 104, 116, 118) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Quo warranto — Government Pleader Madras — Appointment of — Rules as to — Appointment held not bona fide — Rules held had no statutory force — High Court declined to issue writ of quo warranto. ILR (1961) Mad 553: AIR 1961 Mad 450 (460, 461, 463, 464, 465, 471, 472, 475) (Pt B) (Prs 43, 45, 46, 67, 72, 74, 103, 104, 116, 118) (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 165 — Quo Warranto — Issue of writ — Appointment of Advocate-General by Governor.

What the Court has to consider in an application for a writ of quo warranto is whether there has been usurpation of an office of a public nature and an office substantive in character, i. e., an office independent of title. An application for the issue of a quo warranto for testing the validity of the appointment of an Advocate-General under Art. 165 of the Constitution by the Governor is maintainable, although the Governor is not amenable to the process of the Court by virtue of the provisions of Art. 361 of the Constitution. The immunity afforded by this Article is personal to the Governor and it does not place the actions of the Governor purporting to be done in pursuance of the Constitution beyond the scrutiny of the Courts. The validity of the appointment of an Advocate-General can be considered and decided in the absence of the Governor who made the appointment. It is not the rule that relief cannot be granted in proceedings for a writ of qua warranto in the absence of the authority making the appointment. Whatever order the Court makes in proceedings for a writ of quo warranto, would be an order binding on the incumbent of the office in question. The judgment of the Court would be a judgment of ouster affecting the person holding the office. The writ can issue although the office of the Advocate-General is one held during the pleasure by the Governor. There is no precedent for refusal by the Court of an information where the appointment to an office held during pleasure would be illegal. By refusing remedy in such a case the Court would be perpetuating the illegality. ILR (1952) Nag 409: AIR 1952 Nag 330 (334, 335) (Pt G) (Prs 14, 18, 19, 21) (DB).

293. Against whom can be issued.

——Art. 226 — Quo Warranto and Prohibition — Issue of, against fact finding committee.

A writ of quo warranto is issued in cases where a person usurps a public office or is otherwise unfit to hold it. Prohibition issues to judicial or quasi-judicial bodies. The inquiry by Niyogi committee could not be described to a judicial or even quasi-judicial one, it was fact finding. It was not a fit case for issue of a writ of prohibition or of quo warranto. (1957) MPLJ 1 (Nag).

294. Bar to, by statutory provision.

——Art. 226 — Quo warranto — Bar by statutory provision — Writ to set aside election in municipal town in Pepsu — Objection relating to delimitation — Maintainability — (Election — Punjab Municipal Act (III of 1911), S. 240 — Rules under, Pepsu Municipal Election Rules (1949), Rr. 8, 10, 51, 52 and 63) — (Municipalities).

Undoubtedly a statutory remedy displaces a writ in the nature of quo warranto, but it is not so displaced if the objection taken falls outside the scope of the statutory remedy. Further, an election petition may be maintained by a defeated candidate or by five voters in enforcement of their right under the Pepsu Election Rules, but a quo warranto can also be involved by the people in their sovereign capacity as an inherent right.

Where in proceedings in the nature of quo warranto challenging the elections held in a municipal town in Pepsu, the objection of the petitioners was not to the inclusion of a particular name in the electoral roll but to the right of including the residents, etc., of a particular area in a particular ward, the objection lies outside the scope of Pepsu Municipal Election Rr. 8 and 10. Similarly, the objection lay outside the purview of Rr. 53 and 63. Rule 51, therefore, could not be invoked as a bar to the petition. AIR 1958 Punj 128 (131, 132) (Pt E) (Prs 11, 12).

295. Discretion.

See Notes 39 and 298.

296. Elective office.

See Note 299.

297. Futile writ.

See Note 53.

298. General principles.

——Art. 226 — Quo warranto, writ of — Nature of writ — Conditions to be satisfied for issue of writ.

Broadly stated, the quo warranto proceeding affords a judicial enquiry in which any person holding an independent substantive public office, or franchise or liberty, is called upon to show by what right he holds the said office, franchise or liberty; if the inquiry leads to the finding that the holder of the office has no valid title to it, the issue of the writ of quo warranto ousts him from that office. In other words, the procedure of quo warranto confers jurisdiction and authority on the judiciary to control executive action in the matter of making appointments to public offices against the relevant statutory provisions; it also protects a citizen from being deprived of public office to which he may have a right. It would thus be seen that if these proceedings are adopted subject to the conditions recognised in that behalf, they tend to protect the public from usurpers of public office; in some cases, persons not entitled to public office may be allowed to occupy them and to continue to hold them as a result of the connivance of the executive or with its active help, and in such cases, if the jurisdiction of the Courts to issue writ of quo warranto is properly invoked, the usurper can be ousted and the person entitled to the post allowed to occupy it. It is thus clear that before a citizen can claim a writ of quo warranto, he must satisfy the Court, inter alia, that the office in question is a public office and is held by usurper without legal authority and that necessarily leads to the enquiry as to whether the appointment of the said alleged usurper has been made in accordance with law or not. University of Mysore v. C. D. Govinda Rao, (1964) 1 SCWR 44: AIR 1965 SC 491 (494) (Pt A) (Pr 7).

——Arts. 226 and 227 — Writ of quo warranto — Burden — Person claiming legal right in office has to support his claim.

In a petition for a writ of quo warranto those who claim a legal right to the office they occupied have to justify their right. It is the duty of the Court to find out if that person had such a legal right to occupy that office. The burden does not lie on the petitioner. Relief cannot be denied to the petitioner on the ground that there was some delay in complaining about the absence of the right claimed. 1965 Mah LJ (Notes) 40.

——Art. 226 — Quo warranto.

It is the duty of the Court, as soon as its attention is drawn to the fact that a person who is not qualified is holding a public office, to declare that he is not entitled to that office and to prevent him from acting as such. 55 Bom LR 758: ILR 1954 Bom 290: AIR 1954 Bom 41 (43) (Pt C) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Quo warranto — Applicability — Courts are reluctant to interfere with elections except on clearest and strongest grounds — Democracy cannot be expected to indulge in elections too frequently — Courts are loath to interfere with the decision of the people merely because some technicality has not been observed or some irregularity has been committed. But if the irregularity has resulted in the people not being able to express their views properly or if there was any corrupt practice which materially affected the results of the election or if the election itself was held without any authority of law, the matter would be different. Once it is conceded that the collector had the authority to fix the date of the general election and the general election took place according to law, any irregularity committed in the course of the election cannot be a ground for the issue of a writ of quo warranto. See Municipalities — Bombay Municipal Boroughs Act (XVIII of 1925), S. 4 (4). 55 Bom LR 882: ILR (1954) Bom 104: AIR 1954 Bom 116 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Quo warranto — Procedure — Form of prayer — In application for that writ in Calcutta High Court, rule nisi should be prayed for. 68 Cal WN 958: AIR 1964 Cal 500 (501) (Pt E) (Pr 5).

——Art. 226 — Order restraining person acting in an office.

(Per Dixit J.) Quite apart from the principles of English Law governing the issue of a writ of quo warranto, it is clear from the wide scope of Art. 226 that the High Court has the power to issue an order restraining any person acting in an office in which he is not entitled to act and also, if the case so requires declaring the office vacant, where the office said to be usurped, has been created by the Constitution itself with certain functions and duties attached to it. AIR 1951 Madhya B. 121, Rel. on. ILR (1952) Madh B 145: AIR 1952 Madh B 31 (45) (Pt T) (Pr 47) (DB).

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1959 SC 395].

——Art. 226 — Quo warranto — Writ of — Rules under S. 116, M. B. Panchayat Act, Rules 29 (1), 30 — Appointment of returning officer — Petitioner acquiescing in appointment and submitting nomination form — Cannot challenge election on ground that Returning Officer was not validly appointed and ask for issue of writ of quo warranto. See Panchayats — Madhya Bharat Panchayat Vidhan (SM. 2006), S. 116. 1959 MPLJ 807.

——Art. 226 — Quo warranto — Writ of — Prayers appropriate to such writ as distinguished from certiorari. (1963) 2 Mys LJ 383: AIR 1964 Mys 159 (163, 164) (Pt B) (Pr 8) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Quo warranto — Application when to be made — An application for the removal of a person occupying a public office by quo warranto has to be made with utmost expedition, since the very object of the application is to remove a person who is masquerading as one who has the authority and qualification to hold a public office without possessing the same. ILR (1961) Mys 1064.

——Art. 226 — "Any other purpose" — Interpretation.

The words "for any other purpose" in Art. 226 of the Constitution must receive their plain and natural meaning, namely, for any other object which the Court considers appropriate and calls for the exercise of the powers conferred upon it. Though the power of the High Court under this article is ordinarily exercisable for enforcement of right or performance of duty it cannot necessarily be limited to only such cases. Such a limitation cannot be reconciled with the power to issue a writ in the nature of quo warranto which power has been expressly conferred on the Court. In proceedings for a writ of quo warranto the applicant does not seek to enforce any right of his as such nor does he complain of any non-performance of duty towards him. What is in question is the right of the non-applicant to hold the office and an order that is passed is an order ousting him from the office. ILR (1952) Nag 409: AIR 1952 Nag 330 (334, 335) (Pt G) (Prs 14, 18, 19, 21) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Quo warranto — Nature of information.

To find out the true nature of the information, Courts have to look to the petition as a whole. ILR (1958) Punj 1938: AIR 1959 Punj 83 (87) (Pt B) (Pr 14) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Quo warranto — It is not a writ which the petitioners are entitled as a matter of right. AIR 1958 Punj 128 (132) (Pt F) (Pr 13).

——Art. 226 — Quo warranto cannot be claimed as of right — University Ordinance not followed — High Court will not interfere — University of Rajputana Act (1946), Section 30 — University Ordinance No. 63. 1961 Raj LW 326: ILR (1961) 11 Raj 206.

299. Office in respect of which writ lies.

(a) Elective office.

299. Office in respect of which writ lies.

● ——Art. 226 — Quo warranto, writ of.

Per Full Bench :— The Court will not grant a quo warranto in a case where a mere irregularity can be cured. (1872) 25 LT 459 and (1916) 1 KB 585, Ref.

Hence where the petitioner challenged the Constitution of the Election tribunal on ground that one of the members was not qualified to act as such member at the date of his appointment but at the date of hearing of the petition he had become so qualified and there was nothing to bar his reappointment, the High Court refused to entertain an application under Art. 226, Constitution of India. Hari Shankar Prasad Gupta v. Sukhdeo Prasad, ILR (1954) 1 All 447: 1953 All WR (HC) 684: 1953 All LJ 678: AIR 1954 All 227 (228, 230, 231) (Pt C) (Prs 4, 16, 18) (FB).

——Art. 226 — Municipalities — U. P. Municipalities Act (1916), Section 38 — Membership of Board is an office — Application for writ of quo warranto in respect of membership is maintainable — See Municipalities — U. P. Municipalities Act (2 of 1916), S. 38. AIR 1953 All 193.

——Art. 226 — Writ of quo warranto — Offices of members of Managing Committee of school — Writ does not lie in respect of such offices. ('52) 56 Cal WN 449: AIR 1953 Cal 114 (115) (Pt A) (Pr 5).

——Art. 226 — Quo warranto and writ of mandamus — Wrongful claims to office — Endorsement of unfitness on certificate of service — Unjust practice — Merchant Shipping Act (1923), S. S.

If a wrongful claim is made to an office which does not exist or if a new office is set up an information in the nature of a quo warranto may lie. And where Government officials have been constituted agents for carrying out particular duties in relation to subjects so that they are under a legal obligation towards such subjects, a writ of mandamus will lie for enforcement of such duties.

Thus, where a shipping Master and a Government Medical Officer are carrying out inter alia the public duties of holding pre-entry medical examination of seamen they are under a legal obligation to conduct the examination of seamen in a reasonable manner and to certify the result of their examination in a reasonable manner and not to put unreasonable impediments in the matter of their fundamental right of carrying on freely their occupation of seamen as citizens of the Indian Union. The principles of natural justice also require that they should act in a reasonable manner. But the practice of endorsement of "permanent unfitness" on the Certificates of Service as a result of medical examination does not appear to be consonant to justice. In such a case, the High Court has, under Art. 226, ample power to issue necessary directions so as to restrain the officers from acting unjustly. 48 Cal WN 766, Rel. on. AIR 1951 Cal 570 (572, 573) (Pt A) (Prs 10, 15).

——Art. 226 — 'State' in Art. 16, Constitution of India includes municipal corporation — Creation of new post by Municipality — Person already employed in Municipality on different post appointed to new post — Post not regularly advertised by inviting applications from persons qualified — Art. 16 violated — Madhya Bharat Municipal Corporation Act (XXIII of 1956), Ss. 58 and 442 (2) — Appointment not made with consultation of State Public Service Commission as required by S. 58(2) — Appointment illegal — Writ of quo warranto and mandamus — Issue of. See Ibid, Art. 16. AIR 1963 Madh Pra 17 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Quo warranto — Writ of — Nature of office in respect of which writ will lie — Professors and Readers in Mysore University — Not holders of public office — Writ cannot issue. (1963) 2 Mys LJ 383: AIR 1964 Mys 159 (164, 165, 166) (Pt D) (Prs 11, 14) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Quo warranto against members of private association.

A writ of quo warranto only applies to offices of a public and substantive nature which are created by a statute. But the members of the working committee of an association or society such as the Bihar Rajya Arya Pratinidhi Sabha do not hold an office of public character. Therefore, a writ of quo warranto cannot be issued to test the validity of their election. (1946) 8 QBD 946: (1863) 8 LT 458, Rel. on. 33 Pat 157: AIR 1954 Pat 297 (299) (Pt B) (Pr 9) (DB).

299 (a). Elective office.

——Art. 226 — Person not a member of Legislative Assembly appointed as Chief Minister pending his election to that House within six months — Person appointed commanding the support of the assembly — Appointment is neither prohibited by the Constitution nor does it violate the basic principle of parliamentary Government — Whether such a stop-gap arrangement is politically desirable or not is not a matter for the Court to consider. See Ibid, Art. 164. AIR 1962 All 301.

——Art. 226 — Writ of quo warranto — When to issue — Test — Writ to issue when there is usurpation of office — Competent persons elected as chairman and vice-chairman of Zila Parishad under Act 35 of 1959 before proper Constitution of Parishad — Held there was no usurpation. 1960 Andh LT 489: (1960) 2 Andh WR 69: ILR (1961) 1 Andh Pra 198: AIR 1961 Andh Pra 250 (252, 253) (Pt C) (Prs 13, 15, 17) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Quo warranto — Writ in respect of elective office — Elected councillor not in possession of office — Issue of Writ — (Elections).

A petition for a writ of quo warranto against a councillor elected to a municipal corporation and a direction restraining him from acting as a councillor does not lie where the councillor has not assumed office. 1958 Nag LJ 427: ILR (1959) Bom 283: AIR 1959 Bom 2 (6) (Pt B) (Pr 14) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Quo warranto, when issued — Elections — (Municipalities — Bombay Municipal Boroughs Act (XVIII of 1925), S. 15).

It is well settled that where there are statutory provisions dealing with the conduct of an election the writ of quo warranto is displaced. An election then can only be challenged in the manner laid down by the statute.

Person elected by councillors of Municipality as President — Such person discharging functions under Bombay Boroughs Municipal Rules, 1950, in conducting election though not authorised in law to do so, his election itself being not valid and proper — Election conducted by him cannot be set aside under S. 15 (5), conduct of election at best being an irregularity. It cannot also be set aside by quo warranto. 55 Bom LR 882: ILR (1954) Bom 104: AIR 1954 Bom 116 (120, 121) (Pt C) (Pr 8) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Quo warranto — Writ in respect of elective office — Reluctance of High Court to issue writ against successful candidate. AIR 1954 Bom 116 and AIR 1961 Punj 429 (FB), Foll. AIR 1962 Him Pra 19 (23) (Pt C) (Pr 23).

——Art. 226 — Information in the nature of quo warranto — Office of speaker. (Per Shinde J.) Information in the nature of quo warranto can be issued in respect of the office of the speaker of Legislative Assembly as that office satisfies the requisite conditions. ILR (1952) Madh. B. 145: AIR 1952 Madh B. 31 (37) (Pt J) (Pr 20) (DB).

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1959 SC 395.]

——Art. 226 — Quo warranto — Delay — Effect — Writ refused.

Where the election of the Mayor of a Municipal Corporation was challenged 10 months after the election and when only a few hours were left before he would vacate his office and make his exit, no quo warranto writ will be issued. Delay on the part of the petitioner would constitute a good ground for refusing a writ. 1957 MPC 777: 1957 Jab LJ 1037: 1958 MPLJ 101: AIR 1958 Madh Pra 32 (33) (Prs 5, 6).

——Art. 226 — Quo warranto — [Evidence Act (1872), S. 115].

An information in the nature of quo warranto is not issued as a matter of course and when a relator applies for an information it is in the discretion of the Court to refuse or grant it according to the facts and circumstances of the case. A relator will not be entitled to information in the nature of a quo warranto if it can be shown that he acquiesced in the election to which he objects or that he is raising an objection which might have been put forward against himself at a previous election or that while cognizant of the objection he voluntarily so acted as to enable the respondent to exercise the office. AIR 1953 Nag 81, Rel. on. (1954) 1 MLJ 102: ILR (1954) Mad 908: AIR 1954 Mad 563 (568) (Pt E) (Prs 24, 25) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Quo warranto — Mysore General Clauses Act (3 of 1899), S. 21 — Mysore Town Municipalities Election Rules (1951), R. 73 — Returning Officer publishing election calendars with respect to same election in same Gazette — Second calendar subsequently withdrawn and cancelled — Election taking place according to first calendar— S. 21, Mysore General Clauses Act held was controlled by R. 73 of Election Rules according to which Deputy Commissioner had power to alter dates in Calendar — Election according to first calendar was above reproach and elected members could not be regarded as usurpers — Application for their removal by quo warranto held must fail. ILR (1961) Mys 1064.

——Art. 226 — Writ of quo warranto — Election to University Fellowship — Decision of Chancellor (S. 5, Utkal University Act) — Challenge of — Grounds — Relator not interested — Maintainability.

Where the question of election of Fellows of the University of Utkal had been decided by the Chancellor under S. 5 as a domestic tribunal it was sought to be challenged in a petition under Article 226.

Held (Per Panigrahi, J.).— Under S. 5 of the Utkal University Act any dispute relating to the election of any person to the Senate is to be referred to the Chancellor and his decision is final. Where the dispute had been so referred and decided it is not for the Court to say if that decision is correct or no unless the order is attacked on the grounds of bona fides or vires.

Per Das. C. J.— The jurisdiction of the High Court cannot be taken away except to the extent a competent Legislative Authority takes it away or limits it by a statute. The relevant statutes of the University cannot have such an effect and in fact they do not take away the power of the High Court in the case of dispute in question. The exclusion cannot be implied by the provision for final adjudication by the Chancellor. But the High Court will not ordinarily interfere and issue a writ regarding an election dispute of the University which has been adequately provided for except for grave and compelling reasons.

The petitioner being a Fellow could maintain the petition even though not personally interested in the dispute; he has sufficient interest in the Senate of which he is a Fellow though nominated. But the issue of writ on the application of such a person is discretionary and considering none of the persons affected had come forward impugning the act it is a circumstance to be taken into consideration in passing final orders. AIR 1952 Orissa 359 (370 to 373) (Pt D) (Prs 24 to 28) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Quo warranto — Election to university fellowship — Dispute relating to, decided by Chancellor — Court of law cannot question decision, unless it is on ground of vires, or bona fides — (Utkal University Act (Orissa Act XIII of 1943), S. 5). AIR 1952 Orissa 359 (383, 384) (Pr 65) (DB)

——Art. 226 — Quo warranto — Delay — Rejection of nomination paper of one of candidates to election — Other candidates acquiescing in order and taking part in election — Declaration of result of election — Defeated candidate applying for writ of quo warranto — Discretion to issue writ refused — Punjab Agricultural Produce Markets Act (1961), S. 10 — Punjab Agricultural Produce Markets (Election to Market Committee) Rules (1961), R. 9. ILR (1958) Bom 113 Distinguished. ('64) 66 Pun LR 1000.

——Art. 226 — Elections held on basis of defective electoral rolls — Rules not providing for election petition — High Court has power to issue writ. ('60) 62 Punj LR 679.

[Overruled in AIR 1961 Punj 429 (FB)].

——Art. 226 — Quo warranto — Election of municipal member on basis of defective electoral roll — Writ can be issued — (Election). AIR 1961 Punj 105 (109) (Pt B) (Pr 6).

[Overruled in AIR 1961 Punj 429 (FB)].

——Art. 226 — A petition for issuance of a writ of quo warranto against all the elected members of a municipality on the ground that the electoral rolls had not been prepared in accordance with the mandatory and essential provisions of law is maintainable. ('60) 62 Punj LR 377: ILR (1960) 2 Punj 192.

[Overruled in AIR 1961 Punj 429 (FB). It was however, held in AIR 1965 Punj 361, that AIR 1961 Punj 429 (FB) did not overrule ('60) ILR (1960) 2 Punj 192 — Ed.]

——Art. 226 — Quo warranto — (T. C. Hindu Religious Institutions Act (XV of 1950), S. 66).

The writ of quo warranto is a common law process of great antiquity; a writ of right for the King against one who claimed or usurped any office, franchise, or liberty, to inquire by what authority he asserted a right thereto in order that it might be determined. An information in the nature of quo warranto is its modern form and there is no doubt that it is a remedy given by law at the discretion of the Court and not issued as a matter of course.

As regards "office" English Law originally confined it to cases of usurpation upon the Crown directly. But later on the remedy was held to apply equally to an office of a permanent character held at pleasure provided it was of a public and substantive character. (1872) 25 LT 459, Referred to. AIR 1954 All 227 (FB), Commented on.

Thus a Chairman of a municipality being an office-holder of a local authority within the meaning of S. 66 (iii), T. C. Hindu Religious Institutions Act, 1950, his election to the Devaswom Board should be declared void, where he was such an office-holder on the crucial date namely the date of his nomination and election, on the ground of disqualification where it is impossible to hold that the voters were conscious of the disqualification and still voted for him. There is no authority for refusing the writ of quo warranto on the ground that though there was such disqualification on the crucial date it had ceased to exist by the time the writ was sought. 1954 Ker LT 723: ILR (1954) TC 1295: AIR 1955 Trav-Co 42 (45, 46) (Pt D) (Prs 12, 14, 15, 16, 17) (DB).

300. Other remedy open.

See Note 7.

301. Parties to proceeding.

——Art. 226 — Quo warranto — Person wrongfully usurping public office — Proper writ — Parties to proceeding.

The writ that can suitably be issued against a person who has wrongfully usurped or taken charge of a public office such as the office of the Chairman Local Board is a writ in the nature of quo warranto. No such order of writ can issue to a person unless he is made a party to the proceeding. He is to be heard before a writ of an extraordinary nature is issued. If others are joined, the misjoinder may not be fatal to the petition but he is undoubtedly a necessary party. Besides, whatever may be the nature of the writ that may have to be issued, no order can be passed against him in his absence and without any notice to him. Such a course would be opposed to the principle of natural justice. It cannot be said that a person because he happens to be acquainted with the facts of the case, automatically becomes a party to the proceeding by merely putting in an affidavit. By authorising the advocate to represent the Board in the proceedings the Chairman acts in the discharge of his function as Chairman no doubt, but he could not include himself as a party to the proceeding by any act of his own. He could be included as a party to the proceeding only by an order of the Court. ILR (1952) 4 Assam 217: AIR 1952 Assam 119 (122, 123) (Pt C) (Prs 12, 14) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Quo warranto — Writ cannot be issued against managing committee of private school — Validity of approval of such committee by University challenged — University not made party — Application is not maintainable — Revised School Code, R. 6. 56 CWN 449: AIR 1953 Cal 114 (115) (Pts A, B) (Prs 5, 7).

——Art. 226 — Balloting out of University fellows under S. 12, Utkal University Act, irregular — Persons affected directly not making complaint — Irregularity not producing any material consequences to the interest of the University, or any tangible repurcussion on proper functioning of University as democratic body — Petition for writ by relator, held would be rejected — (Utkal University Act (Orissa Act XIII of 1943), S. 12). AIR 1952 Orissa 359 (374, 375) (Pt I) (Pr 34) (DB).

302. Possession of office, defendant must be in.

——Art. 226—Quo warranto — Its origin, indicated — Writ in respect of elective office — Election of councillor of Municipality — Writ does not lie until he assumes office. AIR 1959 Bom 2, Foll. AIR 1962 Him Pra 19 (22) (Pt A) (Pr 18).

303. Resignation from office.

——Art. 226 — Premature petition — Application for writ of quo warranto against member of legislature on basis that he has tendered his resignation — Resignation under rules of procedure of House was to become effective only when Speaker had determined its genuineness — Writ petition before decision of Speaker is premature. AIR 1965 All 536 (542) (Pt D) (Pr 23).

304. Title to office.

——Arts. 226 and 171 — Quo warranto — Nomination of person to legislative council — Petitioner not showing that the person was disqualified or that the Governor had no power to nominate him but merely showing that nomination was made for political reasons — Held that was not sufficient to issue a writ of quo warranto. 1961 All LJ 927: AIR 1962 All 301 (305) (Pt E) (Pr 23).

——Art. 226 (1) — Quo warranto — Title to corporate office in question — Issue of writ. AIR 1953 Assam 12 (13, 14) (Pt C) (Prs 5, 7) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Quo warranto — When issued.

A writ in the nature of quo warranto is not issued as a matter of course. The Court has a discretion to grant or to refuse the writ. The Court will not allow an information in the nature of a quo warranto to be filed to try the title to an office, merely because there has been an irregularity in the election to the office, in the absence of bad faith, and where the result of the election has not been affected. ('59) 63 Cal WN 590.

——Art. 226 — Date of commencement of M. B. Vikram University Act not appointed — Effect on operation of Act — S. 1 (2) and S. 45 of the Act — Held operative — No illegal assumption of office by Chancellor. See M. B. Vikram University Act (18 of 1955), S. 1 (2). AIR 1957 Madh Pra 60.

——Art. 226 — Quo warranto — Issue of — Grounds — Usurpation of public office sufficient.

A writ of quo warranto lies where there is in substance a usurpation though the name of the office may not have been assumed by the respondent. 48 Cal WN 766, Rel. on. 1957 Jab LJ 170: ILR (1957) Madh Pra 188: 1962 MPLJ (Notes) 5: 1957 MPC 177: AIR 1957 Madh Pra 60 (66) (Pt E) (Pr 51).

305. Who can apply.

——Art. 226 — Quo warranto — Right to apply for writ.

The petition for a writ of quo warranto could be maintained by any person. Where by an application the petitioner made it clear that he had filed the application for and on behalf of another person any misdescription in the title of the petition is of no importance. AIR 1956 Ajmer 70 (71) (Pt B) (Pr 3).

——Art. 226 — Quo warranto — Procedure for making application — (High Court Rules (All.) 1952), Chap. 22, Rr. 1 and 7).

A motion for a writ of quo warranto can be made at the instance of a private individual without the intervention of the Government or any public authority. Under Rules 1 and 7 of Chap. 22 of the Rules of the Allahabad High Court, 1952, an application for the issue of a writ of this nature has to be made to a Division Bench and by an advocate and not by the party personally. 1952 RD (HC) 388: 1953 All WR (HC) 35: 1953 All LJ 81: AIR 1953 All 193 (193) (Pt A) (Pr 2) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Writ of quo warranto — Who can apply for — Relator having no personal interest in a matter can apply for issue of such writ. 1960 Andh LT 489: (1960) 2 Andh WR 69: ILR (1961) 1 Andh Pra 198: AIR 1961 AP 250 (252) (Pt B) (Prs 10, 12) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Quo warranto — Writ of — Who can apply.

It is incorrect to say that unless a person's personal right is infringed or unless he has suffered a legal injury, he cannot maintain an application for quo warranto. An application for a writ of quo warranto challenging the validity of appointment to an office of a public or substantive nature is maintainable at the instance of any private person even though he is not seeking enforcement of any fundamental right under the Constitution or any legal right of his or of any legal duty towards him. (1916) 1 KB 595, Ref. ('52) 56 Cal WN 651: AIR 1952 Cal 799 (803, 804) (Pt F) (Pr 20).

——Art. 226 — Writ of quo warranto — Relator need not have direct and personal interest in the matter. AIR 1953 Mad 96, Dissented from. AIR 1952 Cal 799; AIR 1952 Orissa 359 and AIR 1952 Nag 330, Rel. on. AIR 1951 SC 41 and AIR 1953 Mad 94, Distinguished. ILR (1955) Hyd 292: AIR 1955 Hyd 36 (38) (Pt A) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Writ of quo warranto — When issued — Relator need have no special interest. AIR 1952 Nag 330 and AIR 1955 Hyd 36, Rel. on. 1957 Jab LJ 170: ILR (1957) Madh Pra 188: 1962 MPLJ (Notes) 5: 1957 MPC 177: AIR 1957 Madh Pra 60 (62) (Pt A) (Prs 16, 19).

——Art. 226 — Quo warranto — Who can apply. Though a writ of quo warranto is not a writ of right, in the sense that the Court is bound to grant the relief prayed for, still if the validity of an appointment or a claim to an office by a person is challenged by an applicant for a writ notwithstanding that he does not have a personal interest in the matter, and the Court is satisfied that the petition has been filed bona fide, it has a right to investigate the matter and decide on the validity of the appointment. (1946) 1 KB 595, Rel. on: AIR 1953 Mad 96, held not correct. 69 Mad LW 713: (1956) 2 MLJ 460: 1956 Mad WN 685: ILR (1957) Mad 158: AIR 1957 Mad 17 (17) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Writ of quo warranto — Petitioner not interested in the subject-matter — Writ cannot be issued. Decision in W. P. No. 244 of 1952 (Mad), Rel. on: Case-law ref. (1952) 2 MLJ 779: AIR 1953 Mad 96 (98) (Pt A) (Pr 11).

[Overruled in AIR 1957 Mad 17].

——Art. 226 — Scope — Writ of quo warranto — Right to apply for issue of — Locus standi.

Unless there is an infraction of a personal right a person has no right to maintain an application for the issue of a writ of quo warranto under Article 226 of the Constitution of India (1950). (1952) 2 MLJ 671 and (1951) SCJ 29; (1950) SCR 869, Relied on.

The words "and for any public purpose" in the article cannot be interpreted to mean a purpose other than the protection of the legal rights of a person. The jurisdiction under Art. 226 can be invoked only by or at the instance of a person who has suffered a legal injury at the hands of the executive Government of the State or some tribunal and the rights under the article are personal and direct. It cannot be said that member of the Legislative Council is aggrieved by the nomination of certain members to the Legislative Council by His Excellency the Governor of Madras, so as to entitle him to maintain an application under Article 226 for the issue of a writ of quo warranto. (1952) 2 MLJ 779: AIR 1953 Mad 96 (98) (Pt A) (Pr 11).

——Art. 226 — Quo warranto — Mysore Co-operative Societies Act (11 of 1959), S. 70—Scope — Dispute regarding election of office bearers of Co-operative Society — Any party to such dispute is entitled to make reference — See Co-operative Societies — Mysore Co-operative Societies Act (11 of 1959), S. 70. (1963) 1 Mys LJ 204.

——Art. 226 — Quo warranto — Who can apply for.

Any person though not personally interested in the result of election can apply for a writ of quo warranto. ILR (1956) Mys 274: AIR 1957 Mys 16 (18) (Pt E) (Pr 10) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Writ of quo warranto when will not be granted.

Before granting a writ of quo warranto it is necessary to see that the relator is a fit person to be entrusted with this writ. The Court will not listen to a candidate who has acquiesced or perhaps concurred in the very act which he afterwards comes to complain of when it suits his purpose. It will not issue a writ of quo warranto at the instance of the candidate for an election who did not object to the nomination of another candidate for the same constituency at the proper time. AIR 1950 Pat 387 (FB), Rel. on. ILR (1953) Nag 267: 1953 Nag LJ 503: AIR 1953 Nag 81 (85, 86) (Pt F) (Pr 21) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Quo warranto — Who can apply — Petitioners though entitled to apply, not being in any way prejudiced could not obtain writ. See Utkal University Act (XIII of 1943), S. 8 (3) (iv). AIR 1957 Orissa 159 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Quo warranto — University — Elections of Fellows — Balloting out — Quo warranto petition by relator a Fellow of University — Persons affected not parties — No personal rights of relator affected — Relator held had sufficient interest to maintain petition — Issue of writ on such application however held was discretionary — Fact that none of persons affected by impugned balloting and by consequential election have come forward is a circumstance for consideration in granting or refusing writ — (Utkal University Act (Orissa Act XIII of 1943), S. 12). AIR 1952 Orissa 359 (373) (Pt H) (Pr 31) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Quo warranto — Writ of — Person not connected with Legislature can challenge validity of nominations to State Legislative Council. AIR 1965 Pat 321 (327, 328) (Pt D) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Quo warranto — Who can apply — Election to Municipal Committee on basis of electoral roll prepared in accordance with delimitation of wards—Delimitation proved illegal — Petitioner not residing in ward affected by delimitation — Still he can apply — Elections. AIR 1961 Punj 105, Rel. on. 1965 Cur LJ 279: 67 Punj LR 452: ILR (1965) 2 Punj 174.

——Art. 226 — Challenging Municipal election — Objection common to all — Private relator if can apply for quo warranto.

The normal rule is that a petition under Art. 226 can only be made by a person who has some right and whose right has been infringed. This rule, however, is not an inflexible or an absolute one. In proceedings for a writ of quo warranto, the applicant does not seek to enforce any right of his as such, nor does he complain of non-performance of any duty towards him. What is in question is the right of the non-applicant to hold the office. It is enough for its issue that the relator is a member of the public and acts bona fide. In India, the High Court's power to do justice in such cases is further clarified by the insertion of the words "for any other purpose" in Art. 226. To question the title to a municipal corporate office or public corporation or any unit of Government, the petitioner need not be a member of the Municipal Council or other governing body but need only be a resident of the area under the Government or control of that body. A private relator can in effect assail the whole corporation, and the information will not be refused. AIR 1952 Nag 330 and AIR 1957 Madh Pra 60 and AIR 1952 Cal 799, Relied on. ILR (1958) Punj 1938: AIR 1959 Punj 83 (85, 86, 87) (Pt A) (Prs 5, 7, 12, 13, 14) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Quo warranto — Who can apply for — Order under S. 12 (5) of Rajasthan Town Municipalities Act (XXIII of 1951) — Application by members of Municipal Board is maintainable — (Municipalities — Rajasthan Municipalities Act (XXIII of 1951), S. 12 (5)). 1958 Raj LW 190: ILR (1957) 7 Raj 241: AIR 1957 Raj 75 (76) (Pt A) (Pr 5) (DB).

ARTICLE 227

SYNOPSIS

(Constitution of India (1950), Art. 227.)

1. Scope of applicability.
2. This Article and Article 226.
3. Nature and scope of power.
   (a) Difference between power of High Court under Government of India Act, 1935 and this Article.
   (b) Power is both judicial and administrative.
   (c) Power, a discretionary one.
   (d) Interference only when error or defect has caused substantial miscarriage of justice.
   (e) Power cannot be used to correct mere errors in decision on question of law or fact.
      (i) Mistakes of law.
      (ii) Findings of fact.
      (iii) High Court's power to re-appreciate evidence.
   (f) Power to be exercised to keep Courts and Tribunals within limits of their authority.
   (g) Lower Court acting without jurisdiction.
      (i) Instances of orders without jurisdiction.
      (ii) Orders which are not without jurisdiction.
   (h) Illegal exercise of jurisdiction.
   (i) Refusal or failure by lower Court to exercise jurisdiction or to do its duty.
   (j) Refusal or failure to proceed with case.
   (ja) Bias.
   (k) Conflict of jurisdiction.
   (l) Illegal orders.
   (m) Patently erroneous decisions.
      (i) Patent errors — Test of.
      (ii) Errors of law apparent on record.
      (iii) Patent error of fact.
   (n) Contravention of principles of natural justice.
      (i) Administrative orders.
      (ii) Orders of contractual domestic tribunals.
      (iii) Orders made in departmental enquiry.
      (iv) Proceedings under Sea Customs Act.
      (v) Disciplinary proceedings of University.
      (vi) Proceedings under Motor Vehicles Act.
   (o) Cases where the High Court may not interfere.
   (p) Interlocutory orders.
   (q) Discretionary matters.
      (i) Discovery and inspection.
      (ii) Stay of proceedings.
      (iii) Amendment of pleadings.
      (iv) Other cases of discretionary orders.
   (r) Subsequent events.
   (s) Nature of orders that can be passed by the High Court.
4. Power, whether includes power to transfer.
5. High Court.

   See also Ibid, Art. 228.

6. "All Courts and tribunals".
   (a) "Courts."
   (b) "Tribunals."
   (c) All tribunals exercising judicial or quasi-judicial functions are amenable to supervisory jurisdiction.
   (d) Custodian of evacuee property.
   (e) Authorities under Rent Control Acts.
   (f) Revenue Courts and Tribunals.
   (g) Election Tribunal.
   (h) Authority under Motor Vehicles Act.
   (i) Authority under Payment of Wages Act.
   (j) Industrial Tribunals and Labour Courts.
   (k) Decision of authority under Minimum Wages Act.
   (l) Nyaya Panchayats.
   (m) Collector acting under Land Acquisition Act.
7. Revision and power of superintendence.
8. Power conferred is not an appellate power.
9. Other remedy open.
   (a) Jurisdiction under Article not barred by existence of another remedy.
   (b) Impugned order open to revision.
   (c) Relief obtainable by suit.
   (d) Availability of remedy under Art. 226.
10. Laches.
11. Limitation.
12. Statutory bar.
13. Election disputes.
14. Contempt of Court.
15. Retrospective application.
16. Territorial jurisdiction.
17. Application under Article.
   (a) Person entitled to apply.
   (b) Parties.
   (c) Duty to make full disclosure of material facts.
18. Suo motu exercise of power.
19. Procedure.
20. New plea.
21. Appeal.
22. Rules of High Court.
23. Exemption of Military Courts and Tribunals.

1. Scope and applicability.

● ——Arts. 227, 226 and 215 — Law declared by High Court — It is binding on lower Courts and Tribunals.

Per Majority (Sarkar, J.: dubitante) :— An administrative Tribunal cannot ignore the law declared by the highest Court in the State. Taking into consideration the provisions of Arts. 215, 226 and 227 of the Constitution of India it would be anomalous to suggest that a Tribunal over which the High Court has superintendence can ignore the law declared by that Court and start proceedings in direct violation of it. If a Tribunal can do so, all the subordinate Courts can equally do so, for there is no specific provision, just like in the case of Supreme Court making the law declared by the High Court binding on subordinate Courts. It is implicit in the power of supervision conferred on a superior Tribunal that all the Tribunals subject to its supervision should conform to the law laid down by it. East India Commercial Co., Ltd., Calcutta v. Collector of Customs Calcutta, (1963) 3 SCR 338: (1963) 1 SCA 622 : AIR 1962 SC 1893 (1898, 1904) (Pt D) (Prs 14, 29).

——Art. 227 — Scope.

The plain language of the article clearly shows that clauses 2 and 3 do not, in any way, affect the provisions of the first clause and hence the contention that the power of supervision has to be exercised in the manner similar to that laid down in clauses 2 and 3 of Art. 227 is not correct. 1954 AMLJ 1 : AIR 1954 Ajmer 33 (35) (Pt B) (Pr 7).

——Arts. 227, 233, 234, 235 and 309 — Restriction of the High Court general control and superintendence of Courts within the State — Art. 235 — "Conditions of service" explained — A condition of service ousting the High Court's power under Art. 227 or Art. 235, to take disciplinary action is ultra vires. See Andhra Civil Service (Disciplinary Proceedings Tribunal) Rules (1953), R. 4 (1) (a) and (b) and (2) Proviso. AIR 1955 Andhra 65 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Administration of Justice in Khasi and Jaintia Hills Rules, R. 36 — Applicability of Rule to revenue matters confined to settlement of lands — High Court whether has power of superintendence in its revenue jurisdiction at least over such matter. See Administration of Justice in Khasi and Jaintia Hills Rules, R. 36. AIR 1953 Assam 192.

——Art. 227 — Extent of the powers of High Court — Limitations on powers. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1956 Bom 530.

——Art. 227 — Bombay Tenancy and Agricultural Lands (Vidarbha Region) (Amendment) Act (44 of 1963) — S. 6 does not apply to proceeding pending before High Court in petition under Art. 227 against order of Tribunal. See Tenancy Laws — Bombay Tenancy And Agricultural Lands (Vidarbha Region and Kutch Area) Act (99 of 1958), S. 38. AIR 1955 Bom 76.

——Art. 227 — Scope of article — Article whether deals with right of litigant to any remedy — Power conferred on Court under if disentitles litigant from seeking writ under Art. 226. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1951 Bom 423 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Jurisdiction of High Court under Constitution, Art. 227 — Not original but revisional — Judgment of single Judge in proceedings under Art. 227 — Not appealable. See Kerala High Court Act (1958), S. 5. 1961 Ker LT 823.

——Arts. 227, 226 — Civil P. C. (1908), S. 9 — Ouster of Civil Courts' jurisdiction — Suit for refund of stamp duty and penalty paid under Stamp Act — Maintainability — Jurisdiction whether ousted because of Arts. 226 and 227 of Constitution — Burden of proof — (Stamp Act (1899), Ss. 40, 45, 56 and 57)—(Evidence Act (1872), Ss. 101 to 104). See Civil P. C. (1908), S. 9. AIR 1959 Orissa 144.

——Art. 227 — Proceedings before Industrial Court — Writ proceeding — Propriety of. See Bombay Industrial Relations Act (11 of 1947), Section 85. 1959 MPLJ (Notes) 154.

——Art. 227 — Scope — Decision of Appellate Authority constituted under R. 73, Motor Vehicles Rules — High Court acting under Articles 226 and 227 cannot exercise appellate jurisdiction. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1955 Nag 199 (DB).

2. This Article and Article 226.

——Art. 227 — Powers of High Court — Art. 226 — Difference.

The powers of judicial interference under Art. 227 with orders of judicial or quasi-judicial nature are not greater than the powers under Art. 226. Under Art. 226, the power of interference may extend to quashing an impugned order on the ground of a mistake apparent on the face of the record. But under Art. 227 the power of interference is limited to seeing that the tribunal functions within the limits of its authority. Nagendra Nath Bora v. Commr. of Hills Division and Appeals, Assam, 36 Mys LJ 389 : (1958) SCA 572 : (1958) SCJ 798 : 1958 SCR 1240 : AIR 1958 SC 398 (413) (Pt F) (Pr 30).

——Art. 227 — Arts. 227 and 226.

While in a certiorari under Art. 226 the High Court can only annul the decision of the Tribunal, it can, under Art. 227, do that, and also issue further directions in the matter. Hari Vishnu v. Ahmad Ishaque, 1955 Mad WN 449: (1955) 1 MLJ (SC) 157 : (1955) SCJ 267 : 1955 Andhra WR (SC) 157 : 1955 All WR 339 : 1955 SCR 1104 : 1955 NLJ 1 : 1955 SCA 105 : AIR 1955 SC 233 (243) (Pt H) (Pr 20).

—— Art. 227 — Scope — Distinction between this article and Art. 226. See High Court Rules and Orders — Allahabad High Court Rules (1952), Chap. VIII, R. 5. AIR 1957 All 414 (FB).

——Art. 227 —Scope of articles 226 and 227. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1955 All 113 (FB).

——Art. 227 — Judicial powers conferred under — Compared with powers under Art. 226.

While Art. 226 concedes to the High Court vast powers of what may be called judicial review or control by issue of writs, directions and orders over all Courts within its jurisdiction, Art. 227 seems to be for securing administrative supervision not easily exercisable by such writs etc. Arts. 226 and 227 are thus supplementary. The limited judicial powers under Art. 227 are intended for and are merely ancillary to such administrative control. 1952 Cri LJ 1695 : ILR (1952) 1 All 558 : AIR 1952 All 963 (972) (Pt F) (Prs 61, 62, 63) (DB).

——Art. 227 —Powers of superintendence — Scope.

In exercise of the powers of superintendence under Art. 227 of the Constitution, the High Court cannot exercise the powers exercisable under Art.

226 and the power conferred by Art. 227 is not in any way controlled by the power exercisable by the High Court under Art. 226. According to the rules framed by the High Court (All.) the application under Art. 226 has to be heard by a Bench while that under Art. 227 can be heard by a single Judge. 1952 AWR (HC) 165 : 1952 All Cri R 55 : 1952 ALJ 161 : 1952 Cr LJ 1520 : 1952 RD (HC) 101 : AIR 1952 All 843 (844) (Pt A) (Pr 4).

——Art. 227 — Powers of High Court under this article and Art. 226 — Difference between.

The powers of High Court under Art. 227 are not wider than the powers conferred by Art. 226. But for all practical purposes they are co-equal except that under Art. 227 the High Court has superintendence only over Courts and tribunals whereas under Art. 226 it has supervisory jurisdiction over any person or authority including Government. (1964) Andh LT 72: (1964) 1 Andh WR 243.

——Art. 227 — Powers under Arts. 227 and 226— Difference. See Ibid. Art. 226. AIR 1954 Bom 171 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Art. 227 and Art. 226.

Art. 227 has no concern with the writs at all. It is concerned with providing the High Courts with power to superintend over the work of the Courts and tribunals; it is Art. 226 which is concerned with the writs and it is necessary to keep the two Articles distinctly in mind. There may be cases where both these Articles may apply and there may be cases where only one of them may apply. It cannot be said that whenever there is a case under Art. 227 of the Constitution, Art. 226 must necessarily apply. 1954 BLJR 594: 1955 Cr LJ 501 : 33 Pat 996 : AIR 1955 Pat 118 (120) (Pt B) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Arts. 227, 226 — Power of superintendence— Comparison with powers under Art. 226 — No interference merely on ground that order was erroneous — Punjab Commodities Price Marketing and Display Order (1962), S. 3 (a).

The powers of judicial interference under Art. 227 with orders of judicial or quasi-judicial nature are not greater than those under Art. 226. Under the latter Article the power of interference may extend to quashing an impugned order on the ground of mistake apparent on the face of the record, but under Art. 227 the power of interference is limited to seeing that the Tribunal functions within the limits of its authority. Moreover, power under Art. 227 is always to be exercised most sparingly and only in appropriate cases, and is clearly not meant for correcting mere errors of fact or even of law.

Where it has not been shown that the officers concerned have in any way travelled beyond the scope of their jurisdiction or have erroneously refused to perform their duty imposed upon them by law then even if their orders are erroneous, that would not by itself warrant correction of the error under Art. 227 of the Constitution. AIR 1962 Punj 117 and AIR 1958 SC 398, Foll.

An order under the provisions of S. 3 (a) of the Punjab Commodities Price Marketing and Display Order, 1962, cannot be interfered with under Art. 227 of the Constitution on the ground that the raid on the shop was conducted beyond working hours as the objection is only technical. (1964) Cur LJ 324: 1965 (2) Cri LJ 701 (701, 702) (Prs 3; 4) (Punj).

——Art. 227 — Article does not in terms provide for writs and is distinguishable in this respect from Art. 226 which alone provides for writs. AIR 1962 Punj 467 (470) (Pt B) (Pr 13).

3. Nature and scope of power.

(a) Difference between power of High Court under Government of India Act, 1935 and this Article.
(b) Power is both judicial and administrative.
(c) Power, a discretionary one.
(d) Interference only when error or defect has caused substantial miscarriage of justice.
(e) Power cannot be used to correct mere errors in decision on question of law or fact.
(i) Mistakes of law.
(ii) Findings of fact.
(iii) High Court's power to reappreciate evidence.
(f) Power to be exercised to keep Courts and Tribunals within limits of their authority.
(g) Lower Court acting without jurisdiction.
(i) Instances of orders without jurisdiction.
(ii) Orders which are not without jurisdiction.
(h) Illegal exercise of jurisdiction.
(i) Refusal or failure by lower Court to exercise jurisdiction or to do its duty.
(j) Refusal or failure to proceed with case.
(ja) Bias.
(k) Conflict of jurisdiction.
(l) Illegal orders.
(m) Patently erroneous decisions.
(i) Patent errors — Test of.
(ii) Error of law apparent on record.
(iii) Patent errors of fact.
(n) Contravention of principles of natural justice.
(i) Administrative orders.
(ii) Orders of contractual domestic tribunals.
(iii) Orders made in departmental enquiry.
(iv) Proceedings under Sea Customs Act.
(v) Disciplinary proceedings of University.
(vi) Proceedings under Motor Vehicles Act.
(o) Cases where the High Court may not interfere.
(p) Interlocutory orders.
(q) Discretionary matters.
(i) Discovery and inspection.
(ii) Stay of proceedings.
(iii) Amendment of pleadings.
(iv) Other cases of discretionary orders.
(r) Subsequent events.
(s) Nature of orders that can be passed by the High Court.

3. Nature and scope of power.

——Art. 227 — Powers of High Court — Nature and scope.

1. The superintendence referred to in Art. 227 of the Constitution includes judicial superintendence. 2. The power conferred by the Article is wide but not unlimited. The exercise of the power is discretionary and relief under the Article cannot be claimed as a matter of right. The principles regulating the exercise of the power are generally speaking the same as the principles on which writs can be issued under Art. 226 but in a sense wider. 3. The power under the Article can be exercised even in those cases in which no appeal or revision lies in the High Court. 4. The power should not ordinarily be exercised if any other remedy is available. 5. The power should not be used to correct mere errors of fact or law. 6. The power is to be used sparingly only in appropriate cases. ILR (1958) 2 All 874: 1958 All LJ 315: 1958 All WR (HC) 445: AIR 1958 All 456 (464) (Pt A) (Pr 36) (DB).

——Arts. 227, 228 — Contempt of Courts Act (1952), Section 3 — Power of superintendence if gives power to punish — (Words and Phrases — "Subordinate"). See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. AIR 1956 All 258.

(Overruled on another point in AIR 1962 All 315 (FB).)

——Art. 227 — Powers of superintendence.

The Court's powers of superintendence are exercised primarily through S. 115 of the Civil P. C., and Art. 226 of the Constitution and Art. 227 confers upon it supplementary power not differing substantially in content but exercisable in cases to which those provisions are not appropriate.

It is not the duty of the High Court in the exercise of its powers of superintendence to correct mere errors of fact or law unless the latter are apparent on the face of the record and there is no adequate allernative remedy. Nor should it so exercise its power of superintendence as to effect an alternation in the judicial system the maintenance of which it should be its object to uphold. 1955 All LJ 624: 1955 All WR (HC) 516: AIR 1955 All 673 (676) (Pt D) (Prs 15; 16) (DB).

● ——Art. 227 — Scope of article — Powers under Art. 227 — When exercised. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1955 Cri LJ 296: AIR 1955 All 113 (FB).

——Art. 227 — High Courts' power of superintendence — Nature and extent of — U. P. Panchayat Raj Act (26 of 1947), S. 85 (5).

A reading of the entire Art. 227 of the Constitution of India in the light of the antecedent law on the subject leads one to the irresistible conclusion that the purpose of the Constitution-makers was to make the High Court responsible for the entire administration of justice and to vest in the High Court an unlimited reserve of judicial power which could be brought into play at any time that the High Court considered it necessary to draw upon the same. Springing as it does from the Constitution, which is the parent of all Acts and Statutes in India, the fact that the judgment or order of a Court or tribunal has been made final by an Act or the fact that the body performing judicial functions is a special tribunal constituted under a Statute cannot be set up as a bar to the exercise of this power by the High Court. The prohibited area is to be found within the four corners of the Constitution itself and nowhere else. The fact that these unlimited powers are vested in the High Court should, however, make the High Court more cautious in its exercise. The self-imposed limits of these powers are established and laid down by the High Courts themselves. These powers cannot be exercised unless there has been an unwarranted assumption of jurisdiction not possessed by Courts or a gross abuse of jurisdiction possessed by them or an unjustifiable refusal to exercise a jurisdiction vested in them by law. Apart from matters relating to jurisdiction, the High Court may be moved to act under it when there has been a flagrant abuse of the elementary principles of justice or a manifest error of law patent on the face of the record or an outrageous miscarriage of justice which calls for remedy. Under this power, the High Court will not be justified in converting itself into a Court of appeal and subverting findings of fact by a minute scrutiny of evidence or interfering with the discretionary orders of Court. Further, this power should not be exercised, if there is some other remedy open to a party. Above all, it should be remembered that this is a power possessed by the Court and is to be exercised at its discretion and cannot be claimed as a matter of right by any party. Case law referred.

Consequently, notwithstanding the provisions of S. 85 (5) U. P. Panchayat Raj Act, the High Court can exercise its powers of superintendence over proceedings of the Panchayat Adalat or any order passed in revision therefrom. 1952 All LJ 493: 1952 All WR (HC) 547: 1952 All Cri C 146: 1952 Cri LJ 1282: AIR 1952 All 788 (792; 793) (Pt B) (Prs 14, 15, 17).

——Art. 227 — Power of superintendence — Extent of — Order under S. 160 U. P. Municipalities Act — Interference — Municipalities — U. P. Municipalities Act (2 of 1916), S. 160.

The power of superintendence under Art. 227 of the Constitution of India is limited in its character. It is exercised when there is refusal by an inferior tribunal to exercise a jurisdiction vested in it or when there is an exercise of a jurisdiction which is not vested in that tribunal or to correct some error apparent on the face of the record which may arise from some defect or informality in the proceedings. The power is not exercised to correct mere errors of law or errors of fact not involving defect of jurisdiction or procedure.

Hence, where an additional District Magistrate hearing an appeal under S. 160, U. P. Municipalities Act, sets aside the order of enhancement of assessment made by the Revising officer, the order even if wrong in law, cannot be interfered with under Art. 227, when the order is passed in the exercise of his jurisdiction and there is no defect or error of procedure adopted by him. 1952 All LJ 108: 1952 RD (HC) 104: AIR 1952 All 505 (505, 506) (Pr 6).

——Art. 227 — Jurisdiction of High Court — Nature and extent of. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1957 Assam 182 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Power of Superintendence —Scope — Decision of tribunal based on extraneous considerations or on an error on jurisdictional point — High Court can and should interfere under Art. 227 — Erroneous decision on question of presumption of S. 56, Bengal Tenancy Act resulting in avoidance of its application — Decision can be set aside under Art. 227.

If the decision of a tribunal can be shown to be arbitrary and devoid of reason or erroneous on the face of it or to be based on an error on a jurisdictional point, or when the tribunal in exercising its jurisdiction has taken recourse to considerations extraneous to the rules of construction and thereby wrongly exercised the jurisdiction then by the exercise of power of superintendence under Art. 227, of the Constitution the High Court can and should revise the said decision. AIR 1963 Cal 409, Rel. on. AIR 1965 Cal 212 (214) (Pt A) (Pr 15) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Power of superintendence — Jurisdictional error — What is.

If an error, whether of fact or law is such that the erroneous decision resulted in the tribunal exercising jurisdiction, not vested in it by law, or in its having failed to exercise jurisdiction vested in it by law, that will come within the scope of Art. 227 of Constitution. This error may have resulted from a violation of rules of natural justice by taking into consideration matters, which are extraneous and irrelevant, or by substituting judicial consideration by bias, based on suspicion arising from those extraneous matters or from any other cause whatsoever but if it has affected the assumption or exercise of jurisdiction as envisaged above, it will be a jurisdictional error for purposes of the Article. LR 36 IA 113, Rel. on. 67 Cal WN 179: (1964) 15 STC 186: AIR 1963 Cal 409 (413) (Pt B) (Pr 12) (DB).

——Art. 227 —Powers of High Court in revision —Nature and scope of — No irregularity or error in exercise of jurisdiction by Court below — Interference with its order. See Houses and Rents — W. B. Premises Rent Control (Temporary Provisions) Act (17 of 1950), S. 14 (4). ILR (1958) 1 Cal 325.

——Art. 227—Power of superintendence —Nature and scope.

The jurisdiction which High Court exercises under Art. 227 is not merely supervisory, taking that word in its ordinary acceptation. There must be something which goes to the root of the matter before High Court can feel called upon to interfere under the provisions of that Article.

The power of supreintendence conferred by Art. 227 has to be exercised sparingly and only in appropriate cases in order to keep the Courts and Tribunals within the bounds of their authority and not to correct mere errors. Where there has been not mere mistakes in the exercise of jurisdiction but the order complained of has been made in complete disregard of the provisions of the law, interference is called for. 60 Cal WN 241: ILR (1957) 2 Cal 855.

——Art. 227 — Scope — Arbitrator committing error in applying Rule 720, Calcutta High Court, Civil Rules and Orders — (High Court Rules and Orders — Calcutta Civil Rules and Orders, Rule 720).

On an application under Art. 227 of the Constitution it is not open to the High Court nor can it be proper, to embark upon an examination of the evidence and substitute for the decision of the Court or tribunal below, its own decision. Article 227 is intended to authorise the High Court to see that the Courts or Tribunals which cannot be controlled under Section 115 of the Code of C. P. are kept in their proper places and that they exercise their jurisdiction in accordance with the provisions of the laws they administer. If the Court or the tribunal concerned does not exceed jurisdiction and if it does not depart from the principles that it is enjoined to follow by the statute or other law concerned, there can be no occasion for interference under Art. 227 of the Constitution, with the substance of the decision upon a further examination of its merits.

Where the arbitrator applied certain principles with regard to award of costs, which he thought were embodied in and warranted by Rule 720 of the Calcutta Civil Rules and Orders, but no such principles were either warranted by or were embodied in the rule, the arbitrator committed an error which could be corrected under Art. 227. 57 CWN 601: AIR 1953 Cal 702 (702, 703, 704) (Pt B) (Prs 1, 8) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Powers under — Exercise of — Order of appellate Court passed without jurisdiction.

The High Court's power of interference with decisions of tribunals within its jurisdiction under Art. 227 of the Constitution should, no doubt, be sparingly exercised, but such power should and must be exercised in a case where an appellate Court has acted without jurisdiction. ILR (1952) 2 Cal 360: 55 CWN 611: AIR 1951 Cal 554 (557) (Pt C) (Prs 38, 39) (DB).

——Art. 227 — High Court's power — Its extent. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1963 Guj 283 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Interference under — Conditions.

Where an appellate authority acts with material irregularity in the exercise of its jurisdiction in that it comes to a finding quite arbitrarily and in the teeth of the unrebutted evidence produced by a party, it is a fit case for interference by the Judicial Commissioner's Court in exercise of its powers of superintendence under Art. 227 of the Constitution. AIR 1952 Him Pra and Bilaspur 18 (20) (Pt B) (Pr 8).

——Art. 227 — Superintendence.

The powers enjoyed under Art. 227 must be restricted to cases where there has been a grave dereliction of duty or flagrant abuse of any fundamental principles of law and natural justice, and they must further be confined to cases where no other adequate or prompt remedy is available. Case-law Rel. on. ILR (1953) Hyd 88: AIR 1953 Hyd 135 (136) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 227 —Scope — When the Tribunal has jurisdiction to come to the conclusion that it did and pass the order it has passed, and there is no lack of evidence to support the conclusion reached by the Tribunal, the jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution is not attracted. The invocation of Art. 227 as well does not widen the circumstances in which a writ of certiorari will issue. Case law discussed. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1958 Ker 192 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Scope.

Where the Constitution in its wisdom has left the power of superintendence undefined it would not be proper to prescribe any rule which would limit it. The real object of superintendence is that the power may be exercised with reference to the circumstances of each particular case in such a way as to secure the furtherance of justice. In order to achieve its end, the power of superintendence under Art. 227, Constitution must remain fluid. Madh BLJ 1954 HCR 953: Madh BLR 1955 (Civ) 106: AIR 1955 Madh Bha 21 (23) (Pt A) (Prs 6, 7).

[Reversed on another point in AIR 1961 SC 148]

——Art. 227 — Power under — How to be exercised. AIR 1955 NUC (Madh Bha) 5634 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Power of superintendence to be exercised most sparingly and in appropriate cases —Decision by District Judge in appeal under M. B. Sthan Niyantran Vidhan — District Judge not acting beyond bounds of his authority — Power of superintendence will not be exercised — Houses and rents—M. B. Sthan Niyantran Vidhan (1950), S. 9 (3). AIR 1955 NUC (Madh Bha) 3860 (DB).

——Arts. 227 and 226 — High Court when can interfere with decision of Election Tribunal. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1953 Madh Bha 197 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Nature of jurisdiction — Order of Master, on question of court-fee — Interference — Error on face of record.

The jurisdiction vested in the High Court by Art. 227 is a very limited one. Practically, the principles which would apply in deciding whether a writ of certiorari could issue under Art. 226 of the Constitution will also apply in deciding whether under Art. 227 of the Constitution, an order the correctness of which is impugned, can be set aside.

The jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 227 cannot be invoked to set aside or correct an order passed by the Master of the High Court on the Original Side, in proceedings on appeal preferred against a decree and judgment on the original side, in the matter of court-fee payable on the memorandum of appeal, against which order there is no appeal under the Court-fees Act. There is no error apparent on the face of the record to justify interference under Art. 227. 70 Mad LW 841 : 1957 Mad WN 600 : (1957) 2 Mad LJ 387: AIR 1958 Mad 242 (242, 243) (Prs 3, 4, 6).

——Art. 227 — Powers under when can be exercised.

Article 227 confers on the High Court powers of superintendence and control over subordinate Tribunals. But these are powers to be exercised under exceptional circumstances. ILR (1955) Mys 546: (1956) 1 Lab LJ 571: AIR 1956 Mys 7 (8) (Pt D) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Power of superintendence — Limits of.

Though the power of superintendence would include judicial review, the power is not unlimited and cannot be employed to correct every form of hardship. The ordinary rule is that the superior Court having power of superintendence would seldom interfere on questions affecting the merits of the decision except when the matter comes up on appeal. ILR (1953) Cut 682: AIR 1954 Orissa 67 (68) (Pt B) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Nature and scope of power of superintendence — When should the power be exercised. See Panchayats — Patiala Panchayat Act (13 of 2000), S. 49. AIR 1952 Pepsu 130.

——Art. 227 — Notice of application under S. 15, Payment of Wages Act served only three days prior to date of hearing — Appearance of clerk of employer — Prayer for adjournment — Refusal — Ex parte proceedings — If justified — Procedure tainted with material irregularity — Interference under Art. 227 of the Constitution. See Payment of Wages Act (1936), S. 15. AIR 1963 Punj 122.

——Art. 227 — Art. 38 seeks to secure justice to citizens as top priority — Constitution vests wide powers in High Court's under Art. 227 for same purpose — Extent and nature of powers. See Ibid, Art. 38. AIR 1960 Punj 35.

——Art. 227 — Panchayat failing to function with letter and spirit of law creating it — Interference is called for — (Panchayats — Punjab Gram Panchayat Act (4 of 1953), S. 66).

By S. 66 of the Punjab Gram Panchayat Act the Panchayats are enjoined to act according to the principles of justice, equity and good conscience. Where a Panchayat fails correctly to function within the letter and sprit of the law creating it, interference is called for. ILR (1959) Punj 1778: AIR 1960 Punj 35 (39) (Pt D) (Pr 7).

——Art. 227 — Nature and scope of powers of High Court.

The power of superintending control conferred by Art. 227 is similar to the control exercised by the Courts of King's Bench over the inferior Courts of England under the Common law. The constitutional supervisory power is indefinite in character but unlimited in extent. The Court in the exercise of that power will be justified in prohibiting inferior Courts in all cases where (1) they are threatening to proceed or are proceeding in a matter of which they have no jurisdiction, and (2) where they, although possessing jurisdiction, are exercising or about to exercise it erroneously, and great injustice and irreparable injury would result to the applicant if they should do so and there exists no adequate remedy by appeal or otherwise. 60 Punj LR 282: (1958-59) 14 ELR 412: ILR (1958) Punj 1776: AIR 1958 Punj 409 (414, 415) (Pt B) (Prs 20, 21, 22).

——Art. 227 — Error of law.

The High Court has been given extensive powers of superintendence over all the tribunals which are even greater than those enjoyed by the High Court under the Government of India Act. Hence, where the decision of the tribunal proceeds on a wrong view of law and the question involved is of general importance the High Court would interfere in revision. ('50) 3 Sau LR 229.

——Art. 227 — When can be invoked.

No doubt Art. 227 empowers the High Court to interfere in judicial as well as in administrative matters. But the wider the powers granted by statute, the more caution is needed in their exercise. Anything like the generous invocation of this article in judicial matters would bring the case work of subordinate Courts to a standstill. These powers are meant to be exercised only where there is a very general question involved or the subordinate machinery entrusted with the administration of justice is collapsing, or the subordinate Courts are moving on lines fraught with great danger to the public in general. This article, cannot be invoked simply because a litigant has a very common and oft-recurring grievance with an order of a subordinate Court e.g. an order admitting evidence alleged to be inadminissible. AIR 1952 Vin Pra 4 (6) (Pt B) (Pr 11).

3 (a). Difference between power of High Court under Government of India Act, 1935 and this Article.

——Art. 227 — (Per Agarawala J.) Under the present Constitution in Art. 227 there is not to be found any provision corresponding to S. 224 (2) of the Government of India Act, 1935. The High Courts have now judicial powers of superintendence. Case law referred. ILR (1952) 1 All 558 : 1952 Cri LJ 1695 : AIR 1952 All 963 (966) (Pt C) (Pr 19) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Scope of the power of superintendence.

In Art. 227 of the Constitution there is no such restriction on the power of superintendence as was imposed by sub-s. (2), S. 224 of the Government of India Act, 1935. Now the power of superintendence is exactly what it was up to 1935. In exercise of it the High Court can check the assumption or excess of jurisdiction by Panchayati Adalats or compel them to exercise their jurisdiction and do their duty. 1951 ALJ 305: ILR (1951) 2 All 521: 52 Cri LJ 984 (2): AIR 1951 All 667 (674) (Pt A) (Pr 22) (DB).

● ——Art. 227 — Nature of remedy.

The remedy that this article makes available is new. It did not exist under S. 224 of the Government of India Act, 1935, and it partakes of the character of an appeal or revision, though the power of the High Court under the Article is described as one of superintendence. State v. Judhabir Chetri. 1953 Cri LJ 395: ILR (1953) 5 Assam 24: AIR 1953 Assam 35 (37) (Pt B) (Pr 10) (FB).

——Art. 227 — Effect of the article.

The effect of Art. 227 is that not only it restores to the High Court the jurisdiction of the High Court that was taken away by S. 224 (2), Government of India Act, 1935 but it enlarges the powers of superintendence which the High Court exercised under S. 107, Government of India Act of 1915. ILR (1951) 3 Assam 181: 52 Cri LJ 966:

AIR 1951 Assam 106 (109, 110) (Pt B) (Pr 21) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Right of superintendence — Nature and extent of — Non-compliance with provisions of West Bengal Act, 2 of 1950—Interference held necessary.

The right of superintendence under Art. 227 of the Constitution involves the right to interfere judicially. The right of superintendence under the Government of India Act, 1935, did not involve that right. But the limitation placed on the right by that Act has been expressly omitted from Art. 227. It is now beyond all argument that Art. 227 does allow his Court in a proper case to interfere judicially though such interference should be rare and only in cases where justice clearly demands interference, and where there is no other way of securing justice.

Held that justice demanded that the High Court should interfere in the matter as neither the Bhag Chas Conciliation Board nor the Appellate Officer complied with the provisions of S. 3 (2) of the West Bengal Bargadars Act, 1950, itself or the rules made thereunder relating to applications under the Act. 56 Cal WN 23: AIR 1951 Cal 138 (139) (Pt C) (Prs 11, 15) (DB).

——Art. 227 — High Court's powers of superintendence over subordinate Courts — Extent of — Arbitrary dismissal of suit for default of parties — Interference in revision in exercise of powers of superintendence — Civil P. C. (1908), S. 115, Order 9, Rule 3.

The High Court's powers of superintendence over subordinate Courts under Art. 227 of the Constitution of India correspond more to those laid down under S. 107 of the Government of India Act, 1915, than to those under S. 224 of the Government of India Act, 1935, since the limitations placed upon the exercise of powers of superintendence by sub-section (2) of S. 224 of the 1935 Act did not find place in the 1915 Act and are absent from the aforesaid Article of the Constitution of India.

Where the subordinate Judge has signally failed to do his duty in that he has arbitrarily dismissed the suit for default of parties under O. 9, R. 3 although no default had in fact taken place, and there has also not been any patent neglect on the part of the petitioners, it is a fit case in which the High Court, on an application for revision, would set aside the order dismissing the suit for default of appearance in exercise of the power of Superintendence under Art. 227: 18 All 4, Rel. on. AIR 1952 Him Pra and B 24 (26) (Pt C) (Pr 9).

——Art. 227 — Enlargement of power.

Sub-section (2) of S. 224 of the Government of India Act, 1935, is deleted from its corresponding provision in Art. 227 of the Constitution thus showing that the rights of judicial interference of the High Court under the old Government of India Acts of 1861 and 1915 are not only restored but enlarged by deleting the expression "subject to its appellate jurisdiction" occurring in the aforesaid Acts from the Constitution. AIR 1951 Cal 258 (SB) and AIR 1951 Cal 574, Rel. on. 1954 BLJR 138: 32 Pat 956: AIR 1954 Pat 225 (232) (Pt F) (Pr 28) (DB).

3 (b). Power is both judicial and administrative.

——Art. 227 — Superintendence over Election Tribunals.

The Election Tribunals are subject to the superintendence of the High Courts under Art. 227 of the Constitution. That superintendence is both judicial and administrative. Hari Vishnu v. Ahmad Ishaque, 1955 Mad WN 449: (1955) 1 MLJ (SC) 157: 1955 SCJ 267: (1955) Andhra WR (SC) 157: 1955 All WR 339: 1955 SCR 1104: 1955 Nag LJ 1: 1955 SCA 105: AIR 1955 SC 233 (243) (Pt G) (Pr 20).

——Art. 227 — Nature of superintendence under.

The contention based on Cl. (2) of Art. 227 that the article only confers on the High Court administrative superintendence over the subordinate Courts and Tribunals cannot be accepted because Cl. (2) is expressed to be without prejudice to the generality of the provisions in Cl. (1). The material part of Art. 227 substantially reproduces the provisions of S. 107 of the Government of India Act, 1915, except that the power of superintendence has been extended by the Article also to Tribunals. Further, the preponderance of judicial opinion in India was that S. 107 which was similar in terms to S. 15, of the High Courts Act, 1861, gave a power of judicial superintendence to the High Court apart from and independently of the provisions of other laws conferring revisional jurisdiction on the High Court. S. 107 was reproduced as section 224 in the Government of India Act, 1935, with a new sub-s. (2), which was omitted when S. 224 was reproduced with some modifications as Art. 227 of the Constitution. This significant omission has been regarded by all High Courts in India as having restored to the High Court the power of judicial superintendence it had under S. 15 of the High Courts Act, 1861 and S. 107 of the Government of India Act, 1915. AIR 1952 All 963, Ref. Waryam Singh v. Amarnath. 1954 SCJ 290: 1954 Mad WN 424: 1954 SCA 334: 1954 SCR 565: AIR 1954 SC 215 (217) (Pt B) (Pr 13).

——Art. 227 — Jurisdiction under S. 36 of the Legal Practitioners Act is disciplinary or administrative jurisdiction — Order under Section 36 declaring a person a tout — Revision under general powers of superintendence — See Legal Practitioners Act (1879), S. 36. 1950 AMLJ 18: AIR 1951 Ajmer 13.

——Art. 227 — Houses and Rents — U. P. (Temporary) Accommodation Requisition Act (25 of 1947), S. 3, 2nd proviso — Scope — Compliance as to sufficiency of accommodation at disposal of occupier — Decision of Administrative authorities — Interference in writ proceedings — Permisibility. See Houses and Rents — U. P. (Temporary) Accommodation Requisition Act (25 of 1947), Section 3. AIR 1963 All 592 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Administrative acts — Revision— Power of superintendence of the High Court under Art. 227 extends to administrative as well as judicial matters. 1960 Cr LJ 441: AIR 1960 All 230 (231) (Pt B) (Pr 8).

——Art. 227 — Superintendence referred to in the article includes judicial superintendence. 1958 All LJ 315: 1958 All WR (HC) 445: ILR (1958) 2 All 874: AIR 1958 All 456 (464) (Pt A) (Pr 36) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Scope — Administrative Order of magistrate — Power of High Court to set aside— Applicability of S. 561-A, Cr. P. C. (Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 561-A.).

Even if the order passed by a Magistrate is not a judicial order but an administrative order, the High Court has full power of superintendence under Art. 227 of the Constitution. Further, the High Court has full powers also under S. 561-A Cr. P. C., in the interest of justice to prevent an abuse of the process of the Court. 1958 All LJ 10: 1958 All WR (HC) 82: 1958 All Cr R 64.

——Art. 227 — Scope — Power to interfere with judicial orders.

Art. 227 empowers the Court to exercise superintendence over all Courts and tribunals throughout the territories within its jurisdiction. It is therefore, obvious that, this power is not confined to the specific administrative powers given under clause (2). The High Court has under Cl. (1) judicial powers of superintendence also over the said Courts and tribunals. (History of the powers and case-law reviewed.).

While Art. 226 concedes to the High Court vast powers of what may be called judicial review or control by issue of writs, directions and orders over all Courts within its jurisdiction, Art. 227 seems to be for securing adminstrative supervision not easily exercisable by such writs, etc. Arts. 226 and 227 are thus supplementary. The limited judicial powers under Art. 227 are intended for and merely ancillary to such administrative control. ILR (1952) 1 All 558: 1952 Cri LJ 1695: AIR 1952 All 963 (966) (Pt C) (Pr 19) (DB).

——Art. 227 (1) — U. P. Panchayat Raj Act — Transfer of case to Panchayati adalat — Power to give direction to magistrate to transfer. See Panchayats — U. P. Panchayat Raj Act (26 of 1947), Ss. 52, 56. AIR 1950 All 611.

——Art. 227 — 'Superintendence' — Connotation of.

The power of 'superintendence' vested in the High Courts under Art. 227 is not merely administrative, but also judicial. The word 'superintendence' is of very wide connotation, and should be invoked generally only where there is no other remedy available.

But the jurisdiction of the Andhra High Court under Arts. 226 and 227 is circumscribed in some measure, by the location of Officers and authorities outside the territories of the Andhra State, though they pass orders affecting the citizens, resident in the Andhra State. It is a serious anomaly. (1959) 29 ITR 222: 1956 Andhra LT 61: 1956 Andhra WR 729 : AIR 1957 Andh Pra 672 (674, 675) (Pt B) (Prs 5; 6) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Power of High Court to take the disciplinary action either under Art. 227 or 235— Condition of service depriving it of such power — Validity of — Suspension of Subordinate Judge by Registrar, Madras High Court. See Andhra Civil Services (Disciplinary Proceedings Tribunal) Rules (1953), Rule 4 (2). (1954) 2 MLJ (Andhra) 240 : AIR 1955 Andhra 65 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Power under article is not limited to administrative matter only. 52 Cri LJ 966 : ILR (1951) 3 Assam 181 : AIR 1951 Assam 106 (109, 110) (Pt B) (Pr 21) (DB).

——Art. 227 — The superintendence of the High Court is not confined to administrative superintendence; it also includes judicial superintendence, and undoubtedly the High Court has power to correct any decision of a tribunal within its jurisdiction through its powers of superintendence. ILR (1952) Bom 864 : 53 Bom LR 674 : AIR 1951 Bom 423 (426) (Pt A) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Power of High Court under Art. 227 is both judicial and administrative. AIR 1955 NUC (Cal) 2074 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Power of superintendence — Extent — Includes judicial interference.

Article 227 of the Constitution gives High Court a right in appropriate cases to interfere judicially with orders of Courts and tribunals made amenable to its jurisdiction by that Article. Bimala Prosad Ray v. State of West Bengal, 55 Cal WN 87 : ILR (1951) 2 Cal 427 : AIR 1951 Cal 258 (260) (Pt A) (Pr 12) (SB).

——Art. 227 — Power of superintendence — Extent of.

The power of superintendence possesed by the High Court under Art. 227 extends to judicial matters also and it can be exercised in appropriate cases in order to keep the subordinate Courts within bounds of their authority. AIR 1954 SC 215, Foll. ILR (1954) Hyd 832: AIR 1954 Hyd 236 (237) (Pt A) (Pr 2) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Jurisdiction over Special Tribunals.

The word 'superintendence' cannot be confined to mere matters of administrative control but confers judicial powers also on the High Court. The High Court has powers of superintendence not only over Courts subject to its appellate jurisdiction but also over those whose decisions are not subject to appeal to the High Court. If there be laches or denial of justice by a Special Judge the High Court can under Art. 227, transfer a case from the Special Judge. This jurisdiction cannot be taken away by State Legislation such as Special Judges' Regulation. 1952 Cri LJ 708: ILR (1951) Hyd 174 : AIR 1951 Hyd 82 (83) (Pt A) (Pr 1) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Supervision of judicial matters.

Under Art. 227, the High Court, now, has supervisory powers over all Courts and Tribunals within the State, and this authorises supervision of judicial matters also. 1952 Cri LJ 1333: ILR (1951) Hyd 1: AIR 1951 Hyd 11 (34, 35) (Pt G) (Pr 111) (FB).

——Art. 227 — "Superintendence" — Meaning of — Powers of High Court — Error of law or fact — Madhya Bharat Revenue Administration and Ryotwari Land Revenue and Tenancy Act (66 of 1950), S. 147.

The word 'superintendence' in Article 227 includes administrative as well as judicial superintendence. In the exercise of its judicial functions, the Board of Revenue is a tribunal subject to the superintendence of the High Court under Article 227. Section 147 of the Madhya Bharat Revenue Administration and Ryotwari Land Revenue and Tenancy Act cannot be construed so as to take away the power given to the High Court under Article 227. If section 147 of the Act purports to take away the right of superintendence of the High Court under Article 227 of the Constitution, then clearly section 147 of the Act is to that extent ultra vires the Constitution. The right given to the High Court under Article 227 cannot be taken away by the State Legislature.

The power of superintendence under Art. 227 is not restricted to cases of non-exercise or illegal exercise of jurisdiction but extends also to cases where there has been an obvious miscarriage of justice because a Court or a tribunal has approached the matter entrusted to it in an arbitrary or despotic manner and against all rules of natural justice. But the power cannot be exercised to disturb a decision of a Court or a tribunal merely because it has misconceived a point of law or come to a wrong decision of the facts. Case-law discussed. AIR 1952 Madh B 51 (51, 52, 53) (Prs 3, 4, 5, 15) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Scope — Administrative or executive action — High Court will not substitute its own decision on merits. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1960 MPC 492.

——Art. 227 — Unjudicial orders arising from error of jurisdiction. See Civil P. C. (1908), S. 115. ILR (1965) 1 Mad 274 : AIR 1966 Mad 89.

——Art. 227 — Scope.

Art. 227 confers a general power of superintendence on the High Court over tribunals like District Collector as well as Courts, and such superintendence is not confined to administrative matters only. The Article therefore, enables a person aggrieved by an order of such a tribunal to invoke the revisional powers of the High Court. (History of Art. 227, traced) (Distinction drawn between Art. 226 and Art. 227). Case-law reviewed. 67 Mad WN 29: (1954) 1 MLJ 165: 67 Mad LW 24: ILR (1954) Mad 592: AIR 1954 Mad 573 (573; 574; 576) (Prs 1, 2, 3, 12) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Scope.

Article 227 confers upon the High Court a power of supervision over all judicial matters decided by any Court or tribunal within the State. 1953 Cri LJ 636: 65 Mad LW 1229: AIR 1953 Mad 362 (364) (Pt B) (Pr 7).

● ——Art. 227 — Scope — Issue of writ against Government — Administrative orders passed by Government in defiance of mandatory provisions of law. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1953 Mys 156 (1 B).

——Art. 227 — Power of superintendence —Extent of.

All tribunals as well as Courts throughout the territories in relation to which the High Court exercises jurisdiction have been subjected to the superintendence of the High Court under clause (1) of Art. 227. The power of superintendence includes the power of judicial interference. Case law referred. 1951 Nag LJ 463: ILR (1951) Nag 818: AIR 1951 Nag 90 (92) (Pt C) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Power to interfere judicially.

The High Court can, under Art. 227, exercise superintendence over the Election Tribunal and also can judicially interfere with the judgment and order of the Tribunal. AIR 1953 All 633, Ref.; (1888) 81 QBD 313, Disting. 1954 BLJR 138: 32 Pat 956: AIR 1954 Pat 225 (231) (Pt E) (Pr 25) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Order of removal of petitioner from membership under section — Order passed on grounds which did not amount to a flagrant abuse of position as member — High Court has power to quash the order even though it is an administrative one. See Ibid, Art. 226. (1964) 66 Punj LR 226.

——Art. 227 — Scope — Art. 227 confers power of judicial superintendence — AIR 1954 SC 215 and AIR 1955 SC 233 and AIR 1958 SC 398, Rel. on. 61 Punj LR 315: ILR (1959) Punj 859: AIR 1959 Punj 291 (293) (Pt B) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Nature of function of High Court under Article. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1955 Punj 3.

——Art. 227 — Nature of power.

The powers of superintendence vested in the High Court are not merely administrative but are also judicial. AIR 1951 Punj 124 (124, 125) (Pt B) (Prs 5; 6; 8).

——Art. 227 — Applicability — Payment of Wages Act (1936), S. 15 — Order under — Interference under Art. 227.

It is well settled that the power of superintendence under Art. 227 includes judicial superintendence also of Courts and Tribunals within the territories over which the High Court exercises jurisdiction. Therefore, it would be within the power of the High Court to interfere with the order of the authority under S. 15, Payment of Wages Act, in an appropriate case under Art. 227. 1957 Raj LW 77: ILR (1956) 6 Raj 1077: AIR 1957 Raj 115 (117) (Pt B) (Pr 15) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Power of High Court includes power to interfere with administrative and judicial matters — (Civil P. C. (1908), Sec. 115). AIR 1955 NUC (Sau) 1450.

——Art. 227 — Supervisional jurisdiction of High Court — Refusal by High Court to exercise — No revision on decision of facts — (C. P. Code (1908), S. 115).

The High Court has no jurisdiction under S. 115, C. P. Code, to interfere, when the question decided by the lower Court is one of fact only. But it has jurisdiction under Art. 227 of the Constitution of India to interfere in its supervisional jurisdiction in matters both judicial and administrative.

However, this does not mean that the High Court should invoke these powers in very case where it finds some error of law or fact in the proceedings of the lower Courts and Tribunals. After all, it is discretionary for the High Court to interfere in the exercise of its revisional or supervisional jurisdiction and the High Court would be most reluctant to interfere when the rights and interests of third parties are affected. AIR 1949 PC 156, AIR 1949 PC 239 and AIR 1953 SC 23 Ref. AIR 1951 Sau 43, Rel. on. 6 Sau LR 336: AIR 1954 Sau 7 (8) (Pt B) (Prs 5; 6) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Powers of superintendence of High Court — Limitation — Interference in judicial matters — Civil P. C. 1908, S. 115.

The powers of superintendence now enjoyed by the High Court under the present Constitution include interference in both administrative and judicial matters; but that does not mean that the High Court should invoke these powers in every case where the Court finds some error of law or fact in the proceedings of the lower Courts and tribunals.

Where the finding by District Judge on the issue of bona fide and reasonable requirement of the landlord in Saurashtra Rent Act proceedings, depending upon the appreciation of evidence, could not be said to be patently illegal or so manifestly wrong as to lead to the inference of a total denial of justice or infliction of an irreparable injury, held, that this was not a fit case for upsetting the decision of District Judge in the exercise of the power of superintendence. AIR 1951 Sau 43 (45; 46) (Prs 5, 9).

——Art. 227 — Fixation of minimum wages — Nature of act — Interference with, under Arts. 226 and 227, when fixation is found ultra vires the powers of the Government under the Minimum Wages Act. See Minimum Wages Act (1948), Section 5 (2). AIR 1955 Trav-Co. 97 (DB).

——Art. 227 — 'Superintendence' — Decision of Election Commissioner — Interference with.

There can be no doubt that the Election Commissioner is a tribunal with all the trappings of a Court and that he exercises judicial as distinct from administrative or inquisitorial functions in the discharge of his duties. There cannot also be any doubt that the word "superintendence" in Art. 227 is a term of legal force and signification involving the responsibility to keep the Courts and tribunals concerned within the bounds of their authority, to see that they do their duty, and that they do it in a legal manner. The power of superintendence covers both administrative and judicial matters and it should be invoked in all cases of a non-exercise or illegal exercise of a jurisdiction vested by law in any Court of Tribunal. AIR 1933 Cal 132; AIR 1954 SC 215; Rel. on. ILR (1954) Trav-Co 1194: 1954 KLT 582: AIR 1955 Trav-Co 24 (24; 25) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Scope and extent of powers under — Exercise of powers — Principles governing— Need for caution.

Art. 227 of the Constitution empowers the High Court to interfere in judicial as well as in administrative matters. But the wider the powers granted the greater is the caution needed in their exercise. The powers are meant to be exercised only where there is a very general question involved or the subordinate machinery entrusted with the administration of justice is collapsing or the subordinate Courts are moving on lines fraught with greater danger to the public in general. The Article will not be invoked merely because a litigant has a very common and often recurring grievance with an order of a subordinate Court, e. g., an order admitting evidence alleged to be inadmissible. AIR 1952 Vin Pra 4 (6) (Pt B) (Pr 11).

3 (c). Power, a discretionary one.

——Art. 227 — Scope of jurisdiction under — Interference with concurrent findings of fact — West Bengal Estates Acquisition Act, 1953 (1 of 1954), Ss. 44, 59 — Concurrent findings upheld— Interference of High Court under Art. 227 held improper — Nature of enquiry under S. 44 (1) — Order appealable — Duty of Revenue Officer to record oral evidence — Rules 30 (2) and 17 (2) framed under S. 59. Nibaran Chandra Bag v. Mahendra Nath Ghughu, (1963) 1 Ker LR 353: (1963) 2 SCJ 552: (1963) 2 SC WR 435: (1963) Supp 2 SCR 570: AIR 1963 SC 1895 (1898, 1899, 1900) (Prs 10, 12, 15, 17, 18).

——Art. 227—Power under, when to be exercised. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1959 All 525.

——Arts. 227, 226 — Authorised levy of surcharge for supply of electrical energy — Petition against — Considerations which are not relevant — (U. P. Electricity Supply (Licensed UndertakingWar Cost) Order, Cl. 4). See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1959 All 220.

——Art. 227—Principles guiding exercise of power.

The exercise of the power conferred by this article is discretionary and relief under the article cannot be claimed as a matter of right. The principles regulating the exercise of the power are generally speaking the same as the principles on which writs can be issued under Art. 226 but in a sense wider. 1958 All LJ 315: 1958 All WR (HC) 445: ILR (1958) 2 All 874: AIR 1958 All 456 (464) (Pt A) (Pr 36) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Decision on preliminary issue as to jurisdiction of civil Court — Interference.

Though the High Court has certainly power under Art. 227 of the Constitution to interfere in appropriate cases with the decision of the trial Court with regard to the preliminary issue of jurisdiction, it is not bound to do so in every case merely because the question of jurisdiction had been wrongly decided. The mere fact that the order is not revisable under S. 115, Civil Procedure Code will not be sufficient to prevent the exercise of powers under Art. 227. Even if the decision is wrong it is open to the applicant to question its correctness in appeal if the case is ultimately decided against him. If there is no question of miscarriage of justice or gross dereliction of duty, the High Court would not interfere with that decision in exercise of its powers under Art. 227. 1958 All LJ 315: ILR (1958) 2 All 874: 1958 All WR (HC) 445: AIR 1958 All 456 (464) (Pt B) (Pr 37) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Scope — Articles 226 and 227 of the Constitution are very wide in their scope but the very plenitude of the power conferred by them requires a cautious exercise of it. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1956 All 644.

——Art. 227 — Exercise of power so as to effect alteration in judicial system.

The High Court should not exercise its power of superintendence so as to effect an alteration in the judicial system, the maintenance of which it should be its object to uphold. 1955 All LJ 624: 1955 All WR (HC) 516: AIR 1955 All 673 (676) (Pt D) (Prs 15; 16) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Absence of another remedy — Desirability of exercising discretion in favour of petitioner. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1952 All 822 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Exercise of power under — Party's right to claim such exercise by Court.

It should be remembered that under Art. 227 it is a power possessed by the Court and is to be exercised at its discretion and cannot be claimed as a matter of right by any party. 1952 Cri LJ 1282: 1952 All LJ 493: 1952 All WR (HC) 547: 1952 All Cri C 1462: AIR 1952 All 788 (792, 793) (Pt B) (Prs 14, 15).

——Art. 227 — Power of superintendence —Election dispute — Transfer of — Deputy Registrar present at election in his administrative capacity — Decision of dispute by him in his judicial capacity — Propriety of — Bias — Refusal to transfer dispute to another Tribunal on ground of delay — Interference by High Court.

A Deputy Registrar of Co-operative Societies was present at an election of the directors of a Co-operative Bank in his administrative capacity. Dispute regarding that election was referred to his decision in his judicial capacity. A party to the dispute applied to the Deputy Registrar for transfer of that dispute to some other Deputy Registrar, as the former was to be a witness at the enquiry in regard to that dispute. The application was dismissed on the ground that the transfer would delay the decision of the dispute. Against this order the party applied under Art. 227 of the Constitution of India.

Held, that (i) the Deputy Registrar being the sole judge of fact and law, it was not only prudent but expedient in the sound administration of law, that he should have transferred it to another Deputy Registrar so as to enable the parties to cite and examine him as a witness, 5 CWN 864; 20 Suth WR (Cr) 76 and 36 Mad 168, Ref. to.;

(ii) that it is of fundamental importance that justice should not only be done, but should manifestly and undoubtedly be seen to be done and that nothing is to be done which creates even a suspicion that there has been an improper interference with the course of justice. Though the Deputy Registrar might not be under any legal disqualification to decide the disput, it was proper and desirable that he should not function as a judge in deciding the election dispute. AIR 1953 Mad 709; (1877) 2 QBD 558; 3 Ind App 259 (PC) and (1924) 1 KB 256, Ref. to;

(iii) that it was not for the Deputy Registrar to say that he was not a necessary witness. He might be summoned and examined as a witness like any other individual to speak to the facts within his knowledge. The observations of Stephen, J., in Queen v. Ferrant, (1888) 20 QBD 58 at p. 62, Considered.

(iv) that it was an eminently fit and appropriate case in which the power of superintendence should be exercised by the High Court and the election petition transferred to another Deputy Registrar for disposal, not only for the purpose of meting out justice between the parties, but also for making it appear that justice is also meted out;

(v) that the ground of delay in speedy disposal should not stand in the way of a transfer of a case where it is necessary in the interests of justice to transfer the case. (1955) Andhra WR 22: AIR 1955 Andhra 40 (42, 43, 44) (Pt A) (Prs 5; 6; 7; 9).

——Art. 227 — Appeal against order of Tenancy Awal Karkun filed more than 4 years after the impugned order — Deputy Collector allowing appeal without satisfying himself as to existence of sufficient cause for delay — During four years' period, landlord losing chance of safeguarding his interest relying on order in his favour passed by the Tenancy Awal Karkun — Order allowing appeal quashed. See Tenancy Laws — Bombay Tenancy and Agricultural Lands Act (1948), S. 79. 1964 Mah LJ (Notes) 84 (Bom).

——Art. 227 — Panchayats — Bombay Village Panchayats Act (6 of 1933), S. 75 — Extraordinary powers of interference not to be used on mere technical matters — Nyaya Panchayat convicting accused under Ss. 341, 352 and 323, I. P. Code—Sessions Court setting aside conviction under S. 341 but maintaining conviction under Ss. 323 and 352 — Trial not vitiated if no prejudice is caused to accused by joinder of charges.

Where the accused was convicted by Nyaya Panchayat under Ss. 341, 323 and 352, I. P. Code, and in revision the Sessions Court set aside the conviction under S. 341, but maintained conviction under Ss. 323 and 352 and the accused moved the High Court under Art. 227 and claimed that the whole trial was vitiated on the ground that the Nyaya Panchayat had no jurisdiction to take cognizance of offence under S. 341 as laid down in S. 75 of the Bombay Village Panchayats Act, but it could not be shown that any prejudice was caused to the accused on account of joinder of the offence under S. 341 with those under Ss. 323 and 352;

Held, that in exercise of its extraordinary powers under Art. 227 the High Court will not ordinarily interfere on mere technical matters. 1962 NLJ (Notes) 7 (Bom).

——Art. 227 — Discretition of Court — Petition based on technical ground — Rules of natural justice not violated—No interference—(Police Act (1861), S. 7).

An order under Art. 227 of the Constitution is a discretionary order and a petitioner has no right to obtain relief under that Article. If a petitioner was deprived of his fundamental right it would be incumbent upon the Court to give him the necessary relief.

Thus where the petitioner, a dismissed police constable, had been heard in full by all the authorities who were bound to hear his defence and his appeal under the rules, and where every opportunity had been furnished to the petitioner to put forward all the arguments in support of his case, and the plea that he put forward in his application under Art. 227 was not that there was a violation of Art. 311 of the Constitution, but a purely technical ground that the departmental inquiry had not been conducted as required by the rules under the Police Act and further it was clear that the setting aside of the order of dismissal might lead to a situation where it would be impossible to hold a preliminary inquiry by reason of the witnesses not being available.

Held, that the Court should not exercise their discretion in favour of the petitioner. AIR 1956 Bom 545 (547) (Pt C) (Pr 8) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Power of superintendence—Conditions for exercise of.

The Court has to proceed cautiously in applying Art. 227 and it has to be resorted to only sparingly. (1959) 63 CWN 211.

——Art. 227—Powers under—Order without jurisdiction and invalid orders — Interference — Appeals under Rent Control Act of 1948 — Disposal by Judge not empowered — Effect — (Houses and Rents — W. B. Premises Rent Control (Temporary Provisions) Act (17 of 1950), S. 17 (2)).

Even if the order challenged before the High Court in revision under Art. 227 be without jurisdiction, the Court is not bound to interfere with that order unless it is satisfied that the order is unjust and wrong on the merits.

That, however, is not the position in the case of a decision of certain appeal by an incompetent tribunal. It is a different thing to give effect to the invalid order as a valid one as against refusal to interfere with an invalid order in exercise of discretion. AIR 1951 Cal 554, Rel. on.

Thus where the appeals under the Rent Control Act of 1948, had been disposed of by the Judge, Second Court, Court of Small Causes, Calcutta, who was not competent to hear the same, those appeals must be deemed to be lying undisposed of and pending in the eye of law and, accordingly, no application for re-fixation of the standard rent under S. 17 (2) of the W. B. Premises Rent Control Act, 1950, are maintainable. ILR (1958) 1 Cal 415: 61 CWN 308: AIR 1957 Cal 546 (547) (Prs 3; 4; 5) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Dismissal of appeal on the ground that it is incompetent as well as on merits — Dismissal on former ground erroneous — Still High Court will refuse relief under article in such a case. (1960) 1 Ker LR 24.

——Art. 227 — Certiorari—Adjudication by Industrial Tribunal — Error made at the instance and in favour of petitioner — Writ will not be granted. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1962 Madh Pra 172 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Power of superintendence —Substantial justice done — High Court not to interfere.

Power of superintendence given to the High Court under Art. 227 of the Constitution is an extraordinary power and is meant to be used in grave and exceptional cases to prevent miscarriage of justice. By its very nature it is discretionary. Even in case of want of jurisdiction, it is not obligatory on the High Court to interfere in the exercise of its power of supervision under Art. 227 of the Constitution. (AIR 1952 Cal 192, Rel. on). 1959 Jab LJ 430: 1959 MPC 675: 1960 MPLJ 209: AIR 1960 Madh Pra 22 (24) (Pr 13).

——Art. 227 — Revision dismissed for default — Application for restoration — Application dismissed — Interference.

Held: The powers under Art. 227 of the Constitution of India cannot be invoked in a matter where a party is guilty of the default such as the one involved in the case, viz., that the lawyer failed to enter in his diary the date fixed for hearing, which would not afford sufficient ground for restoration. 1959 MPLJ (Notes) 187.

——Art. 227 — Interference to set aside order to restore an order even more defective.

For exercising the discretionary power of superintendence, which cannot be claimed as a matter of right, the error ought to be shown to have resulted in grave miscarriage of justice or flagrant abuse of authority vested in Court of Tribunal. The High Court should not interfere under the article to set aside a defective order in order to restore an order which is even more defective. AIR 1956 Pepsu 83 (85, 86) (Pt B) (Prs 5; 8) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Power under, is discretionary. AIR 1955 NUC (Pepsu) 2514.

——Art. 227 — Discretion — Granting of relief is discretionary — Objection as to jurisdiction—When to be taken. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1960 Punj 432.

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1963 Punj 156 (DB).]

——Art. 227— Discretion of High Court. See Ibid, Art. 226. ILR (1957) Punj 1682.

——Art. 227— 'May' — Meaning of — Power to refuse to order ejectment — Interference under Art. 227. See Houses and Rents — East Punjab Urban Rent Restriction Act (3 of 1949), S. 13 (2). AIR 1955 NUC (Punj) 738 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Order by rent controller re-determining rent already fixed — High Court can entertain revision under Art. 227 as the question whether Rent Controller has such power is one of importance. See Houses and Rents — Delhi and Ajmer-Merwara Rent Control Act (1947), S. 7-A. AIR 1952 Punj 273 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Power of superintendence — Extent of its exercise.

The powers of superintendence vested in the High Court are not merely administrative but are also judicial. The exercise of the power is, however, in the discretion of the High Court and the power being one in the nature of extraordinary jurisdiction is to be exercised sparingly and with caution. Thus, even though the words used in Art. 227 impose no limit on the exercise of the power the High Court may in its discretion, refuse to exercise its extraordinary jurisdiction except in cases which disclose some grave and patent errors not otherwise to be remedied.

Note :— Tests laid down on the exercise of the powers of superintendence by the High Court in 7 Bom 341 (FB), enumerated. 53 Pun LR 264 : AIR 1951 Punj 124 (124) (Pt B) (Prs 5; 6; 8).

——Art. 227 — Practice — Petitioner coming to Court with false allegations — No interference by High Court with order of lower tribunal. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1964 Raj LW 472.

——Art. 227 — Case where third party rights will be affected by interference.

It is discretionary for the High Court to interfere in the exercise of its revisional or superintendence jurisdiction and the High Court would be more reluctant to interfere when the rights and interests of third parties are affected. 6 Sau LR 336 : AIR 1954 Sau 7 (8) (Pt B) (Prs 5, 6) (DB).

3 (d). Interference only when error or defect has caused substantial miscarriage of justice.

——Art. 227 — Supervisory powers — Exercise of.

Ordinarily the supervisory powers under Art. 227 should not be exercised unless there is danger of miscarriage or the perpetration of grave injustice. But at the same time, it is the duty of the High Court to keep the lower Courts within the strict bounds of their jurisdiction. 1966 All LJ 96 : 1965 All WR (HC) 683.

——Art. 227 — Error in excluding evidence under S. 33, Evidence Act — Interference to avoid gross miscarriage of justice — High Court's power of superintendence. See Civil P. C. (1908), S. 115. 1955 Andhra WR 87.

——Art. 227 — Powers under — When to be exercised — Held, on facts that case was not fit for supervision of High Court.

Powers of supervision under Art. 227 ought to be exercised in exceptional cases.

Where in proceedings brought under S. 5 of the Assam Adhir Protection and Regulation Act, 1948, at the instance of the landlord, the latter obtained an order on 2nd March, 1951 and another ex parte order on 16th April, 1951 and on appeal from the latter order, the Deputy Commisisoner entertained the appeal in respect of both the orders, although no appeal had been filed from the former order, on the ground taken in the memo, of appeal, namely, that the appellant did not receive any summons before the order was passed ex parte and set aside the order dated 2nd March, 1951 :

Held, that it was not a fit case which called for the supervision of the High Court in the matter of the order of the Deputy Commissioner setting aside the order of 2nd March, 1951. ILR (1952) 4 Assam 175 : AIR 1953 Assam 103 (103) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Interference under — Grounds for.

It is not every error or defect that can be remedied under the extraordinary provisions of Art. 227, which can be invoked only in cases where there has been a substantial failure of justice and that again only with a view to keeping subordinate Tribunals within the bounds of their authority. 1958 Cr LJ 572 (573) (Pt C) (Pr 6) (Cal).

——Art. 227 — High Court, when can interfere.

Where, in ascertaining the cess payable by the assessee, the prayer for deduction of certain amounts has been wrongly disallowed and the action of the Tribunals, namely, the Collector hearing the appeal, the Commissioner and the Board of Revenue has resulted in gross injustice, it is a fit case where the High Court should interfere in exercise of its power of superintendence. ('57) 61 Cal WN 228.

——Art. 227 — Power of superintendence —Scope and extent of.

In an application under Art. 227 the High Court is not called upon to interfere unless it finds that the irregularity which occurred was such as had caused a failure of justice. ILR (1957) 2 Cal 357 : 60 Cal WN 1: AIR 1956 Cal 357 (358) (Pt B) (Pr 14). (DB).

——Art. 227 — Power of interference.

Art. 227 of the Constitution allows the High Court to interfere in special cases but the interference will, however, be rare and only in cases where justice clearly demands such interference. AIR 1951 Cal 138, Rel. on. ILR (1955) 1 Cal 350: 57 CWN 692: AIR 1953 Cal 636 (639) (Pt C) (Pr 12) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Interference under — When justified.

Under Art. 227 of the Constitution, interference should be rare and the Court should act only in cases where there would be a grave miscarriage of justice if the Court did not interfere.

The High Court will decline to interfere under the Article where interference would have eventually no effect on the decision at all. AIR 1952 Cal 192 (192) (Pt A) (Prs 2, 3, 4) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Power of superintendence — Nature and scope — Mistake of law by Revenue Tribunal.

Article 227 confers powers of supervision on the High Court which are intended to be used to prevent substantial injustice and to keep the subordinate Courts and tribunals within the bounds of their authority.

Where the Board of Revenue committed a mistake of law in applying the law of limitation there can be no interference on that ground with the order passed by the Board by the High Court under Art. 227, as it cannot be argued that the Revenue Board could not interpret the law. Madh BLJ 1955 HCR 1590 : AIR 1955 Madh B 185 (188) (Pt B) (Pr 23) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Conditions under which power can be exercised.

Grave miscarriage of justice and flagrant violation of law are the two paramount considerations by which a petition under Art. 227 is to be determined. AIR 1953 SC 58 and AIR 1952 Madh Bha 51, Rel. on. AIR 1952 SC 192, Dist.

The absence of jurisdiction is a matter which renders the entire proceeding a nullity and the decision amounts to a flagrant violation of law, which calls for intervention under Art. 227. Madh Bha LJ 1954 HCR 953: Madh BLJ 1955 Civ 106: AIR 1955 Madh Bha 21 (23) (Pt B) (Prs 8, 9).

[Reversed on another point in AIR 1961 SC 148]

——Art. 227 — Power of superintendence — Extent of.

The power of superintendence under Art. 227 is not restricted to cases of non-exercise or illegal exercise of jurisdiction but extends also to cases where there has been an obvious miscarriage of justice because a Court or tribunal has approached a matter entrusted to it in an arbitrary or despotic manner and against all rules of natural justice. But the power cannot be exercised to disturb a decision of a Court of tribunal merely because it has misconceived a point of law or come to a wrong decision on facts. 1952 Madh BLR (Civil) 94: AIR 1952 Madh Bha 51 (51, 52, 53) (Prs 3, 4, 5, 15) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Interference — Grounds — Interference under Art. 227 is allowed when miscarriage of justice is obvious — Power under the Article not to be exercised for correcting mere errors. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1961 MPLJ (Notes) 111.

——Art. 227 — Superintendence — Scope of.

Superintendence includes power to guide, and encourage Judges of the subordinate Courts, to direct subordinate Courts and tribunals to carry out orders of the High Court; and to direct enquiry with a view to take disciplinary action for flagrant maladministration of justice. Case-law summarised. 1953 Cri LJ 636: 65 Mad LW 1229: AIR 1953 Mad 362 (366) (Pt D) (Pr 12).

——Art. 227 — Illegal orders — Interference.

High Court has ample authority under Art. 227 of the Constitution to interfere where the inferior Court or tribunal has passed an illegal order, ignored clear and mandatory provisions of a statute or acted in flagrant violation of law. The power of superintendence which the High Court has under the Article does not devolve upon it the responsibility for correcting every error or illegality committed by an inferior Court or tribunal. The error may be one of fact or of law; for exercising the discretionary power of superintendence, which cannot be claimed as a matter of right, the error ought to be shown to have resulted in grave miscarriage of justice or flagrant abuse of authority vested in the Court or tribunal. High Court would ordinarily refuse to exercise that power where interference is not called for in the interest of justice.

The power conferred by Art. 227 being discretionary, High Court should not interfere to set aside a defective order in order to restore an order which is even more defective. AIR 1956 Pepsu 83 (85, 86) (Pt B) (Prs 5, 8) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Error of law resulting in injustice — High Court has jurisdiction to set right injustice under Article. AIR 1955 NUC (Pepsu) 4003.

——Art. 227 — Scope.

The power under Art. 227 is extraordinary and must therefore, be used only in exceptional cases of flagrant abuse of elementary principles of justice or manifest and patent error of law. ILR (1962) 1 Punj 285: AIR 1962 Punj 94 (101) (Pt E) (Pr 15).

——Art. 227 — Interference — Grounds.

It is only when an order of a tribunal is violative of the fundamental basic principles of fairness and fair play or where a patent or flagrant error in procedure or law has crept or again where the order passed results in mainfest injustice, that a Court may justifiably intervene under Art. 227. AIR 1954 SC 215, AIR 1951 Cal 193, AIR 1957 Cal 546, AIR 1958 All 456, Rel. on. The power is to be used sparingly in appropriate cases. AIR 1958 All 456, Rel. on. (1960) 62 Punj LR 234.

——Art. 227 — Tenancy laws — Rajasthan Protection of Tenants Ordinance, (1949), S. 7 — Application for reinstatement should be made within three months of dispossession — Application prima facie within time — Grant of application — Question of limitation raised for first time before Board of Revenue — Board deciding that application was not time barred — No miscarriage of justice—No interference under Art. 227 of Constitution. See Tenancy Laws — Rajasthan Protection of Tenants Ordinance (1949), S. 7. AIR 1953 Raj 86.

——Art. 227 — Power to be exercised to prevent perpetration of illegal or unauthorised acts by subordinate tribunals resulting in miscarriage of justice. 1952 Ker LT 538 : AIR 1953 Trav-Co 41 (43) (Pt D) (Pr 5) (DB).

3 (e). Power cannot be used to correct mere errors in decision on question of law or fact.

(i) Mistake of law.
(ii) Findings of fact.

3 (e). Power cannot be used to correct mere errors in decision on question of law or fact.

●——Art. 227 — Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 10 — Wrongful dismissal — Interference with findings of Industrial Tribunal — (Constitution of India, Arts. 226, 227). See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 10. AIR 1953 SC 58.

——Art. 227 — Superintendence — Meaning of— Other remedy open — U. P. Land Utilization Act (5 of 1948), Ss. 3 and 6.

The superintendence referred to in article 227 of the Constitution of India does not invest the High Court with an unlimited prerogative to interfere in cases where a wrong decision has been arrived at by judicial or quasi-judicial tribunals either on fact or on questions of law and powers conferred by the article on the High Courts must be restricted to cases of grave dereliction of duty and flagrant abuse of fundamental principles of law or natural justice. The right to obtain relief thereunder depends further on the conditions that no other remedy is available to the applicant and the remedying of the wrong is essential in order to prevent very serious results. When after the Deputy Commissioner held that the landlord's allegation that the land had already been let out was without substance and held that the plots were in fact vacant, the Petitioners filed fresh objections on the basis of certain leases alleging that they were holding some of the lands and cultivating them before notice under S. 3 of the U. P. Land Utilization Act, when they were admitted to tenancy by the landlord and the Deputy Commissioner refused to accept the assertion, and the petitioners in spite of the finding of the Deputy Commissioner insisted that the leases upon which they relied were genuine.

Held, that the question of fact which was sought to be reagitated by the petitioners must be deemed, in view of section 6 of the U. P. Land Utilization Act, to be concluded by the decision of the Deputy Commissioner. There was no infringement of any fundamental rights and no apparent dereliction of duty or the violation of the principles of natural justice. AIR 1952 All 526, Rel. on. 1952 All LJ 283 : 1952 All WR (HC) 239: AIR 1952 All 750 (751, 752) (Prs 5; 6) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Power of superintendence—Scope of.

The superintendence referred to in Art. 227 does not invest the High Court with an unlimited prerogative to interfere in cases where a wrong decision has been arrived at either in fact or in law and the powers contained therein must be restricted to cases of grave dereliction of duty and flagrant abuse of any fundamental principles of law. The right to obtain relief under it depends further on the conditions that no other remedy is available to the applicant and the remedying of the wrong is essential in order to prevent very serious results; Case-law Ref. 1952 Cri LJ 1176: 1952 All WR (HC) 106 : 1952 All LJ 180 : 1952 RD (HC) 180 : 1952 All Cr R 41 : AIR 1952 All 526 (527) (Pt A) (Pr 3).

——Art. 227 — Power of superintendence—When can be used by High Courts.

The High Court's power of superintendence under Art. 227 of the Constitution is a power to keep Subordinate Courts and Tribunals within the bounds of their authority and to see that they would do what their duty requires and that they do it in a legal manner. The power of superintendence, it is understood, is not a power given to the Court to correct errors of fact or law, and it should not be exercised if no injustice has been done. The right should be exercised only in cases where the Courts below have clearly done something which they were not entitled to do. (1964) 1 Andh LT 21 : (1964) 1 Andh WR 307.

——Art. 227 — Interference — Grounds — Decision of Special Assistant Agent in appeal on a question of fact—Decision by Agent in further appeal—Finding set aside—No error of law or fact committed by Agent — Interference under Art. 227. See Andhra Agency Rules, R. 47. AIR 1957 Andh Pra 1041.

——Art. 227 — S. 3, Assam Land (Requisition and Acquisition) Act, 1948 — Order under is administrative order — Error committed by appellant authority either of law or fact — Interference under Arts. 226 and 227. See Assam Land (Requisition and Acquisition) Act (25 of 1948), S. 3 (As amended by order, dated 24-4-52). AIR 1954 Assam 143 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Scope — High Court will not enter into question of merits.

Under Art. 227 it is not open to the High Court to interfere with merits of a decision when there is no actual want of jurisdiction in the officers concerned to decide the questions involved.

Where one of the findings is doubtful but the case could be decided as it was on the other findings which were not challenged, the decision would not be set aside. AIR 1954 Assam 88 (89) (Pr 1) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Power of superintendence — Extent of.

Assuming that there is some error committed by a Tribunal, the High Court will not, when invited to exercise its powers vested in it by Art. 227, interfere where it thinks that the Tribunal has not gone outside the bounds of its authority in interpreting a deed. AIR 1954 SC 215, Foll. 59 Bom LR 209 : (1957) 2 Lab LJ 194 : (1956-57) 12 FJR 251 : ILR (1958) Bom 8 : AIR 1957 Bom 111 (115) (Pt C) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Power of superintendence—Nature and extent of — Working plans for conservation of private forests — Paragraphs for afforestation added by forest authorities — Application for deletion of — Refusal by authorities — (W. B. Private Forests Act (14 of 1948), Ss. 3, 57, R. 11 and Appendix A to Rules).

(Powers of the High Courts under Art. 227 and the extent of those powers and the duty of the High Courts under the Article indicated). Though, it is part of 'superintendence', as ordinarily understood, to set right whatever has gone wrong, the High Court will refuse to act merely because a Court or tribunal has come to a decision which is erroneous because of a wrong decision on a question of fact or a wrong decision on a question of law. Where, however, a Court or a tribunal has refused to do its duty, that is eminently a matter within the scope of superintendence and the High Court will whenever it finds that other convenient modes of redressing the grievance that has resulted from the Court or tribunal not doing its duty are not readily available to the aggrieved party, direct the Court or tribunal concerned to do its duty or in suitable cases itself remedy the injustice that has resulted from such refusal. The fact that such refusal was the consequence of an honest mistake of fact or law will not make it any the less a refusal by the Court or tribunal to do its duty and will be no ground for the High Court staying its hand to set matters right.

The petitioner submitted the working plans as required by the notification issued under S. 3 (1) of the West Bengal Private Forests Act and according to the Rules and Appendix A to the Rules. These plans were not approved by the Regional Forest Officer and the petitioner was persuaded to prepare fresh working plans in a form containing two additional paragraphs for the afforestation in the waste lands. The petitioner applied for the sanction of deviation from the plans by deletion of these two paragraphs on the ground that these were not authorised by the Act and Rules. The application was dismissed and so also the appeal. The petitioner thereupon applied under Art. 227 of the Constitution :

Held, that the inclusion of the scheme of afforestation in a working plan submitted under S. 3 was wholly unauthorised by the Act. The Regional Forest Officer was bound in law to sanction the deviation. In refusing the prayer he clearly refused to do his duty. The Appellate Committee was equally bound when the owner appealed and by not doing this they refused to do their duty. This refusal on their part resulted in the position that either the owner must incur heavy expenditure for carrying out the additional undertaking or he must face prosecution under S. 6 (1) of the Act. This was manifestly gross injustice and against this there was no convenient remedy available to the owner. It was right and proper, therefore, that in the performance of the High Court's function of superintendence over the tribunals the High Court should remove this injustice by ordering that the prayer for deviation be allowed. ILR (1956) 2 Cal 378 : 58 CWN 963 : 96 CLJ 98 : AIR 1954 Cal 580 (582) (Pt A) (Prs 7; 9) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Applicability — Correction of slight errors.

Art. 227 of the Constitution is not meant to correct slight errors. AIR 1951 Cal 100 (100) (Pt B) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Power of superintendence — (Punjab Tenancy Act (16 of 1887), Ss. 84, 5 (1) (c) and (8)).

The powers of superintendence of the High Court under Art. 227 of the Constitution cannot be invoked merely for the purpose of correcting errors in decision on questions of fact or law in the exercise of their jurisdiction. AIR 1952 All 526 and AIR 1951 Cal 193 (SB), Foll. AIR 1953 Him P 59 (60) (Pr 7).

——Art. 227 (1) — Power of superintendence — Nature of.

The power of superintendence under Art. 227 is not meant for correcting errors of law and fact as that would amount to exercise of appellate jurisdiction not conferred on the High Court by law. Under that Article the High Court has to see whether the subordinate Court or tribunal has kept itself within the bounds of law. Where a subordinate Court or tribunal has exercised the jurisdiction not vested or has refused to exercise the jurisdiction vested or has given a decision which is patently erroneous on a question of fact or law or where there is such grave irregularity of procedure as to prejudicially affect the party against whom the order sought to be challenged is made, the Court will interfere. AIR 1954 Kutch 47 (48) (Pt B) (Pr 4).

——Art. 227 — Error of law.

The powers under Art. 227 of the Constitution are to be exercised most sparingly and only in appropriate cases in order to keep the subordinate Courts within the bounds of their authority and not for correcting mere errors. AIR 1954 SC 215, Foll. Madh BLJ 1955 HCR 1502 : Madh BLR 1955 Civil 345 : AIR 1954 Madh Bha 54 (54) (Pt A) (Pr 2) (DB).

——Arts. 227 and 226 — Wrong decision of Rent Controller — S. 11 of Bihar Act (3 of 1947) misconstrued — Remedy under Arts. 226 and 227 — Applicability — Order cannot be interfered with under Arts. 226 and 227. See Houses and Rents — Bihar Buildings (Lease Rent and Eviction) Control Act (3 of 1947), S. 11. AIR 1955 Pat 142.

——Art. 227 — Power of superintendence — Order of Custodian of Evacuee Property.

The Custodian of Evacuee Property and his subordinates, in so far as they have to decide questions relating to the respective rights of the parties that appear before them, are tribunals and the High Court has power of superintendence over them under Art. 227 of the Constitution and this power includes the power to interfere with their orders in appropriate cases. The power of superintendence is not a power given to the Court to correct errors and the power should be exercised only in cases where the Courts have clearly done something which they were not intended to do and further it must be used to keep the Courts within the bounds prescribed by law for such Courts. AIR 1952 Pepsu 16 (16, 17) (Pr 2).

——Art. 227 — Power of High Court under — Exercise of — Duty of Courts to inspire confidence and faith in judicial process pointed out.

It is undobtedly true that the power conferred on the High Court by Article 227 of the Constitution has, as a rule of practice, to be most sparingly exercised and only in exceptional cases of grave dereliction of duty and is not intended to be used merely for the purpose of correcting errors of fact or of law. This self-imposed restraint is necessary because of the wide language conferring the unlimited reserve of power of superintendence. But it does not mean that, when a Tribunal illegally refuses to exercise the jurisdiction vested in it by law, the High Court is to act as a helpless spectator and is incapable of setting right the failure of justice thus caused. If an error of law apparent on the face of the record is grave and material and has occasioned manifest failure of justice, then the High Court, is not only competent, but indeed is duty-bound to interfere.

If therefore, a judicial or a quasi-judicial Tribunal is of the view that an appeal before it is not competent, then dealing with the merits of the controversy and giving a decision thereon cannot but be described to be a somewhat unsatisfactory, if not unjudicial, approach to the case.

In such circumstances to uphold the contention that as the Tribunal had decided the matter on merits, High Court cannot interfere with its order under Art. 227 and to deny relief to the petitioners would not only fail to promote the cause of justice but would be clearly inconsistent with the true concept of Rule of Law. Such a course can by no means inspire the petitioners' confidence in our judicial process. The importance of citizens' confidence and faith in the judicial process to the civilized and orderly preservation of the society cannot be over-emphasised because it is this confidence and faith which restrains them and keeps them away from drift towards defiant thinking. It is accordingly for the judicial and quasi-judicial Tribunals, and ultimately for the High Courts, to see that this faith and confidence is strengthened and not shaken, and nothing is done to contribute towards the weakening of such faith. AIR 1958 Punj 155; AIR 1950 All 180; AIR 1962 Raj 173; Ref. ILR (1965) 2 Punj 485.

——Art. 227 — Jurisdiction—Distinction —Power under Art. 227 limited to restrain excessive jurisdiction by inferior tribunals — Errors even if apparent on face of record — Cannot be corrected under Art. 227. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1962 Punj 117.

——Art. 227 — Powers of High Court — Question whether requirements of proviso to S. 13 (2) (i) of Punjab Act 3 of 1949 have or have not been complied with is mixed question of law and fact and will not be interfered with —(Houses and Rents — East Punjab Urban Rent Restriction Act (3 of 1949), S. 13 (ii) Proviso). AIR 1955 NUC (Punj) 5396.

——Art. 227—Scope — Interference with decision of tribunal, which does not fall under scope of S. 115, C. P. Code — (Houses and Rents —East Punjab Urban Rent Restriction Act (3 of 1949).

Art. 227 authorises High Court to see that the tribunals which do not fall under S. 115 of the C. P. Code are 'kept in their proper place and that they exercise their jurisdiction in accordance with the provisions of the laws they administer'. AIR 1953 Cal 702, Relied on.

Finding of Rent Controller acting under East Punjab Urban Rent Restriction Act that the transaction was lease and not license — Finding maintained by appellate authority — High Court refused to interfere with the finding under Art. 227 — Similarly High Court refused to interfere with finding on question of fair rent. 54 Punj LJ 75 : AIR 1954 Punj 24 (25) (Pt B) (Prs 8; 9; 10).

——Art. 227 — Nature of jurisdiction — Decision under S. 13 (2) (i), Proviso, West Punjab Urban Rent Restriction Act — Power to question correctness of decision.

Powers of superintendence under Art. 227 should be exercised only in cases where the Courts and Tribunals have done something which they were not competent to do. It is not a power to correct errors, as otherwise it would tantamount to a power to entertain appeals on law and fact. The decision that the requirements of the proviso to S. 13 (2) (i), West Punjab Urban Rent Restriction Act, are not satisfied raises a mixed question of law and fact and therefore, the correctness of such a decision does not fall for examination under Art. 227 of the Constitution. 54 Punj LR 501: AIR 1953 Punj 70 (71) (Pt B) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Scope of power.

The fact that the High Court has jurisdiction under Art. 227 to interfere in its supervisional jurisdiction in matters both judicial and administrative does not mean that it should invoke these powers in every case where it finds some error of law or fact in the proceedings of the lower Courts and tribunals. 6 Sau LR 336 : AIR 1954 Sau 7 (8) (Pt B) (Prs 5; 6) (DB).

——Art. 227—Scope of powers of superintendence of High Court.

The powers of interference under Art. 227 of the Constitution relate to both administrative and judicial matters. But that does not mean that the High Court should invoke these powers in every case where the Court finds some error of law or fact in the proceedings of the lower Courts and Tribunals. If this were so, the limitations placed upon a Court of Second Appeal under section 100, Civil P. C. (1908), and Court of revision under S. 115, Civil P. C. (1908), would become nugatory. AIR 1950 Cal 379, Foll. Case-law reviewed.

(On the facts of the case it was held that the High Court should not upset the decision of the Judge in a matter as it rested upon appreciation of facts only.) AIR 1951 Sau 43 (45, 46) (Prs 5; 9).

——Art. 227 — Wrong decision of law or fact by election tribunal.

A wrong decision by the election Commissioner on a question of fact or of law will not by itself be a sufficient ground for the High Court to interfere in the exercise of its powers under the article. ILR (1955) Tra-Co 646: 1955 Ker LT 714 : AIR 1956 Trav-Co 63 (69) (Pt C) (Pr 19) (DB).

——Arts. 227, 226 — Powers of High Court under — Labour Court acting within jurisdiction— Decision, when can be interfered with — Normally, no interference on merits. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1960 Tripura 35.

3 (e) (i). Mistakes of law.

●——Art. 227 — Motor Vehicles Act (1939), Ss. 68-D, 68-F (2) (c) (iii), 64, 64-A — Scheme notified under S. 68-D — Effect on permits of private operators — Powers of R. T. A. — Renewal of private permits not legal — Appeal Board can set aside such renewals — Board can act in revisional powers if appeal is incompetent — Decision of Appeal Board being correct in law, no interference under Arts. 226 and 227. See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 68-D. AIR 1962 SC 1135.

●——Art. 227—Limited scope of Art. 227 though it is wider than S. 115 of Civil Procedure Code— High Court cannot assume appellate powers to correct every mistake of law.

Article 227 of the Constitution corresponds to S. 107 of the Government of India Act, 1915. However wider it may be than the provisions of S. 115 of the Code of Civil Procedure, the High Court cannot, in exercise of its power under that section, assume appellate powers to correct every mistake of law. An erroneous decision which error, not being apparent on the face of the record, cannot be corrected by the High Court in revision under S. 115 of the Code of Civil Procedure or under Art. 227 of the Constitution. Satyanarayan Laxminarayan Hedge v. Malikarjun Bhavanappa Tirumale, 62 Bom LR 146 : 1961 Andh LT 1 : (1960) 1 SCR 890 : 1960 SCJ 1065 : AIR 1960 SC 137 (142) (Pt B) (Pr 18).

——Art. 227 — Decision in accordance with law— Interference — Member of Board of Revenue allowing second appeal and sending it for concurrence to another member who differed — Appeal again coming before the first member who dismissed it confirming the decree of lower appellate Court — Judgment is in accordance with law, viz., S. 98 (2), Proviso, C. P. Code and cannot be interfered with under Art. 227 unless it is shown that the Board exercised a jurisdiction not vested in it or failed to exercise jurisdiction vested in it. 1954 All LJ 230 : 1954 All WR (HC) 425 : AIR 1954 All 521 (522) (Pt B) (Pr 4).

——Art. 227 — Certiorari — Error of law—Interference — Powers of High Court — Proceedings under S. 12, Madras Estates (Abolition and Conversion into Ryotwari) Act — Conclusion of Tribunal justified on the evidence on record —Order not interfered. See Ibid, Art. 226. (1963) 1 Andh LT 296.

——Art. 227 — Error of law — Error committed by inferior tribunal not self-evident but requires to be established — Jurisdiction to issue writ of certiorari will not be exercised. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1961 Nag LJ (Notes) 37.

——Art. 227 — Sufficient cause — Ignorance of law — Distinction between ignorance of law and mistake of law — Decision of authority that ignorance did not constitute sufficient cause for delay — No interference. See Payment of Wages Act (1936), S. 15 (2). AIR 1954 Bom 537 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Interference under — (Representation of the People Act (1951), Ss. 83 (2), 85).

It is for the Election Tribunal to determine whether the forms of Schedules attached to the election petition fulfil the legal requirements of the Representation of the People Act under which the Tribunal acts. That is the very issue which the Tribunal has to determine before proceeding further to determine the issues involved in the petition and the reply thereof on merits. The jurisdiction of the Tribunal does not depend upon the facts whether the Schedules are property verified or not but is independent of it. The legislature in giving the Tribunal power to dismiss the petition for failure of the petitioner to supply Schedules duly verified in the manner laid down in the Code of Civil Procedure has empowered Tribunal to determine whether the Schedules are duly verified or not and while in doing so even if it arrived at an erroneous decision it could not be said to have acted in a manner calling for the interference by the High Court in exercise of its powers of superintendence as in that it would be acting as a Court of appeal to correct errors of law. Case-law discussed. ILR (1954) MB 128 : AIR 1953 Madh B 267 (269) (Pr 20) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Erroneous view of law.

The object of Art. 227 is really to canalise the proceedings in inferior Courts and Tribunals so that there is no overflow of the banks. Where the lower Court has taken an erroneous view of the law, it is a fit case in which the High Court should interfere in the extraordinary jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 227. AIR 1953 Cal 702, Rel. on. AIR 1951 Punj 124, Dist. 56 Punj LR 18 : ILR (1954) Punj 776 : AIR 1954 Punj 135 (136) (Pt B) (Prs 9, 10).

——Art. 227 — Scope — Order erroneously interpreting law — Substantial justice however done — Interference.

Even if the Court below in the interpretation of the language of a statute has come to a conclusion which is erroneous, this by itself is no ground for interference in the exercise of extraordinary jurisdiction under the provisions of Art. 227 of the Constitution, if it has in its order come to substantial justice AIR 1952 Punj 416 (417) (Pt A) (Prs 4, 7) (DB).

3 (e) (ii). Findings of fact.

●——Arts. 227 and 133 — Finding of facts—Interference — Finding of the Authority under Payment of Wages Act that deduction of servant allowance as a result of revision of wage structure did not contravene S. 23 as the total wages earned before such revision not reduced — Finding cannot be challenged in a petition under Art. 227 nor under Art. 133 when the High Court has confirmed it. Payment of Wages Act (1936), S. 23. Dinaram Chutlaya v. Kakajan Tea Estate. 1963 (6) Fac LR 189 : (1963) 1 Lab LJ 267 : ILR (1963) 15 Assam 299 (SC).

●——Art. 227 — Question of fact — Interference with finding of fact recorded by the Industrial tribunal where the tribunal had jurisdiction to determine the question. See Ibid, Art. 133. AIR 1957 SC 264.

——Art. 227 — Finding of fact — Objection to — No interference. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1957 All WR (HC) 388 : 1957 All LJ 325.

——Art. 227 — Question of fact —No interference. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1955 All 163 (DB).

——Art. 227 — High Court under Art. 227 cannot sit as Court of appeal and review findings of fact. (1964) 1 Andh LT 72 : (1964) 1 Andh WR 243.

——Art. 227 — Finding of fact — Interference. See Ibid, Art. 226. (1959) 1 Lab LJ 563 (Andh Pra).

——Art. 227 — Powers of superintendence — Exercise of — Grounds.

The power now vesting in the High Courts by virtue of Art. 227 of the Constitution is the same which the High Courts exercised under S. 15 of the Charter Act and then under S. 107, Government of India Act. Speaking generally this power of superintendence places at the disposal of the High Court an extraordinary reserve of power in order that there should be no species of injustice which the High Court may not be able to cure. Since the jurisdiction is extraordinary it should not serve ordinarily as a substitute for revisional jurisdiction in cases where the revisional jurisdiction has been taken away from the High Court by a competent Legislature, though even in such cases, absence, excess or abuse of jurisdiction will no doubt justify interference. The High Court may also draw on its powers of superintendence, to avoid or prevent obvious miscarriage of justice. It shall not, however, be justified in getting round any express provisions of statute depriving it of its revisional jurisdiction by resorting to its extraordinary jurisdiction except in cases mentioned above. It will not also be justified in constituting itself a Court of appeal and substitute its own view on findings of fact after a minute scrutiny of the evidence, though the extraordinary jurisdiction may be utilised for correcting miscarriages of justice which have been occasioned by patent errors of law or procedure which cannot be corrected otherwise. 52 Cr LJ 966: ILR (1951) 3 Assam 181 : AIR 1951 Assam 106 (112, 115) (Pt E) (Prs 39, 59).

——Art. 227 — Finding of fact — In exercise of the jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 227 it would not be open to the High Court to go behind the finding of fact recorded by the lower Court though erroneous. 61 Bom LR 294 : ILR (1959) Bom 509.

——Arts. 227, 226 — Finding of fact — No interference — (Tenancy Laws — Bombay Tenancy and Agricultural Lands Act (67 of 1948), S. 29). See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1956 Bom 128 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Scope — Tribunal's decision on question of existence or non-existence of facts entitling it to exericse jurisdiction to review its own orders — High Court will not interfere. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1953 Bom 284 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Power of High Court — Ejectment of tenant on ground of requirement for purposes of building or for developing it — Matters to be taken into account by tribunal — Interference under Art. 227. See Tenancy Laws — Calcutta Thicka Tenancy Act (2 of 1949), S. 3 (IV). (1957) 61 Cal WN 745.

——Art. 227— Question of fact — Whether result of election has been materially affected. See Gujarat Taluka Panchayat (Election) Rules (1962), S. 3 (3). ILR (1965) Guj 395.

——Art. 227 — Finding of fact — Interference. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1961 Him Pra 2.

——Art. 227 — Power of Superintendence — Exercise of — (Houses and Rents — East Punjab Urban Rent Restriction Act (3 of 1949), S. 13).

Where, in a proceeding for ejectment of tenant on ground of failure to pay rent, both the Controller and the appellate authority found, on facts, that there was no default in payment of rent :

Held, that it could not be said that the authorities acted arbitrarily or that they refused to discharge their duties or to exercise jurisdiction vested in them by law. Their decision could not therefore, be interfered with under Art. 227. AIR 1954 SC 215, Disting. AIR 1954 Him Pra 75 (76) (Pr 4).

——Art. 227 — Jurisdiction of High Court—Finding of fact — Interference. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1959 Cr LJ 1082 : AIR 1959 Ker 275 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Procedure — Finding of fact — Interference. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1955 NUC (Madh B) 4312.

——Arts. 227 and 226 — Whether assessee had paid sales-tax amount in treasury, is a question of fact which cannot be enquired into in proceedings under Articles. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1964 Madh Pra 214 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Errors of fact cannot be considered in writ proceedings. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1963 MPLJ (Notes) 254.

——Art. 227 — Writ jurisdiction — Powers of High Court — Not an appellate Court — Finding of fact, cannot be disturbed — Election challenged on the ground of disqualification under Section 14 (1) (i) read with S. 94 of M. B. Municipalities Act (1 of 1954) — Finding arrived at by the Election Tribunal — Interference with. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1963 Jab LJ 795.

——Arts. 227, 226— Interference with findings of fact — Workmen's Compensation Act (1923), S. 2 (1) (n) — Question whether casual labourer is employed for purposes of employer's trade or business is one of fact — No interference under Art. 226 or 227. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1963 Jab LJ 587.

——Art. 227 — Findings of fact if can be gone into in application under Art. 227.

It is not the business of the High Court in an application under Art. 227 to go into the findings of fact; in regard to it, the statutory appellate authority should be deemed to be the final forum. 1959 MPLJ 513.

——Art. 227 — Finding of fact — Powers of High Court to interfere. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1958 Madh Pra 368 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Finding of fact — Interference.

The findings of the Tribunal on pure questions of fact are not open to review in proceedings under Art. 227 of the Constitution. 71 Mad LW 679: (1958) 2 Lab LJ 602: (1958-59) 15 FJR 25: 1958 Mad WN 732: (1959) 1 Mad LJ 235: 1959 Mad LJ (Cri) 241.

——Art. 227 — Finding of fact — Finding that petitioner failed to submit written representation as required by S. 57 (4), Motor Vehicles Act, is one of fact — Not open to review by High Court when there is no error of law. (1964) 2 Mys LJ 394: AIR 1965 Mys 258 (259) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Motor Vehicles Act (1939), Ss. 47 and 64 — Grant of permit—Findings of fact — Interference in writ proceedings not permissible. See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 47. (1965) 2 Mys LJ 30 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Finding that there exists need for bus service on particular route, recorded by Revenue Appellate Tribunal being essentially on question of fact, its correctness cannot be discussed in writ petition. See Ibid, Art. 226. (1963) 2 Mys LJ 93.

——Art. 227 — Certiorari — Writ of — Disputed questions of fact — Writ proceedings to quash certificate proceedings to recover arrears of sales-tax — Dispute as to facts for deciding whether sales-tax was payable — Interference by High Court. See Ibid, Art. 226. (1961) 12 STC 649 (Orissa).

——Art. 227 — Findings of fact — Interference with. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1957 Pat 241 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Question of fact. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1957 Pat 163 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Procedure — Questions of fact. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1955 NUC (Pat) 2151 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Question of fact — Interference. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1954 Pat 334 (DB).

●——Art. 227 — Certiorari — Requisition of premises under S. 3, Requisition and Acquisition of Immoveable Property Act — Whether premises were required bona fide for their personal use by owners is a question purely of fact — Even an erroneous finding on the question cannot entitle High Court to interfere with the order of requisition when the Collector and Chief Commissioner have acted within the bounds of their jurisdiction and without doing any violence to principles of natural justice. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1962 Punj 387 (FB).

——Art. 227 — Interference with orders of subordinate Tribunal — Power of High Court — Extent of — Finding of fact cannot be questioned.

The scope of Art. 227 of the Constitution in the matter of interference with the orders of the subordinate Tribunals is no wider than Art. 226. Therefore, in a petition under Art. 227 against an order of a Labour Court, it is not open to High Court to go into the correctness of facts found by that Court. AIR 1962 Punj 231 (233, 235) (Pt B) (Prs 3, 13).

——Art. 227 — Question of fact — Findings cannot be gone into. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1961 Punj 464.

——Art. 227 — Retrenchment of employee — Question of mala fides—Finding of Industrial Tribunal — Interference by High Court. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 33-A. AIR 1959 Punj 360.

——Arts. 227 and 226 — Elections — Representation of the People Act (1951), S. 98 — Corrupt practice — Question of fact — Jurisdiction of election tribunal — High Court will not intervene. 61 Pun LR 253: ILR (1959) Punj 368: AIR 1959 Punj 309 (311) (Pt B) (Pr 12) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Rajasthan Panchayat and Nyaya Panchayat Election Rules (1960), R. 78 — Decision of Election Tribunal — Finding in respect of age of a candidate — Is a finding of fact — Cannot be disturbed in a writ petition under Arts. 226 and 227 of the Constitution. See Ibid, Art. 226. ILR (1962) 12 Raj 969.

3 (e) (iii). High Court's power to re-appreciate evidence.

●——Arts. 227, 226 — Findings in departmental enquiry — High Court has no power to reappreciate evidence — ILR (1959) Cut 425, Reversed. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1963 SC 404.

——Art. 227 — Power under article will not be exercised as in case of appeals by going into minute details of evidence. 1952 Cri LJ 1282: 1952 All LJ 493: 1952 All WR (HC) 547: 1952 All Cri C 1462: AIR 1952 All 788 (792, 793) (Pt B) (Prs 14, 15, 17).

——Art. 227 — Finding of fact — Interference— (Bombay Industrial Relations Act (11 of 1947), S. 3 (36)).

Where the lower Court taking the entire evidence on record into consideration found that the workers had stopped work and that though they were provided with normal work they refused to do the normal work and failed to give the normal production, there is a finding of fact which cannot be challenged in proceedings under Art. 227. But High Court's powers under Art. 227 being limited to the correction of errors of the lower Courts on the face of record, it is not entitled to re-appreciate the evidence and differ from the finding on fact of the lower Court. (1958) 13 FJR 467 (Bom).

——Art. 227 — Finding of lower Court based on evidence — Need of landlord under S. 3 (iv), Calcutta Thika Tenancy Act — Finding of Controller and Appellate Court — Interference by High Court. See Tenancy Laws — Calcutta Thika Tenancy Act (2 of 1949), S. 3 (iv). (1957) 61 CWN 170.

——Art. 227 — No interference with finding of fact based on evidence that there was proper service of notice — (C. P. Code (1908), S. 115). AIR 1955 NUC (Cal) 4852 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Finding of fact — Finding as to fair rent based on evidence — No interference. Madh BLJ 1955 HCR 1949: ILR (1955) Madh Bha 406: Madh BLR 1955 (Clv) 528: AIR 1955 Madh B 177 (179) (Pt C) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Adjudication by Industrial Tribunal — Dispute relating to fixation of fair wages and provision for gratuity scheme — View taken by the tribunal on paying capacity of industry not impossible on evidence recorded —High Court cannot deal with the matter as a Court of appeal and substitute its own judgment. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1962 Madh Pra 172 (DB).

——Art. 227 —Finding given after consideration of entire evidence on point — No error of law— Finding cannot be called in question. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1957 Pat 241 (DB).

——Art. 227 — High Court will not review appraisal of evidence by Rent Controller. AIR 1955 NUC (Pepsu) 2507.

——Art. 227—High Court cannot go into merits of case.

The power of superintendence under the article does not make the High Court a Court of appeal or revision over the proceedings of the tribunal. Thus it cannot go into the merits of the case and hold that the decision of the tribunal was not justified on the evidence before it. ILR (1954) Patiala 387 : AIR 1954 Pepsu 118 (122, 123, 125) (Pt H) (Prs 17, 28) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Re-appraisal of evidence —Conviction for offence under S. 447, Penal Code challenged on ground that evidence did not warrant conviction — Held, that High Court could not re-appraise evidence. 67 Punj LR 698 : ILR (1965) 2 Punj 472.

——Arts. 227 and 226 — Writ jurisdiction, nature of — It is not appellate jurisdiction — Decisions of subordinate tribunals not reviewable to find out whether they are based on substantial evidence as against absence of legal evidence — American and English law compared. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1965 Cur LJ 561 : ILR (1965) 2 Punj 348.

3 (f). Power to be exercised to keep Courts and Tribunals within limits of their authority.

● ——Art. 227 — Power of superintendence under — Exercise of (Houses and Rents — East Punjab Urban Rent Restriction Act (3 of 1949), S. 13 (2)).

The power of superintendence conferred by Art. 227 is to be exercised most sparingly and only in appropriate cases in order to keep the Subordinate Courts within the bounds of their authority and not for correcting mere errors. AIR 1951 Cal 193 (SB), Ref.

Thus where the lower Courts realised the legal position but in effect declined to do what was, by S. 13 (2) (i) of the East Punjab Urban Rent Restriction Act, 1949, incumbent on them to do, and thereby refused to exercise jurisdiction vested in them by law it was a case called for an interference by the Court of the Judicial Commissioner under this Article and it acted quite properly in doing so. Waryam Singh v. Amarnath. 1954 SCJ 290 : 1954 Mad WN 424 : 1954 SCA 334 : 1954 SCR 565 : AIR 1954 SC 215 (217) (Pt C) (Pr 14).

——Art. 227 — Scope — Interference limited to question of jurisdiction.

The power of interference under Art. 227 is limited to seeing that the Tribunal functions within the limits of its authority. Where the contention of the defendant was that he had filed certain documents in the Court which, however, were not found on the record, and that the Court after inquiry held that they were not filed and that no opportunity was given to the defendant to prove his allegations :

Held, that no petition under Art. 227 was maintainable. Though the Court should have given the defendant an opportunity to prove his case, it was a question of error and not of jurisdiction on its part : AIR 1958 SC 398 and AIR 1954 SC 215 and AIR 1958 All 456, Applied. AIR 1961 All 306 (308) (Pr 7).

——Art. 227 — Power of judicial superintendence of High Court — Conditions precedent for exercise.

The powers of the High Court under Art. 227 of the Constitution are not wider than the powers conferred by Art. 226, but for all practical purposes, they are co-equal except that under Art. 227 the High Court has superintendence only over Courts and tribunals whereas under Art. 226 it has supervisory jurisdiction over any person or authority including the Government. The main purpose of Art. 227 is to keep the subordinate Courts and tribunals within the bounds of their authority. It is not open to the High Court acting under Art. 227 to sit as a Court of Appeal and review findings of fact by reappreciating oral and documentary evidence. The High Court would be justified in interfering under Art. 227 only in cases where substantial injustice has been done by reason of the decision of the Court or tribunal below being vitiated by defect in jurisdiction, violation of the principles of natural justice, total absence of evidence or error of law apparent on the face of the record. It is only in such cases and within those limits that the High Court can interfere under Art. 227 of the Constitution. (1964) 1 Andh LT 72 : (1964) 1 An WR 243.

——Art. 227 — Powers under — When to be exercised.

The power of superintendence conferred by Art. 227 should be exercised by the High Court most sparingly and only in appropriate cases in order to keep the subordinate Courts within the bounds of their authority and not for correcting mere errors: AIR 1954 SC 215, Rel. on. (1960) 2 Andh WR 53.

——Art. 227 — Nature and scope of powers of jurisdiction under.

The power of superintendence conferred by Art. 227 is to be exercised most sparingly and only in appropriate cases in order to keep the subordinate Courts within the bounds of their authority and not for correcting mere errors. 1959 Andh LT 676: (1959) 2 Andh WR 146.

——Art. 227 — Powers of High Court to vacate lower Court's order — (C. P. Code (1908), S. 115).

Art. 227 of the Constitution, confers power on High Courts to keep lower Courts within limits of their legal jurisdiction and if the judgment of the lower appellate Court proceeds on entirely wrong principles of law, it can be vacated. (1958) 2 Andh WR 56.

——Art. 227 — Error of law — If ground for revision.

The power of superintendence of the High Court under Art. 227 is only to see that the Court below does not exceed its bounds. If the Court below had jurisdiction to decide a matter and in the exercise of that jurisdiction has committed any error of law, that is no ground for the High Court to interfere in the exercise of its powers, under Art. 227. Art. 227 was not intended to be a substitute for the revisional jurisdiction of High Court. AIR 1952 Assam 166, Rel. on. AIR 1958 Assam 77 (78) (Pt B) (Pr 1) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Power of superintendence —Extent — Petitioner resisting execution of decree — Application by decree-holder before subordinate Judge for making complaint against petitioner under S. 195 (1) (a) Cr. P. C. — Application rejected on ground that proper remedy was under O. 21, R. 97 C. P. C. — Similar application before District Judge — District Judge making complaint under Section 195 (1) Cr. P. C., in administrative capacity — Order held not substainable and set aside under Art. 227 — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 195 (1) (a) (b).

Per D. N. Das Gupta, J.: (agreeing with Amaresh Roy, J.) :— The power of superintendence under Art. 227 of the Constitution is to be exercised by the High Court most sparingly and only in appropriate cases in order to keep the subordinate Courts within the bounds of their authority and not for correcting mere errors.

A decree-holder made an application in the Court of Subordinate Judge alleging that the pleader-commissioner and the peon who had gone to give possession of land to him had been resisted in the discharge of their official duties by the petitioner and prayed that a complaint should be made by the Court against the petitioner in accordance with S. 195 (1) (a) Cr. P. C. That application was dismissed on the ground that the proper remedy of the decree-holder was by way of an application under O. 21, R. 97 C. P. C., especially when obstruction was caused by third parties who had prima facie a bona fide claim to the lands. Thereafter the decree-holders made a similar application before the District Judge who passed an order, termed as administrative, for the protection of the Court peon as a public servant subordinate to him making a complaint under S. 195 (1) (a) Cr. P. C. In passing that order he did not consider whether interest of justice required such an order. In an application for revision under S. 115 C. P. C., and Art. 227 of the Constitution filed against the order.

Held, that the District Judge had no power to make the administrative order in the face of the order of the subordinate Judge which had not been set aside in any appropriate proceedings. Merely saying that the order was an administrative order would not make an order immune from interference by High Court under Art. 227. The High Court has the power to scrutinise the order and to see whether it was within the bounds of the authority passing the order. The order was, therefore, set aside. 42 CWN 531, 44 CWN 1011; AIR 1942 Cal 434; AIR 1954 SC 215, and AIR 1955 SC 233, Ref. (1963) 67 Cal WN 887.

——Art. 227 — High Court's power of superintendence — Extent of — Election under Bengal Municipal Act.

The High Court's power of superintendence under Art. 227 of the Constitution is a power to keep subordinate Courts (Tribunals) within the bounds of their authority, to see that they do what their duty requires and that they do it in a legal manner. In appropriate cases, the Article may be employed to correct, at least, errors of jurisdiction, to wit, assumption of excessive jurisdiction or illegal or irregular exercise of it or refusal or failure to exercise the same. AIR 1958 SC 398; AIR 1954 SC 215; AIR 1951 Cal 193; AIR 1952 Cal 526, Rel. on.

The petitioner's nomination paper for a municipal election was improperly rejected by the Election Officer who had no authority in that behalf and the order was confirmed by the Appellate Authority arbitrarily without applying his mind to the real question involved.

Held, that, in the circumstances of the case, it was a fit case where the High Court would exercise its powers under Art. 227 of the Constitution and quash the order of the Appellate Authority rejecting the nomination paper. The case was one where the Tribunal had not kept itself within the bounds of its authority as there was failure on his part to exercise the jurisdiction which was vested in him by law and which he was bound to exercise under and in terms of the statute to which he owed his authority and existence. AIR 1923 Mad 475, Rel. on; AIR 1928 Mad 1271, Dist. 64 Cal WN 1043: ILR (1961) 1 Cal 356: AIR 1962 Cal 53 (60) (Pt C) (Prs 28, 29) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Powers of High Court.

The High Court has power under Art. 227 to keep subordinate Courts and tribunals within the bounds of their authority.

Where the Tribunal below decided the case practically on inadmissible evidence, or, in flagrant violation of Evidence Act, and, in, so doing, it served to perpetuate a grave injustice interference in such cases would be amply justified. The tribunal must, at least be held to have acted illegally in exercise of its jurisdiction and that is sufficient for interference under Art. 227 as the illegal exercise of jurisdiction by the lower tribunal resulted in a grave injustice. AIR 1958 Cal 679 (680) (Pt A) (Prs 8, 9) (DB).

● ——Art. 227 — Powers of superintendence — Scope and extent of.

Though under Art. 227 of the Constitution the High Court has a right to interfere with decisions of Courts and Tribunals under its power of superintendence, that right must be exercised most sparingly and only in appropriate cases. In general words, the High Court's power of superintendence is a power to keep subordinate Courts within the bounds of their authority, to see that they do what their duty requires and that they do it in a legal manner. The power of superintendence is not a power given to the Court to correct errors, otherwise, it would be tantamount to a right to entertain appeals on law and fact. That right should be exercised only in cases where the Courts below have clearly done something which they were not entitled to do. Dalmia Jain Airways, Ltd. v. Sukumar Mukherjee, AIR 1951 Cal 193 (193, 194) (Pt A) (Prs 6, 7) (SB).

——Art. 227 — Scope.

Article is meant to keep subordinate Courts within bounds of their jurisdiction and not to correct errors of decision on questions of law or questions of fact. AIR 1953 Him P 60 (60) (Pt A) (Pr 4).

——Art. 227 — Power of superintendence — Nature and scope of — Appeal dismissed as incompetent and on merits — Court will refuse relief under Article — Tenancy Laws — Malbar Tenancy Act (14 of 1930), S. 17.

The power of superintendence conferred by Art. 227 is to be exercised most sparingly and only in appropriate cases in order to keep the subordinate Courts within the bounds of their authority and not for correcting mere errors. AIR 1951 Cal 193, AIR 1953 Cal 702 and AIR 1954 SC 215, Foll.

Under S. 17 of the Malabar Tenancy Act an appeal lies against the order of the Rent Court under S. 16 of that Act, whether the order fixes fair rent or refuses to do so, and hence the dismissal of an appeal against an order refusing to fix fair rent as incompetent is erroneous. But still the appellant will not be granted relief under Art. 227 of the Constitution where the appellate Court dismissed the appeal not on the sole ground of incompetency but also after a consideration of the appeal on its merits. (1960) 1 Ker LR 24: 1960 Ker LT 50 : 1960 Ker LJ 156 : ILR (1960) Ker 629.

——Art. 227 — Enabling power of High Court.

The extraordinary powers conferred on the High Court under Art. 227 enable the High Court to ensure that the tribunals are kept within the bounds of their authority and that they do what their duty requires and that they do it in a legal manner. 1953 Cri LJ 636 : 65 Mad LW 1229 : AIR 1953 Mad 362 (366) (Pt E) (Pr 12).

——Art. 227 — Power of superintendence—Nature and scope of power.

The High Court's power of superintendence is a power to keep subordinate Courts within the bounds of their authority, to see that they do what their duty requires and that they do it in a legal manner. It is not a power given to correct errors, otherwise it would be tantamount to a right to entertain appeals on law and fact. The right should be exercised only in cases where the Courts have clearly done something which they were not entitled to do. 1954 BLJR 594 : 1955 Cr LJ 501 : 33 Pat 996 : AIR 1955 Pat 118 (121) (Pt F) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Limits to exercise of power of superintendence.

The power of superintendence under Art. 227 of the Constitution does not make the High Court a Court of appeal or revision over the proceedings of the Tribunal. Thus, the High Court cannot go into the merits of the case and hold that the decision of the Tribunal was not justified on the evidence before it. The powers are to be used sparingly and only in appropriate cases with a view to keep the subordinate Courts or Tribunals within the bounds of their authority, to see that they do what their duty enjoins and that they do it in a legal manner. ILR (1954) Patiala 387 : AIR 1954 Pepsu 118 (122, 123, 125) (Pt H) (Prs 17, 28) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Power of High Court.

The power of the High Court under Art. 227 is limited. It cannot be used to correct error of subordinate Courts and tribunals. This power is quite different from the power that a Court of Appeal or a Court of Revision possesses. It is a power to keep subordinate Courts within the bounds of their authority, to see that they do what their duty requires and that they do it in a legal manner. 1951 Pepsu LR 347, Rel. on. ILR (1953) Patiala 208 : AIR 1954 Pepsu 17 (17, 18) (Pt A) (Pr 3).

——Art. 227 — Powers of High Court.

While dealing with orders of Tribunals or Subordinate Courts under Article 227 the High Court does not act either as a Court of Appeal or a Court of Revision. The object of Art. 227 is not to enable the High Court to correct every error but merely to see that the Subordinate Tribunals are kept within the four corners of law and they do not act outside the jurisdiction given to them by law. Therefore, no writs are issued against the Tribunals except when their proceedings are vitiated by total want of jurisdiction or the defect of jurisdiction is apparent on record. ILR (1954) Pepsu 1 : AIR 1953 Pepsu 133 (141) (Pt J) (Pr 21) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Object of conferring power.

Under Art. 227 the power of interference is limited to seeing that the Tribunal functions within the limits of its authority. Moreover, power under the article is always to be exercised most sparingly and only in appropriate cases and is clearly not meant for correcting errors of fact or even of law. 1964 Cur LJ 324 : 1965 (2) Cri L Jour 701 (701, 702) (Prs 3, 4) (Punj).

——Art. 227 — Power of superintendence —When to be exercised.

The power of superintendence conferred by Art. 227 is to be exercised most sparingly and only in appropriate cases in order to keep the Subordinate Courts within the bounds of their authority and not for correcting mere errors : AIR 1954 SC 215, Foll. 62 Punj LR 302 : AIR 1960 Punj 432 (433) (Pt C) (Pr 8).

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1965 Punj 156 (DB).]

——Art. 227 — Powers under — When may be exercised.

The power given by Art. 227 of the Constitution is meant to be exercised in cases where the subordinate Courts clearly have done something which they are not entitled to do. The power must be used to keep the Courts below within the bounds prescribed by law for such Courts, and is not limited to interference with orders passed by them without jurisdiction. ILR (1953) Punj 100 : 54 PLR 358 : AIR 1952 Punj 422 (422) (Pt A) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Superintendence, its object.

The object of superintendence is to keep all inferior Courts and Tribunals within the bounds of their authority and to see that they do which their duty requires them to do and that they do it in a legal manner. 53 Pun LR 264 : AIR 1951 Punj 124 (124) (Pt A) (Pr 5).

——Art. 227 — Power of superintendence —Scope of—Interference with order of appellate authority under East Punjab Rent Restriction Act (1949).

The power under Art. 227 of the Constitution is not the same as is exercisable by a Court of appeal but should be confined to keeping the subordinate Courts and other tribunals within the narrow limits which the law prescribes for them. It does not give the High Court the power to interfere in every case but in cases which would be proper for exercising the powers of issue of mandamus.

Where the appellate authority under the East Punjab Rent Restriction Act (1949) had held that the premises were not needed for personal occupation by the landlord.

Held, that in view of the limited power given to the High Court under Art. 227, this was not an appropriate case for interference under that article. 53 Pun LR 175: AIR 1951 Punj 108 (109) (Pr 7).

3 (g). Lower Court acting without jurisdiction.

(i) Instances of orders without jurisdiction.

(ii) Orders which are not without jurisdiction.

3 (g). Lower Court acting without jurisdiction.

● ——Art. 227—Abducted Persons (Recovery and Restoration) Act (1949), S. 6 — Tribunal constituted under S. 6 to decide the question of restoration of the abducted woman, held was not properly constituted and its decision was, therefore, without jurisdiction. See Abducted Persons (Recovery and Restoration) Act (1949), S. 6. AIR 1953 SC 10.

●——Art. 227 — 'All Courts and Tribunals' — (U. P. Panchayat Raj Act (26 of 1947), S. 49).

Where admittedly the Bench of the Panchayati Adalat which tried the case was constituted in contravention of the provisions of Section 49, U. P. Panchayat Raj Act, inasmuch as it included only one instead of two members of the Gaon Sabha of the village in which both the complainant and the accused resided:

Held, that the Constitution of the Bench was illegal, that the illegality committed could not be waived and that the order of the panchayati adalat could be quashed under Art. 227 of the Constitution. AIR 1955 All 113 (FB), Foll. Mata Bhikh v. Baij Nath. 1955 All LJ 17 : 1955 All WR (HC) 155 : 1955 Cri LJ 596 : AIR 1955 All 249 (250) (Pt B) (Pr 14) (FB).

●——Art. 227 — Defective constitution of Bench — Objection does go to root of jurisdiction. See Panchayats — U. P. Panchayat Raj Act (26 of 1947), S. 49 (2). 1955 Cri LJ 296: AIR 1955 All 113 (FB).

——Art. 227 — Administering oath to a witness is not a question of jurisdiction. AIR 1955 NUC (All) 6048.

●——Art. 227 — Tribunal of limited jurisdiction — Decision on jurisdictional fact — High Court when will interfere under Art. 227 — Ejectment of adhiar under Assam Adhiars Protection and Regulation Act — Whether opposite party is adhiar is jurisdictional fact — Decision of question is not entrusted to Adhiar Board — High Court can question decision and interfere under Art. 227. AIR 1952 SC 319, Applied; (1888) 21 QBD 313, Rel. on. AIR 1960 Assam 59, Approved. AIR 1952 Assam 166 (FB), Diss. from. Jyotish Chandra Nath v. Ejdam Mea Majumdar. ILR (1963) 15 Assam 173: AIR 1963 Assam 49 (51, 52) (Pt B) (Prs 5, 6) (SB).

——Art. 227 — Writ of quo warranto — Burden — Person claiming legal right has to support his claim. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1965 Mah LJ (Notes) 40 (Bom).

——Art. 227 — Payment of Wages Act (1936), S. 15 — Authority assuming jurisdiction which it did not possess — Interference.

Where the authority appointed under S. 15, Payment of Wages Act, has assumed jurisdiction which it did not possess it is a fit case for interference under Art. 227 of the Constitution in order to keep the subordinate Courts within the bounds of their authority. ILR (1955) Madh Bha 229: Madh BLJ 1955 HCR 507: Madh BLR 1955 (Civ) 35: AIR 1955 Madh Bha 60 (64) (Pt C) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Rent control proceedings — Power to interfere with orders of Rent Controller passed without jurisdiction. See Houses and Rents — M. B. Sthan Niyantran Vidhan (15 of 1950), S. 7. AIR 1955 Madh Bha 21.

——Art. 227 — Absence of jurisdiction — Effect.

Absence of jurisdiction is a matter which renders the entire proceeding a nullity and the decision amounts to a flagrant violation of law which calls for intervention under Art. 227. Madh BLJ 1954 HCR 953: Madh BLR 1955 Civil 106: AIR 1955 Madh Bha 21 (23) (Pt B) (Pr 9).

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1961 SC 148.]

——Art. 227 — Appellate authority consisting of two members under relevant notification constituting it — Objection to appeal being heard by single member not raised at the time — Appellant will not be permitted to question the jurisdiction of the appellate authority when it has gone against him by invoking the jurisdiction of the High Court under Arts. 226 and 227. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1965 Madh Pra 113 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Supervisory powers of High Court under — Nature of — High Court quashing decision offending against law — Inference regarding lack of jurisdiction of Tribunal not correct.

Under Art. 227 of the Constitution, the High Court controls all inferior tribunals, including the Board of Revenue, not in an appellate capacity but in a supervisory capacity. The control so exercised extends not only to seeing that the inferior tribunals keep within their jurisdiction but also to seeing that they observe the law. When the High Court interferes by quashing the decision which offends against the law, it cannot be inferred that the tribunal had no jurisdiction to deal with the matter or that any other like decision of the tribunal, which was not corrected either in the manner provided by the relevant Act or by invoking the supervisory jurisdiction of the High Court, could be collaterally disregarded as a decision without jurisdiction. 1961 Jab LJ 537 : 1961 MP LJ 530 : ILR (1961) Madh Pra 391.

——Art. 227 — Writ of quo warranto — When issued — Relator need have no special interest. 1957 Jab LJ 170: 1957 MPC 177: ILR (1957) Madh Pra 188: 1962 MPLJ (Notes) 5: AIR 1957 Madh Pra 60 (62) (Pt A) (Prs 16, 19).

——Art. 227 — Absence, excess, or abuse of jurisdiction by Judge — Powers of High Court under Art. 227 — Appeal under S. 11 Assam Adhiars Protcetion Act disposed of — Extension of time by subordinate judge — High Court set aside orders — Tenancy Laws — Assam Adhiars Protection and Regulation Act (12 of 1948), S. 11.

If it is found that there is absence, excess or abuse of jurisdiction by a Judge, High Court has got powers under Art. 227 of the Constitution to quash the order of the judge.

Where subordinate judge had no jurisdiction under Assam Adhiars Protection and Regulation Act to pass an order extending time after the appeal under S. 11 of the Act had been disposed of and that being so, such order was without jurisdiction, High Court under Art. 227 of the Constitution set aside that order. AIR 1952 Assam 166 (FB), Expl. 1963 Mys LJ (Supp) 358.

——Art. 227 — Lower Court acting without jurisdiction.

It is not in every case of legal error that the High Court will interfere under Art. 227. It will interfere where there has been a substantial ground for interference, such as, jurisdiction.

It is not correct to argue that when the accused has acquiesced in his trial before a certain Court and that when it is found that that Court had no jurisdiction to try him, the High Court cannot interfere with the conviction and sentence passed by that Court merely on the ground that there has been acquiescence. On the contrary, where there has been no jurisdiction to hear or try a case, then the order of such a Court must be deemed to be such a substantial error as would justify the High Court to interfere with such an order under Art. 227 of the Constitution.

Where, therefore, a Gram Cutchery Court has passed an order without jurisdiction, it is open to the High Court to interfere under Art. 227, Case-law Ref. 1954 BLJR 594: 1955 Cri LJ 501: 33 Pat 996: AIR 1955 Pat 118 (120, 121) (Pt D) (Prs 6, 10) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Controller under E. P. Urban Rent Restriction Act (3 of 1949) is not a Court — Order passed by him without jurisdiction — High Court's power of superintendence to interfere. See Civil P. C. (1908), S. 115. AIR 1951 Punj 432.

——Art. 227 — Lower Courts acting without jurisdiction — Reference to High Court is competent — High Court has power to interfere when proceedings were defective for want of jurisdiction— Rajasthan Revenue Courts (Procedure and Jurisdiction) Act (1 of 1951), S. 40 — (C. P. Code (1908), S. 115). AIR 1955 NUC (Raj) 4625.

——Art. 227 — Exercise of jurisdiction under — Subordinate Tribunal acting without jurisdiction— Duty of High Court. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1953 Vin Pra 41.

3 (g) (1). Instances of orders without jurisdiction.

——Art. 227 — Panchayati adalat — No power to convert civil case into criminal one. See Panchayats — U. P. Panchayat Raj Act (26 of 1947), S. 83. AIR 1955 NUC (All) 4165.

——Arts. 227, 226 — Eastern Bengal and Assam Excise Act (1910), S. 36 — Rules under — Rules 205, 207, 208, 209 — Scope of — Settlement of liquor shops — Choice is with lower authorities — Duty of Appellate Authority — Appellate authority usurping power of lower authorities and making a selection itself —Order to be interfered with under power of superintendence. See Eastern Bengal and Assam Excise Act (1 of 1910), S. 36. AIR 1957 Assam 182.

——Art. 227 — Application by decree-holder for making complaint against petitioners rejected by subordinate judge — District judge granting a similar application presented to him in his administrative capacity — Held that the order made by him in his administrative capacity is without power. (1963) 67 Cal WN 887.

●——Arts. 227, 233, 234, 235, 309, 310, 311, 320 — Judicial service — District Judge — Disciplinary jurisdiction over — Enquiry conducted by State Government — Validity — Civil Services (Classification, Control and Appeal) Rules, R. 55 — Validity.

The control over the District Courts and the Courts subordinate thereto in the State is vested with the High Court under Art. 235 of the Constitution, and the authority competent to take disciplinary proceedings and action against a District Judge in the State or to deal with him in any way is the High Court and not any other authority.

Per Special Bench : The provisions of Art. 311 of the Constitution cannot be read as divesting the control which Art. 235 vests in the High Court, but only as regulating and prescribing the conditions under which such control has to operate in the three cases of (1) dismissal, (2) removal and (3) reduction in rank. After the disciplinary authority has conducted the enquiry and reported on its finding, the High Court in case of dismissal or removal must send it to the Governor, and in case the punishment of dismissal or removal or reduction in rank is going to be imposed as a penalty by the appropriate authority, reasonable opportunity must be given to the person concerned against whom the action is proposed to be taken under Art. 311 (2) of the Constitution.

Where the High Court was neither asked by the State Government to constitute the Tribunal nor conduct the departmental proceedings nor take disciplinary action against the petitioner, an Additional District Judge, but the High Court was presented with the accomplished fact that charges had been framed against the petitioner and the results obtained on the enquiry held by the Anti-Corruption Department and the appointment of the Commissioner of the Division had been made to hold the departmental enquiry under R. 55 of the Civil Services (Classification, Control and Appeal) Rules :

Held, that the appointment, constitution, proceedings and the report of the disciplinary tribunal were wholly without jurisdiction and unconstitutional, in violation of Art. 235 of the Constitution and therefore, void and must be set aside. AIR 1955 Andh Pra 65 and AIR 1959 Andh Pra 497, Rel. on. Nripendra Nath Bagchi v. Chief Secretary, Government of West Bengal, 65 Cal WN 361: (1961) 2 Lab LJ 312: AIR 1961 Cal 1 (8, 9, 11, 17) (Pt C) (Prs 29, 31, 46, 76, 78) (SB).

——Art. 227 — Order of Rent Controller under W. B. Act 38 of 1948 fixing charges of boarder in lodging house — Appeal — Competency — Appeal entertained — Case is one where jurisdiction is exercised when there is no jurisdiction — Power of High Court to set aside appellate Order — Power of superintendence. See Houses and Rents — W. B. Premises Rent Control (Temporary Provisions) Act (38 of 1948), S. 22. AIR 1955 NUC (Cal) 2947.

——Art. 227 — Appeal decided by person having no jurisdiction. See Houses and Rents — West Bengal Premises Rent Control (Temporary Powers) Act (38 of 1948), S. 32. AIR 1951 Cal 554 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Civil P. C. (1908), Ss. 96 and 115 — Stay order by higher Court — Moment of operation — Judgment and decree passed after stay — Effect — Proper remedy — No appeal but revision will lie. See Civil P. C. (1908), S. 96. AIR 1959 Madh Pra 34.

——Art. 227 — Jurisdiction — Collector not competent to entertain or dispose of appeal against order of Nyaya Panchayat removing peon from service — Writ — Issue of. See Panchayats — C. P. and Berar Panchayats Act (1 of 1947), Section 116. 1959 MPLJ (Notes) 3.

——Art. 227 — Mutation proceedings before S. D. C. without jurisdiction — Proceedings taken by S. D. C. under S. 476 are also without jurisdiction — High Court has power to interfere with his order. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 476. 1963 (2) Cri LJ 658: AIR 1963 Manipur 49.

——Art. 227 — Assam Land and Revenue Regulation (1 of 1886), S. 147 — Order of Sub-Deputy Collector — Appeal against orders passed by the Sub-Deputy Collector as well as by the Additional Deputy Commissioner and the Chief Commissioner are quasi-judicial orders and not mere administrative orders — No appeal is provided to the Deputy Commissioner from order passed by Sub-Deputy Collector — It follows that the Additional Deputy Commissioner also cannot have such appellate jurisdiction — Orders in appeal by the Additional Deputy Commissioner and the Chief Commissioner in second appeal have to be set aside. See Tenancy Laws — Assam Land and Revenue Regulation (1 of 1886), S. 147. AIR 1962 Manipur 14.

——Art. 227 — Assam Land and Revenue Regulation (1 of 1886), Ss. 50, 51, 52, 53, 54, 126, 129, 124, 123, 125, 127 — Powers of Sub-Deputy Collector — He cannot act under Ss. 50 to 54 and S. 126 (1)

— Order of S. D. C. set aside — Effect on orders passed in appeal and second appeal. See Tenancy Laws — Assam Land and Revenue Regulation (1 of 1886), S. 50. AIR 1962 Manipur 14.

——Art. 227 — Award directing reinstatement but not determining specific sum as payable on account of back wages — Amount payable left to the discretion of employer — State Government or its delegate has no jurisdiction to determine amount of back wages while issuing certificate for its recovery under S. 33 (c) (i) — Quashing of certificate. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 33-C (i). AIR 1963 Mys 250 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Jurisdiction — Absence — Question of automatic transfer of proceedings under States Reorganisation Act — Subordinate Court deciding — Decision is without jurisdiction — Interference. See States Reorganisation Act (1956), S. 125. 1959 Cri LJ 746: AIR 1959 Mys 158.

——Art. 227 — Allowing amendment after fresh petition has become barred. See Municipalities — C. P. and Berar Municipalities Act S. 20-A. ('52) 1952 Nag LJ (Notes) 123.

——Art. 227 — Appeal proceedings before Industrial Tribunal — Erroneous and without jurisdiction — High Court competent to quash proceedings either under S. 115, Civil P. C. or under Art. 227 — C. P. Code (1908), S. 115.

If the order of and the appeal proceedings pending before the Industrial Tribunal are erroneous and without jurisdiction High Court can quash the appeal proceedings either in exercise of the revisional jurisdiction of High Court under S. 115 of the Civil Procedure Code if the Tribunal is a Court, or under Art. 227 of the Constitution of India, if it is not a Court as there cannot be any doubt that the Industrial Tribunal is a Tribunal subject to the superintendence of High Court under Art. 227 of the Constitution. (1962) 2 Jab LJ 338 (Pat).

——Art. 227 — Reference of dispute to Industrial Tribunal — Dispute not industrial dispute — Jurisdiction of Tribunal to adjudicate — (Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 10). See Ibid, Art. 226. 1959 BLJR 172.

——Art. 227 — Jurisdiction under — When exercised — Conviction by Gram Panchayat under wrong section — Interference.

There is nothing in Art. 227 restricting the powers of the High Court in interfering in appropriate cases.

Thus where a Bench of the Gram Cutcherry has no jurisdiction to try persons for an offence constituted by acts done by them, and when the conviction is for an offence which never, was the prosecution case, the High Court in those circumstances may interfere, especially when the petitioners had moved the Sub-divisional Officer who had jurisdiction to set aside the conviction and sentence and had failed to obtain relief. 1956 BLJR 117: 1957 Cri LJ 651: AIR 1957 Pat 276 (277) (Pt A) (Pr 6) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Jurisdiction of Gram Cutcherry— Finding that petitioner is guilty of offence under S. 448, Penal Code. See Penal Code (1860), S. 441. AIR 1955 NUC (Pat) 4897 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Order of remand and retrial without jurisdiction — High Court will interfere. See Panchayats — Bihar Panchayat Raj Act (7 of 1948), S. 73. AIR 1955 NUC (Pat) 724 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Bihar Panchayat Raj Act (1948), S. 73 — Order of remand by Magistrate is without jurisdiction. See Panchayats — Bihar Panchayat Raj Act (7 of 1948), S. 73. AIR 1953 Pat 339.

——Art. 227 — Scope — Appeal against award of District Judge is competent under S. 56 — Land not acquired under Act — Reference misconceived and without jurisdiction — Quashed under Art. 227 of Constitution. See Patiala and East Punjab States Union Land Acquisition Act (4 of 2006, B. K.), S. 20. (1963) 65 Pun LR 130.

——Art. 227 — Right of Badli Workman to permanent post — Requirements — Must have worked for 240 days in twelve calendar months — Ss. 25-B and 25-C of Industrial Disputes Act held not applicable — Direction to employer to absorb Badli workmen on permanent posts held without jurisdiction. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), Sch. 3, S. 7-A. AIR 1962 Punj 553.

——Art. 227 — Lower Court acting without jurisdiction — Interference.

When a decision as to whether there was relationship of sub-lessor and sub-lessee between a Company and its agent or Manager is not merely wrong but with complete lack of jurisdiction, it is not a case of interference with a finding of fact while disposing of a petition under Art. 227. (1958) 60 Punj LR 349.

——Art. 227 — Death of agent of plaintiff — Order declaring suit to have abated is without jurisdiction and illegal. See Civil P. C. (1908), O. 22, R. 1. AIR 1952 Punj 122.

——Art. 227 — Houses and Rents — Rajasthan Premises Control of Rent and Eviction Act (1950), Ss. 22 (3) and 27 (2) — Application under Matsya Premises Rent Control Ordinance, 1948 for ejectment of tenant — Before decision of case Ordinance repealed and Rajasthan Act coming into force — Application allowed — Appeal to District Judge under provisions of Ordinance — Appeal against order of Rent Controller held lay to District Magistrate and District Judge had no jurisdiction — Order set aside under Art. 227 of the Constitution. See Houses and Rents — Rajasthan Premises Control of Rent and Eviction Act (17 of 1950), S. 22 (3). AIR 1953 Raj 77.

——Art. 227 — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 516-A — Account books recovered in search — Order for taking photographic copies of — Order to be quashed as one without jurisdiction. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 516-A. AIR 1956 Trav-Co. 256.

3 (g) (ii). Orders which are not without jurisdiction.

——Art. 227 — Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 439, 476-B — Production of fabricated documents — Order directing prosecution is not without authority — Revision — (Civil P. C. (1908), S. 115) — (Himachal Pradesh — (Courts) Order, Para 35). See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 439. AIR 1956 Him Pra 2.

——Art. 227 — Houses and Rents — M. B. Sthan Niyantran Vidhan (Sm. 2006), S. 9 (2) (a) and (c) — Suit for fixation of fair rent — Failure of Rent Controller to pass order contemplated by S. 9 (2) (a) does not affect his jurisdiction — It is mere error of law. See Houses and Rents — M. B. Sthan Niyantran Vidhan (Sm. 2006), S. 9 (2) (a) and (c). AIR 1956 Madh Bha 54.

——Art. 227 — Interference — Grounds — Exercise of power under S. 45 (2), Indore Land Revenue and Tenancy Act — Sanction of sale in absence of registered sale deed — Order is not without jurisdiction. See Tenancy Laws — Indore Land Revenue and Tenancy Act, S. 45 (1). 1961 MPLJ (Notes) 36.

——Art. 227 — Powers of High Court — Requirements of statute not amounting to condition precedent to exercise of jurisdiction — Failure to follow requirements — Interference under article not called for. See Panchayats — Madhya Bharat Panchayat Vidhan (58 of 1949), S. 66. 1958 MPC 490.

——Art. 227 — Order holding notice of termination of tenancy invalid under law.

Where the landlord stated that the tenancy rights had been terminated from the date of his notice the notice is invalid in view of the proviso in sub-s. (1) of S. 14 Bombay Tenancy and Agricultural Lands Act of 1948. If the Tribunal had held it so, it could not be said that it committed any error apparent on face of the record or acted beyond the limts of its authority. 37 Mys LJ 82: ILR (1959) Mys 150: AIR 1959 Mys 108 (111) (Pt B) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Order of Revenue Court refusing to declare petitioner as occupancy tenant—Order passed on certain evidence in preference to other — Interference — (Tenancy Laws — C. P. Tenancy Act (1 of 1920), S. 41). See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1956 Nagpur 65.

——Art. 227 — Jurisdiction — Absence of — Failure to dismiss appeal although time-barred — Effect — Interference — (Limitation Act (1908), S. 3).

It cannot be said as a general proposition that failure to dismiss a proceeding although time-barred, always amounts to the exercise of a jurisdiction not vested in the Court by law. A Court having initial jurisdiction to entertain a proceeding has jurisdiction to decide the question of limitation as well. Hence the decision by the District Judge of the appeal instituted after the period of limitation prescribed by S. 16 of Pepsu Urban Rent Restriction Ordinance cannot be regarded as void for want of jurisdiction. It is not a case of total want of jurisdiction, but one of irregular or illegal exercise of it. AIR 1956 Pepsu 83 (84) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Withdrawal of election petition by petitioner without leave of Tribunal — Tribunal passing order allowing ex parte respondent to continue application — Order not in excess of Tribunal's Jurisdiction. See Representation of the People Act (1951), S. 117. AIR 1954 Raj 158 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Interference with decisions of Election Tribunal — No assumption of jurisdiction, which it had not, by the tribunal — Held could not be interfered with either under this article or Art. 226. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1954 Sau 1 (DB).

3 (h). Illegal exercise of jurisdiction.

●——Art. 227 — New plea — Plea of jurisdiction not depending upon facts — Plea that order of Magistrate acting under S. 259 of Cantonments Act is not revisable under Ss. 435, 439 of Cr. P. Code — Plea not allowed to be raised — Order can be interfered with under Art. 227 of the Constitution. See Ibid, Art. 136. 1966 Cri LJ 93: (1965) 2 SCWR 972: (1965) 2 SCA 783: AIR 1966 SC 108.

——Art. 227 — Reviewing authority acting as appellate authority and restoring election which had been set aside and substituting a fresh or second judgment — Legality — Interference. See Panchayats — U. P. Panchayat Raj Rules (1947), R. 25 (1) Cl. (viii). 1959 All LJ 223.

——Art. 227 — Order without jurisdiction — Interference.

Where the points made out against the order of the tribunal clearly make out arbitrariness on the part of the tribunal in ordering eviction the order does not suffer from a mere error of law, but has to be set aside as being without jurisdiction. AIR 1954 SC 215, Foll. (1959) 10 STC 394: 1959 Andh LT 654: (1959) 2 Andh WR 135.

——Art. 227 — Illegal exercise of jurisdiction — Error in excluding evidence under S. 33, Evidence Act — Interference — High Court's power of superintendence. See C. P. Code (1908), Section 115. AIR 1955 NUC (Andhra) 3609.

——Art. 227 — Illegal exercise of jurisdiction — (Criminal Law Amendment Act (1952), S. 7 (2)).

When there is illegal exercise of jurisdiction by any of the Court or tribunal within the territorial jurisdiction of the High Court, the High Court in exercise of its power of superintendence under Art. 227 can interfere and set aside the orders impugned and give proper directions.

On the construction of relevant Gazette notifications it was held that the Special Judge at Gauhati who succeeded in office his predecessor had at no time acquired any jurisdiction or seisin under Section 7, Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1952, over the case in which a Circle Inspector of Police stood charged with an offence punishable under S. 161, Penal Code, and S. 5, Prevention of Corruption Act, 1947 and his orders relating to the hearing of the case were without jurisdiction. 1953 Cri LJ 1768: AIR 1953 Assam 220 (223) (Pr 11) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Absence of jurisdiction — Interference — Proceedings for acquisition of land for extension of abadi — State Government not applying its mind as to whether any unoccupied land was available — Acquisition proceedings for occupied land are without jurisdiction. See Madhya Pradesh Land Revenue Code (2 of 1955), S. 226. 1961 NLJ (Notes) 56.

——Art. 227 — Order of remand directing Mamlatdar to give fresh decision after taking additional evidence — Appeal to Collector against decision after remand — Collector going into merits — Interference — (Civil Procedure Code (1908), O. 41, R. 26).

By the order of remand the Collector remanded the case to the Mamlatdar for recording whatever evidence respondent No. 2, may desire to adduce for proving that the grant was of Barkhali nature and directed him to give a fresh decision. On a consideration of evidence the Mamlatdar held that Respondent 2 was not a Barkhalidar. If after the decision of the Mamlatdar when the matter came up afresh before the Deputy Collector, he went into the merits of the question and decided those facts for himself, it cannot be said that he had gone beyond his powers or beyond the order of remand which was made previously. 61 Bom LR 399: ILR (1959) Bom 1329.

——Art. 227 — Failure to follow obligatory or mandatory requirement of S. 4 of Public Premises Act makes order null and void and without jurisdiction and likewise this omission to state reasons in notice under S. 5 makes the order null and void as being a material irregularity in exercise of the jurisdiction — High Court can suo motu take notice of illegal assumption under Art. 227. See Public Premises (Eviction of Unauthorised Occupants) Act (1958), S. 4. (1965) 69 Cal WN 1035 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Assessment of Sales Tax — Turnover including sales to registered dealers — Deductions not allowed on 30 items on suspicion that transactions were not genuine — Appellate authority rejecting ground of suspicion but disallowing nine items due to defect in declaration form — Revision to Board of Revenue — Board again proceeding on suspicion and not considering reasons of lower appellate authorities or its previous decisions — Decision held arbitrary, based on jurisdictional error and set aside — Sales tax — Bengal Finance (Sales Tax) Act (6 of 1941), S. 5 (2) (a) (ii).

In assessing sales tax on a turnover which included sales to registered dealers, the Commercial Tax Officer disallowed deductions under S. 5 (2) (a) (ii) in respect of 30 items of such sales on the suspicion that the transactions were not genuine. In appeal from that order, the appellate authorities did not accept this ground of suspicion and allowed the deductions in respect of 21 items. The other 9 items were disallowed. In revision to the Board of Revenue, the Board rejected the revision. In a petition under Art. 227 of the Constitution against the order of the Board.

Held, that the Board instead of considering the grounds on which the deductions were disallowed by the lower appellate authorities, had proceeded on mere suspicion. The error, therefore, which the Board has committed is not an error on a mere question of fact or law but an error, touching and concerning jurisdiction, as by committing such error, the said tribunal has failed to exercise jurisdiction to grant deduction under S. 5 (2) (a) (ii), to which the assessee was entitled, and it had assumed jurisdiction to disallow the deduction which jurisdiction it would not have but for such error: Held further, that the Board of Revenue acted arbitrarily and in violation of natural justice by not adhering to their own precedents in administering this taxing statute when there was no reason or circumstance to justify any change of mind of that Tribunal. On that ground, also, the order of the Board was liable to be set aside. 67 Cal WN 179: (1964) 15 STC 186: AIR 1963 Cal 409 (415, 416) (Pt C) (Prs 20, 26) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Power to be exercised under by Criminal Bench of High Court must be in connection with criminal matter — Controller acting under S. 31 of W. B. Premises Tenancy Act (1956), exercises criminal jurisdiction and acts illegally in following procedure under R. 10 of the W. B. Premises Tenancy Rules — Procedure for trial of offence should be regulated by the Code of Cr. Procedure in terms of S. 5 (2) of the Code — Controller following R. 10 and inflicting fine exceeds the bound of his authority. AIR 1953 Cal 85, Foll.; AIR 1961 Cal 199, Disting. 1962 (1) Cri LJ 809 (Cal).

——Art. 227 — Tribunal deciding case on inadmissible evidence or flagrant violation of Evidence Act — Amounts at least to illegal exercise of jurisdiction by the tribunal. AIR 1958 Cal 679 (680) (Pt A) (Prs 8, 9) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Power of interference — Bengal Village Self-Government Act (5 of 1919), S. 93 — (Penal Code (1860), S. 447).

Where an accused was convicted by a Union Bench Court under S. 447, Indian Penal Code, when the evidence was far from establishing the ingredients of the offence of criminal trespass:

Held, that there had been a failure of justice and that the Tribunal did not act within the bounds of authority in convicting and sentencing the accused, and hence the conviction and sentence must be set aside by the High Court. 1958 Cr LJ 572 (Cal).

——Art. 227 — Power of superintendence — Court passing order under Calcutta Thika Tenancy Act failing to act within bounds of its authority — Order calls for interference under Art. 227 — (Tenancy Laws — Calcutta Thika Tenancy Act (2 of 1949), S. 6). AIR 1955 NUC (Cal) 2894.

——Art. 227 — Board applying considerations unjustified by West Bengal Bargadars Act — West Bengal Bargadars Act (2 of 1950), S. 5 (1) (a) Proviso.

It appears plain from the proviso that cultivation of land by Bargadar cannot be terminated even by the owner's desire under S. 5 (1) (a) of the Act 2 of 1950 except under the order of the Board. The Board's order is an indispensable element to effect termination of Bargadar's cultivation. If, however, the Board applies considerations unjustified by the Act in making its order, such an order can be revised and superintended by the High Court under Art. 227 of the Constitution. AIR 1951 Cal 574, Rel. on. 89 Cal LJ 15: 56 Cal WN 325: AIR 1952 Cal 184 (187) (Pt D) (Prs 15, 15a) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Special tribunal not applying correctly provisions of laws — West Bengal Bargadars Act (2 of 1950), S. 5 (1) (a).

Where a tribunal has been set up under a Special Act, it is the duty of the High Court to see in the exercise of its power of superintendence, that such tribunal acts within the limits of the Statute creating it, and applies correctly and properly the laws it is authorised to administer. Where both the Board and the appellate Officer were applying and administering not S. 5 (1) (a) of the West Bengal Bargadars Act 1950, but that section with certain supplementary provisions added to it by themselves such an error the High Court is entitled to correct in exercise of its powers under Art. 227. 56 Cal WN 320: 89 Cal LJ 196: AIR 1951 Cal 574 (576) (Pt B) (Pr 10) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Powers of superintendence—When exercised — Decree for divorce — Non-compliance with Ss. 13 and 23 of Act 25 of 1955 — Validity — (Hindu Marriage Act (1955), Ss. 13 and 23).

Under Art. 227 of the Constitution, it is open to the High Court, in the exercise of its powers of superintendence, to set aside a decree passed by a Subordinate Court, if it is found that the decree is in excess of the legitimate authority of that Court.

Under the provisions of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955, a Court can grant a decree for divorce only, if certain conditions laid down in Ss. 13 and 23 of that Act are fulfilled, and not otherwise. Where, therefore, a Court grants a decree for divorce, without going into the evidence and without giving a judicial finding on the plea of adultery, the Court exercises a jurisdiction not vested in it by law, and it is thus a case where the High Court must, in the exercise of its powers of superintendence, interfere. AIR 1954 SC 215, Rel. on. AIR 1958 Him Pra 15 (16) (Pt A) (Pr 7).

——Art. 227 — Municipalities — Travancore City Municipal Act (4 of 1116), S. 91 (1) — Charges of irregularities against corporation officer — Order of acquittal passed by Mayor after enquiry — Subsequent direction by Government to revive disciplinary action — Order taking action on same charges. Held in excess of authority and quashed. See Municipalities — Travancore City Municipal Act (4 of 1116), S. 91 (1). ILR (1960) Ker 519.

——Art. 227 — Jurisdiction — Absence of — Order of Tribunal striking out various paragraphs in election petition on ground of vagueness and defective particulars without calling upon petitioner to supply other particulars is without jurisdiction and is liable to be set aside under Art. 227. ILR (1959) Mad 256: 19 ELR 260: 72 Mad LW 285: AIR 1959 Mad 288 (294) (Pt C) (Pr 37).

——Art. 227 — Illegal exercise of jurisdiction — Extra Assistant Commissioner trying case under S. 165 (A), Penal Code.

The Court of Judicial Commissioner, Manipur, has power to interfere under Art. 227, where there is illegal exercise of jurisdiction by any Court or any tribunal within the territories of Manipur State. Hence where an Extra Assistant Commissioner is proceeding with the trial of an accused under S. 165 (A), Penal Code, even though he has no jurisdiction to try it, the Judicial Commissioner's Court, Manipur, in the exercise of its power of superintendence is bound to interfere and give proper directions: AIR 1953 Assam 220, Rel. on. 1956 Cri LJ 240: AIR 1956 Manipur 9 (11) (Pt E) (Pr 15).

——Art. 227 — Jurisdiction of Prescribed Authority — Election petition — Authority should scrutinize votes on basis of which returned candidate was elected and not those of petitioner — Authority permitting challenge to validity of votes secured by petitioner — Order is in excess of jurisdiction — High Court can interfere under Art. 227. See Panchayats — Punjab Gram Panchayat Amending Act (1962), S. 13 (0) (1) (d) (ii). (1964) 66 Punj. LR 1196.

——Art. 227 (1) — Applicability — Order of Collector fixing standard rent under S. 6 (2), Rent Control Order — Interference by High Court — (Rajasthan) Rent Control Order, S. 6 (2).

The powers of revision under Art. 227 can be invoked in cases of grave dereliction of duty for which no other remedy is available and which will have serious consequences if not remedied. In cases where grave injustice results by ignoring the provisions of law it becomes the duty of the High Court to interfere and to issue a proper direction to the Court or the tribunal to exercise its jurisdiction in accordance with the provisions of law.

Where both the parties pleaded the existence of data on which basic rent could be fixed by the Controller and the Collector but instead of arriving at the basic rent they chose to fix standard rent under S. 6 (2) of the (Rajasthan) Rent Control Order instead of in accordance with the second schedule of the Order :

Held, that both of them had ignored the provisions of S. 6 (2) and of tthe second schedule and thus committed an illegality in the exercise of their jurisdiction.

(The order of Collector was set aside and he was directed to fix standard rent after considering the provisions of the second schedule). AIR 1952 Raj 3 (4) (Prs 5, 6) (DB).

3 (1). Refusal or failure by lower Court to exercise jurisdiction or to do its duty.

● ——Art. 227 — Scope — Possession of disputed land obtained from respondent in execution of award of Debt Adjustment Court and without order from Mamlatdar as required by S. 29 (2) of Bombay Tenancy and Agricultural Lands Act— Respondent unlawfully dispossessed — Revenue Authorities refusing to give respondent assistance — Illegal refusal to exercise jurisdiction—High Court is competent to exercise jurisdiction under Art. 227. Dahya Lala v. Rasul Mahomed Abdul Rahim, 1962 Nag LJ 682 : 40 Mys LJ 958 : 65 Bom LR 328 : (1963) 3 SCR 1 : (1963) 2 SCJ 450 : AIR 1964 SC 1320 (1323) (Pt B) (Pr 8).

● ——Art. 227 — Refusal to exercise jurisdiction vested under East Punjab Urban Rent Restriction Act, 1949.

Where the lower Courts realised the legal position but in effect declined to do what was by S. 13 (2) (i) of the East Punjab Urban Rent Restriction Act, 1949, incumbent on them to do and thereby refused to exercise jurisdiction vested in them by law it was a case which called for an interference by the Court of the Judicial Commissioner under this article and it acted quite properly in doing so. Waryam Singh v. Amarnath, 1954 SCJ 290 : 1954 SCA 334 : 1954 Mad WN 424: 1954 SCR 565 : AIR 1954 SC 215 (217) (Pt C) (Pr 14).

——Art. 227 — Failure to exercise jurisdiction — (Houses and Rents — U. P. (Temporary) Control of Rent and Eviction Act (3 of 1947), S. 3).

Where a revision application is made to the revisional authority against the order of Rent Control and Eviction Officer, and the authority without considering the merits of the case, dismisses the application as infructuous due to the fact that a civil suit for eviction has been instituted by a party to whom permission was granted, the authority fails to exercise the jurisdiction and a writ can issue to quash the order of dismissal. 1958 ALJ 724, Foll. AIR 1959 All 391 (392) (Pr 6) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Jurisdiction under — High Court when can interfere with order of inferior Tribunal — Failure by revenue tribunals while rejecting petition for eviction of tenant, to consider real and substantial matters in controversy and to assign reasons for their orders — Orders amount to declining to exercise jurisdiction and suffer from error apparent on the face of record and are liable to be quashed under Art. 227 — Andhra Tenancy Act (18 of 1956), Ss. 13, 16.

The High Court under Art. 227 of the Constitution does not act as a Court of Appeal and consequently a mere error in the decision of the inferior tribunal cannot be a ground for interference. But there has always been an important exception to this general rule. This is, when the decision of the inferior Tribunal is vitiated by an error of law, or other error on the face of the record, the proceedings of the inferior Tribunal can certainly be quashed under the supervisory jurisdiction which undoubtedly vests in the High Court under Art. 227. When the inferior Tribunal gives grounds of its order, or makes what is commonly known as a speaking order and these grounds are untenable in law, the order is erroneous on its face and will have to be quashed by the Court. (1952) 2 All ER 122, Applied.

The Tahsildar and the Revenue Divisional Officer appointed under section 16 of the Andhra Tenancy Act to decide disputes like eviction of tenant by landlord under section 13 of the Act may not be civil Courts but they are undoubtedly Tribunals which are of a quasi-judicial nature and are therefore, expected to act in accordance with the procedure and the law relevant for the disposal of the disputes before them. The purpose of S. 16 of the Act is to enable persons to receive proper and adequate reasons for orders passed by any such Tribunal. These reasons must not only be intelligible but must also deal with substantial points which had been raised. If the reasons assigned by the Tribunal are inadequate and do not comply with the purpose of the aforesaid provisions of the Andhra Tenancy Act, it would certainly amount not only to declining the exercise of the jurisdiction, but also to an error of law on the face of the order. (1963) 2 WLR

1309. Rel. on. AIR 1964 Andh Pra 528 (530) (Pt A) (Pr 7).

——Art. 227 — Scope — Property not belonging to judgment-debtor — Board has no jurisdiction to sell property — Failure of Board to exercise jurisdiction under S. 41 — High Court can interfere in revision. See Debt Laws — Hyderabad Jagirdars Debt Settlement Act (12 of 1952), S. 9 (1). 1961 Andh LT 169: (1961) 1 Andh WR 100.

——Art. 227 — Interference — Failure to exercise jurisdiction — Case under Payment of Wages Act. See Civil P. C. (1908), S. 115 (b). AIR 1959 Assam 13 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Order under Minimum Wages Act —Authority ignoring question of limitation deciding case on merits—Interference. See Civil P. C. (1908), S. 115. AIR 1958 Assam 1 (DB).

——Art. 227 —High Court's power of interference —Application under S. 15, Payment of Wages Act, made beyond limitation — Condonation of delay — Authority postponing decision on such question till consideration of claim on merits—Amounts to flagrant disregard of rules of procedure — Patent error of jurisdiction — Order quashed. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1964 Bom 89 (DB).

——Art. 227— C. P. and Berar Letting of Houses and Rent Control Order (1949), Cl. 13 — Order refusing permission to landlord to terminate tenancy — Appellate authority allowing landlord's appeal but not making operative order, or considering the question of suitability of premises in occupation of landlord — Order was quashed and case sent back for fresh decision. See Ibid, Art. 226. ILR (1960) Bom 795.

——Art. 227 — Appellate authority confirming order rejecting nomination paper — Authority acting arbitrarily without applying its mind to real question involved — Held, there was a failure to exercise jurisdiction by the appellate authority. 64 Cal WN 1043 : ILR (1961) 1 Cal 356 : AIR 1962 Cal 53 (60) (Pt C) (Prs 28, 29) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Dismissal of appeal under S. 15(b), E. P. Urban Rent Restriction Act — Order passed on erroneous conception of law of limitation — Interference under power of superintendence. See Limitation Act (1908), S. 12 (2). AIR 1955 Him Pra 12.

——Art. 227 — Powers of superintendence — Scope.

The powers of superintendence of the High Court over subordinate Courts under Art. 227 of the Constitution correspond more to those laid down under S. 107 of the Government of India Act, 1915, than those under S. 224 of the Government of India Act, 1935, since the limitation placed upon the exercise of powers of superintendence by sub-section (2) of S. 224 of the 1935 Act did not find a place in the 1915 Act and are absent from the present Art. 227 of the Constitution. It was held that where a lower Court has failed to do its duty and dismissed a suit arbitrarily for default though in fact there was no default and there has been no neglect on the part of party, it was a fit case for interference under Art. 227. AIR 1952 Him Pra and Bilaspur 24 (26) (Pt C) (Pr 9).

——Art. 227 — Rectification of dereliction of duty — (C. P. Code, O. 20, R. 4 and O. 41, R. 31).

Where a case is set up by one party and there is evidence led in support of such case, the failure of the presiding officer of the Court to bestow any thought or to consider the matter, would be regarded as a dereliction of duty. Thus, disposal of a case on an alternative but minor ground without considering and giving a finding on the primary ground of relief sought in the suit amounts in law to a failure or a dereliction of the duty on the part of the Court. The High Court has ample powers under Art. 227 of the Constitution to have such defect rectified. AIR 1952 SC 179, Rel. on. ILR (1953) Hyd 255 : AIR 1953 Hyd 190 (191) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Art. 227— Powers of High Court — Industrial Tribunal's failure to consider piece of evidence— Award will be quashed and direction to reconsider evidence will be issued under Art. 227. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1961 Ker 92 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Proceeding for fixation of fair rent — Failure of Court to enquire into question of gross produce — Voluntary agreement regarding fair rent treated as conclusive — Order of Court held not proper and quashed. See Tenancy Laws — Malabar Tenancy Act (14 of 1930), S. 16. 1960 Ker LT 590.

——Art. 227 — Powers under can be exercised where there is grave dereliction of duties for which no other remedy is available. AIR 1955 NUC (Madh B) 2383.

——Art. 227— Amount received by Chairman of Society for repayment to another body not vouched by pucca receipts of that body treated as advance to Chairman, who asked for time to repay the amount — Claim by society under Section 67, M. B. Co-operative Societies Act — Absence of Chairman to appear before the Assistant Registrar resulting in ex parte award — Writ petition alleging failure of justice for non-framing of issue by Assistant Registrar — Held, in view of admission of liability, non-framing of issues, did not cause failure of justice. See M. B. Co-operative Societies Act (9 of 1955), S. 67. 1964 MPLJ (Notes) 219.

——Art. 227 — High Court remitting the case to Regional Transport Authority with specific directions — Regional Transport Authority is bound to carry out —R. T. A. passing another order acting contrary to directions — Order quashed. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1963 MPLJ (Notes) 178.

——Arts. 227, 226 — Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 60—Order granting permit to B in preference to A — Appeal by A on ground that B had obtained permit by fraud—Proper remedy — S. T. A. refusing to enquire into matter — Does not amount to failure to exercise jurisdiction. See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 60. AIR 1959 Madh Pra 320.

——Art. 227 — Scope — Judgment perfunctory— Interference. See Houses and Rents — M. B. Sthan Niyantran Vidhan Smt 2006 (15 of 1950), S. 9 (3). 1959 Jab LJ 75.

——Art. 227 — Powers of High Court — Power of superintendence — When exercised.

The powers under Art. 227 are of an extraordinary and discretionary nature, and ought to be restricted to cases of grave dereliction of duty for which no other remedy is available and which would have serious consequences if not remedied. These powers cannot be claimed as a matter of right and ought to be exercised only in exceptional cases, and the High Court will take into consideration the conduct of the party which invokes its powers.

Held, on facts that the case was not fit for interference under Art. 227. AIR 1958 Manipur 41 (44) (Pt C) (Prs 15, 16, 17).

——Art. 227 — Failure to exercise jurisdiction— Interference. See Sales-Tax — Mysore Sales-tax Act (25 of 1957), S. 40. AIR 1959 Mys 201 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Appeal on both tenable and untenable grounds — Appeal allowed on tenable grounds — Whether order amounts to one without jurisdiction. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1952 Nag LJ (Notes) 29.

——Art. 227 — Jurisdiction — Collector refusing to make reference under S. 18 (1), Land Acquisition Act — Interference by writ. See Land Acquisition Act (1894), S. 18. AIR 1952 Orissa 98.

——Art. 227 — Making of interim payment of compensation — Collector failing to perform statutory duty — Writs can be issued. See Ibid, Art. 225. 1960 BLJR 297.

——Art. 227 — Applicability — Refusal to exercise jurisdiction vested by law — (Houses and Rents — Bihar Buildings (Lease, Rent and Eviction) Control Act (3 of 1947), Ss. 12 (1) and 11 (1) (b)).

Where a tenant by his non-compliance of the mandatory provisions of S. 12 (1), Bihar Buildings (Lease, Rent and Eviction) Control Act made himself liable to be evicted under S. 11 (b) of that Act it is incumbent on the Rent Control authorities to make an order for ejectment of the tenant. If by their orders they in effect decline to do so they thereby refuse to exercise a jurisdiction vested in them by law calling for interference by the High Court under its power of superintendence under Art. 227 of the Constitution. 1956 BLJR 658: ILR 35 Pat 894: AIR 1957 Pat 206 (209) (Pt D) (Pr 28) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Refusal to exercise jurisdiction by wrongly entertaining inconsistent plea.

Where the rent control authorities commit the legal error of permitting the tenant to raise an inconsistent plea and decline to exercise jurisdiction vested in them under Rent Control Act the more appropriate article under which remedy is to be given is Art. 227 and not Art. 226. 1955 BLJR 47: AIR 1955 Pat 198 (198, 199) (Prs 3, 4) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Patiala and East Punjab States Union Urban Rent Restriction Ordinance, S. 13 (2) Proviso — Express provisions of, ignored by Rent Controller and the Deputy Commissioner— Amounts to an omission or refusal to exercise jurisdiction given by law. ILR (1952) Patiala 345: AIR 1952 Pepsu 174 (177, 178) (Pt C) (Pr 11).

——Art. 227 — Labour Court which was bound to give effect to provision of Bank award failing to do so — Amounts to an illegal failure to exercise jurisdiction — Interference under article is necessary. See Industrial Dispute — Bank (Sastry) Award, Section 3, Paragraph 521 (2) (c), Direction 2 (c). (1963-64) 24 FJR 154 (Punj).

——Art. 227 — Trial of warrant case — Magistrate refusing to decide an issue of law as preliminary issue — He does not act in contravention of Criminal P. C. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 252. AIR 1952 Punj 51.

3 (j). Refusal or failure to proceed with case.

——Art. 227 — Tribunal going wrong in matter of grave importance to public — (Civil P. C. (1908), S. 115).

Held, that even though the Court were to take a strict view of S. 115, C. P. Code, that no question of jurisdiction arose in the decision of the Chief Judge of the Small Causes Court in wrongly dismissing the suit of the petitioner for the return of the amount recovered by the Traffic Supervisor under S. 460-II (4) of the Bombay Municipal Corporation Act (3 of 1888), the High Court would if necessary have exercised its power under Art. 227 of the Constitution to correct a Court or a tribunal, which had gone wrong in a matter which was of grave consequence to the public at large in the city of Bombay. 56 Bom LR 264: ILR (1954) Bom 727: AIR 1954 Bom 427 (430) (Pt D) (Pr 8).

——Art. 227 — Court of Tribunal by dismissing application for relief refusing to do its duty — Other convenient modes of redressing the grievance resulting from refusal not readily available to aggrieved party — High Court will interfere to direct the Court or Tribunal to do its duty or to remedy the injustice itself. 58 Cal WN 963: 96 Cal LJ 98: ILR (1956) 2 Cal 16: AIR 1954 Cal 580 (582) (Pt A) (Prs 7, 9) (DB).

3 (ja). Bias.

● ——Art. 227 — Powers of High Court — Order under S. 23, Punjab Gram Panchayat Act — Interference on ground of bias of panchas.

The petitioners who were convicted for an offence under S. 23 of the Punjab Gram Panchayat Act did not in the first instance choose to appear before the Panchayat, but in the proceedings under section 23 of the Act they did appear though they did not avail of the opportunity of producing defence.

Per S. B. Capoor, J.: — Held, that in the circumstances the 'order made against them cannot be set aside in the exercise of High Court's extraordinary jurisdiction under Art. 227 merely because some allegations are made as to some of the Panchas being biased against the petitioners. Narain Singh Hira Singh v. The State. 61 Punj LR 93: ILR (1958) Punj 1696: 1958 Cr LJ 1220: AIR 1958 Punj 372 (377) (Pt D) (Pr 17) (FB).

3 (k). Conflict of jurisdiction.

——Arts. 227, 226 — Conflict of jurisdiction — Order of remand — Writ petition — Maintainability.

It is well settled that, where an order is made which is an order of remand, no petition by way of writ would lie to the High Court under Art. 227. Where however, the question raised was whether the Mamlatdar had or had not jurisdiction under Bombay Act (67 of 1948) to decide the question, the question being one of jurisdiction, could be permitted to be argued. 59 Bom LR 1036: ILR (1957) Bom 818: AIR 1958 Bom 62 (66) (Pt D) (Pr 8) (DB).

——Arts. 227 and 226 — Applicability — Conflict of jurisdiction between Civil and Revenue Courts — Power of Judicial Commissioner's Court of V. P. to resolve conflict — (Civil P. C. (1908), S. 9) — (Tenancy Laws — Rewa Land Revenue and Tenancy Code S. 239 (g)).

A plaint presented to a Civil Court was returned by the former Chief Court of Rewa for presentation to the Revenue Court. The plaintiff prosecuted his suit in the Revenue Court but ultimately the Board of Revenue held that the suit was cognizable only by the Civil Court. The plaintiff thereupon applied under Arts. 226 and 227, Constitution of India praying for direction to the proper Court to dispose the suit on merits.

Held, (i) that a conflict of jurisdiction having arisen between the Civil Courts and Revenue Courts, and there being no other remedy the matter has to be dealt with by the Judicial Commissioner's Court not under Art. 226 which is inapplicable, but under the general supervisory powers under Art. 227 which can be exercised over the Board of Revenue also. AIR 1952 VP 10, Rel. on.

(ii) Even under S. 239 (g) of the Rewa Land Revenue and Tenancy Code such a conflict could be finally resolved by the Durbar which was the highest Court of appeal in the former Rewa State. However, after 1948 when the durbar ceased to be the highest judiciary, that position was occupied by the High Court and the J. C.'s Court of V. P. Thus the only rational interpretation of section 239 of the Rewa Code in the present set up is that such conflict should be resolved by the highest Court of general jurisdiction for the time being.

(iii) Consideration of the question on general lines also leads tto the same result. The civil Courts have general jurisdiction to try all civil cases; any other tribunal of special nature including the Board of Revenue and its subordinate Courts, derive their powers from special statutes. Cases which are not fully covered by the statute would automatically go to the Courts of general jurisdiction which are the repositories of residuary jurisdiction. Therefore, in the event of doubt or conflict the highest Court of general jurisdiction should decide whether it should itself exercise the jurisdiction or the Court of special jurisdiction should exercise it. AIR 1918 Mad 786, AIR 1940 Rang 84 and AIR 1941 Lah 234, Ref. AIR 1952 Vindh Pra 74 (75, 76) (Prs 3, 4, 5, 8).

3 (l). Illegal orders.

——Art. 227 — Interpleader Suit — Amendment seeking inclusion of certain property as suit property and addition of certain parties — Order allowing amendment not in violation of any rule of law — Interference under Art. 227 held not called for. See C. P. Code (1908), S. 88. AIR 1961 All 559.

——Art. 227 — Accepting nomination paper of person not attaining age 30 — There is gross failure to comply with Act. See Panchayats — U. P. Panchayat Raj Act (26 of 1947), S. 12 c (1) (b) (iii). 1957 All LJ 325.

——Art. 227 — Interference with illegal conviction by Panchayati Adalat — (U. P. Panchayat Raj Act (26 of 1947), S. 52 (1) (a).)

Panchayati Adalat has no jurisdiction to entertain a complaint and try a case where the allegations in the complaint clearly make out an offence under Penal Code which is not mentioned in S. 52 (1) (a), U. P. Panchayat Raj Act (1947). 1953 All WR (HC) 483 : 1953 All LJ 559 : 1953 Cri LJ 1852 : AIR 1954 All 8 (9) (Pr 3).

——Art. 227 — Criminal case in Panchayati Adalat — Some panches not signing order-sheet on same date — Omission mere irregularity —No interference — (U. P. Panchayat Raj Act (1947), S. 83). 1953 All WR (HC) 53: 1953 All LJ 93: 1953 All Cr R 26 : 1953 Cri LJ 751 : ILR (1954) 1 All 145 : AIR 1953 All 347 (348) (Pt B) (Pr 6).

——Art. 227 — Illegal order — Sale of defaulter's property by auction — Failure to publish notification — Sale is void and not merely voidable — High Court can set it aside under Arts. 226 and 227. See Hyderabad Land Revenue Act (8 of 1317-F), S. 130. (1961) 1 An WR 160.

——Art. 227 — Order under S. 39, Punjab Village Panchayat Act — (Punjab Village Panchayat Act (11 of 1939), Ss. 39, 54).

An order passed by District Magistrate under S. 39 of the Punjab Village Panchayat Act can be revised by the High Court on the ground of its not being in consonance with law. AIR 1944 Lah 218; AIR 1952 Pepsu 130; AIR 1952 All 788, Ref. 1954 Cr LJ 1309 : AIR 1954 Bilaspur 5 (6) (Pt B) (Pr 2).

——Arts. 227 and 226 — Order contrary to law — Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 25-G —Question whether there was single industrial establishment or different industrial establishments —Conclusion drawn from facts as found by Industrial Tribunal is not mere question of fact — Order passed by Tribunal, if not justified in view of S. 25-G, can be challenged and set aside in application under Arts. 226 and 227, as being contrary to law. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1961 Bom 277.

——Art. 227 — Power of superintendence — Bombay Revenue Tribunal taking particular view of law — Different view taken by High Court subsequently — Tribunal refusing to change its previous view when matter came before it for second time —Interference with Tribunal's order by High Court valid — (Tenancy Laws — Bombay Tenancy and Agricultural Lands Act (67 of 1948), Ss. 34, 76 and 78) (after Amendment by Act 33 of 1952). 60 Bom LR 613 : ILR (1958) Bom 894 : AIR 1958 Bom 474 (476, 477) (Prs 6, 7, 8, 9, 10) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 491 — Proceedings under Lunacy Act entirely illegal — Proceedings quashed under Art. 227 of the Constitution — Proceedings put forward for detaining alleged lunatic — Rule for Habeas Corpus made absolute. See Criminal P. C. (1898), section 491. AIR 1963 Cal 261.

——Art. 227 — Duty of High Court to consider propriety of lower Court's order pointed out. AIR 1955 NUC (Cal) 5332.

——Art. 227 — Interference when election is unlawfully set aside.

It is only meet and proper that when an election has been unlawfully set aside and the matter has come to the High Court under Art. 227 for necessary redress, there being no other remedy open or available the illegal order should not be allowed to stand. AIR 1952 Cal 526, Rel. on. 58 CWN 262 : ILR (1955) 1 Cal 473 : AIR 1953 Cal 731 (733) (Pt B) (Pr 16) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Committal order under S. 337 (2-A), Criminal P. C. — Quashing of— Jurisdiction of High Court. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 337 (2-A). 1961 (1) Cr LJ 496 (2) : AIR 1961 Guj 49.

—Art. 227 — Proceedings under S. 145, Criminal Procedure Code — Petitioner inviting adjudication of his status — Right to challenge decision as being illegal. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1959 Cr LJ 1082 : AIR 1959 Ker 275 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Interference — Grounds — Illegality.

Plaintiff filed a suit before Nyaya Panchayat. The Nyaya Panchayat sought opinion of the Deputy Commissioner regarding limitation of the suit. The Deputy Commissioner forwarded it to the Civil Judge who was revisional authority. The Civil Judge opined that the suit was barred by limitation. The Nyaya Panchayat accordingly dismissed the suit.

Held, that if plaintiff invoked jurisdiction of one of the two Courts which may have jurisdiction to try the suit, and he had already made his election he cannot be permitted subsequently to say that the particular Court had no jurisdiction. The hearing of the revision therefore amounts to an illegality. 1959 MPLJ (Notes) 233.

——Art. 277 — Scope — In exercise of writ jurisdiction illegal order coming to notice of High Court — High Court can set it aside under Art. 227. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1962 Manipur 14.

——Arts. 227, 226 — Motor Vehicles Act (1939) Sections 57 (3), 63 (3), Proviso, 43 (4), 44 (4) — Grant of inter-State permits—Procedure — Procedure for grant of permits in S. 57 not dispensed with by Proviso to S. 63 (3) — Directions issued by S. T. A. incorporating conditions for grant of inter-State permits imposed by inter-State Agreement, violated by R. T. A. — Procedure in S. 57 also violated — Action of S. T. A. in forwarding recommendations of R. T. A. for grant of permits to counter-signing authority in other State held illegal and ineffective — Inter-State permit issued by Mysore State — Writ petition — Territorial jurisdiction of Mysore High Court. See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 57 (3). AIR 1964 Mys 26 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Scope — Railway Establishment Code (Discipline and Appeal Rules), R. 1707 (d), Proviso — Nature of — Dismissal of railway employee based on findings in departmental enquiry — Non-compliance with proviso to R. 1707 (d) by enquiry committee —Effect.

The requirement of Proviso to Rule 1707 (d) of the Discipline and Appeal Rules of the Indian Railway Establishment Code is of a mandatory character and failure of the Committee of inquiry to record special reasons in writing for departing from the normal procedure of examining the witnesses in presence of the railway servant concerned is not merely an irregularity but an illegality which vitiates the finding of the committee of inquiry against the railway servant concerned. An order of dismissal based on findings of the enquiry committee which failed to comply with the provisions of R. 1707 (d) is illegal and can be set aside in exercise of powers under Art. 227 of the Constitution. (1962) 1 Lab LJ 517: 1961 BLJR 791: AIR 1962 Pat 209 (210) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Order passed in flagrant violation of law.

High Court has ample authority under Art. 227 to interfere where the inferior Court or tribunal has passed an illegal order, ignored clear and mandatory provisions of a statute or acted in flagrant violation of law. AIR 1956 Pepsu 83 (85, 86) (Pt B) (Prs 5, 8) (DB).

——Arts. 227, 226 — Income-tax Act (1961), sections 210 and 211 — Notice for payment of advance tax — Provisional assessment made does not render notice ipso facto invalid — Application under Arts. 226 and 227 rejected. See Ibid, Art. 226. (1964) 66 Pun LR 972.

——Art. 227 — Revision filed before Financial Commission — No period of limitation prescribed by law — Revision dismissed as filed beyond 90 days of the communication of the Order — Order not actually communicated — Revisional order is vitiated — Order set aside — Case remanded under Art. 227 of the Constitution. See Sales-tax — East Punjab General Sales-tax Act (46 of 1948), S. 21 (3). (1961) 63 Pun LR 495.

3 (m). Patently erroneous decisions.
(i) Patent errors — Test of.
(ii) Errors of law apparent on record.
(iii) Patent errors of fact.

3 (m). Patently erroneous decisions.

——Art. 227 — Powers of High Court under — Extent — Decision of Returning Officer — Interference with in writ jurisdiction — Power to correct decision which is patently wrong. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1963 Bom 183 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Writ petition under — Error not apparent on face of record in circumstances of case — High Court declined to interfere. See Tenancy Laws — Bombay Tenancy and Agricultural Lands Act (1948), S. 63. 1963 Mah LJ (Notes) 71 (Bom).

——Art. 227 — Termination of service of employee under standing orders on ground of superannuation — Application by employee to Labour Court challenging such order —No previous application to employer as required by proviso to S. 31 (3) read with R. 34 — Labour Court has no jurisdiction to entertain application — Order of termination set aside by Labour Court — Revisional jurisdiction of Industrial Court — Order of Labour Court confirmed by Industrial Court— Order is patently erroneous — Order quashed. See M. P. Industrial Relations Act (28 of 1960), S. 31 (3). AIR 1964 Madh Pra 156 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Certiorari when can be issued — 'Error on the face of record' — What is. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1963 Jab LJ 795.

——Art. 227 — Powers of High Court — Error on face of record — High Court when will or will not interfere. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1962 Madh Pra 12 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Discharge of workman — Claim against employer for 14 days' wages, leave wages and gratuity — Enforcement of claim — Refusal by Industrial Court — Application under Art. 227, Constitution of India — No error apparent on face of record —Maintainability. See Bombay Industrial Relations Act (11 of 1947), S. 78 (1) (c). 1959 MPC 641.

——Art. 227 — Order of Master on question of court-fee.

The jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 227 cannot be invoked to set aside or correct an order passed by the Master on the original side in proceedings preferred on appeal against a decree judgment on the original side in the matter of court-fee payable on the memorandum of appeal against which order there is no appeal under the Court-fees Act. There is no error apparent on record to justify interference under Art. 227. (1957) 2 Mad LJ 387: 70 Mad LW 841: 1957 Mad WN 600: AIR 1958 Mad 242 (243) (Prs 4, 6).

——Art. 227 — Error apparent on face of record — Revenue case — Interference. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1955 NUC (Nag) 1428 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Error apparent on face of record — Interference. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1961 BLJR 550.

——Art. 227 — Error apparent on face of record — Interference. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1958 Cr LJ 69: AIR 1958 Pat 7 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Error apparent on face of record. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 2 (rr). (1963) 65 Punj LR 593.

——Art. 227 — Certiorari — Error not apparent on face of record — Interference not desirable— Powers of High Court under Art. 227 — Civil P. C. (1908), S. 115. See Ibid, Art. 226. (1961-62). 20 FJR 270: (1961) 2 Lab LJ 615 (Punj).

——Art. 227 — Error apparent on face of decision— Dictum laid down in AIR 1954 SC 215, Foll. (1958) 60 Pun LR 650.

3 (m) (i). Patent errors — Test of.

——Art. 227 — Order when can be said to be erroneous on its face.

When an inferior tribunal gives grounds of its order or makes what is commonly known as a speaking order and these grounds are untenable in law, the order is erroneous on its face.

Failure by Revenue Tribunal while rejecting petition for eviction of tenant, to consider real and substantial matters in controversy and to assign reasons for their order — Order suffers from error apparent on the face of the record. AIR 1964 Andh Pra 528 (529, 530) (Pt A) (Prs 6, 7).

——Art. 227— Error apparent on face of record. See Tenancy Laws — Bombay Tenancy and Agricultural Lands Act (67 of 1948), S. 64 (3). AIR 1954 Bom 511 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Error apparent on face of record — Test of — Order of Labour Court —Order of discharge interpreted as order of dismissal — Held there was manifest error apparent on face of record —Order set aside under Art. 227.

The test that the error should be self-evident and should not need an elaborate examination of the record may be satisfactory as a working test of an error apparent on the face of record in a large majority of cases. AIR 1961 SC 970, Rel. on.

Thus where an order discharging an employee proceeded to order payment of 13 days' wages in lieu of notice, and though there was nothing on the record which would justify the Presiding Officer of the Labour Court in thinking that the manager did not see any distinction between the word 'discharged' and 'dismissed', he held that the said order of discharge was in fact an order of dismissal for misconduct which disentitled the employee for receiving any gratuity.

Held, that there was a manifest error which was apparent on the face of the record and that there was no reason why the High Court when finding such error, should not interfere in the exercise of its powers under Art. 227 of the Constitution. (1961) 2 Guj LR 649 : (1961) 2 Lab LJ 40 : (1961-62) 20 FJR 477 : AIR 1962 Guj 33 (39) (Pt C) (Prs 17, 18, 19) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Scope and applicability — Court or tribunal approaching matter in wrong manner — Exercise of powers under Art. 227 — (Tenancy Laws — Kanoon Ryatwari; Gwalior; State, Samvat 1974; Ss. 137 and 163). AIR 1957 Madh Bha 79 (82) (Pt C) (Pr 6) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Error apparent on face of record — Inherent lack of jurisdiction in Tribunal in passing certain order — Objection to jurisdiction though not taken before Authority relief in writ-petition is not barred. See Displaced Persons (Compensation and Rehabilitation) Act (1954), S. 22. 1965 Cur LJ 872 (Punj).

—— Arts. 227, 226—Displaced Persons (Compensation and Rehabilitation) Act (1954), Ss. 19 and 40 —Displaced Persons (Compensation and Rehabilitation) Rules, 1955, R. 102 (d) — Cancellation of erroneous allotment — Power of Managing Officer and Chief Settlement Commissioner — Failure to exercise such power — Constitutes error, apparent on face of record. See Displaced Persons (Compensation and Rehabilitation) Act (1954), S. 19. (1963) 65 Punj LR 59.

3 (m) (ii). Errors of law apparent on record.

——Arts. 227 and 226 — Error of law apparent on face of record — Order as to applicability of S. 50, Administration of Evacuee Property Act — (Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950), S. 50 (2)). See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1959 All 574.

——Art. 227 — Findings arrived at on considerations extraneous to issue — Nature of error — Powers of High Court in such cases. See Minimum Wages Act (1948), S. 3. AIR 1960 Assam 97 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Error of law apparent on face of record — Order held liable to be set aside. See Maharashtra Co-operative Societies Act (24 of 1961), S. 2 (13). AIR 1965 Bom 191 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Powers of High Court — Labour Commissioner or Industrial Court acting on consideration wholly irrelevant under S. 16 — Finding is perverse — Order liable to be a set aside. See C. P. and Berar Industrial Disputes Settlement Act (23 of 1947), S. 16. 1960 Nag LJ (Notes) 72.

——Art. 227 — Tribunal not setting aside arbitration on ground of bar of limitation — Whether an error which entitles interference under Art. 227. See Bombay Co-operative Societies Act (7 of 1925), S. 54-A. AIR 1957 Bom 178 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Bengal Public Demands Recovery Act (1913), Ss. 7, 8 — Rule 75 — Certificate debtor setting property upon tenant after receipt of notice under S. 7 — Settlement is void — Creation of tenancy is transfer of property — Certificate purchaser gets property free of such encumbrance — Revenue Board holding contrary commits error of law — High Court will quash order under Art. 227 of Constitution. See Bengal Public Demands Recovery Act (1913), S. 7. AIR 1965 Cal 492 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Powers under, scope of — Error on face of record — Interference under Art. 227 — Bengal Public Demands Recovery Act (1913), Ss. 53, 27—Jurisdiction of Revenue Board under S. 53 — Refusal to interfere with rejection of application under S. 27 — Error held apparent on face of record. 69 Cal WN 7: (1965) 58 ITR 579: AIR 1965 Cal 492 (496) (Pt A) (Prs 21, 22, 23).

——Art. 227 — Order under S. 32-G (4) of Bombay Tenancy and Agricultural Lands Act (67 of 1948) passed without considering provisions of law — Order disclosed error of law apparent on face of record and must be set aside. (1965) 6 Guj LR 810: ILR (1965) Guj 941.

——Art. 227 — Applicability — Certiorari — Error of law — Error apparent on face of record. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1961 Him Pra 2.

——Art. 227 — Decision of lower Court based on faulty grounds — Error of law apparent on face of record — High Court can interfere.

If an inferior Court or tribunal sets out the reasons for its order, the High Court will consider them and see whether those grounds are sound in law or wrong and if unsound, will quash the order. Such faulty grounds, on which the order is based, are errors of law apparent on the face of the record, though they may not be errors of jurisdiction and the High Court will exercise its supervisory jurisdiction under Art. 227 of the Constitution, not only to set right errors of jurisdiction, but to correct errors of law apparent on the face of the record as well, in appropriate cases. 1961 Ker LT 743: 1961 Ker LJ 1150.

——Art. 227 — Orders under Rent Control legislation — Orders passed under misconception and without any contention. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1955 NUC (Madh Bha) 3708 (DB).

——Art. 227 and Penal Code, S. 430 — Offence under S. 430, Indian Penal Code — Diminution of water supply to be proved — Unless mischief by accused proved his intention it need not be considered — Additional District Judge arriving at erroneous conclusion with regard to crime — Error not said to be apparent on record nor is it error of jurisdiction — Power under Art. 227 cannot be invoked. AIR 1953 Nag 89 (FB), Foll.; AIR 1958 SC 398 and AIR 1957 SC 264, Rel. on. 1963 MPLJ (Notes) 216.

——Art. 227 — Wrong decision of Board of Revenue — Powers of superintendence by High Court.

Khan J.:— Where the decision of the Board of Revenue which is the highest judicial authority for revenue Courts is found to propagate and perpetuate a serious error of law which has been committed in derogation of well-recognized principles, it is the duty of the High Court to exercise its powers of superintendence. 1960 MPC 329: 1960 MPLJ 861: 1960 Jab LJ 882.

——Art. 227 — Error of law — Question of financial capacity of firm to pay higher wages to employees in industrial establishment at Madras — Tribunal not giving any value to award on ground that award was based on alleged admission not in fact made.

Held, there was no error of law. See Industrial Dispute. (1958) 15 FJR 25 (Mad).

——Art. 227 — Error of law — Refusal to rely on admission as a piece of evidence — Not an error of law. (1964) 2 Mys LJ 394: AIR 1965 Mys 258 (259) (Pt B) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Error of law — Evidence Act (1872), S. 114 — Failure to draw presumption.

Before any presumption can be drawn under S. 114 of the Evidence Act that a communication posted by the petitioner must have reached the R. T. A. there must be clear and satisfactory proof that the petitioner had posted his written representation, having addressed the same to the R. T. A. When there is no such proof in the case it cannot be said that the tribunal has committed any error of law in not drawing the presumption under S. 114 and in coming to the conclusion that the petitioner had failed to establish that he had made any written representation. (1964) 2 Mys LJ 394: AIR 1965 Mys 258 (259) (Pt C) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Notice terminating tenancy stating that tenancy rights cease from date of notice—It is invalid in view of proviso in sub-s. (1) of Section 14, Bombay Tenancy and Agricultural Lands Act, 1948 — Order of tribunal holding it so — No error apparent on face of record. 37 Mys LJ 82: ILR (1959) Mys 150: AIR 1959 Mys 108 (111, 112) (Pt B) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Error apparent on face of record — Question of limitation not pleaded before the inferior tribunal — Omission of the inferior tribunal to consider — Does not constitute an error of law apparent on the face of the record — Orissa Tenants Relief Act (5 of 1955), S. 9 (1). AIR 1960 SC 137, Rel. on. (1962) 28 Cut LT 482: ILR (1962) Cut 200.

——Art. 227 — Powers of High Court — Order of Assistant Collector of Central Excises giving reasons for not allowing entire claim on account of storage losses under Rule 49 of Central Excise Rules (1944) — Collector agreeing with his decision but not giving elaborate reasons — No error of law on face of record — Interference by High Court. See Ibid. Art. 226. AIR 1957 Pat 650 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Decision of Financial Commissioner in flagrant violation of S. 12, Limitation Act — Competency of petition under Art. 227 — (Limitation Act (1908), S. 12) — (Tenancy Laws — Punjab Tenancy Act (14 of 1887), S. 84).

Where the Financial Commissioner in revision under S. 84, Punjab Tenancy Act, does not accept the law as stated in S. 12, Limitation Act and refuses to apply the provisions of that section on unsustainable grounds, his dicision is clearly in flagrant violation of S. 12, Limitation Act and a petition under Art. 227 is competent in respect of that decision. AIR 1953 SC 58, Applied. ILR (1954) Patiala 294: AIR 1954 Pepsu 173 (174) (Pt D) (Pr 6).

——Art. 227 — Certiorari — Error on face of record — Returning officer rejecting nomination paper of A on ground of arrears of rent payable to Gram Panchayat for lands in his possession vested in Gram Panchayat — On election petition, Tribunal, though finding land in question included in Khasra belonging to Gram Panchayat holding that the land could not belong to Panchayat without authority of law and setting aside election on ground of improper rejection of nomination paper — Tribunal failing to take notice of Rule 16 (ii) of Punjab Holdings (Consolidation and Prevention of Fragmentation) Rules, 1949, under which land was reserved for common pool and rent was payable to Gram Panchayat — Error of law being apparent on face of order of Tribunal, it must be set aside — Panchayats — Punjab Gram Panchayat Act 1952 (4 of 1953), S. 13 (b) and (c) (as amended by Punjab Act 26 of 1962). 1965 Cur LJ 865 (Punj).

——Art. 227 — Error of law apparent on face of record — Error grave and material one occasioning manifest failure of justice — High Court is not only competent but is under duty to interfere — Tribunal after holding appeal incompetent deciding the matter on merits — High Court is bound to interfere. ILR (1965) 2 Punj 485.

——Art. 227 — Certiorari — Grounds on which writ can be issued — Mistake not apparent on face of record — Errors in appreciation of documentary evidence — Writ cannot be issued. See Ibid. Art. 226. AIR 1961 Punj 569.

[Reversed on another point in AIR 1964 Punj 313.]

3 (m) (iii). Patent errors of fact.

——Art. 227 — Scope — Interference with question of fact — Error apparent on face of record. See Ibid. Art. 226. AIR 1955 Assam 148 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Orders of Election Tribunal — Interference under Arts. 226 and 227 — Question of applicability of S. 117, Representation of the People Act — Judgment of Election Tribunal involving not only finding of fact but also containing errors apparent on face of record — Case fit for interference. See Ibid. Art. 226. AIR 1964 Bom 107 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Power of superintendence—Error apparent on face of record — Application by landlord under S. 34, Bombay Tenancy and Agricultural Lands Act before Mamlatdar — Application allowed — Appeal to Assistant Collector disposed of on preliminary ground — Decision reversed by Revenue Tribunal in revision — Effect — Proper order — (Tenancy Laws — Bombay Tenancy and Agricultural Lands Act (67 of 1948), S. 34).

Under Art. 227 every High Court has superintendence over all Courts and Tribunals throughout the territories in relation to which it exercises jurisdiction and in the exercise of this power High Court has jurisdiction to interfere where there is an error apparent on the face of the record. There was an application filed by a landlord under S. 34, Bombay Tenancy and Agricultural Lands Act, 1948, before a Mamlatdar for recovering possession of his lands from his tenant for bona fide personal cultivation. The Mamlatdar ordered the tenant to hand over possession to the landlord. On the tenant appealing to the Assistant Collector, the Assistant Collector held that the respondent had failed to establish a relationship of landlord and tenant between the parties, that therefore, the provisions of the Act did not apply and that accordingly the respondent was not entitled to recover possession. The landlord went in revision before the Bombay Revenue Tribunal and the Tribunal reversed the Assistant Collector's order. The effect was that the Mamlatdar's order was restored.

Held, that there was an error apparent on the face of the order of the Revenue Tribunal, in that the Revenue Tribunal overlooked an important fact that the finding of the Mamlatdar that the lands were required by the landlord for bona fide personal cultivation, which was a finding of fact, was not examined and its correctness was not tested. As the Revenue Tribunal did not remand the matter back to the Assistant Collector for recording a finding on the above mentioned question of fact, the order of the Revenue Tribunal could not be sustained and must be quashed. 58 Bom LR 144: ILR (1956) Bom 232: AIR 1956 Bom 560 (561, 562) (Prs 3, 5) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Madhya Bharat Revenue Administration, and Ryotwari Land Revenue and Tenancy Act (66 of 1950), S. 39 (2) — No power in Board to interfere with concurrent finding of fact — Patent error — Interference under Art. 227 of Constitution. See Tenancy Laws—Madhya Bharat Revenue Administration and Ryotwari Land Revenue and Tenancy Act (66 of 1950), S. 39 (2). 1956 MBLJ (HCR) 1475.

——Art. 227 — Power of High Court — Decision of Tribunal without evidence — Interference.

Where a decision is reached by the Tribunal of a Labour Court on the evidence which is so little as to be practically non-existent, the High Court will be justified under Art. 227 in interfering with its decision. AIR 1958 SC 398, Disting. 1959 Mad WN 183: (1959-60) 16 FJR 1: 72 Mad LW 211: (1959) 1 Lab LJ 397: ILR (1959) Mad 623: (1959) 1 Mad LJ 213.

——Art. 227 — Finding of fact — Election tribunal — No error apparent on the face of record — Finding will not be disturbed. See Ibid, Art. 226. ILR (1962) Cut 217.

——Arts. 227 and 226 — Certiorari — Finding of fact reached on evidence cannot be disturbed — Interference permissible only when error of law is apparent on the face of the record and not when the error is of fact howsoever grave it may be. AIR 1964 SC 477, Foll. (1965) 67 Punj LR 1143: ILR (1966) 1 Punj 71: AIR 1966 Punj 365 (368, 369) (Pt C) (Pr 8).

——Art. 227 — Errors of fact — Power of High Court to interfere is infinitesimally small—(Civil P. C. (1908), S. 115). AIR 1955 NUC (Punj) 116.

3 (n). Contravention of principles of natural justice.

(i) Administrative orders.
(ii) Orders of contractual domestic tribunals.
(iii) Orders made in departmental enquiry.
(iv) Proceedings under Sea Customs Act.
(v) Disciplinary proceedings of University.
(vi) Proceedings under Motor Vehicles Act.

3 (n). Contravention of principles of natural justice.

●——Art. 227 — Rules of natural justice not contravened — Tribunal's view of the matter not acceptable to the Court — Whether a ground for interference. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1958 SC 398.

——Art. 227 — Amendment of decree radically changing its texture — Allowed without notice to affected party — Effect — Sale in execution of such amended decree void — High Court can interfere under Art. 227, Constitution of India. See Civil P. C. (1908), S. 152. AIR 1962 Andh Pra 134.

——Art. 227 — Board of Revenue refusing to adhere to their own precedents in administering taxing statute viz., Sales Tax Act— Absence of reason or circumstances to justify the change of mind — Held that they acted arbitrarily and in violation of natural justice and hence their order was liable to be set aside. 67 Cal WN 179: AIR 1963 Cal 409 (416) (Pt C) (Pr 26) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Orders under Municipal Act — Interference — Resolution to split up holding — Notice to owner — Section whether gives power to split up without notice — Objection to splitting up if can be taken under S. 148 — Validity of S. 129. See Municipalities — Bengal Municipal Act (15 of 1932), S. 129. AIR 1958 Cal 151.

——Art. 227 — Violation of principles of natural justice—Absence of right of appeal against certain order—No violation of principle of natural justice —No appeal provided against order of Board of Revenue under R. 27 of Hyderabad Tenancy and Agricultural Lands Rules (1950) — No grievance can be made of it — (Tenancy Laws — Hyderabad Tenancy and Agricultural Lands Rules (1950), R. 27) — (C. P. Code (1908), S. 96). AIR 1955 NUC (Hyd) 2367 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Power of superintendence — Flagrant violation of laws or disregard of fundamental principles of natural justice can be corrected — Government bound to give possession to applicant — Tenants inducted by Government resisting restoration — Revenue Minister cannot order Collector to inquire into respective rights, as executing Court — Such order will be contrary to natural justice. AIR 1955 NUC (Hyd) 417 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Natural justice — Order dissolving Board of Directors — Opportunity to file objections given — Order not justiciable. See Co-operative Societies Act (2 of 1912), S. 38-A (1) (M. P. Amendment). 1960 Jab LJ 88.

——Art. 227 — Natural justice — Petitioner's name struck off from certificate proceeding — No notice given to him of appeal — No hearing given to him in appeal — Additional Collector's order in appeal making him liable for certificate demand is illegal. See Constitution of India, Art. 226. 1961 BLJR 442.

——Art. 227 — Natural justice — (Panchayats — Bihar Panchayat Raj Act (VII of 1948), Ss. 70 and 73) — (Justice, equity and good conscience — Natural justice).

Pending proceedings in appeal before the Full Bench, the accused moved the Sub-divisional Magistrate under S. 70, Bihar Gram Panchayat Act for the withdrawal of the case. The Sub-divisional Magistrate ordered stay of proceedings before the Full Bench but subsequently, on the application of the complainant, vacated the order of stay. When in appeal, the Full Bench convicted the accused, he made an application under S. 73 (3) to set aside that order on the ground of miscarriage of justice. The Magistrate dismissed the application on the ground that he had no jurisdiction to interfere after the decision of the Full Bench had been pronounced. The accused moved the High Court under Art. 227.

Held, that, in the circumstances, the effect of the order passed by the Sub-divisional Magistrate directing the Full Bench to proceed with the appeal was to dismiss the application under S. 70. Although the refusal of the Magistrate to consider the application under S. 73 was erroneous, the High Court would not interfere as he failed to show as alleged by him that his application under S. 70 was disposed of without hearing him. 1957 Cri LJ 1163: 1957 BLJR 482: AIR 1957 Pat 550 (555) (Pt B) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Allotment of land under Administration of Evacuee Property Act — Subsequent order to dispossess allottees — No right of hearing given under Act — Hearing should be given on principles of natural justice — Principles of natural justice — Right of hearing.

Although under the Administration of Evacuee Property Act or the rules framed thereunder, a person is not entitled as a matter of right to be heard before any order is passed by the Custodian General with respect to the allotment of land, yet on the principles of natural justice, a proper hearing must be given before deciding any matter. 1965 Cur LJ 628 (Punj).

——Art. 227 — Jurisdiction under when can be invoked — Violation of principles of natural justice, or manifest injustice, necessary. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1964 Punj 455 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Order passed for taking over management of company — No opportunity given to company to show cause against action—Legality. See Industries (Development and Regulation) Act (1951), S. 18-A. AIR 1964 Punj 368.

——Arts. 227, 226—Property notified as evacuee property denotified by Government—Sale of property by owner after denotification — Government assuring purchaser that order restoring property to the vendor will not be cancelled and that the sale in favour of the purchaser would remain unaffected — Subsequent order passed by Government cancelling the order of restoration without notice to the purchaser — Order must be quashed on the ground of non-issue of notice to purchaser—As the rights of the purchaser in the property were being adversely affected by the impugned order principles of natural justice required that the purchaser should have been given a reasonable opportunity of being heard against the proposed order. See Ibid, Art. 226. (1961) 63 Punj LR 893.

——Art. 227 — Judicial proceedings — Proper notice to parties — Necessity — Rules of natural justice — Duty of Courts and tribunals to follow. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1960 Punj 41.

3 (n) (i). Administrative orders.

——Art. 227 — Scope — Income-tax Act (1922), S. 33-A — Order under S. 33-A correcting error Committed by I. T. O. — Order being an administrative order will not be interfered with because party had not been heard. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1964 Assam 136 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Rules of natural justice are attracted only when the function is quasi-judicial and not administrative. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1965 MP LJ 108: 1965 Jab LJ 161.

——Art. 227 — Administrative order — Decision of Excise Commissioner regarding confirmation or refusal to confirm sale of liquor shop is an administrative decision — Auction purchaser is not entitled to hearing before Commissioner refuses to confirm the auction sale. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1964 MPLJ 237.

——Art. 227 — Powers of High Court — Power of superintendence — Appeal against executive order treated as Revenue appeal — Interference.

Where an appeal to the Chief Commissioner who was also the Revenue Tribunal, against an executive order was registered as Revenue appeal but no date was fixed for hearing and the order for notice to file objections was endorsed on the memo of appeal itself.

Held, that in the circumstances the matter should be taken to have been treated on executive side and as such the petition under Art. 227 was incompetent. AIR 1958 Manipur 41 (44) (Pt B) (Pr 14).

3 (n) (ii). Orders of contractual domestic tribunals.

——Art. 227 — Contractual domestic tribunal — Decision vitiated by disregard of principles of natural justice — Decision can be declared void under Art. 227. (1919) 2 Ch. 276 and AIR 1961 Ker 265, Rel. on. (1961) 2 Lab LJ 562: ILR (1961) 1 Ker 447: 1961 Ker LT 290: 1961 Ker LJ 389: AIR 1961 Ker 282 (287) (Pt B) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Proceeding being against natural justice — Civil P. C. (1908), S. 115.

One H made a will by which he left the whole of his estate to a relation of his C. H belonged to a village which had a Co-operative Society of which it was claimed all the inhabitants of the village were members. In accordance with the rules of this Society the question, whether a will had been made by H or not and whether it was genuine or otherwise, was referred to arbitration. The arbitrators gave an award that the will was not proved and dismissed the claim of C. Under Rules 35 and 36 of the Society an appeal was taken to the Managing Committee of the Society which consisted amongst others of very close relations of C and his friends and which set aside the award of the arbitrators and held that the will was valid.

Held, that the proceedings taken before the arbitrators, were so much against natural justice that they could not be enforced. The conduct of the case and the decision were against all causes of justice and certainly against natural justice, and the Court would be prepared to set aside the order of the Tribunal even under Art. 227 of the Constitution. AIR 1952 Punj 67 (68) (Pt B) (Prs 7, 9).

3 (n) (iii). Orders made in departmental enquiry.

——Art. 227 — Certiorari and Mandamus — Order of dismissal under Railway Rules for taking bribe — No evidence adduced legal or otherwise to prove guilt of petitioner — Order based on conjecture and surmises violates principles of natural justice. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1964 Cal LJ 89.

——Art. 227 —Natural justice — Employees transfered to different place not joining at place of transfer — Notice to show cause for misconduct — Enquiry held at place of transfer — Employees refusing to attend — Dismissal —Enquiry held at place different from place of employment is against principles of natural justice — Orders of dismissal are illegal — Absence of standing orders is immaterial. See C. P. and Berar Industrial Disputes Settlement Act (1947), S. 16. 1961 NLJ (Notes) 61 (Bom).

——Art. 227 — Departmental enquiry — Petitioner requiring copies of certain documents before replying to charges — Petitioner informed about offices where documents were available for his inspection — No prejudice held was caused to him. See Ibid, Art. 226. ILR (1965) 1 Punj 651: 67 Pun LR 404: AIR 1966 Punj 175.

3 (n) (iv). Proceedings under Sea Customs Act.

——Art. 227 — Principles of natural justice — Sea Customs Act (1878), S. 182. See Ibid, Art. 226. (1964) 68 Cal WN 974.

——Art. 227—Order passed under S. 167 (8), Sea Customs Act in violation of natural justice. See Sea Customs Act (1878), S. 167. AIR 1957 Pat 508 (DB).

3 (n) (v). Disciplinary proceedings of University.

——Arts. 227, 226 — Academic body — Action of — Use of unfair means in University Examination

— Summary enquiry by Academic Council and debarring of examinee — No violation of principles of natural justice — No interference in writ petitions — Principles. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1960 All 642.

——Art. 227 — University — Misconduct by college student — Disciplinary proceedings — Principles of natural justice — Principal recording student's statement, admitting allegations —Tutor, who witnessed incident, identifying student — Student not demanding cross-examination of witnesses or permission to produce witnesses — University ordering cancellation of result on basis of principal's report — Student alleging violation of principles of natural justice — Held, there was no violation. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1964 Punj 456 (DB).

——Arts. 227 and 226 — Natural justice — Use of unfair means at examination — Inquiry proceedings — Proceedings are of quasi-judicial nature — Regulations of University not prescribing any procedure — Principles of natural justice should be followed. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1964 Punj 327.

——Art. 227 — Natural justice—Order disqualifying petitioner from examination — Questionnaire served on petitioner by University and answered by him — Petitioner not demanding at the time of answering it, that he should be told what the evidence was —No motive adduced to witnesses who deposed against him — Held, the order was not illegal as violative of the principles of natural justice. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1963 Cur LJ 537 (Punj).

3 (n) (vi). Proceedings under Motor Vehicles Act.

——Art. 227 — Application for permit — Failure to hear representations — Duty of Appellate Authority. See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), (as adopted in Madhya Bharat) S. 57 (5). AIR 1955 NUC (Madh B) 3370 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Power of superintendence—Scope of — Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 64.

In a case arising under the Motor Vehicles Act, the Appeal Board took into account two reports against the petitioner with regard to his fitness for operating road transport vehicles, namely, the report of the Additional District Magistrate and the report of the Block Development Officer. It was also complained on behalf of the Petitioner that these two reports were not before the Regional Transport Authority at the time the permit was given to the petitioner. The two reports were not read out by the Appeal Board at the time of the hearing of the appeal in presence of the parties.

Held, that the appellate authority should give a real and effective opportunity to the petitioner to deal with the reports or meet the relevant allegations made therein : hence, the order of the Appeal Board was vitiated in law and must be set aside in exercise of the authority under Art. 227 of the Constitution. AIR 1957 SC 232, Rel. on. 1961 BLJR 265.

——Art. 227 — Claims Tribunal — Powers of — S. 110-C, Motor Vehicles Act, does not clothe Tribunal with all powers of civil Court so as to attract provisions of Order 16, Civil P. C. — Rules of natural justice to be complied with — Order disallowing production of witness —Order held contravened rules of natural justice — Order quashed under Art. 227 of the Constitution. See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 110-C. AIR 1965 Punj 477.

3 (o). Cases where the High Court may not interfere.

●——Art. 227 — Replacement of two out of five panchas — Objection not taken under R. 34-D — Writ petition — No interference. See Panchayats — U. P. Panchayat Raj Act (26 of 1947), Section 94. 1955 Cri LJ 313 : AIR 1955 All 122 (FB).

——Art. 227 — Munsiff's jurisdiction to quash decree — Interference by High Court. See Panchayats — U. P. Panchayat Raj Act (26 of 1947), S. 85. AIR 1955 NUC (All) 1502.

——Art. 227 — Order in question supportable on another ground — Interference. See Panchayats — U. P. Panchayat Raj Act (1947), S. 85. AIR 1953 All 180.

——Art. 227 — Election petition — Orders of Election Tribunal — Jurisdiction of High Court to interfere under Art. 227 — Nature of — No interference in cases of interlocutory orders — Representation of the People Act (1951), Ss. 90, 116-A.

It is now a settled law that the mere fact that the Tribunal has come to an erroneous decision or that the High Court on the material before it could have or would have come to a different conclusion, would not be a sufficient ground for interference under Art. 227 with the order of the Tribunal, unless the Tribunal has failed to exercise a jurisdiction vested in it or has omitted to exercise a jurisdiction which it ought to have exercised or there has been a capricious or arbitrary exercise of jurisdiction : AIR 1955 SC 233, Rel. on.

Thus when the Election Tribunal had jurisdiction to decide whether the particular amendment should or should not be allowed or a particular portion of the pleadings be omitted or struck off, even though the decision of the Tribunal in these respects may not appear to be correct, that by itself will not call for interference by the High Court, under Art. 227 of the Constitution unless the orders are shown capricious or arbitrary. Further the High Court in such cases will not interfere by way of a writ under Art. 227 of the Constitution with interlocutory orders of an Election Tribunal disallowing amendments on an election petition or striking out paragraphs for vagueness, except in very exceptional cases, as such matters could be agitated in appeal from the final order of the Tribunal under S. 116-A of the Representation of the People Act. (1963) 1 An WR 238.

——Art. 227 — Revision under — Powers of High Court in — Two methods of computing damages that could be adopted under S. 10 (d) of the Telegraph Act, 1885 — One of these adopted by District Judge —High Court will not interfere. 1961 An LT 752 : (1961) 2 An WR 218 : AIR 1962 Andh Pra 58 (60) (Pt A) (Pr 4).

——Art. 227 — Order holding that Income-tax officer was not entitled to protection of Section 54 Income-tax Act — Petition under Art. 227 by Income-tax Officer after disposal of suit in which he was compelled to produce Income-tax return — Object of revision simply to get decision of High Court on construction of S. 54, Income-tax Act — Held, there was no ground for interference. (1958) 1 An WR 513 : (1958) 34 ITR 212 : AIR 1959 Andh Pra 468 (469) (Pt B) (Pr 3).

——Art. 227 — Question of fact — Interference — Decision of Special Assistant Agent in appeal — Interference by Agent in further appeal — No error of law or fact committed by Agent—Interference under Art. 227 to direct Agent to review his order. See Andhra Pra Agency Rules, R. 47. AIR 1957 Andh Pra 1041.

——Art. 227 — One of findings doubtful — Case decided on other findings not challenged — Decision will not be set aside. AIR 1954 Assam 88 (89) (Pr 1) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Appellate Order of Deputy Commissioner under Assam Adhiars Protection and Regulation Act (XII of 1948) — Deputy Commissioner not acting either in excess of jurisdiction or in abuse of powers vested in him by Act — No interference — Power under article not a substitute for powers enjoyed by High Court under S. 115, Civil P. C. See Tenancy Laws—Assam Adhiars Protection and Regulation Act (XII of 1948), S. 9. AIR 1954 Assam 73.

——Art. 227 — Construction of document — Two views possible — View of the Tribunal neither patently unsound nor erroneous — High Court will not exercise its jurisdiction under the Article. 68 Bom LR 146, Rel. on. (1961) 2 Guj LR 505.

——Art. 227 — Order for eviction passed under Cl. 9 of Travancore-Cochin Building (Lease and Rent Control) Order (1950) — Can be executed under S. 14 — Order by lower Court holding it so — Even if that Court is wrong High Court will not interfere with it when it is manifestly just to substitute an order which will be unjust. See Houses and Rents — Kerala Building (Lease and Rent Control) Act (16 of 1959), S. 14. ILR (1963) 1 Ker 402.

——Arts. 227, 226 — Mandamus — Contractual rights — Enforcement or prevention of breach of — Mining lease under Mineral Concession Rules, 1960 — Direction cannot be issued under Art. 226 or 227 for enforcing rights under the lease or preventing a breach thereof—Civil P. C. (1908), S. 9. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1964 Madh Pra 42.

——Art. 227 — Applicant availing himself of provisions of statute — Whether can challenge its constitutionality.

Where the applicant allowed the Collector to take possession of his property and when he felt dissatisfied with the compensation awarded by him he proceeded under the provisions of the Nagpur Improvement Trust Act and appeared before the Tribunal to have the compensation enhanced and succeeded to a certain extent in having the compensation increased, it is proper for the Court to decline to consider the constitutionality of the Statute at the instance of the applicant who has availed himself of its provisions to his advantage. ILR (1951) Nag 818: 1951 NLJ 463: AIR 1951 Nag 90 (91) (Pt C) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 227 —Order as to costs — Revision against pending — High Court if would interfere on an application under Arts. 226 and 227. See Houses and Rents — Bihar Buildings (Lease, Rent and Eviction Control) Act (1947), S. 18-A. AIR 1955 NUC (Pat) 2151 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Power of superintendence — When exercised — Sub-Registrar's order refusing registration of will on ground of denial of execution — Application under S. 73 (1), Registration Act (1908), against Sub-Registrar's order — Registrar while setting aside order, erroneously describing proceedings before him as appeal though appeal does not lie on ground of denial of execution — Registrar has plenary powers under S. 30 of Act to receive and register documents — Registration itself does not affect right to challenge validity of document (here will) — As no injustice is caused by error in describing proceedings as appeal and as Registrar was acting within jurisdiction, High Court cannot interfere under Art. 227. 67 Punj LR 326: AIR 1965 Punj 378 (378) (Pr 3).

——Art. 227 — Power of superintendence —Cases where High Court will not interfere — Conviction by Special Tribunal under Defence of India Act, 1962 — Findings of fact — No right of appeal or revision — Findings cannot be reopened under Art. 227 — Defence of India Act (1962), S. 18 (2).

In those cases in which there is no right of appeal or revision under S. 18 (2), Defence of India Act, 1962, against an order of conviction of the Special Tribunal, it is not open to the High Court, under Art. 227 of the Constitution, to go into sufficiency or otherwise of the evidence on which the conviction proceeds and re-open the findings of fact recorded by the Tribunal when it is not a case of total absence of evidence: 66 Pun LR 1120: 1965 (1) Cri LJ 205: ILR (1965) 1 Punj 8: AIR 1965 Punj 86 (87, 88) (Pt B) (Prs 6-a, 7-a).

——Art. 227 — Scope — Displaced Persons (Compensation and Rehabilitation) Act (1954), S. 33 — Displaced person has no legal right to allotment of land at particular place and of particular type — Scheme prepared by department for their own guidance categorising lands into 3 blocks — Department's refusal to allot to petitioner land in block designated as special block under scheme on the ground that he had a house in the Basti, infringes no legal rights and causes no injustice to him — Hence, his application under Article cannot succeed. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1964 Cur LJ 99 (Punj).

——Art. 227 — Evacuee Interest (Separation) Act (1951), S. 10, Cls. (b) and (c) and 2 (d) (iv) — Evacuee Interest (Separation) Rules (1951), R. 11-B, Proviso, Expl. (1), Cls. (c) and (e) — Constitution of India, Arts. 226, 227 — Mortgagees in possession claiming evacuee property under S. 10, Cl. (b) must also be sitting allottees — Scope of Cl. (c) of S. 10 — Competent officer on review refusing to order transfer of evacuee property to mortgagees in possession on ground that mortgagees were not sitting allottees — Mortgagees moving High Court under Arts. 226 and 227 of Constitution — Petitioners held not entitled to claim property simply on payment of difference between assessed price and mortgage money not being sitting allottees — Case held not fit for interference under Art. 226 or 227. See Evacuee Interest (Separation) Act (1951), Sec. 10, Cl. (b). (1963) 65 Punj LR 1093.

——Art. 227 — Applicability — Application under for recovery of rent — Rent not paid within time fixed by Assistant Collector — Appellate Court cannot extend the time — Provisions of S. 148, Civil Procedure Code, not attracted — Action of Commissioner and Financial Commr. not outside scope of their jurisdiction—No error apparent on face of record — Cases do not come within ambit of Art. 227. See Tenancy Laws — Punjab Security of Land Tenures Act (10 of 1953), section 14-A (ii). (1962) 64 Punj LR 855.

——Art. 227 — Industrial disputes — Preliminary issue — Decision of preliminary issue along with merits — Labour Court has jurisdiction to order — No interference. See Ibid, Art. 226. (1962-63) 23 FJR 204 (Punj).

——Art. 227 — Decision of Revenue Tribunal under S. 23 (c), Saurashtra Land Reforms Act — Finding that unregistered partition deed could be looked into for collateral purpose of showing character of possession — No interference under Art. 226 or 227. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1955 NUC (Sau) 1459 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Scope of powers under.

When there is no absence or excess of jurisdiction and the complaint relates only to the error in the matter of exercise of the jurisdiction and there is no irregularity in procedure or any error apparent on the face of the record, then the powers of superintendence under Art. 227 should not be exercised. (1963) Ker LT 378: AIR 1953 Trav-Co. 541 (542) (Pt C) (Pr 4).

Interference at interim stage of proceedings.

●——Art. 227 — Sale of goods — Works contract — Contract for installation of coke oven battery and by-products plant for all inclusive price — Whether entire and indivisible — Material supplied in execution of contract if amounts to sale and liable to sales-tax —Initiation of proceedings by issue of notice under S. 13 (5) — Jurisdiction of High Court to interfere by appropriate writ. See Sales-tax — Bihar Sales-tax Act (XIX of 1947), S. 2 (g). AIR 1961 SC 1615.

——Art. 227 — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 561-A — Interference by High Court at an interlocutory stage — (Constitution of India, Arts. 226 and 227). See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 561-A. AIR 1953 All 630.

——Art. 227 — Powers of High Court — Interference at interim stage. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1958 Madh Pra 168 (DB).

3 (p). Interlocutory orders.

——Art. 227 — Debt Laws — U. P. Encumbered Estates Act (1934), Ss. 45 and 46—Relative scope and distinction — Case before Special Judge pending — Order of Special Judge, sending order to compensation officer under S. 70 of Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act — Revision — Application under Arts. 226 and 227—Competency — Constitution of India, Arts. 226 and 227 — (Tenancy Laws — U. P. Zamindari Abolition and Lands Reforms Act (1 of 1951), S. 70). See Ibid, Art. 226. 1958 All LJ 844.

——Art. 227 — Civil P. C. (1908), S. 115 — Interlocutory orders in excess of jurisdiction or otherwise coming within ambit of S. 115, can be interfered with — Referring matter back to arbitrator — Order will be interfered with — Ram Labhaya Acting C. J. — Powers under Art. 227 are wider than under S. 115. (Arbitration Act (1940), S. 16). See Civil P. C. (1908), S. 115. AIR 1955 Assam 61.

——Art. 227 — Interference — Application under — Challenging certain principle laid down by lower Court affecting rights of parties held maintainable — (Tenancy Laws — Bombay Tenancy and Agricultural Lands Act (67 of 1948), Ss. 25 and 10).

Where the Revenue Tribunal by its remand order directed the Mamlatdar to determine reasonable rent and to decide the application of the party under S. 10 of the Bombay Tenancy and Agricultural Lands Act.

Held, that by its remand order the Tribunal laid down the principle which the Mamlatdar would follow namely that merely because the agreed rent was tendered to the landlord under S. 25 (1) of the Act it could not be said that the landlord had not recovered the rent so as to bring him within the mischief of S. 10. It was this principle which affected the rights of the parties and which was challenged by the landlord by the petition under Art. 227 and hence the petition was maintainable. 61 Bom LR 289: ILR (1959) Bom 569.

——Art. 227 — Interlocutory orders — Interference with. See Civil P. C. (1908), S. 115. 1955 Cri LJ 181 : AIR 1955 Bom 61 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Interlocutory orders — Question whether decision is 'a case decided' — Effect of Art. 227 of the Constitution on the question. See Civil P. C. (1908), S. 115. AIR 1954 Kutch 53.

——Art. 227 — Civil P. C. (1908), S. 115 — Interlocutory orders in arbitration proceedings started with intervention of Court — Revision — Arbitration Act (1940), S. 23. See Civil P. C. (1908), S. 115. (1963) 65 Pun LR 318.

——Art. 227 — Interlocutory order —Interference by High Court permissible. See Civil P. C. (1908), S. 115. (1962) 64 Punj LR 387.

——Art. 227 — Scope — Interlocutory order — High Court can revise under Art. 227 of the Constitution. See Civil P. C. (1908), S. 115. AIR 1960 Punj 407 (DB).

3 (q). Discretionary matters.

(i) Discovery and inspection.
(ii) Stay of proceedings.
(iii) Amendment of pleadings.
(iv) Other cases of discretionary orders.

3 (q). Discretionary matters.

——Art. 227—Exercise of discretion going beyond statutory provisions. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1956 All 594.

——Art. 227 — Power under article will not be exercised for interfering with discretionary orders of Court. AIR 1952 All 788 (792) (Pt B) (Pr 15).

——Art. 227 — Interference with discretionary matters —(Merchant Shipping Act (1923), S. 253).

If the law confers discretion upon a Court or Tribunal it is for that Court or Tribunal to exercise its discretion. It is not for the High Court to exercise the discretion for it; unless the High Court is satisfied that the discretion was exercised arbitrarily or capriciously, it will not interfere under Art. 227.

Where in a formal investigation held by the Court under Part VI of the Merchant Shipping Act into the shipping casualty resulting in loss of cargo, the insurance companies with whom the cargo was insured made an application to the Court to be made parties to the proceedings so that they may be able to lead evidence which was in their possession and the Court rejected the application :

Held, that the order of the Court could not be looked upon as exercise of discretion and that the matter must go back to the Court to exercise its discretion as best it thought fit. ILR (1955) Bom 443 : 57 Bom LR 186 : 1955 Cr LJ 1039 : AIR 1955 Bom 241 (247, 248) (Pt B) (Prs 15, 18) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Discretion exercised neither arbitrarily nor capriciously — Erroneous conclusion if sufficient to interfere. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1958 Mys 26 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Powers of High Court — Election petitions — Interference with interlocutory orders — (Civil P. C. (1908), S. 115 and O. 14, R. 2).

If a High Court comes to the conclusion that an inferior Court or tribunal has not allowed its discretion to run in the grooves indicated therefor either by law or by judicial precedents it is at liberty to interfere either under S. 115, C. P. Code or under Art. 227 of the Constitution. Where in holding that certain issues should not be tried as preliminary issues the election tribunal appears not only not to have exercised its discretion according to established rules of law but in an arbitrary manner, a clear duty devolves on the High Court to interfere even at that stage and not to wait until the petition is finally decided. 60 Punj LR 282: (1958-59) 14 ELR 412: ILR (1958) Punj 1776: AIR 1958 Punj 409 (416) (Pt C) (Pr 27) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Discretionary order — Interference. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947). S. 10. AIR 1959 Tripura 8.

3 (q) (i). Discovery and inspection.

——Art. 227 — Discovery and inspection—Powers of Election Tribunal — Interrogatories — Scope and ambit of — Principles — Election challenged on ground of disqualification under S. 7 (d) — Interrogatories asking whether opposite party had certain subsisting contracts with State Government — Tribunal held was not justified in refusing leave. See Representation of People Act (1951), S. 92 (a). AIR 1963 Pat 235 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Commissions of Inquiry Act (1952) S. 4 — Procedure regarding inspection of documents — High Court would not decide at what stage documents should be shown to petitioners. See Commissions of Enquiry Act (1952), S. 4. AIR 1960 Punj 86.

3 (q) (ii). Stay of proceedings.

——Art. 227 — Decree for Rs. 52,000 — Pending appeal in High Court, stay of execution of decree granted by Single Judge on condition to deposit in Court Rs. 20,000 — Stay order was passed by competent Court and could not be challenged on ground that condition imposed was heavy. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1965 Ker LT 167: 1965 Ker LJ 194: (1965) 2 Ker LR 440: AIR 1966 Ker 141 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Interim protection from arrest in execution of decree against debtor pending his application for adjudication — Inherent power— Refusal to grant protection — Not revisable either under S. 115, Civil P. C. or Art. 227 of the Constitution. See Provincial Insolvency Act (1920), S. 5. 1961 Ker LJ 1272.

——Art. 227 — Order of appellate authority under Motor Vehicles Act — Refusal to stay operation of R. T. A.'s decision — Interference under article. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1965 Madh Pra 142 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Order of Appellate Authority under Motor Vehicles Act — Interference under Article when open.

Where in passing the order refusing to stay the operation of the decision of the R. T. A. and in making an interim order in positive terms, the Appellate Authority under the Motor Vehicles Act approached the matter entrusted to it in an arbitrary manner and against all legal principles, the case is clearly one which calls for interference under Art. 227 of the Constitution. It is no doubt in the discretion of the Appellate Authority whether to grant a stay or make any interim order in an appeal pending before it. But the discretion has to be exercised according to the settled legal practices and not contrary to them. AIR 1954 SC 215, Foll. 1965 MPLJ 417: 1965 Jab LJ 583: AIR 1965 Madh Pra 142 (144) (Pt B) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 344 — Stay of criminal proceedings — Question of discretion — Interference with — (Constitution of India, Art. 226). See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 344. AIR 1953 Mad 439.

3 (q) (iii). Amendment of pleadings.

——Arts. 227, 226 — Tribunal allowing party to add to his case — Interference by High Court. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1957 Bom 46.

——Art. 227 — Applicability — Revision — 'Case decided' connotation of — Order refusing to amend a pleading under O. 6, R. 17 is revisable under S. 115 — Such an order is revisable under Art. 227 of the Constitution as well. See Civil P. C. (1908), S. 115. AIR 1964 Cal 439 (DB).

3 (q) (iv). Other cases of discretionary orders.

——Art. 227 — Tribunal not allowing new ground to be raised — No remedy under Art. 226 or 227. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1955 NUC (Assam) 1301 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Applicability — Labour Appellate Tribunal wrongly refusing adjournment — Appellant virtually not represented — Appeal dismissed — Interference — High Court's powers.

Undoubtedly the question whether adjournment in a case before a Court should be granted to enable the party to make an effective representation is essentially one of discretion of the Court before which the proceeding is pending. Normally the High Court will not interfere with an order passed by that Court refusing to grant an adjournment.

Where, however, the Labour Appellate Tribunal sent a notice to the Union that their appeal will be placed for hearing at a very short notice, it could hardly be said to be an intimation. And if on the date of hearing the joint secretary of the Union puts in an application for adjournment the Appellate Tribunal instead of granting an adjournment dismissed the appeal, the order is incompetent, inasmuch as the order was not even passed on merits after considering the judgment of the Industrial Tribunal.

In such a case High Court will interfere under Art. 227 and set aside the orders of the Appellate Tribunal and normally direct the rehearing. 59 Bom LR 261: (1957) 2 Lab LJ 245: ILR (1957) Bom 412: AIR 1957 Bom 142 (143, 144) (Pt A) (Prs 2, 3) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Interference in discretionary matters — Exercise of discretion under S. 33, Industrial Disputes Act (1947) — Interference by Appellate Tribunal. See Industrial Disputes (Appellate Tribunal) Act (1950), S. 7. AIR 1954 Bom 342 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Order for demolition of building by local authority — Act being judicial act opportunity should be given to owner to show cause against passing of order — Commissioner after giving notice and hearing owner passing order for demolition on the basis that he has no discretion in the matter— Held, that he failed to exercise the discretion vested by law in him. See Municipalities — Calcutta Municipal Act (1923), S. 363. (1965) 69 Cal WN 249.

——Art. 227 — Interference with discretionary orders — Eviction proceedings under S. 5 Calcutta Thika Tenancy Act — Application by third party for impleading him as defendant — Refusal by Court to exercise discretion under O. 1, R. 10, C. P. Code, suo motu — High Court cannot compel the Court to implead him as a party — Tenancy Laws — Calcutta Thika Tenancy Act (W. B. 2 of 1949), Ss. 5, 34 and R. 12.

By virtue of R. 12 framed under the Calcutta Thika Tenancy Act, prima facie an application under O. 1, R. 10, C. P. Code, can be filed for impleading a third person as a party to a proceeding under the Thika Tenancy Act. But when the application for impleading of a third person in an eviction proceeding under the Act has been made by the third party himself and the Court has refused to proceed suo motu in the matter, the High Court cannot, in a petition by such person under Art. 227 of the Constitution, compel the Court to implead him as a party defendant. (1961) 65 Cal WN 1126.

——Art. 227 — Case before Union Bench —Transfer application rejected by Magistrate — Revision — Power of High Court to interfere — Superintending jurisdiction. See Bengal Village Self-Government Act (5 of 1919), S. 66. 1957 Cri LJ 441 : AIR 1957 Cal 221 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Civil Procedure Code (1908), Section 115 and O. 40, R. 2 — Order disclosing misconception on part of Judge as regards Court's power to vary order fixing receiver's salary —Interference with order.

Where an order disclosed a misconception on the part of the Judge that the Court had no jurisdiction once salary of the receiver was fixed under O. 40. R. 2, to vary the salary so fixed, on a petition against the order purporting to be one under S. 115, Civil Procedure Code and under Art. 227 of the Constitution.

Held, that under S. 115 the High Court undoubtedly had powers to interfere with the order, and, in any event, the facts of the case pre-eminently called for the High Court's interference under Art. 227. 58 Cal WN 193: ILR (1955) 1 Cal 237: AIR 1953 Cal 574 (578) (Pt D) (Pr 16).

——Art. 227 — Question of reinstatement is a matter within the discretion of labour Court — Exercise of discretion not perverse and arbitrary — Discretion not interfered with under Art. 227. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 15. 1965 Ker LJ 1180.

——Art. 227 — Discretionary power of Registrar of Co-operative Societies in revision — Exercise of — Cannot be assailed in proceeding under Art. 227 — M. B. Co-operative Societies Act (M. B. 9 of 1955), S. 75.

The power of the Registrar of Co-operative Societies to call for the record at the instance of a person aggrieved is discretionary. If he refuses to interfere in a revision filed by the aggrieved party by the decision of the Assistant Registrar, the propriety of his discretion cannot be assailed in a petition filed before the High Court under Art. 227 of the Constitution. 1964 MPLJ (Notes) 219.

——Art. 227 — Deficient court-fee — Time given by decree expiring — Refusal to extend time — Revision. See Civil P. C. (1908), S. 115. AIR 1957 Madh Pra 92.

——Art. 227 — Termination of services — Compensation instead of reinstatement ordered — High Court will not interfere with discretion under Art. 226 of the Constitution. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 25-F. (1963) 1 Mys LJ 547 (DB).

——Arts. 227, 311 — Mala fide removal from service.

It is not open to the petitioner to question the opinion of the Public Service Commission. A candidate for employment cannot insist that he should be considered suitable and that an order should be made in his favour. The opinion of the Commission or of the Government or Transport Authority on the point of suitability of a candidate is not a matter which can be canvassed in a Court of law. The plea that the petitioner's removal was not bona fide has no force. ILR (1955) Nag 187 : 1955 Nag LJ 304 : AIR 1955 Nag 163 (166) (Pt C) (Pr 10) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Industrial Tribunal setting aside award and recommending a fresh reference — Failure by Government — Writ to Government to make a reference—Issue of. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1952 Pat 447 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950), S. 6 — Power of custodian to issue instructions — Refusal to confirm sale — Assistant custodian instead of exercising his own discretion acting according to custodian's instruction — Legality of order — Interference by High Court. See Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950), S. 6. AIR 1959 Punjab 222.

——Art. 227 — Custodian of Evacuee property excusing delay in filing revision — Order if can be interfered under. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1955 NUC (Punj) 4016.

——Art. 227 — Civil P. C. (1908), S. 115 — Objection to jurisdiction not decided as preliminary issue — Court exercising discretion to try case as whole — Interference under power of superintendence where there is obvious error in procedure resulting in the parties being involved unnecessarily into considerable expenses. See Civil P. C. (1908), S. 115. AIR 1953 Sau 30.

3 (r). Subsequent events.

——Art. 227 — Order of authority not challengeable on any valid grounds according to law then prevailing — Interference with order on the ground of subsequent amendment in law. See Tenancy Laws — Bombay Tenancy and Agricultural Lands (Vidarbha Region and Kutch Area) Act (99 of 1958), S. 38. AIR 1965 Bom 76.

——Art. 227 — Review — Order passed in accordance with law — Accepted view of law changing by new decision — Old order cannot be reviewed. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1960 MPLJ (Notes) 2.

——Art. 227 — Change in law during pendency of application — (Houses and Rents — C. P. Code and Berar Letting of Houses and Rent Control Order (1949), Cl. 13 (3) (vi), (as amended in 1952).

The proceeding under Art. 227 is not in continuation of the application under the Rent Control Order or of the appeal therefrom, because the proceeding is not in the nature of an appeal. In the proceedings under Art. 227, what the High Court has to ascertain is whether the inferior tribunal (here, the appellate authority) did apply the law which was in force when it decided the matter before it. If it is found that it did apply the law, the matter would end there. If, however, it is found that it did not apply the law, the High Court would interfere. But in deciding whether to interfere or not the Court would be guided by the law in force at the time of the appellate decision. The change which the law underwent after the decisions of the appellate authority can have no relevance in determining whether the decision of the appellate authority was right or wrong.

The fact, therefore, that the clause entitling the landlord to recover possession from his tenant on the ground of bona fide need for business was deleted from the Rent Control Order during the pendency of his application under Art. 227, against the decision of the appellate authority, does not affect the applicant's rights. Misc. Petn. No. 131 of 1952, dated 24th September, 1952 (Nag), Distinguished. 1953 Nag LJ 419 : ILR (1953) Nag 741: AIR 1953 Nag 271 (272) (Pt B) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Change in law during pendency of writ petition — Change is of no consequence and cannot be taken into consideration in deciding writ petition. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1965 Punj 21.

——Arts. 227, 226 — Assessment proceedings — Assessee a coal agent — Assessment years for 1949-50 to 1955-56 — Decisions by S. C. after assessment had become final that coal agents were not "dealers" — Writ petition for quashing assessment orders and for refund of payment of Sales-tax — Maintainability. See Ibid, Art. 226. (1965) 67 Pun LR 1185.

3 (s). Nature of orders that can be passed by the High Court.

——Art. 227 — Scope — Order in writ petition declaring certain provisions of statute unconstitutional and quashing certain orders passed thereunder — Application for certificate for leave to appeal to Supreme Court pending — Power of High Court to grant interim relief in form of stay order. See Civil P. C. (1908), O. 45, R. 13. AIR 1957 All 505 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Power of superintendence — Nature and extent of — Application for certificate for leave to appeal to Supreme Court from an order in writ petition pending — Power of High Court under Art. 227 to pass stay order.

After the express grant of power to issue a writ the power of superintendence conferred under Art. 227 must be deemed to relate to administrative matters. Whatever superintendence it can exercise in judicial matters would now be exercised through the issue of an appropriate writ under Art. 226. Therefore, an order of an inferior Court or tribunal cannot be interfered with under Art. 227. Hence, where the High Court declares certain provisions of an Act as unconstitutional and as a consequence quashes certain orders of the State authorities passed under the Act, and the State files an application for leave to appeal to the Supreme Court under Art. 133, and pending that application prays for a stay order of the High Court, Art. 227 cannot be relied upon for the grant of interim stay. AIR 1934 All 585 and AIR 1935 All 599, Rel. on.

Per Beg, J.: (Contra)— The power of superintendence granted to the High Court under Art. 227 is extensive enough to cover not only the administrative but also the judicial power. AIR 1952 All 788 and AIR 1957 All 414 (FB), Rel. on. (1957) All WR (HC) 268: AIR 1957 All 505 (519, 526) (Pt P) (Prs 23, 62) (DB).

——Arts. 227, 226 — Scope and Applicability — Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 47 — Words "public interest" — Meaning — Power of Transport authority to grant or refuse permit —Order rejecting petition on ground beyond S. 47 — Quashing of order and issue of proper direction— (Words and Phrases). See Constitution of India, Art. 226. AIR 1956 All 594.

——Art. 227 — Powers of superintendence — U.P. Panchayat Raj Act — Interference with order under.

Where a case has been dealt with in a most unsatisfactory manner by the Sub-Divisional Magistrate acting under U. P. Panchayat Raj Act, the High Court has under its powers of superintendence under Art. 227 of the Constitution to direct the case to be reheard and decided properly. 1952 AWR (HC) 4: 1952 ALJ 148: 1952 Cr LJ 1268: AIR 1952 All 787 (788) (Pt B) (Prs 4; 5).

——Art. 227—Civil P. C. (1908), S. 115 —Illegal exercise of jurisdiction—Error in excluding evidence under S. 33, Evidence Act — Interference — High Court's power of superintendence — Power to correct the error—(Constitution of India, Art. 227) — (Evidence Act (1872), S. 33). See Civil P. C. (1908), S. 115. AIR 1957 Andh Pra 378.

——Art. 227 — Order to rectify error committed by lower Court. See Criminal P. C. (1898), section 369. 1952 Cri LJ 1276: AIR 1952 Assam 156 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Order staying proceedings pending in inferior criminal Court till final decision in Civil Court. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 561-A. 1952 Cri LJ 654: AIR 1952 Assam 78 (DB).

——Art. 227 — High Court can uphold lower Court's conclusion altogether on new and different grounds which emerge from record. 61 Bom LR 1156: 1959 Nag LJ 436: ILR (1959) Bom 1699.

——Art. 227 — Scope — Effect of coming into force of S. 33, Industrial Disputes (Amendment and Misc. Prov.) Act on 1st September, 1956 — Proceeding pending before Appellate Tribunal — Appeal already decided — Application under Art. 227 pending and decided after 1st September, 1956 — Appeal, if can be remanded to Appellate Tribunal — Whether powers of High Court curtailed. See Industrial Disputes (Amendment and Miscellaneous Provisions) Act (1956), S. 33. AIR 1957 Bom 142 (DB).

——Arts. 227 and 226 — Exercise of jurisdiction under Articles — Power to quash orders and pass substantive orders in their place. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1957 Bom 46.

——Art. 227 — Order of Commissioner dismissing petition under S. 27 of Bengal Public Demands Recovery Act on one ground—Order affirmed by Revenue Board but on another ground—Commissioner's order merges with order of Revenue Board and does not exist—Order of Revenue Board set aside under Art. 227 — Order cannot be maintained on grounds on which it was passed by Commissioner. AIR 1963 SC 1124, Rel. on. 69 Cal WN 7: (1965) 58 ITR 579: AIR 1965 Cal 492 (498) (Pt C) (Pr 33) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Proceedings for fixation of fair rent under Malabar Tenancy Act by tenant — Tenant dissatisfied with decisions of rent Court and appellate authority filing petition under Art. 227 of the Constitution challenging their decision — Petition cannot be said to be proceedings for fixation of fair rent — High Court accepting grievance of petitioner — Proper direction that can be given by the High Court. See Tenancy Laws — Kerala Tenants and Kudikidappukars Protection Act (7 of 1963), S. 2 (ii). AIR 1964 Ker 127.

——Art. 227 — Power to pass substantive order.

In a petition under Article 227 of the Constitution, High Court cannot only quash the decision of the inferior tribunal but also issue further directions in the matter or pass a substantive order in place of the order which it has quashed. 1965 MPLJ 417: 1965 Jab LJ 583: AIR 1965 Madh Pra 142 (145) (Pt C) (Pr 8) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 344 — Stay of Criminal Proceedings — Jurisdiction of High Court. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 344. AIR 1953 Mad 439.

——Art. 227 — Stay of criminal case pending suit — Criminal case under S. 494, I. P. C. pending — Subsequent filing of civil suit — Identity of subject-matter — Criminal case stayed. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 439. (1963) 1 Cri LJ 129 (Manipur).

——Arts. 227, 226 — Prayer to issue Mandamus for refund of sales-tax illegally levied — No specific prayer for quashing orders of assessment— Mandamus not issued — Orders quashed — (Sales-tax — Madras General Sales-tax Act (9 of 1939), S. 18-A). See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1960 Mys 93 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Power of superintendence includes power to set aside orders of tribunals in appropriate cases. ILR (1954) Patiala 1: AIR 1953 Pepsu 133 (140; 141) (Pt I) (Pr 20) (DB).

——Arts. 227, 226 — Court will not pass any order which will for all practical purposes be a dead letter. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1965 Pun LR (Sup) 464.

——Art. 227 — Jurisdiction — Nature and scope — Petition under Art. 227 — Grant of relief in the nature of writ of certiorari — Permissibility — Omission to implead authority whose orders sought to be assailed — Not fatal. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1962 Punj 117.

——Art. 227 — Error on face of record.

Article 227 undoubtedly furnishes the High Court with the requisite authority in an appropriate case to substitute its own order in place of or to vary an unjustifiable order of any tribunal exercising authority within its territorial jurisdiction. The High Court is invested with judcial superintendence over the acts or decisions of not only those Courts which are under its appellate jurisdiction but also of tribunals over which it has no administrative control but which are functioning within the territorial jurisdiction of the High Court.

Where the Board of Revenue awarded a decree for general damages which it had no competence to give in the circumstances of the case, the decision of the Board in question disclosed a patent error of law manifest on the very face of the record and the High Court was entitled to interfere with a writ to set right the error. 1957 Raj LW 81: ILR (1956) 6 Raj 877: AIR 1957 Raj 39 (41, 42, 43) (Pt B) (Prs 12, 13, 16, 19) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Power of High Court to grant sanction under S. 92, C. P. Code. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1954 Trav-Co 331 (DB).

——Art. 227 — High Court's power to substitute its order in place of tribunal's order.

The High Court can substitute its own order in place of the order of a tribunal acting under its power of superintendence over it given by Art. 227. However, this power should only be exercised most sparingly and only in appropriate cases in order to keep the subordinate Courts within the bounds of their authority. AIR 1954 SC 215, Foll. AIR 1954 Vin Pra 34 (35) (Pt C) (Pr 7).

4. Power whether includes power to transfer.

●——Art. 227—Power of High Court to transfer case.

Per Srinivasachari, J. :— Though under Art. 227 the High Court has powers of superintendence over Commission appointed to enquire succession it being only a tribunal within the meaning of Art. 227, the High Court could not direct the transfer of the case pending before the Commission to any other authority. Tahira Begum v. Hyderabad State. AIR 1953 Hyd 105 (110b) (Pt E) (Pr 16) (FB).

——Art. 227 — Powers of High Court — Trial before Gram Panchayat — Application for transfer. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1959 Cr LJ 1099: AIR 1959 Pat 423.

——Art. 227 — Civil P. C. (1908), Ss. 151 and 24 — Application for transfer — Whether lies under the article. See Civil P. C. (1908), S. 151. AIR 1957 Pat 198.

5. High Court.

See also Ibid, Art. 228.

——Art. 227 —High Court — Board of Revenue if included in.

The High Court referred to in Art. 227 of the Constitution is the High Court referred to in Article 214, every Judge of which is appointed by the President of the Union under Art. 217 and as such would not include the Board of Revenue. 1952 AWR (Rev) 41: 1951 RD 281: 1952 ALJ (Rev) 33.

——Art. 227 — Scope of the power of superintendence — Interference with the decision of the Appellate Authority under East Punjab Urban Rent Restriction Act.

Since the passing of the Constitution of India, the Judicial Commissioner's Court of the Himachal Pradesh has the jurisdiction in exercise of its power of superintendence under Art. 227 of the Constitution, to interfere with the decision of the Appellate Authority under the East Punjab Urban Rent Restriction Act despite the finality given to that decision under S. 15 (4) of the Act. AIR 1951 Him Pra 72 (73) (Pt A) (Pr 3).

6. "All Courts and tribunals".

(a) "Courts."

(b) "Tribunals."

(c) All tribunals exercising judicial or quasi-judicial functions are amenable to supervisory jurisdiction.

(d) Custodian of evacuee property.

(e) Authorities under Rent Control Acts.

(f) Revenue Courts and Tribunals.

(g) Election Tribunal.

(h) Authority under Motor Vehicles Act.

(i) Authority under Payment of Wages Act.

(j) Industrial Tribunals and Labour Courts.

(k) Decision of authority under Minimum Wages Act.

(l) Nyaya Panchayats.

(m) Collector acting under Land Acquisition Act.

6. "All Courts and tribunals"

——Arts. 227, 225, 226, and 311 — Applicability— Petitioner serving in saraf-e-khas army in former Hyderabad State—Order of dismissal passed by H. E. Nizam in his private capacity after accession of State to Indian Union — Writ Petition— Maintainability — Art. 311, not applicable. See Ibid, Art. 225. ILR (1962) Andh Pra 278.

——Art. 227 — Courts and tribunals — (Debt laws — Hyderabad Jagirdar's Debt Settlement Act (12 of 1952), S. 9) — Debt Settlement Board—If subject to jurisdiction under Art. 227.

Sub-s. (1) of S. 9 of the Hyderabad Jagirdars' Debt Settlement Act, 1952 provides that a Board constituted under S. 4 of that Act for the settlement of debts 'shall, in all proceedings under the Act, be subject to the control of the High Court'. It is also well settled that under Art. 227, the High Court has a judicial power of revision. Hence an order passed by a Debt Settlement Board is open to revision by the High Court under Art. 227. 1957 Andh LT 235: ILR (1957) Andh Pra 299: (1958) 1 Andh WR 192.

——Art. 227 — Powers of superintendence — Courts not subject to appellate jurisdiction of High Court.

Under Art. 227 of the Constitution, it is not a necessary condition for the exercise of the powers of superintendence that the Court or tribunal whose judgment or order is in question should be subject to the appellate jurisdiction of the High Court. It would follow that even if the judgment or order of a Court or tribunal functioning within the territorial limits of the jurisdiction of the High Court is made final by statute and even if the Court itself is not subject to the appellate jurisdiction of the High Court, its judgments or orders may be interfered with in the exercise of the powers of superintendence of the High Court. The effect of Art. 227 is that not only it restores to the High Court the jurisdiction that was taken away by S. 224 (2), Government of India Act, 1935, but it enlarges the powers of superintendence which the High Court exercised under S. 107 of the Government of India Act, 1915. This power is obviously not limited to administrative matters only. 52 Cri LJ 966: ILR (1951) 3 Assam 181: AIR 1951 Assam 106 (112, 115) (Pt E) (Prs 39, 59) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Execution proceeding transferred to Collector under S. 68, Civil Procedure Code — Order made by Collector — Revision of order under S. 115 — Competency — Power of Superintendence of High Court under Art. 227. See Civil P. C. (1908), S. 70. AIR 1956 Kutch 15.

——Arts. 227, 226 — Quasi-judicial order — Mineral Concession Rules (1960), R. 54 — Order of Central Government in revision under R. 54, setting aside order of State Government refusing renewal of petitioner's mining lease and directing State Government to renew same — Order is quasi-judicial and State Government is bound by directions of Central Government — Order not complied with, by State Government — Application lies under Arts. 226 and 227 for direction to State Government commanding it to carry out order of Central Government and to renew lease. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1965 Madh Pra 159 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Order of a Judge of High Court — Revision against — Competency.

Art. 227 is confined to subordinate Court and a judge of the High Court as such is not a Court subordinate to the High Court. Hence a civil revision petition is not competent against an order of a Judge of the High Court under that article: AIR 1953 Mad 832, Foll. (1957) 1 Mad LJ 364: AIR 1957 Mad 582 (583) (Pt A) (Pr 1) (DB).

——Art. 227 (1) — Power of Superintendence — Extent of.

The power of the High Court under Art. 227 (1) is confined to subordinate Courts and judicial and quasi-judicial tribunals which are also subordinate to it. A Judge of the High Court is not as such subordinate to the High Court. 1953 Mad WN 433: (1953) 2 MLJ 108: ILR (1954) Mad 211: AIR 1953 Mad 832 (832) (Pr 2) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Administrative and judicial control over tribunal.

All agencies whether Courts or not, performing the duty of deciding disputed questions of right between parties on behalf of and under the sanction of the State and in accordance with State-made laws are placed under the administrative and judicial control of the High Court. Thus, the High Court has got revisional jurisdiction under Art. 227 by way of superintendence over the judicial work of a duly constituted tribunal, like the Deputy Registrar under the Co-operative Societies Act. 1953 Cri LJ 636: 65 Mad LW 1229: AIR 1953 Mad 362 (364, 365) (Pt C) (Prs 8, 9).

——Art. 227 — Jurisdiction of the High Court under to revise the order of a tribunal — Scope.

Art. 227 of the Constitution is very wide in terms and confers on the High Court powers of superintendence over all Courts and Tribunals throughout the territories in relation to which it exercises jurisdiction. The Article restores the power that had previously been vested in the High Court under S. 107, Government of India Act (1919) and does away with the restriction that had been introduced by the Government of India Act, S. 224 (2). The High Court in exercising the power of superintendence can revise the order passed by a tribunal. 54 CWN 445; 54 CWN 934, Relied on. 18 Cut LT 279: AIR 1953 Orissa 254 (254) (Pt A) (Pr 2).

——Art. 227 — Powers of superintendence — Order with regard to management of property attached under S. 145 (4) Criminal P. C. — Revision under power of superintendence. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 145 (4). 1955 Cri LJ 387: AIR 1955 Pat 92.

——Art. 227 — Tribunal after making final order ceasing to function — Power of superintendence can still be exercised.

The power of superintendence of the High Court is not taken away as soon as the Court or Tribunal ceases to function or is abolished. It cannot be said with any justification that a wrong order, despite the fact that it is without jurisdiction and has resulted in grave miscarriage of justice, cannot be interfered with or that the mischief done cannot be remedied simply because the Court or Tribunal is no longer functioning. ILR (1954) Patiala 387: AIR 1954 Pepsu 118 (122) (Pt G) (Pr 16) (DB).

——Art. 227 — "All Courts and tribunals".

Article 227, for the first time confers on the High Court the authority to exercise powers of superintendence over tribunals other than regular Courts and to that extent the scope of S. 107, Government of India Act, 1915, has been extended. 61 Pun LR 315: ILR (1959) Punj 859: AIR 1959 Punj 291 (293) (Pt B) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Judicial superintendence over tribunals over which High Court has no administrative control.

The High Court is invested with judicial superintendence over acts or decisions which are under its appellate jurisdiction but also of tribunals over which it has no administrative control but which are functioning within the territorial jurisdiction of the High Court. 1956 Cri LJ 270: 1956 Raj LW 105: ILR (1956) 6 Raj 90: AIR 1957 Raj 39 (41, 42, 43) (Pt B) (Prs 12, 13, 16, 19) (DB).

6 (a). "Courts."

●——Arts. 227, 226 — Court and tribunal — Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 195, 476 and 476-B — Appeal under S. 476-B, when lies — Offence under S. 193, Penal Code, must be in relation to "judicial proceeding" and before "Court" — Returning officer deciding on validity of nomination paper under S. 36 (2), Representation of the People Act is not "Court" — (Representation of the People Act (1951), Ss. 36 (2) and 36) — (Words and Phrases — "Court" — What constitutes) — (Words and phrases — "Judicial proceedings") See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 195. AIR 1956 SC 153.

——Art. 227 — Registrar of Co-operative Societies is not a Court.

Registrar and Assistant Registrar of Co-operative Societies are arbitrators according to the Co-operative Societies Act and it would be a misnomer to call them a Court. 1962 All Cri R 45: 1962 All WR (HC) 38: 1962 All LJ 57: 1963 (1) Cri LJ 507 (511) (Pr 8).

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1965 All 263 (FB)]

——Art. 227 and Sch. 7 List. 2 Entry 3 — Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3 — "Court" is not synonymous with "tribunal" — (Words and Phrases — "Courts" and "Tribunals"). See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. AIR 1956 All 258.

——Arts. 227, 235 and 311 — "Court" — Inquiry against District Judge — Power of High Court to hold — (Madras Civil Services (Classification, Control and Appeal) Rules (1953), R. 17) — (Public Servants (Inquiries) Act (1850), S. 3).

Under Art. 227 (1), every High Court has the power of superintendence over all the Courts and tribunals throughout the territories in relation to which it exercises jurisdiction, which is both administrative and judicial. If Art. 227 is read with Art. 235 which also vests control in the High Court over subordinate Courts, there is no doubt whatever that the High Court has not only powers of superintendence over the Court subordinate to it, but also of control over all these Courts which include the District Court. Both in Arts. 227 and 235, the word 'Court' not only includes the person presiding over that Court, but also all the functionaries of that Court and any matters pertaining thereto.

The High Court in exercise of its powers of superintendence and control of the Courts subordinate to it and by virtue of the rules having the force of law under the proviso to Art. 309 read with Art. 313, is vested with the power to hold an enquiry into the conduct of judicial officers and to determine provisionally the punishment which should be imposed prior to their being afforded a reasonable opportunity of showing cause under Art. 311 of the Constitution. The essential element in the awarding of penalties and punishments against public servants is not as to who conducts the enquiry, but whether the person has been given the opportunities referred to above and that the enquiry is fair and unbiased. AIR 1959 Andh Pra 497 (501) (Pt C) (Pr 6) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Power of superintendence over special Courts.

The Courts under the Assam Prohibition Act (23 of 1947) cannot be regarded as special Courts in any sense. They are Courts under the Cr. P. C. Further Art. 227, Constitution of India, makes no distinction between ordinary and special Courts and brings all Courts except Courts constituted under any law relating to the Armed Forces subject to the power of superintendence conferred on the High Courts. The powers of superintendence vesting in the High Court therefore, can certainly be exercised in suitable cases in respect of orders passed under that Act. 22 Pat 175, AIR 1946 PC 169, Dist. AIR 1933 Bom 1, Rel. on. ILR (1951) 3 Assam 181: 52 Cri LJ 966: AIR 1951 Assam 106 (110) (Pt D) (Pr 24) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Proceedings under Bengal Public Demands Recovery Act — Powers of High Court.

A certificate officer under the Bengal Public Demands Recovery Act is a Court and his proceedings are subject to the power of superintendence under Art. 227.

Where the Certificate Officer acted in excess of his jurisdiction and also acted in flagrant violation of some of the mandatory provisions of the Public Demands Recovery Act it was held that the entire proceeding before the Certificate Officer was without jurisdiction and must be quashed in exercise of powers under Art. 227. 58 Cal WN 573: AIR 1954 Cal 355 (361) (Pt K) (Prs 38, 39) (DB).

——Art. 227 — 'Court' — Meaning of — Assistant Registrar exercising powers of Registrar under S. 48 of Bihar and Orissa Co-operative Societies Act (1935) is a Court and subordinate to High Court. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. 1965 (1) Cri LJ 748: AIR 1965 Pat 227 (DB).

——Art. 227 — 'Court' — Claims officer under Bihar Land Reforms Act (1947), S. 17 whether Court subordinate to High Court under S. 115, Civil P. C. — Jurisdiction of High Court to exercise jurisdiction under Art. 227. See Tenancy Laws — Bihar Land Reforms Act (30 of 1950), S. 14. 1959 Pat LR 297.

——Art. 227 — Court — Election Commissioner.

An Election Commissioner is a Court within the meaning of Art. 227 and in a fit case the High Court would interfere under Art. 227 with the decision of the Election Commissioner. AIR 1954 Pat 65 and AIR 1953 Cal 731, Foll. 1955 BLJR 243: AIR 1955 Pat 368 (369) (Pt B) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 227 — "Superintendence" in article includes power to deal with contempt of Court not punishable by the Court itself — Commissioner appointed under Public Servants Inquiries Act is a Court. 53 Pun LR 178: 52 Cri LJ 950: AIR 1951 Punj 49 (51) (Pt C) (Pr 5) (DB).

[Overruled in AIR 1956 SC 66]

6 (b). "Tribunals."

●——Art. 227 — 'Tribunal' — Meaning of — Test to determine — State Government exercising appellate jurisdiction under Rule 6 (5) and (6) of Punjab Welfare Officers Recruitment and Conditions of Service Rules (1952) is a 'tribunal'. See Ibid, Art. 136 (1). AIR 1965 SC 1595.

——Art. 227 — Order of Magistrate passed under S. 87 of the Madras Hindu Religious and Charitable Endowments Act (19 of 1951) — If revisable by High Court under Criminal P. C.—Application under Art. 227 — Maintainability. (1958) 1 Andh WR 263.

——Art. 227 — Tribunals acting under Madras Estates Abolition Act — Duty to follow decisions of High Court — (Tenancy Laws — Madras Estates (Abolition and Conversion into Ryotwari) Act (26 of 1948), S. 8).

Tribunals acting under the provisions of the Madras Estates Abolition Act should, and are bound to follow, the decisions of the High Court especially when those decisions determine the tenure of the very village which the tribunal has to deal with. The tribunals are subject not only to the administrative but also the judicial control of the High Court under Art. 227 and they are bound by the decisions of the High Court. 1955 Andhra WR 251: AIR 1955 Andhra 240 (240) (Pt B) (Prs 8, 9).

——Art. 227 — Court-fees Act (7 of 1870), S. 4 — Debt Laws — Displaced Persons (Debts Adjustment) Act (1951), S. 4 — Tribunal appointed under S. 4, Displaced Person (Debts Adjustment) Act — Power of superintendence of High Court. See Court Fees Act (1870), S. 4. AIR 1956 Bom 563.

——Art. 227 — Bombay Industrial Relations Act (1947), S. 95-A — Power of judicial supervision of High Court over tribunals — Duty of tribunals to follow law as laid down by High Court. See Bombay Industrial Relations Act (11 of 1947) S. 95-A. AIR 1955 Bom 369.

——Art. 227 — Opinion of Advisory Board under S. 11 of Preventive Detention Act (1950) — Not subject to revision under Art. 227.

The Advisory Board does not give any decision which by its own force is binding, particularly when it reports that there is in its opinion sufficient cause for the detention of the person concerned. Though the Advisory Board may be assessing the materials before it more or less like a tribunal still it is not a tribunal and it is the subjective satisfaction of the Board that is reported to the Government. The opinion of the Advisory Board is not, therefore, subject to revision by the High Court under the provisions of Art. 227 of the Constitution. 1962 (1) Cri LJ 279: AIR 1962 Cal 119 (121) (Pt C) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Registrar acting as Taxing Officer if tribunal subject to superintendence of High Court. See Court Fees Act (1870), S. 5. AIR 1959 Cal 317 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Tribunal — Meaning of — It means person or body other than Court for deciding rights between parties in accordance with rules having force of law — Conciliation Board under Bargadar's Act, is tribunal — Tenancy Court W. B. Bargadars Act (2 of 1950), S. 6). AIR 1955 NUC (Cal) 2074 (DB).

——Art. 227 — "Tribunal".

The Commissioner acting under Bengal Wakf Act acting as tribunal both as regards procedure and subject-matter of dispute — He is subject to superintendence of High Court under Art. 227. ILR (1955) 2 Cal 445: 58 Cal WN 266: AIR 1954 Cal 149 (151) (Pt C) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 227 — "Tribunal" — Conciliation Board and Appellate Officer — Tenancy Laws — W. B. Bargadars Act, S. 9 (1).

The Bhagchas Conciliation Board and the Appellate Officers under the W. B. Bargadars Act are both tribunals within the meaning of Art. 227 of the Constitution, and as such they are subject to the judicial superintendence of the High Court. S. 9 (1) of the W. B. Bargadars Act, which provides that no award or order of a Board or an Appellate Officer shall be questioned in any "Court" which under S. 2 (e) includes the High Court, cannot prevail against the Constitution.

In the case of tribunals, the power of the High Court under Art. 227 at least includes power to require that the facts shall be fully investigated and fairly found and when found, fairly considered after giving the parties a proper opportunity to explain them. 56 CWN 124: AIR 1952 Cal 526 (528, 529) (Pt A) (Prs 12, 15) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Powers of High Court — Nature, scope and extent — "Tribunal" — Meaning of.

Per Chakravartti, J.:— The word "tribunal" in Art. 227 of the Constitution means a person or a body, other than a Court, set up by the State for deciding rights between contending parties in accordance with rules having the force of law and doing so, not by way of taking executive action but of determining a question. The effect of the addition of the word "tribunal" to the word "Court" in the Article and the removal of the bar against revision of judgments in exercise of the power of superintendence is that all agencies, whether Courts or not, performing the duty of deciding disputed questions of right between parties on behalf of and under the sanction of the State and in accordance with State-made laws, are placed under the administrative and judicial control of the High Court.

Per Mookerjee, J.:— Under Art. 227 of the Constitution every High Court has power of superintendence over all judicial and quasi-judicial bodies within its territorial limits in respect of both judicial and administrative matters. But only where grave injustice has occurred or is likely to occur by reason of some mistake committed by the inferior judicial or quasi-judicial bodies and the municipal law provides no adequate remedy the High Courts are entitled and indeed bound to intervene under the Article and correct the mistake and grant appropriate relief. 56 CWN 124: AIR 1952 Cal 526 (531) (Pt B) (Pr 29) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Powers of superintendence — Statutory Tribunal not administering laws correctly.

Where a Tribunal has been set up under a Special Act, it is the duty of the High Court to see, in the exercise of its power of superintendence that such tribunal acts within the limits of the statute creating it, and applies correctly and properly the laws it is authorised to administer. Where both the Board and the Appellate Officer were applying and administering, not S. 5 (1) (a), W. B. Bargadars Act, 1950, but that section with certain supplementary provisions added to it by themselves, the High Court is entitled to correct such an error in the exercise of its powers under Art. 227 of the Constitution. 56 CWN 320: 89 Cri LJ 196: AIR 1951 Cal 574 (576) (Pt B) (Pr 10) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Tribunal — Bhagchas Conciliation Board and Appellate Officers are tribunals — High Court has power of superintendence over them.

The Bhagchas Conciliation Board established under S. 6 of the West Bengal Bargadars Act, 1950, has to hear applications and decide them according to law. It has to give the parties an opportunity of putting forward their contentions and there can be no doubt whatsoever that a Bhagchas Conciliation Board is a tribunal which has to exercise its functions judicially. The Appellate Officer hears appeals from the Board and it is equally clear that he is a tribunal if not a Court. As both are tribunals the High Court has power of superintendence over them under Art. 227 of the Constitution. 56 Cal WN 23: AIR 1951 Cal 138 (139) (Pt A) (Prs 9, 10) (DB).

●——Art. 227 — Applicability — Special Tribunal constituted under Special Tribunal Regulation — Powers to transfer under Art. 227 — Criminal P. C. (1898) S. 526.

Article 227 of the Constitution is applicable to the Court of the Special Tribunal constituted under the Special Tribunals Regulation and the powers of superintendence conferred on the High Court are sufficiently wide to include the principles laid down in S. 494, Hyderabad Criminal P. C. (corresponding to S. 526, Indian Criminal P. C.) Mohd. Abdul Roof v. State of Hyderabad, 1952 Cri LJ 273: ILR (1951) Hyd 342: AIR 1951 Hyd 50 (50) (Pt A) (Pr 3) (FB).

——Art. 227 — Contractual domestic tribunal — Decision vitiated by disregard of principles of natural justice — Can be declared void under Art. 227. ILR (1961) 1 Ker 447: 1961 Ker LT 290: 1961 Ker LJ 389: (1961) 2 Lab LJ 562: AIR 1961 Ker 282 (287) (Pt B) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Magistrate acting under S. 87 is tribunal within Art. 227 of Constitution. See Madras Hindu Religious and Charitable Endowments Act (XIX of 1951), S. 87. 1955 Cri LJ 323: AIR 1955 Mad 72 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Government or the Disciplinary Proceedings Tribunal — It falls within Art. 227. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1951 Mad 882 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Scope of — Order of ad hoc Tribunal. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1954 Orissa 67 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Tribunal — Judge appointed for conducting enquiry under S. 22 of Bombay District Municipal Act.

A Judge appointed for conducting an enquiry under S. 22 of the Bombay District Municipal Act (as applied to Saurashtra) is a tribunal within the meaning of the term in Art. 227 of the Constitution. AIR 1951 Sau 15 (15, 16) (Prs 3, 4) (DB).

6 (c). All tribunals exercising judicial or quasi-judicial functions are amenable to supervisory jurisdiction.

●——Art. 227 — Conditions for invoking Art. 136 (1) — Distinction between quasi-judicial and executive decision — "Tribunal' contemplated by Art. 136 (1) — Comparison with Arts. 226 and 227 — Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 10-A — Decision of arbitrator acting under — Appeal under — Appeal under Art. 136 (1) — Not competent — Arbitrator is not a Tribunal, although his decision is quasi-judicial — Positions of Industrial Tribunal and private arbitrator under Arbitration Act compared. See Ibid, Art. 136 (1). AIR 1963 SC 874.

●——Art. 227 — Excise authorities mentioned in Eastern Bengal and Assam Excise Act (1 of 1910) — Excise appellate authority — Whether merely an administrative body which had no judicial or quasi-judicial functions — Power of supervision and control by High Court. See Eastern Bengal and Assam Excise Act (1 of 1910), S. 9. AIR 1958 SC 398.

——Art. 227 — Excise Appellate Authority — Not merely administrative body — Exercises quasi-judicial functions in deciding appeals — Powers of High Court. See Eastern Bengal and Assam Excise Act (1 of 1910), S. 9 (2). AIR 1957 Assam 182 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Quasi-judicial order — Order of State Government removing President of Municipality from office is quasi-judicial. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1965 Bom 187.

——Art. 227 — High Court has power of superintendence over arbitrators functioning under Section 10-A — Arbitrator acts as quasi-judicial body — His orders can be corrected by writ of certiorari. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 10-A. AIR 1962 Bom 274 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Power of superintendence over tribunals — Nature of such tribunals — Tribunal set up under Merchant Shipping Act if Tribunal subject to jurisdiction of High Court — (Merchant Shipping Act (1923), S. 249).

Since the Constitution makers have conferred jurisdiction upon the High Court over tribunals, their intention was clear that the jurisdiction of the High Court should be very wide, and wherever the High Court found a tribunal exercising judicial functions, the High Court could control that tribunal if in exercising those judicial functions it erred or went wrong.

The real question that has got to be decided in order to determine whether a tribunal comes within the jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 227 is whether the statute, which sets that tribunal imposes upon it the duty to act judicially. if that duty is cast upon the tribunal, then the High Court can and will exercise its jurisdiction under Art. 227.

It is not necessary that the decision of the tribunal should have a binding effect and can be enforced and executed. Even if the decision of the tribunal does not decide any question which affects the rights of the parties, the mere fact that the duty is cast upon it to act judicially is sufficient to bring it within the jurisdiction of the High Court: AIR 1950 SC 188 and AIR 1950 SC 222: 1950 SCJ 451: (1950) 2 MLJ 703, Rel. on. AIR 1952 Cal 526 and AIR 1953 Mad 362, Dissented from.

Even an administrative tribunal, if it is bound in law to act judicially, would come within the purview of Art. 227. (1952) 2 QB 413, Ref.

The Tribunal set up under the Merchant Shipping Act is a judicial or a quasi-judicial tribunal which would attract the application of Art. 227 and in respect of which the jurisdiction of the High Court can be invoked under that Article.

What distinguishes a quasi-judicial tribunal from a judicial tribunal is the absence in the former of a decision which disposes of the whole matter by a finding upon the facts in dispute and the application of the law of the land to the facts so found. In so far as there is an investigation under Chap. VI of Merchant Shipping Act into a shipping casuality, the formal investigation must be regarded a quasi-judicial inquiry. The sole ground of incapacity in the tribunal to finally adjudicate upon a matter under enquiry before it cannot justify the view that the enquiry is purely administrative. ILR (1955) Bom 443: 57 Bom LR 186: 1955 Cri LJ 1039: AIR 1955 Bom 241 (242, 246, 247, 249, 250) (Pt A) (Prs 2, 9, 10, 12, 14, 21, 22) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Magistrate refusing to make order for demolition of structure — High Court upholding Magistrate's order in revision — Order is binding on all authorities and tribunals including Commissioner of Corporation over which High Court exercises powers of superintendence. See Municipalities—Calcutta Municipal Act (3 of 1923), S. 363. (1965) 69 Cal WN 249.

——Art. 227 — Orissa Hindu Religious Endowments Act (2 of 1952), Ss. 44 (1), 41, 74 (3) — Judicial and quasi-judicial tribunals — Distinction between — Commissioner acting under S. 44 — Nature of decision — Appeal heard by Single Bench — Applicability of Cl. 10 L. P. — (Letters Patent (Patna) (1916), Cl. 10. See Orissa Hindu Religious Endowments Act (2 of 1952), S. 44 (1). AIR 1959 Orissa 98.

——Arts. 227, 226 — Special Assistant Agent exercising powers under Agency Tracts Interest and Land Transfer Act exercises judicial functions — ((Madras Agency Tracts Interest and Land Transfer Act (1 of 1917), S. 4 (2). See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1953 Orissa 238 (DB).

——Art. 227 —District Judge as persona designata acting as election tribunal — Nature of functions performed by — If he is amenable to judicial superintendence under Art. 227. See Municipalities — Orissa Municipal Act (23 of 1950), S. 21. AIR 1952 Orissa 244 (DB).

——Arts. 227, 226 — Civil P. C. (1908), S. 92 — Function of Advocate-General under S. 92, Civil P. C. — Nature of — Judicial or administrative — Order refusing permission to sue — Interference under Arts. 226 and 227. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1956 Pepsu 65.

——Art. 227 — Decisions of quasi-judicial tribunals — Duty of High Court to protect rights of Indian citizens. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1960 Punj 278.

●——Art. 227 — Orders under Ss. 21 and 23, Punjab Gram Panchayat Act — Whether judicial and revisable — (Panchayats — Punjab Gram Panchayat Act (4 of 1953)).

Per Full Bench.— A Gram Panchayat while proceeding under Ss. 21 and 23 of the Act is acting judicially and therefore, a petition challenging its orders under either of those sections would lie to the High Court under Art. 227 of the Constitution of India.

The Gram Panchayat acting under S. 21 of the Act, would appear to have all the attributes of a judicial tribunal. The crucial test, is whether the statute which sets up the tribunal imposes upon it the duty to act judicially and if such a duty is cast upon the tribunal then the High Court is empowered to exercise its jurisdiction over that tribunal under Art. 227. AIR 1955 Bom 241, Rel. on. Narain Singh Hira Singh v. The State, 1958 Cr LJ 1120: 61 Punj LR 93: ILR (1958) Punj 696: AIR 1958 Punj 372 (375, 376) (Pt A) (Prs 8, 9, 10) (FB).

● ——Art. 227—Tribunal under S. 6 of Abducted Persons (Recovery and Restoration) Act (1949).

(Per Bhandari and Khosla JJ.):— The Tribunal constituted under Section 6 of the Abducted Persons (Recovery and Restoration) Act is subject to the general supervision of the High Court by virtue of Art. 227 of the Constitution inasmuch as the Tribunal performs quasi-judicial functions, for it makes an enquiry into the status of an individual. Ajaib Singh v. State of Punjab, ILR (1962) Punj 381: 54 Pun LR 260: 1952 Cri LJ 1313: AIR 1952 Punj 309 (321, 335) (Pt J) (Prs 49, 155) (FB).

[Reversed on another point in AIR 1953 SC 10]

——Arts. 227, 226 — Civil P. C. (1908), S. 92 — Advocate-General acting under S. 92 — Nature of his function is not judicial or quasi-judicial — No question of revision under Art. 227 or issuing writ under Art. 226 arises. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1955 Raj 166 (DB).

6 (d). Custodian of evacuee property.

——Art. 227 — Jurisdiction of High Court — Decision of Custodian under S. 48 (2) of Administration of Evacuee Property Act — (Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950), S. 48 (2)).

When a Court or a Tribunal with a limited jurisdiction is set up, ordinarily it is the duty and the function of the higher Court to see that the Court or Tribunal of limited jurisdiction functions within the jurisdiction conferred upon it. It is a condition precedent to the exercise of a power of the Custodian under sub-s. (2) that the sum with regard to which he gives his decision or determination must be a sum due under the provisions of the Act. As under Art. 227 of the Constitution every tribunal is subordinate to the High Court, the High Court has the power to examine the decision of the Custodian from the point of view of deciding whether he has acted within jurisdiction. ILR (1956) Bom 865: 58 Bom LR 779: AIR 1956 Bom 652 (654) (Pt C) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Tribunal — Meaning — Custodian of Evacuee Property is Tribunal.

The word 'Tribunal' used in Art. 227 is a general term and it includes a Court of justice or in other words, every Court of Justice or a Court can be described as a tribunal, but every tribunal is not necessarily a Court. Since the legislature has used both the words together their intention appears to be that the word tribunal should have a wider meaning than Court or Court of justice. Probably it would be permissible to think that it is used in the popular sense, meaning a person or body of persons having authority to hear and decide disputes so as to bind the disputants.

Apart from the administrative and executive functions that the Custodian is to perform, it is also a part of his duty to work as a tribunal in the sense mentioned above and accordingly in respect of what he does as a tribunal he is amenable to the jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 227. 3 Pepsu LR 347: AIR 1952 Pepsu 82 (84, 85) (Pt E) (Prs 8, 9) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Power of High Court — When to be exercised — Order of Custodian held proper — Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950), S. 10.

In so far as the Custodian and his subordinates have to decide questions relating to the respective rights of the parties that appear before them they are tribunals and the High Court has power of superintendence over them under Art. 227 of the Constitution. This power includes the power to interfere with their orders in appropriate cases. The power of superintendence is, however, not a power given to the Court to correct errors and the power should be exercised only in cases where the Courts have clearly done something which they were not intended to do and it must be used to keep the Courts within the bounds prescribed by law for such Court: Civ. Misc. No. 1 of 1950, Rel. on.

Thus where the custodian passed an order of allotment and for possession of certain evacuee property, but subsequently finding that the property was in possession of certain tenants of the evacuees who could not be ejected therefrom except in due process of law, the custodian set aside the order and restored the possession to the tenant:

Held, that the custodian's latter order merely rectified the mistake made by his department, which it was open for him to do, and not being a wrong or erroneous order could not be interfered with under Art. 227. AIR 1952 Pepsu 16 (16, 17) (Pr 2).

6 (e). Authorities under Rent Control Acts.

● ——Art. 227 — East Punjab Urban Rent Restriction Act (1959)—Rent Controller and District Judge exercising jurisdiction under Act — They are at least tribunals even if they are not Courts. Waryam Singh v. Amarnath. 1953 All WR (HC) 665 : 1953 All LJ 696 : AIR 1954 SC 215 (216, 217) (Pt A) (Pr 12).

——Art. 227 — Decisions of appellate tribunals under Rent Control Acts — Civil P. C. (1908), Section 115.

Decisions given by appellate tribunals under the Rent Control Acts are not revisable by the High Court under S. 115, Civil P. C. but the Chief Judge of the Small Cause Court Calcutta hearing an appeal from the decision of the Rent Controller is a tribunal functioning in an area over which the High Court exercises jurisdiction and an application under Art. 227 to revise the order of the Chief Judge would lie. 55 Cal WN 287: AIR 1952 Cal 290 (290) (Pt A) (Pr 2) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Jammu and Kashmir Constitution Act (14 of 1996), S. 64 — High Court has power of superintendence over Court of Rent Controller — (Houses and Rents — Jammu and Kashmir Houses and Shops Rent Control Act (S. M. 2009), S. 21) — (Letters Patent (Jammu and Kashmir), S. 22. See J. and K. Constitution Act (14 of 1996), S. 64. AIR 1955 J and K 29.

——Art. 227 — 'Tribunal' — Allotment of house by Rent Controller — District Judge hearing appeal against order is tribunal subject to High Court's jurisdiction under Art. 227—(Houses and Rents — M. B. Sthan Niyantran Vidhan (Sm. 2006), Ss. 9 and 13).

The decision of the Rent Controller as to whether a particular house should be allotted to a particular person is no doubt an administrative decision. But in arriving at that decision he has to act judicially and in accordance with the provisions of S. 13. He would therefore, be a tribunal within the purview of Art. 227.

The District Judge hearing an appeal under S. 9 against the order of the Rent Controller allotting the house, if not a Court, is certainly a judicial tribunal subject to the jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 227. AIR 1950 SC 188 and AIR 1950 SC 222, Applied. 1956 MBLJ 1267: AIR 1957 Madh Bha 11 (11) (Pt A) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Interference with findings of Rent Controller.

It is within the jurisdiction of the Rent Controller and the Deputy Commissioner to decide whether A never became the sub-tenant of B and whether B never sub-let house to him as special tribunals constituted for the purpose of deciding cases arising between landlords and tenants, and it is not open to the High Court in exercise of the extraordinary jurisdiction given to the High Court by Art. 227 to set aside their decision. ILR (1952) Patiala 345: AIR 1952 Pepsu 174 (175) (Pt A) (Pr 4).

——Art. 227 — Powers of High Court under.

The Deputy Commissioner when he hears appeals from the order of the Rent Controller under the Patiala and East Punjab States Union Urban Rent Restriction Ordinance is without doubt a tribunal. So far as the Controller is concerned his functions are entirely judicial, and the High Court has power of superintendence over them by virtue of Art. 227 of the Constitution. The power under Art. 227 should be exercised in exceptional cases. Where both the Controller and the Deputy Commissioner ignored the express provisions of law, i.e. Section 13 (2) proviso of the Ordinance which means that they omitted or refused to exercise jurisdiction which the law gave them, it is the duty of High Court to set aside their orders. (The matter however having come up before the High Court under Art. 227 it was doubtful whether the High Court could do exactly what an appellate Court or a Court of revision could do. Accordingly, the High Court allowed the petition to the extent that it quashed the order of the Deputy Commissioner and sent back the case to him with the direction that he should accept the petitioner's appeal from the order of the Rent Controller and order the ejectment of the tenant from the house in question. 3 Pepsu LR 347, Rel. on. ILR (1952) Patiala 345: AIR 1952 Pepsu 174 (177, 178) (Pt C) (Pr 11).

——Art. 227 — Proceedings under Punjab Urban Rent Restriction Act. See Civil P. C. (1908), Section 151. ILR (1957) Punj 611.

6 (f). Revenue Courts and Tribunals.

——Art. 227 — Tribunal — Revenue Divisional Officer acting under S. 13, Madras Act (2 of 1894).

The Revenue Divisional Officer cannot be said to be acting as a Tribunal in registering the name of the minor as the holder of the office under S. 13 of the Act (Act 2 of 1894). He merely accepts the name submitted by the proprietor and enters it in official records for the purpose of evidence. He is not the appoining authority, the appointing authority, as is clear from the provisions of Section 10 being the proprietor himself. Article 227 of the Constitution confers jurisdiction only in respect of Courts and Tribunals unlike Art. 226 which refers to any person or authority. 1955 Andhra WR 290: AIR 1955 Andhra 192 (194) (Pt D) (Pr 4).

——Art. 227 — Tribunal — Revenue Commissioner sitting as appellate or revisional tribunal falls under Art. 227 — (Bhopal Land Revenue Act (4 of 1932), S. 38). AIR 1955 NUC (Bhopal) 1784.

——Art. 227 —Orders of Mamlatdar and Collector under Mamlatdar's Courts Act — Interference with under Art. 227 of Constitution. See Bombay Mamlatdar's Courts Act (2 of 1908), S. 19 AIR 1954 Kutch 47.

——Art. 227 — Power of superintendence — Board of Revenue under Madhya Bharat Land Revenue and Tenancy Act (66 of 1950) — If a tribunal subject to the High Court's superintendence under Art. 227 — Power of the State Legislature to take away powers given under Art. 227 — M. B. Act (66 of 1950), S. 147 — Validity.

In the exercise of its judicial functions, the Board of Revenue under the M. B. Act (66 of 1950), is tribunal subject to the superintendence of the H. C. under Art. 227 of the Constitution. The power of superintendence under this Article includes not only superintendence on administrative points but superintendence on judicial side also. This power of superintendence is not restricted to cases of non-exercise or illegal exercise of jurisdiction but extends also to cases where there has been an obvious miscarriage of justice because a Court or tribunal has approached the matter entrusted to it in an arbitrary or despotic manner and against all rules of natural justice. But the power cannot be exercised to disturb a decision of a Court or a tribunal merely because it has misconceived a point of law or come to a wrong decision on the facts.

The right given to the High Court under Art. 227 cannot be taken away by any State Legislature. So Section 147 of the M. B. Act (66 of 1950) cannot be construed so as to take away this power and if it does take it away, to that extent it is ultra vires. MBLJ 1952 (Civ) 94: AIR 1952 Madh Bha 51 (51, 52, 53) (Prs 3, 4, 5, 15) (DB).

——Arts. 227, 226 — Order of Revenue Court refusing to declare petitioner as occupancy tenant — Interference — (Tenancy Laws — C. P. Tenancy Act (1 of 1920), S. 41). See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1956 Nag 65 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Decision of Board of Revenue.

The High Court can exercise its general power of superintendence under Art. 227, over the Board of Revenue and under appropriate circumstances an order of the Board of Revenue can be interfered with by the High Court, if special circumstances are made out for such interference. AIR 1952 Vindh Pra 10, Ref. AIR 1953 Raj 86 (87) (Pt A) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Arts. 227 and 226 — Applicability — Chief Court of Rewa holding the claim to lie in Revenue Courts — Decision of the Board of Revenue — Cognisable only by a civil Court — Conflict of jurisdiction — No other remedy — Relief under extraordinary powers — Art. 227 applies — J. C.'s Court's powers to resolve the conflict.

A suit for eviction of tenants from buildings used by an agriculturist and also the surrounding lands was instituted in a civil Court which was ultimately directed by the Chief Court of Rewa to be filed in a Revenue Court. The matter was decided by the D. C. and the decision was confirmed by the Revenue Commissioner but the Board of Revenue finally ordered the matter could be decided only by a civil Court. The plaintiff applied under Arts. 226 and 227 for a direction.

Held, (i) Art. 226 does not apply to the instant case. Art. 227 gives formal expression to the powers of the J. C.'s Court to be exercised in its extraordinary supervisory jurisdiction, which power can be exercised over the Board of Revenue also. The only limitation is that it should be exercised in very exceptional circumstances where the grievance of a party has no other remedy provided for. (AIR 1952 Vin Pra 10, Rel. on; AIR 1952 All 788, Ref.).

(ii) In view of S. 239 (9) of Rewa Land Revenue and Tenancy Code (corresponding to S. 289 of the U. P. Tenancy Act) the highest Court of general jurisdiction could resolve the conflict of jurisdiction. The Durbar of Rewa State was competent previously and it can now be exercised by the J. C.'s Court.

(iii) The civil Courts have general jurisdiction to decide all civil disputes except in so far it is ousted by special statutes as in the cases of disputes made triable by the Board of Revenue and its subordinate Courts. Civil Courts have got the residuary jurisdiction. Hence the highest Court of general jurisdiction has to decide, in a matter of conflict of jurisdiction, whether it should itself exercise the jurisdiction or the Special Court should exercise it. (AIR 1918 Mad 786; AIR 1940 Rang 84; AIR 1941 Lah 234, Ref. to.).

In any view the order of the Board was not correct in view of the order of Chief Court and, therefore, the Board had to be directed to treat as final the decision of the Chief Court that the matter was triable by a Revenue Court. AIR 1952 Vin Pra 74 (75, 76) (Prs 3, 4, 5, 8).

——Art. 227 (1) (2) and (3) — Courts and Tribunals — Power of superintendence, if extends over Board of Revenue.

The Sub-article (1) of Art. 227 enunciates a general principle whereas the sub-articles (2) and (3) describe some, but certainly not the only ways in which the superintendence may be exercised. These are not exhaustive, but are specially mentioned because of their practical importance in the case of the Courts directly subordinate to the High Court. The specific mention of certain forms of superintendence in (2) and (3) does not, however, in any manner qualify the general powers of superintendence provided in the subarticle (1). The High Court has, therefore, powers of superintendence over the Board of Revenue. AIR 1952 Vin Pra 10 (10, 11) (Pt B) (Prs 4, 6).

6 (g). Election Tribunal.

——Arts. 227 and 329 — Power of superintendence over Election Tribunals.

No provision in the Constitution except Art. 329 can be said to take away the power of superintendence which the High Court exercises under Art. 227 over an Election Tribunal when once it has been constituted to hear a petition. Subclause 4 of the Art. 227 excludes only Tribunals constituted by or under any law relating to the Armed Forces and therefore no weight can be attached to the contention that the power of superintendence does not extend over tribunals created under the provisions of the Constitution itself and consequently over an Election Tribunal created under part 15 of the Constitution.

It is no doubt settled that Art. 329 (b) ousts the jurisdiction of the Courts with regard to matters arising between the 'commencement of the polling and the 'final selection'. But Art. 324 and the preamble to Act 43 of 1951 show that the superintendence of the work of the Election Tribunals has not been vested in the Election Commission. Had that been the intention, Art. 324 (1) would have been differently worded and instead of specifying that the power included the power of appointment of Election Tribunals for a particular purpose, the Article could have easily stated that the sphere of superintendence included decision of doubts and disputes arising out of or in connection with elections. The words used in Art. 324 are 'doubts and disputes arising out of or in connection with elections and not in the course of the election' and therefore, it is clear that the process of election comes to an end with the declaration of the result of the polling and does not cover the adjudication of disputes 'arising out of or in connection with' elections.

To accept the contention that, since under cl.(c) of Section 98 of Act 43 of 1951 the Tribunal may not only declare the result of the returned candidate to be void, but may also declare the petitioner or any other candidate to have been duly elected in certain cases, the result of the election is not finally declared and the final selection not known till the result of the election petition is announced and, as such, all proceedings before the Election Tribunal must be deemed to be proceedings in election and subject to the supervision of the Election Commission and therefore, the extraordinary powers conferred under Art. 227 cannot be exercised would create an anomaly in that the Supreme Court while acting under the powers conferred on it by Art. 71 (1) would be subject to the superintendence of the Election Commission, a state of affairs which could never have been intended.

Further, in cases in which election petitions are presented, there is no extension of the period, as visualised by S. 153, Representation of the People Act, 1951, by which the elections have to be completed. In those cases the Election Commission itself holds that election is completed as soon as the result of the polling is announced and publishes the names of the members elected to the State Legislative Assembly who are for all purposes treated as duly elected. There can be no 'elected person' till the process of election has been completed.

Therefore, Art. 329 (b) does not bar the jurisdiction of the High Court to exercise supervision over an Election Tribunal constituted after the declaration of the election result to decide disputes connected with the election or arising out of the same. 1953 AMLJ 1: AIR 1954 Ajmer 33 (35, 36) (Pt C) (Prs 8, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 18).

——Arts. 227 and 241 — Power of superintendence — Extent of — Election tribunals — (Elections).

Election Tribunals are subject to the superintendence of the High Court under Art. 227 and the superintendence is both judicial as well as administrative. AIR 1959 Him Pra 25 (28) (Pt D) (Pr 20).

——Art. 227 — Powers of High Court.

In the exercise of powers conferred by Art. 227 of the Constitution, the Court of the Judicial Commissioner, Himachal Pradesh, can interfere with the orders and decisions of Election Tribunals, functioning within the jurisdiction of that Court. AIR 1954 SC 215 and AIR 1955 SC 233, Rel. on. AIR 1958 Him Pra 26 (29) (Pt C) (Pr 27).

——Art. 227 — Election — Revision — Election Tribunal is Court subordinate to the High Court. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. 1960 Cr LJ 484 : AIR 1960 Madh Pra 115 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Panchayats — Madras Village Panchayats Act (1950), Section 19 (1) — Election petition — District Munsiff enquiring into election petition acts as persona designata — Revision under S. 115, Cvil P. C., does not lie from his order — Civil P. C. (1908), S. 115 . See Panchayats — Madras Village Panchayats Act (10 of 1950), S. 19 (1). AIR 1960 Mad 353.

——Art. 227 — Writ against decision of Election Tribunal. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1954 Nag 166 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Election tribunal — Superintendence over.

The language of Art. 227 is comprehensive enough to enable the High Court to exercise its powers of superintendence over the election tribunal appointed under the Representation of the People Act, 1951. ILR (1953) Cut 682: AIR 1954 Orissa 67 (68) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Interference with decision of Election Tribunal. See Municipalities — Orissa Municipal Act (23 of 1950), S. 18 (2) (b). AIR 1953 Orissa 313 (DB).

——Arts. 227 (1), 226 and 245 (1)—Municipalities—Orissa Municipal Act (23 of 1950), Ss. 21, 22, 23 — District Judge as persona designata acting as Election Tribunal performs judicial function and comes under powers of judicial superintendence of High Court under Art. 227 (1) of Constitution. See Municipalities — Orissa Municipal Act (1950), S. 21. AIR 1952 Orissa 244 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Election Tribunal.

An Election Tribunal is undoubtelv a 'Tribunal' over the proceedings of which the High Court has the power of superintendence under Art. 227 of the Constitution. ILR (1954) Patiala 387: AIR 1954 Pepsu 118 (121) (Pt D) (Pr 10) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Power of superintendence —Election Tribunal is Court of Justice amenable to control of High Court. ILR (1954) Patiala 1: AIR 1953 Pepsu 133 (135, 136) (Pt A) (Pr 2) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Election Commissioner.

The Election Commissioner is a Tribunal with all the trappings of a Court and he exercises judicial as distinct from administrative functions. AIR 1955 Trav-Co 24 (25) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

6 (h). Authority under Motor Vehicles Act.

——Art. 227 — Government acting under S. 64A, Motor Vehicles Act (1939). is tribunal. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1957 Andh Pra 739.

● ——Art. 227 — "Tribunal" Commissioner of Division exercising appellate functions under Motor Vehicles Act.

The Commissioner of a Division hearing an appeal from a decision of the Regional Transport Authority granting a stage carriage permit under the Motor Vehicles Act is a "tribunal" within the meaning of Art. 227 of the Constitution. Sabitri Motor Service, Ltd. v. Asansol Bus Association, ILR (1951) 2 Cal 437: 55 CWN 81: AIR 1951 Cal 255 (257) (Pt C) (Pr 13) (SB).

——Art. 227 — Applicability — Order passed by Transport Appellate Tribunal in exercise of jurisdiction as a judicial body. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1953 Vin Pra 49.

——Art. 227 — Judicial authority — Appellate Tribunal under Motor Vehicles Act — High Court's power of superintendence over. See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 64. AIR 1953 Vin Pra 41.

6 (i). Authority under Payment of Wages Act.

——Art. 227 — Applicability — Decision under Payment of Wages Act (1936).

As a matter of practice all decisions under the Payment of Wages Act must be challenged, if at all, under Art. 227 of the Constitution of India. AIR 1955 Bom 460, Foll. AIR 1956 Bom 391 (392) (Pt A) (Pr 2) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Decisions under Payment of Wages Act.

As a matter of practice, all decisions under the Payment of Wages Act if they are to be challenged at all should be challenged under Art. 227. (1955) 1 Lab LJ 555: (1955-56) 9 FJR 311: 57 Bom LR 887: ILR (1955) Bom 814: AIR 1955 Bom 460 (463) (Pt B) (Pr 11) (DB).

——Art. 227 —Authority under Payment of Wages Act, is not Court subordinate to High Court — Decision of Authority — When can be interfered with under Art. 227. See Civil P. C. (1908), S. 115. AIR 1961 Punj 154.

6 (j). Industrial Tribunals and Labour Courts.

——Art. 227 — Decision of Labour Court — Dismissal of employee held wrongful — Interference by High Court — Principle. See Ibid, Art. 226. (1960) 1 Andh WR 133: AIR 1960 Andh Pra 526 (DB).

——Art. 227 —Tribunal — Order of Govt. under S. 8 Industrial Disputes Act, if can be challenged.

Per Ram Labhaya, J.: The powers of superintendence under Art. 227 can be exercised over Courts and Tribunals. The Provincial Government when it acts under S. 8 is not a superior tribunal directing transfer of a case from one subordinate tribunal to another and as such its action, even if wrong, is not open to challenge under Art 227. ILR (1951) 3 Assam 147: 3 FJR 195: AIR 1951 Assam 96 (99, 100) (Pt D) (Prs 19, 20) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Industrial Tribunal is such tribunal as is contemplated in Art. 227. 54 Cal WN 784: 86 Cal LJ 152: (1950-51) 2 FJR 81: AIR 1950 Cal 457 (462) (Pt D) (Pr 49) (DB).

6 (k). Decision of authority under Minimum Wages Act.

——Arts. 227, 226 — Minimum Wages Act (1948), S. 20 —Order under — High Court can interfere — (Civil P. C. (1908), S. 115). See Minimum Wages Act (1948), S. 20. AIR 1960 Assam 123.

——Art. 227 — Scope —High Court can interfere with orders of Authority under Minimum Wages Act. See Ibid, Art. 226. ILR (1961) 2 Ker 637.

6 (l). Nyaya Panchayats.

● ——Art. 227—Nyaya Panchayat established under U. P. Panchayat Raj Act — Is a Court subordinate to High Court within S. 3 — Supervisory jurisdiction of High Court is sufficient test of judicial subordination. (Majority view) AIR 1957 All 495, Overruled. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. 1962 (2) Cri LJ 1: AIR 1962 All 315 (FB).

——Art. 227 — "Court subordinate" — Essentials of subordination — Arts. 227 and 228 —(Civil Procedure Code (1908), S. 115).

One of the constitutional requirements of a subordinate Court is that it must be presided over by a person appointed by the Governor in accordance with the rules made by him after consultation with the High Court. If a local Act such as the Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, does not intend that persons appointed to preside over Courts created by it are required to be appointed in accordance with the rules made by the Governor after consultation with the High Court, it means that it does not intend the new Courts to be subordinate Courts, at least within the meaning of the Constitution. A Court does not become subordinate to the High Court merely because it is under its supervisory jurisdiction. The provisions of Art. 237 show that magisterial Courts are not subordinate Courts within the meaning of Ch. VI. If they are not subordinate Courts, other Courts created under local and special Acts, such as Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, alsi are not subordinate Courts. 1958 All WR (HC) 330 : (1957) 2 Lab LJ 225 : AIR 1957 All 495 (501) (Pt B) (Pr 5).

(Overruled in AIR 1962 All 315 (FB).)

——Art. 227 — U. P. Panchayat Raj Act (26 of 1947), S. 85 (5) — Proceedings of Panchayati adalat or orders passed in revision — Power to interfere.

Springing as the power this article does from the Constitution, which is the parent of all Acts and statutes in India, the fact that the judgment or order of a Court or tribunal has been made final by an Act or the fact that the body performing judicial functions is special tribunal constituted under a statute cannot be set up as a bar to the exercise of the power by the High Court. Therefore, notwithstanding the provisions of S. 85 (5), U. P. Panchayat Raj Act the High Court can exercise its powers of superintendence over proceedings of Panchayati Adalat or any order passed in revision therefrom. 1952 All WR (HC) 547 : 1952 Cri LJ 1282 : 1952 All LJ 493 : AIR 1952 All 788 (792, 793) (Pt B) (Prs 14, 15, 17).

——Art. 227 — Nyaya Panchayats under Act 1 of 1947 — C. P. and Berar Panchayats Act (1 of 1947), S. 83 (3).

The High Court has no power of revision having regard to S. 83 (3) of the Central Provinces and Berar Panchayats Act, 1946 (1 of 1947). But where the offence was committed on the 11th June 1950, the High Court undoubtedly has power of judicial superintendence over the Nyaya Panchayat tribunals exercising powers under the Act, having regard to Art. 227 (1) of the Constitution. 1952 Nag LJ 503 : 1953 Cri L Jour 251 : ILR (1952) Nag 936 : AIR 1953 Nag 14 (15) (Pt A) (Pr 2) (DB).

6 (m). Collector acting under Land Acquisition Act.

——Art. 227 — Tribunal — Land Acquisition Act (1894), S. 11 — Collector making award not a tribunal but acts as officer of Government.

No application under Art. 227, of the Constitution of India, is maintainable against the Collector's award under S. 11, Land Acquisition Act. The Collector while making an award under section 11 of the Land Acquisition Act acts merely as an officer of the Government making enquiries in order to determine what money the Government would offer to the persons whose land is acquired. He neither acts as a tribunal, nor a judicial officer : ILR 30 Cal 36 and ILR 32 Cal 605 (PC) and AIR 1961 SC 1500, Rel. on. AIR 1951 Cal 258 (SB) and AIR 1952 Orissa 98, not good law in view of AIR 1961 SC 1500. The award merely becomes a final and conclusive evidence as between the Collector and a person whose land is acquired regarding the three matters referred to in S. 12, but it is not a decree. AIR 1965 Cal 638 (639, 640) (Prs 1, 2) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Collector dealing with reference is a tribunal — Hence is subject to jurisdiction of High Court within Art. 227 — Land Acquisition Act (1894), S. 18.

The Collector, in making or refusing the reference particularly in refusing it on ground of limitation is certainly acting judicially or, at least, quasi-judicially and would come within the term 'tribunal' under Art. 227 of the Constitution. Thus he is amenable to the jurisdiction of High Court under Art. 227. 12 CWN 241: AIR 1952 Cal 526; 16 CWN 327 and AIR 1962 Orissa 98, Foll. (1962) 66 Cal WN 446 : 1964 Cal L Jour 114.

7. Revision and power of superintendence.

——Art. 227 — Registrar and Assistant Registrar of Co-operative Societies — They cannot be said to be subordinate to High Court assuming they are Courts — Word "subordination" used in article cannot have different meaning from the word "subordination" and is not synonymous with it. 1962 All LJ 57 : 1963 (1) Cri L Jour 507 (511) (Pt 8).

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1965 All 263 (FB).]

——Arts. 227, 234, 237 and 228 — Court whether becomes Subordinate Court merely because it comes under supervisory jurisdiction of High Court — Essentials of — (Civil P. C. (1908), Sections 115 and 3). See Ibid, Art. 234. AIR 1957 All 495.

[Overruled by AIR 1962 All 315 (FB).]

——Art. 227—Bar of revisional jurisdiction of High Court under S. 115, C. P. Code—Jurisdiction under Art. 226 or 227 if can be invoked. See Municipalities — U. P. Municipalities Act (2 of 1916), S. 23. AIR 1955 NUC (All) 2681.

——Art. 227 — Court subordinate — Meaning — Collector acting under Madras Hereditary Village Office Act and the appellate authority acting under Rule 38 thereunder — Are civil Courts and Courts subordinate to High Court within the meaning of S. 115 Civil P. C. See Civil P. C. (1908), S. 115. AIR 1963 Andh Pra 37.

——Art. 227 — Article not intended to be substitute for revisional jurisdiction of High Court. AIR 1958 Assam 77 (78) (Pt B) (Pr 1) (DB).

●——Art. 227 — Powers of revision — Taken away by statute — Order in appeal under S. 9, Assam Adhiars Protection and Regulation Act.

Since the jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 227 of the Constitution is extraordinary, it should not serve ordinarily as a substitute for revisional jurisdiction in cases where the revisional jurisdiction has been taken away from the High Court by a competent Legislature, though even in such cases absence, excess or abuse of jurisdiction will justify interference. The Assam Adhiars Protection and Regulation Act, 1948, does not provide for a remedy by way of revision. Where the Deputy Commissioner has given certain reasons for his decision in an appeal preferred under S. 9 of that Act, the High Court will not consider whether the reasons are right or wrong in the exercise of its extraordinary jurisdiction under Art. 227 of the Constitution. Jagat Chandra De v. Gopalram Das. ILR (1952) 4 Assam 478 : AIR 1952 Assam 166 (167) (Pr 2) (FB).

——Art. 227 — High Court's power of revision — Scope of, S. 115, Civil P. C. See Civil P. C. (1908), S. 115. AIR 1962 Cal 597 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Revision of appellate orders — Revision lies under S. 115, Civil P. C. and not under Art. 227 of the Constitution. See Payment of Wages Act (1936), S. 17. AIR 1963 Madh Pra 25 (DB).

●——Art. 227 — Nature of jurisdiction under — It is not original but revision. : See Ibid, Art. 133. AIR 1960 Pat 361 (FB).

——Art. 227 — Civil P. C. (1908), S. 115 — Respective scope.

The ultimate basic purpose and object of these two provisions is not materially different, for they are both designed to clothe the High Court with power to set right the orders of the subordiate Tribunals and Courts, if there is inter alia a jurisdictional infirmity resulting in failure of justice. ILR (1965) 2 Punj 485.

——Art. 227 — Applicability — Petition under S. 115, Civil P. C. (1908), and Art. 227 of Constitution challenging order of Authority under Payment of Wages Act — Authority not being subordinate to High Court, S. 115, Civil P. C. or S. 44, Punjab Courts Act not applicable—Petition though not maintainable under S. 115, Civil P. C. can be treated as one under Art. 227 of Constitution. See Civil P. C. (1908), S. 115. AIR 1964 Punj 242 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Power of High Court — Order under S. 15, Payment of Wages Act.

The High Court has, apart from S. 115, Civil Procedure Code, power to examine the legality of the order under S. 15, Payment of Wages Act and it is competent to interfere if the order could not have been legally made and was outside the jurisdiction of the authority concerned. (1961) 1 Lab LJ 627 : 1960-1 Fac LR 381 : 62 Pun LR 359 : ILR (1960) 2 Punj 129 : (1960-61) 19 FJR 4 : AIR 1960 Punj 375 (375) (Pt A) (Pr 2) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Jurisdiction of High Court—Order of sentence under Punjab Gram Panchayat Act — High Court's revisional powers under S. 439, Criminal Procedure Code and Arts. 227 and 226 of the Constitution — Finality of orders under Act. See Panchayats — Punjab Gram Panchayat Act (4 of 1953), S. 66. AIR 1960 Punj 160.

——Art. 227 — Decree passed by Civil Court in small cause jurisdiction — Revision against — Power of High Court.

Even though S. 115, Civil P. C. cannot be invoked to correct grave illegalities that may be committed by subordinate Courts in the trial and disposal of Small Cause suits, the High Court can rectify such errors and illegalities in the exercise of the general power of superintendence over all subordinate Courts as conferred by Art. 227 of the Constitution.

The power conferred by this Article, though very wide, cannot be freely used as a general revisory jurisdiction. On the other hand, such power will be exercised only in exceptional cases and to prevent the perpetration of illegal or unauthorised acts by subordinate tribunals, resulting in a miscarriage of justice. 1952 Ker LT 538 : AIR 1953 Trav-Co 41 (43) (Pt D) (Pr 5) (DB).

8. Power conferred is not an appellate power.

——Art. 227 — Exercise of jurisdiction under — Court does not function as Court of appeal — Punishment awarded by academic council — Court whether can look into propriety of order. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1960 All 642.

——Art. 227 — High Court does not act as Court of Appeal.

The High Court under Art. 227 does not act as a Court of appeal and consequently a mere error in the decision of the inferior tribunal cannot be a ground of interference. AIR 1964 Andh Pra 528 (530) (Pt A) (Pr 7).

——Art. 227 — Powers of High Court under — Power under Art. 227 is not substitute for ordinary revisional or appellate powers — (Hyderahad Debt Conciliation Act (1 of 1349 F), S. 22). AIR 1955 NUC (Hyd) 2963 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Jurisdiction of High Court — Nature and extent of.

Proceedings under Art. 227 of the Constitution cannot really be equated to an appeal (to the Supreme Court) permitted under Art. 136 of the Constitution. It is a revisional jurisdiction that can be exercised by the High Court in proceedings under Art. 227 of the Constitution. In exercising that jurisdiction the High Court does not convert itself into a Court of appeal. (1958) 2 Lab LJ 602: 71 Mad LW 679: (1958-59) 15 FJR 25: 1958 Mad WN 732: (1959) 1 Mad LJ 235: 1959 Mad LJ (Cri) 241.

——Art. 227 — Interference — Powers of High Court — Not appellate. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1958 Mys 26 (DB).

●——Arts. 227 and 226 — Does not give power to hear appeal where it does not lie.

Per Hidayatullah, J.:— The power of superintendence which is given by Art. 227 is a power merely to correct errors of jurisdiction. This visitorial power has never been understood to give to the High Court a power to hear appeals where such appeals do not lie. Nor does it give a power to substitute a decision which the High Court thinks is correct, in place of the decision of the inferior Court or tribunal.

Similarly Art. 226 does not give the High Court a power of appeal where the statute specifically bars such an appeal. Bhailal Jagadish v. Additional Deputy Commissioner, Akola, ILR (1952) Nag 839: 1952 Nag LJ 613: AIR 1953 Nag 89 (92, 94) (Pt C) (Prs 11, 25) (FB).

——Art. 227 — Nature of jurisdiction under.

For purposes of Art. 227 the High Court is neither a Court of Appeal nor a Court of Revision from the orders of the tribunals. It can interfere only in those cases where the tribunal has acted without jurisdiction or there is a mistake apparent on the record or its decision is opposed to natural justice.

Where appellate authority while hearing an appeal from the decision of the Rent Controller had jurisdiction to decide whether rent was payable in advance or monthly and whether the petitioner was entitled to have the amount that he had paid over and above the fair rent accounted towards the rent due from him, his decision cannot be interfered with under Art. 227. AIR 1953 Assam 35, Diss from. ILR (1953) Patiala 396: AIR 1954 Pepsu 58 (58) (Pr 3).

——Art. 227 — Power of High Court under article is different from power that Court of appeal or revision possesses. AIR 1954 Pepsu 17 (Pt A) (Pr 3).

——Art. 227 — High Court does not act under article either as a Court of appeal or as a Court of revision. AIR 1953 Pepsu 133 (141) (Pt J) (Pr 21) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Power of Superintendence under — Nature and use of.

The power of superintendence over Courts and tribunals does involve power to interfere with their decisions in appropriate cases, but it is quite different from the power that is possessed by an appellate Court and further, being an extraordinary power it should be exercised most sparingly. AIR 1951 Cal 193, Relied on.

Held the case was not one in which the exercise of power was called for. 3 Pepsu LR 347: AIR 1952 Pepsu 82 (85) (Pt F) (Prs 10, 11) (DB).

——Arts. 227, 226 — Notaries Act (1952), S. 15—Notaries Rules (1956), R. 13 (12) — Infraction of rules — Quantum of punishment for — Government alone is competent to decide — Court cannot act as Court of appeal for determining quantum, in petition under Arts. 226, 227 of Constitution. See Notaries Act (1952), S. 15. AIR 1965 Punj 220.

——Art. 227 — Supervisory or revisional power — Its exercise — Its limits — Difference between this and appellate power.

Supervisory or revisional power is considered to be a power vesting in the higher or superior tribunal to satisfy itself about the soundness or correctness of the order of the inferior tribunal. One usually accepted difference between the two powers (appellate and supervisory) appears to be that an appeal confers a right on the aggrieved party to complain in the prescribed manner to the higher forum whereas the supervisory or revisional power has for its object the right and responsibility of the higher forum to keep the subordinate tribunals within the bounds of laws. The latter power, therefore, can always be exercised suo motu in order to see that the subordinate tribunals do not transgress the limits of law and keep themselves within the power conferred on them. In order to perform this function in the interests of administration of law, it must be held to be implicit that the supervisory tribunal must also act within the legal limits of the statutory provisions, for the proper administration of which it has been vested with the supervisory power. ILR (1962) 1 Punj 285: AIR 1962 Punj 94 (100) (Pt D) (Pr 12).

——Art. 227 — Powers of High Court— In the proceedings under Arts. 226 and 227 the High Court does not act as a Court of appeal and would not interfere where the subordinate tribunal had acted within its jurisdiction. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1962 Punj 93.

——Art. 227 — Power of superintendence—Limits.

The power of superintendence under Art. 227 of the Constitution is not the same as is exercisable by a Court of appeal but should be confined to keeping the subordinate Courts and other tribunals within the narrow limits which the law prescribes for them. It does not give the High Court the power to interfere in every case but in cases which would be proper for exercising the powers of issue of mandamus. 33 C 68; AIR 1933 Cal 132 and AIR 1951 Cal 193, Rel. on. 53 PLR 175: AIR 1951 Punj 108 (109) (Pr 7).

9. Other remedy open.

(a) Jurisdiction under Article not barred by existence of another remedy.
(b) Impugned order open to revision.
(c) Relief obtainable by suit.
(d) Availability of remedy under Art. 226.

9. Other remedy open.

——Art. 227 — Power under article should not ordinarily be exercised if any other remedy is available. 1958 All LJ 315: 1958 All WR (HC) 445 : AIR 1958 All 456 (464) (Pt A) (Pr 36) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Other remedy open. See Panchayast—U. P. Panchayat Raj Act (26 of 1947), S. 85. AIR 1955 NUC (All) 1175.

——Art. 227 — Powers of superintendence — Exercise of — Other remedies open — Order supportable on another ground — Interference. See Panchayats — U. P. Panchayat Raj Act, S. 85. AIR 1953 All 180.

——Art. 227 — Other remedy open — Exercise of jurisdiction under Art. 227.

If any relief in respect of an injury can be claimed by another provision of the law, the High Court would not exercise its jurisdiction under Art. 227 of the Constitution to grant such relief. 1952 All LJ 647: 1952 All WR (HC) 638: 1952 RD (HC) 372: AIR 1953 All 55 (57) (Pt B) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Other remedy open to party — Power under article should not be exercised. 1952 Cri LJ 1282: 1952 All LJ 493: 1952 All WR (HC) 547 : AIR 1952 All 788 (792, 793) (Pt B) (Prs 14, 15).

——Art. 227 — Right to obtain remedy under article depends on there being no other remedy — Further the remedying of the wrong must be essential to prevent very serious results. 1952 All LJ 283: 1952 All WR (HC) 239: AIR 1952 All 750 (Prs 5, 6) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Power of superintendence — Scope.

The superintendence referred to in Art. 227 of the Constitution of India does not invest the High Court with an unlimited prerogative to interfere in cases where a wrong decision has been arrived at either in fact or in law and the powers contained therein must be restricted to cases of grave dereliction of duty and flagrant abuse of any fundamental principles of law. The right to obtain relief under it depends further on the conditions that no other remedy is available to the applicant and the remedying of the wrong is essential in order to prevent very serious results. 1952 ALJ 180 : 1952 AWR (HC) 106 : 1952 Cri LJ 1176 : 1952 RD (HC) 180 : AIR 1952 All 526 (527) (Pt A) (Pr 3).

——Art. 227 — Other remedy open — Interference by High Court. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1958 Assam 77 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Power of superintendence — 'Superintendence' is of wide connotation — It should be invoked generally only where there is no other remedy available. 1956 Andh LT 61: (1956) 29 ITR 222: 1956 Andh WR 729: AIR 1957 Andh Pra 672 (674) (Pt B) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Appeal against revised assessment order dismissed — Application for review dismissed — Express remedy under Section 23 (1) not availed of — Writ petition challenging the order not entertained. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1963 Mah LJ (Notes) 25.

——Art. 227 — Other remedy open — Interference — Grounds. See Ibid, Art. 226. (1958) 60 Bom LR 210.

——Arts. 227 and 226 — Other adequate legal remedy — Effect.

If the law provides adequate legal remedy, which remedy is as efficacious as the remedy which the High Court can give under the Constitution, then the petitioner must exhaust that remedy before he comes to the High Court for the exercise of its special jurisdiction under Arts. 226 and 227.

Thus where a dismissed police constable instead of going to the appellate Tribunal which the Police Act sets up comes to the High Court by an application under Art. 227 by way, as it were, of a short circuit the High Court cannot permit the petition to do that. AIR 1956 Bom 545 (548) (Pt D) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Order dismissing application under S. 15 (2) for want of sufficient cause — Remedy against lies only under Arts. 226 and 227. See Payment of Wages Act (1936), S. 17. AIR 1954 Bom 537 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Another remedy open — Remedy under Art. 227. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1951 Bom 423 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Alternative remedy under S. 33 of Lunacy Act — S. 33 only applies to an admitted lunatic detained under Ss. 14, 15 or 17 and not otherwise. 67 Cal WN 297: (1963) 1 Cri LJ 579: AIR 1963 Cal 261 (273) (Pt O) (Pr 46) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Exercise of power under.

Under Art. 227 every High Court has power of superintendence over all judicial and quasi-judicial bodies within its territorial limits in respect of both judicial and administrative matters. However unlimited the control may be in its scope and extent, its exercise should be judicially restrained. For ordinary cases the normal remedies under the municipal laws are available and it is only wise that the field pertaining to such remedies should be left untouched by the constitutional powers under Art. 227. Only, therefore, where grave injustice has occurred or is likely to occur by reason of some mistake committed by the inferior judicial or quasi-judicial bodies and the municipal law provides no adequate remedy the High Court are entitled—and indeed bound — to intervene under Art. 227 and correct the mistake and grant appropriate relief. Where again gross violation of some statutory provision has been made by the inferior bodies and against such violation no adequate remedy is to be found in municipal law the High Courts ought to interfere, in appropriate cases, under the said Article. 56 Cal WN 124: AIR 1952 Cal 526 (531, 532) (Pt B) (Pr 29) (DB).

●——Art. 227 — Election dispute — Remedy provided by way of election petition — Writ will not be issued. Hari Prasad v. State of M. P., 1959 MPC 355: 1959 Jab LJ 414: 1959 MPLJ 669: AIR 1959 Madh Pra 343 (347) (Pt B) (Pr 25) (FB).

——Art. 227 — Other remedy open — Interference. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1958 Madh Pra 224 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Other remedy open — Issue of writ. See Civil P. C. (1908), S. 115. AIR 1958 Manipur 20.

——Art. 227 — Jurisdiction of High Court — Nature of — Other remedy open — Writ petition not maintainable. See Ibid, Art. 226. (1963) 5 Orissa JD 97.

——Art. 227 — Power of High Court — Writ petition under — Scope of — Alternative remedy open — Petition not maintainable. See Ibid, Art. 226. (1963) 5 Orissa JD 97.

——Art. 227 — Writ — Maintainability of petition — Other remedy open — Matter to be decided controversial — Writ application is not appropriate. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1964 Cri LJ 492 (Pat).

——Art. 227 — Power under — When to be exercised—Other adequate remedy available—Power would not ordinarily be exercised — Bihar Panchayat Raj Act (VII of 1945), Ss. 62 and 67 — Order of conviction by Gram kutchery under S. 379, Penal Code — Petition under Art. 227 for quashing order on ground that complaint disclosed offence also under S. 144, Penal Code, not cognisable by Gram Kutchery — Remedy of appeal under S. 67 held available — Petition held not maintainable — Criminal P. C. (1898), Section 28.

The power under Art. 227 is an extraordinary power to be used most sparingly and the High Court would ordinarily refuse to exercise this power where some other adequate remedy is available to the applicant. In order to invoke the jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 227, it is necessary to show that the impugned order or decision is without jurisdiction or against principles of natural justice or involves non-exercise or illegal exercise of jurisdiction or a graver dereliction of duty or flagrant violation of the law as distinct from erroneous decision or irregularity in procedure or discloses an error of law manifest on the face of the order. The exercise of jurisdiction under Art. 227 does not mean exercising the power of appeal or revision on questions of fact and law.

A complaint was filed before the Sarpanch of the Gram Kutchery alleging that on 11-7-62 at about midnight the accused persons armed with lathis and bhalas went to the orchard of the complainant while he was asleep and plucked mangoes and on alarm being raised by him, they ran away with a number of mangoes. The bench of the Gram Kutchery convicted the petitioner along with other accused under Section 379, I. P. C. The petitioner filed a petition under Art. 227 challenging the validity of the order of conviction on the ground that the bench of the Gram Kutcherry was not competent to try the case because the allegation made in the complaint disclosed an offence under Section 144, I. P. C. also which was not cognizable by a bench of the Gram Kutchery. At no stage of the proceeding the petitioner raised any objection regarding the jurisdiction of the Gram Kutchery.

Held, that the allegation in the complaint may not necessarily lead to the conclusion that the accused went armed for the purpose of assaulting or committing any act of violence against the complainant. A plain reading of the complaint as a whole clearly showed that the main allegation against the petitioner was that he along with others went to the orchard of the complainant to commit theft and that he did it. That being so, it could not be said that the bench of the Gram Kutchery clutched the jurisdiction in this case by ignoring the fact that a graver offence under Section 144, I. P. C. was committed. Further, the remedy by way of appeal before the Full Bench of the Gram Kutcherry was available to the petitioner under Section 67 and, therefore, jurisdiction under Art. 227 could not be invoked. 1964 BLJR 230.

——Art. 227 — Availability of other remedy — Other remedy not pursued — Effect. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1955 Cri LJ 501: AIR 1955 Pat 118 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Alternative remedy availed of. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1954 Pat 476 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Other remedy open — Employees Provident Funds Act (1952), Ss. 16 (b) and 19-A — Reference of dispute under S. 19-A, to Central Government pending — Petition under Arts 226 and 227 not maintainable till decision of disputes — Proceedings for recovery of contributions not to be started till final decision. See Ibid, Art. 226. (1960) 1 Lab LJ 489 (Punj).

9 (a). Jurisdiction under Article not barred by existence of another remedy.

——Arts. 227, 226 — Existence of alternative remedy — Exercise of jurisdiction under Arts. 227 and 226.

The power under Art. 227 can be exercised in circumstances in which a writ could be issued under Art. 226. It is a settled law that a writ under Art. 226 can be issued in suitable cases where there exists an error apparent on the face of the record. Consequently the High Court can exercise its jurisdiction under Art. 227, even though an alternative remedy by way of revision was available to the applicant. AIR 1963 All 280 (281) (Pt B) (Pr 7).

——Art. 227 — Powers under — When should be exercised — Error capable of correction by Court of appeal — Trial of suit at wrong place—Interference under article. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1951 All 514 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Existence of alternative remedy no bar to jurisdiction, particularly when interference with impugned decision would save costs and avoid further judicial proceedings. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1965 Mah LJ (Notes) 62.

——Art. 227 — Wrong acceptance of nomination paper in an election to Municipal Corporation — Writ petition challenging the same — Alternative remedy open — No bar to issuance of a writ under the article. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1963 Bom 183 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Other remedy open — Petitioner challenging acquittal of respondent — Remedy is under Sec. 417 (3) or S. 439, Criminal Procedure Code and not under Art. 227 — (Criminal Procedure Code (1898), Ss. 417 (3) and 439).

The petitioner applied under Art. 227, Constitution of India challenging the acquittal of the respondent.

Held, that the petitioner's remedy was to apply to the High Court under S. 417 (3), Criminal Procedure Code or under S. 439 and that the High Court would not interfere under Art. 227. 1958 Nag LJ (Notes) 59 (Bom).

——Arts 227, 14 — S. 207-A, Criminal P. C. — Order of commitment made under — Relief by way of application for revision and under S. 561-A available — Accused can also move High Court under Art. 227 — (Criminal P. C. (1898), Sections 207-A, 215, 439, 561-A). See Constitution of India, Art. 14. AIR 1956 Bom 695.

——Art. 227 — Dismissal of police constable — Remedy by way of appeal to appellate tribunal set up under Police Act available — Application under Art. 227 will not be permitted. AIR 1956 Bom 545 (548) (Pt D) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Other remedy open — Institution keeping alleged lunatic not on ground of any reception order or inquisition order under Lunacy Act but even from before through the improvised and illegal procedure of a guardian pretending to act for the lunatic and admitting him to the institution — Held, S. 83 of the Lunacy Act would not give complete relief. 67 Cal WN 297: 1963 (1) Cri LJ 579: AIR 1963 Cal 261 (273) (Pt M) (Pr 46) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Alternative remedy — Must be speedy.

Even where there is an alternative remedy it has to be sufficiently speedy. Proceedings in Habeas Corpus and under Art. 227 of the Constitution are certainly speedier than any alternative remedies under the Lunacy Act. AIR 1954 Cal 355 and AIR 1953 Mad 362, Rel. on. 67 Cal WN 297: (1963) 1 Cri LJ 579: AIR 1963 Cal 261 (273) (Pt P) (Pr 46) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Rules under — Defence of India Act — Acquisition of land — Compensation — Arbitration — Awarding of interest on compensation — Other remedy by way of appeal open — Does not bar application under Art. 227. See Defence of India Act (1939), S. 19 (1) (f). (1962) 66 Cal WN 412.

——Art. 227 — Power of superintendence by High Court — Existence of alternative remedy by way of appeal — No bar to exercise of power. (1960) 64 Cal WN 663.

——Art. 227—Declaration regarding ceasing of interest of a tenant — Conditions to be fulfilled before making — Order under S. 16 (3) — When can be interfered with under Art. 227 of the Constitution — Existence of other remedy — No bar to exercise of jurisdiction under article. See Houses and Rents — West Bengal Premises Tenancy Act (12 of 1956), S. 16. (1960) 64 Cal WN 663.

——Art. 227 — Scope of jurisdiction — Other remedy open — Defendant not appealing against order under S. 14 (4), West Bengal Premises Rent Control Act, striking out his defence — High Court will not interfere under Art. 227 — (Houses and Rents — West Bengal Premises Rent Control Act (1950), S. 14 (4)). AIR 1955 NUC (Cal) 4852 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Other remedy open.

The existence of an alternative remedy, like a suit, does not preclude the High Court from exercising the powers under Art. 227 of the Constitution of India, provided that alternative remedy is not as speedy or effective as an application under Art. 227. AIR 1953 Mad 362, Rel. on. 58 Cal WN 573: AIR 1954 Cal 355 (361) (Pt L) (Pr 38) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Other remedy by way of revision open — Order of Land Acquisition Collector rejecting petition under S. 18, Land Acquisition Act — No bar to exercise of power under Arts. 226 and 227. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1963 Him Pra 1.

——Arts. 227, 226 — Order of Rent Controller — Jurisdiction of High Court before Constitution — Position after Constitution — (Hyderabad High Courts Act, S. 17). See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1953 Hyd 67 (FB).

——Arts. 227, 226 — Scope — Merits of the best judgment assessment cannot be considered in proceedings under Arts. 226 and 227 — An assessment under Section 19 of the M. P. General Sales Tax Act is appealable under Section 38 and the assessee-petitioner should have canvassed the merits of the assessment by filing an appeal before the competent authority. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1962 MPLJ 825.

——Art. 227 — Alternative remedy no bar to petition. 1962 MPLJ (Notes) 126.

——Art. 227 — Alternative remedy of appeal available — Appeal filed — Petition if lies. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1960 Jab LJ 1090.

——Art. 227 — Appealable order — Writ against. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1958 Madh Pra 236 (DB).

——Arts. 227, 226 — Alternative remedy by way of regular suit not equally convenient or beneficial or effective — Application under Arts. 226 and 227 is maintainable. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1953 Ori 238 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Assessment to Sales Tax not challenged under Sales Tax Act — Challenge to legality or correctness of order dismissed by certificate authorities — Application under Art. 227 against the order — Orders of sales authorities if can be challenged in the proceedings. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1952 Orissa 231 (DB).

——Arts. 227, 226 — Powers under — When exercised stated — Effective and adequate remedy available — Power under Arts. 227 and 226 may be exercised — Power is discretionary — C. P. Code (1908), S. 115. AIR 1955 NUC (Pepsu) 2514.

——Art. 227 — Other remedy open — Power of High Court to interfere — Extent — Existence of alternative remedy not per se constitutional bar to exercise of writ jurisdiction. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1965 Punj 170 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Alternative remedy — Registration Certificate sought to be cancelled under S. 7 (4) of Punjab General Sales Tax Act (46 of 1948) on grounds not covered by S. 16 of the Act — High Court can interfere although alternative remedy was available under Act. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1965 Cur LJ 317: 16 STC 406: 68 Punj LR 447.

——Art. 227 —Advance tax notice under S. 210 of the Income-tax Act (1961) demanding payment of Advance tax within the prescribed time — Petitioner neither complying with notice nor applying for remedies available under Income-tax Act — Held, High Court will not interfere with impugned notice in writ proceedings — Income-tax Act (1961), Ss. 210 and 211. See Ibid, Art. 226. (1964) 66 Pun LR 972.

——Art. 227 — Another remedy is no absolute bar.

An alternative remedy does not operate as an absolute bar to relief from the High Court under Art. 227. 61 Punj LR 529: AIR 1960 Punj 41.

——Art. 227 — Failure of Rent Controller to pass order for ejectment when there was tenant's non-compliance with S. 13 (2) (i) — High Court's power of interference when the matter had not been to the proper appellate authority. See Houses and Rents — East Punjab Urban Rent Restriction Act (3 of 1949), S. 13 (2) (i). AIR 1954 Punj 231.

9 (b). Impugned order open to revision.

——Art. 227 — Forum for revision provided — Improper application — Jurisdiction under Art. 227. See Panchayats — U. P. Panchayat Raj Act (26 of 1947), S. 85. AIR 1955 NUC (All) 346.

——Art. 227 — Power of High Court to revise orders passed under Agency Rules — R. 59 of the Agency Rules — Whether bar to entertain a revision by High Court under Art. 227.

Counsel's mistake in wrongly noting the Hearing date in his diary, is a sufficient cause for restoration of the case to file. AIR 1929 Lah 69, Foll.

But the provisions of Civil P. C. do not apply to Agency Tracts as is clear from a reading of subsection (3) of S. 1 Civil P. C. (1908) read with the Agency Rule 26 (2). 34 MLJ 473, Foll. Remedy provided under Rule 59 of the Agency Rules is only for a reference to the High Court by the Provincial Government and the Provincial Government cannot finally dispose of the case. As such the High Court is entitled to interfere under Art. 227 of the Constitution which corresponds to S. 107 of the Government of India Act, in a fit and proper case. (1958) 1 Andh WR 213.

——Art. 227 — Alternate remedy — Assessment of sales tax — Board of Revenue arbitrarily disallowing deductions in respect of sales to registered dealers — Petition under Art. 227 — Reference under S. 21 of Bengal Finance (Sales Tax) Act not an alternate remedy.

Where the Board of Revenue arbitrarily disallows deductions in respect of sales to registered dealers, the remedy provided by Section 21 of the Bengal Finance (Sales Tax) Act, 1941 of making reference to the High Court is in no sense a remedy, alternative to the remedy that Art. 227 of the Constitution provides and even apart from that, Section 21 is not a specific or convenient remedy so as to disentitle the petitioner from seeking relief by invoking the jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 227. (1964) 15 STC 186: 67 Cal WN 179: AIR 1963 Cal 409 (415) (Pt D) (Pr 21) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Suit dismissed on ground of want of jurisdiction — Failure to draw decree — Appeal does not lie — Only remedy is to file revision — Art. 227 of Constitution cannot be invoked. See Civil P. C. (1908), S. 2 (2). (1957) 61 Cal WN 789.

——Art. 227 — Other remedy open — Scope of power of superintendence — Order of Court of District Judge under Section 12 — Revisable under Section 115, Civil P. C. — Remedy under Art. 226 or 227, Constitution of India not available. See Houses and Rents — M. P. Accommodation Control Act (23 of 1955), S. 12. AIR 1963 Madh Pra 218 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Order of tribunal open to revision by superior tribunal — Aggrieved party moving High Court for redress without seeking remedy in revision — High Court will not interfere in the absence of special circumstances.

In the absence of very exceptional circumstances, the High Court will not interfere under Art. 227 of the Constitution with the order of a tribunal which is revisable by a superior tribunal constituted by the statute under which those tribunals function where the aggrieved party seeking redress had not first approached the superior tribunals in revision against the order. AIR 1960 SC 137, Disting.

Without determining the broad question whether or not it is permissible, as a general rule, for the High Court to interfere under Art. 227 with orders of tribunals or Courts whose orders are, under the law constituting them, appealable or revisable by a superior departmental tribunal, it is clear that it is highly undersirable for the Court to exercise this power in such circumstances, in the absence of very exceptional circumstances. AIR 1962 Punj 441 (442) (Prs 6, 7).

——Art. 227 — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 561-A — Rectification of errors in judgment — Proper course is to move Court under revisional jurisdiction or cause reference to be made to High Court by appropriate Court — Extraordinary jurisdiction of High Court under Section 561-A or Art. 227 should not be invoked — (Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 439 and 432. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 561-A. AIR 1953 Trav-Co. 233.

9 (c). Relief obtainable by suit.

——Art. 227 — Other remedy open.

In all cases where a person wants to question the validity of an appointment under Madras Act (2 of 1894) he can file a suit before the Collector, whose powers are vested in the Revenue Divisional Officer, under Section 13 of Act (3 of 1895). The order of the Revenue Divisional Officer is even subject to revision by the District Collector. The suit under S. 13 is also to be filed before the Revenue Divisional Officer, and when a remedy is available before the same authority, which is at least equally convenient and inexpensive, the powers of the High Court under Art. 227 should not be invoked. AIR 1938 Mad 903, Rel. on. (1955) Andhra WR 290: AIR 1955 Andhra 192 (194) (Pt C) (Pr 4).

——Art. 227 — High Court will not permit elaborate enquiry into disputed questions of fact and to determine them especially where a party can resort to the remedy by way of a suit. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1964 Raj LW 380.

9 (d). Availability of remedy under Art. 226.

——Arts. 227, 226 — Remedy by way of certiorari open for quashing conviction — Petition under Art. 227 is not maintainable. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1963 (2) Cri LJ 595: AIR 1963 All 585.

——Art. 227 — Application under S. 115, Civil P. C. — Order sought to be revised amenable to remedy by way of certiorari — Conversion of application to one under Art. 227. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1957 All 495.

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1962 All 315 (FB)]

●——Art. 227 — Per Desai J. :— Existence of remedy through appropriate writ under Art. 226— Bars aggrieved party from invoking powers of Superintendence under this article. Bhagirathi v. The State, 1955 Cri LJ 296 : 1955 All LJ 6 : 1955 All WR (HC) 70 : ILR (1954) 2 All 591 : AIR 1955 All 113 (122) (Pt C) (Pr 26) (FB).

——Art. 227 — Scope — Dismissal of writ petition if bar to maintainability of application under Art. 227. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1955 Andhra 40.

10. Laches.

——Art. 227 — Writ petition — Delay in filing.

It is well settled that whosoever seeks relief by having recourse to the extraordinary remedy of a writ petition, must approach the Court with expeditiousness. Granting relief on state claims would not be a sound exercise of discretion by the High Court. (1962) 13 STC 459 (All).

——Art. 227 — Order allowing amendment of plaint passed in 1953 — Defendants added as parties appearing before Court and filing written statement as well as application for discharging them from list of defendants — No final order passed on the application — Defendants petitioning under Art. 227 against order impleading them after six years after the issues raised by them in their written statement had been decided — Held, the delay as well as the development of the case in the meanwhile viz. decision on the issues raised by defendants would deter the High Court from interfering under Art. 227. AIR 1961 All 559 (561) (Prs 6, 7, 8).

——Arts. 227, 226 — Delay — Power of High Court not fettered — Government acting under S. 64-A, Motor Vehicles Act is Tribunal — (Motor Vehicles Act (1939), Section 64-A (Mad Amendment)). See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1957 Andh Pra 739.

——Art. 227 — Laches — See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1955 NUC (Bhopal) 1784.

——Art. 227 — Laches —Petition filed after 90 days from date of order impugned — Competency. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1961 Nag LJ (Notes) 63.

——Art. 227 — Laches. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1960 Bom 9 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Delay and laches — (Tenancy Laws — Bombay Tenancy and Agricultural Lands (Bombay Revenue Tribunal Procedure) Rules (1954), Rule 32 (1)).

Although Art. 227 does not fix any particular period of limitation, a party wanting to claim relief under Art. 227 must come up to High Court as expeditiously as possible. It is for the Court to consider in each case whether there is gross delay in presenting a petition.

The inability of a party to find out funds is hardly any ground in jurisdiction of the delay. In special circumstances, it may perhaps constitute a legitimate ground.

Though Rule 32 (1), Bombay Tenancy and Agricultural Lands (Bombay, Revenue Tribunal Procedure) Rules, 1954, requires that a certified copy of the tribunal's final order should be supplied free of costs as soon as practicable, it does not mean that the party should wait for such a copy for an unreasonably long time, without himself applying for a copy of the order.

Held, on facts that the petition under Art. 227 filed after four months from the date of passing the order by the tribunal and two months and a half after receipt of the copy of the order of the Revenue Tribunal could not be rejected on ground of gross delay. 60 Bom LR 670: ILR (1958) Bom 927: AIR 1959 Bom 238 (239) (Pt A) (Prs 4, 5) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Laches of applicant — Court would refuse to interfere if no special circumstances are shown to explain delay and position of parties has changed.

While the Court would not hesitate to exercise its extraordinary jurisdiction under Art. 227 of the Constitution to cure defects of justice committed by tribunals in the country, the Court has to take into consideration the conduct of the party as well as the consequences which would ensue as a result of such interference.

Thus, where the petitioner under Art. 227 is guilty of inordinate delay of two months and a half in impugning the order setting aside the election and ordering a fresh election and in the meanwhile steps have been taken in furtherance of the impugned order to hold fresh election and in fact the fresh election is held before the petition comes for hearing before the High Court, it would refuse to exercise the extraordinary jurisdiction under Art. 227 when no special circumstances are shown to exist to explain the delay. 56 Cal WN 872: ILR (1953) 2 Cal 130: AIR 1953 Cal 40 (41) (Pt B) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Delay — Delay in filing petition under Art. 227 held justified in circumstances of case. See Tenancy Laws — Bombay Tenancy Act (29 of 1939), S. 24. ILR (1963) Guj 526.

● ——Art. 227 — Application under — Delay — Rules as to delay is not an invariable rule and it must be applied in furtherance of justice and not to defeat it — Having regard to peculiar circumstances of the case held it would not be proper to throw off the writ petition on the ground of delay. Madhaji Lakhiram v. Mashrubhai Mohadevbhai Rabari, (1962) 3 Guj LR 438 : AIR 1962 Guj 235 (248) (Pt C) (Pr 44) (FB).

——Art. 227 — Delay in moving High Court caused on account of proceedings before Board of Revenue — Proceedings before Board of Revenue were untenable and misconceived — High Court declined to issue writ on the ground of inordinate delay. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1963 MPLJ (Notes) 145.

——Arts. 227, 226 — Laches — Effect of, on petitions under Arts. 226 and 227 — No distinction.

There is no distinction between Arts. 226 and 227 as regards delay in submitting petition because delay as such cannot be considered to be an absolute bar in granting relief to a suitor either under Art. 226 or under Art. 227 of the Constitution. It is only one of the circumstances to be taken into consideration in determining whether or not to exercise the discretionary power vested in the High Court under the said Articles. Even while exercising its power of judicial superintendence, the High Court is expected to bear in mind the factor of delay. Only because the Court is competent to exercise its powers suo motu it cannot be said that delay in case of a petition under Art. 227 is less serious than in the case of a petition under Art. 226. 64 Punj LR 456 : ILR (1962) 2 Punj 439 : AIR 1962 Punj 490 (491) (Pt A) (Pr 2).

——Art. 227 — There can be no waiver of fundamental rights by a party and mere laches will not deprive him of that right. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 115. AIR 1960 Punj 439.

——Art. 227 — Laches and delay in presenting petition is a ground for not exercising extraordinary jurisdiction. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1964 Raj LW 380.

11. Limitation.

——Art. 227 — Petition under—Time limit.

Petitions under Art. 227 are subject to the 90 days rules. AIR 1953 Him Pra 60, Rel. on. AIR 1959 Him Pra 25 (28) (Pt E) (Pr 21).

——Art. 227 — Limitation — (Limitation Act (1908), S. 3).

Revision under Art. 227 will also be subject to the 90 days rule of limitation as are ordinary applications in revision. AIR 1951 Him Pra 16, Foll. AIR 1953 Him Pra 60 (61) (Pt C) (Pr 6).

12. Statutory bar.

——Art. 227 — Erroneous finding of Civil Court under S. 146 (1-B) Cr. P. Code — Finding may be challenged under Art. 226 and Art. 227 of the Constitution of India — Section 146 (1-D) does not affect such jurisdiction of High Court. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1965 (1) Cri LJ 271 : AIR 1965 All 127.

——Art. 227 — Election, meaning of — Every part of process by which candidate is declared to be representative from beginning to final selection is covered by word "election" — Petition under Arts. 226 and 227 challenging legality in counting votes — Petition is not maintainable at stage of counting votes — It may form proper ground for election petition — Proper remedy is by election petition — Representation of the People Act (1951), Ss. 81, 100 (2) (c). See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1955 All 536.

——Arts. 227, 226 — Abducted Persons (Recovery and Restoration) Act, 1949, S. 8—Whether section affects power of High Court to act under Art. 226 or 227. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1953 Cri LJ 1384: AIR 1953 All 613 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Power under article whether can be curtailed, modified or affected by any enactment. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1952 All 822 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Provision in local or special law conflicting with Art. 227 — Validity of—S. 17 (3), Assam Opium Prohibition Act — Whether curtails power conferred on High Court by Art. 227. See Prohibition — Assam Opium Prohibition Act (23 of 1947), S. 17 (3). 1952 Cri LJ 966: AIR 1951 Assam 106 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Judgment or order made final by statute — Power of High Court to interfere under article.

Even if the judgment or order of a Court or tribunal functioning within the territorial limits of the jurisdiction of the High Court is made final by statute and even if the Court itself is not subject to the appellate jurisdiction of the High Court its judgment or order may be interfered with in the exercise of the powers of superintendence of the High Court. 1952 Cri LJ 966: AIR 1951 Assam 106 (109, 110) (Pt B) (Pr 21) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Orders of District Judge in revision under S. 53 — Finality — Interference under Art. 227. See Panchayats—Punjab Village Panchayat Act (11 of 1939), S. 53. AIR 1954 Bilaspur 6.

——Art. 227 — Tenancy Laws — Bombay Tenancy and Agricultural Lands Act (67 of 1948), S. 32 — Section whether takes away jurisdiction of High Court under Arts. 226 and 227 and is invalid on that ground. See Tenancy Laws — Bombay Tenancy and Agricultural Lands Act (67 of 1948), S. 32. AIR 1957 Bom 252.

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1959 SC 459.]

●——Art. 227 — Power of High Courts under Art. 227, Constitution of India, cannot be affected by legislative provisions. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1955 Bom 220 (FB).

——Art. 227 — Scope — Ss. 39-B and 43 of Bengal Municipal Act bar revisional powers of High Court — But High Court can interfere under Art. 227. AIR 1955 NUC (Cal) 1003 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Tenancy Laws — W. B. Bargadars Act, S. 9 (1) — Award or order of Board or appellate authority — Bar under section against challenging them in any Court — Cannot prevail against Constitution. 56 Cal WN 124: AIR 1952 Cal 526 (528, 529) (Pt A) (Prs 12, 15) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Jurisdiction of High Court under Arts. 226 and 227 cannot be affected by legislative provision. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1965 (1) Cri LJ 550: AIR 1965 Him Pra 25.

——Art. 227 — Decision of Vice-Chancellor to be final — Interference with. See East Punjab University Regulations, Reg. 23. AIR 1955 NUC (Him Pra) 4517.

——Art. 227 — Power of superintendence — Decision of appellate authority under East Punjab Urban Rent Restriction Act — Houses and Rents — East Punjab Urban Rent Restriction Act (3 of 1949), S. 15 (4).

The Judicial Commissioner's Court of Himachal Pradesh has jurisdiction in exercise of its power of superintendence under Art. 227 of the Constitution, to interfere with the decision of the appellate authority despite the finality given to that decision under Section 15 (4), East Punjab Urban Rent Restriction Act. The power is, however, by its very nature to be exercised very sparingly. 53 PLR 90, Rel. on. AIR 1951 Him Pra 72 (73) (Pt A) (Pr 3).

——Art. 227 — Jurisdiction under article cannot be taken away by State legislation such as Special Judges Regulation. 52 Cri LJ 708 : ILR (1951) Hyd 174: AIR 1951 Hyd 82 (83) (Pt A) (Pr 1) (DB).

●——Art. 227 — Applicability — Decision of lower Court — Finality — Extent of — Decision as to category of suit can be challenged in revision or under Art. 227 of the Constitution. See Court-fees Act (1870), S. 12. AIR 1961 Ker 146 (FB).

——Art. 227 — Order of Election Tribunal — Finality — Jurisdiction of High Court under Arts. 226, 227. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1955 NUC (Madh Bha) 2378 (DB).

——Arts. 227, 226 and 329 (b) — Jurisdiction of High Court to interfere with decision of Election Tribunal — Finality given to order of tribunal — If bars interference even if decision is without jurisdiction or is in excess of its jurisdiction. (Representation of the People Act (1951), S. 105). See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1953 Madh Bha 197 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Act of State Legislature taking away power under Article — Validity.

The right given to High Court under Art. 227 cannot be taken away by the State Legislature. Hence Section 147, M. B. Revenue Administration and Ryotwari Land Revenue and Tenancy Act (66 of 1950), if it purports to take away the power under this Article, is ultra vires the Constitution to that extent. Madh BLR 1952 (Civ) 94: AIR 1952 Madh Bha 51 (51, 52, 53) (Prs 3, 4, 5, 15) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Relief claimed in proceedings found to be temporarily barred—Court will not grant the relief. AIR 1964 Mys 43 (45) (Pt A) (Prs 3, 16) (DB).

●——Art. 227 — Finding by Civil Court under Section 146 (1-D) — Can be interfered with by High Court under Section 439 after finding is adopted by Magistrate and final order is passed by him under Section 146 (1-B). S. 146 (1-D) has not the effect of taking away powers of High Court under Art. 227 of the Constitution. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 145. 1963 (2) Cri LJ 25: AIR 1963 Pat 243 (FB).

——Art. 227 — (Representation of the People Act (1951), S. 105).

The Representation of the People Act cannot take away powers of High Court which are expressly given to it by Art. 227. ILR (1954) Patiala 1: AIR 1953 Pepsu 133 (136) (Pt B) (Pr 3) (DB).

—— Art. 227 — Patiala Panchayat Raj Act, Section 49—Whether power of superintendence is excluded by. See Panchayats — Patiala Panchayat Raj Act (13 of 2000), S. 49. 1952 Cri LJ 1439: AIR 1952 Pepsu 130.

——Art. 227 — Defence of India Act (51 of 1962), Section 18 (2) — Bar to writs — Prohibition in section does not affect High Court's jurisdiction under Arts. 226 and 227 of the Constitution. See Defence of India Act (1962), S. 18 (2). 1965 (1) Cri LJ 205 : AIR 1965 Punj 86.

——Art. 227 — Applicability — Statutory bar — (Panchayats —T. C. Panchayat Act (2 of 1950)— T. C. Panchayat Rules, R. 79 (4)).

Rule 79 (4) of the T. C. Panchayat Rules under which the order of the Election Commissioner has been made final and conclusive, does not in any manner affect the power of the High Court under Art. 227 of the Constitution. AIR 1953 Mad 362 and AIR 1954 Pepsu 118, Rel. on. 1955 Ker LT 714 : ILR (1955) TC 646 : AIR 1956 Trav-Co. 63 (69) (Pt D) (Pr 21) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Application under, against decision of Deputy Commissioner under Rent Control Order — (Houses and Rents — C. P. and Berar House Rent Control Order (1949), Cl. 21 (3)).

The powers conferred on the High Courts under Art. 227 of the Constitution cannot be taken away or whittled down by the legislature. An application under Art. 227 therefore, lies against the decision of the Deputy Commissioner under Cl. 21 of the Rent Control Order in spite of subclause (3) thereof. AIR 1954 SC 202, Foll. AIR 1954 Vin Pra 34 (35) (Pt B) (Pr 6).

13. Election disputes.

——Art. 227 — Interlocutory order passed by election tribunal disallowing amendment on election petitions — High Court will not interfere as such matters can be agitated in appeal against the final order. (1963) 1 Andh WR 238.

——Art. 227 — Election petition — Death of petitioner — Petition for substitution of a person in place of deceased — Petition dismissed for non-compliance with Section 117 — Remedy. See Representation of the People Act (1951), S. 116-A. AIR 1964 Bom 63 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Representation of the People Act (1951), Section 116-A — Election Tribunal allowing certain answers to questions to go on record — Aggrieved party moving High Court — Interference with interlocutory order not justified under Art. 227. 1963 Mah LJ (Notes) 86.

——Art. 227 — Scope — If controlled by Art. 329 — Superintendence of High Court over Election Tribunal — If taken away. See Ibid, Art. 329 (b). AIR 1952 Bom 277 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Other remedy — Municipal election — Improper rejection of nomination paper — Election Rules providing for appeal — High Court's power to interfere even at pre-election or pre-polling stage — Municipalities — Bengal Municipal Act (15 of 1932), S. 44 — Election Rules under Rules 17 and 20 — Elections — Constitution of India, Art. 329.

In regard to elections under the Bengal Municipal Act the High Court has power to interfere in exercise of its extraordinary powers under Art. 227 of the Constitution even at a pre-election or pre-polling stage when there is improper rejection of a nomination paper of a candidate. It is no doubt true that in cases of elections under the Representation of the People Act it is the post-election attack which alone is available in view of the restrictive provisions of Art. 329 (b) of the Constitution. But there is no such restrictive provisions applicable to elections under the Bengal Municipal Act, and, moreover, the Act itself, under the Election Rules, provides distinctly for an appeal to the District Magistrate at a pre-election or pre-polling stage against inter alia improper rejection of a nomination paper and this provision for an appeal, although the Rule purports to make the decision of the District Magistrate, final, has, on established authorities, the effect of attracting the power of High Court under Art. 227 of the Constitution. AIR 1958 MP 181 and 182; AIR 1955 Nag 49 (FB); AIR 1957 Cal 164; AIR 1946 Cal 206, Rel. on; AIR 1952 SC 64, Disting. ILR (1961) 1 Cal 356: 64 Cal WN 1043: AIR 1962 Cal 53 (57) (Pt A) (Prs 15, 16) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Proceedings disputing validity of election — Jurisdiction of High Court — Representation of the People Act (1951), Ss. 80, 81 and 100. See Ibid, Art. 329 (b). AIR 1953 Cal 98.

——Art. 227 — Election dispute — Interference. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1961 Him Pra 2.

——Arts. 227, 226 — Interference with decision of election Tribunal under University Regulations — Unless wrong exercise or a refusal to exercise a jurisdiction is shown decision cannot be interfered with under Arts. 226 and 227 — (East Punjab University Regulations, Reg. 24). See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1955 NUC (Him Pra) 4517.

●——Arts. 227, 226 — Election dispute — Election on rejection of vote bearing imprint of cross — Remedy provided by way of election petition — Writ will not be issued — (Municipalities — C. P. and Berar Local Government Act (38 of 1948), Ss. 22 and 182 (2) (ix)). See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1959 Madh Pra 343 (FB).

——Art. 227 — Election — Dispute under Municipalities Act — Decision of election tribunal — Revision.

A Civil Revision petition under Art. 227 of the Constitution against the order of Election Tribunal in election disputes in regard to elections to Municipalities and local Boards is maintainable. AIR 1955 SC 233, Rel. on. 1959 Mad WN 719: 72 Mad LW 778 : ILR (1960) Mad 197 : (1960) 1 MLJ 401: AIR 1960 Mad 184 (184) (Pt A) (Pr 3).

——Art. 227 — Order of Election Tribunal — Jurisdiction of High Court to issue writ. See Ibid, Art. 329 (b). AIR 1953 Nag 357 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Election dispute — Bihar Panchayat Election Rules (1959), Rule 90 — Order allowing election petition challenged under Art. 227 — Allegation that voters' list was not revised and republished before nomination papers were called for — Fact not stated in application—High Court cannot entertain statement of fact not mentioned in the application. 1964 BLJR 151: AIR 1965 Pat 183 (184) (Pt B) (Pr 4).

——Art. 227 — Error in filling up serial numbers of candidate and of his proposer and seconder in nomination paper — Error can be corrected under proviso to Rule 22 (a) — High Court will set aside under Art. 227 order rejecting nomination paper. See Panchayats — Bihar Panchayat Election Rules, R. 22 (a) Proviso. 1963 BLJR 560.

——Art. 227 — Election of Mukhiya — Two Presiding Officers for two booths — None empowered to announce result — Valid votes polled by candidates announced — Successful candidate certainly not declared elected — Application to challenge the election under Art. 227 held maintainable — Panchayats — Bihar Panchayat Election Rules (1959), Rr. 54, 70 and 72.

The petition to question the election could not necessarily be filed before the Election Tribunal. Hence application to challenge the election under Art. 227 is maintainable. 1961 BLJR 195.

——Art. 227 — Election — Art. 329 (b) whether overrides power of High Court under Arts. 226 and 227. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1954 Sau 1 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Election disputes — Decision of Election Commissioner based on mere surmise — Interference under Art. 227 — (T. C. Panchayat Act (2 of 1950) S. 13 (2) (b)) — (T. C. Panchayat Rules, R. 78 (2) (c)).

Where the question for decision by the Election Commissioner exercising jurisdiction under the T. C. Panchayat Act, 1950, in an election petition was whether the result of the election was materially affected by the acceptance of the nomination paper of a candidate who was disqualified to stand as a candidate under Section 13 (2) (b) of the Act, it is the duty of High Court to interfere in the exercise of its powers under Art. 227 of the Constitution especially when the aggrieved party has no other remedy.

If it were merely a case of a wrong decision by the Election Commissioner either on a question of fact or on a question of law, that by itself will not be a sufficient ground for the High Court to interfere in the exercise of its powers under the Article. 1955 Ker LT 714: ILR (1955) TC 646: AIR 1956 Trav-Co. 63 (69) (Pt C) (Pr 19) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Decisions of Election Tribunal — Jurisdiction of High Court under Arts. 226 and 227 whether taken away by Art. 329 (b). See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1953 Vin Pra 51.

14. Contempt of Court.

——Art. 227 — Chief Judge of Small Causes Court acting as persona designata under City of Bombay Municipal Act is Court subordinate to High Court. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 2. 1955 Cri LJ 351: AIR 1955 Bom 103 (DB).

●——Art. 227 — Contempt of Industrial Tribunal — Tribunal ceasing to exist — Effect. See Industrial Disputes (Appellate Tribunal) Act (1950), S. 30. 1955 Cri LJ 1: AIR 1955 Mad 1 (FB).

●——Art. 227 — Scope — Inherent powers of — High Court in respect of contempt — Effect of Art. 227.

While Art. 227 of the Constitution, which replaced Section 15 of the High Courts Act, 1861, extended the power of superintendence of the High Court to tribunals also, Art. 227 did not itself vest in the High Court any power to punish contempt of subordinate Courts and tribunals. The inherent power of the High Court to punish contempt of such Courts and tribunals was not however touched by Art. 227 of the Constitution, even as S. 15 of the High Courts Act left it untouched. 21 Mad LJ 832 (FB), Rel. on. In the matter of Hayles, Editor of "The Mail", 1955 Mad WN 1051 (2): ILR (1955) Mad 1: (1955) 1 MLJ 375: 1955 Cri LJ 1: AIR 1955 Mad 1 (18) (Pt B) (Pr 71) (FB).

●——Art. 227 — Contempt of Court — High Court's inherent power to punish for — Source of — Creation of other authority — Effect—(Industrial Disputes (Appellate Tribunal) Act (1950), Section 30).

In its ultimate analysis, contempt of Court is contempt of the authority of the sovereign State exercised through its Courts duly constituted for the administration of justice. That the English jurists traced it back to the King of England dispensing justice in the aula regis does not affect the principle. The power the King's Bench exercised to punish contempt of itself and of the Courts and tribunals subordinate to it was the power of the sovereign State. It is a similar power that the High Courts in India exercise. It is obviously open to Parliament of India, which exercises the sovereign authority of the State over this portion of the legislative field, to provide specifically for the exercise of the power of the sovereign State to punish contempts of any specified classes of Courts or tribunals.

In relation to the Industrial Tribunals and the classes of contempts enumerated in sub-ss. 1 and 2 of Section 30 of Act (48 of 1950), the State, acting through Parliament, has conferred that power on the Industrial Tribunals and on the Labour Appellate Tribunal by Section 30 of that Act. The High Court is bound to respect that statutory provision, and it can no longer invoke its inherent power to punish contempts of an Industrial tribunal to the extent that the requisite power has been conferred on any independent statutory tribunal like the Labour Appellate Tribunal by that section. In the matter of Hayles, Editor of "The Mail", 1955 Mad WN 1051 (2): ILR (1955) Mad 1: (1955) 1 MLJ 375: 1955 Cri LJ 1: AIR 1955 Mad 1 (20) (Pt D) (Pr 76) (FB).

——Art. 227 — Power to deal with contempt of Court not punishable by the Court itself. See Contempt of Courts Act, 1926, S. 2. 1952 Cri LJ 950: AIR 1951 Punj 49 (DB).

15. Retrospective application.

●——Art. 227 — Constitution of India (1950), Preamble and Art. 227 — Retrospective operation — Applicability of General Clauses Act — Order under Assam Opium Prohibition Act — Finality of — (General Clauses Act (1897), S. 6) — (Assam Opium Prohibition Act (23 of 1947), Ss. 16 and 17 (3)). See Ibid, Preamble. 1953 Cri LJ 395: AIR 1953 Assam 35 (FB).

——Art. 227 — Retrospective application.

Art. 227 of the Constitution may not be applied retrospectively. ILR (1951) 3 Assam 181: 52 Cri LJ 966 : AIR 1951 Assam 106 (115) (Pt H) (Pr 59) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Scope — Government servants under former Madhya Pradesh State serving in districts now forming part of Bombay State — Dismissal prior to 1-11-56 by Madhya Pradesh State — Petitions under Arts. 226 and 227 challenging orders of dismissal against Bombay State filed in Bombay High Court — Maintainability. See States Reorganisation Act (1956), S. 88 (b). AIR 1959 Bom 363 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Declaration under Section 6, Land Acquisition Act made before Constitution — Application under Art. 227 — Maintainability. See Land Acquisition Act (1894), S. 6. AIR 1952 Cal 573.

■——Art. 227 — Land Acquisition Act, 1894, Section 18 — Order under Section 18 becoming final before Constitution — Interference with, under Art. 227 — Article held not retrospective.

Article 227 although it does not in terms give a right to interfere with orders, is an Article which does give a right to High Courts to interfere in proper cases and therefore, does give rights to the parties to move High Court to vary or reverse orders, i.e., to exercise powers similar to those as exercised in appeal, and hence must be construed in the same manner as provision in a statute would be construed which gave a right to parties to challenge a decision, either by appeal or revision.

There are no express words in Art. 227 which give the High Court the right to interfere with a right in existence at the time of the passing of the Constitution; nor is there anything in the Article to indicate that there is such a power by necessary intendment. The Article, therefore, does not empower the High Court to interfere with an order under Section 18, Land Acquisition Act, refusing to refer a matter to Civil Court which was a final order passed at a time before the Constitution came into force and when the High Court had no power to interfere with such an order under Section 115 Civil P. C. 54 CWN 793, Foll., Case law ref. Bimala Prosad Ray v. State of West Bengal, 55 Cal WN 87: ILR (1951) 2 Cal 427 : AIR 1951 Cal 258 (261, 265) (Pt C) (Prs 22, 25) (SB).

——Art. 227 — Applicability — Order becoming final before Constitution.

Art. 227 of the Constitution will not have any application where the order became final before the Constitution came into force. AIR 1951 Cal 100 (100) (Pt A) (Pr 2) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Article 227 is not retrospective— Interpretation of Statutes — Retrospective operation — Vested rights.

Assuming that the High Court has been given powers of interference, by Art. 227 of the Constitution of India, with final orders, that would not entitle it to interfere with an order which was passed at a time when such power of interference did not exist. While provisions of a statute dealing merely with matters of procedure may properly, unless that construction be textually inadmissible, have retrospective effect attributed to them, provisions which touch a right in existence at the passing of the statute are not to be applied retrospectively in the absence of express enactment or necessary intendment. AIR 1927 PC 242, Rel. on. 54 Cal WN 793: ILR (1951) 2 Cal 230: AIR 1950 Cal 512 (513) (Pr 2) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Scope — If retrospective. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1959 MPLJ (Notes) 133.

■——Art. 227 — Retrospective operation of article. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1952 Cri LJ 1 : AIR 1951 Nag 443 (FB).

——Art. 227 — Retrospective operation of article. See Interpretation of Statutes. AIR 1951 Nag 90 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Retrospective operation — High Court's power of superintendence — Extent.

It is true that all Tribunals as well as Courts throughout the territories in relation to which the High Court exercises jurisdiction have been subjected to the superintendence of the High Court under Art. 227 (1) of the Constitution and that the power of superintendence includes the power of judicial interference. But there is nothing in the language of that Article to indicate that the power of superintendence was intended to operate on rights which had been finally settled prior to the commencement of the Constitution. ILR (1951) Nag 818: 1951 NLJ 463: AIR 1951 Nag 90 (91, 92) (Pt C) (Prs 7, 9) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Award of Nagpur Improvement Trust Tribunal given before Constitution — Finality — Nagpur Improvement Trust Act (36 of 1936), S. 61 (d).

When the awards of the Nagpur Improvement Trust Tribunal became final and were not subject to any challenge by way of an appeal or a revision, the finality of the awards cannot be said to have been put in jeopardy merely because the applicants chose to file untenable revision applications and those applications were pending when the Constitution came into operation. 1951 Nag LJ 463 : ILR (1951) Nag 818 : AIR 1951 Nag 90 (91) (Pt E) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Retrospectivity — Amendment of revision application against order passed before Constitution to add reliefs under article. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1951 Nag LJ (Notes) 115.

——Arts. 227 and 367 (1) — Retrospectivity — Does not affect order passed before the Constitution — (Tenancy Laws — Orissa Tenants Protection Act (III of 1948), S. 11) — (Interpretation of Statutes) — (Civil P. C. (1908), Pre.) — (General Clauses Act (1897), S. 6).

It is a fundamental rule of interpretation that while a rule of procedure may ordinarily have retrospective effect attributed to it, provisions in a statute which affect existing rights cannot be applied retrospectively in the absence of an express enactment to that effect or necessary intendment. AIR 1927 PC 242, Ref.

There is nothing in Article 227 indicating that it is intended to have retrospective effect and that the High Court can interfere with a right in existence at the time of the passing of the Constitution. Consequently, though Art. 227 gives power to the High Court to interfere even with the orders which are declared final by different Acts of the Legislature and though any Act of a Legislature cannot affect the right vested in the High Court by the Constitution, such a right vested in the High Court does not justify interference with the past events so as to affect the vested rights of the parties. AIR 1951 Cal 258 (SB) and AIR 1951 Nag 90, Rel. on.

The orders passed by the Collector under S. 7 of the Orissa Tenancy Act, 1948, which had become final by virtue of S. 11 of that Act before the coming into force of the Constitution, cannot therefore, be interfered with under Art. 227.

Per Narasimham, J.:— Section 11 of the Orissa Tenants Protection Act, as it stood prior to 26th January, 1950, read with section 224 of the Govt. of India Act, 1935, conferred on the opposite party a right of immunity from interference by the High Court in exercise of its powers of superintendence over inferior Tribunals and that right is saved by section 6 of the General Clauses Act in the absence of any express provision in the Constitution giving retrospective effect to Art. 227. AIR 1951 SC 217 and AIR 1953 Assam 35 (FB), Ref. ILR (1953) Cut 322 : AIR 1953 Orissa 274 (275, 276) (Pt B) (Prs 5, 7) (DB).

——Art. 227— Power of High Court — Interference with final order passed before Constitution coming into force.

There are no express words in Art. 227 of the Constitution which give the High Court the right to interfere with a right in existence at the time of the passing of the Constitution: nor is there anything in the aforesaid article to indicate that there is such a power by necessary intendment. The High Court has, therefore, no power to interfere with a final order passed on appeal at a time before the Constitution came into force and when it had no power to interfere with such an order under S. 115, C. P. Code. 54 CWN 793 and 9 L 284 (PC), Ref. to. AIR 1951 Punj 310 (310) (Pr 2).

16. Territorial jurisdiction.

●——Arts. 227, 241 —Rent Controller and District Judge acting under Rent Act — Jurisdiction of Judicial Commissioner — (Houses and Rents — East Punjab Urban Rent Restriction Act (3 of 1949), Ss. 13, 15)).

The words 'in relation to which' in Art. 227 obviously qualify the word 'territories' and not the words 'Courts and Tribunals'.

The Court of the Judicial Commissioner of Himachal Pradesh exercises jurisdiction in relation to the whole of the territories of Himachal Pradesh. The Rent Controller and the District Judge exercising jurisdiction under the East Punjab Urban Rent Restriction Act, 1949, as extended to Himachal Pradesh, are certainly Tribunals, if not Courts, and they function within the territories of Himachal Pradesh. Therefore, Art. 227 (1) read with Art. 241 confers on the Court of the Judicial Commissioner power of superintendence, over such Tribunals. Waryam Singh v. Amarnath, 1954 SCJ 290 : 1954 Mad WN 424 : 1954 SCA 334 : 1954 SCR 565: AIR 1954 SC 215 (216, 217) (Pt A) (Pr 12).

——Art. 227 — Single tribunal sitting at one place constituted by law to deal with disputes arising anywhere in India — High Court competent to exercise jurisdiction under Arts. 226 and 227. See Representation of the People Act (1951), S. 116-A. AIR 1958 All 137 (DB).

——Arts. 227, 226 — Territorial jurisdiction — Order by tribunal within jurisdiction confirmed in appeal and revision by tribunal outside jurisdiction — Principle of merger — Writ quashing lower tribunal's order cannot be granted — Lower tribunal's order invalid ab initio — Effect. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1958 Ker 357 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Territorial jurisdiction — Order passed by Bombay Revenue Tribunal before 1st November, 1956 — Territory transferred to Mysore State — Application before Mysore High Court— (States Reorganisation Act (1956), Ss. 8, 49, 69 and 125).

Held that the order of the Bombay Revenue Tribunal was a judicial act and as the power of superintendence available to the High Court under Art. 227 of the Constitution includes also the power of judicial superintendence the petition was maintainable in the Mysore High Court. It could not be accepted that an offending order executable within the territories over which Mysore High Court had jurisdiction was not liable to be interfered with merely on the ground that the Bombay Revenue Tribunal had ceased to function or exist consequent on the States Reorganisation Act. The power under Art. 227 is wider than in case of a certiorari under Art. 226. AIR 1954 SC 215, AIR 1955 SC 233 and AIR 1957 Bom 142, Rel. on. W. P. No. 120 of 1957 (Mys) Disting. and Expl. The argument that the Constitutional power was saved to the High Court of Bombay by S. 69 of the States Reorganisation Act is not correct. The power of superintendence under Art. 227 could be exercised by the respective High Court throughout the territories of the new States only as from 1st November, 1956. 37 Mys LJ 82 : ILR (1959) Mys 150 : AIR 1959 Mys 108 (110, 111) (Pt A) (Prs 4, 6, 7) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Territorial jurisdiction — Election petition — Jurisdiction to entertain writ application — Determination of the High Court which has jurisdiction. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1954 Nag 166 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Assessment of assessee under Commissioner of Income-tax U. P. — Order passed by Investigation Commission at Delhi under Taxation on Income (Investigation Commission) Act, 1947 — That fact would not confer jurisdiction on Punjab High Court to entertain petition under Arts. 226 and 227 against the order. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1951 Punj 74 (DB).

17. Application under Article.

(a) Person entitled to apply.
(b) Parties.
(c) Duty to make full disclosure of material facts.

17. Application under Article.

——Art. 227 — Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 435, 439, and 561-A — Power to quash proceedings at an interlocutory stage — Objection to place of trial dismissed by lower Courts — Composite application under Ss. 561-A, 439 and Art. 227 — Maintainability. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 435. AIR 1956 All 619.

——Art. 227 — Joint petition on common questions of law and fact is maintainable. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1963 Mah LJ (Notes) 8 (Bom).

——Art. 227 — Applicability and scope — Mere threat to property — No ground for petition — (Municipalities — Bombay Municipal Boroughs Act (18 of 1925), Ss. 17-A and 218).

A mere threat with no legal consequences cannot justify the presentation of a petition under Art. 227.

Held, on facts that no power has been conferred upon the Government under S. 218 (2) which is not possessed by the Municipality itself. The only power that the Municipality has of summary eviction of the lessee is the power that is conferred under S. 174-A. Therefore, till the situation arises where action is taken under section 174-A and a notice has been served under S. 174-A the petition could not be maintained. AIR 1956 Bom 408 (408) (Pr 2) (DB).

17 (a). Person entitled to apply.

——Art. 227 — Petition for writ — Who can maintain — Notices under S. 34 of Income-tax Act served on one partner of dissolved firm — Petition by such partner alone, though the firm was dissolved is maintainable — Joinder of all the ex partners in the petition not necessary— Non-joinder is not fatal to maintainability. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1963 All 444.

——Art. 227 — Election of President found to be void — Successful party if can be allowed to continue as President pending revision. See Panchayats — Madras Village Panchayats Act (10 of 1950), S. 112. (1954) 2 MLJ (Andh) 44 : AIR 1954 Andhra 36.

——Arts. 227, 226 — Who can apply — Application by person on his own behalf and as well as in his capacity as secretary of unregistered association for reduction of fares of stage carriage— Some of bus owners already accepting rates fix- ed by R. T. A. — Relief held could not be granted to Association as a whole it being not legal entity and all members not having sought relief — (Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 47). See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1955 Cal 59.

——Art. 227 — Industrial Court making an award allowing Mills to work three shifts with a system of change over — Award not contemplating change over in shifts which were only partially worked — Differences arising between employer and representative union as to interpretation and effect of award — Matter referred to arbitration of persons agreed to by them — Arbitrators making award clarifying the Court's award that there shall be no change over in partial working of shifts — Arbitrator's award is valid and binding on employees — S. 116 or S. 116-A is no bar to refer such matters to arbitrators — Employees who were not given benefit of change over from second shift are not entitled to file application under Art. 227 of the Constitution of India. See Bombay Industrial Relations Act, 1946 (2 of 1947), S. 66. (1964) 5 Guj LR 969.

——Art. 227 — Petition under, for quashing order under S. 18, Land Acquisition Act — Death of applicant — If can be continued by his brother. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1957 Ker 152 (DB).

——Arts. 227, 226 — Who can apply — (Madhya Pradesh Public Trusts Act (30 of 1951), Pre. and Ss. 4, 5, 8)—Scheme of — Order declaring certain institutions not to be public trusts passed by Registrar of Public Trusts — State Government if can challenge order under Arts. 226, 227. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1958 Madh Pra 362.

——Arts. 227, 226 — Industrial Disputes — Application of management and of employees respectively under Ss. 33 (2) and 33-A, Industrial Disputes Act, disposed of by single order — Employees alone challenging order passed on their application under S. 33-A — No such application against order under S. 33 (2) filed by management — Court cannot examine the order passed on the application of management — Industrial Disputes Act (1947), Ss. 33 (2) and 33-A. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1965 Pat 297.

17 (b). Parties.

——Art. 227 — Revision under Art. 227 of the Constitution — Applicability of O. 1, R. 10. See Civil P. C. (1908), S. 151. AIR 1954 Andhra 36.

——Art. 227 — Pending proceeding under Art. 227 of Constitution — Elector's locus standi to come on record. See Panchayats — Madras Village Panchayats Act (X of 1950), S. 112. AIR 1954 Andhra 36.

——Art. 227 — Revision against Election Commissioner's decision — Death of respondent —Abatement. See Panchayats — Madras Village Panchayats Act (X of 1950), S. 112. AIR 1954 Andhra 36.

——Art. 227 — Parties — Necessary parties. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1953 Assam 129 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Parties challenging order of termination passed by Health Officer — Health Officer if necessary party. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1959 Nag LJ (Notes) 106 (Bom).

——Art. 227 — Parties — Writ application — Necessary parties. See Civil P. C. (1908), O. 1, R. 3. AIR 1958 Cal 151.

——Arts. 227, 226 — Procedure — Application under Art. 227 challenging tribunal's decision — Tribunal is not necessary party — Proceedings under Art. 226 — Tribunal is necessary party because record of proceeding cannot be brought up without issuing notice to it. AIR 1955 NUC (Madh B) 3370 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Parties — Court or Tribunal whose order is under revision — If to be impleaded.

In proceedings under Art. 227 in which the correctness of a decision of a Court or Tribunal is challenged, it is not necessary to make the Court or Tribunal a party. 1958 Jab LJ 185.

——Art. 227 — Parties to proceedings — Order of appellate Authority questioned — Order one of affirmance—Primary authority if necessary. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1956 Nag 65 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Parties to petition — Petition for writ against Election Tribunal — Government of India if should be ordered to be joined as party. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1954 Nag 166 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Tribunal against whose order petition is made need not be made party. AIR 1960 Punj 432, Overruled.

In an application under Art. 227 of the Constitution, it is not necessary to implead the Tribunal whose order is assailed and such a petition cannot be dismissed merely for the failure to implead the Tribunal concerned. AIR 1960 Punj 432, Overruled. AIR 1962 Punj 467, and AIR 1962 Punj 117, AIR 1959 Punj 291 and AIR 1961 Punj 24, Rel. on. ILR (1962) 2 Punj 751 : 65 Pun LR 45 : AIR 1963 Punj 156 (158) (Pr 6) (DB).

——Arts. 227 and 226 — Nature of proceedings under — Distinction — Tribunal against order of which proceedings are taken under Art. 227 not a necessary party to the same.

Article 227, which is for all practical purposes a revival of section 107 of the Government of India Act, 1915 is not an article which in terms provides for writs, etc. In this respect it is distinguishable from Article 226 which alone provides for writs, etc. Proceedings under Article 227 are not original proceedings, for orders passed in these proceedings are not even amenable to Letters Patent Appeals. Therefore, the considerations on which a Tribunal, to which a writ is to go under Art. 226 is held to be a necessary party, are not attracted in the case under Article 227. The label of Article 227 on the petition, does not by itself necessitate the impleading of the Tribunal whose order is assailed under Art. 227. AIR 1962 Punj 467 (470) (Pt B) (Pr 13).

——Art. 227 — Omission to implead authority whose orders sought to be assailed — Not fatal. AIR 1962 Punj 117 (119, 120) (Pt A) (Pr 7).

——Art. 227 — Parties — Petition for writ of certiorari — Tribunal concerned not made party — Defect goes to the root of relief sought — Applicability of rule to writs under Art. 227. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1960 Punj 432.

[Overruled in AIR 1963 Punj 156 (DB).]

——Art. 227 — Parties — Writ challenging award of labour Court — Necessary party — Government. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1959 Tripura 8.

17 (c). Duty to make full disclosure of material facts.

——Art. 227 — Person invoking writ jurisdiction must make a full and candid disclosure of all the material facts and refrain from deliberately keeping material circumstances from the Court. See Ibid, Art. 226. (1964) 2 Andh WR 155.

——Arts. 227, 226 — Suppression of material facts by applicant — Petitioners under Arts. 226, 227 — Duties of. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1965 Bom 24.

——Art. 227 — Scope—Petitioner must file all relevant documents — If complaint is that a plea was not enquired into or opportunity was not given, all circumstances must be specifically pleaded. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1964 Mah LJ (Notes) 61.

——Art. 227 — Application for transfer — Vague allegations — Criminal P. C., 1898, S. 526.

Every application for transfer of a case should furnish material particulars regarding the general allegations contained in the application against the judicial authority. Mere conclusions of the applicant unless supported by materials accompanying the application, would carry little weight in persuading the High Court to believe the allegations. 1952 Cri LJ 708 : ILR (1951) Hyd 174 : AIR 1951 Hyd 82 (83) (Pt B) (Pr 2) (DB).

18. Suo motu exercise of power.

——Art. 227 — Powers of High Court to quash orders suo motu. See Constitution of India, Art. 226. AIR 1958 All 154 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Right to apply — Exercise of powers under Art. 227 suo motu. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1959 Andh Pra 318.

——Art. 227 — Scope — Court can suo motu exercise powers under.

The power under Art. 227 can be exercised even suo motu by the Court as the custodian of all the justice within the limits of the territorial jurisdiction and for the vindication of its position as such. Where in the prayers the petitioner asked not only for the writ of habeas corpus which was enough but also for other orders that might appear to the High Court fit and proper, the Court was perfectly justified in issuing a Rule under Art. 227 of the Constitution. AIR 1957 All 414 (FB) and AIR 1958 All 154, Rel. on. 67 Cal WN 297 : (1963) 1 Cri LJ 579 : AIR 1963 Cal 261 (264) (Pt C) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Powers of High Court — Suo motu interference by High Court in case of grave injustice.

Per P. N. Mookerjee, J.: Under Art. 227 the High Court can even suo motu interfere in a proper case where a grave injustice has been done, or there has been a gross miscarriage of justice. The Constitution sets no express limit to the High Court's power under Art. 227. Obviously, there should be some error before this power can be legitimately invoked as otherwise there would be case for superintendence, revision or rectification. ILR (1955) 1 Cal 478.

——Art. 227 — Absence of provision in statute for filing revision — No application under Art. 227 filed — High Court on a revision filed whether would give relief under Art. 227 — Interference under article when would be made. See Houses and Rents — West Bengal Premises Rent Control (Temporary Provisions) Act (17 of 1950), S. 17 (3). AIR 1952 Cal 192 (DB).

19. Procedure.

——Art. 227 — Application under — Hearing of by Single Judge — According to the rules framed by the Allahabad High Court the application under Art. 226 has to be heard by a bench while that under Art. 227 can be heard by a Single Judge. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1952 Cri LJ 1520 : AIR 1952 All 843.

——Art. 227 — Procedure — Relief.

A company made an application for a declaration against its workers that they had gone on an illegal strike. Leave to withdraw the application and for permission to file a fresh application was applied for. The Court without giving notice to the workers allowed the application. The company thereafter filed a fresh application seeking a declaration that certain specified acts of the workers amounted to an illegal strike. That application made under Ss. 78 and 79 of the Bombay Industrial Relations Act was ultimately allowed. The workers who moved the High Court under Art. 227 against that order contended that the labour Court had no power to grant the company leave to withdraw their earlier application with leave to file a fresh application without notice to the workers.

Held, that the petitioners could not in proceedings against the order on the second application raise the contention. The proper procedure was that when they came to know of the withdrawal of the earlier application on being served with the notice of the second application, they should have filed a substantive application against the order allowing the withdrawal and raised that point then. (1958) 13 FJR 467 (Bom).

——Art. 227 — Procedure — Rules of Bombay High Court — Application is to be decided by Division Bench.

The powers of superintendence exercisable by the Bombay High Court according to the rules of that Court can be exercised only by a Division Bench. An application which invokes the powers of the Bombay High Court under Art. 227 of the Constitution can therefore only be heard and decided by a Division Bench and not by a Single Judge. AIR 1956 Bom 323 (325) (Pt. A) (Pr 33).

—— Art. 227 — Nature of proceedings — Applicability of O. 27-A — Notice to Attorney-General — Necessity. See Civil P. C. (1908), O. 27-A R. 1. AIR 1957 Cal 702.

——Art. 227 — Procedure under — No special procedure is prescribed — Procedure followed under S. 107, Govt. of India Act, 1935, has to be followed — Procedure for Art. 226 and Art. 227 should be distinguished. AIR 1955 NUC (Cal) 2074 (DB).

——Arts. 227, 226 — Disputed question — Power to record evidence — Application for writ to set aside order of Accommodation Officer requisitioning for public purpose the additional room constructed by petitioner on the terrace of his bungalow — Held relying on affidavits of Accommodation Officer, that the room was capable of being let out and was premises within the ambit of Bombay Land Requisition Act 1948 and that it was not a fit case in which evidence should be recorded as to the facts alleged by petitioner — There may however be cases where it would be desirable, in the interests of justice, that evidence should be recorded to determine the disputes raised in the petition under Articles 226 and 227. See Ibid, Art. 226. (1960) 1 Guj LR 89.

——Art. 227—Procedure —Counter to the petition — Signature on — Counter filed by senior member of Revenue Board not signed by him but by secretary — Matter held not of importance, since petitioners were not prejudiced. AIR 1955 NUC (Hyd) 2367 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Procedure — Affidavit — Reliability. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1963 Jab LJ 795.

——Art. 227 — Procedure — Conversion of civil revision application into one under Art. 227 — Permissibility.

The District Munsif enquiring into an election petition under S. 19 (1) of the Madras Village Panchayats Act though acts as a persona designata is still a Tribunal and his orders can be questioned by means of a writ application under Art. 226 of the Constitution. In such circumstances the High Court will not grant permission to the petitioner to convert the civil revision petition into an application under Art 227 of the Constitution 72 Mad LW 633: ILR (1959) Mad 1061: (1960) 1 Mad LJ 38: AIR 1960 Mad 353 (357) (Pt B) (Pr 19).

——Art. 227 — Stay of proceedings under Article under S. 4 of Mysore Tenants (Temporary Protection from Eviction) Act — Proceedings under Art 227 cannot be stayed — Revenue Tribunal rejecting claim of landlord to evict tenant — Petition by landlord under Art 227 — Tenant found liable to eviction — High Court will not order eviction because of the bar against eviction created by S. 3, even though the bar is temporary. AIR 1964 Mys 43 (45, 49) (Pt A) (Prs 3, 16) (DB).

——Art. 227—Industrial Dispute — Application of management and of employees respectively under Ss. 33 (2) and 33-A Industrial Disputes Act, disposed of by single order — Employees alone challenging order passed on their application — No such application filed by management — Court cannot examine the order passed on the application of management. See Ibid. Art. 226. AIR 1965 Pat 297 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Application under — Notice to tribunal — Not necessary.

In applications under Art 227 of the Constitution, there is no need for the High Court exercising power of superintendence to give any notice to any party. The High Court has power of superintending the functions of the Court below and it is open to the Court to call for record, examine it and pass such orders as it thinks fit. 1958 BLJR 704.

——Art. 227 — Consolidation of holdings under S. 14 E. P. Act (50 of 1948)— Dispute regarding fragmentation of holdings cannot be considered in writ proceedings under Article — In proceedings under Article High Court would ordinarily refrain from holding an enquiry into disputed, facts. See Ibid, Art. 226. (1965) 67 Pun LR 310.

——Art. 227 — Procedure — Attested copy of impugned order — Attachment with petition if necessary.

Where, in the absence of appropriate rule on the subject, the practice of the court is to accept unattested copies, failure to attach duly attested copy of the impugned order to a petition of revision under Art 227 does not entail dismissal of the petition. 64 Pun LR 456: ILR (1962) 2 Punj 439: AIR 1962 Punj 490 (491) (Pt C) (Pr 7).

——Art. 227 — Proceedings under are not original proceedings for orders passed in them are not even amenable to Letters Patent appeals. AIR 1962 Punj 467 (470) (Pt B) (Pr 13).

——Art. 227 — Attested copies or orders of judicial or quasi-judicial tribunals — Filing of — Omission not sufficient to non-suit petitioner.

In petitions under Art 227 of the Constitution copies of the orders of the judicial or quasi-judicial tribunals should be duly attested copies. But in the absence of definite rules in Punjab High Court if the High Court has accepted the copies not duly attested, the petitioner should not be non-suited for this omission alone. AIR 1962 Punj 117 (120) (Pt C) (Pr 8).

——Art. 227 — Civil P. C. (1908) S. 115—Application under both provisions — High Court can restrain trial court from proceeding with suit in which it has wrongly assumed jurisdiction.

Where a subordinate Court assumes jurisdiction in a suit under C. P. C. S. 92 even though the suit is not in conformity with the consent of the Advocate General and the defendant applies to the court in revision under C. P. C. S. 115 as well as under Constitution Art 227, the High Court can under Art 227 interfere even at this stage and restrain the lower court from proceeding with the suit.

Semble. Interference would be permissible even under C. P. C. S. 115. Observations in AIR 1959 SC 492 Rel on. AIR 1953 Raj 137 Dist. 1962 Raj LW 188 : ILR (1961) 11 Raj 898.

20. New plea.

——Arts. 227, 226—New plea of mixed question of law and fact — Question whether document was duly registered under U. P. Tenancy Act so as to be admissible in evidence not raised in Courts below cannot be raised in proceeding under Arts. 226 and 227. See Ibid. Art. 226. AIR 1959 All 13.

——Art. 227 — New point.

A contention not raised by the petitioner in his revision application before the Bombay Revenue Tribunal cannot be allowed to be raised for the first time in an application under Art 227 for setting aside the order of the Tribunal. 61 Bom LR 156: ILR (1959) Bom 629.

——Art. 227—Revision petition under—New plea—Determination of tenancy under Public Premises (Eviction of Unauthorised Occupants) Act, 1958—Objection to validity of determination of tenancy as it was governed by W. B. Non-Agricultural Tenancy Act, 1949, specifically abandoned before appellate authority and no record to show that it was raised before Estate Officer — Notice to quit not on record — Point neither taken nor indicated in petition — As decision on this point would involve decision on question of facts which were not averred or agitated at any time before, it cannot be allowed to urge — Petitioner can be allowed to agitate even at this stage if no further evidence is necessary for decision of point of law. AIR 1964 SC 859, Rel. on. (1965) 69 Cal WN 1035 (DB).

——Art. 227—New point — Mixed question of law and fact — Point not taken in lower Courts— Point cannot be allowed to be raised for first time in revision. 68 Cal WN 485: (1964-65) 26 FJR 221: (1965) 1 Lab LJ 380: AIR 1964 Cal 285 (286) (Pt B) (Pr 4).

——Art. 227—New plea— Court will not allow any party to introduce new facts in a proceeding under Art. 227. (1959) 63 Cal WN 976 : 1960 Cal L Jour 40: ILR (1960) 1 Cal 745: AIR 1960 Cal 378 (380) (Pt B) (Pr 11) (DB).

——Art. 227 — Sales Tax — Question whether turnover exceeds taxable limit — Question of fact — Cannot be allowed for first time in writ petition. See Sales Tax — C. P. and Berar Sales Tax Act (21 of 1947), S. 11. AIR 1964 Madh Pra 161 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Objection not taken before the Tribunal, cannot be allowed to be taken before High Court in writ proceedings. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1964 MPLJ (Notes) 168.

——Art. 227 — Question not raised before panchayat — It cannot be raised for the first time in High Court — Alternative remedy no bar to petition under Art. 226. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1962 MPLJ (Notes) 126.

——Art. 227 — New point — Application by tenant under S. 29 (1) Bombay Tenancy and Agricultural Lands Act for restoration of possession of lands on allegation of his unlawful dispossession by landlord and his alienee — Point about surrender of lands by tenant applicant in favour of landlord before the latter sold them, raised by alience for first time in revision before Revenue Tribunal — Tribunal holding that surrender was not in accordance with law and it was therefore ineffective — Question held was unnecessary for the Tribunal to have gone into, and could not be urged before High Court in application under Art 227 of the Constitution.

Contention that S. 29 (1) of the Bombay Act was not applicable which also was raised for first time before Tribunal, involved question of facts and could not be entertained in application under Art. 227. (Tenancy Laws — Bombay Tenancy and Agricultural Lands Act (67 of 1948) Ss. 5 (3) and 29 (1)). ILR (1960) Mys 1.

——Art. 227 — New plea — Plea not raised before Election Tribunal — If can be raised. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1957 Mys 76 (DB).

——Art. 227 — New case—Petition under S. 66 (4) Income-tax Act read with Arts 226 and 227 of the Constitution — New case sought to be made out during arguments—Competency. See Income-tax Act (1922), S. 66 (4). AIR 1957 Punj 284 (DB).

Court-fees.

——Art. 227 — Application under — Court-fees. See Court Fees Act (1870), Sch. 2 Art. 1 (D) (iii). AIR 1955 Him Pra 41.

Estoppel

——Art. 227 — Industrial dispute relating to fixation of fair wages and provision for gratuity scheme — Employees objecting to admission of evidence of paying capacity on unit basis — Held it was too late for them to ask for a remand of the case in the writ proceedings for a fresh decision by tribunal after receiving evidence of paying capacity on unit basis. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1962 Madh Pra 172 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Estoppel against applying—Objection to the jurisdiction of the Tribunal not raised before it — Person taking chance of obtaining favourable decision — He cannot later urge want of jurisdiction by the Tribunal. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1961 MPLJ (Notes) 270.

——Arts. 227, 226 — Submission to or acquiescence in jurisdiction— (Panchayat — M B Panchayat Vidhan (58 of 1949), Ss. 75, 89). See Ibid, Art. 226. 1957 Cri LJ 759: AIR 1957 Madh Pra 58 (DB).

——Arts. 227, 226—Evidence Act (1872), S. 115—Bias — Failure to raise objection — Estoppel. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 115. AIR 1957 Pat 732.

——Arts. 227 and 226 — Applicabiilty — (Evidence Act (1872), S. 115).

As a matter of principle a party denying the jurisdiction of a particular Tribunal and succeeding in that plea cannot deny the truth of that plea in subsequent proceedings before another Tribunal. AIR 1931 Oudh 123; AIR 1914 Cal 143, Rel. on.

Therefore where in a suit for eviction the defendant pleaded and succeeded on the ground that the civil Court had no jurisdiction because of the bar imposed by the provisions of the Rent Control Act he should not be permitted to plead inconsistently before the Rent Control authorities that they had no jurisdiction to order eviction. Where the Rent Control authorities commit the legal error of permitting the tenant to raise that inconsistent plea and declines to exercise the jurisdiction vested in them under the Rent Control Act the more appropriate article under which remedy is to be given is Art 227 and not Art 226 of the Constitution. 1955 BLJR 47: AIR 1955 Pat 198 (198, 199) (Prs 3, 4) (DB).

Res judicata.

——Art. 227 — Res judicata — Dismissal of municipal employee — Without previous approval of Government — Collector holding that the employee was a permanent employee setting aside dismissal order on the ground it was bad in the absence of Government's approval — Municipality's writ application to quash Collector's order — High Court also holding in such proceedings that the employee was a permanent one — Municipality again passing resolution dismissing the employee without Government's previous approval— Held that in the proceedings to set aside the second order it was not open to the municipality to contend that the employee was a temporary one and hence no previous approval of Government was necessary. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1964 MPLJ 36.

——Art. 227 — Successive applications — (Civil PC (1908), S. 11 — O. 23, R. 1. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1956 Punj 157.

Objection to jurisdiction

——Art. 227 —New plea of — Objection to jurisdiction of Tribunal not raised before it — It cannot be taken on an application under Arts. 226 and 227. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1960 Bom 219 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Objection to jurisdiction of Tribunal whose order is challenged. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1959 Bom 538 (DB).

——Art. 227 — New plea — Want of jurisdiction— Objection as to — If can be taken in petition under Arts. 226, 227 for the first time. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1961 Ker 117 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Case under Motor Vehicles Act — Appellate authority constituted with two members — Objection to hearing of appeal by single member not raised at the time by appellant — He cannot raise it subsequently by application under Arts. 226 and 227. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1965 Madh Pra 113 (DB).

——Art. 227—New plea—Question of jurisdiction not raised before subordinate tribunal cannot be made basis of petition. See Ibid, Art. 226. 1961 MPLJ 761.

——Arts. 227, 226—Proceedings under — Objection as to jurisdiction — When cannot be raised for first time. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1958 Pat 120.

——Arts. 227, 226 — Panchayats — Bihar Panchayat Raj Act 1947 (7 of 1948), S. 65 — Scope— Suit for declaration of title and recovery of possession — Jurisdiction — Objection not taken before Gram Cutchery — Effect — (Civil PC (1908), Ss. 9 and 21). See — Panchayats — Bihar Panchayat Raj Act (1947) (7 of 1948), Section 65. AIR 1958 Pat 105.

——Art. 227 — Objection to jurisdiction not raised before lower Court itself — Power of High Court to interfere when there is patent and total want of jurisdiction in the lower Court. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1954 Pepsu 190.

——Art. 227 — Objection about jurisdiction of Tribunal — Objection not taken before Tribunal — Whether can be allowed in proceedings under Arts. 226 and 27 before High Court. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 10. ILR (1963) 2 Punj 28.

21. Appeal.

●——Arts. 227, 226 — Interlocutory order passed by High Court in writ proceedings — Interference by Supreme Court. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1958 SC 398.

●——Art. 227—Special appeal against order of High Court on application under Art. 227 —

Exercise of power under Article by Supreme Court. See Ibid, Art. 136. 1957 Cri LJ 998 : AIR 1957 SC 612.

——Art. 227 — Appeal — Order of single Judge dismissing petition — Appealability. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1957 All 671 (DB).

——Art. 227 — High Court Rules and Orders— (Allahabad) Rules of Court (1950), Chap. VIII, R. 5 — Civil P. C. (1908), O. 17, R. 1 — Order of adjournment on furnishing security — Petition under Art 227 against order rejected by Single Judge — Appeal — Maintainability — (Words and Phrases — Judgment). See High Court Rules and Orders — (Allahabad) Rules of Court (1950), Ch. VIII R. 5. AIR 1956 All 672.

——Art. 227 — Civil proceeding —What constitutes — Notice under S. 34 (1) (a) Income-tax Act (1922) — Writ petition under Art 226 of the Constitution for quashing notices — Appeal under Art. 133. See Ibid, Art. 133. AIR 1964 Bom 116.

——Art. 227 — Question of interpretation—Certificate for appeal to Supreme Court — Competency. See Ibid, Art. 132 (1). AIR 1958 Cal 679 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Letters Patent (Cal), Cl. 15 — Order made in exercise of powers of superintendence — (Civil P. C. (1908), S. 115). See Letters Patent (Cal.) Cl. 15. AIR 1953 Cal 636.

——Art. 227 — Jurisdiction of High Court under Constitution, Art. 227 — Not original but revisional — Judgment of single judge in proceedings under Art. 227 — Not appealable. See Kerala High Court Act (1958), S. 5. 1961 Ker LT 823.

—Art. 227 — Revision held under Section 115 Civil P. C. and Art. 227 — Disposal by single Judge — Appeal. See Letters Patent (Madras), Cl. 15. AIR 1955 Mad 287 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Order of Magistrate on application under Section 87, Religious Endowments Act — Revision —Order of single Judge — Appeal — Maintainability. See Letters Patent (Madras) Cl. 15. 1955 Cri LJ 323: AIR 1955 Mad 72 (DB).

——Art. 227 — Orders passed in proceedings are not even amenable to Letters Patent appeals. AIR 1962 Punj 467.

——Arts. 227, 226 — Letters Patent (Punjab), (1919), Cl. 10 — Decision of single judge under Art. 226 quashing certain order — Further direction added under Art. 227 — Appeal against order under Art. 226 not barred. See Letters Patent (Punj) (1919), Cl. 10. AIR 1961 Punj 24.

——Arts. 227, 226 — Supervisory jurisdiction of High Court over Rent Control Tribunals — Application by landlord under Arts. 226 and 227, Constitution of India to quash order of appellate authority under Delhi Rent Control Act, fixing standard rent — Application treated as one under Art. 227 and dismissed — Appeal under Cl. 10, Letters Patent (Punjab) —Whether competent — (Letters Patent (Punjab), C. 10)— (Houses and Rents— Delhi and Ajmer Merwara Rent Control Act (1947), S. 7-A). See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1959 Punj 291 (DB).

——Arts. 227, 226 and 133 (1) — Proceeding whether of civil nature — How to determine — Proceeding of civil nature — Jurisdiction under Art. 226 or Art. 227 invoked — Proceeding whether ceases to be civil. See Ibid, Art. 133 (1). AIR 1959 Punj 58.

——Art. 227 — Decision by single Judge — Letters Patent appeal is not competent — (High Court) — Practice. AIR 1955 NUC (Punj) 4025.

22. Rules of High Court.

——Art. 227 (2) (b) — High Court Rules and Orders, (Allahabad) — General Rules (Civil), Rule 15 — Plaint written not in Hindi but in English — Plaint is valid in spite of Rule 15. See High Courts Rules and Orders — (Allahabad) General Rules (Civil), Rule 15. AIR 1963 All 546 (DB).

——Art. 227 (3) — Special agreement to charge higher fees—Validity. See High Court Rules and Orders — (Calcutta) Original Side Rules, (Chap. 36, Rule 4). AIR 1955 Cal 319.

——Art. 227 — Administrative powers of the District Judge — Interference in the discretionary powers of Subordinate Courts in fixing dates of hearing by administrative orders not valid — Proper procedure for interference — Matter should be brought to notice of High Court for framing rules. See Manipur Courts Act (1955), S. 20. AIR 1962 Manipur 24.

23. Exemption of military Courts and Tribunals.

——Arts. 227 (4), 226 — Tribunal constituted by law relating to army — High Court's power of superintendence. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1952 Trav-Co. 7.

ARTICLE 228

SYNOPSIS

(Constitution of India, Art. 228.)

1. Scope and object of the Article.
2. "Case pending in a Court subordinate to it".
3. "Court subordinate to it."
4. "Involves a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of this Constitution."
5. "The determination of which is necessary for the disposal of the case."
6. Onus of proof.
7. Retrospective effect.
8. Appellate side of the High Court.
9. Who can move the High Court.
10. Procedure of High Court under this Article.

1. Scope and Object of the Article.

——Art. 228 (a) and (b) — Transfer of case by Chief Justice to Division Bench, for decision of question of law — Direction that only that question should be decided by Bench — Direction held could be ignored — Bench could decide wheiher to act under Cl. (a) or Cl. (b) of Art. 228.

Where the Chief Justice of the High Court directed the transfer of a case to the Division Bench for decision of the question of vires of Section 153-A, Penal Code but expressly said in his order that only that question shall be decided by the Bench.

Held, that the Chief Justice who was acting under Part I of Art. 228 could not have passed an order restricting the discretion of the Bench. The Bench was completely free to act either under Cl. (a) or Cl. (b) of Art. 228 and thus either dispose of the whole case itself or determine the question of law alone. It is only after the case had been heard on merits that the Court would be in a position to decide whether to dispose of the case itself or to decide the question of law alone. That being so the direction of the Chief Justice could be ignored. 1963 All LJ 21: 1963 All WR (HC) 87: 1963 All Cr R 80: (1963) 2 Cri LJ 4 : AIR 1963 All 335 (336) (Pt A) (Pr 2) (DB).

——Art. 228 — Article does not empower a Lower Court to make a reference. AIR 1955 NUC (Madh Bha) 3401.

——Art. 228 — Validity of M. B. Police Act questioned in suit which lies in Civil Court — Fact that question would be referred under Art. 228 cannot warrant holding that remedy of suit is not as effective, beneficial and convenient as on an application under Art. 226. See Madhya Bharat Police Act (76 of Sm. 2007), S. 12. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1953 Madh Bha 222 (DB).

——Art. 228 — Decision of constitutional question (validity of Bihar Mica Act 1947), must be necessary for decision of case — High Court not in position to know whether decision of such question would be necessary — Case will not be withdrawn — Applicability of Section 432, Cr. P. Code —(Cr. P. Code (1898), S. 432, as amended).

Three conditions must be fulfilled before Art. 228 of the Constitution can apply; the first condition is that there must be a case pending in the Court subordinate to the High Court; secondly the case must involve a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of the Constitution or the Government of India Act, 1935, thirdly, the determination of the question of law must be necessary for the disposal of the case. Once these three conditions are fulfilled the Article requires that the High Court shall withdraw the case and then may either dispose of the case itself or determine the question of law and return the case to the Court from which the case has been withdrawn, etc. So far as withdrawal of the case is concerned the Article is mandatory as soon as the conditions laid down therein are fulfilled.

The High Court must be satisfied that the determination of the question of law as to interpretation of the Constitution (the validity of Bihar Mica Act, 1947 in the instant case) is necessary for the disposal of the case. If the suit can be disposed of on the other questions raised, Art. 228 will not apply. Usually the High Court will not act till the point is clear and will wait for the other issues to be decided. AIR 1952 Mad 20, Ref.

There is another aspect of the matter. Section 432, Cr. P. Code which was recently enacted lays down inter alia that where any Court is satisfied that the case pending before it involves a question as to the validity of any Act the determination of which is necessary for the disposal of the case and is of opinion that such Act is invalid or inoperative but has not been so declared by the High Court to which that Court is subordinate or by the Supreme Court the Court shall state a case setting out its opinion and the reasons therefor and refer the same for the decision of the High Court. Though there is difference in scope of the two provisions, Art. 228 of the Constitution and Section 432, Cr. P. Code, S. 432 has some relevancy. Where the High Court does not yet know if the constitutional question as to the validity of the Bihar Mica Act, 1947, is really necessary for the disposal of the case if however the constitutional question does arise on the case and the Court is of opinion that the Bihar Mica Act, 1947, as amended from time to time or any provision thereof is invalid or inoperative Section 432, Cr. P. Code, makes it obligatory on the Court to make a reference to the High Court. In these circumstances the High Court is not obliged at this stage to withdraw the case from the subordinate Court. 1954 Cri LJ 1265: AIR 1954 Pat 387 (389, 390) (Pt A) (Prs 4, 6, 7).

——Art. 228 — Scope compared with scope of Section 432, Cr. P. Code — (Cr. P. Code (1898), Section 432).

Art. 228 of the Constitution and Section 432, Cr. P. Code (as recently amended) do not cover the same ground and it cannot be said that Section 432, Cr. P. Code, controls Art. 228 of the Constitution. In one sense Section 432, Cr. P. Code, is wider in its effect, and in another sense it is narrower than Art. 228 of the Constitution. Art. 228 of the Constitution relates to a case which involves a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of the Constitution the determination of which is necessary for the disposal of the case. Section 432, Cr. P. Code, relates to the validity of any Act, Ordinance, Regulation etc., and is not confined merely to an interpretation of the Constitution or of the Government of India Act, 1935. Art. 228 applies as soon as the case involves a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of the Constitution, the determination of which is necessary for the disposal of the case. Section 432, Cr. P. Code, applies when not merely there is a question as to the validity of any Act, Ordinance, Regulation, etc., the determination of which is necessary for the disposal of the case, but when the Court is of opinion that such Act, Ordinance, Regulation, etc., is invalid or inoperative but has not been so declared by the High Court or by the Supreme Court. Therefore, the scope and effect of Section 432, Cr. P. Code and Art. 228 of the Constitution are not the same; they do not cover the same ground, and one does not necessarily control the other. 1954 Cri LJ 1265: AIR 1954 Pat 387 (390) (Pt B) (Pr 7).

●——Art. 228 — Exercise of powers under — High Court, how may be moved.

Art. 228, Constitution of India, does not say how the High Court is to be moved for the exercise of its powers but obviously it can be moved either by the parties or by the subordinate Court in which the case in question is pending. Rulia Ram v. Sadh Ram, ILR (1952) Patiala 1: AIR 1952 Pepsu 1 (1, 2) (Pr 1) (FB).

——Art. 228 — Vires — Decision as to constitutionality — Election tribunal cannot decide question. See Interpretation of Statutes. AIR 1955 NUC (EP) 5800.

——Art. 228 — Prosecution of person for violation of some section or rule — Procedure to be followed—(Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 435). See Ibid, Art. 226. 1953 Cri LJ 549: AIR 1953 Punj 77 (DB).

——Arts. 228, 226 — Another remedy open — Opposite party in suit under Rajasthan Premises (Control of Rent and Eviction) Act, 1950, contending that Act offended against Arts. 14, 15 and 19 (1) (f) — Proper course is to apply to High Court under Art. 228 — Opposite party can also take advantage of Section 113, C. P. Code — High Court will not interfere under Art. 226 — (Civil P. C., (1908), S. 113). See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1955 NUC (Raj) 2184.

2. "Case pending in a Court subordinate to it."

——Art. 228 — "Case pending in a Court subordinate to it— Proceedings pending before District Magistrate under Section 49 M. B. Police Act — (Madhya Bharat Police Act (76 of 1950), Section 49 (2)) — (Criminal Procedure Code (1898), Section 6).

Art. 228 of the Constitution relates to transfer to the High Court of a "case pending in a Court subordinate to it." The proceedings pending before the District Magistrate under Section 49 (2), M. B. Police Act cannot on any reasoning be regarded as proceedings in a case pending in a Court as the District Magistrate acts as an executive officer under the Act, and not under the Criminal Procedure Code. 1957 Cri LJ 854: 1957

MPC 531: 1957 Jab LJ 442: AIR 1957 Madh Pra 97 (98) (Pr 2) (DB).

——Art. 228 — Applicability — Conditions necessary for — Question regarding the constitutional validity of Section 57 of the Madras Hindu Religious Endowments Act — Fit case for withdrawal.

For Art. 228 of the Constitution to apply three main conditions must exist. They are — (1) A suit or case must be actually pending in a Court subordinate to the High Court. No one can move the High Court under Art. 228 stating that such a suit or case is intended to be filed. It must be actually filed and must be pending. If it has been dismissed or disposed of already Art. 228 will not apply.

(2) The High Court must be satisfied that it involves a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of the Constitution. It should really involve such a question. A mere frivolous allegation that such a question is involved will not do.

(3) The High Court must be satisfied that the determination of that question is necessary for the disposal of the case. If the suit can be disposed on the other questions raised (like limitation, non-maintainability by a single person when a representative suit has to be filed under the law, etc.) Art. 228 will not apply. Usually the High Court will not act till this point is clear, and will wait for the other issues to be decided. Of course, where it is clear it will act at once.

Where a suit is pending in a Court subordinate to the High Court whatever the reason be for its pendency, whether mischievous and selfish petitions by the plaintiffs, or petitions filed by them bona fide in the ends of justice, the High Court can interfere.

The Appellate Side has jurisdiction especially when the matter arises from the mofussil Courts and all the more so where the High Court can act under Art. 228 (b) and does not decide to try and dispose of the suit under Art. 228 (a).

Where a scheme is framed under Section 57 of the Madras Hindu Religious Endowments Act and the issue is raised as to the constitutional validity of the section as it was alleged to offend Arts. 15 and 26 of the Constitution by discrimination against Hindus alone by subjecting their endowments alone to regulation and control by Government officers and corporations it is a fit case for withdrawal under Art. 228 (b) to High Court for decision of the question of law and returning it to the subordinate Court as soon as the question of law is decided. 64 LW 982: (1951) 2 MLJ 511: AIR 1952 Mad 20 (21, 22) (Pts A, B) (Prs 6, 10).

——Art. 228 — Employees' State Insurance Act (1948), Section 73-B (1) — Authority appointed under — If Court — Withdrawal of proceedings.

The authority appointed under Section 73-B (1), Employees' State Insurance Act, 1948 is not a Court and as the transfer of a case to the High Court provided for by Art. 228 refers only to a case pending before a subordinate Court it is not possible to withdraw the proceedings before the Court under Art. 228. AIR 1956 Sau 96 (97) (Pt B) (Pr 5) (DB).

3. "Court subordinate to it."

——Arts. 228, 234, 237 and 227 — Subordinate Courts — Essentials of — (Civil P. C. (1908), Ss. 115 and 3). See Ibid, Art. 234. AIR 1957 All 495.

[Overruled in AIR 1962 All 315 (FB.)]

——Art. 228 — Court subject to supervisory jurisdiction of High Court — Whether a 'subordinate Court". See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. AIR 1956 All 258.

[Overruled in AIR 1962 All 315 (FB.)]

——Arts. 228, 227 — Rent Controller — Transfer of proceedings.

Arts. 227 and 228 occur in juxtaposition indicating thereby that they are not intended to serve the same purpose. Art. 227 cannot comprehend a power which is specifically embodied in Art. 228. When an application for transfer is made, it must come only under Art. 228 and that Article makes no mention of Tribunals, though Tribunals are specifically referred to in Art. 227. The power of superintendence conferred by Art. 227, it is no doubt true is both judicial and administrative. But it does not comprehend a power to withdraw to the file of the High Court, a case pending before a Statutory Tribunal. The House Rent Controller is not a Court. Hence the High Court has no power under Arts. 227 and 228 of the Constitution of India to transfer an application filed under the Madras Buildings (Lease and Rent Control) Act from the file of the Rent Controller to the High Court. Case-law discussed. ILR (1955) Andhra 262: 1955 Andh WR 126: AIR 1955 Andhra 85 (85, 87) (Prs 1, 11).

——Art. 228 — Suit pending in subordinate Court — Substantial question of validity of Act involved — Application for transfer.

Article 228 of the Constitution is mandatory and its object is to obtain the decision of the highest Court in the State in view of the importance of constitutional questions raised at the earliest opportunity, and no narrow interpretation should be adopted which may defeat its purpose, specially when the High Court otherwise also enjoys larger powers of transfer of suits pending in subordinate Courts.

In an application under Art. 228 of the Constitution of India, in which the petitioner, who was the plaintiff in the suit, prayed for transfer of suit pending before the Subordinate Judge at Dhubri, to the High Court, it was alleged that the said suit instituted by the petitioner involved substantial questions of law as to the interpretation of the Constitution, and that the determination of the said questions was essential for the disposal of the case. The plaint showed that the question of the validity of the legislation, namely, the Assam State Acquisitions of Zamindaris Act, 1951, in its relation to the Constitution, was a substantial question of law which might arise for disposal in the case. The Government, which was a defendant, to the suit, contended that so far no written statement had been filed in the suit and no issues had been settled, and it was, therefore, premature at this stage to find out whether or not the case would be concluded by certain other points raised therein; if those other points were decisive of the case, then it would be wholly unnecessary to adjudicate upon the constitutional questions raised therein;

Held, that in special cases it might perhaps be desirable to stay one's hands before acting under Art. 228; but this did not necessarily mean that the High Court should wait until all the other issues had been decided, for in that case, the object of the transfer under Art. 228 of the Constitution would be rendered ineffective;

(2) that it would be desirable in the circumstances of the case to grant the prayer of the petitioner and to transfer the case to the High Court. AIR 1954 Pat 387; AIR 1952 Mad 20, Expl. ILR (1955) 7 Assam 114: AIR 1955 Assam 154 (156) (Prs 4, 5) (DB).

——Art. 228 — Applicability — Transfer cannot be ordered unless ingredients of Article are satisfied. AIR 1955 NUC (Punj) 5727 (DB).

——Art. 228 — 'Court subordinate to it.'

Power of withdrawal in Art. 228 has been given only in respect of case pending before Courts alone, which were subject to appellate or ordinary revisional jurisdiction of High Court and not before tribunals. The Anti-Ejectment Officer dealing with cases under Section 7 of the Rajasthan (Protection of Tenants) Ordinance, 1949, cannot be said to be a 'Court subordinate to the High Court' within the meaning of Art. 228 of the Constitution. He constitutes only a tribunal invested with quasi-judicial functions. The cases before him cannot, therefore, be withdrawn under Art. 228. 1955 Raj LW 170: ILR (1954) 4 Raj 577: AIR 1954 Raj 185 (188) (Pt A) (Pr 10) (DB).

4. "Involves a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of this Constitution."

●——Art. 228 — Applicability — Suit by scheduled bank on mortgage — Defendant claiming relief under U. P. Zamindars' Debt Reduction Act and contesting validity of S. 2 (f) of the Act on the ground that it was discriminatory — Held, Art. 228 applied as question of interpretation of Constitution was involved. See Civil Procedure Code (1908), S. 113. AIR 1958 SC 293.

——Art. 228 — Separation of void portion of provision—Question depends not on interpretation of Constitution but on construction of statute — (Debt Laws — U. P. Zamindars' Debt Reduction Act, 1952 (15 of 1953), S. 2 (f). See Ibid, Art. 13 (2). AIR 1956 All 635 (DB).

——Art. 228 — Applicability — "Substantial question of law as to the interpretation of the Constitution" — Meaning of — Whether Section 23, Bhopal Public Safety Act and Section 5 of the Bhopal (Administration) Order are ultra vires and void under Art. 13 of the Constitution — Nature of.

The essentials for the application of Art. 228 of the Constitution are: (1) the existence of a question of law; (2) such question must be a substantial question; and (3) such question must be as to the interpretation of the Constitution.

Interpretation has to be distinguished from application and means applying closely with diligence and nothing more whereas interpretation is the act of making intelligible what before was not understood, not obvious, or was ambiguous. It is the method by which the meaning of the language is ascertained. No resort to interpretation can be had when the meaning is clear and free from doubt. Where the questions of law involved are (1) whether S. 23, Bhopal Public Safety Act, 1947, is ultra vires of Art. 19 (1) (a) read with Art. 13 of the Constitution and (2) whether Section 5 of the Bhopal Administration Order, 1949, is ultra vires or void under Art. 13 of the Constitution, the utmost that the Court has to do is to find out whether the questions fall within the purview of the said Articles or are repelled by them. In such a case no question is involved as to the interpretation of the Constitution and hence Art. 228 does not apply. 53 Cri LJ 78: AIR 1951 Bhopal 9 (10) (Prs 3, 4).

——Art. 228 — No reference lies when Judge is of opinion that impugned Act is valid. See Criminal P. C. (5 of 1898), S. 432. AIR 1954 Madh Bha 206.

——Art. 228 — "Involves" — Meaning — Mere circumstance that important question of interpretation of Constitution has been raised, not sufficient to withdraw case under Art. 228 — Civil P. C. (1908), Section 110 — Government of India Act (1935), Section 205.

The word 'involves' and expression "the determination of which is necessary for the disposal of the case", which occur in Art. 228 are important and significant. They indicate that the satisfaction of the High Court must be as to the point that the case cannot be decided without a decision on the constitutional question. If in a case, along with the question of law as to the interpretation of the Constitution, there are other questions independent of the constitutional question which are sufficient in themselves to end the case, then the constitutional question is not one the determination of which is necessary for the disposal of case. The mere circumstance, therefore, that a question of law as to the interpretation of the Constitution has been raised and that it is important and substantial, cannot give the High Court jurisdiction to withdraw the case. Article 228 couched in terms so explicit is not intended to preclude a subordinate Court from deciding a case, merely because a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of the Constitution is raised. The obvious object of the article is to make in the States the High Court the sole interpreter of the Constitution and at the same time to prevent the High Court from being made a forum for academic discussions on constitutional questions. It is only when on the facts found in the case, the decision turns on the answer to the constitutional question that the High Court can exercise its jurisdiction to withdraw the case and adopt either of the courses mentioned in the article.

The question whether the constitutional point is necessary for the disposal of the case, cannot be determined with reference to the time at which the prayer for withdrawal is made but with reference to the findings on the other questions in the case, and until those other questions are decided, the stage for considering whether the determination of the constitutional question is necessary for the disposal of the case cannot arise. AIR 1950 Madh Bha 81 (82, 83) (Prs 3, 4) (DB).

——Art. 228 — Procedure.

A subordinate Court should only make a reference to the High Court, when it is satisfied that a case pending before it involves a real or substantial question as to the validity of any Act or regulation. A mere plea that an act is ultra vires will not suffice. If it is not so satisfied it should go on with the trial, leaving it to the aggrieved accused to move the High Court under Art. 228, and to continue the trial until such an application is admitted and the trial stayed. 65 Mad LW 267: ILR (1953) Mad 191: 1952 Mad WN 261: 1952 Mad WN Cr 61: 1952-1 Mad LJ 468: 1962 Cri LJ 1235: AIR 1952 Mad 578 (579) (Pt C) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 228 — Scope — Act impugned under Art. 19 found not to violate its provisions — No reason for withdrawing case from mofussil Court under Art. 228. See Explosives Act (IV of 1884). 1953 Cri LJ 333: AIR 1953 Mad 142.

——Art. 228 — Application under Madras Hindu (Bigamy Prevention and Divorce) Act (6 of 1949) — Defence that Act is void by reason of Art. 13 of Constitution, involves substantial question of law involving interpretation of Constitution — Question whether petition is maintainable even if the Act is inconsistent with Constitution, because second marriage took place before Constitution is also such a question.

Where upon a petition under Sec. 5 of Madras Act 6 of 1949, the Madras Hindu (Bigamy Prevention and Divorce) Act, one of the defences raised is that Madras Act 6 of 1949 itself is invalid and inconsistent with the Constitution, the case involves a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of the Constitution the determination of which is necessary for the disposal of this case and the case falls under Art. 228.

The question whether even if the Act is inconsistent with the Constitution and therefore, void under Art. 13 of the Constitution, the petition is sustainable because the second marriage which furnished the petitioner with a right to obtain a divorce took place before the coming into force of the Constitution, also involves a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of the Constitution, in particular, Art. 13. AIR 1951 SC 128, Ref. AIR 1952 Mad 291 (291) (Prs 1, 2) (DB).

——Art. 228 — Applicability — Conditions for.

For Art. 228 to apply, three main conditions must exist. They are:— (1) A suit or case must be actually pending in a Court subordinate to the High Court. (2) The High Court must be satisfied that it involves a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of the Constitution. It should really involve such a question. A mere frivolous allegation that such a question is involved will not do. (3) The High Court must be satisfied that the determination of that question is necessary for the disposal of the cases. If the suit can be disposed on the other questions raised (like limitation, non-maintainability by a single person when a representative suit has to be filed under the law, etc.) Art. 228 will not apply. Usually, the High Court will not act till this point is clear, and will wait for the other issues to be decided. Of course, where it is clear it will act at once. 64 Mad LW 982: 1951-2 Mad LJ 511: AIR 1952 Mad 20 (21) (Pt A) (Pr 6).

——Art. 228 — C. P. and Berar Sales Tax Act S. 1 and Letters Patent (Nagpur), Cl. 9 — Transfer to High Court — Vires of Sales Tax Act involved — Question affecting many — Case should be tried by High Court under Cl. 9 — Art. 228 does not apply.

In a case instituted in the lower Court Civil Judge Class II, Yeotmal, plaintiff claimed for a declaration that the C. P. and Berar Sales Tax Act, 1947, in so far as it imposes a tax on the sales of tobacco and its products including sales of bidis is ultra vires. The plaintiff applied under Art. 228, Constitution of India and Letters Patent, Cl. 9 for removing the suit for trial by the High Court in exercise of its extraordinary original civil jurisdiction. The application was not opposed on behalf of the State Department.

Held, that a question of interpretation of the Government of India Act and not of the Constitution of India was involved and the application did not lie under Art. 228: that the High Court had power to try the case under Cl. 9, Letters Patent and that as the question was of importance and affected large number of persons and involved the vires of a taxing measure it was in the circumstances preferable to remove the case for trial to the High Court to save time, inconvenience and hardship. ('51) 1951 Nag LJ (Notes) 183.

——Arts. 228, 141—Substantial question of law—Validity of S. 144, Cr. P. C. decided by Supreme Court — Decision is binding on High Court — (Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 144) — Civil Procedure Code (1908), Pre.). AIR 1955 NUC (Punj) 5727 (DB).

——Art. 228 — Applicability — Suit under S. 6, Rajasthan Premises (Control of Rent and Eviction) Act — Contention by defendants that Act offends Arts. 14, 15 and 19 (1) (f) of Constitution — Substantial question of law as to interpretation of Constitution arises. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1955 NUC (Raj) 2184 (DB).

5. "The determination of which is necessary for the disposal of the case".

——Art. 228 — Scope — Extent of jurisdiction under Art. 228 — Question of validity of provision of Act raised —High Court may determine its scope and effect of such provision.

Under Art. 228 of the Constitution, the High Court has the jurisdiction to decide whether a question of law as to the interpretation of the Constitution is required to be determined for the disposal of a suit which is pending in a Court subordinate to it. Thus, where the question as to the constitutional validity of a provision of an Act is raised and it is not possible for the High Court to consider that question without appreciating its scope and effect, the High Court will determine the scope and effect of the said provision and after doing so it may decide that no question of validity of the provision is involved. 64 Bom LR 670: ILR 1963 Bom 35: AIR 1963 Bom 45 (48) (Pt C) (Pr 8) (DB).

●——Art. 228 — Question of constitutional law incidentally arising — Judgment capable of being given on other grounds — High Court will not express any opinion on constitutional question. Pannalal v. Hyderabad State, ILR (1952) Hyd 684: 1952 Cr LJ 1740: AIR 1952 Hyd 187 (188) (Pt A) (Pr 3) (FB).

——Art. 228 — Constitutional question necessary for disposal of case — Stage with reference to which the question of the necessity is to be decided.

The question whether the constitutional point is necessary for the disposal of the case cannot be determined with reference to the time at which the prayer for withdrawal is made but with reference to the findings on the other questions in the case and until these questions are decided, the stage for considering whether the determination of the constitutional question is necessary for the disposal of the case cannot arise. AIR 1950 Madh B 81 (83) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 228 — Scope — Decision on constitutional question necessary for deciding the case — Decision on other questions in the case sufficient in themselves to dispose of case — Art. 228 not attracted.

Under Art. 228, the satisfaction of the High Court must be with regard to the point that the case cannot be decided without a decision on the constitutional question. If, therefore, in a case along with the question of law, about the interpretation of the Constitution there are other questions which are sufficient in themselves to end the case, then the constitutional question is not one the determination of which is necessary for the disposal of the case. Under that Article, a case cannot be withdrawn merely on the ground that a question of law about the interpretation of the Constitution has been raised and that the question is important or substantial. Then again, the question whether the constitutional point is necessary for the disposal of the case can be determined only when findings on the other questions arising in the case are given. Until that is done, it is impossible to say whether the determination of the constitutional question is necessary for the disposal of the case. 1961 MPLJ 910: 1961 Jab LJ 1052: 1962 MPC 100: ILR (1960) Madh Pra 536.

——Art. 228 — Suit disposable on other questions raised.

The High Court must be satisfied that the determination of the question of law as to interpretation of Constitution is necessary for the disposal of the cases. If the suit can be disposed on other questions raised (like limitation, non-maintain-ability by a single person when a representative suit has to be filed etc.,) Art. 228 will not apply. Usually the High Court will not act till this point is clear and will wait for the other issues to be decided . Of course where it is clear it will act at once. 1951-2 Mad LJ 511 : 64 Mad LW 982: AIR 1952 Mad 20 (21) (Pt A) (Pr 6).

——Art. 228 — Bihar Mica Act (10 of 1948), Ss. 11, 17 — Infringement — Reference to High Court — (Cr. P. Code (1898), S. 432).

The contention of the petitioner was that their firm or the directors of the firm were never required by the Inspector Mica Accounts to produce the accounts and stock of mica, and the report of the Inspector Mica Accounts, showed merely that the shiftman in charge and the manager failed to produce the account books and show the stock. It was contended that assuming the report of the Inspector to be correct the petitioner had not contravened the provisions of S. 11, Bihar Mica Act, 1947 and was therefore, not liable to the penalty provided under S. 17 (2), Bihar Mica Act.

Held, that (1) the question whether the act of refusal by the servants of the firm would make the directors responsible could not be decided purely by an abstract question of law. The circumstances or the instructions under which the refusal was made had to be investigated, and they could not be investigated unless evidence was given. Whether there had been a breach of duty under S. 11 or not would depend on the facts and circumstances proved in the case. It was a mixed question of law and fact. AIR 1947 PC 135, Ref.

(2) The principal question was if Bihar Act I of 1949 validly extended the life of Bihar Mica Act, 1947. If on merits it was found that the petitioner had not contravened S. 11, Bihar Mica Act, 1947, as was urged on behalf of the petitioner, then it was unnecessary to decide the constitutional question for the disposal of the case; the determination of the constitutional question was then not necessary for the disposal of the case, and Art. 228 would not be attracted. If and when determination of that question became necessary for the disposal of the case, the proper procedure would be to make a reference under S. 432, Cr. P. Code. S. 432, Cr. P. Code, was more appropriate in the circumstances of this case than Art. 228 of the Constitution. Hence, the proceeding against the petitioner could not be quashed at the stage when evidence was not taken; nor was it necessary at this stage to withdraw the case under Art. 228 of the Constitution of India. AIR 1952 Mad 20; AIR 1954 Pat 387, Rel. on. 1955 Cr LJ 663 : AIR 1955 Pat 177 (178, 179) (Prs 4, 6, 7).

——Art. 228 — Suit disposable on the other questions raised.

The High Court must be satisfied that the determination as to the question of law as to interpretation of the Constitution is necessary for the disposal of the case. If the suit can be disposed of on the other questions raised, Art. 228 will not apply. Usually the High Court will not act till the point is clear and will wait for the other issues to be decided. 1954 Cri LJ 1265 : AIR 1954 Pat 387 (389) (Pt A) (Pr 6).

——Art. 228 — Applicability — 'Necessary for disposal of suit' — Meaning of.

The use of the expression that 'the decision of the issue is necessary for disposal of the suit' can only mean that the question involved must be such that it is not possible to dispose of the suit without determining the constitutional question raised. Where independent of the constitutional question there are questions which are sufficient in themselves to dispose of the case, then the High Court should not take any action under Art. 228. AIR 1958 Punj 287 (288) (Pr 3).

——Art. 228 — Necessity to determine constitutional question does not arise till questions of fact are decided. AIR 1955 NUC (Punj) 5727 (DB).

——Art. 228 — 'Necessary for disposal of case' — Constitutional plea raised — Its determination is not necessary merely because it is raised — Question must be such that case cannot be disposed of without determining it — (Words and Phrases) AIR 1955 NUC (Punj) 5727 (DB).

6. Onus of proof.

——Art. 228 — Entire Act challenged — No obligation on Government to file affidavit in reply.

Where an entire Act is called in question as ultra vires, there is no obligation on the State prosecutor on the criminal side to file an affidavit at all seeking to uphold its validity and the onus is on the petitioner to satisfy the Court under Art. 228 that there is a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of the Constitution, in other words, that the Act can for some prima facie substantial reasons be challenged in a Court of law. ILR (1953) Mad 191 : 65 Mad LW 267: 1952 Mad WN 261: 1952 Mad WN Cr 61: 1952-1 Mad LJ 468 : 1952 Cri LJ 1235 : AIR 1952 Mad 578 (578) (Pt B) (Pr 3) (DB).

7. Retrospective effect.

——Art. 228 — Bengal Money-lenders Act (10 of 1940), S. 30 (1) (a) and (b) — Suit instituted before Constitution — Questions whether section is ultra vires — Transfer of records of High Court. See Debt Laws — Bengal Money-lenders Act (10 of 1940), S. 30 (1) (a). AIR 1953 Cal 195.

8. Appellate side of the High Court.

——Art. 228 — Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 432, 433, 369 — Opinion of High Court expressed in reference — Lower Court passing orders on basis of the opinion — Appeal against order heard by Single Judge — His power to review the opinion expressed on reference by the High Court — (Civil P. C. (1908), S. 113). See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 432. AIR 1957 Andh Pra 567.

——Art. 228 — Substantial question of law — Whether S. 57 Madras Hindu Religious Endowments Act is void as contravening Arts. 15 and 26 of the Constitution of India.

During the pendency of a suit in the district Court the plaintiff applied for amendment of plaint adding a contention that the scheme passed by the Hindu Religious Endowments Boards, Madras under S. 57 of the Madras Hindu Religious Endowments Act regarding the suit temple was null and void as the entire Hindu Religious Endowments Act and especially S. 57 thereof was ultra vires of the powers of Legislature as it offended Arts. 15 and 26 of the Constitution of India. The plaint was amended and additional issue was framed on the point without any objection. The plaintiff then applied under Art. 228 of the Constitution of India to the Madras High Court for transfer of suit to its file and either dispose of the suit itself or determine the question of law involved in the additional issue.

Held, that the question regarding the validity of the Madras Hindu Religious Endowments Act was a substantial question of law regarding the interpretation of the Constitution the determination of which was necessary for the disposal of the suit. Such a question had already been raised in several applications before the High Court and was bound to be raised in future suit. The question should therefore, be determined under Art. 228 (b) by a Bench on the appellate side. 64 Mad LW 982 : 1951-2 Mad LJ 511 : AIR 1952 Mad 20 (22) (Pt B) (Pr 10).

9. Who can move the High Court.

——Art. 228 — Right to apply under — Non-citizen — Prosecution of under law alleged to be bad — Right to apply to High Court for protection. See Ibid, Art. 15 (1). 1962 Cri LJ 23: AIR 1951 Bom 470 (DB).

10. Procedure of High Court under this Article.

——Art. 228 — Reference under S. 432, Cr. P. Code, incompetent — Reference treated as one under Art. 228. Madh BLR 1954 Cri 140 : 1954 Cr LJ 1739 : Madh BLJ 1954 HCR 790 : AIR 1954 Madh Bha 206 (207) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

ARTICLE 229

■——Arts. 229 (1), 313 and 367 (1) — Member of High Court staff — Power to dismiss vests in Chief Justice — (Civil Services (Classification, Control and Appeal) Rules (1930), R. 52) — (Government of India Act (1935), S. 276) — (General Clauses Act (1897), S. 16 (1)).

Rule 52 of the Civil Services Rules, if it originally applied to the High Court staff, must, after 1935, be read by substituting "Chief Justice" in the place of "the Local Government' whenever it occurs therein and making other consequential alterations. Even on the assumption that Civil Services Rules applied between 1930 and 1935 to the High Court staff, their continuance after 1935 makes a change in the dismissing authority and the power of dismissal is vested in the Chief Justice. The Constitution has made no change in this respect and Art. 313 would also continue Rule 52 of the Civil Services Rules as above adapted. Art. 229 (1) which in terms vests the power of appointment in the Chief Justice is equally effective to vest in him the power of dismissal. This results from S. 16 of the General Clauses Act which by virtue of Art. 367 (1) of the Constitution applies to the construction of the word "appointment" in Art. 229 (1). Section 16 (1) of the General Clauses Act clearly provides that the power of "appointment" includes the power "to suspend or dismiss". Pradyat Kumar v. Chief Justice of Calcutta High Court, (1956) SCJ 259 : 1956 SCA 79 : 1956 SCC 402 : (1955) 2 SCR 1331 : AIR 1956 SC 285 (290, 291) (Pt A) (Prs 8, 9).

■——Art. 229 (1) — Charges against member of High Court — Chief Justice can delegate to another Judge inquiry into charges — (Civil Services (Classification, Control and Appeal) Rules (1930), R. 52).

The exercise of the power to appoint or dismiss an officer is the exercise not of judicial power but of an administrative power. It is nonetheless so, by reason of the fact that an opportunity to show cause and an enquiry stimulating judicial standards have to precede the exercise thereof. It is well recognised that a statutory functionary exercising such a power cannot be said to have delegated his functions merely by deputing a responsible and competent official to enquire and report. That is the ordinary mode of exercise of any administrative power. A functionary who has to decide an administrative matter such as the dismissal the staff can obtain the material on which he is to act in such manner as may be feasible and convenient, provided only the affected party has a fair opportunity to correct or contradict any relevant and prejudicial material. Where therefore, charges are made against a member of the staff of the High Court, the Chief Justice is competent to delegate to another Judge the inquiry into the charges. (1953) 2 QB 18 and 1911 AC 179 and 1915 AC 120, Rel. on. Pradyat Kumar v. Chief Justice of Calcutta High Court, (1956) SCJ 259 : 1956 SCA 79 : (1955) 2 SCR 1331 : 1956 SCC 402 : AIR 1956 SC 285 (291) (Pt B) (Pr 11).

■——Arts. 229 (1), 310, 311 and 320 (3) (c) — Registrar of Original Side of High Court — Dismissal — Prior consultation with Public Service Commission — Necessity of.

Officers and members of the staff attached to a High Court clearly fall within the scope of the phrase "persons appointed to public services and posts in connection with the affairs of the State" and also of the phrase "a person who is a member of a civil service of a State" as used in Articles 310 and 311. The phrase "persons serving under the Government of India or the Government of a State" seems to have reference to such persons in respect of whom the administrative control is vested in the respective executive Governments. The officers and staff of the High Court cannot be said to fall within the scope of the above phrase because in respect of them the administrative control is clearly vested in the Chief Justice, who under Constitution, has the power of appointment and removal and of making rules for the conditions of services. Therefore, for the dismissal of the Registrar of the Original Side of the High Court, prior consultation with the Public Service Commission is not necessary. Pradyat Kumar v. Chief Justice of Calcutta High Court, (1956) SCJ 259 : 1956 SCA 79 : 1956 SCC 402 : (1955) 2 SCR 1331 : AIR 1956 SC 285 (293) (Pt D) (Pr 13).

■——Arts. 229 (3), 246 (3), 146 (3), 265, Sch. VII, List I, Items 77 and 96, List II, Items 3 and 66, List III Item 47 — Court-fees Act (1870), S. 1 and Sch. II, Art. 1, Cl. (e) — (U. P. Amendment) — Court-fee imposed by Amendment is not a tax but a fee — S. 4 and Sch. II, Art. 1 (e) as amended by Court-fees (U. P. Amendment) Act (10 of 1959) are within legislative competence of U. P. Legislature — Tax and fee, distinction — Provisions of Art. 229 (3) show another class of imposition, also called a fee in Constitution. See Ibid, Art. 246 (3). AIR 1960 All 462 (FB).

——Art. 229 — Power of Chief Justice.

Article 229 clearly gives the Chief Justice or his nominee power not only to appoint the staff of the High Court and to fix their salaries but also to deal with them subject to the rules. The proviso however, requires that the rules so far as they relate to salaries, allowances, leave or pension must be approved by the Governor of the State. The legal position, therefore, is that the Chief Justice alone has the power to deal with the case of a person serving in the High Court. AIR 1956 SC 285, Rel. on. AIR 1960 All 193 (197) (Pt A) (Prs 11a, 12).

——Arts. 229 (3), 14, Sch. 7, List I, Entry 96, List II, Entries 3 and 66 and List III, Entry 47 — — Andhra State law prescribing particular court-fee for writ petitions — Validity — Does not violate either Art. 229 or Art. 14 — Andhra Court-fees and Suits Valuation Act (7 of 1956). See Ibid, Art. 14. AIR 1959 Andh Pra 271 (DB).

——Art. 229 — Bombay Court-fees Act (36 of 1959), Sch. I, Art. 16 — Levy imposed is neither tax nor fee in the strict sense — It is within legislative competence of the State under Sch. VII, List II, Entry 3. See Bombay Court-fees Act (36 of 1959), Sch. I, Art. 16. AIR 1962 Bom 106 (DB).

●——Art. 229 — Servants of High Court — Art. 309 not applicable. See States Reorganisation Act (1956), S. 115. AIR 1965 Punj 44 (FB).

——Arts. 229, 309, 310 — Scope — Provisions of Articles 309 and 310 are subject to provisions of Art. 229. See Ibid, Art. 309. AIR 1964 Punj 285 (DB).

——Arts. 229 (2), 310 — Punjab Civil Services Rules, Volume I, Part I, Rule 1.8, Note 2 — Persons on the staff of High Court — Power to interpret, change or relax the rule vests in the Chief Justice and not in the Finance Department of Punjab Government — High Court Establishment (Appointment and Condition of Service) Rules (Punjab), 1952, R. 29. AIR 1956 SC 285, Rel. on. ILR (1964) 1 Punj 377 : AIR 1964 Punj 285 (287, 288) (Pt A) (Prs 7, 8, 10) (DB).

——Art. 229 (1) and (2) — Appointment of Staff — Powers of Chief Justice — Extent and nature of — Appointment made on recommendations of registrar — Art. 16 not violated. See Ibid, Art. 16. AIR 1964 Raj 13 (DB).

ARTICLE 230

●——Arts. 230, 226 — Writ to authority outside jurisdiction — Order of dismissal passed by Madhya Pradesh Government — Application under Article admitted by Nagpur High Court — Transfer of application to Bombay High Court under S. 59, States Reorganisation Act — Jurisdiction of Bombay High Court to issue writ to Madhya Pradesh Government — Section 59 (5) whether a law passed by Parliament under Art. 230 — Nature of law passed under Article — Parliament's power under article — (States Reorganisation Act (1956), S. 59). See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1959 Bom 122 (FB).

——Arts. 230, 225 — Applicability — Transfer becoming effective before coming into force of Constitution—Arts. 225 and 230 of the Constitution refer to transfer after the Constitution came into force and are inapplicable to a case where the transfer became effective before the Constitution came into force. See India and Hyderabad Exchanges of Enclaves Order (1950), Ss. 2 and 7. 52 Cri LJ 1398: AIR 1950 Hyd 71 (DB).

ARTICLE 233

●——Art. 233 (2) — Person on the roll of advocates of East Punjab High Court — Eligibility for appointment as District Judge — Period of practice in Lahore High Court before partition — If can be counted.

The appointment as a District Judge of a person whose name was on the roll of advocates of the East Punjab High Court on the date of his appointment and who had a period of seven years' practice including his period of practice in or under the Lahore High Court before partition was not open to objection under Art. 233 (2), of the Constitution. Even if the word 'advocate' in Cl. (2) of the Article means an advocate of a Court in India and the appointee must be such an advocate at the time of his appointment no objection can be raised to the appointment of that person on those grounds because being factually on the roll of advocates of the Punjab High Court at the time of his appointment he was admittedly an advocate in a Court in India and contiuned as such till the date of his appointment.

The answer to the question whether he can count in the period of seven years his period of practice in or under the Lahore High Court is furnished by Cl. 6 (2) of the High Courts (Punjab) Order, 1947 read with S. 8 (3) of the Bar Councils Act of 1926.

From the fact that the Constitution-makers had specifically provided, in Explanation 1 to Cl. (3) of Art. 124 of the Constitution relating to the qualifications for appointment as a Judge of the Supreme Court and in the Explanation to clause (2) of Art. 217 relating to the qualifications for appointment as a Judge of a High Court, for counting the period of practice in a High Court before the Constitution in India it cannot be inferred that a different rule was intended under Art. 233. Articles 124 and 217 are differently worded and refer to an additional qualification of citizenship which is not a requirement of Art. 233. Clause (2) of Art. 233 cannot be interpreted in the light of explanations added to Arts. 124 and 217. Article 233 is a self-contained provision regarding the appointment of District Judge. If an advocate of the Punjab High Court is entitled to count the period of his practice in the Lahore High Court for determining his standing at the Bar, there is nothing in Art. 233 which must lead to the exclusion of that period for determining his eligibility for appointment as District Judge.

The combined effect of Cl. 6 of High Courts (Punjab) Order, 1947 and S. 8 (2) (a) in his case is that he automatically came on the roll of advocates of the Punjab High Court but had to pay a fee of Rs. 10 to the Bar Council. He did not cease to be an advocate at any time after August 15, 1947 but continued to be an advocate of the Punjab High Court till he was appointed as District Judge. Hence, he has the necessary standing of seven years to be eligible under clause (2) of Art. 233 of the Constitution. Rameshwar Dayal v. State of Punjab, (1961) 2 SCR 874 : (1961) 2 SCJ 285 : (1961) 1 Ker LR 277 : AIR 1961 SC 816 (821, 822, 823) (Prs 11, 12, 13, 14).

——Art. 233 — U. P. Higher Judicial Service Rules, R. 19 — Construction of rule — Appointment of Civil and District Sessions Judges. See Ibid, Art. 309. AIR 1963 All 415.

——Art. 233 — District Judge — Appointment of — Governor to appoint in consultation with High Court — Extent of Governor's power.

The power of appointment, and posting and promotion of District Judges vests in the Governor of the State but such power has to be exercised in consultation with the High Court. The constitutional provision contained in Art. 233 of the Constitution simply is that the High Court shall be consulted before any District Judge is appointed, posted or promoted by the Governor of the State. Strictly speaking, therefore, the Governor of the State has the power not to accept the original recommendation of the High Court and to pass an order not in conformity with the recommendation of the High Court. AIR 1963 All 415 (419) (Pt C) (Pr 19).

——Arts. 233 and 309 — Government of India Act (1935), Sections 246, 254 — Appointment of District Judges — Reserved Posts (Indian Civil Service) Rules (1938) — Rules do not conflict with S. 254 — (Reserved Posts (I. C. S.) Rules (1938)). See Government of India Act (1935), S. 246. AIR 1959 Allahabad 393.

——Arts. 233 and 14 — Scope — Discrimination — Power of Election Commission to appoint High Court Judges as tribunals for certain election petitions and District Judges for others — Classification not unreasonable — Constitution of tribunals not discriminatory. See Representation of the People Act (1951), S. 86. AIR 1958 All 137 (DB).

——Arts. 233, 227, 234, 235 and 309 — Andhra Civil Services (Disciplinary Proceedings Tribunal)

Rules (1953), R. 4 (2) — Madras Civil Services (Disciplinary Proceedings Tribunal) Rules (1948), R. 1 — Scope indicated — Substance of Arts. 227, 233, 234, 235 and 309 stated — Combined effect is that general control and superintendence of Courts conferred on High Court is restricted in specified directions — Suspension of Subordinate Judge by Registrar, Madras High Court in its disciplinary jurisdiction, is valid — Disciplinary jurisdiction of High Court continues even after Andhra Civil Services (Disciplinary Proceedings Tribunal) Rules have come into force on 1-10-1953. See Andhra Civil Services (Disciplinary Proceedings Tribunal) Rules (1953), Rule 4 (1) (a). AIR 1955 Andhra 65 (DB).

——Arts. 233, 311 — Departmental inquiry — Natural Justice — Fair opportunity — Observations by High Court on report of Enquiry Officer or on reply to show cause notice amounts to consultation with High Court — They are privileged and need not be disclosed to Officer proceeded against — Evidence Act (1872), S. 124. See Ibid, Art. 311. AIR 1965 Bom 156 (DB).

——Arts. 233, 235, 237, 310, 311 — General Clauses Act (1897), S. 16 — Disciplinary jurisdiction of High Court over District Judges and Judges subordinate to them, extent of — Jurisdiction of Governor to remove or dismiss these Officers — Exercise of Governor's powers has to be in consultation with High Court. See Ibid, Art. 235. AIR 1965 Bom 156 (DB).

——Arts. 233 to 237 — Part 6, Chapter 6 — Applicability — Contempt of Courts Act, S. 3 — 'Subordinate Court' — Interpretation.

Chapter 6 of the Constitution is not exhaustive of the Courts which are subordinate to the High Court much less does the provision apply to the interpretation of the expression as used in the Contempt of Courts Act. ILR (1959) Madh Pra 351 : 20 Ele. LR 493 : 1959 MPC 709 : 1959 MPLJ 1139: 1960 Jab LJ 56 : 1960 Cr LJ 484 : AIR 1960 Madh Pra 115 (116) (Pt B) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Arts. 233, 234, 236 and 237 — Integration of Civil Judicial Service and Criminal judiciary — Constitutionality — Appointment of Presidency Magistrate as Subordinate Judge — Validity.

The provision for the appointment of a Presidency Magistrate as a Subordinate Judge is not in contravention of Ch. 6 of Part VI of the Constitution.

The definition of District Judge in Art. 236 shows that at the level of the District Judge there is no distinction made between those discharging purely civil judicial functions and those administering the criminal law. The definition of 'judicial service' would also indicate that, the provisions in Ch. 6 of Part VI of the Constitution conceived the two services as not having between them any irremovable barrier. Art. 236 therefore, far from maintaining an inseparable division between the categories of officers who administer civil law and whose service was termed 'civil judicial' and those who administer criminal law and were called 'Magistrates', would appear to view the functions of the two categories of officers as if they could be comprised in one service. (1958) 1 Mad LJ 38 : 70 Mad LW 553 : ILR (1958) Mad 158 : AIR 1958 Mad 53 (60) (Pt A) (Pr 22).

——Art. 233 — Part VI, Chapter VI (Arts. 233 to 237) — Creation of Madras Criminal Judicial Service — Legality of — (Criminal Procedure Code (1898), S. 10).

The Code of Criminal Procedure does not prescribe the qualifications that should be possessed by an appointee or the service from which he could be recruited. Nor does the Constitution prescribe any conditions as regards appointment to the office of District Magistrate. Nothing can therefore, be said to question the legality of the creation of the Madras Criminal Judicial services under G. O. No. 760, dated 27th February, 1950. (1958) 1 Mad LJ 38: 70 Mad LW 553: ILR (1958) Mad 158 : AIR 1958 Mad 53 (62) (Pt D) (Pr 33).

——Art. 233 — Madras Government Notification G. O. Ms. 3617 (Home), Dated 19-12-1955 — If violates Art. 233 — (General Clauses Act (1897), Ss. 15 and 18) — (Criminal Procedure Code (1898), Ss. 9 and 39).

The Madras Government Notification G. O. Ms. 3617 (Home), Dt. 19-12-1955, was issued by the Government only after consultation with the High Court not only in regard to the then incumbents of the District Magistracy, but also in regard to the succeeding District Magistrates. The notification in question appointing the District Magistrates generally by virtue of their office, as Assistant Sessions Judges, did not violate the provisions of Art. 233 of the Constitution. Even with regard to the successors, the notification is valid as it was issued after consultation with the High Court. S. 18 of the General Clauses Act provides that it shall be sufficient, for the purpose of indicating the relation of a law to the successors of any functionaries or of corporations having perpetual succession, to express its relation to the functionaries or corporations.

The appointment of District Magistrate as Assistant Sessions Judge not by name, but by his designation is permissible in view of the provisions of S. 15, General Clauses Act and S. 39, Criminal Procedure Code. 1957 Mad WN 159 : (1957) Mad LJ (Cri) 145 : 1957 Cri LJ 642 : ILR (1957) Mad 597 : 70 Mad LW 150 : AIR 1957 Mad 351 (352, 353) (Pt C) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 233 — Validity — Rules for appointment of District Judges framed under Art. 309, but in consultation with High Court — Rules do not contravene Art. 233. See Rajasthan Higher Judicial Service Rules. AIR 1966 Raj 26 (DB).

——Arts. 233, 235—Consultation of High Court in matter of appointment of District Judges mandatory or directory — Effect of holding consultation as directory. (Obiter). 1965 Raj LW 14 : ILR (1965) 15 Raj 390 : AIR 1966 Raj 26 (32) (Pt B) (Pr 13) (DB).

——Art. 233 — Consultation under Rajasthan Higher Judicial Service Rules (1955) amounts to consultation with High Court — No contravention of Article 233. See Rajasthan Higher Judicial Service Rules (1955), R. 13. AIR 1966 Raj 26 (DB).

——Art. 233 — Rajasthan Higher Judicial Service Rules (1955), R. 24 — Rule does not contravene Art. 233. See Rajasthan Higher Judicial Service Rules (1955), R. 24. AIR 1966 Raj 26 (DB).

——Art. 233 (2) — Rajasthan Higher Judical Service Rules (1955), R. 10 — Provision fixing proportion of vacancies to be filled by direct recruitment and by promotion — There is no curtailment of power under Art. 233 (2) of the Constitution but only its regulation. 1965 Raj LW 14 :

ILR (1965) 15 Raj 390 : AIR 1966 Raj 26 (33) (Pt D) (Pr 16) (DB).

——Arts. 233 and 234 — Scope.

Article 233 while authorising the Rajpramukh to make an appointment of any person as District Judge restricts the field of choice either to the existing members of the Judicial Services in accordance with Art. 234 or to an Advocate or pleader of a certain standing if recommended by the High Court. The appointment of persons in the Judicial Services (other than District Judge) has to be made in accordance with the provisions of Art. 234, and from among such members of the Judicial Service the appointment of District Judge can be made. 1956 Raj LW 497 : ILR (1956) 6 Raj 74 : AIR 1956 Raj 104 (106) (Pt B) (Pr 11) (DB).

——Arts. 233, 234 and 309 — Relative scope — Art. 309 is subject to Arts. 233 and 234 — Recruitment for Judicial Service has to be made in accordance with rules referred to in Art. 234.

Art. 309 is stated to be subject to the other provisions of the Constitution. It is thus subject to Arts. 234 and 233 of the Constitution. Arts. 234 and 233 make provision for the manner of appointment (which includes the recruitment) of Judicial Service.

It is, therefore, clear that while conditions of Judicial Service can be prescribed by the Rajpramukh or the Legislature, as the case may be, under Art. 309 the recruitment for that service (other than District Judges) has to be made in accordance with rules referred to in Art. 234 and from amongst the members of the Judicial Service so recruited, the appointment of District Judges can be made under Art. 233 of the Constitution. 1956 Raj LW 497 : ILR (1956) 6 Raj 74 : AIR 1956 Raj 104 (106) (Pt C) (Pr 12) (DB).

——Arts. 233, 234 and 236 — Appointment of Judicial officers by Government of Rajasthan Notification No. F-1 (357) Appts. (A) 51, dated 23rd April, 1951 — Validity.

The Rules and Instructions for selection of Government Servants and Fixation of Seniority with respect to Rajasthan Judicial Service were published under the signature of Additional Chief Secretary to the Government of Rajasthan without the Rajpramukh expressing his own approval or diapproval of the same.

Moreover, there is no averment that the Rules notified on 23rd August, 1950, were framed by the Rajpramukh in consultation with the State Public Service Commission and the High Court, which was a pre-requisite to the appointment of persons to the Judicial Service, which included the junior as well as the senior posts.

Hence, the appointments of District Judges, Senior Civil and Additional Sessions Judges, and Civil Judges and Munsifs being contrary to the provisions of Arts. 234 and 233 read with Art. 236 of the Constitution cannot be upheld. ILR (1956) 6 Raj 74 : 1956 Raj LW 497 : AIR 1956 Raj 104 (104, 106, 107) (Pt E) (Prs 3, 14, 16) (DB).

ARTICLE 234

SYNOPSIS

(Constitution of India, Art. 234.)

1. Scope.
2. Rules made by the Governor.

1. Scope.

——Arts. 234, 227, 235 and 309 — Madras Civil Services (Disciplinary Proceedings Tribunal) Rules (1948), R. 1 — Scope indicated — Substance of Arts. 227, 233, 234, 235 and 309 stated — Combined effect is that general control and superintendence of Courts conferred on High Court is restricted in specified directions — Suspension of Subordinate Judge by Registrar, Madras High Court in its disciplinary Jurisdiction, is valid — Disciplinary jurisdiction of High Court continues even after Andhra Civil Services (Disciplinary Proceedings Tribunal) Rules have come into force on 1-10-1953. See Andhra Civil Services (Disciplinary Proceedings Tribunal) Rules, 1953, R. 4 (2). AIR 1955 Andhra 65.

——Art. 234 — General Clauses Act (1897), S. 16 — Disciplinary jurisdiction of High Court over District Judges and Judges subordinate to them, extent of — Jurisdiction of Governor to remove or dismiss these officers — Exercise of Governor's powers has to be in consultation with High Court. See Ibid, Art. 235. AIR 1965 Bom 156 (DB).

——Art. 234 — Position of public service commission vis-a-vis the State. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1955 Madh B 56 (DB).

——Arts. 234 and 237 — After 'consultation with the State Public Service Commission' — Construction of — Consultation refers not to appointment, but to 'rules' — (Government of India Act (1935), S. 255).

The contention that before a certain appointment was made there was no consultation with the State Public Service Commission and, therefore, the appointment was invalid is not acceptable, because, the consultation, referred to in Art. 234 is not with reference to 'appointment'.

Article 234 confers an independent rule making power subject to the specific condition that it should be framed in consultation with the Public Service Commission and the High Court.

Even on the basis that Art. 234 required the actual appointment as distinct from the rules relating to appointments having to be made in consultation with the High Court and the Public Service Commission, if the formalities were all satisfied when the officers having been interviewed by the Public Service Commission were confirmed in the appointments as Subordinate Judges, then their appointments as Subordinate Judges would be valid. (1958) 1 Mad LJ 38 : 70 Mad LW 553 : ILR (1958) Mad 158 : AIR 1958 Mad 53 (61) (Pt B) (Prs 23, 24, 25, 28).

——Art. 234 — Failure to consult Public Service Commission before appointment of person — Defect removed by subsequent interview — Validity of appointment.

The question whether the failure to consult the Public Service Commission at the date of the appointment would render it invalid, would depend upon whether the requirement as to consultation was directory or mandatory. But where the appointed officers were subsequently interviewed by the Public Service Commission and their appointments were confirmed, whatever might have been the defect in the former appointment, it was removed and the appointments were valid. (1958) 1 Mad LJ 38 : 70 Mad LW 553 : ILR (1958) Mad 158 : AIR 1958 Mad 53 (62) (Pt C) (Pr 32).

——Art. 234 — "Appointment"—Meaning—Mysore Munsifs (Recruitment and Promotions) Rules (1954), R. 16 — Rule 16 is not void and does not offend Art. 234 — (Mysore Munsifs (Recruitment and Promotions) Rules (1954), R. 16).

The word 'appointments' does not necessarily mean fresh appointments directly from the Bar. 'Appointments' referred to in Art. 234 must be intended to include 'appointments by direct recruitment and also appointments by promotion.

Hence, Rule 16 of Mysore Munsiffs (Recruitment and Promotions) Rules (1954) so far as it relates to appointment by promotion, is not void and it does not offend Art. 234 of the Constitution. ILR (1955) Mys 597 : AIR 1956 Mys 20 (25) (Pt K) (Pr 14) (DB).

——Art. 234 — Scope — See Ibid, Art. 233. AIR 1956 Raj 104 (DB).

——Arts. 234, 233 and 309 —Art. 309 is subject to Arts. 233 and 234 — Recruitment for Judicial Service has to be made in accordance with rules referred to in Art. 234. See Ibid, Art. 233. AIR 1956 Raj 104 (DB).

——Art. 234 — Appointment of judicial officers by Government of Rajasthan Notification No. F 1 (357) Appts. (A)/51 dated 23-4-1951 — Validity. See Ibid, Art. 233. AIR 1956 Raj 104 (DB).

2. Rules made by the Governor.

●——Arts. 234, 226, 309, Proviso—Mysore Munsiffs (Recruitment) Rules (1958), Rr. 6, 9, 12 — Persons selected by Public Service Commission for posts of Munsiffs — Unsuccessful candidates challenging validity of selection by writ petitions — High Court finding the list vitiated by irregularities but directing inclusion of petitioners therein and confirming it — Order held not authorised by Art. 226 — Other alleged irregularity also held not substantiated — Decision in writ Petns. Nos. 923, 1080, 1446, 1461, 1462 and 1528 of 1962 dated 19-12-1962 (Mys) Reversed. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1965 SC 532.

●——Art. 234 and Art. 309, Proviso —Subordinate Judicial Service — Recruitment of persons to — Rules framed by — Governor of Andhra Pradesh, R. 12 (h) — "The High Court" meaning of — R. 12 (h) and para 4-A (1) of notification based on it are unconstitutional and ultra vires

Rule 12(h) framed by the Governor of the Andhra Pradesh under Art. 234 and the Proviso to Art. 309 of the Constitution, provides special qualifications and says that no person shall be eligible for appointment to the post of District Munsif by the method specified in column (1) of the table given below the rule unless he possesses the qualifications specified in the corresponding entries in column (2) thereof. For direct recruitment as District Munsif several qualifications are mentioned. One of them is that the applicant must be practising as an Advocate of the High Court, and the other is that he must be actually practising in Courts of civil or criminal jurisdiction in India for a period not less than three years

Held, that the expression "the High Court" in the context meant the Andhra High Court and not any High Court in India.

As this rule has introduced a classification between one class of Advocates and the rest and the said classification must be said to be irrational inasmuch as there is no nexus between the basis of the said classification and the object intended to be achieved by the relevant scheme of rules, R. 12(h) and the corresponding portion of para 4-A (1) of the notification based on it are unconstitutional and ultra vires. AIR 1956 Andhra 14, Overruled. Pandurangarao v. Andhra Pradesh Public Service Commission, (1962) 2 Ker LR 200: (1962) 2 SCA 660: (1963) 1 SCR 707: AIR 1963 SC 268 (270, 271, 273) (Pt A) (Prs 5, 6, 16, 17).

——Arts. 234, 14, 309, 310— Temporary appointments can be only under R. 7-A — Such appointments cannot be on probation — Conditions for such appointment — Satisfaction of Governor regarding existence of the conditions — Function is administrative and not justiciable — See Madras Subordinate Civil Judicial Service Rules, R. 7-A. AIR 1961 Andh Pra 229 (DB).

——Art. 234.—M. B. Judicial Services Rules (1951), Rr. 6, 9, 10, 11, 12 — Examination scheduled for a date in one year — Postponement of examination to some other dates in a different year — Necessity for inviting fresh applications before holding the examination. See Madhya Bharat Judicial Service Rules (1951), R. 6. AIR 1955 Madh B 56 (DB).

——Art. 234 — Mysore Munsiffs (Recruitment) Rules (1958), R. 5 — Rule challenged under Art. 16 (4) — Writ for quashing list of successful candidates — Ground of attack not taken by petitioner in prior writ petition by him — He cannot raise it in subsequent writ petition — Applicant held had no cause of action. See Ibid, Art. 16 (4), AIR 1963 Mys 303 (DB).

——Art. 234—Mysore Munsiffs (Recruitment) Rules (1958), R. 6 — Amendments to rule by adding proviso to sub-R. (3) — Consultation with High Court — Fact of consultation not disclosed to Public Service Commission—Proviso to sub-R. (3) is not improperly made — No consultation with regard to sub-R. (5) — It must be struck down.

For the consultation required to be made under Art. 234 it is not necessary for the Governor, the Judges of the High Court and the Members of the Commission to meet face to face and hold a joint deliberation. That is not how the expression 'collective deliberation' employed in the judgment in the case reported in AIR 1963 Mys 292 has to be understood.

What is essential under Art. 234 is that both the High Court and the Commission should be informed by the Governor that he proposes to make rules and those rules which he proposes to make should be made available to them so that after a study and scrutiny of those rules, the High Court and the Commission might be in a position to offer advice. If therefore the Governor has taken those steps by placing before the High Court and the Commission the rules which he proposes to make and seeks the advice of both those bodies on the suitability of those rules, it cannot be said that the consultation enjoined by Art. 234 is not complete if the advice tendered by the High Court is not disclosed to the commission and that tendered by the Commission is not revealed to the High Court.

Held, that the Amendment to R. 6 made by the Governor without disclosing to the Commission that the High Court was consulted and without disclosing to the High Court that the Commission was consulted, could not be said to be one not properly made under Art. 234 of the Constitution (1947) 2 All ER 496 and (1948) 1 All ER 13 and (1954) 2 All ER 22 Rel. on.

In regard to sub-R (5) which was added to R. 6 by the Governor there was no consultation whatsoever with the High Court. The purpose of sub-R. (5) newly added to R. 6 was not the same as the purpose of the proviso to sub-R. (3) or the proviso to R. 12, and that sub-R. (5) could not have been therefore added to R. 6 without its inclusion being preceded by consultation with the High Court, even if in the course of the consultation with the Commission the Commission expressed its view that a sub-rule to that effect was desirable and should therefore be included. Sub R. (5) which was included by the Governor in R. 6 without the consultation with the High Court enjoined by Art. 234, must, therefore, be struck down as invalid and inefficacious. 1963 Mys LJ (Sup) 327: AIR 1963 Mys 303 (310, 311, 313) (Pt B) (Prs 25, 26, 28, 29, 36, 37, 38) (DB).

——Art. 234 — Mysore Munsiffs (Recruitment) Rules (1958), R. 6 (3), Proviso, R. 12, Proviso— Provisos cannot be said to be either retrospective or retroactive — Provisos are within rule making power of the Governor. 1963 Mys LJ (Sup) 327: AIR 1963 Mys 303 (313, 314) (Pt C) (Pr 41) (DB).

——Art. 234 — Mysore Munsiffs (Recruitment) Rules (1958), R. 6 (1) and (4) — Sub-rules are to be read together.

Sub-R. (1) of R. 6 it is clear, must be read along with sub-R. (4) for the identification of the authority which has been appointed to conduct the competitive examination, and, there is nothing in sub-R. (4) which is inconsistent with sub-R. (1) since what that sub-rule really directs is that when the Commission conducts the viva voce examination as directed by sub-R. (1) it shall do so in association with the officer specified in sub-R. (4). 1963 Mys LJ (Sup) 327: AIR 1963 Mys 303 (314) (Pt D) (Pr 43) (DB).

——Art. 234 — Mysore Munsiffs (Recruitment) Rules (1958), R. 6, Sch. — No syllabus prescribed for viva voce examination for testing candidate's general knowledge — Examination cannot be challenged on this ground. 1963 Mys LJ (Sup) 327: AIR 1963 Mys 303 (315) (Pt E) (Pr 48) (DB).

——Art. 234 — Rule prescribing examination of candidate for recruitment by body of more than one person — Every member of the body should have knowledge of the subject in which the candidate is examined by them. 1963 Mys LJ (Sup) 327: AIR 1963 Mys 303 (318) (Pt F) (Pr 57) (DB).

——Art. 234 and Art. 309, provisos 245 and 16 (4) — Mysore Munsiffs Recuitment Rules 1958, Rr. 6 and 12 — Competitive examination by State Public Service Commission for recruitment for the posts of Munsiffs in the State — Prescribing of qualifying marks — No delegation of power, by Governor cannot delegate the power — P. S. C. is not competent to prescribe qualifying marks — Prescribing two sets of qualifying marks, one for scheduled castes and other for others is illegal — It does not amount to reservation within Art. 16 (4). 40 Mys LJ 87: AIR 1963 Mys 292 (294, 295, 296, 297, 298, 299, 300) (Pt A) (Prs 6, 12, 21, 23, 24, 28, 32, 47, 60, 61, 65) (DB).

——Art. 234 and Art. 309, proviso — Mysore Munsiffs Recruitment Rules 1958, Rr. 12, 6 (4) made by Governor — Examination of candidates by State Public Service Commission for recruitment to the posts of Munsiffs — Rules specifying viva voce examination to test candidaes' general knowledge and grasp of principles of law — Commissioner also considering personality and suitability in viva voce examination — Viva voce cannot form foundation of list of successful candidates. 40 Mys LJ 87: AIR 1963 Mys 292 (301) (Pt B) (Pr 79) (DB).

——Art. 234 and Art. 309, proviso—Mysore Munsiffs Recruitment Rules, 1958, Rr. 6 (4), 12 — Rule specifying viva voce examination by members of Public Service Commission and Law Secretary — Some members of Commission not present during examination — Examination is not in accordance with Rules — Mysore Public Service Commission (Conduct of Business and Additional Functions) Act (20 of 1959), Ss. 8 and 9 do not support such examinations. 40 Mys LJ 87: AIR 1963 Mys 292 (301, 302, 303) (Pt C) (Prs 82, 83, 85, 88, 91) (DB).

——Art. 234 and Art. 309, proviso—Mysore Munsiffs Recruitment Rules, 1958 — Competitive examination — Long delay between written examination viva voce and publication of list of successful candidates — Propriety of.

Where a competitive examination is selected as the method of recruitment and it consists of a written and a viva voce examination, the two examinations must be held in such quick succession that there may be no occasion for the reproach that one of them was deliberately deferred for collateral and oblique purpose. But the long delay after which the viva voce examination was held and the equally long delay in announcing the names of successful candidates cannot form the foundation of an argument that the conduct of the examination which was entrusted to an authority as highly placed as the Public Service Commission was anything but irreproachable. 40 Mys LJ 87: AIR 1963 Mys 292 (302, 303) (Pt D) (Pr 90) (DB).

——Art. 234 — Mysore Munsiffs (Recruitment and Promotions) Rules (1954), R. 16 — Provision in for appointment by promotion — Does not offend Art. 234 and is not void. ILR (1955) Mys 597: AIR 1956 Mys 20 (25) (Pt K) (Pr 14) (DB).

——Art. 234—Rules framed under, R. 10— Scope of — Judicial service — Reputation of judicial officer.

The rules framed by the Governor under Art. 234 do not contemplate and could not possibly have contemplated that the judicial service of the State should come into contempt by the appointment to, or continuance in office of persons who do not inspire confidence among the members of the public or whose conduct is not above reproach. A judicial officer who suffers his conduct to justify the impression that he can be improperly influenced or allows his reputation to be damaged or destroyed is almost as great a danger to society as a person who actually receives a monetary gift. 58 Punj LR 299: ILR (1957) Punj 122: AIR 1956 Punj 201 (202, 203) (Pt B) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 234 — Rules framed under, Rule 10 — Retrospective effect.

The rules made by the Governor under Art. 234 and promulgated on 26-10-1951 cannot apply retrospectively to an examination which was held in the year 1950, particularly when the syllabus of the earlier examination was different from the syllabus of the later examination. 58 Punj LR 299: ILR (1957) Punj 122: AIR 1956 Punj 201 (203) (Pt D) (Pr 10) (DB).

ARTICLE 235

●——Arts. 235 and 311—Control vested in High Court over District Judges is complete subject only to power of Governor in matter of appointment (including dismissal), posting and promotion — (AIR 1961 Cal 1 (SB), Affirmed).

The control vested in the High Court under Art. 235 of the Constitution includes disciplinary jurisdiction and is a complete control subject only to the power of the Governor in the matter of appointment (including dismissal and removal) and posting and promotion of District Judges. The High Court can in the exercise of the control vested in it hold enquiries, impose punishment other than dismissal or removal, subject, however, to the conditions of service, and a right of appeal if granted thereby and to the giving of an opportunity of showing cause as required by Cl. (1) of Art. 311 unless such opportunity is dispensed with by the Governor acting under the provisos (b) and (c) to that clause. The High Court alone can hold enquiry against a District Judge. AIR 1961 Cal 1 (SB), Affirmed.

The fact that Governor appoints District Judges and can alone dismiss or remove them does not impinge upon the control of the High Court. It only means that the High Court cannot appoint or dismiss or remove District Judges. In the same way the High Court cannot use the special jurisdiction conferred by the two provisos. It cannot decide that it is not reasonably practicable to give a District Judge an opportunity of showing cause or that in the interest of the security of the State it is not expedient to give such an opportunity. This the Governor alone can decide. That certain powers are to be exercised by the Governor and not by the High Court does not necessarily take away other powers from the High Court. The provisos can be given their full effect without giving rise to other implications. If a case arises for the exercise of the special powers under the two provisos, the High Court must leave the matter to the Governor. In exercising these special powers in relation to inquiries against District Judges, the Governor will always have regard to the opinion of the High Court in the matter. This will be so whoever be the inquiring authority in the State. But this does not lead to the further conclusion that the High Court must not hold the enquiry any more than that the Governor should personally hold the enquiry. State of West Bengal v. Nripendra Nath Bagchi, (1965) 2 SCA 884: (1966) 2 SCWR 169: AIR 1966 SC 447 (453, 455) (Pt A) (Prs 13, 17, 18).

●——Art. 235 — Discrimination and equal opportunity in the matter of promotion to higher posts — Number of Munsiffs eligible for promotion to higher posts of subordinate judge — High Court in exercise of its sole authority selecting some in preference to plaintiff— Arts. 14 and 16 (1) not violated — Exercise of power by High Court not justiciable. See Ibid, Art. 14. AIR 1962 SC 1704.

●——Arts. 235 and 320 (3) (c) — Civil Services (Classification, Control and Appeal) Rules. Rr. 49 and 55-A — Exclusive authority of High Court to make promotions in respect of members in State judicial service — High Court exercising power by promoting some members to higher posts in supersession of plaintiff's claim according to seniority list — Rr. 49 and 55-A not applicable — Consultation with State Public Service Commissoin not necessary — Held there was no right in plaintiff of promotion which could be enforced in a Court.

Held, that under Art. 235 of the Constitution, the High Court is the authority which has the power of promotion in respect of persons belonging to the State Judicial Service, holding any post, inferior to that of a District Judge. Art. 235 read with the Civil Services (Classification, Control and Appeal) Rules, makes it clear that there is no right of promotion which the plaintiff could have claimed to enforce by action in a Court. Rule 49 of the Service Rules gives only a safeguard to a public servant that punishment by way of withholding of promotion shall not be imposed unless he has been given adequate opportunity of showing cause against the action proposed to be taken. Moreover, R. 49 comes into play only when proceedings are taken by way of disciplinary action against a public servant. Since there were no disciplinary proceedings against the plaintiff neither R. 49 nor R. 55-A was applicable to his case. (ii) that there was no basis for the contention of the plaintiff that the High Court had made unjustifiable delegation of its powers under Art. 235 to the English Committee or that the High Court as a whole did not pass the order which was the plaintiff's alleged cause of action. (iii) that as no disciplinary proceedings had been started against the plaintiff there could be no occasion for the State Public Service Commission being consulted in accordance with the provisions of Art. 320 (3) (c) of the Constitution. (iv) that the plaintiff had failed to make out a cause of action for the suit and as such the suit should be dismissed as not maintainable. High Court, Calcutta v. Amal Kumar Roy, (1963) 1 SCR 437: (1962) 2 SCA 646: (1962) 2 Ker LR 114: AIR 1962 SC 1704 (1708, 1709, 1710, 1711) (Pt A) (Prs 5, 6, 7, 10)

——Art. 235 — Inquiry against District Judge — Power of High Court to hold. See Ibid, Art. 227. AIR 1959 Andh Pra 497 (DB).

——Art. 235 — Suspension of Subordinate Judge by Registrar, Madras High Court — Validity. See Andhra Civil Services (Disciplinary Proceedings Tribunal) Rules (1953), Ruie 4 (2). AIR 1955 Andhra 65 (DB).

——Arts. 235, 233, 237, 310, 311 — General Clauses Act (1897), Section 16— Disciplinary jurisdiction of High Court over District Judges and Judges subordinate to them, extent of — Jurisdiction of Governor to remove or dismiss these Officers — Exercise of Governor's powers has to be in consultation with High Court.

The disciplinary jurisdiction over District Judges and Judges subordinate to them vests exclusively in the High Court except making an order of dismissal or removal.

The power of dismissal and removal of District Judges and Judges subordinate to District Judges vests in the Governor. The exercise of the aforesaid power of dismissal and removal of District Judges by the Governor has to be in consultation with the High Court.

Where on preliminary investigation the High Court comes to the conclusion that the probable consequence of the charges against a judicial officer being proved would be one of dismissal or removal of the judicial officer, the course that should be adopted would be to refer the matter to the Governor recommending appointment of an enquiry officer which is the first stage of giving a reasonable opportunity to a public servant. AIR 1955 Andhra 62 Rel. on. AIR 1961 Cal 1 (SB), Commented on and distinguished. When the Governor appoints an enquiry officer on the recommendation of the High Court, the disciplinary proceedings are initiated by the High Court and not by the Governor and the order made by the Governor is not one without jurisdiction. (1965) 2 Lab LJ 487: 67 Bom LR 170: 1965 Mah LJ 434: ILR (1965) Bom 317: AIR 1965 Bom 156 (162, 163, 164, 165) (Pt A) (Prs 19, 19-A, 20) (DB).

●——Arts. 235, 227, 233, 234, 309, 310, 311, 320 — Judicial service of State — Member of — District Judge — Disciplinary jurisdiction over — Who can exercise — Enquiry conducted by State Government — Validity — Civil Services (Classification, Control and Appeal) Rules, Rule 55 — Validity. See Ibid, Art. 227. AIR 1961 Cal 1 (SB).

——Arts. 235, 309, 234 — Disciplinary proceedings against subordinate judicial officers — Authority competent to initiate — Mysore Civil Services (Classification, Control and Appeal) Rules, 1957, Rules 8 and 11.

Having regard to Rules 8 and 11 of the Mysore Civil Services (Classification, Control and Appeal) Rules, 1957 and Arts. 234, 235 and 309 of the Constitution, both the Governor as well as the High Court have competence to initiate disciplinary proceedings against subordinate judicial officer. It cannot be said that it is the High Court and High Court alone that is the sole authority competent to initiate such proceedings.

An examination of Arts. 233 to 235 and 309 to 311 of the Constitution reveals that in the case of Subordinate Judicial Officers the disciplinary control is divided between the Governor and the High Court. The Governor's power is confined to (i) removing them from service, (ii) dismissing them and (iii) reducing them in rank. In other respects their disciplinary control vests in the High Court. Both the Governor as well as the High Court, have, however, to exercise the power conferred on them in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution and the rules validly framed under Art. 309. Thus the field reserved for the High Court is clearly demarcated from that reserved for the Governor. Each authority can effectively exercise its power within the field reserved for it.

The word 'Control' contemplated by Art. 235 of the Constitution includes disciplinary control over the officers presiding over the subordinate Courts. But that disciplinary control is subject to two limitations, viz. (1) it does not take away from the person concerned any right of appeal, which he may have under law regulating the conditions of service and (2) it does not authorise the High Court to deal with him otherwise than in accordance with the conditions of service prescribed under such law. Since a person belonging to the Judicial service of the State is holding a post in connection with the affairs of the State, in the absence of any legislation by the State legislature, his conditions of service are those prescribed by the Governor in exercise of the power conferred on him by Art. 309 of the Constitution. On the other hand the power of the Governor to prescribe the conditions of service of the Government servants, as seen from Art. 309 is subject to the provision of the Constitution. Art. 235, is one such provision. (1965) 2 Mysore LJ 215 (DB).

——Art. 235 — Judicial Service of State — Member of — Punishment — Order by Government on recommendations of High Court — Ancillary recommendation of High Court to confirm member as Subordinate Judge before retiring him compulsorily not accepted — Mere non-acceptance did not affect validity of main order of punishment. See Ibid, Art. 311. AIR 1965 Orissa 183 (DB).

——Arts. 235 and 226 — Orissa High Court Rules (Vol. 1) Rule 16 (vi) — Rule requiring disciplinary proceedings under Art. 235 to be placed before Full Court of all judges — Whether authority administratively recommending imposition of punishment on judicial officer can judicially decide legality of such punishment in writ petition. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1965 Orissa 183.

——Art. 235 — Civil Services (Classification, Control and Appeal) Rules, 1930, Rule 55 — Disciplinary Proceedings (Administrative Tribunal) Rules, 1951, Rule 5 — Judicial Service of State — Member of — Enquiry by Tribunal — Order of enquiry issued by Government on recommendations of High Court — Order not void — No contravention of Art. 235. See Ibid, Art. 311. AIR 1965 Orissa 183 (DB).

——Art. 235 — Appointments and punishments of members of judicial service — Ultimate authority to pass order of punishment, even in case of Subordinate Judge, is State Government. See Ibid, Art. 311. AIR 1965 Orissa 183 (DB).

——Art. 235 — Section 24 C. P. Code is not repugnant to Art. 235. See Civil P. C. (1908), Section 24. AIR 1955 NUC (Punj) 6028.

ARTICLE 236

——Art. 236 — District Judge includes Additional District Judge. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 7 (3) (b). AIR 1954 Assam 161 (DB).

——Art. 236 — Article provides a dictionary for the expressions "District Judge" and "judicial service" — Expression "District Judge" in view of Cl. (a) includes an Additional District Judge. See Ibid, Art. 235. AIR 1965 Bom 156 (DB).

●——Art. 236 — "District Judge" — Officiating Additional District Judge — If included.

Per P. B. Mukharji, J.:— Art. 236 of the Constitution includes all Additional District Judges within the expression "District Judge" irrespective of the fact that they are permanent or officiating. Besides, an acting District Judge comes within the definition of 'judicial service' as he is intended to fill the post of 'District Judge' within the meaning of that definition. Nripendra Nath Bagchi v. Chief Secretary, Government of W. B., 65 Cal WN 361 : (1961) 2 Lab LJ 312: AIR 1961 Cal 1 (5) (Pt A) (Pr 10) (DB).

——Art. 236 — Industrial Disputes Act (1947), Section 7 (3) (b) — 'District Judge' — Meaning — Does not include Additional District Judge — (General Clauses Act (1897), Section 3 (17)) — (Interpretation of Statutes) — Civil P. C. (1908), Pre.) — (Words and Phrases). AIR 1954 Assam 161, Diss. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), Section 7 (3) (b). AIR 1956 Madhya Bha 183.

——Art. 236 — Scope — Integration of Civil Judicial Service and Criminal Judiciary — Constitutionality — Appointment of Presidency Magistrate as Subordinate Judge — Validity — Division between officers whose service is termed civil judicial' and those who administer criminal justice who are called 'magistrates' whether irremovable in view of this article. See Ibid, Art. 234. (1958) 1 MLJ 38: AIR 1958 Mad 53.

——Art. 236 (a) — Civil Judge with powers of Additional Sessions Judge is 'District Judge. 1965 Raj LW 14: ILR (1965) 15 Raj 390: AIR 1966 Raj 26 (33, 34) (Pt E) (Pr 20) (DB).

——Art. 236 — Appointment of judicial officials by Government of Rajasthan Notification No. F 1 (357) Appts. A/51, dated 23-4-1951 — Validity. See Ibid, Art. 233. AIR 1956 Raj 104 (DB).

ARTICLE 237

——Art. 237 — "Court Subordinate" — Meaning of — Magistrates whether subordinate Courts — Effect of Art. 237. See Ibid, Art. 234. AIR 1957 All 495.

——Art. 237 — Legislative intent — Object of framing article is to enable the Governor to take further steps to separate judiciary from control of executive by bringing magistracy under the control of High Court. See Ibid, Art. 235. AIR 1965 Bom 156 (DB).

——Art. 237 — Object of — Integration of Civil Judicial Service and Criminal judiciary — Constitutionality — Appointment of Presidency Magistrate as Subordinate Judge — Validity. See Ibid, Art. 234. AIR 1958 Mad 53.

——Art. 237 — Scope — Rules referred to in article are rules made under Art. 234 — Hence they require prior consultation with authorities named in that article before they are made. See Ibid, Art. 234. AIR 1958 Mad 53.

——Art. 237 — Separation of judiciary from executive — Notification issued under Art. 237 — Power of High Court to post Magistrates in Bellary District. See Criminal Procedure Code (1898), S. 12. 1959 Cri LJ 1005: AIR 1959 Mys 199.

ARTICLE 238

■——Art. 238—Prerogative of Maharaja of Cochin relating to execution of death sentences — Prerogative, if consistent with Constitution — Prerogative, if stands repealed — Applicability of Art. 362 — (Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 401, 402 and 402-A). See Ibid, Art. 72. AIR 1956 SC 142.

■——Art. 238 (7) — Provision is subject to Art. 385 — Rajasthan Land Reforms and Resumption of Jagirs Act (5 of 1952) — Rajpramukh's power to enact the law. See Ibid, Art. 385. AIR 1955 SC 504.

——Art. 238 — Adoption sanctioned before the Constitution by Nizam under his prerogative rights — It cannot be revoked after Constitution under those rights which do not exist after the Constitution. See Hyderabad Atiyat Enquiries Act (10 of 1952), S. 13 (2). AIR 1954 Hyd 15 (DB).

■——Art. 238 — Rajpramukh, whether entitled to use prerogative powers which he had as Ruler of his State. See Ibid, Art. 154 (1). AIR 1952 Hyd 163 (FB).

■——Art. 238 — Scope — Rule 14 (2) of Jaipur Matmi Rules (1945) — Validity after Constitution — Power of Rajpramukh after Constitution to decide question of succession to jagirs. See Ibid, Art. 154. AIR 1961 Raj 146 (FB).

——Art. 238 — Scope — Travancore Cochin Covenant, Art. XXI — Power of Maharaja of Cochin to grant suspension, remission or commutation of sentence cannot be invoked or exercised after commencement of Constitution. See Constitution of India, Art. 72. ILR (1955) Trav-Co. 788.

ARTICLE 239

■——Art. 239 — Contract by Government of Vindhya Pradesh — Suit against Government — Form of — Proper defendant was State of Vindhya Pradesh and not Union of India. See Civil P. C. (1908), S. 79. AIR 1962 SC 145.

■——Art. 239 — Bombay Prevention of Gambling Act — Extension of, to Kutch — Chief Commissioner, whether had power after the Constitution. AIR 1954 Kutch 42, Reversed. See Adaptation of Laws Order (1950), Cl. 15. AIR 1957 SC 517.

■——Art. 239 — Order made by Governor-General under Section 94 (3) — Saving of, by Art. 372 — Nature of order — 'Law in force'—Adaptation of order — Validity of — Appropriate Government. See Ibid, Art. 372. AIR 1955 SC 25.

■——Art. 239 — Executive head of Part C State — Position and status of President — (Government of Part C States Act (1951), S. 38 (2)).

The President who is the executive head of the Part C States does not function as the executive head of the Central Government but as the head of the State under powers specifically vested in him under Art. 239. The authority conferred under Art. 239, to administer Part C States has not the effect of converting those States into the Central Government. Under Art. 239, the President occupies in regard to Part C States, a position analogous to that of a Governor in Part A States and of a Rajpramukh in Part B States. Though the Part C States are centrally administered under the provisions of Art. 239, they do not cease to be States and become merged with the Central Government. Satya Dev Bushahri v. Padam Dev, (1954) 2 MLJ 439: 1954 SCJ 764: 1955 SCR 549 : AIR 1954 SC 587 (591) (Pt D) (Pr 9).

——Art. 239 — Notification under Section 94 (3), Government of India Act (1935) — Validity after Constitution. See Government of India Act, 1935, Section 94 (3). AIR 1953 Ajmer 65.

——Arts. 239 (1), 226, Sch. 1, Part 2 — Writ petition against "Himachal Pradesh Administration" as main respondent — Himachal Pradesh being Union Territory administered by the President through Administrator — Neither President nor Administrator impleaded — "Himachal Pradesh Administration" being not a juristic person cannot sue or be sued — Order on writ petition would not bind President or Administrator — Frame of petition therefore, held defective — Civil P. C. (1908), Section 79. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1964 Him Pra 19.

——Art. 239 — President's position in relation to Part C States — Such States, whether become Central Government — Appointment of sole arbitrator — Notice to Deputy Chief Commissioner — Union of India not given notice — Effect. See Arbitration Act (1940), Section 9. AIR 1958 Him Pra 20.

——Art. 239 — Rules of Business, Part C States, Rule 24 — Filing of appeal under Section 417, Cr. P. Code — Sanction by Minister — Validity. See Government of Part C States Act (1951), Section 38. 1955 Cri LJ 944: AIR 1955 Him Pra 26.

——Art. 239 — Power to extend Act, vested in Provincial Government — Extension of Act by Chief Commissioner of Part C State after 26th January, 1950—Validity — (Kutch (Application of Laws) Order (1949), Para 4 — (Merged States (Laws) Act (1949)) — (Adaptation of Laws Order (1950), Paras. 4, 15 and 21) — (General Clauses Act (1897), Section 4-A) — (Bombay Prevention of Gambling Act (IV of 1887), Section 1).

The Bombay Prevention of Gambling Act was not validly extended to the State of Kutch by the Chief Commissioner's notification, dated 28th November, 1950.

The Bombay Act, though it was applied to Kutch by the Kutch (Application of Laws) Order, 1949, did not extend by its own operation but had to be extended under Section 1 of the Act and the power to so extend was vested in the Provincial Government. As the definitions in General Clauses Act, which was also applied to Kutch by the Kutch (Application of Laws) Order, were to be applied in the interpretation of enactments in Kutch only after giving effect to the modifications, restrictions or rule of construction contained in the Order, the Chief Commissioner by the rule of construction contained in Para. 4 of that Order had the powers vested in the Provincial Government by the Bombay Act.

The Merged States (Laws) Act, intending that the Chief Commissioner should not exercise the powers vested in the Provincial Government by the Central Acts which then applied to Kutch, extended several Central Acts to Kutch and repealed those corresponding Acts applied by the Kutch (Application of Laws) Order, and also extended the General Clauses Act without any restriction. But the Bombay Act was neither extended nor repealed as a corresponding law and therefore, it might be accepted that in spite of Section 94 (3) of the Government of India Act, and the Merged States (Laws) Acts, the Chief Commissioner was entitled to exercise the power vested in the Provincial Government by the Bombay Act.

After the Constitution came into effect and the Adaptation of Laws Order, 1950, was made, the expression 'State' was substituted for the expression 'Provincial' in the Bombay Act because of Paragraph 4 even though the Bombay Act was not mentioned in any of the schedules to that order. As a result of this Order the rule of construction contained in Kutch (Application of Laws) Order no longer survived and therefore, from 26th January, 1950, the expression 'Provincial Government' in the Bombay Act was to be read as 'the State Government' and having regard to the definitions of 'State Government' and 'Central Government' in the General Clauses Act the Chief Commissioner had to act within the scope of the authority given to him under Art. 239. Hence from 26th January, 1950, the Chief Commissioner, Kutch, had no power to issue the notification in question unless authority to do so was conferred on him under Art. 239.

Though it may be accepted that the power to extend the provisions of the Bombay Act to the State of Kutch or to any part thereof was, before 26th January, 1950, vested in or exercisable by the Chief Commissioner, Kutch, the provisions of Para. 15 of the Adaptation of Laws Order, 1950, cannot be canvassed to support a contention that as no notification was issued by the President and as the President had not authorised the Chief Commissioner, Kutch, to do so, the power continued to be vested in or exercisable by the Chief Commissioner, Kutch, on and after 26th January, 1950. Because the power was not exercised by the President it cannot be said that there was interregnum created and hence transitional provision for the exercise of power by a person or authority competent to exercise it before the appointed day was applicable.

Even if substitution of expression as mentioned in Para. 4 of the Adaptation of Laws Order, 1950, is not made, the rule of construction mentioned in the Kutch (Application of Laws) Order, 1949, for construing the expression 'Provincial Government' as the 'Chief Commissioner, Kutch' does not survive because the provisions of the Constitution are that the President administers a Part C State and from that it follows that all powers vested in or exercisable by the Central Government or a Provincial Government under any laws in force are vested in or exercisable by the President and the Chief Commissioner of a Part C State can act to such extent as he is authorised by the the President to do. The Court which is entitled under Para. 21, Adaptation of Laws Order, to construe the Bombay Act with such adaptations as are necessary for bringing into accord with the provisions of the Constitution must therefore, construe the Bombay Act with the adaptation that the rule of construction mentioned in the Kutch (Application of Laws) Order, 1949, is deleted. 1954 Cri LJ 1699: AIR 1954 Kutch 42 (43, 45, 46, 47) (Prs 2, 5, 6, 7, 8, 10, 11, 12, 13).

[Reversed in AIR 1957 SC 517.]

——Arts. 239, 226 — Power of Chief Commissioner of Kutch to make proclamation under Section 46-B, Bombay District Police Act (4 of 1890) — Notification No. 104-J dated 24-8-1950 issued by President under Art. 239. See Bombay District Police Act (4 of 1890), Section 46-B. AIR 1954 Kutch 15.

——Arts. 239, 245 (1) and 372 — Manipur Administration Order (1949), paras. 5 and 7 — Validity — Manipur Constitution Act (1947) — Act is not repealed but continues to remain in force.

The Central Government got all the powers which were exercised by the Maharajah of Manipur at the time of merger by the agreement of the merger and the Chief Commissioner was to exercise those powers later on under the Manipur Administration Order, 1949, but the rights of the people enjoyed under Manipur State Constitution Act, 1947, were never suppressed nor do they appear to have been at any time attempted to be suppressed as the Manipur State Constitution Act, 1947, was never repealed. Its provisions, therefore, so far as they are not inconsistent with the provisions of the Indian Constitution will continue to remain in force under Art. 372 of the Constitution of India.

Under the Manipur Administration Order, 1949, the Manipur State Constitution Act, 1947, had been kept intact under para. 5 but under Cl. 7 the existing Legislature was dissolved and the Ministers then functioning ceased to function. The abolition of the Legislative Assembly and the Council of Ministers is not a mere matter of procedure and as no action was taken by the President for a period of three years nor by the Parliament under Art. 239 and Art. 245 (1) of the Constitution of India the Manipur State Constitution Act, 1947, cannot be deemed to have been repealed.

Paragraph 7 cannot be interpreted to mean that the Manipur State Constitution Act, 1947, or any particular section thereof was ever sought to be repealed by this paragraph, and so it could not properly be urged on the basis of this paragraph that the requests for electing fresh Legislature and for appointment of fresh Ministers under the Manipur State Constitution Act, 1947 which has not been repealed uptill now, were in any way illegal or against the maintenance of public peace. Even if meetings are held and people peacefully request the Government for enforcing the provisions of Manipur State Constitution Act, 1947, such meetings would not be against the spirit of the Constitution or even against the provisions of Section 144, Cr. P. Code as they would not tend to disturb public tranquillity in any manner. 1955 Cri LJ 1603: AIR 1955 Manipur 41 (46) (Pt B) (Prs 15, 18).

——Art. 239 — Delhi Excise Rules, Rule 5.1 — Power conferred on Chief Commissioner under Rule 5.1 — Delegation of power.

The Chief Commissioner of Delhi gets executive powers in the Delhi State under the orders of the President under Art. 239 of the Constitution. It is not open to the Chief Commissioner to delegate his executive authority to the Collector or to any other person. ILR (1956) Punj 390: AIR 1956 Punj 97 (99) (Pt D) (Pr 6) (DB).

[Reversed on facts in AIR 1959 SC 65.]

——Art. 239 — Chief Commissioner's authority to bring Ajmer Act (IV of 1956) into force — (Ajmer Shops and Commercial Establishments Act (4 of 1956), Ss. 1 (3) and 2 (1) (w)).

Under Art. 239 the President could carry on the business of the Ajmer State through a Chief Commissioner. This postulates that he could authorise the Chief Commissioner to bring the Ajmer Shops and Establishments Act, 4 of 1956 into force. For the same reasons the rules under the Act could also be made by the Chief Commissioner. ILR (1958) 8 Raj 1067: 1959 Raj LW 678: AIR 1959 Raj 257 (259, 260) (Pt D) (Pr 21) (DB).

——Art. 239 — Suit by or against Union Territory — (Civil Procedure Code (1908), S. 79).

A Union Territory and its administration is vested in the President under Art. 239 of the Constitution of India which empowers the President to administer through a Chief Commissioner. But in doing so, the position of President under Art. 239 is analogous to that of a Governor of a State.

A Union Territory is a separate entity and the Government of the Union Territory and the Central Government are not identical. A suit by or against Union Territory must, therefore, be brought by or against the Government of the Union Territory and not the Central Government that is by or against the Administration of the Union Territory concerned, as contemplated in Art. 239 of the Constitution. And the Administration of a Union Territory consists of the President and the Chief Commissioner to the extent to which he is empowered. (1960) 30 Comp Cas 324: AIR 1959 Tripura 41 (45, 46) (Pt G) (Pr 24).

——Arts. 239 and 311 — Servants of Part C States —Applicability of Central Civil Service (Temporary Service) Rules, 1949.

Servants of Part C States were not servants of the Central Government nor did they belong to the Central Civil Service. The Central Civil Service (Temporary Service) Rules, 1949, therefore, do not apply to them.

Service under the Part C State, or for the matter of that service under the President as administering a Part C State under Art. 239, cannot be construed as service under the Central Government. in 1949 when the Central Civil Service (Temporary Service) Rules were framed, the areas which on the passing of the Constitution were made into Part C States, and more particularly Tripura, were neither administered by the Central Government nor were they parts of the British India. The Rules could not therefore, have been made for or intended to apply to servants of the Part C States. AIR 1954 SC 587, Rel. on. AIR 1958 Tripura 28 (32) (Pt D) (Prs 14, 15).

——Art. 239 — State of Vindhya Pradesh is a legal entity capable of suing and being sued — (Government of Part C States Act (49 of 1951), Sections 28 (3), 38 (2), 39) See Ibid, Art. 1. AIR 1956 Vin Pra 1.

——Art. 239—Suit by or against Para C State— Suit if to be brought in name of Central Government — Service of notice. See Civil P. C. (1908), Section 80. AIR 1955 Vin Pra 1.

ARTICLE 240

● ——Art. 240 — Amendment contemplated by Article — Can be effected by bare majority such as that required for passing any ordinary law. See Ibid, Art. 368. AIR 1951 SC 458.

● ——Art. 240 (before it was amended in 1956), Art. 248 — Scope — Himachal Pradesh Legislative Assembly (Constitution and Proceedings) Validation Act (56 of 1958), Ss. 3 and 4 — Constitutional validity.

By virtue of Art. 248 it was competent to the Parliament by legislation to remove the disability of members of a Legislative Assembly of a Part C State arising because of the failure to issue a notification under Section 74 of the Representation of the People Act, and to validate the acts done by the Legislature. Such legislation is not covered by any item falling in the Concurrent List or in the State List. The legislative competence of the Parliament to enact the Act is therefore, not open to challenge. No constitutional provision is violated by the enactment of Act 56 of 1958. When the Validating Act was enacted, the Himachal Pradesh State had ceased to exist and by the operation of the States Reorganisation Act, 1956, that State had merged in the State of Punjab. But on that account, the authority of the Parliament to validate the proceedings of the body of persons which purported to function as the Legislative Assembly under Act 32 of 1954 was not extinguished. Jadab Singh v. Himachal Pradesh Administration, (1962) 1 SCA 210: (1961) 1 SCJ 185: (1961) 3 SCR 755: AIR 1960 SC 1008 (1011) (Pt A) (Prs 8, 9).

——Arts. 240, 246 (4), 254 — Scope — Government of Part C States Act (1951), Ss. 21 and 22 and Part C State Law — Repugnancy — Effect — 'Pith and substance' rule — Applicability — State Act void.

The legislative power of the legislature of Part C States was not derived directly from the Constitution. Art. 240 gives power to the Parliament to provide for the administration of Part C States and to create a body to function as a legislature for the State. Acting on this power, the Parliament enacted the Government of Part C States Act, 1951. The Vindhya Pradesh State as a Part C State under Section 21 of the Government of Part C States Act, 1951, did not have any exclusive power to legislate on the items contained in the State List. Their power to legislate both on the items in the State List and the Concurrent List was concurrent with power of the Parliament. In other words, Lists II and III were both in the nature of Concurrent Lists in the context of Part C States. That being the position, repugnancy with the Central Law would render the State Act void under Section 22 of the Government of Part C States Act, 1951: AIR 1947 PC 72, Disting. 1961 MPLJ 1429: ILR (1960) Madh Pra 1029: 1961 MPC 160: 1961 Jab LJ 836: AIR 1961 Madh Pra 216 (217 and 218) (Pt A) (Prs 6 and 9) (DB).

ARTICLE 241

● ——Art. 241 — Rent Controller and District Judge acting under Rent Act — Jurisdiction of Judicial Commissioner under Art. 227 read with Art. 241. See Ibid, Art. 227. AIR 1954 SC 215.

——Art. 241 — Judicial Commissioner's Court of Himachal Pradesh — Power of superintendence — Election tribunals — (Elections). See, Ibid, Art. 227. AIR 1959 Him Pra 25.

——Art. 241 — Section 6 (a), Judicial Commissioner's Courts (Declaration as High Courts) Act, 1950 — Provision of making Article 216 inapplicable to Judicial Commissioner's Courts declared as High Courts under Act — Is neither an amendment nor modification of the Constitution but is only an exception made under and by virtue of a provision of the Constitution, viz., Art. 241 (2) — Non-observance of procedure prescribed under Art. 368 does not render it ultra vires. See also Judicial Commissioner's Courts (Declaration as High Courts) Act, 1950, Section 6 (a). 1952 Cri LJ 114 : AIR 1952 Him Pra 5.

ARTICLE 242

——Art. 242 — Coorg Legislative Council — Competence to legislate on subjects classified as provincial subjects in the Coorg Devolution Rules. See Government of India Act (1919), S. 77. AIR 1958 Mys 102 (DB).

ARTICLE 243

——Art. 243 — Right of principal to step in litigation carried in name of agent — Suit by Municipal Assembly of Chandernagore — Right of Union of India to appeal. See Chandernagore (Administration) Regulation (1952), Section 7. AIR 1954 Cal 615 (DB).

——Art. 243 — Regulation under — Regulation for Chandernagore — Validity.

As the territory of Chandernagore has become comprised within the territory of India within the meaning of Art. 243 of the Constitution, the Regulation that is made by the President is validly made and it has the same force and effect as an Act of Parliament applying to such territory. ILR (1956) 1 Cal 493: 59 CWN 107: AIR 1954 Cal 615 (617) (Pt D) (Pr 11) (DB).

ARTICLE 244

● ——Art. 244 and Fifth Schedule Paragraph 5 (2) — Madras Scheduled Areas Estates (Abolition and Conversion into Ryotwari) Regulation (4 of 1951) — Validity — Even though the Governor did not repeat in the Regulation the terms of Madras Estates (Abolition and Conversion into Ryotwari) Act (26 of 1948) but merely referred to the title of the Act he could give retrospective effect to its provisions over the area to which it was being applied. Hota Venkata Surya Sivarama Sastry v. State of Andhra Pradesh. (1962) 1 SCJ 252: (1962) 1 Mad LJ (SC) 120: (1962) 1 Andh WR (SC) 120 : 1962 (2) SCR 535 : AIR 1967 SC 71 (74) (Pt B) (Pr 11).

●—— Art. 244 — Sch. 6 Paras 4 & 20 and Art. 244 (2) — Territory forming part of United Khasi and Jaintia Hills District but comprising within Municipality of Shillong — Jurisdiction of Siem of Myliem and his Durbar to decide civil litigation. See Ibid, Sch. 6, Para 4. AIR 1956 Assam 129 (SB).

——Arts. 244, 19 (1) (d), (e) and (5), 14, 226, 342 — Laccadiv Islands and Minicoy Regulation (1 of 1912), S. 33 — S. 33 is not unreasonable and is valid. See Laccadiv Islands and Minicoy Regulation (1 of 1912), S. 33. AIR 1957 Mad 433.

ARTICLE 245

SYNOPSIS

(Constitution of India, Art. 245.)

1. Scope.
2. Retrospective effect.
3. Sovereignty of the legislature.
4. The legislature and the executive.
5. The legislature and the judiciary.
6. Delegation of power by the judiciary.
   - (a) 'Legislation', meaning of.
   - (b) Essential legislative power cannot be delegated.
   - (c) Abdication or self-effacement by legislature.
   - (d) Control over subordinate agency.
   - (e) Delegatus non potest delegare — Sub-delegation.
   - (f) Power to repeal existing laws.
   - (g) Power of taxation.
   - (h) Power to constitute Courts and tribunals.
   - (i) Conferment of administrative authority.
   - (j) Sub-delegation of power.
     See Note 6 (e).
   - (k) Legislation relating to foreigners.
   - (l) Defence of India Act.
   - (m) Marketing laws.
   - (n) Tenancy Acts.
   - (o) Excise laws.
   - (p) Industrial Disputes Act.
   - (q) Acts relating to municipalities.
   - (r) Police Acts.
   - (s) Rent Control legislation.
   - (t) Panchayat Acts.
   - (u) Sales-tax Acts.
   - (v) Essential Supplies (Temporary Powers) Act.
   - (w) Factories Act.
   - (x) Motor Vehicles Act.
   - (y) Arms Act.
   - (z) Other instances.
7. Conditional legislation.
   - (a) Power to refer cases to Special Court for trial.
   - (b) Addition of new items to those specially mentioned.
   - (c) Power to exempt from provisions of an Act.
   - (d) Extension of duration of Act.

7-A. Temporary legislation.
   See Note 7 (d).

8. Subordinate and ancillary legislation.
9. Retrospective laws.
   - (a) Power of legislature to make retrospective laws.
   - (b) Retrospective operation of delegated legislation.
10. Validating laws.
11. "Subject to the provisions of this Constitution".
12. "Law", meaning of.
    See also Ibid, Art. 13.
13. Territorial extent of legislative power.
    - (a) Extra-territorial laws.
    - (b) State legislature.
    - (c) Sufficient territorial nexus and taxation power of State.
14. Constitutionality of statutes.
    - (a) Proper approach in deciding question.
    - (b) Presumption and burden of proof.
    - (c) Law void in part.
    - (d) Who can question the constitutionality of a statute.

1. Scope.

——Arts. 245 to 255 — Distribution of legislative powers — Scheme of.

Arts. 245 to 255 deal with the respective powers of the Union Parliament and the State Legislatures and the subjects assigned to each of those legislatures with reference to legislation. The scheme of the Articles is to provide against repugnancy and overlapping between State's Legislation and Union legislation. There are two departures from the general resemblance between the provisions of the present Constitution and the provisions of the Government of India Act of 1935 with reference to the distribution of legislative subjects, and these are (1) that the residuary power to legislate in respect of matters not coming under any of the Lists is given to the Union Parliament, while in the 1935 Act the power vested with the Governor-General to initiate legislation in respect of such residual subjects not specifically provided for; and (2) that the Union Parliament can legislate with reference to a Provincial Subject whenever the Council of States by a special majority resolves that such legislation with reference to any constituent State must be undertaken by the Union Parliament. As regards the Concurrent Subjects with reference to which both the Union Parliament and the State Legislature have powers of legislation. the possible repugnancy is sought to be avoided by a provision that if a State Legislature legislates after the consent of the President then the legislation will prevail even over an existing Union legislation. 71 Mad LW 291: (1958) 28 Com Cas 270: AIR 1958 Mad 403 (406) (Pt A) (Pr 5).

[Overruled on another point in 1961 (2) MLJ 494.]

2. Retrospective effect.

●——Art. 245 — Hyderabad (Abolition of Jagirs) Regulation (1358 Fasli), S. 6 (4) — Hyderabad Jagirs (Commutation) Regulation (25 of 1359 Fasli), Ss. 4 (1) (c) and 4 (2) — Validity — Regulations cannot be challenged on ground of want of legislative authority — Jagirs taken over prior to Constitution — Retrospective operation of Constitution — Rights extinguished by Abolition Regulation not revived. See Ibid, Art. 31-B. AIR 1960 SC 862.

——Arts. 245, 372 and 246 — "Subject to the other provisions of this Constitution" — Sales Tax Act validly passed before Constitution — Distribution of power in Seventh Schedule not the test of its validity — (Sales-tax — Travancore-Cochin General Sales Tax Act (1125), S. 1. See Ibid, Art. 372. AIR 1957 Ker 146 (DB).

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1958 SC 560.]

●——Arts. 245, 246 — Scope — Whether retrospective.

Arts. 245 and 246 restrict the State Legislature's competence to legislate, but they are clearly prospective in their application and do not affect what was done before they came into force. They need not therefore, be referred to while considering the validity of a State legislation made before the passing of the Constitution. Sheoshankar v. State Govt. of Madhya Pradesh. 52 Cri LJ 1140 : ILR (1951) Nag 646 : AIR 1951 Nag 58 (80) (Pt I) (Pr 152) (FB).

——Arts. 245, 246 and 372 — Retrospective effect — (Police Act (1861), Pre.).

All laws which were in force in the territory of India upon the commencement of the Constitution continued to remain in force under Art. 372 (1) and Art. 246 does not apply to any Act which was already in existence. The Police Act which was passed in 1861, at a time when there was no representative Government in India, remained in force at the commencement of the Constitution and its constitutionality cannot therefore be challenged on the ground that it being a Central Act is not a valid Act in the State of Punjab after the Constitution. AIR 1951 All 816, Rel. on. ILR (1956) Punj 1377 : 1957 Cr LJ 540 : AIR 1957 Punj 91 (92) (Pt B) (Pr 5).

3. Sovereignty of the Legislature.

●——Art. 245 — State Legislature — Its legislative powers — Extent of and limitations on.

The Legislatures have undoubtedly plenary powers, but these powers are controlled by the basic concepts of the written Constitution itself and can be exercised within the legislative fields allotted to their jurisdiction by the three Lists under the Seventh Schedule; but beyond the lists the legislatures cannot travel. If the legislatures steps beyond the legislative fields assigned to them, or acting within their respective fields, they trespass on the fundamental rights of the citizens in a manner not justified by the relevant articles dealing with the said fundamental rights, their legislative actions are liable to be struck down by Courts in India. Therefore, though our Legislatures have plenary powers, they function within the limits prescribed by the material and relevant provisions of the Constitution. In the Matter of Under Article 143, of the Constitution of India, (1965) 1 SCJ 847 : (1965) 1 SCA 447 : AIR 1965 SC 745 (762) (Pt J) (Pr 40).

——Art. 245 — Legislatures in India possess plenary powers of Legislation confined to the topics mentioned as entries in the Lists. State of Rajasthan v. S. Chawla, 1959 Cri LJ 660: 1959 SCJ 485 : 1959 Mad LJ (Cri) 309 : 1959 Supp 1 SCR 904 : AIR 1959 SC 544 (546) (Pt A) (Pr 8).

——Art. 245 — Power of legislature to adopt and extend measures enacted by another legislature. See Madras State of Motor Spirit Taxation (Andhra Pradesh) Extension and Amendment Act (5 of 1958). AIR 1959 Andh Pra 237 (DB).

——Art. 245 — Character of Provincial Legislature — Consent of Governor-General — Its effect on sovereignty of Legislature. See Government of India Act (1861), S. 42. AIR 1954 Bom 261 (DB).

●——Art. 245 — Federal legislatures — Sovereignty of.

Per Ansari, J.:— In a country with unwritten unitary constitution as opposed to those with federal Constitutions, with division of powers between the legislatures of the States and the Centre, the question of any particular enactment being ultra vires of the legislature does not arise. But even legislatures under written federal Constitutions are sovereign enacting authorities as regards the subjects assigned to them by their Constitutions. Pannalal Lahoti v. State of Hyderabad. ILR (1954) Hyd 441 : 1954 Cr LJ 1093 : AIR 1954 Hyd 129 (149) (Pt M) (Pr 143) (FB).

——Art. 245 — Scope — Grant of village, revenue free — Right of Legislature to take away exemption. See C. P. and Berar Revocation of Land Revenue Exemption Act (37 of 1948), S. 3. AIR 1958 Madh Pra 97 (DB).

——Arts. 245 and 246 — Powers of Legislatures are not unrestricted. See Government of India Act (1935), S. 99. AIR 1956 Mad 642.

——Arts. 245, 246 — Powers of State legislature to enact laws — Extent of.

The Constitution proceeds on the assumption that sovereignty vested in the people of India and they through the accredited representatives in the Constituent Assembly, gave themselves the Constitution. The State legislature therefore, has no other independent sovereign right to legislate apart from what is contained within the four corners of the Constitution. 1952 Mad WN 299 : 1952-1 Mad LJ 557 : AIR 1952 Mad 613 (631, 632) (Pt H) (Pr 27) (DB).

——Art. 245 — Indian Legislature — Power to legislate — It has unrestricted power of legislation within the restricted area — Legislature cannot delegate its legislative power to another authority but can delegate non-legislative power.

The Indian Legislature and the Colonial Legislatures are created by Statutes, Orders in Council, or Letters Patent. The power to legislate and its limits are defined by the Constitution. They are in no sense agents of the British Parliament which created them, and the principle of delegata potestas non potest delegare is inapplicable to them. Within the limits prescribed by the statute they have sovereign and plenary powers of legislation of the same nature as the British Parliament. The authority creating them also fixes the limits of the field of legislation within which they possess plenary powers. The area is no doubt restricted but within the area their powers are unrestricted. As the legislative power of a Government is vested in the Legislature under the Constitution Act it is not open to the Legislature to surrender or abdicate that power or delegate it to another authority whether it is the executive Government or some other body. But a Legislature is authorised to delegate a power which is non-legislative in character. Sometimes the delegated power may be in the nature of conditional legislation authorising an authority such as the executive to determine the time of the commencement of an Act and the area of its application after determining, if necessary, certain facts : 4 Cal 172 (PC) and (1884) 9 AC 117, Rel. on. (1949) 2 Mad 663: 1949 Mad WN 733: 51 Cri LJ 615 : AIR 1950 Mad 243 (246, 247) (Pt E) (Prs 6; 9) (DB).

●——Art. 245 — No legislative authority that is subject to a written Constitution which it is bound to obey possesses sovereign powers to fullest extent. Prahalad Jena v. State, ILR (1950) Cut 222 : 51 Cri LJ 1189 : AIR 1950 Orissa 157 (166) (Pt H) (Pr 22) (FB).

●——Arts. 245 and 246 — Limitations on legislative powers — Competency to enact confiscatory or ex-propriatory legislation — (Punjab Consolidation of Land Proceedings (Validation) Act (6 of 1954), Ss. 3 and 4).

The Punjab Consolidation of Land Proceedings (Validation) Act (6 of 1954) was not beyond the competence of the State legislature on the ground of it being a confiscatory or ex propriatory enactment.

The legislative competence of the State legislature can only be circumscribed by the express prohibition contained in the Constitution itself,

Unless there is any provision expressly prohibiting legislation on the subject either absolutely or conditionally, there is no fetter or limitation on the plenary powers which the State legislature enjoys to legislate on the topics enumerated in the Lists 2 and 3 of the Seventh Schedule.

Inasmuch as the real object of the Act is covered by Entry 18 of List 2 or by Entries 27 and 41 of List 3 and it cannot be said that the object fell within the exclusive field of another legislature, the Act cannot be held to be colourable legislation. State of Punjab v. Kehar Singh, 60 Punj LR 461 : ILR 1958 Punj 2136 : AIR 1959 Punj 8 (13, 14) (Pt B) (Prs 5, 6) (FB).

4. The legislature and the executive.

●——Art. 245 — Functions of Government—Executive, legislative and judicial functions — Distinction — Functions which are not legislative or judicial must be regarded as executive.

Per Gajendragadkar, Shah and Raghubar Dayal, JJ. :— Functions which do not fall strictly within the field legislative or judicial, fall in the residuary class and must be regarded as executive. It cannot however, be assumed that the legislative functions are exclusively performed by the Legislature, executive functions by the executive and judicial functions by the judiciary alone. The Constitution has not made an absolute or rigid division of functions between the three agencies of the State. To the executive, exercise of functions legislative or judicial are often entrusted. For instance power to frame rules, regulations and notification which are essentially legislative in character is frequently entrusted to the executive. Similarly judicial authority is also entrusted by legislation to the executive authority. In the performance of the executive function, public authorities issue orders which are not far removed from legislation and make decisions affecting the personal and proprietary rights of individuals which are quasi-judicial in character. In addition to these quasi-judicial, and quasi-legislative functions, the executive has also been empowered by statute to exercise functions which are legislative and judicial in character, and in certain instances, powers are exercised which appear to partake at the same moment of legislative, executive and judicial characteristics. In the complexity of problems which modern Government have to face and the plethora of parliamentary business to which it inevitably leads, it becomes necessary that the executive should often exercise powers of subordinate legislation. It is indeed possible to characterise with precision that an agency of the State is executive, legislative or judicial, but it cannot be predicated that a particular function exercised by any individual agency is necessarily of the character which the agency bears. AIR 1955 SC 549 and AIR 1961 SC 1669, Rel. on. AIR 1963 Gujarat 80, Not approved. Jayantilal Amratlal Shodhan v. F. N. Rana, (1964) 5 Guj LR 481 : (1964) 2 SCA 284 : (1964) 5 SCR 294 : AIR 1964 SC 648 (655, 656) (Pt B) (Prs 10, 11).

●——Art. 245 — Law — Firman of Maharana of Udaipur, an absolute monarch, is law — Constitution of India, Art. 13.

In the case of an absolute Ruler like the Maharana of Udaipur, no distinction can be made between an executive order isued by him or a legislative command issued by him. Any order issued by such a Ruler has the force of law and governs the rights of the parties affected thereby. This universal principle in regard to the scope of the powers inherently vesting in sovereignty applies as much to Hindu monarch as to any other absolute monarch. Therefore, it must be held that the Firman issued by the Maharana of Udaipur in 1934 is a law by which the affairs of the Nathdwara Temple and succession to the office of the Tilkayat were governed after its issue. AIR 1961 SC 298 and AIR 1955 SC 352 and AIR 1956 SC 60, Rel. on.; AIR 1962 Raj 196, Affirmed. Tilkayat Shri Govindlalji Maharaj v. State of Rajasthan, (1963) 2 SCA 518: (1964) 1 SCR 561: (1964) 2 SCJ 715 : AIR 1963 SC 1638 (1650) (Pt A) (Prs 32, 33).

——Art. 245 — Crown, how far bound by Statute — Legal proceedings against.

The Crown is not bound by a statute unless expressly named or bound by necessary implication. It is also a part of the common law that no proceeding, civil or criminal, is maintainable against the Crown in the ordinary Courts of law. 1951 Mad WN 391 : 1951-2 Mad LJ 23 : 64 Mad LW 659 : AIR 1951 Mad 880 (881) (Pt B) (Pr 3) (DB).

5. The legislature and the judiciary.

●——Art. 245 — Exercise of judicial powers by Legislature — What amounts to — Giving retrospective operation to Act or setting aside decisions of Courts — Effect of.

The mere fact that the Legislature has given retrospective operation to an Act does not make the Act a thing done in the exercise of judicial power. It is laying down the law to be followed by Courts. The Legislature can interfere with the vested rights of persons in the exercise of its legislative power. That is not adjudicating between parties affected by the Act. AIR 1959 SC 459 and AIR 1944 FC 1, Rel. on. Kochuni v. States of Madras and Kerala, 1960 Ker LJ 1077: (1960) 2 SCA 412 : (1961) 2 SCJ 443 : (1960) 3 SCR 887 : 1960 Ker LT (SC) 31 : AIR 1960 SC 1080 (1109, 1110) (Pt O) (Prs 76, 78).

●——Art. 245 — Authority of State Rulers — Pre-Constitution Nizam — Firmans of — Nature and authority of — Special Commission for enquiry in matter of succession of a Nawab — Findings when amount to decree — Execution — Effect of various firmans.

Prior to the integration of Hyderabd State with the Indian Union and the coming into force of the Indian Constitution, the Nizam of Hyderabad enjoyed uncontrolled sovereign powers. He was the supreme legislature, the supreme judiciary and the supreme head of the executive, and there were no constitutional limitations upon his authority to act in any of these capacities. The firmans were expressions of the sovereign will of the Nizam and they were binding in the same way as any other law; nay, they would override all other laws which were in conflict with them. So long as a particular firman held the field, that alone would govern or regulate the rights of the parties concerned, though it could be annulled or modified by a later firman at any time that the Nizam willed.

By a firman dated 19th February, 1939, the Nizam constituted a special commission to investigate and submit a report to him in a case of succession to a deceased Nawab which was transferred to the commission from the file of Darul Quaza Court. A firman dated 26th June, 1947 declared the report of the Commisison worthy of implementation and directed it to be implemented. The report was transmitted to the Chief Justice of the Hyderabad High Court for execution with a direction that report for distribution of matrooka property should be submitted for the Nizam's sanction before carrying it into effect. After the Police Action, the previous order was withdrawn by a firman dated 24th February, 1949, and the decision of the special commission was set aside in respect of certain claimants. This firman was again revoked by a fresh firman dated 7th September, 1949 and the case was referred to another person for opinion and report.

Held, that though the report of the Special Commission could not per se operate as a decree, it had that force after the sanction of the Nizam which was given to it by the firman dated 26th June, 1947. The result was that a decree capable of execution was brought into existence by the firman of 26th June, 1947.

(2) That the decree did not cease to be executable by reason of the firman dated 28th June, 1948.

(3) That the effect of the firman dated 24th February, 1949 was to set aside the decision of the Special Commission in respect of certain claimants and though the subsequent firman dated 7th September, 1949, revoked the earlier firman, it did not restore the decision of the Special Commission. On the other hand, it referred the whole case for further inquiry and investigation which ultimately proved abortive and inconclusive.

(4) That in these circumstances, there was no final and conclusive determination of the rights of the parties in existence after the order of 7th September, 1949, which was capable of execution as a decree.

(5) That all the proceedings subsequent to the withdrawal of the suit instituted by the claimants in the Darul Quaza Court must be held to have been wiped out and the suit must consequently be held to be undisposed of and still pending. (The case was therefore, remanded for fresh trial from the stage of its transfer to the Special Commission.) ILR (1954) Hyd 658, Reversed. Ameer-un-Nissa Begum v. Mahboob Begum, AIR 1955 SC 352 (359, 360, 361, 362) (Pt A) (Prs 15, 18; 19; 21; 25).

——Arts. 245, 213 — Jurisdictions of High Court and Legislature — Each supreme within its own sphere — Nature and extent of — Validating enactment — Scope and its effect—Legislature cannot validate unconstitutional act — U. P. Act of 1953 declared unconstitutional — Actions taken or orders passed thereunder cannot be validated by S. 17 of U. P. Ordinance of 1953 — U. P. Public Land (Eviction and Recovery of Rent and Damages) Ordinance (4 of 1959), S. 16. AIR 1962 All 350 (352, 353) (Pt B) (Prs 9, 10, 13).

——Art. 245 — Legislature — Ultra vires—Powers of Court to declare upon validity of legislation when to be exercised.

Until a bill has become law, the legislative process not being complete, Courts do not come into the picture at all. It is not the function of any Court or Judge to declare void or directly annul a law the moment it has been promulgated. Courts are not a supervisory body over the Legislature. Their approval or disapproval is not needed for an Act passed by the Legislature to have the force of law. Their function is interpretative. In other words, upon any particular case coming before them in which the right of any party is involved they decide whether the Act or any part of it is to be disregarded on the ground of its incompatibility with the Constitution. 1951 All LJ 246 : ILR (1951) 2 All 505 : AIR 1951 All 228 (231, 232, 233) (Pt C) (Prs 13, 23) (DB).

——Art. 245 — Powers of Indian Legislature under the Government of India Act.

Desai, J. :— When an Act of the Indian Legislature is attacked before a Court the Court has simply to see whether that Act was within the scope or mandate of the Indian Legislature and has to uphold it if it was. It follows that, the powers of the Indian Legislature within its mandate are as plenary and full as those of the British Parliament. Provided it has power to make laws with respect to the particular matter, it can make any laws which the British Parliament can. Once it acts within its scope, the difference between the Indian Legislature and the British Parliament disappears. 52 Cr LJ 1191 : ILR (1952) 2 All 360 : AIR 1951 All 44 (50, 51) (Pt C) (Pr 11).

●— Art. 245 — Exercise of legislative function — Power to put an end to finality of a decision by Court by enactment — Such an enactment whether amounts to exercise of judicial functions by legislature — Validity of M. P. Act (1 of 1955). See Madhya Pradesh Janpada Election Matters Validating Act (1 of 1955), S. 3. AIR 1957 Bom 266 (FB).

●——Art. 245 — Legislative and judicial functions — Distinction between.

The judicial function consists in the Court deciding the rights of parties according to law and submitting to the mandate issued by the Legislature; but it is for the Court to interpret what that mandate is and it is for the Court pursuant to that mandate to decide what the rights of the parties are. On the other hand, the legislative process is for the Legislature to lay down the law which will govern parties and transactions. Gulabrao Keshavrao v. Pandurang Bhanji, ILR (1957) Bom 714 : 60 Bom LR 12 : 1957 Nag LJ 419 : AIR 1957 Bom 266 (268) (Pt A) (Pr 3) (FB).

——Art. 245 — Validity of — Houses and Rents — W. B. Premises Tenancy Act (12 of 1956), S. 40 (2-A) — Not invalid on ground of encroaching on judicial field. See Houses and Rents — W. B. Premises Tenancy Act (12 of 1956), S. 40 (2-A). AIR 1963 Cal 470.

——Art. 245 — Usurpation of judicial functions by Legislatures.

If any enactment disposes of a case by the vigour of the enactment itself without leaving to the judiciary the power to pass the appropriate orders with reference to the law in force at the date of the order, it may be open to the objection of judicial functions being usurped by the Legislature. Where, however, the Legislature enacts a rule of law applicable to certain facts which are to be ascertained by Courts, it would be essentially an exercise of an enacting power though the new law may vary or reiterate the earlier law. The exercise of such a power would obviously be different from the exercise of judicial power inasmuch as, the essential characteristics of a judicial function, namely, adjudication on facts and interpretation of law would be wanting in such a case. AIR 1952 Pat 166, Dist. ILR (1954) Hyd 766 : AIR 1955 Hyd 257 (259) (Pt B) (Pr 6) (DB).

●——Art. 245 — Written constitutions — Interpretation — Principles.

Per Ansari, J. :— It is true that judiciary in written federal constitutions generally interpret and construe the constitutions, but this is the inevitable consequence of all written ruling instruments, be they federal or unitary, or something of lesser importance. The principles applied in the interpretation and construction of the written Constitutions are not different to those used in construing laws enacted by legislatures where the Constitutions have not been reduced into writing. A written Constitution is generally interpreted like any other statute by reference to its terms, and without any consideration of policy or the possibility of abuse of power. Therefore, authorities of Courts in countries with written federal Constitutions relating to emergency legislations should not be ruled out on the only ground that a particular legislation is by an authority whose power was not reduced to writing. Pannalal Lahoti v. State of Hyderabad, ILR (1954) Hyd 441 : 1954 Cr LJ 1093 : AIR 1954 Hyd 129 (148, 149) (Pt L) (Prs 139; 140; 142) (FB).

——Art. 245 — Madhya Pradesh Agricultural Produce Markets (Validation) Act, 1962 (12 of 1962), S. 3 — Madhya Pradesh Agricultural Produce Markets (Validation) Ordinance (2 of 1962) — Enactments validating action which is struck down by judgment — Not open to challenge though it renders judgment to have no legal effect as a judicial act performed by legislative authority — Legislature competent to enact laws within limits framed by Constitution. See Madhya Pradesh Agricultural Produce Markets (Validation) Act, 1962 (12 of 1962), S. 3. AIR 1965 Madh Pra 6 (DB).

——Art. 245 — Legislature is competent to put an end to finality of a decision of Court by an enactment — This does not amount to exercise of judicial power — AIR 1961 SC 1486 and AIR 1944 FC 1 and AIR 1953 Nag 40 and AIR 1956 Nag 167 and AIR 1957 Bom 266 (FB), Rel. on. (1962) Jab LJ 897 : 1962 MPLJ 849 : ILR (1963) Madh Pra 985 : 1962 MPC 321 : AIR 1962 Madh Pra 342 (348) (Pt C) (Pr 13) (DB).

——Art. 245 — The Legislature and the Judiciary — Legislation to override effect of Judicial decision — Whether bad as exercise of judicial power — Sales Tax Laws Validation Act (1956), S. 2 — Validity and effect — Injunction issued by Supreme Court prior to passing of Act, restraining-local Sales-Tax Authorities from taxing transactions made in course of inter-State trade or commere — Liability to sales-tax of such transactions after passing of Act—Constitution of India, Art. 286 (2) — M. P. Sales-tax Act (21 of 1947), Ss. 4, 27-A.

When the Legislature, without amending the law, directs, that pending cases shall be disposed of in a particular manner or that cases decided in one way shall be deemed to have been decided in another way, that would be an exercise of judicial power. But the enactment of a retrospective law or the passing of a Validation Act, which incidentally puts an end to the finality of a decision of a Court or reopens a past controversy cannot be regarded as an exercise of judicial power.

Section 2 of the Sales Tax Laws Validation Act, 1956, is constitutionally valid and hits every judgment, decree or order which pronounces as invalid any imposition of sales-tax or purchase tax on transactions made between 1-4-1951 and 6-9-1955 in the course of inter-State trade or commerce.

The petitioners, prior to the passing of the Sales Tax Laws Validation Act, 1956, had obtained an injunction from the Supreme Court restraining the Sales Tax Authorities in M. P. from enforcing the provisions of the C. P. and Berar Sales Tax Act, 1947. On the date injuction was issued by the Supreme Court in respect of the transactions of sale or purchase effected, on the ground that the transactions had taken place in the course of inter-state trade or commerce when the ban had not been lifted, the Supreme Court pronounced that so far as those transactions are concerned, the M. P. Sales Tax Act as it then stood by itself could not be enforced. The ban was subsequently lifted and what was subsequently sought to be enforced was not only the Act as it stood then but the Act read with the Sales Tax Laws Validation Act, 1956. This was not interdicted by the Supreme Court. The judgment of the Supreme Court, which was given before the lifting of the ban, noticed that lacuna and gave effect to it. (1962) MPLJ 935 : (1962) Jab LJ 725 : 1962 MPC 216 : AIR 1962 Madh Pra 245 (250, 251, 252) (Pt A) (Prs 11, 13, 14, 15) (DB).

——Art. 245 — Powers of Legislatures in India— Exercise of judicial powers — Legality — Validity of M. B. Act (7 of 1956)—(Municipalities — M. B. Municipalities (Second Amendment) Act (7 of 1956), Ss. 2 and 3) — (Municipalities — M. B. Municipalities Act (M. B. Act 1 of 1954), S. 10, Expl. —Validity).

Where the Legislature, on finding that there has been a lacuna in creating jurisdiction, supplies it, acts within the legislative field. Where, however, the Legislature goes further than this and compels the determination of a case at the hands of a Court taking it completely out of the reach of the Court to make a contrary decision, the mater is one under judicial and not legislative power. AIR 1944 FC 1; AIR 1944 FC 86 and AIR 1950 SC 188, Rel. on.

When the High Court of Madhya Bharat stated that there was no jurisdiction in any particular District Judge till the District Judge was designated by Legislature or some authority acting under its commands, the M. B. Act VII of 1956 merely supplied the lack of jurisdiction by designating the Judge and did so retrospectively. The result of the introduction of the Explanation in S. 10 of the M. B. Municipalities Act, 1954, was to clear the jurisdiction, not only in praesenti when the Act was passed, but for all time. By enacting S. 3, the Legislature provided a right of application to the aggrieved party, giving him the chance of moving the Court once again for the re-opening of the prematurely terminated case and compelled the Court to go back on its own decision where the dismissal was the result only of want of jurisdiction. This cannot be said to be an exercise of a judicial power by the Legislature. Sections 2 and 3 of the Amending Act 7 of 1956 are therefore, a valid piece of legislation. ILR (1957) Madh Pra 226 : 1957 MPLJ 505 : 1957 Jab LJ 687 : 1957 MPC 498 : AIR 1957 Madh Pra 165 (167, 168, 169) (Prs 9; 11; 16; 17) (DB).

——Art. 245 — Statute to rectify mistaken view of law.

The Legislature constituted under the provisions of the Constitution has the power to set right by means of rectifying the statutes, any mistaken view of the law. RC Nos. 86 to 88 of 1952 (Mad), Foll. 1956 Mad WN 528 : (1956) 2 Mad LJ 87 : AIR 1956 Mad 604 (605) (Pt A) (Pr 1) (DB).

——Arts. 245 (1) and 225 — Legislation imposing limitation on powers of High Court under the Constiution cannot be passed — Existing laws which contain such limitation become void after Constitution came into force. 1953 Nag LJ 279 : ILR (1953) Nag 226 : AIR 1953 Nag 148 (150) (Pt B) (Pr 8) (DB).

——Art. 245 — Legislation or Ordinance cannot be struck down as being usurpation of judicial power — Bill to replace Ordinance — Leave to introduce refused — Refusal does not amount to disapproving Ordinance — Ordinance does not cease to be operative — Rules of Procedure. See Ibid, Art. 213 (1). AIR 1960 Orissa 46 (DB).

●——Art. 245 — Bihar Land Encroachment Act (XXXI of 1950) — Validity.

The Articles of our Constitution do not divide and establish areas of black and white. As under the English system, it will be open to the Legislature under our Constitution to override the effect of a judicial decision by legislation provided the legislation does not violate any of the Articles of the Constitution and is not in contravention of fundamental rights as guaranteed by the Constitution.

Though there is no scope for judicial determination by the Collector under the Bihar Act (31 of 1950), the Act cannot be declared invalid simply because it is in effect adjudicating with regard to the rights of the parties. On the mere ground that the Act is so drafted, that instead of giving any judicial discretion to the Collector it finally lays down and indicates the action which has to be taken against the person in possession of a public property within the meaning of the expression as used in the Act it cannot be declared ultra vires. Brij Bhukan v. S. D. O., Siwan, 1954 BLJR 513: 33 Pat 690: AIR 1955 Pat 1 (31, 32) (Pt W) (Pr 21) (SB).

——Art. 245 — Consolidation ordered under Section 14, East Punjab Act 50 of 1948 — Prior enforcement of Ch. 2 not necessary — Enforcement of provisions of Act — Not a matter for judicial decision. See Tenancy Laws — East Punjab Holdings (Consolidation and Prevention of Fragmentation) Act (50 of 1948), S. 1 (3). AIR 1964 Punj 90 (DB).

6. Delegation of power by the judiciary.

(a) 'Legislation', meaning of.
(b) Essential legislative power cannot be delegated.
(c) Abdication or self-effacement by legislature.
(d) Control over subordinate agency.
(e) Delegatus non-potest delegare — Sub-delegation.
(f) Power to repeal existing laws.
(g) Power of taxation.
(h) Power to constitute Courts and tribunals.
(i) Conferment of administrative authority.
(j) Sub-delegation of power.
See Note 6 (e).
(k) Legislation relating to foreigners.
(l) Defence of India Act.
(m) Marketing laws.
(n) Tenancy Acts.
(o) Excise laws.
(p) Industrial Disputes Act.
(q) Acts relating to municipalities.
(r) Police Acts.
(s) Rent Control legislation.
(t) Panchayat Acts.
(u) Sales-tax Acts.
(v) Essential Supplies (Temporary Powers) Act.
(w) Factories Act.
(x) Motor Vehicles Act.
(y) Arms Act.
(z) Other instances.

6. Delegation of power by the judiciary.

●——Arts. 245, 248, 277 and Sch. VII, List II, Entry 5 — State legislature cannot confer higher power on municipal bodies than it has under the Constitution — List II, Entry 5 — Interpretation of — Reference to legislative practice prevailing before Constitution how far relevant — Rule against excessive delegation of legislative powers equally applies in case of municipal bodies.

Per Subba Rao and Ayyangar, JJ.: The State legislature cannot authorise a municipal body which it creates even though it be for the purpose of local self-Government a power higher than what it itself possesses. Nothing therefore, depends upon the use of the powers in Entry 5 of List II as that expression can refer only to (a) such powers as are actually conferred by the enactment in question and (b) powers which the legislature can by law confer on the executive Government of the State or on any other instrumentality of its creation. AIR 1959 SC 586, Foll.

As power could be conferred on a Municipal Corporation only by law, the nature or quantum of power that could be vested by a law of the State Legislature, cannot transcend the limitations prescribed by the Constitution on the State Legislature. In the context therefore, of the law being one in relation to municipal corporations, the State Legislature can confer on the corporation created, only those powers which are within its legislative power and relevant to the topic. The contention that List II, Entry 5 is to be understood in the light of the legislative practice which prevailed prior to the Constitution cannot be accepted. What the legislature cannot do directly by legislating and conferring power upon the State Government or the instruments which it creates, it cannot obviously confer upon a municipal corporation, merely because it has authority to confer, power upon a municipality in express terms. The power to impose taxes which it cannot impose for the augmentation of the revenues of the State it cannot manifestly confer upon a municipality or other organ of a local self-government. Secondly, the territory of India now embraces what were formerly the territory of ruling princes in which there were no limitations on the powers which might be vested in Municipal bodies. It is not, therefore, possible to refer to a uniform legislative practice prevailing before the Constitution to serve as a guide for interpreting the legislative entries in the Constitution.

If the very nature of a legislative power is such that the legislature cannot delegate essential legislative functions the fact that, the authority to confer power is express, not implicit, makes no difference to the application of the principle. In either event, as the law conferring power even when expressly authorised is a law, the rule against excessive delegation, applies to it as much to cases where the authority to confer power is implicit. The analogy of the American decisions affords no guidance for the application of a different rule as to what constitutes excessive delegation in the case of legislation creating municipal bodies. The same tests have to be applied to determine the limits of permissible delegation of quasi legislative power whether the same be in favour of Municipal bodies or in favour of other administrative agencies. Corporation of Calcutta v. Liberty Cinema, 1965 SC (Notes) 6: (1965) 1 SCA 657 : AIR 1965 SC 1107 (1134, 1135, 1136, 1137, 1138) (Pt F) (Prs 72; 73; 74; 75; 76; 77; 78; 79; 80).

●——Art. 245 — Excessive delegation. See Bhopal Reclamation and Development of Lands (Eradication of Kans) Act (13 of 1954), S. 4 (1). AIR 1965 SC 124.

●——Art. 245 — Delegation of Legislative functions — Extent of. See Employees' Provident Funds Act (1952), S. 1 (3) (b). AIR 1964 SC 980.

●——Art. 245 — Delegation of legislative powers — Permissibility — Extent of.

The power of delegation is a constituent element of the legislative power as a whole, and when the legislatures enact laws to meet the challenge of the complex socio-economic problems, they often find it convenient and necessary to delegate subsidiary or ancillary powers to delegates of their choice for carrying out the policy laid down by their Acts. The Legislature must lay down the legislative policy and principle, and must afford guidance for carrying out the said policy before it delegates its subsidiary powers in that behalf.

Subba Rao, J. :— There is a danger inherent in a process of delegation. An over-burdened legislature or one controlled by a powerful executive may unduly overstep the limits of delegation. The self-effacement of legislative power in favour of another agency either in whole or in part is beyond the permissible limits of delegation. It is for a Court to hold on a fair, generous and liberal construction of an impugned statute whether the legislature exceeded such limits. It is the duty of the Supreme Court to strike down without any hesitation any blanket power conferred on the executive by the legislature. Vasanlal Maganbhai Sanjanwala v. State of Bombay, 63 Bom LR 138 : (1961) 1 SCJ 394 : 1961 Nag LJ 222 : (1961) 1 SCR 341 : AIR 1961 SC 4 (7, 11 12) (Pt A) (Prs 4; 16).

●——Arts. 245 and 312 — All India Services Act (1951), Ss. 3 and 4 — Delegation of Rule-making powers — Delegation is not excessive. See All India Services Act (1951), S. 3. AIR 1959 SC 512.

●——Art. 245 — Delegation of Legislative power — Extent of valid delegation — Validity of S. 3 (1) (f) of B. and O. Act (1 of 1915) and Notification of 23rd April, 1951 (Municipalities —Patna Administration Act (1 of 1915), S. 13 (f).)

An executive authority can be authorised to modify either existing or future laws but not in any essential feature. Exactly what constitutes an essential feature cannot be enunciated in general terms. But this much is clear that it cannot include a change of policy. AIR 1951 SC 332, Expl. and Rel. on.

As a part of an Act can be extended by an executive authority it follows that a section or sections also can be picked out and applied. Also for the same reason that the whole or a part of an Act can be modified, it follows that a section also can be modified. But when a section of an Act is selected for application, whether it is modified or not, it must be done so as not to effect any change of policy or any essential change in the Act regarded as a whole. 4 Cal 172 (PC), Rel. on.

Subject to the above limitation S. 3 (1) (f) of the Bihar and Orissa Act (1 of 1915) as amended in 1928, is intra vires, that is to say, any section or sections of the Bihar and Orissa Municipal Act of 1922 can be picked and applied to 'Patna' provided that does not effect any essential change in the Act or alter its policy.

The Notification of 23-4-1951 extending S. 104 of the Bihar and Orissa Municipal Act, 1922, to the 'Patna' village area, however, effects a radical change in the policy of the Act. The action of the Governor in subjecting the residents of the Patna village area to municipal taxation without observing the formalities imposed by sections 4, 5 and 6 of the Bihar and Orissa Municipal Act of 1922, cuts across one of its essential features touching a matter of policy. Therefore, the Notification travels beyond the authority which S. 3 (1) (f) confers and consequently it is ultra vires. Rajnarain Singh v. Chairman, Patna Administration Committee, (1954) SCJ 661: (1954) 2 MLJ 344 : 1954 SCA 774 : 1955 SCR 290 : AIR 1954 SC 569 (574, 575) (Prs 31, 32, 36, 37, 39).

●——Art. 245 — Delegated legislation — Limitations.

Per Fazal Ali, J. :— (1) The legislature must normally discharge its primary legislative function itself and not through others (2) Once it is established that it has sovereign powers within a certain sphere, it must follow as a corollary that it is free to legislate within that sphere in any way which appears to it to be the best way to give effect to its intention and policy in making a particular law and it may utilize any outside agency to any extent it finds necessary for doing things which it is unable to do itself or finds it inconvenient to do. In other words, it can do everything which is ancillary to and necessary for the full and effective exercise of its power of legislation. (3) It cannot abdicate its legislative functions, and therefore while entrusting power to an outside agency, it must see that such agency acts as a subordinate authority and does not become a parallel legislature. (4) The doctrine of separation of powers and the judicial interpretation it has received in America ever since the American Constitution was framed, enables the American Courts to check undue and excessive delegation but the Courts of this country are not committed to that doctrine and cannot apply it in the same way as it has been applied in America. Therefore, there are only two main checks in this country on the power of the legislature to delegate, these being its good sense and the principle that it should not cross the line beyond which delegation amounts to "abdication and self-effacement."

Delegated legislation, using the expression in the popular sense, has become a present-day necessity and it has come to stay — It is both inevilable and indispensable. The legislature has now to make so many laws that it has no time to devote to all the legislative details, and sometimes the subject on which it has to legislate is of such a technical nature that all it can do is to state the broad principles and leave the details to be worked out by those who are more familiar with the subject. Again, when complex schemes of reform are to be the subject of legislation, it is difficult to bring out a self-contained and complete Act straightway, since it is not possible to foresee all the contingencies and envisage all the local requirements for which provision is to be made. Thus, some degree of flexibility becomes necessary, so as to permit constant adaptation to unknown future conditions without the necessity of having to amend the law again and again. The advantage of such a course is that it enables the delegate authority to consult interests likely to be affected by a particular law, make actual experiments when necessary, and utilize the results of its investigations and experiments in the best way possible. There may also arise emergencies and urgent situations requiring prompt action and the entrustment of large powers to authorities who have to deal with the various situations as they arise.

The complexity of modern administration and the expansion of the functions of the State to the economic and social sphere have rendered it necessary to resort to new forms of legislation and to give wide powers to various authorities on suitable occasions. But while emphasizing that delegation is in these days inevitable, one should not omit to refer to the dangers attendant upon the injudicious exercise of the power of delegation by the legislature. The dangers involved in defining the delegated power so loosely that the area it is intended to cover cannot be clearly ascertained and in giving wide delegated powers to executive authorities and at the same time depriving a citizen of protection by the Courts against harsh and unreasonable exercise of powers, are too obvious to require elaborate discussion.

Per Mukherjea J. — The Legislature cannot part with its essential legislative function which consists in declaring its policy and making it a binding rule of conduct. A surrender of this essential function would amount to abdication of legislative powers in the eye of law. The policy may be particularised in as few or as many words as the legislature thinks proper and it is enough if an intelligent guidance is given to the subordinate authority. The Court can interfere if no policy is discernible at all or the delegation is of such an indefinite character as to amount to abdication, but as the discretion vests with the legislature in determining whether there is necessity for delegation or not, the exercise of such discretion is not to be disturbed by the Court except in clear cases of abuse. These are the fundamental principles and in respect to the powers of the legislature the constitutional position in India approximates more to the American than to the English pattern. There is a basic difference between the Indian and the British Parliament in this respect. There is no constitutional limitation to restrain the British Parliament from assigning its powers where it will, but the Indian Parliament qua legislative body is fettered by a written constitution and it does not possess the sovereign powers of the British Parliament. The limits of the powers of delegation in India would therefore have to be ascertained as a matter of construction from the provisions of the Constitution itself and the right of delegation may be implied in the exercise of legislative power only to the extent that it is necessary to make the exercise of the power effective and complete.

Per Bose J. — The concept of legislative power which had hitherto been accepted in India continued to hold good but this limitation was placed upon it by the Constitution, namely that wherever the Constitution empowers Parliament to do a particular thing as opposed to legislating generally on a particular topic, there can be no delegation. Parliament must itself act. It has been held from the earliest times even when viewed through purely British eyes, that a legislature created by the British Parliament (1) cannot act beyond the ambit of its powers, the extent of which must be gathered from the document which brings it into being, (2) it cannot create a new legislature for the purpose of legislating generally and (3) it cannot abdicate. The same limitations exist in the case of the Indian Parliament because that, unlike the British Parliament, is not free to do as it likes; it is bound by the Constitution.

Kania C. J. — While a legislature as a part of its legislative functions can confer powers to make rules and regulations for carrying the enactment into operation and effect, and while a legislature has power to lay down the policy and principles providing the rule of conduct and while it may further provide that on certain data or facts being found and ascertained by an executive authority, the operation of the Act can be extended to certain areas or may be brought into force on such determination which is described as conditional legislation, the power to delegate legislative functions generally is not warranted under the Constitution of India at any stage. Therefore, the contention that legislative power carries with it a general power to delegate legislative functions, so that the legislature may not define its policy at all and may lay down no rule of conduct but that whole thing may be left either to the executive authority or administrative or other body, is unsound.

The true test in respect of 'abdication' or 'effacement' appears to be whether in conferring the power to the delegate, the legislature, in the words used to confer the power, retained its control. Does the decision of the delegate derive sanction from the act of the delegate or has it got the sanction from what the legislature has enacted and decided?

To say that the true test of effacement is that the authority which confers power on the subordinate body should not be able to withdraw the power appears to be meaningless.

Abdication by a legislative body need not necessarily amount to a complete effacement of it. Abdication may be partial or complete. When in respect of a subject in the Legislative List the Legislature says that it shall not legislate on that subject but would leave it to somebody else to legislate on it, why does it not amount to abdication or effacement? I full powers to do anything and everything which the legislature can do are conferred on the subordinate authority, although the legislature has power to control the action of the subordinate authority, by recalling such power of repealing the Acts passed by the subordinate authority, the power conferred by the instrument amounts to an abdication or effacement of the legislature conferring such power.

The power of delegation, in the sense of the legislature conferring power, on either the executive government or another authority, "to lay down the policy underlying a rule of conduct" is not permitted. In re, Constitution of India and Delhi Laws Act (1912) etc. 1951 SCJ 527: 1951 SCR 747: AIR 1951 SC 332 (345, 346, 355, 361, 400, 401, 438) (Pt B) (Prs 35, 36, 38, 74, 90, 246, 378, 379).

■ ——Art. 245 — Delegated legislation—Difference between Indian and American Constitution indicated. See Ibid, Preamble. AIR 1954 All 538 (FB). [Reversed on another point in AIR 1961 SC 420]

■ ——Art. 245 — Delegation of powers — What constitutes — S. 62 of Assam Act (25 of 1953), not invalid. See Assam Local Self-Government Act (25 of 1953), S. 62. AIR 1959 Assam 221 (SB).

